A So, again, not much interaction about his performance at the time just because of where my level is, so it's a supervisor. And then the ASAC really do his performance. So I wouldn't say I had an opinion one way or the other initially about him.

Q Okay.

Do you recall doing any performance reviews with Mr. O'Boyle?

A No.

Q Would you have conducted those, or would that have been the ASAC?

A That would have been the ASAC and the supervisor.

BY [redacted]

Q You said initially you did not have a lot of interaction with Mr. O'Boyle about his performance. Did that change at some point in time?

A It did, yes.

Q At what point in time did that change?

A So when the COVID mandate kind of took into effect, there were several employees that wanted to discuss the issue, talk. And that's when I engaged with Mr. O'Boyle more frequently, as well as some other employees in the office that had some concerns.

Q And what were the concerns that those employees and Mr. O'Boyle had about COVID?

A Right.

Mr. Dayoub. Okay from the medical issue?

[redacted] Yeah. So as I indicated in my email last night, we want to be careful. I don't think you're asking about any individual's medical information.

[redacted] No.

[redacted] So he's going to try to talk about just general compliance with the vaccine mandates. And then let me know if we need to get any more specific.

[redacted] Yeah, I think we're interested in specifically about the protocols that were in place at your office as well.

Mr. Dayoub. Yeah, so I think, like us, we had the executive order come in. So it required specific individuals to be vaccinated. And then there were also exemptions in place for specific reasons outside of that mandate.

So when that mandate came out, we had employees within the office that were concerned about the mandate, complying with the mandate, ensure that they stayed in compliance.

And that was where the discussion occurred with Mr. O'Boyle, how to ensure he stayed in compliance, his concerns, as well as some other employees' concerns were about that.

BY [redacted]

Q And do you remember about what time period that was?

A So I think it was -- so the mandate came out, I think, in September, September 2021, September, October, around that time frame. So I would say it was around that time frame when that was implemented, and so we were trying to deal with how do we implement this mandate to ensure everybody was in compliance.

Q And would you say the September to October 2021 time frame is when your interactions with Mr. O'Boyle picked up?

A Yeah, him and other individuals. I have a pretty open-door policy within my office. I allow employees to come in and out to speak to me at any time. They can reach out to me at any time. I've tried to instate that while at the office.

So it was with him, as well as other employees that I met with individually and talked about the issue, as well as other things. They'd come in. I feel that level of communication all the way down is important for me to understand their concerns and issues so I can help through any problems they're having.

Q And can you quantify for us how many agents and employees within your field office had concerns about the COVID mandate?

A Yeah, I want to say about maybe a dozen. We had about approximately a dozen. Again, it's hard to quantify generally because not all of them approached me. And I was trying to be very cognizant of their medical information and not.

But what we did as part of that process was shortly after the mandate, I had a conference call. I did it over the phone so people could dial in, so nobody could see who was on, so we could talk through: Hey, here's kind of what the mandate is. Here's the issue. Here's what we can do. Nobody should be in trouble not being in compliance.

We're going to work with everybody. We're going to ensure that we work through all this.

So that was part of kind of the process to go through with the mandate.

Q And how did you, as the special agent in charge, and the field office work with those who were not in compliance with the mandate?

A So, obviously, the mandate required either being vaccinated or having an exemption to just go through testing. So I think the concern was logistically how do we have, if people have exemptions, how do we get them tested quickly, appropriately, to allow them to come to work as they should.

So the way we -- we just gave a little bit of leeway in the beginning to allow logistics to set up. So our administrative officer at the time worked with hospitals, medical units to ensure there was access for our employees, in and out. They prioritized our employees, got the results back quickly. But understanding that as long as everybody in good faith was trying to uphold the mandate, then we're good, we're going to continue to work with you.

And that took a couple weeks, and then we got everybody in a rotation and processed, and everything went pretty well for a bit from that end, yeah.

Q Okay.

And to your knowledge, were any employees under your supervision placed on absent without leave status due to noncompliance?

A Yes. So Mr. O'Boyle was.

So specifically regarding Mr. O'Boyle, so I thought -- we had interaction with him. I spoke with him and some other individuals on the process. I thought everything was going well. And then there was a time frame, either later that year or early 2022, I cannot recall when, where I was notified that Mr. O'Boyle stated that he was no longer going to stay in compliance with the mandate.

So we reached out to him. It was my ASAC supervisory reached out to him and the AO and said: Hey, what's going on? Why do you not want to do this?

And my understanding is he just stated: Look, I'm not going to do it. You're going to need to -- you're going to have to put me under suspension or AWOL because I'm not going to stay in compliance with the mandate.

So we went back and forth trying to understand why and what has changed, what's going on, I thought everything was going fine. Ultimately, he refused.

Due to the mandate in the policy, we put him on AWOL for a day. Later that day, it was a Monday -- so this happened, I think, Thursday, Friday, at the end of the week. Monday he was given the letter, told he had to go home until he was back in compliance. That afternoon he got in compliance and came back to work that next following day.

Q How many other agents were placed on absent without leave status that you can remember?

A Nobody else.

Q Just Mr. O'Boyle?

A Correct. For the most part -- again, we -- because of Mr. O'Boyle's refusal to do anything to get through the mandate.

For the most part, if people are trying to get in compliance, we work with them, even if there is some delinquency. There is always that give and take. We want to ensure we're enforcing our policies, that's what we do, but we have to be reasonable with our people.

But, unfortunately, just due to Mr. O'Boyle saying, "Look, I'm not going to do anything to get in compliance," I didn't have a choice at that point. So that's why.

BY [redacted]

Q You said you were notified that he wasn't going to be in compliance with the mandate. How were you notified?

A Through my acting AO at the time.

Q Okay.

A Yeah. Because the administrative officer was tracking how everybody was doing in compliance with the mandate. And so typically, when people are delinquent or there's an issue, we reach out to them. We fix it. Hey, here's the deal, this is what you're doing. And typically, it's fixed and we move on.

But she reached out to Mr. O'Boyle, and my understanding is that's where he refused and then came to me. Hey, what do you want to do? Let's try to work this out. But he stated he wasn't going to do anything and that he had to be suspended, is what he stated.

Q Okay.

So in your entire Kansas City Field Office's purview, how many individuals do you oversee?

A About 336 employees. That's both special agent, intel, professional support, approximately.

Q And how many special agents do you think?

A So about 120, 130 of those are, I think, special agents. Approximately, again.

Q Okay.

So we talked a little bit earlier about your duties as an SAC.

A Yes.

Q I want to talk a little bit about the procedures for protected disclosures.

Can you describe your role as a special agent in charge when an employee wants to make a protected disclosure?

A So, I mean, from my understanding, there are several ways to do that. From my perspective, we try to go through the chain of command, obviously, to see if we can do it. If the employee is not comfortable using the chain of command, then they can utilize specific contacts within the Inspection Division, Security. There's different ways to do it.

The way that I have it set up in my office, so, as I stated, I try to have an open-door policy. I try to reach out to agents and professional support and intel analysts at all levels, just so they know they can talk to me.

I also have an anonymous kind of SharePoint site where anybody can go on and send me a comment anonymously if there's an issue of concern or something they want me to handle but that they don't want me to know who they are, but just to raise an issue.

So I have those things set up. But then, obviously, you can always go outside to different entities in FBI headquarters or DOJ -- like there's the DOJ Inspector General's Office -- to report any issues that you have concerns with.

Q Okay.

Can you describe to me how the SharePoint works?

A Yeah. So it's on our unclassified system. It's a SharePoint we stood up as part of our internal FBI Kansas City website on the unclass site.

So you log in there, and there's a little thing: Hey, send a comment to the SAC. And you can click on it, and you just basically type whatever you want to type. And you can tell me: Hey, you're doing a horrible job, you're doing a great job, we need to fix something with the cars, you need to fix the parking. Whatever it is, they can say it without any issue that, hey, I will know who you are. But it gives -- it lets people raise issues so I know what's going on so I can try to fix them, basically is what it is.

Q How often do you receive messages?

A So in the very beginning, I actually received quite a few.

[Laughter.]

And then, obviously, as time goes on, they kind of dwindle off.

I still get random ones. Like the most recent one is we are redoing our garage, but it got delayed, but we moved all our pool cars outside so none of the employees could park.

Well, I was not tracking this. So someone sent me an anonymous email, like: Hey, none of us can park because we haven't moved any of the vehicles back.

It was a small thing, but I talked with my administrative staff. We moved all the cars back. And so we had to fix the stuff in the garage, and people could park again.

So it's small things like that. I mean, it's nice to have because something that maybe would not come to my attention that I could kind of fix if I can.

Q Sure.

And so was that SharePoint system Kansas City specific?

A Correct, yes.

Q Did any other field office utilize a system like that?

A Well, I can't speak to that. I know that's just -- I'm sure there are, but, I mean, I just thought it was important.

But, yeah, it's limited. You have to be a Kansas City employee to access that SharePoint site to put the input. So it's only for us, correct.

Q Okay.

So now I want to talk about your specific experience in Kansas City.

A Sure.

Q So have you ever had an agent or employee make protected disclosures to you about fraud, waste, abuse, misconduct, violation of law?

A So we definitely had people who have spoken to me about misconduct or concerns or issues, yes.

Q Okay. And have any of your ASACs or administrative officer told you about any protected disclosures made to them by an employee?

A So typically -- so I definitely have had that, yes, and we do have an ASAC specifically assigned, and that's the criminal ASAC, who has and deals with all the disciplinary issues or inspection issues or misconduct issues. Like, that's the point of contact for me. And so usually that's where a lot of the things come from. But, yeah.

Q So would that have been Jeffrey Berkebile?

A So that's -- no. It's Jeanette Milazzo right now. That's who currently has that spot right now.

Q Okay.

So as a general question, do you think whistleblowers play a vital role in keeping the executive branch in check?

A Yeah, I'm sure. Yeah, I'm sure.

Q So Mr. O'Boyle, who we talked about, made protected disclosures to you in October of 2021. Does that sound right?

A No.

Q Okay. Did he make protected disclosures to any of your ASACs in that time period?

A Not that I'm tracking, no.

Q Okay. Do you recall any protected disclosures made by Mr. O'Boyle?

A No. Again, my interaction with Mr. O'Boyle was specifically regarding the mandate issues. That is really the most interactions I had with him.

Q Okay.

Do you recognize the name Sean Fitzgerald?

A Yes.

Q Okay. Who is Sean Fitzgerald?

A So Sean is a supervisor out in Wichita Resident Agency. He is no longer a supervisor. He has done his time, stepped down. But he was a supervisor at the time.

Q Okay. Would he have been Mr. O'Boyle's direct supervisor?

A He was, yes, sir.

Q Okay.

So the committee has learned that Mr. O'Boyle made protected disclosures to Mr. Fitzgerald.

A Okay.

Q And there's some questions as to whether or not you were brought in on those protected disclosures.

A Right.

Q So is your testimony that you were not brought in on those?

A No. I mean, do you have specifically what those disclosures were? I mean, again, October 2021 was about the time we were dealing with the COVID issues, COVID mandate issues, and that was the interactions I had.

And in Wichita. So I made a trip down to Wichita and spoke with several employees, including Mr. O'Boyle.

Q Okay.

BY [redacted]

Q If you had to quantify, how many times did you speak with Mr. O'Boyle?

A I would say two to three times in person. And then, as we went through with the mandate, I did send him an email and a text just to check in on him to see how he was doing, especially after the suspension issue, just to say, "Hey, anything you need, what can we do?" on him. And then I always asked the ASAC and supervisor to check on him just to make sure he was doing all right.

Q And this was when he was on AWOL status?

A Yeah. That was before, up to, and then after the AWOL status, yeah.

Q Okay.

A So he was also a SWAT operator. He was on the SWAT team. So I would also see him. I'd go out to all of our SWAT ops for the most part, and I'd see him, and I always would check in on him, see how he was doing, see how his family was.

Q What was your understanding of Mr. O'Boyle's role within the Wichita Resident Agency?

A So he was on the national security squad, and I think he specifically did -- I don't know if he initially did international terrorism, but eventually he did domestic terrorism investigations. That was his kind of role. So I don't know if he did a mixture but then eventually was more domestic terrorism investigations.

Q And you said he was a SWAT operator?

A And he was also on the SWAT team, yes, ma'am.

Q Was he on the JTTF, to your knowledge?

A I guess he would be part of the JTTF, yes, as his role, yes, actually. Now, the main JTTF runs out of Kansas City proper, but, correct, we were trying to build that in the resident agencies, to include in Wichita.

Q And can you describe the Wichita Resident Agency?

A So there's two squads. One is -- I'm sorry. I don't have the actual size of it. I'd have to look. But one is a national security that has a supervisor, which at the time was Sean Fitzgerald. That's the SSRA. And then they have a criminal squad as well with agents that do all criminal matters.

And it's the two of them. It's our largest resident agency that we have outside of headquarters city, Kansas City.

Q And how many employees would you say that resident agency has? A rough estimate is fine.

A I would -- 14 maybe, 15 maybe-ish.

Q Okay.

A So I think there's about 8, 8 to 10 on each squad maybe. So 16, 15, 16-ish. Again, very approximate.

Q And you said that you went out to all of the SWAT ops. Is that right?

A Correct. So all the SWAT operations require my approval, and so I review them. I approve them. And when I can, I do want to be on scene when we have those SWAT operations, yes.

BY [redacted]

Q So I just want to close the loop on the protected disclosure questions.

A Please, yes.

Q So do you know whether or not Mr. O'Boyle made protected disclosures to Mr. Fitzgerald?

A I do not. I would hope if that did occur, that that would have come to me, but I'm not tracking -- again, when you say protected disclosure, my understanding is the concern he had was over the COVID mandate, and there was a great concern, not just with him but several employees. That I am tracking.

If that's what you mean by that, I don't know. Outside of that, my interaction with Mr. O'Boyle was limited to really the COVID mandate concerns.

Q The COVID issues?

A Yeah.

Q Okay.

A That was really his -- in my interaction, that was his main issue with that.

Q Okay.

BY [redacted]

Q And he's represented to the committee that, for instance, there was one time where he was working a case, a domestic terrorism case, and there were four subjects, and instead of opening just one case, he was told to open a case on each subject. So four cases instead of one case.

A Yeah.

Q And he expressed concerns about that to I believe it was Mr. Fitzgerald. Did you hear about that at all?

A So I typically wouldn't, no. I don't recall that. And my level, typically I'm not going to get into the details of specific cases or process.

But I can state each program has their own policy guide of how they run their programs and their investigations, and for the most part typically we would want individual cases on -- and this is me speaking more as a case agent, as a SAC.

But the reason we would want individual -- and this is different threats -- is because we want to ensure the predication of each case stands alone. You don't want to rope in a bunch of individuals based on one-person predication and then investigate each of them.

So I know that is out there in the sense of it is best to do that, and then you can do an enterprise investigation outside of that, that can wrap everybody up and you investigate the whole.

But the nuance of that is really more administrative of how you do it. The key is that you have predication on each individual, however administratively you make it up.

But specifically to this instance, I'm not tracking that case or that -- again, I typically wouldn't at that level unless it was raised as a higher concern.

Q So Mr. Fitzgerald never raised that to you as a concern?

A I did not hear about this, no, ma'am.

Q Did Mr. Fitzgerald ever have any conversations with you regarding Mr. O'Boyle?

A No. No, outside of the -- again, outside of the COVID mandate, yes, we did talk about that. He was the one who helped broker or coordinate, like, some meetings with him and his personnel during that time, yes. But outside of that, no.

BY [redacted]

Q So, Mr. Dayoub, back to the protected disclosure process within the FBI.

A Yeah.

Q Can you explain when and if the Human Resources Division might get involved with those?

A When HRD gets involved in those? Unless there's some -- I wouldn't. I mean, I'm not sure unless there's some type of personnel issue or concern or -- maybe. But I don't know. I guess it depends on what the disclosure is or what the issue is maybe.

Q Okay.

A Yeah, sorry.

Q So would anyone in your office serve as a liaison between any of your employees and HRD in any kind of situation that they would need to be involved?

A No. I mean, again, depends on the issue. I guess, I don't know, if you have a specific example.

I mean, for the most part, our office, if there's any personnel issues, we have our own internal HR that would coordinate. We have personnel within the admin side that will work with headquarters, if there's an issue when you report or you're leaving, all that good stuff is coordinated through.

But at the end of the day, anybody can reach out to HRD and work through an issue that they have personally. If that's what you're asking, I don't know.

Q That's exactly what I was asking. Thank you.

A Okay.

Q Did you ever become aware that Mr. O'Boyle made protected disclosures to Congress?

A Not until hearing it on open source and later on.

Q Do you recall when you would have heard that?

A It would have been recent, recently.

Q Okay. Do you recall which open source you may have come across?

A No. Honestly, it was through the news and through testimony, honestly, is where I initially heard that.

Q Okay.

Do you believe that FBI whistleblowers have a right to speak with Congress to make protected disclosures?

A So I know there's a -- and I want to be careful. I respect Congress greatly. There is a process for that. And I am not really that versed in how that would work in the sense of there needs to be an ability for people to disclose things that are important out, and there's a process the FBI has, and that's what we should utilize for that, if that makes sense.

Q Sure. I'm with you. Very, very agency --

A Okay. I'm trying to --

Q I got it.

So are you aware of the circumstances around Mr. O'Boyle's transfer from the Wichita Resident Agency to a new position at Quantico?

A I am, yes.

Q Okay. Do you recall if Mr. O'Boyle applied for that transfer?

A Yes, he did. He applied. My understanding is he applied for a position, a job, and he was accepted and got the job.

Q Do you know anything about the job for which he applied and got accepted?

A You know, generally. I know it was in FBI headquarters, or it was a position here in D.C. He did that, again, through the process.

When you apply, there are -- typically, you do get the department head, the field office head, like, approval for that. It depends on the level of the individual if I approve it or I put it down to my ASAC.

But, yeah, I mean, I'm generally aware when people apply for things.

Q Okay.

A And, obviously, when they get accepted, there is a notification made: Hey, an employee received -- got a promotion or got this position.

Q Did you sign off on Mr. O'Boyle's application?

A So I'm trying to remember. Typically, I would have the -- I would delegate it down to the ASAC, depending on how he applied. So it was either myself or the ASAC that approved it. I can't remember, honestly, offhand, which one did. But, regardless, somebody approved it and said: Hey, you're good to go.

Q So when someone gives that go ahead, that good to go, whether it's you or one of your ASACs, is that just some sort of certification of their qualifications for that position?

A No. All it is, is: Hey, there's no objection from us. It really, to be fair, it really doesn't mean much. It just means: Hey, no issue from us.

The applicant still needs to go through the process, needs to be interviewed, needs to be seen as qualified by the receiving entity that's looking at the applicant. They ultimately make the selection.

Q Okay. So do you have any reason to dispute whether Mr. O'Boyle was qualified for that new position?

A I mean, he was selected for it. So I would defer to the selection of the department that made that.

Q So in the realm of what's publicly available about Mr. O'Boyle's testimony to the committee, are you aware that at the time of his transfer from Kansas City to his new position at Quantico the FBI contracted with a company to pack up his home in Kansas City and, essentially, move it to Quantico?

A So I can't speak to the specific instance of Mr. O'Boyle, but that is typical. When we receive orders or we get a position in another location, yes, that's part of the transfer process, is you'll have a company help move you. The government pays for that. Yes, sir.

Q Okay.

And so as Mr. O'Boyle and his family were getting ready to move from Kansas to Virginia, they visited their family in Wisconsin one last time.

A Yes, sir.

Q And then Mr. O'Boyle headed to Virginia to report for his first day?

A Yes, sir.

Q So during that interim period, were you aware that his family's belongings were held in FBI contracted storage?

A No, that wouldn't be something that I would be made aware of.

Q Okay. But does that sound typical for an agent who moves?

A Yeah. So, I mean, again, depending on the situation, depending on when you're going to report, when you have ability for the movers to put your stuff into the house you're moving into, or if there is a delay, typically they can put it in storage. That is typical. Yeah, that could happen.

Q Okay.

So are you aware that during that interim period Mr. O'Boyle also took time for parental leave?

A I am. I recall, yes, in the very beginning, after he left and checked out of the FBI Kansas City office, Wichita, he did take some parental leave, yes, somewhere in there, because he was having a baby. His wife was having a baby.

BY [redacted]

Q And around that time period is when Mr. O'Boyle received his letter from the executive assistant director, Jennifer Moore, from the Security Division, suspending his security clearance.

When did you become aware that Mr. O'Boyle's clearance was going to be revoked -- or, excuse me, suspended?

A So really not until actually it occurred, but I was aware of the circumstance. It was late July 2021 is when I was made aware that there was a concern with Mr. O'Boyle. I was not given great specifics. My understanding was I was told that there was a security concern with Mr. O'Boyle, there's a concern that he was accessing information he should not have been accessing.

And it was for no action of mine. We were not part of it. But it was for -- because I was head of the field office, they gave me notification. So it was around that time I was first notified of that, yeah.

Q And who provided you with that information?

A Security Division.

Q Who at the Security Division?

A The assistant director, Doug Beidler.

Q Say that name for me again. I'm sorry. I didn't hear it.

A Beidler.

Q Beidler? Okay.

A I think it's B-i-e-l-d-e-r (sic) maybe. Sorry. I'm not doing well with names today. I apologize.

Q And was that via email or over the phone?

A No. He called me.

Q He called you?

A Yep, he called me and gave me a heads-up that: Hey, here's the deal.

Q Did he go into specifics about the security concern that he had?

A Only thing I was told was there was concern that he was accessing information that he was not. Unclear which way it was going to go, but just so you are tracking. We're looking into this, but you just need to know. Please don't -- this is for you only. No action to be taken by you. And I said okay.

Q And did you take any action based upon that phone call?

A No. No. No.

Q And is that typical, that if one of your agents or employees is under investigation by the Security Division, would you normally get a heads-up phone call?

A Yes, a phone call or notification some way. As head of the office, if any of my employees are going to be disciplined or there's a concern or there's an issue, they will notify me in some way or fashion, yes, depending, again, on the conduct and who was making it, Inspection Division or Security Division.

There's a process. But, yes, for the most part, I will be notified any time there is some issue with an employee.

Q And are you always notified at the beginning of the investigation, or is it at a certain point in time?

A I would say it depends, and I would defer to them how they do the process. There may be times when they wouldn't notify me in the beginning. I don't want to say -- there usually is notification at some point. I don't want to say it's at the beginning. It could for the most part. Usually it is. It just depends on the conduct and what they're looking at from their investigative end.

Q And then when did you learn that his security clearance would actually be suspended?

A So until it actually was. And I got the initial call late July-ish. And then into later, in August, I want to say, I was told: Hey, look, this is probably looking -- it's going that way. Can you get a team together in case you need to provide notification to Mr. O'Boyle that we're going to suspend him?

And so we had discussions there. I did at that time read in one of my ASACs. And I had two other individuals on standby. Did not tell them what the issue was, but I asked them to be available for me if -- because I needed something. And then we kind of waited to see when or if that would go through. And we were trying to see what the timeline would be on notification.

Q Okay. And who notified you that it was looking like it would probably go to security clearance suspension?

A So that, again, Security Division. This could have been either the AD, either Doug, or it might have been the DAD, Jeff Veltri. Both of them, I talked to both of them later on as the process was moving forward, yeah.

Q And was that via phone call or email?

A Correct, yeah, phone call.

Q Phone call?

And you said late August. Do you remember any sort of time frame?

A No. It was -- unfortunately, it was coming up to when Mr. O'Boyle was transferring, unfortunately. So it was close to that. I want to say late August time frame. I don't know when. But it was the initial call and then everything kind of sped up after that on: Hey, potentially this may happen.

Q And you said you were asked to get a team together. Why were you asked to get a team together?

A Well, I got a team together to make a notification of him. So any time we have an issue like this where there's going to be a suspension.

Look, he was my employee. I wanted to do the notification. That's my responsibility. We want to make sure we have personnel to go, provide him the notification, but also be there to answer anything we can and kind of work through the process with him if he's going to be suspended.

It's not a happy day for anybody if that happens.

Q And in terms of personnel, what type of personnel did you need in order to make the notification?

A I just had -- I just wanted another executive management member with me.

Typically, an ASAC, somebody he knows, the ASAC.

And then we also pulled some of his SWAT team members that know him well. I did not tell them because they know each other. They were readily available. I didn't want to let anybody know from the Wichita office because they all know each other there.

So there's somebody that they would travel down with me if we were going to make the notification. There were people who led the team that know him. And I think he would have been comfortable with them there with me just so that it wasn't overwhelming.

Q So if you were informed by the Security Division that you had to make a notification to Mr. O'Boyle that his security clearance was being suspended, on the team you would have had an ASAC, some of his SWAT team members, and you, correct?

A Yeah. I think that would have been the general makeup I would have had just so that he had some familiar people there when we talked to him and had to escort him out.

Q And what was your understanding of what you would have had to relay to Mr. O'Boyle at that point in time?

A I mean, obviously, I just knew it was going to be a suspension. That would eventually -- once or if the approval was made, that would be given to me in a formal letter and process, and I would be kind of told what to tell him at that time.

So all I knew was, again, this was about the accessing of information that he shouldn't have had and potentially looking at a suspension.

Q And were you given any other details regarding the Security Division's concerns about Mr. O'Boyle on the late August phone call?

A I mean, I think we -- I mean, we discussed again the misuse of information, may potentially accessing it and misusing it, providing it out.

But, generally, I tried to stay out of the specifics of the investigation because, again, he is one of our employees, we know him, and we let them take the lead on that. I don't really get involved in the actual investigative aspect.

Q And what was the -- was there another time that you heard from the Security Division besides late July and late August?

A I mean, so the late August was several phone calls as we were prepping. My concern was we were coming up on a deadline here with Mr. O'Boyle leaving. And, again, I wanted to -- he was a Kansas City employee, and I wanted to do it. But there's a process. I don't have the authority. There is a process because it's a huge deal to suspend an employee.

There's a process it has to go through, and there has to be authorization before we can do it. And we just, unfortunately, did not get to notify him before he left. He checked out. He left. And then after that he was no longer my employee.

My only ask was if -- to the Security Division -- is if he is suspended and he is notified, can you please let me know so I can let our people know, because he has people in the Kansas City office that know him.

Q And you said several phone calls. How many phone calls would you say?

A Three, four maybe.

Q In addition to the late July and the late August that we've discussed?

A So the July one was like one call initially and then the other ones were kind of several calls within a week or so time frame, which is about three or four, maybe five calls in which we're talking about: Hey, where is it? What's the process? What's going on?

Because, again, a lot of the stuff we were not tracking. From my level, I would not know when he's actually leaving, checking out. That's not something an SAC would typically know.

So I was also trying to stay confidential in what I was trying to say and do. So I'm trying to figure out all this stuff, like: Hey, when is he actually leaving? When can we do this? When is the approval?

So there was a lot of back and forth as we were trying to determine if or when that would happen, and that's what that discussion was about.

Q And did you relay these concerns to the Security Division, that you were worried that you were coming up on the deadline of him checking out of the Kansas City office?

A Yes. I mean, but they were all worried about. We all understood that was a concern. Like, that was the problem, was, hey, we were up on a time deadline.

But at the end of the day, because of when this thing was kicked off and the time frame for when he got his orders and he's transferring, it just was a -- it was just a bad situation from a timeline perspective.

But, no, I mean, it was absolutely a concern. It was the top of the concern. What can we do to ensure this goes? But there's got to be a process in place to ensure it's done the right way. And, again, it has to be authorized before it can happen.

Q So it was your understanding the Security Division knew that you were up against the clock?

A Oh, yeah. Yeah, we talked about it, absolutely. Yeah, we knew that he was transferring, and there was a potential timeline. And, again, his checkout -- again, I was trying to figure this out without disclosing what I'm trying to determine. It's odd for the SAC to be asking these things, just in fairness.

But, I mean, obviously, he was having a baby. So his timeline was kind of also flexible because he wasn't sure when he was going to take off. So there was a lot of wiggle room there on when he was going to leave.

Q And would you say that when you were expressing these concerns regarding the timeline and getting it -- seeing if you could get the approval prior to his checking out of the Kansas City office, did you relay those to the AD or to the DAD?

A I think I did to both, yeah.

Q To both?

A To both, yeah, in some form or fashion, yeah, which, again, they also had the same concerns. They understood. They were like: Yep, we got it. We're going to do what we can.

We were all trying to determine if we could do this while he was there, I mean. But, again, without the authorization, we couldn't do it until the process played out, and that's a process I don't have kind of a role in.

Q And did you ever learn when Mr. O'Boyle would be checking out of the Kansas City office?

A Yes. And, again, I don't know the actual timeline. It was sometime I thought the first week of September. Either -- I have to look at a calendar, but either that first Friday of September or -- it was a Friday, either that first Friday of September, which I think was the 2nd, or that following. It was around that time frame, I believe, is when he actually checked out to go.

He turned in his stuff, and then he went on leave, had his baby. I think they went and visited his family, and then he was planning on checking into his new place, new unit. And I don't know if he was going to then take some additional leave. I wasn't really sure after that. But it was quickly there early September when he was gone from the Kansas City office.

Q Does it kind of sound right in your mind if I tell you that he wanted to check into the new office on September 26th, 2022?

A That might be right. That gave him about 3 or 4 weeks, yeah, 3 weeks or so within September. That might be right, yeah.

Q And did you ever get the official approval regarding Mr. O'Boyle's security clearance suspension while he was at the Kansas City office?

A I did not.

Q Do you know when that approval came?

A Obviously, I found out after the fact, yeah. When he checked into his new unit, he was notified at that time, and they let me know that they had notified him upon his arrival at the new unit.

Q What was your reaction that the suspension occurred right when he walked into his new office?

A I mean, at the end of the day, it's the way the process works. And, unfortunately, it had to have been provided to him in some way or fashion.

I would prefer to have done it in Kansas City, but understanding that there's a neutral outside process that has to take place, and when that's ready to go, it's ready to go.

I just think it was just an unfortunate timing factor with him putting in for a new job, this kicking off pretty late into his transfer order, and then this occurring when it did.

But I definitely know that people were trying to work to try to make it happen if we could for him, yeah.

Q And did you have any understanding of what was going on at the Security Division between the time they call you in late August three or four times regarding getting a team together to make the notification that came to the Kansas City division and then his official suspension letter was signed on September 23rd? Do you know what occurred during that time frame?

A I don't. Again, the only thing I was tracking is we were just waiting for the approval that, "Hey, did this go through? Is this happening? Is he going to be suspended? If so, when?" so we're ready to go because of the short timeline. But I don't know. I'm not part of those discussions. And, again, on purpose I'm kept out of those because of my role in Kansas City as the SAC.

Q And in the late August time frame when you were having the phone calls with the Security Division, you said that they were telling you that it was probably looking like they were going to suspend Mr. O'Boyle's security clearance. Is that accurate?

A That it's possible, yeah. That it's possible. Let's be ready in case this happens while he's there. You have a short timeline. So let's get this ready.

[redacted] Can we go off the record for one minute?

[redacted] Yes, we can go off the record.

[Discussion off the record.]

[redacted] We'll go back on the record.

Mr. Dayoub. Can I just clarify or add?

BY [redacted]

Q Yes, you can.

A So as part of the security call -- so it wasn't just the Security Division, I mean, that's important to note, in late August.

So the Security Division, Insider Threat, there's another field office on that call, the Inspection Division. So that was the trifecta or quadruple, I guess, four of us that were talking about this, logistics of this.

Q Okay, so let's go through that list again.

Who did you say all was involved on those phone calls?

A So Security Division.

Q Security Division.

A Insider threat. Another field office. And I believe Inspection not on all those calls but at least definitely on one of the -- a couple for sure.

Q And how many people would you say were on those phone calls?

A I mean, at least one from each division at a minimum, sometimes several. Again, it started with, again, initial direction from SecD, and then as things were picking up, for logistic purposes, we were having a conference call together with all these individuals.

Q And why was there another field office involved? What was your understanding of their --

A They had their own investigation, ongoing investigation on this as well.

Q Another field office had an ongoing investigation?

A Correct.

Q Specifically related to Mr. O'Boyle?

A Yes. Correct.

Q What field office was that?

Mr. Dayoub. Can I say? Is it okay?

[redacted] Yes.

Mr. Dayoub. New York.

[redacted] The New York Field Office.

And why would the New York Field Office be involved?

Mr. Dayoub. So, again, I tried to stay out of the specifics, but my understanding was some of the information Mr. O'Boyle accessed related to something that they were working in the New York Field Office specifically.

And I can say the specific name, I guess, or?

[redacted] Do you need him to say what the investigation was?

[redacted] Yeah.

Mr. Dayoub. Yeah? It's all right? Okay.

So I knew it had something to do with Project Veritas, is my understanding.

And so the logistics was occurring from all of us on how this would happen if this went. And, again, a lot of it was SecD determinate.

My role was simply suspension if it occurred. That was for SecD that happened. But they were all part of the logistics call, if that makes sense.

BY [redacted]

Q And what was your understanding of the New York Field Office's, what would their role have been?

A So they wanted to, obviously, get in front of Mr. O'Boyle to speak to him and interview him in some form or fashion, I'm sure. So if we did do it there, we'd want to ensure New York was available to come out to interview him as part of that process.

Q So it was your understanding that when the suspension letter would have been given to Mr. O'Boyle, that New York Field Office agents wanted to be involved in order to interview Mr. O'Boyle at that time period?

A I mean, that's typically how it would be done, yeah. That's what the coordination was about, yeah.

Q So the coordination was specifically about that?

A Well, it was about us notifying him, and then if we notify him a certain way, can New York come out and talk to him as well, yes.

Q At the same time?

A Yes.

Q And what was your understanding of the involvement of the Insider Threat office?

A So I think they were there because of, again, the access of the information, is my understanding, hey, they're concerned about him accessing information that he wouldn't normally. So usually Insider Threat is part of that process. But they really didn't say much as part of it. They were more of a listening entity.

Q And so these were all the late August phone calls.

A Correct.

Q You said there was some variance of individuals who attended?

A Correct. Yeah, I mean, it starred with SecD. SecD really led that, but then we started getting on, as we had two or three full calls. We had other people add in for logistics if he was going to be suspended, and what does that look like, what is FBI Kansas City's role? And that's kind of where our part was.

BY [redacted]

Q So we talked a little bit about Project Veritas and the New York Field Office.

A Yes.

Q So are you aware that the specific allegation was that Mr. O'Boyle gave an unauthorized interview behind the screen to Project Veritas?

A I found out about that later.

Q Okay.

BY [redacted]

Q When did you find out about that?

A It was some time after the suspension. I'm not sure when.

Q And who notified you of that?

A I can't remember where I heard that, honestly. I don't know if that was internal FBI or something that came out. I don't know.

But I was aware that, generally, there was some discussion of potential passage of information or interview with the media or outside sources. I honestly don't remember how I heard that, to tell you the truth.

Q Were you ever interviewed by the Security Division?

A No. No.

BY [redacted]

Q Are you aware that Mr. O'Boyle refutes the fact -- or refutes that allegation that he was the individual behind the screen?

A Yeah. I mean -- no, I don't, but, I mean, obviously, he has a right to do so.

Q So were you aware at the same time that the FBI also accused Mr. O'Boyle of leaking classified information or sensitive information for that reporting?

A Yeah. So, again, I think I found out after the fact as part of that. My initial understanding was simply the access of unauthorized information, and I think I became aware after suspension about the leaking, yes.

Q Okay. So the committee has also talked to EAD Moore, and she stated that the FBI pulled data on who had accessed case files in that criminal matter.

A Right.

Q Were you aware of that at all?

A No.

Q So I want to read you a portion of Ms. Moore's testimony and the ask you some questions. So she specifically testified, and the question asked of her was:

"In regards to the allegations that came in via the referral about Mr. O'Boyle being behind that screen in the media interview that we spoke about, has the FBI made any sort of determination about the veracity of those allegations?"

To which Ms. Moore responded:

"I'm going to break this down, because I don't think I quite understand your question.

"So, again, there was an individual who was behind a screen that provided an interview. The interview that he provided is very detailed and discussed very specific things from a case file. The suspension is based off of the access of that case file and that very, very specific information that was provided.

"Regardless who was standing behind that screen, the only way that person got that information from our investigation was through Garret O'Boyle's access. Other than individuals who have a right to be in the case, that were case file agents, who did not leak that information, Garret O'Boyle was the flaming gun for us."

Ms. Moore further testified that the other individuals who were the case agents were interviewed regarding that access, and it was determined that they did not leak the information.

So are you aware to this date the FBI has not interviewed Mr. O'Boyle?

A No, I'm not. I was not tracking that.

BY [redacted]

Q Have you been involved at all with the security clearance investigation of Mr. O'Boyle?

A No. I mean, they wouldn't put me involved. That's not my role, no, ma'am.

Q Do you know what step in the process Mr. O'Boyle is currently at?

A No, nor would they let me know that.

Q Do you know whether or not his case has been resolved?

A I mean, from what I'm seeing in the media, I don't think it has. But, again, I wouldn't know any specifics about that process. They wouldn't let me in on that, no, ma'am.

Q And were you notified of his suspension on September 26th?

A [Nonverbal response.]

Q And who did you receive that notification from?

A From SecD. Again, Security Division let me know. I did ask to be notified of that because, again, he was an FBI Kansas City employee. He had a lot of people in the office that know him. He was out of our resident agency. So I asked, when or if he's suspended, that I be notified so I can tell my people.

I met with the Wichita office to let them know that it happened. I also talked with the SWAT team to let them know it happened as part of that.

Q When did all that take place? Do you remember?

A It was shortly after, maybe the week or two after I was notified about the suspension. So I made a trip down to Wichita specifically to get everybody together, to include our task force officers, to let them know. And then I pulled the SWAT team aside before one op -- after one of their ops to kind of say: Here's the deal, what happened, just so you guys are on track.

Q And what was the content of your discussion with the Wichita office and the SWAT operators?

A So I just explained generally: Look, for those of you who know Garret O'Boyle, he was an employee here. Unfortunately, he has been suspended, just so you are aware. It's unfortunate. He's still one of our employees. I just wanted you to be aware of that so you're tracking. I can't go into more detail for that. That's all I have.

Obviously, the questions that came back were: What? Why? That's not something I was able to get into, nor would I get into, but I just wanted them to know.

And I said: Look, if there's anything you guys need, we have EAP counselors to talk to if you have any concerns about this, or you can come talk to me if you have concerns about this.

Q Did you generally get a sense that his teammates trusted him?

A Yeah. I think from the most part, that's our natural ability. We trust our employees, our colleagues that we work with, absolutely.

Q Were his colleagues surprised when you told him -- when you told them that he had been suspended?

A Yeah. I mean, I think we all were, honestly. Yeah, I think that's accurate.

Q Had you ever received any concerns from his JTTF task force colleagues or SWAT team colleagues or anyone at the Wichita Resident Agency about Mr. O'Boyle's performance?

A So the only time we had something that did come up was towards the end of the time when he was trying to transfer. We were trying to serve -- I'll try not to, because I think the case is still ongoing -- but we were trying to serve two search warrants on subjects on the Kansas side, and there was some discussion of concern about Mr. O'Boyle not really working his cases and really not coordinating and getting the legal process. But that was really towards the end of that.

But outside of that, there was no issue there.

Q And who brought those concerns to your attention?

A So that came to me from the ASAC.

Q From the ASAC?

A Yeah.

Q And who was that ASAC?

A That's Jeff Berkebile.

Q Berkebile?

A Yeah. So he covers Missouri now, but at the time he covered my Kansas Resident Agency, just so you know. So his duties are not the same now.

Q And his specific concern was that he wasn't working his cases or --

A Yeah. I mean, again, this was just a general discussion. Nothing I saw as a performance issue. It was just: Hey, there was some lack of communication of when this legal process got. We weren't able to serve the search warrants on time. So we had to delay the execution because there was no coordination by Mr. O'Boyle to do that, to get -- when he got them, plus the availability of the resources that we need to do them.

So there was just some frustration there. But that was the only time I ever heard of any issues with his performance.

BY [redacted]

Q So, Mr. Dayoub, as you're aware, Mr. O'Boyle testified in front of the Select Subcommittee on the Weaponization of the Federal Government --

A Yes, sir.

Q -- regarding his experience as a whistleblower.

I want to read you a portion of his testimony, because you were talking about his colleagues.

So a member of the committee asked Mr. O'Boyle specifically: "If one of your really good friends, your former colleagues, came to you and said, 'I have this thing that is being covered up, and I think the American people need to know about it,' what advice would you give them?"

Mr. O'Boyle said: "I'd tell them first to pray about it long and hard, and I would tell them to take it to Congress -- or tell them I could take it to Congress for them or I could put them in touch with Congress, but I would advise them not to do it."

The member asked: "So you would legitimately try to protect one of your colleagues from doing what you have done?"

To which Mr. O'Boyle said: "Absolutely."

The member asked: "How do you think that solves being able to shed light on corruption, weaponization, or any kind of misconduct that exists with the American people?"

Mr. O'Boyle said: "It doesn't solve it, but the FBI will crush you. This government will crush you and your family if you try to expose the truth about things that they are doing wrong. We are all examples of that."

So in your capacity as an SAC, how does this testimony from one of your former agents make you feel?

[11:01 a.m.]

Mr. Dayoub. Not positive, obviously. That's not a good thing.

But, look, my position has always been, as an SAC and even prior to my years in the FBI, there are good people within the organization that want to do the right thing, but there's also a process to do that. There are ways that you can legitimately provide concerns or issues that then could be handled.

And I'll tell you, I mean, I'd want to -- if there's a concern or issue, I'd want to hear about it, because I want to solve that issue or bring it to light. That is why we're here; that's why you have leadership in place, right?

And I do feel there are so many other mechanisms in which you can do that. But, I mean, obviously, that's not a positive thing to say, in that light. But I would just argue that there are so many other ways to bring issues to light so that we can action them appropriately. We need to do that, and that communication and that flow of information on concerns or issues need to be brought up to leadership so we could action them.

BY [redacted]

Q And we've talked about the suspension of Mr. O'Boyle and how it occurred on his first day in Quantico. And so Mr. O'Boyle's belongings were already in Quantico in an FBI-contracted storage facility. Were you aware that before he expended considerable personal resources he was unable to retrieve his belongings?

A I was not aware of that, no, ma'am.

Q Were you aware that he was kind of given the runaround by the FBI and the storage facility/moving company that they contracted with about accessing his personal goods and it was over a month before he was able to obtain access? Were you aware of that?

A No. No, ma'am.

Q Did he ever reach out to you or anyone in your office for any sort of assistance?

A No, not that I'm tracking. No, ma'am.

Q Were you aware that one of his main concerns about being unable to access his personal belongings was that all of his children's clothes were in the facility?

A I was not aware of that, no, ma'am.

Q You know, what do you make of that, that he was unable to retrieve his belongings?

A I mean, the hope would be he would be able to retrieve his belongings through the process of working through that, so it is unfortunate that occurred. But I don't know the specifics of why that occurred that way. I don't know.

Q Does it surprise you that it took over a month for the FBI to give him access?

A Again, I'm not familiar with the process on why that occurred the way it did. So I don't know, unfortunately.

Q Does it seem strange that it was over a month?

A Again, without -- I'll be honest. I mean, we've all had frustrations in moving. You know, it's a process, and there's different entities. So, again, I don't know about the specific access. My hope would be, if he needed access to his items, he'd be able to get it. But I'm not really in a position to determine why that occurred that way, was there some kind of hiccup, on whose side, that caused that issue for him. But I really don't know.

BY [redacted]

Q And so I know you've moved around a few times.

A Yes, sir.

Q Have you used the similar services?

A I have, yes, sir.

Q Have you ever experienced an issue like that?

A I've had issues with delivery and items went missing and misplaced and -- yes. I mean, unfortunately, it's a large entity, and it depends on really who they contract to help you move. So we definitely have had issues moving, 100 percent. It's a part of the process.

BY [redacted]

Q Did you ever have a delay in getting your belongings?

A Delay in them -- yes -- in getting them to the house, yes.

Q And how long was that delay?

A Several weeks --

Q Several weeks?

A -- I would say. Yes, ma'am. Again, it just depends on the contractor, what they have going on, if they're moving a bunch of other items, you know.

Q Uh-huh.

A So, again, I think every -- but I've had moves that have been amazing. We went to work, and we showed up, and they were there. So I think it just depends on who you're contracted with and how you work. It's a tedious process, so, yeah, yes, ma'am.

[redacted] Yeah. Can we go off the record?

[Recess.]

[redacted] We can go back on the record.

[redacted] Hi. I'm [redacted], and this is [redacted]. We will be asking questions for the Democrats today.

Mr. Dayoub. Awesome.

EXAMINATION

BY [redacted]

Q I want to start by going back to the COVID policy --

A Okay.

Q -- discussion that we were talking about. So you were the SAC of the Kansas City Field Office when the executive order requiring vaccines went out, correct?

A Yes, ma'am. Correct.

Q And so, to the best of your understanding, the FBI only enforced that mandate while it was legally required to, correct?

A Oh, correct. Yes, ma'am.

Q What was your role in developing the policies and the procedures for the vaccine mandate at your field office?

A I had no role in it. I was simply enforcing.

Q So you were only enforcing them?

A Yes, ma'am. Uh-huh.

Q And testing, as we discussed a little bit about COVID testing, that was an alternative to the vaccine mandate, correct?

A Yes, ma'am. Correct.

Q So that was already an accommodation provided?

A Yeah, that was something that was developed when the mandate came in place. Yes, ma'am.

Q And we talked about this a little bit, but, generally, if an employee was applying for an exemption to the vaccine mandate, what steps did your office take?

A So, if they request an exemption, then simply they would just go through the testing process and go through the testing protocol from that end until they determine when that exemption was approved or not.

Q And, generally, what happened if an employee didn't follow the testing requirements?

A So, if they did not follow the mandate, then, per the policy, we were required to put them in a suspension status, an AWOL status, until they became back in compliance with the mandate.

BY [redacted]

Q And with the testing specifically --

A Yes, ma'am.

Q -- is it fair to say that the goal of testing was to make sure that an individual didn't come into work sick and potentially get the entire FBI field office sick?

A I think -- yes, ma'am. I think that would be -- yeah.

Q Because for FBI special agents in particular, generally, they were required to work in person. Is that fair to say?

A Correct. Yeah, we have to be in the office or out and about with the community. That's accurate, yeah.

Q Okay.

BY [redacted]

Q And would you agree that an entire FBI field office getting sick at one time could be a threat to public safety?

A Yeah. Regardless of it, we could not lose an entire workforce for whatever reason. Yes, ma'am.

Q Would you agree that being a special agent for the FBI has certain medical requirements?

A Yes, we do have certain medical requirements. That's right. Yes, ma'am.

Q So, for example, there is a pre-employment fitness-for-duty medical exam?

A That's correct.

Q And that includes a minimum vision requirement?

A Yes.

Q And a minimum hearing requirement?

A Yes, ma'am.

Q And that also includes the mandatory vaccination?

A It does.

Q So was the COVID-19 vaccine or testing requirement an additional medical requirement for FBI employees?

A Yes. I mean, obviously, when it came out, it was new, right? So --

Q Yeah.

A -- it'd be a new requirement, yeah.

Q So we talked a little bit about Mr. O'Boyle's noncompliance. Do you remember when he said he stopped testing?

A You know, I do not. It was either late 2021 or early 2022. There was some portion where we -- it had been going on a while. We got everybody kind of in a rhythm, and everybody was -- and then the mandate. And then, after a little bit of time, he stated that he was just not going to comply with the mandate anymore. I don't recall exactly the timeframe, unfortunately.

Q So somewhere around December of 2021, January of 2022?

A Maybe January or February -- yeah, yeah. Somewhere around that timeframe, yes. I think.

Q And did you know why he had stopped testing?

A No. I was not given a reason why. Just stated that he just refused to be in compliance with the mandate.

Q And you mentioned earlier that you had ways to work with people if they didn't want to get vaccines or they had some issues with testing. So, for example, you said that the AO might reach out to somebody.

A Uh-huh.

Q So, if somebody missed a single test, would that be a reason to put them on suspension?

A No. No. We would work with them, say, "Hey, what's the reason? Can you go get tested? What's the deal?"

I mean, our key was, as long as everybody's working in good faith, to include us -- we were trying to get everybody, regarding the policy, in compliance so we can do our job. That's the key. Yes, ma'am.

Q So you didn't move on to the stage of suspension or AWOL status until there was multiple back-and-forths?

A Multiple back-and-forths. So, with Mr. O'Boyle, I think the ultimate refusal to be in compliance at all just left us no choice, unfortunately, right? It was not something we wanted to do, but I had -- I had no choice. I have to implement the policies that are given to us from the FBI.

Q And you mentioned, after he was put on AWOL status, he did go back into compliance with the policy?

A My understanding, that day, he got back into compliance and showed up to work on that following Tuesday.

BY [redacted]

Q So, just to have the record completely clear, he was in full compliance, and then -- at one point for several months, correct?

A Yeah. I think so. It was a month, 6 weeks. Yeah, there was definitely a --

Q He was in full compliance --

A -- stride there.

Q -- for a period of time?

A He was in compliance, yeah.

Q And then at some point he fell out of compliance?

A Uh-huh.

Q And you don't know the reason for that?

A No.

Q Nothing changed, as far as you know?

A From my understanding, I don't understand what happened, no. I still don't, honestly. For whatever reason, he was just delinquent. And I think, just like the AO does or the Acting AO does for many, reached out to determine, "Hey, look, you're delinquent. Let's get you back in compliance. Let's figure this out." And that's where the refusal came in.

Q Okay. And then he refused to get back into compliance?

A Yeah. And I think, again, his -- he just stated he was not going to do anything at all to get in compliance with the mandate, so --

Q So he just flat-out refused --

A Correct.

Q -- to work with you, even though you were willing to work with him?

A Correct. Yes, ma'am.

Q Okay. And, then, as soon as he was actually put on AWOL, within half a day he agreed to go back into compliance?

A Yeah. So he -- I mean, he was AWOL that whole day and then got tested that afternoon.

Q Okay.

A And, then, when his test was done, he came back in Tuesday.

Q Okay.

A He was back in the office, is my recollection, yeah.

Q Okay. Thank you.

BY [redacted]

Q I want to talk a little bit more about the security investigation into Mr. O'Boyle.

A Okay.

Q So, to start off, you weren't involved in that security investigation, correct?

A No, ma'am. No, I had nothing -- I had nothing to do with that.

Q So your only involvement was the phone call that you had with the Security Division?

A Yeah. Notification and logistics if it occurred in Kansas City.

Q And when was that first phone call?

A So I think it was, I want to say, late July 2021, sometime in July.

Q 2021?

A I'm sorry. Yeah, no. 2022. Sorry.

Q Okay.

A 2022, right? Yes. 2022. Because he -- yes. Sorry. 2022. I was not there in 2021 in July, yeah, so I apologize. Yes.

Q So he was suspended in September; you got the first phone call in July.

A July, yeah. Some- -- yeah, it was July.

[redacted] Can we go off the record for one second?

Mr. Dayoub. Yeah. Sure.

[Discussion off the record.]

[redacted] Back on the record.

Mr. Dayoub. Good point.

So, outside of the notification, they did ask us to pull his computers, after which -- I apologize. I did not include that. So that was our involvement, is, after he left, we did pull his computers as evidence from his space.

[redacted] When was that?

Mr. Dayoub. That was after he left, so it would be sometime in September. Yeah.

So that's a good point. Yes, ma'am.

BY [redacted]

Q So, in that first phone call from the Security Division --

A Uh-huh.

Q -- they told you that it was unclear which way the investigation would go, correct?

A Right. Simply, I was told, "Hey, there's a concern with Mr. O'Boyle. We're looking into it. Generally, just so you know, there's the potential that he is accessing things he's not supposed to be accessing, and we just want to make you aware of that, you know, since he's your employee." And that was pretty much the gist of that initial call.

Q Can we talk a little bit about why accessing things that you shouldn't access is potentially problematic?

A Yes, ma'am. Sure. Yeah.

Q Why would that be?

A Well, obviously, I mean, there are so many sensitive intelligence information sources, methods, investigations that we have in the FBI, it's critical to keep things close-hold.

Also, in a situation where specific individuals who have access and need to know are only accessing that information, again, sometimes because if there's a person who does not need to know information, for any accidental reason or maybe something more malicious, on purpose, providing information and exposing things that we're doing.

So it's critical, as part of the FBI's role, as well as a lot of agencies, that we have to ensure to protect the information we have to only those individuals who have access to them, or supposed to have access to them.

Q And does that apply both to the classified and the unclassified systems?

A Yes, ma'am. Correct.

Q Because even if it's unclassified, it might still be sensitive?

A It could be. Yes, ma'am.

BY [redacted]

Q And even if it's unclassified, the release of that information could potentially impact an ongoing case?

A It could.

Q And it could potentially impact public safety as well, correct?

A It could, depending on the information.

Q If information is released, it could also potentially put the health or the safety of the agents who are working on that case at risk as well, correct?

A Correct. And that's why there's always a process if there is stuff that needs to be -- similarly, there's a process that must go through to vet through all that before anything is released. Yeah.

Q And it also could put witnesses' safety at risk, correct?

A Correct. Yes, ma'am.

BY [redacted]

Q So you got the call in July '22 originally -- or, sorry -- July 2022?

A Yes.

Q And then you did not take any actions at that point?

A No. I was asked not to. It was a notification only.

Q And then you had a few more calls in August?

A Uh-huh.

Q Do you know around when in August?

A It was mid- to late August. Honestly, those occurred because, again, we knew we were getting close to him transferring out, and so we were discussing logistics of, if the suspension came through at that time, what would we do and how would we handle it.

Q And during those phone calls, did you get the sense that the decision had already been made about his suspension?

A No. No. That was the issue. The decision hadn't been made. The process was still working itself through. And that was the things we kept discussing, about, "Hey, when would this go through? When is this going to happen?" So, no, the decision was not made at that point, no.

Q Why do you think that process and finishing that process is important?

A Well, look, I think having an extended process for any employee that has to potentially face suspension is important. And you don't want to cut corners. You've got to let the process play out, for anybody, you know, all employees.

So it's, in my opinion, a huge deal to suspend an employee. And it has such an impact on them, their life, their livelihood. So it must go through the appropriate channels before -- there's a reason why, as an SAC, I cannot just suspend somebody, right? There's got to be a process that's outside of myself.

Q What do you know about what happens during that process?

A Unfortunately, not much, right? I just know just when I'm notified and when it occurs. But I've never been part of that process and I've never worked in that kind of area to be exposed from the FBI side. So I don't really know much, unfortunately. Yeah.

Q That's all right. But that process is important to make sure that you get it right?

A I would imagine so, yes.

Q Yeah.

BY [redacted]

Q How many employees did you say you supervise at the Kansas City Field Office?

A About 330, 336 employees.

Q And you've been the SAC for --

A Almost 2 years. It'll be --

Q Almost 2 years?

A -- 2 years in August. Yep. Yes, ma'am.

Q During that time period, how many employees have been suspended under your jurisdiction specifically?

A So it would be -- if you include Mr. O'Boyle, there would be two.

Q Okay. So it's pretty rare?

A Yes. For a suspension? Yes.

Q And it's a pretty serious thing?

A Yes.

Q So you would agree that, if the FBI is going through the process -- and I know you said you're not involved in the process --

A Right.

Q -- but it sounds like the process is specifically geared towards making sure they get it right. Is that fair to say?

A Yes. I mean, I think that's -- I would argue yes. Again, I'm not part of the process, but my hope would be, yes, that's the reason that process is in place, is to ensure we do the right thing, you know, make the right decision.

Q Because the FBI doesn't just suspend people for no reason?

A No. I would -- no. I'd hope not. Yeah.

Q Okay.

BY [redacted]

Q So you had the phone calls in mid- to late August, and then you knew that Mr. O'Boyle would be taking parental leave and then be transferred. Is that right?

A Yeah. He'd be checking out, taking potentially some leave, and then going to -- so, once his last day -- prior to his leave, he checked out of the office. I guess, technically, he was on our books, but, yes, he checked out, turned in everything, took leave, is my understanding, because he was having a baby, and then was going to report to his new duty station.

Q And you didn't know the exact day that he would be leaving?

A Towards the end, I did find out, yes. It was sometime that -- I really want to say that first -- sometime in the beginning of September, I want to say. Again, approximately.

But, eventually, I did find out when he was going to leave, because there was some discussion -- when he was going to have a baby, when he was going to leave; he had some things he was trying to wrap up. But we finally found out when he was going to leave. But the problem was, there was no decision yet made on his suspension. So we were ready and prepared, but we did not take any action.

Q To your knowledge, even when he was going to leave might have been a bit flexible, because you don't know exactly when his baby will be born?

A Well, correct, yeah. And, again, it's not -- it's odd for the SAC to be involved in that minutiae of stuff, of when an agent is going to transfer, right? That's their personal thing they're working through. That's not really necessarily something I would typically be engaged in.

BY [redacted]

Q And with parental leave in particular, how many weeks do FBI employees get for parental leave, if you know?

A I don't know. I never got to take my leave. So I know there's this new -- I don't know, honestly. Yeah, I don't know. I could -- yeah.

Q Is it fair to say that FBI employees get a certain number of weeks and they can elect to take all of that at once or they can elect to take part of it? Is that fair to say?

A I think so. Again, I'm not familiar. I know people take it. I know we have our own, you know, regular annual leave you can take. I don't know the mechanics. But, yes, I mean, there is time off you can take for parental leave at some point.

Q So somebody might have a baby and they might take 2 weeks. Somebody might have a baby and they might be able to, between annual leave and parental leave, take 2 months. Is that fair to say?

A Yeah, absolutely. Yeah, that's accurate. Depending on, yes, what you wanted to do, that is accurate. Yes, ma'am.

BY [redacted]

Q And you were not part of the discussion of when he would start at the new office, correct?

A No. That was between him and, I'm sure, that new duty station. But I was not part of any of that discussion or is it my role to be part of that. Yeah.

Q So you had no knowledge about when that would happen?

A No. No. It was between him and -- yeah.

[redacted] Sorry, can we go off the record for one second?

[Discussion off the record.]

[redacted] We can go back on the record.

BY [redacted]

Q So I want to make sure I have this timeline down right. So you got the first phone call in July?

A Yeah. Late July.

Q Do you recall, when was Garrett O'Boyle's -- when did he apply for the new position? You signed off on it, right? Either you or --

A Well, I was ASAC, yeah. So my understanding is he received the actual orders or acceptance in June, so it happened a few months before that. So --

Q Okay.

A -- I would be guessing, but it obviously takes some time when you apply to go through the process. You're selected. Then it's announced that you're selected. Then you get your order.

So, if I have it right, I thought his orders were issued sometime around June. So that would've been after he was named and way after he applied. So I would say a few months before that, if I had to -- again, that's an approximation.

Q And when an FBI employee gets the -- you've moved several times, right? You've been transferred between stations?

A Yes, ma'am. Yeah.

Q When you get the orders, you have a range of time during which you can execute that move, correct?

A Yes, ma'am. Typically, it's 90 days is what they give you. But, again, that's flexible depending on when you're reporting, your circumstance, and, again, the needs of the office that's receiving you. That all depends. But, typically, it's 90 days.

Q Uh-huh. So he is preparing for his move, and, in the background, I presume unbeknownst to him, there's also this separate investigation ongoing, correct?

A That happened later that summer, yes, ma'am. Yeah.

Q Okay. And you first learned about it in July, and, at that time, I think you said it was unclear which way it was going to go, correct?

A Right. Yeah. They were looking at it. Yes, ma'am.

Q So, at that point, it's fair to say the investigation was in the early stages?

A Correct. I think it was just being initiated at that time. Yeah, yeah. Or close to that time.

Q And then, come August, you had some more phone calls, and the investigation still wasn't finished because the FBI wants to get it right, correct?

A Correct.

Q So there were still active steps going on?

A Again, I was not familiar with what those were, but, yes, correct, it was not completed at that -- or at least the decision whether to suspend Mr. O'Boyle was not made at that time.

Q And, then, at some point, Mr. O'Boyle left -- he went on parental leave and he left the Kansas City Field Office, correct?

A Yes, ma'am.

Q And that was?

A Again, I think beginning of July, maybe, the first week -- or, September. Excuse me.

Q Beginning of September?

A Beginning of September. Sorry.

Q Okay. And he went to Wisconsin, I believe, right, on parental leave?

A Potentially, yes. I don't know --

Q Okay. He left.

Q And you took his computers to --

A So that was the request. After he left, they asked us to go grab the computers utilized on both systems for another field office that was working the investigation.

Q And it was your understanding that when he left the investigation was still ongoing, correct?

A Yes. Correct.

BY [redacted]

Q Did they ask you for the computers before you knew that he was suspended?

A Yes. So they asked for the computers in those discussions, that likely we would need to probably grab those computers. And it wasn't until after he left when they said, hey, can you, you know, please go do that, and then we went and grabbed them.

Q And that was before you were notified that he had been suspended?

A Correct. That was prior to his reporting it, yes.

BY [redacted]

Q Okay. So, when you got the phone call, or, I guess, any of the phone calls, did SecD or Insider Threat or anybody -- was it ever told to you what the documents he had accessed were?

A No. Again, because of the other field office participating, there was discussion of Project Veritas generally. I don't know if that was the only thing, if there was more than that.

Again, the majority of what I knew -- and I tried to stay out of the specific details of it because, honestly, I did not want to know, nor should I. But my understanding was he was just simply accessing information which he should not have been. That's pretty much --

Q And they didn't say during those conversations that he had done an interview, correct? The concern was purely the accessing of the information?

A Correct. At that time, I don't think that was out there. I don't think it was until after that there was discussion about that interview.

Q Until after the suspension?

A I think so.

Q Okay.

A Or around -- it was after, yeah.

Q Okay.

Did you ever view Mr. O'Boyle's suspension notice?

A No. I never received it.

Q We're going to introduce that as exhibit 1.

A Oh.

[Dayoub Exhibit No. 1

Was marked for identification.]

BY [redacted]

Q And I'll give you a minute to look it over, and let me know when you're good to continue.

A Okay.

Q Okay.

So, in the prior hour, you were asked about Jennifer Moore's testimony and the contention that Mr. O'Boyle disputes that he gave an interview to Project Veritas. Do you recall that questioning?

A Yes. Yes, ma'am.

Q So this suspension letter actually doesn't say anything about media disclosures, right?

A Correct. It's about mishandling or misuse of our systems and information.

Q Right. So it cites Guideline K, which is "Handling Protected Information," and Guideline M, which is "Use of Information Technology of the National Security Adjudicative Guidelines," correct?

A Yes.

Q Okay.

So, regardless of whether or not Mr. O'Boyle was the person behind the screen in the interview, the fact that he accessed sensitive information, alone, was enough to justify the suspension of his clearance, correct?

A From what this letter stated, yeah. Again, this came from -- that's their determination, right? I wouldn't have a role. But, yeah, I mean, that's what it looks like from this letter. Yes, ma'am.

Q So it's entirely possible, for example, that he accessed this information and gave it to somebody else, then, who was the person behind the screen, correct?

A Yeah, potentially possible. Yeah.

Q And the key issue is the unauthorized accessing of information?

A Correct. And that is exactly what -- that was my understanding of the situation with him, was the mishandling and the accessing of information he should not have been accessing.

Q And you said that on the phone call there was -- on the various phone calls you had about Mr. O'Boyle, it was SecD?

A Yes.

Q Insider Threats?

A Yes, ma'am.

Q The Inspection Division?

A Yes.

Q And then another field office?

A Correct.

Q And that other field office was the New York Field Office?

A Yes, ma'am.

Q Okay. And you said the New York Field Office was involved because the accessed information involved one of their cases, correct?

A Yes. That's what I assume from it, yes. They had the equity in it. They had the investigation. They were working through that. Yes, ma'am.

Q And during your tenure supervising Mr. O'Boyle -- I realize you were a couple levels above him -- but, to your knowledge, did Mr. O'Boyle ever have any involvement in that -- any direct, official involvement in that New York Field Office investigation?

A Not that I'm aware of. No, ma'am.

Q So the information he accessed, it wasn't pertinent for his actual duties, correct?

A Again, from the limited I know of it, that's probably accurate, but, again, I don't know the full scope. But, yes, ma'am.

Q Okay. Why did the New York Field Office want to talk to Mr. O'Boyle?

A So, again, I think as part of their investigative efforts, that is something they said that they wanted to do. I didn't ask them specifically why or the reasoning. It was just part of what they had ongoing, and that was something they were interested in doing. That's all.

Q Are you aware that the information that Mr. O'Boyle accessed impacted their ongoing investigation?

A I did not know that, no, ma'am.

Q Are you aware that it may have put the safety or security of the agents working on that investigation at risk?

A I was not aware of that.

Q Okay. If that happened -- if something in your -- under your tenure as SAC, if information was released that put an agent under your purview at risk, would that be of concern to you?

A Of great concern. Yes, ma'am.

Q And why is that?

A Well, obviously, our jobs are dangerous as they are. So anything that we -- especially that could put them at further risk and prevent them -- and put them in danger is obviously unacceptable.

Q During the discussion with SecD, Insider Threat, the other field office, and the Inspection Division, was there any discussion about Mr. O'Boyle accessing information related to other cases other than that one that the NYFO was working on?

A Not that was disclosed to me. Again, it was the broad of mis- -- of accessing stuff he shouldn't have. Project Veritas came up, but I don't know if that meant just them or there was a broader issue, and nor did I ask.

Q Okay. And did they say, for example, anything about Mr. O'Boyle accessing a 1023 to which he wasn't entitled?

A No, I'm not tracking that.

Q Okay. So they didn't mention that?

A They did not.

BY [redacted]

Q You mentioned at the end of the last hour that you had heard, closer to the end of Mr. O'Boyle's time at the Kansas City Field Office, that he was not working his cases. Is that right?

A Yes, ma'am.

Q So what does that mean, "not working cases"?

A Again, this was a general conversation with myself and the ASAC, but my understanding is he was not doing the correct -- he was not engaging in the investigative steps as part of his cases. Again, I don't know when the timeframe was we're talking about here. It was a general comment.

The concern was mostly, there was search warrants that were supposed to be conducted that were delayed because of miscommunication of how they were and when they were obtained when we were not ready to execute. That's where the frustration came from. And there was an offside comment about him not always being engaged in his cases, doing the right work.

So, again, I did not dive deep into it. We were just trying to, "Hey, let's just figure out a way to get these search warrants executed in the right way and the safe way," and we kind of left it at that.

Q To your understanding, these were domestic terrorism cases?

A Yes, ma'am.

Q Why is it potentially problematic for a search warrant not to be executed at the time?

A Well, we're on -- unfortunately, right, when a judge gives you and signs you the search warrant, you have a certain amount of time in which you have to execute it, or you have to go back to the judge explaining why. And a miscommunication or misallocation from our end is I don't feel a justification that we should go to a judge and say that we cannot execute a search warrant.

Q To your knowledge, in these cases, did it require going back to the judge for a new warrant?

A I don't recall if we did or not. I mean, I know we delayed it, but I'm not sure how or what we did. I really left that to the Wichita office to kind of handle.

Q And can that affect the investigation itself, delaying a search warrant?

A Potentially, I mean, depending on what happens. I mean, luckily, in this case, I don't think it did. We just executed it after the fact, and it was fine.

Q Okay.

To your knowledge, did other special agents or other people on Mr. O'Boyle's team have to pick up the slack from him not doing that work?

A So that was not articulated to me, so I'm not unclear -- I mean, so I'm unclear whether or not. But I would imagine, you know, but I don't know.

BY [redacted]

Q But, presumably, if he wasn't doing the work, somebody --

A Somebody would have to, yeah. That would be the presumption, but I don't know specifically.

Q And, presumably, if somebody else had to do the work that he wasn't doing, that person also had other cases that then --

A Yeah.

Q -- perhaps got put on the side?

A Right. But -- yeah. But I don't have direct knowledge of that, but yes.

BY [redacted]

Q We talked a little bit, the last hour, about Sean Fitzgerald. Could you remind us what his title was?

A So he was the supervisory special agent. I think he was the actual SSRA, the senior supervisory special agent, at the time. And he also was the direct supervisor for Mr. O'Boyle.

Q Did you interact with him frequently?

A Oh, yeah. I mean, on a decent basis. Again, I use my ASAC mostly. And the ASAC and the supervisor talk, and I use the ASAC. But I definitely had times where I engaged Mr. Fitzgerald.

Q And what was the tenor of those interactions generally?

A Mostly operational in nature, case-related. Depending on what they had going on, coordination with outside liaison partners. During my trips to Wichita when I visited the office, if I was going to encounter any of our partners there. That kind of stuff mostly.

Q Did you ever have concerns that Mr. Fitzgerald wouldn't relay concerns that he had heard in the office to you?

A No. No, I don't. We had pretty -- I would think, at a minimum, he would go to the ASAC, who would definitely talk to me if there was an issue.

Q Did you have any concerns that Mr. Fitzgerald didn't feel comfortable talking to you?

A No, not from my perspective.

BY [redacted]

Q Did you have any concerns with the performance of Mr. Fitzgerald's duties generally?

A No. Nope. Not from my end, no.

Q Okay.

You were asked in the earlier hour about Mr. O'Boyle's protected disclosure. And, to be clear, you don't know what that protected disclosure to Congress was?

A No. No, ma'am, I'm not -- I don't know what that is.

Q And there was a reference to potentially it involving something about how domestic terrorism cases were managed.

A Okay. Yes.

Q Okay. So I think you were asked a question about whether it was unusual to have one domestic terrorism case open per subject.

A Oh, yes. Yes. Yes, ma'am. Correct.

Q Okay. And I think we bounced around a little bit, so I just want to make sure I have a clean record and I understand that testimony.

A Okay.

Q So, under the domestic terrorism -- well, first of all, are domestic terrorism cases governed by the DIOG or by the Counterterrorism Program Guide?

A So both. The DIOG is typically seen as our overall general policy, and there's policies and procedures that we must follow. And then, typically, each program will have their own policy guide that will clarify or further provide guidance in their specific threat arenas. So both would be governing -- would govern the cases.

Q And, I'm sorry, I should have said this earlier. The DIOG is the Domestic Investigations and Operations Guide, correct?

A Yes, ma'am. Correct.

Q And that's, like, the broad FBI policy guide?

A Correct.

Q Okay. So DT cases are governed by both the DIOG and the Counterterrorism Program Guide.

A Yes, ma'am.

Q And, under the combination of those, do you know if the guidelines say that it should be one case per subject?

A So I'll have to -- again, I'm going off my own experiences here. I'd want to refer back to the policy to specifically state. But, for the general purpose, I've always known it to be that we'd want to have independent investigations on subjects for the predication purpose.

There are enterprise investigations. And, again, each -- not just

Counterterrorism Division and their policy, but each other program has their own policy guides within there.

I think, regardless of how it is opened, the key is that predication is there for each individual you investigate.

Q So is it fair to say that one case per subject would not be unusual?

A No, I don't think so. But, again, I don't have the specifics on those specific cases. But, no, I don't think so.

Q Okay.

And you said that you want to ensure predication on each individual subject. Could you explain what that means and why that's important?

A Right. So, as we open up our investigations, right, we want to make sure that whatever [inaudible] information or information that was collected of a potential violation of Federal law, at whatever level that we have that information, we can predicate to an individual so we know what level of investigation we're opening. Are we doing an assessment? Are we doing a preliminary investigation? Are we doing a full investigation?

So the problem that would occur -- now, to occur, you don't want to have just one huge case and be investigating a bunch of people typically. Again, there's a lot of protocols in place. There's the program manager that you would work with. We have legal advisors that help you through that process of how do we ensure we're opening our cases and they're predicated correctly. And the supervisor is supposed to really help manage that.

Q Okay. And so it falls to the supervisor -- in this case, I guess, Sean Fitzgerald --

A Right.

Q -- to help manage the determination of how many cases are opened, correct?

A Correct. He is the one that authorizes the opening of investigations within policy guidelines. Yes, ma'am.

Q And the supervisor presumably has a holistic view of the full case. Is that fair to say?

A Should, yes. That's the intent of the supervisor. Yes, ma'am.

Q Okay. And so it would be -- actually, strike that. Withdrawn.

You can go on.

BY [redacted]

Q Switching topics a little bit --

A Sure.

Q -- as an FBI employee for nearly two decades, are you aware of the ethics requirements that regulate what kind of gifts you can accept?

A Generally, yeah. I think -- yes. A very low amount, and it's just easier not to accept any gifts. Yes.

Q And are you aware if there are reporting requirements on certain gifts?

A Yes. Correct.

Q How are you generally made aware of those requirements?

A Typically, we have legal training that -- we have legal and ethics training. But, typically, the way we handle it on unique situations is, if you're going to get a gift or you're going to be in the process of getting a gift, you talk with our ethics team at headquarters or our legal advisor, and they'll help walk you through, hey, does this meet the threshold or not.

The easiest rule is, just do not accept any gifts. Just, that's the easier. But there are some exceptions to that. But that's how we walk through that.

Q Does this apply to FBI employees that are not special agents?

A Yes. All FBI employees.

Q Does it apply even if an employee is on leave?

A Yes. As long as you're an FBI employee. Correct. Yes, ma'am.

Q In your experience with the FBI, have you ever felt silenced or as if you have been stopped from speaking out about your concerns?

A Again, speaking from my own experiences throughout the FBI, no. I'm typically pretty vocal about my opinions and my process of how I believe things should be done, and that -- there's no issue.

Now, I'm not always saying -- I have a boss, I have bosses everywhere I go, and do I always get my way? No. But I think, for the most part, the great thing about the FBI is to ensure that dialogue and communication and, if there's disagreements or there's issues, that we have different ways of looking at things and we get to the right place together, right? That's the intent.

Q And you talked a bit about your open-door policy. If somebody who worked for you came to you and said that they felt silenced, how would you respond?

A Well, I'd want to know from where and how, and I'd want to solve that issue. That is, in my opinion, not acceptable, for our employees to feel that way. They need to be empowered to provide either management or outside -- DOJ or FBI headquarters information. They have to be able to feel comfortable providing some information up so that we can deal with the issue and the problem.

So I would just want to dive into why do they feel that way, what is going on. Again, that's obviously a hypothetical, but typically that's how I would handle that issue.

BY [redacted]

Q And, sorry, just one more wrap-up question.

A Sure.

Q On Mr. O'Boyle specifically, with respect to the conditions around the time that he was served a suspension notice and his move, I think the allegation has been made that somehow the suspension notice was withheld, to serve it at exactly the time he moved as a form of retaliation.

Do you have a reaction to that allegation?

A So I'll just tell you from my aspect in my interaction with this. My intent was to do everything I could, if the process allowed, which I did not control, to try to get that done.

There was no indication at all from anybody I was talking to, in our coordination, that there was any type of attempt to hold this before. We were trying to do it. It's just, the process is the process, and that's just the way it is, and it was just bad timing.

But I did not see that, nor did I have any indication of that. And my intent was to hopefully have done that, because he was my employee. It's just, the circumstances did not allow it.

Q And so, for example, on the phone calls with SecD, Insider Threat, NYFO, and the Inspection Division, nobody ever said, you know, "Let us know when he's moving so we can time this appropriately"?

A No. No.

Q Okay.

A We were trying to figure out, you know, again, what would happen if we got this when -- or, what happens if it does get delayed, and we discussed those. But, no.

Q So it was primarily a logistical concern of --

A Yes. Correct.

Q -- how do we address this?

A How do we do this. Yes, ma'am.

Q Okay. All right. Thank you.

We can go off the record.

[Recess.]

[redacted] We can go back on the record.

[redacted], are y'all ready?

[redacted] Yeah, we're good.

[redacted] Perfect.

BY [redacted]

Q Mr. Dayoub, part of your testimony from the last few minutes has regarded Mr. O'Boyle's computers --

A Yes, sir.

Q -- that were taken into evidence.

A Yes, sir.

Q Was that a direction of the New York Field Office?

A Correct. Yes.

Q Who gave that order?

A It was during one of the calls. I cannot remember who specifically, honestly, from New York. It was part of our general call that that was something they wanted to have, is the computers.

Q Okay. And that was after Mr. O'Boyle's clearance was suspended?

A No. It was in the timeframe -- it was either right before or right after he left. So it wasn't after his suspension. It was --

Q Okay.

A -- during that window. I cannot recall if it was as soon as he left, but he was definitely out of the Kansas City Field Office when we took it. But I can't remember if the discussion occurred that week or that following week when they asked for it, depending on when he left.

But the request was, as soon as he did leave -- since it looked like we were not going to get him there -- is to get the computers.

Q Okay.

A Yeah. Hopefully that helps. I'm sorry.

Q Yeah. No, no. Absolutely.

So do you know where the computers were taken?

A So we took them into evidence, and they were shipped to the other field office as part of their evidence.

Q Okay. Do you know who is in possession of them now at the New York Field Office?

A I don't know specifically who has them. No, sir.

Q Okay. And would you know how evidence would be used in that case?

A Well, I mean, I wouldn't want to speculate. I mean, obviously, we use computer evidence all the time or examining computers all the time to determine what's on there or what actions were there. But what specifically the New York wants with it I do not know --

Q Okay.

A -- nor did I ask. I just was told that's something they wanted, and we complied.

Q Okay.

You also testified -- we were talking about, the investigation that Mr. O'Boyle was ongoing from the FBI's side.

A Yes, sir.

Q Do you know if it's been officially determined that he leaked information?

A No, sir, I don't know. I honestly don't know.

Q Okay.

So I kind of want to shift gears just a little bit. One of the topics that Mr. O'Boyle discussed with the committee involved the Attorney General's October 4, 2021, memorandum concerning alleged threats and violence at local school board meetings.

A Yes, sir.

Q Are you aware of that?

A I am. It's been a while since I've read it, but, yes, sir.

Q Okay.

I'm going to enter that into the record as exhibit 2.

[Dayoub Exhibit No. 2

Was marked for identification.]

BY [redacted]

Q So just take a few moments here.

So, in October of 2021, you would've been in your position as special agent in charge, correct?

A Yes, for a few months. Yeah.

Q When do you recall learning of this memorandum?

A I don't know the specific timeframe, but it was close to when it was published or pushed out. And the way I received it was through our -- one of our U.S. attorneys emailed it to me and asked if I was tracking this information or this memo.

Q Okay. And who was that attorney?

A I believe that was Teresa Moore. She's the U.S. attorney for the Western District of Missouri.

Q Okay.

A Yeah, I'm not sure if it was an email or call, honestly, but there was some discussion from her, "Hey, there's this memo. Are you tracking this memo?"

Q Okay. And were you tracking?

A No.

Q Okay. What was your reaction when you read this memorandum for the first time?

A Well, again, I think, from my perspective, I read it, and I wanted to ensure what guidance -- what does this mean? What is the impact on the field? What are we asked to do? So I reached out to our headquarters to determine, hey, what's the purpose of this memo, what does this change, what is this requiring of us, to try to get some clarification on what we were required to do.

Q Okay. And what was your understanding of what you were required to do?

A I really didn't know. I know there was a mandate in here to state that we had to have a meeting within 30 days, and that's kind of what I focused in on. Outside of that, I wasn't sure what this was directing us to do, which is why I was asking for clarification.

Q Sure. And did those meetings occur?

A So the U.S. attorney Teresa Moore did schedule a meeting with local partners and the District of Kansas U.S. attorney's side and invited us, and she did the meeting within 30 days.

Q Okay.

A So she took the lead on that, sir.

Q Do you recall the attitude of any of your agents or employees in Kansas City when they heard of this memorandum?

A Well, I mean, I think we all were just a little bit confused by the memo. Like, what does it mean? What was the intent behind it? So there was that discussion. Yes, sir.

Q Okay. Did you get any SharePoint messages about this at all?

A Oh, you mean -- oh, from my -- no, I don't think so. On this specifically, I don't think so.

Q Okay. So, other than your conversations with Teresa Moore, were you involved in any other conversations or correspondence about how this would be implemented?

A Yeah. So I spoke to our Criminal Investigative Division at FBI headquarters and just sent them the memo and said, "Hey, can you tell me, what's the guidance on this? What's -- regarding the 30-day meeting requirement?"

Q Okay.

Are you familiar with the "EDUOFFICIALS" threat tag?

A No.

Q Okay.

Do you know who Carlton Peoples is?

A I do, yes.

Q Okay.

I'm going to enter exhibit 3.

[Dayoub Exhibit No. 3

Was marked for identification.]

BY [redacted]

Q Did you receive that email?

A Yeah, I had to have.

Q Okay.

A Yes.

Q So I want to know, from your perspective or from your experience, how do these threat tags work?

A So my understanding of threat tags, generally, they're an administrative function, right? They're there to help us track statistics, case openings, or assessment openings, what are we opening on in a specific threat area so we can report back, typically to Congress or within our own division or the FBI headquarters.

Q Okay.

A So it's more of a tracking administrative function, essentially.

Q Okay. So is there any other law enforcement utility with that at all, other than administrative?

A I don't think -- I mean, outside of helping us also -- like, we would probably try to pull different tags if there are specific threats that we're seeing arise up to maybe help and focus on our resources or whatnot, depending -- so it's all statistical/administrative-driven. Like, it could impact, you know, again, moving of resources depending on what we see. But it's more of a tracking mechanism to help us understand what are we seeing and what are we opening, I believe.

Q Okay.

And were there any concerns in your office when this email came through from any of your employees or agents?

A No. I mean, honestly, I don't recall the email offhand. I just remember the discussion with the U.S. attorney about the memo and trying to get clarification from Criminal Investigative Division from our end.

And, ultimately, what I was told was, it really doesn't change anything. Like, nothing in that memo changes what we're doing, predication, all that process. Yeah.

Q Okay.

So did you have any knowledge or participate in any investigations in Kansas City pursuant to this threat tag?

A No, not that I recall. I mean, I do remember requesting, because of the memo coming out or my discussion with the U.S. attorney, asking the office, "Hey, do we have any of these cases?" And my recollection is we didn't have any.

Q Okay. Did you ever have any agents go to any school board meetings or anything like that?

A No.

Q Okay.

[redacted] Did you ever see a rise in the kind of cases referenced in this memo prior to the issuance of the memo?

Mr. Dayoub. We had -- I had not, no, ma'am. We had not seen that, no.

[redacted] Did you perceive the contents of that memorandum or that email -- did you perceive school board meetings and threats of violence as a threat in the Kansas City area?

Mr. Dayoub. Again, we had not seen that specifically within my AOR. And, again, with the memo coming out, what I wanted to ensure, was I missing something here? So that's where the discussion and talking with the office -- "Hey, is there something I'm missing? Are we seeing this?" And we had not seen it.

[redacted] Did they provide you -- you talked about guidance; you asked for guidance. What guidance did they provide you?

Mr. Dayoub. Well, the guidance I was given was, basically, it doesn't really change anything. It doesn't change any predication, any investigative actions. It doesn't change where we're directing resources.

So, outside of the meeting, which the U.S. attorney from the Western District of Missouri was going to do, that's the only requirement on there, is my understanding.

BY [redacted]

Q So, with that being said, what do you think the purpose of the memorandum and the email were?

A So I don't know -- like, I don't know if I could state -- all I know is, the memo didn't really impact us at all or didn't change anything that we did. And so, from my perspective, it really didn't -- we kind of did business as usual, honestly, from that perspective. So, yeah.

Q Okay.

And on a larger scale of the FBI and given your background as an attorney, being a former member of the military, do you think that the Federal Government, more specifically the Bureau, should use resources, counterterrorism resources at that, to investigate parents at school board meetings?

A So the FBI has a process in which we are required to have legal authority if we're going to do any type of investigation, and we have policies, procedures, and predications in place to do so. If we are not within that, then we cannot take any action, right? That is the way the FBI works. We are very limited in our scope and our authorities, from that perspective.

Q So, with that being said, the FBI is not in the business of censoring First Amendment activity, correct?

A The FBI is supposed to protect the First Amendment of the Constitution.

Q So do you think it's appropriate for the FBI to investigate parents who are exercising their First Amendment rights?

A So, again, I have not seen anything like that, right, from our end. Protection of First Amendment rights, no matter where you come from, no matter your ideology, is absolutely protected. And the FBI must do everything it can to protect First Amendment rights of Americans and individuals who practice that.

Q Do you think the FBI should wade into the business of chilling any First Amendment expression?

A Again, we are in the business of protecting those rights. Yeah.

Q Okay.

So I want to switch gears a little bit to your previous position --

A Okay.

Q -- which was the section chief of counterintel? Is that correct?

A Yes, sir.

Q Okay. All right. And what were your duties in that role?

A So I was the section chief -- I ran the China operations section, so everything regarding the People's Republic of China regarding the counterintelligence arena.

Q Okay. Did you have any involvement in any sort of investigations or allocations of counterintelligence resources in that position?

A Can you restate? I'm sorry.

Q Sure. Yeah. So were you in charge of opening investigations or directing agents to open investigations?

A No. So -- no. For the most part, obviously, there's a discussion that happens with the field office. We a program management entity at FBI headquarters, so we help manage those cases. Now, absolutely, there was times where we seek predication or we may get information and we direct, "Hey, here's the information," and we'll work with the field office in opening cases and managing those cases. But that's generally the roles that are there.

Q Okay.

So correct me if I'm wrong. So you held that section chief position on January 6, 2021, correct?

A Yes, sir. I was here in D.C. at the time, yes. Correct.

Q Okay. So, if you can think back to that timeframe --

A Okay.

Q -- were you or anyone else at headquarters aware of any planned protests that were going to take place in and around the Capitol on January 6th?

A Honestly, no, I mean, not from my perspective. Again, I can only speak to my limited ability when I was there at counterintel. We are pretty focused on simply the PRC in my shop. And, no, outside of the protesting just happening while I was here, no, I had no knowledge or any discussions as part of that.

Q Okay.

And so the committee has received testimony that domestic terrorism subjects who indicated a desire to attend, you know, any protests on January 6th, that they were physically surveiled from various field offices up to the border of the Washington Field Office.

A Okay.

Q So were you aware of that at all?

A No. And I wouldn't be in my position. No, sir.

Q Okay.

And in your limited scope that you've described, did the FBI, you or headquarters, receive any intelligence prior to January 6th regarding any planned protests?

A Again, I would not be in a position to know. No, sir. I'm not sure.

Q So I want to turn to the day of, to January 6, 2021.

A Okay.

Q Yeah. So -- sorry, that was misleading.

A That's okay.

Q So were you at the command post on that day?

A No. No, sir.

Q Okay. Would you ever go to the command post?

A Regarding the January 6th? No. Again, I was in the counterintelligence arena, focusing on China operations, not -- would have no reason, nor was I in that.

Q Okay. Would you have any information regarding confidential human sources on January 6th?

A Not in my capacity, right, in counterintel, no.

Q Okay. So do you know if confidential human sources were proactively deployed on January 6, 2021?

A No, not that I would be tracking from -- no.

Q Okay.

As section chief of counterintel, would you have had any involvement as to how FBI headquarters sent leads to field offices regarding January 6th investigations?

A Regarding -- no. Regarding January 6th, no, sir.

Q Okay.

So we've talked a little bit briefly in passing about, you know, how cases were opened pursuant to January 6th investigations.

A Yes, sir.

Q So the committee has received information that the Washington Field Office pressured other field offices to open investigations into those events.

A Okay.

Q Are you aware of that?

A No. And that wasn't -- in my experience, I did not see that, from my FBI Kansas City time, that pressure.

Again, I think it's important that there's always dialogue between us and other field offices, the U.S. Attorney's Office, FBI headquarters. I think that dialogue and that discussion -- we don't always see eye-to-eye. That is absolutely true. But I think that's a good thing. We want to ensure we're going back and forth.

But I had never seen any -- or, from my perspective in Kansas City, any pressure from Washington Field or anybody else on January 6th cases -- or any other cases, for that matter.

Q Okay.

So what's the normal communication between, let's say, the Washington Field Office and the Kansas City Field Office?

A I guess it depends on -- do you have a specific example? It depends on the scenario, right?

Q Yeah. So, if there's an investigation, let's say, that the Washington Field Office is heading up and they need information from Kansas City, how would that communication come down to you?

A Yeah. So, typically, it would not, right? Again, I'm speaking from the SAC perspective. Typically, I'm not -- outside of it being a very sensitive investigation or a high-profile investigation, typically, two field offices working together in an investigation would not come and ask the SAC, outside of the opening of that case requiring SAC approval, depending on the sensitivity of that case. Those would be a squad-to-squad, supervisor-to-supervisor, maybe an ASAC-to-ASAC potentially.

But, again, there are so many ways that we can pass and share information, it's hard to say in every instance. But, generally, it's going to be at the working level unless there's an issue of concern or it regards additional approval that it would come to my level.

Q Okay.

So, you know, in that same respect, would it work the same way if there was an investigation that Kansas City was heading up and you needed information from the Washington Field Office?

A Yeah, absolutely. Yeah. We would talk. Again, to be formal, you'd set a lead, a specific lead, asking them, "Hey, here's what we're asking you to do," from that perspective, and, "Here's the information," and see what they could do to assist -- either open a case or assist us in our investigation. But, yes.

Q Okay.

Could we go off the record for a moment?

[Recess.]

[12:14 p.m.]

BY [redacted]

Q Mr. Dayoub, I know we have covered a litany of topics throughout today, but I want to turn your attention last back to Mr. O'Boyle. I just have a few more questions.

A Sure.

Q Did you do any independent investigating as to whether or not any of the allegations made against him were true?

A No. No, sir.

Q Would it be typical for you to do any independent investigating?

A No, it would not. That would not be -- no. That's not normal, no.

Q So is it your understanding that Mr. O'Boyle's security clearance was suspended in September of '22?

A Correct. Yeah, I think so, yeah. That sounds about -- late September.

Q Late September of 2022?

A Yeah.

Q Okay. And as we sit here today, is it your understanding that the investigation into Mr. O'Boyle is ongoing?

A I mean, I assume it is, just based on what we see in the media. But I don't have any specific knowledge of where that investigation is. Honestly, that's not something they keep me apprised of.

Q So you said it was pretty rare earlier for a security clearance to be suspended or for you to get calls. Is that correct?

A Yes, sir. Correct.

Q Does it seem typical to you for an investigation to take this long into an agent's security clearance?

A I think -- and, again, I'm not sure I'm the proper person to tell you that. I think an investigation -- I can speak to investigations generally.

Q Sure.

A Especially depending on so many factors are there and how long they are, how short they can be. So I would hate to kind of comment on what a normal investigation would be, especially since I've never been in that realm in working in a security investigation regarding somebody's clearance. I wouldn't really be in the proper position to say.

Q Sure.

My final question is, do you believe that the FBI has treated Mr. O'Boyle fairly?

A From my perspective and what I have seen, we have gone through the process that any other employee would go through. So from my perspective, my hope is, yes, that everything has fallen as fairly as we could.

It's an unfortunate circumstance. This is not a good thing for any of us when you have an employee suspended, regardless of the situation.

But there are protocols and processes in place that are allowed so things are fairly kind of drawn out and investigated appropriately on that end.

So from what I have seen, that is what's occurring. Yes, sir.

Q Mr. Dayoub, that's all I have. I just want to thank you for being here today. Thank you.

A Thank you. I appreciate it.

[redacted] [redacted], do you have anything?

[redacted] Off the record.

[redacted] It's 12:19, we can go back on the record.

BY [redacted]

Q One more. I want to go back to this question about the computers quickly.

A Yes.

Q And then I think we can move on from that issue.

A Okay.

Q So before Mr. O'Boyle left the Kansas City Field Office, the investigation -- the suspension investigation was still ongoing, correct?

A Correct.

Q And then he left early September.

A Yeah, it was really early-ish.

Q After he left, the computers were taken.

A Yes.

Q And they were presumably sent to the New York Field Office for investigative purposes.

A Yeah, yeah. They were sent to New York. Yes, ma'am.

Q And after those computers were seized and presumably that investigation took place, then Mr. O'Boyle was suspended after the computers were seized, correct?

A So, correct, but I think we're talking about two different processes that are occurring. You have the one field office doing their thing, which I think is separate and apart, I believe.

Q Okay.

A Again, this is my understanding of discussions from the Security Division standpoint of the security clearance suspension. So I think that is their thing.

I think New York had their own ongoing investigation. That was what the computers were related to. I don't think that was -- I could be wrong, I don't have the specific instance, but that was different than the discussion with the Security Division on the suspension of the --

Q Okay. But the fact remains that his computers were seized before he was formally suspended?

A Yes. That is accurate. Yes.

Q Just on the timeline?

A Correct. Yes, ma'am.

Q Thank you.

BY [redacted]

Q I want to turn back to the January 6th investigation issue.

So on January 6th, you mentioned, you were a section chief in the Counterintelligence Division?

A Yes, ma'am.

Q And your office focused on China-related matters?

A Correct.

Q So you did not have any direct work on January 6th investigations at that time?

A No, ma'am, I did not.

Q You weren't part of any decisionmaking about how to handle January 6th investigations?

A No, ma'am.

Q So your first foray into January 6th investigations would have been when you became the SAC of the Kansas City Field Office?

A Correct.

Q And that was in August of 2021?

A Yes, ma'am.

Q So would it be fair to say that many of the January 6th investigations had already been opened in the Kansas City Field Office when you joined?

A There were definitely -- yeah, there were some January 6th investigations open. Yes, ma'am.

Q So you weren't involved in any case management decisions related to those January 6th investigations?

A No. But I do think it's important to note that even -- there were some cases that were looked at and opened even during that time period. Again, none of them required SAC approval or participation as part of that.

Q We talked a little bit about your interactions with the Washington Field Office. As the SAC, did you interact with them very much?

A I did not. No, ma'am.

Q Did the Washington Field Office ever inappropriately pressure you or force you to take investigative steps that you didn't agree with?

A No.

Q To your knowledge, did the Washington Field Office ever inappropriately pressure you or pressure your subordinates to take any steps they didn't agree with?

A No. And I want to be clear on this part. Like we manage what we do in the FBI field office together in coordination. That would never -- that would not be something I would be -- appropriate to happen, nor would I let happen.

I mean, there's going to be discussions and disagreement about cases, but at the end of the day, we will manage what we need to manage from FBI Kansas City. And our employees know that if it is a concern or issue from another field office, from headquarters, that would be brought up and there would a discussion that would occur to ensure that's the right place and the right decision.

Again, I think that's a healthy thing to have and it's important to have that different perspective and discussions in different levels.

Q You mentioned that as SAC you wouldn't usually be involved in the conversations between the field offices?

A Not regarding specific investigative leads in cases, typically.

Q If there had been some kind of inappropriate pressure and had it been resolved at a lower level, would you have -- would that have been brought to your attention?

A Yes. And I would expect it to have, yes.

Q And that didn't happen?

A No, ma'am.

Q Did you ever reassign any agents that were working on criminal cases to work on January 6th investigations?

A I don't think so, no.

Q Were agents reassigned from working on child exploitation cases to work on January 6th cases?

A No.

Q Were agents reassigned from working on violent crime cases to work on January 6th cases?

A No.

Q And you have worked at the Washington Field Office, correct?

A Yes.

Q How long did you work there?

A I think I was there for a year and a half, I think, as the -- so -- well, I'm sorry. I was there for 3 to 4 years as an agent and another year, year and a half as an ASAC. So what is that, 5 years, maybe 4-1/2 years?

Q And you have also worked at headquarters?

A I have, yes, ma'am.

Q At the Washington Field Office did you ever see anybody take investigative actions because they were seeking a promotion?

A No.

Q At the Washington Field Office did you ever see anybody let symbolism dictate their investigative actions instead of the facts and circumstances of the case?

A No. Again, we deal with evidence, facts, predication as our process. That's what we rely on. That's what we focus in on.

Q Now I want to turn to the memo from the Attorney General about --

A Yes, ma'am.

Q That's exhibit 2.

You've seen this before, correct?

A Yes.

Q I'm going to ask you to review it, specifically looking for does this memo ever use the word "parents."

A I don't see the word "parents" in here, no, ma'am.

Q The memo refers to board members, but does it ever refer to school board meetings?

A No, ma'am.

Q Asking you to go back to when you first saw the memo. When you saw it, did you think that it was about school board meetings?

A No, ma'am. Again, I wasn't sure what the intent. I was trying to find guidance for what this meant. No, I did not.

Q When you read it, did you think that it was about parents expressing their First Amendment rights at school board meetings?

A No, ma'am.

Q What did you think it was about?

A Again, it was unclear. I didn't know what it was. That's why I was asking for guidance. I just knew we had to direct it together in a meeting within 30 days.

Q The last sentence of the first paragraph of the memo, it notes that, "While spirited debate about policy matters is protected under our Constitution, that protection does not extend to threats of violence or efforts to intimidate individuals based on their views."

Do you understand the phrase "spirited debate about policy matters is protected under the Constitution" to be a reference to First Amendment protections?

A I think that assessment, yeah, that's what our assessment is.

Q And as the sentence continues, would you agree that First Amendment protections do not extend to threats of violence or actual violence?

A That's been the case. Any kind of threats of violence or violation of Federal law, obviously, typically, is not protected by the Constitution.

Q You mentioned earlier that as SAC one of your responsibilities was community engagement and external partners?

A Yes, ma'am.

Q And so this memo asks or directs there to be meetings between FBI and U.S. Attorney's Offices and local and State officials.

A Yes.

Q Were those kinds of meetings routine?

A Yes, all the time.

Q And what was your role in these meetings?

A I mean, it depends on the meetings. But basically I would be there to coordinate any FBI equities, assets, or to explain what the FBI's mission and role is.

Again, the meetings came in all kinds of formats. But, yeah, routinely that's part of my job, is to engage our partners at all levels, to include the private sector in anything they need.

Q Why is that important?

A Well, I think it's important, one, so people understand who the FBI is, to put a face to name. But also understand our mission and what we are here to do and not do.

And it's also good to ensure people know we're there for any coordination efforts if there is something needed and make people feel comfortable coming to the FBI instead of having some entity that they are not really sure what it is.

And we are part of the community. Our whole intent is to protect our communities, work with our partners and work with our advocates and those who are both pro and against the FBI. I mean, that's our job.

So I think it's important to get out there and have that dialogue with them.

Q Are those meetings beneficial for State and local officials in law enforcement?

A Absolutely. I think it's beneficial for a lot of us that we do those meetings.

Q So it's beneficial for the FBI as well?

A Of course, yes.

Q And I think you mentioned this before, but did your work in the Kansas City

Field Office change in any significant way after the issuance of this memo?

A No.

Q Are you familiar with the FBI's National Threat Operations Center?

A I am.

Q And we refer to it as NTOC?

A NTOC, yes, ma'am.

Q Could you broadly explain what they do?

A Again, from my understanding of NTOC, specifically an intake of information, of any threat information, anything that wants to be brought to the FBI's attention, or sometimes information that maybe is not for the FBI but should be disseminated out. There is really an intake for us across the country -- or the world, obviously.

Q And are you familiar that they have a hotline number that people can call?

A Yes. They have, I think, a hotline, and also an email. They can also report online. Yes, ma'am.

Q So they have 1-800-CALL-FBI?

A Correct, that's one aspect.

Q And they have tips on fbi.gov?

A Yes, that's correct.

Q Is it part of NTOC's mission to ensure that every incoming tip is addressed?

A Yes, that's the intent of NTOC, is to help centralize that and assess all those threats or tips, yes.

Q In your experience with the FBI over almost two decades, how have NTOC's incoming tips been useful for you?

A I think as they have kind of stood up and been more -- kind of more sophisticated in how they take intake, it's taken a little bit off the field office so that we don't have to worry about triaging information that's incoming. And there's pros and cons to that, obviously. But that has been helpful.

And then that ability to do that initial ingest, what do we have, what can we do, initial check, and then brought to us so we can decide what are we going to do with that information.

Q Have there been situations where tips might have prevented crimes from occurring that you've experienced?

A Yeah. I mean, I can't -- I hope so. Yeah. I can't. I'm trying to think off the top of my head of something. But I would hope something like that somewhere in the country that's occurred.

Q In your experience, have tips from NTOC helped to solve crimes?

A I think -- typically I have seen tips from NTOC help us potentially predicate investigations that may lead. I'm not sure if I've ever seen tips just come in and the information alone is what we use. And that information helps us to determine do we do any other investigative actions or Federal nexus with another partner, and then we kind of use that to either predicate or decide this is not something that we can work.

Q Some people have referred to NTOC as a snitch line. Do you have a reaction to that?

A I guess I've never heard that. I see NTOC as more of an intake center like many agencies have to ensure they can process and triage information that's brought to them.

Q Do you agree that had the term "snitch line" has a negative connotation?

A I mean, that's not the way I refer to it as. But I can see, yes, that could potentially.

BY [redacted]

Q In your experience with -- tips are -- tips from the public are valuable to the FBI, correct?

A Oh, absolutely. The public as a whole is valuable. We cannot do our job without the public.

Q And so would you agree that it's important for the public to know how they can reach out to the FBI to provide tips?

A Yes, absolutely, either through NTOC or through personal engagement from us to our community. Yeah, absolutely, that's vital.

Q So if there's rhetoric out there that discourages people from reporting tips to the FBI, that could harm the FBI, correct? Or not harm. I withdraw that. That could prevent FBI from doing its mission.

A I think anything that puts a bridge or a wall between us and the public to allow that communication is an issue. We require the public, their information, their cooperation, their confidence to do what we do. If we do not have that then we are absolutely in a disadvantage from the FBI's standpoint.

BY [redacted]

Q So I want to move to talking a little about threat tags.

You mentioned that they are an administrative tool and mostly are used for statistics. Is that correct?

A I believe so. Yes, ma'am.

Q And then you also mentioned that threat tags might be used for resource allocation?

A So as part of the overall statistical review. So we would pool -- the threat tags helps us pool specific cases or assessments that we're seeing. If we're seeing a spike of something that's been tagged, or maybe a decrease or nothing, I think that helps get one piece of an overall view of: Do we need to reallocate? What do we need to look at threatwise? Are we seeing a rise of a threat that we weren't tracking before? Is that something we should be focused in on? Or, hey, we're working all kinds of issues with this threat, is that the right allocation of resources?

So it's, I think, one issue of many that we use to compile statistics to ensure sure we're, one, reporting those things to the proper authorities, like yourselves, but also to determine internally what are we doing.

Q I want to return to that in a moment.

A Sure.

Q But who applies threat tags to matters?

A So my understanding is FBI headquarters. And the specific threat programs will create those. I think from what we saw there, that one threat tag was created by both CID and CTD.

Q And who decides if a specific case gets a threat tag?

A I think FBI headquarters. I mean, I don't make that decision, I guess. I think FBI headquarters does on their specific threat program and what they're going to do with it.

Q Are threat tags applied to people or to cases?

A To cases, and the specific assessments.

Q Going back to the discussion of, like, resource allocation and how threat tags are just a part of that.

A Okay.

Q Have you been in resource allocation decisionmaking decisions?

A Yeah, we're required to as part of -- every year we look at our threats. It's called the TRP process. We go through and see if we have presentations like the threat program. What are they seeing? What are the trends they are seeing? Do we need to put more resources? Less resources?

And we kind of work together and we band those threats. And we determine: Do we keep these the same? Do we increase one way or the other?

As part of that discussion we include our partners. The U.S. Attorney's Offices are invited, our local and State partners are invited to those discussions so they can see.

And also get their input. Like, what are they seeing from their perspective? Where could we help them on a specific threat that maybe we're not doing? Or are we doing too much in an area where maybe another agency is handling? So that's part of that discussion.

Q Are the number of cases in a specific threat area a good way to measure how big that threat is?

A Potentially. I mean, it depends again. If you have a lot of cases or a lot of assessments or a lot of -- there's potential that maybe there's a lot there. Who knows? But that, again, is one aspect of it.

There's also a quality of the investigation cases. We do get a lot of tips of information that we open assessments on, a lot of things, but just because those are open does not mean those are appropriate utilization of resources.

So that's where the deep dive comes in with our intel folks. They look at our cases, the substance of those cases. Are these legitimate? Are these things that we're going to continue? What are we opening? What are we not opening?

So, I mean, I guess it could be part of it, but I don't think that's at all the huge picture of it.

BY [redacted]

Q And it's fair to say that, like, not all cases are created equal, right?

A Sure.

Q There could be a robbery and there could be a domestic terrorism case and those would require very different resources.

A Absolutely. I think that's where the specific threat that we look at individually within those cases, those investigations, are looked at, at those specific levels, because a lot cases are different. A lot of the Federal violations in those different programs are different. But that's part of the discussion. That's the whole intent of talking about our resource allocation.

Q Understood.

BY [redacted]

Q I want to turn to counterterrorism cases specifically.

A Okay.

Q Are you familiar with domestic violent extremism?

A Yes.

Q We generally abbreviate that as DVE?

A Uh-huh.

Q Have you ever been inappropriately encouraged or incentivized to reclassify cases as acts of domestic terrorism or DVE?

A No. But, again, as part of our investigative process as we -- sometimes violations are reclassified all the time depending on what we find in the investigation or what we don't find in the investigation. So that happens.

But, no, we've never been -- I have never seen or never I have been pressured to reclassify or focus on specific things in DVE.

Q Have you ever pressured anybody else to reclassify a case to DVE?

A No. There's definitely discussions. And that's some of the TRP process.

Like, hey, what are we seeing in the elements? Do these elements fall under, let's say, DT? Does this fall more under civil rights? Does this fall under violent crime, VCAC?

So I think those discussions are had and those are good discussions. Plus, what the U.S. Attorney sees in a Federal violation needs to be taken into account. We may have information that it could be classified as a specific threat, The U.S. Attorney comes in and says: Hey, we only see these violations of law, should we reclassify it?

So those are all discussions we always have as part of what's part of that. So you can see that happening. But to pressure somebody one way or the other, no. Typically, we get everybody on board and we want the case agents and our personnel to be part of that discussion.

Q Would you say those discussions are routine?

A Yeah. Depending on the complexity of the investigation. Like, some stuff is clear-cut, like, this is a bank robbery, this is exactly what we do.

And there are more nuanced investigations. Again, the investigations we have, specifically on the national security side or the DVE side, those are very sensitive, hard investigations, and we want to ensure we get those right. And so those are -- typically you are going to see some more debate or discussion about.

Q Are you familiar with an individual named Jill Sanborn?

A I do know Ms. Sanborn, yes.

Q How do you know her?

A I've known Ms. Sanborn a very long time. She was -- I'm trying to figure out the first time I've met her. But I've known her a long time based on my work in counterterrorism both as an agent, as a supervisor. And I did work as an employee for her at headquarters 2007, I think, or something, '17, or something like that. I can't remember. Back 10 years ago or so. Yeah.

Q Did you ever witness Ms. Sanborn ever inappropriately pressuring somebody to reclassify a case as DVE?

A No. And I wouldn't have known her at that time -- I wasn't dealing with her at that level when she was talking DTOS cases, yeah. But, no.

BY [redacted]

Q You said you've known Ms. Sanborn for a very long time?

A Yes.

Q Do you believe that she is an expert on counterterrorism matters?

A I will tell you she is a very intelligent individual and she definitely knows her stuff. She's been working terrorism for a very long time, yeah.

Q Do you think she's a competent manager?

A She's very competent, she's very intelligent, yes.

Q Do you hold her in high regard? Is that fair to say?

A I do, yes.

BY [redacted]

Q You've worked at HQ on both counterterrorism and counterintelligence cases. Is that right?

A Yes. Counterterrorism and counterintelligence, yes.

Q Did your roles at the Counterterrorism Division and the Counterintelligence Division include overseeing the program management of those cases?

A Yes. Of those specific threat cases at the time, yes.

Q In your roles at headquarters, did you ever inappropriately pressure case agents to keep counterterrorism or counterintelligence investigations open without predicate?

A No, no, no. Absolutely not.

Q To your knowledge, did anybody who worked for you ever inappropriately pressure agents to keep those investigations open without predicate?

A No, no. Predication is key to our investigative authority.

Q And as the SAC of the Kansas City Field Office, have you ever inappropriately pressured people to keep investigations open?

A No.

Q To your knowledge, has anybody else at the Kansas City Field Office pressured people to keep cases open?

A No.

Q So every open case has a file review, correct?

A Yes.

Q It's usually every 90 days?

A Every 90 days by a supervisor. It's a little sooner if you're a probationary agent. Then you'd be a little bit more. I think it's a 60-day review.

Q Who's usually involved in those file reviews?

A So the supervisor does the direct file reviews and then the ASAC reviews the entirety of the review after that.

Q Are there times where a supervisor might suggest that an agent take a certain investigative step after the file review?

A That's the intent of the review, is to go through: Hey, what have we done not? What have we haven't done? Like, where is this case going, what is it not, are there sufficient things to do?

But, yeah, that's part of the natural discussion with a supervisor and his case agents.

Q Would that be an appropriate thing for a supervisor to do?

A Again, speaking generally, because it's been a while since I've done a file review, honestly. But, no, I don't think so, no. I mean, that's part of the general discussion.

Q This should be our last line, hopefully.

As special agent in charge of the Kansas City Field Office, are you eligible for a monetary bonus?

A Yeah. So all senior executives are at some point, yeah. Correct.

Q To your knowledge, is your bonus dependent on the number of domestic terrorism or DVE cases that your field office investigates?

A No, no, not specifically there. There is a performance evaluation like many have and there is a metrics to that. And that's all reviewed by the deputy director to determine how that works.

I don't know the actual detail on how that exactly works. But, no, not -- specific investigations directly do not impact a cash bonus -- or shouldn't. I don't think so.

Q Would the number of cases opened generally impact your cash bonus?

A No. Again, I think it's more about how are we utilizing our resources, our threat allocation from a [inaudible] GRP. But there's also health measures, right? I mean, you have things like are your special agents getting firearms qualifications, are they passing a FIP test.

So those are metrics that you are definitely graded on. That's seen as an aspect. But, again, those are portions of your overall performance that the deputy director looks at in determining that.

Q Have you ever pressured special agents to take a specific investigative step so that you would meet a certain metric so that you could get your bonus?

A No, no. Again, any discussion we have had about investigative steps, especially sensitive investigative steps, it's all about: Is it valuable? Is it predicate? Have we done everything else? Where do we go in that investigative area?

Again, typically as the SAC, I would not have that discussion, that's more at the supervisor or ASAC level, outside of high profile, high investigative cases that would require my attention.

Q Do you know if any of your ASACs have pressured people to take specific investigative steps so that you could get your bonus?

A No, no. They would not. I don't think they would do that. No.

Q Are you familiar with an FD-954, the candidate recommendation forms?

A Not really. It's a candidate recommendation form?

Q Yeah.

A Okay.

Q That's okay. We can move on.

A Okay. All right.

Q Do you recall ever discussing your bonus structure with individuals below you in the chain of command?

A No. I mean, I definitely know some of the ASACs were asking about: Hey, if I become a senior executive, how does it work?

Unfortunately, there's not much I can provide there on how that typically works, honestly. It is performance based but there is a metrics to it. But outside of the ASACs, no.

Q So you don't recall ever discussing your bonus structure with any special agents?

A No. There would be no need. I don't recall anybody asking me about it. And it's mostly been ASACs who are looking potentially at becoming senior executives, being a section chief or something at headquarters, what does that look like from their perspective for career choices, but not talking about that. I don't know if that --

[redacted] I think we are done. We can go off the record.

[Discussion off the record.]

[redacted] All that for nothing.

I do appreciate you being here.

Mr. Dayoub. No. Again, whatever you guys need.

[redacted] I think we're done.

[Whereupon, at 12:45 p.m., the interview was concluded.]

INTERVIEW OF: [redacted]

Wednesday, June 14, 2023

Washington, D.C.

The interview in the above matter was held in room 164, Cannon House Office Building, commencing at 10:01 a.m.

Appearances:

For the COMMITTEE ON THE JUDICIARY:

[redacted] LAW CLERK

[redacted] COUNSEL

[redacted] DIGITAL ASSISTANT

[redacted] CHIEF COUNSEL FOR OVERSIGHT

[redacted] RESEARCH ASSISTANT

[redacted] DIGITAL DIRECTOR

[redacted] COUNSEL

[redacted] MINORITY CHIEF OVERSIGHT COUNSEL

[redacted] MINORITY OVERSIGHT COUNSEL

[redacted] MINORITY PROFESSIONAL STAFF MEMBER

For META:

REGINALD BROWN

DEMISSE SELASSIE

Kirkland & Ellis.

[redacted] Good morning. This is a transcribed interview of [redacted]. Chairman Jordan has requested this interview as part of the committee's investigation of how and the extent to which the executive branch has coerced and colluded with companies and other intermediaries to gcensor speech.

Would the witness please state your name for the record?

[redacted] Yes. [redacted].

[redacted] And, [redacted], I understand that you are appearing today with counsel for Meta.

Counsel, can you state your name for the record?

Mr. Brown. Reg Brown, Kirkland & Ellis.

Mr. Selassie. Demisse Selassie with Kirkland & Ellis.

[redacted] On behalf of the committee, I want to thank you for appearing here today to answer our questions. The chairman also appreciates your willingness to appear voluntarily.

My name is [redacted] and I'm with Chairman Jordan's staff.

I'll now have everyone else from that committee who is here introduce themselves as well.

[redacted] [redacted] Chairman Jordan's staff.

[redacted] [redacted] Chairman Jordan's staff.

[redacted] [redacted] Chairman Jordan's staff.

[redacted] [redacted] Chairman Jordan's staff.

[redacted] [redacted] counsel for the Judiciary Committee Democrats.

[redacted] [redacted] chief counsel, House Judiciary Committee Democrats.

[redacted] Thank you.

I'd like to now go over the ground rules and guidelines that we'll follow for today's interview.

Our questioning will proceed within rounds. The majority will ask questions first for 1 hour, and the minority will then have an opportunity to ask questions for an equal period of time. We will alternate back and forth until there are no more questions and the interview is over. Typically, we take a short break at the end of each hour. If you would like to take a break apart from that, just please let us know.

As you can see, there is an official court reporter taking down everything we say to make a written record, so we ask that you give verbal responses to all questions. Do you understand that?

[redacted] So the court reporter can take down a clear record, we will do our best to limit the number of people directing questions to you during any given hour to just those people on the staff whose turn it is. Please try and speak clearly so the court reporter can understand and so the folks down at the end of the table can also hear you. It is important that we don't talk over one another or interrupt each other if we can help it, and that goes for everybody present at today's interview.

We want you to answer our questions in the most complete and truthful manner as possible, so we will take our time. If you have any questions or if you do not understand one of our questions, please just let us know. Our questions will cover a wide range of topics, so if you need clarification at any point, just say so. If you honestly don't know the answer to a question or do not remember, it's best not to guess. Please just give us your best recollection, and it's okay to tell us who you learned information from. If there are things you don't know or can't remember, just say so, and please inform us who, to the best of your knowledge, might be able to provide a more complete answer to the question.

You should also understand that by law you are required to answer questions from Congress truthfully. Do you understand that?

[redacted] I do.

[redacted] And this also applies to questions posed by congressional staff in an interview. Do you understand this?

[redacted] I do.

[redacted] Witnesses that knowingly provide false testimony could be subject to criminal prosecution for making false statements under 18 U.S.C. Section 1001. Do you understand that?

[redacted] I do.

[redacted] Is there any reason you're unable to provide truthful answers to today's questions?

[redacted] No.

[redacted] Finally, I'd like to make note that the content of what we discuss here today is confidential. We ask that you not speak about what we discuss in this interview to any outside individuals to preserve the integrity of our investigation. For the same reason, the marked exhibits that we will use today will stay with the court reporters so that they can go on the official transcript, and any copies of those exhibits will be returned to us as we wrap up the interview.

All right. That's the end of my opening remarks.

Is there anything my colleagues from the minority would like to add?

[redacted] We just thank the witness for fitting us into your schedule today.

[redacted] I will now turn it over to my colleague, [redacted] The time now reads 10:04 a.m.

EXAMINATION

BY [redacted]

Q State your full name again for the record, please.

A Yes. [redacted].

Q And where is your current place of employment?

A Meta Platforms, Inc.

Q And what's your current title?

A I'm the head of elections -- or electoral and emergent risk.

Q And what's your educational background, starting with college?

A I have an undergraduate degree from UCLA, a graduate degree from George Washington University in political management, a JD from UNC School of Law, and an LLM from Duke School of Law.

Q And starting with after college, what's your employment history?

A I was a fellow in public affairs for a group called Coro in Los Angeles. That's C-o-r-o. I was a political appointee as an editor at the White House thereafter. And then I was an aide to the CEO at the Ashcroft Group. Worked in private practice. Was then the spokesperson for a short time and followed by general counsel for the North Carolina State Board of Elections, and then came to Meta.

Q For what time period were you with the Board of Elections in North Carolina?

A 2014 through June 1st of 2019.

Q And when did you first join Meta?

A September 2019.

Q And what was your title when you joined?

A The job post was civic policy manager.

Q And how long were you in that role for?

A The role has actually not changed; just internal designation of a title.

Q Okay. Can you explain what you do day to day, what the roles and responsibilities are?

A Certainly. I am the subject matter expert who advises within trust and safety policy.

Q And what is your expertise in?

A Elections and related issues.

Q Is there anyone that you report to?

A Yes. Trust and safety policy is led by the VP of trust and safety policy. His name is [redacted]. And I have reported to [redacted].

Q And has [redacted] been the individual you report to since you joined Meta?

A Primarily, yes.

Q Are there any others?

A There have been all within [redacted]'s content policy work.

Q Are there other subject matter experts related to elections within your team or elsewhere?

A Not presently. Within my team, not presently. There are other teams that have other individuals with elections experience and background.

Q And when you're referring to your team, is there a subject matter team within trust and safety or are you referring to trust and safety as your team?

A Trust and safety policy is, by and large, a collection of subject matter experts.

Q And how big is trust and safety policy?

A I couldn't speculate on the total number.

Q Do you have a ballpark sense?

A [redacted], I believe, has seven or so direct reports. There are teams under most or all of them.

Q And are you one of those seven that you're referencing?

A I was from 20 -- beginning of 2020 through mid-2022, perhaps.

Q From 2019 until 2020, we'll assume the structure -- what was the structure previously?

A Previous to 2019?

Q Previous to 2020. If I understood you correctly, starting in 2020, you became one of the direct reports to [redacted] of the seven?

A Starting in 2020, yes, I started reporting to [redacted]. That was when trust and safety policy formed.

Q Okay. And you joined Meta in 2019?

A September 30th of 2019, yes.

Q So for that interim period from September 2019 until whenever 2020 you began --

A Yeah.

Q -- who did you report to during that time?

A A person named [redacted].

Q What was [redacted]'s role?

A At that time?

Q Yes.

A She was a director.

Q Of?

A I don't recall what the team was named at that time.

Q Were the team's responsibilities similar to trust and safety -- the trust and safety policy team's responsibilities now?

A I was only new on that job and could only speak to what my role was during that time. I couldn't speak to the rest of her directs.

Q Do you recall when in 2020 you began reporting directly to [redacted]?

A My recollection it was in the first quarter.

Q And with respect to the seven individuals you reference that report to [redacted], was it seven the entire time from 2020 to mid-2022?

A I don't know for sure.

Q Was it approximately that size? Has it changed significantly?

A Approximately, to my recollection.

Q Who were some of the other individuals that reported to [redacted] directly?

A One that comes to mind is [redacted].

Q And who is he?

A He is the director for security policy.

Q Do you recall any others?

A Another that comes to mind is [redacted]. That's S -- oh, sorry. Yeah, [redacted]. I won't venture the spelling.

Q And who is she?

A She is the director for human rights policy.

Q Do you recall others who reported directly to [redacted]?

A I recall [redacted].

Q And who is he?

A Stakeholder management director.

Q Do you recall who else reported directly to [redacted]?

A I recall [redacted].

Q And who is [redacted]?

A She leads secure -- or safety policy. Safety policy.

Q Do you recall any other names of people who reported directly to [redacted]?

A None are coming to mind.

Q The four individuals who you named, do you recall if they were there the whole time? You were one of the individuals reporting directly to [redacted]?

A They were.

Q And throughout this time, you were reporting to [redacted] as a subject matter expert in elections. Is that correct?

A Subject matter expert in elections, correct.

Q Did you have any other responsibilities as part of your portfolio?

A Occasionally, I would be asked to provide feedback on areas adjacent to elections.

Q And what would some of those areas be?

A Areas related to civic policy where an election may not be on the immediate horizon, for instance.

Q What do you mean by civic policy?

A An example could be recommendations of groups that are of a civic nature.

Q When you refer to recommendations of groups, are these recommendations groups that are providing to Meta or that Meta is providing to groups?

A Thanks for the opportunity to clarify that. I'm speaking of groups as a product feature within the surface of Facebook and recommendations as an algorithmic decision to surface particular groups the user may be interested in.

Q When working on this issue, are you still reporting directly to [redacted] on this?

A For civic recommendations specifically?

Q Yes.

A Still reporting to [redacted] in the role, but others in the chain, his chain, could have been involved in that particular decision.

Q Were there teams or individuals you worked with that you didn't normally work with as a subject matter expert in elections?

A For civic group recommendations?

Q Yes.

A I worked with no other teams that I would not ordinarily work with.

Q Which teams did you ordinarily work with?

A During the totality of my time?

Q Yes.

A I worked with counsel's office, internal in-house counsel's office. I worked with civic product teams. I worked with product integrity teams and others that may be involved in individual work streams.

Q You mentioned you have a JD and an LLM. Was your position at Meta at any time a legal role?

A I was not counsel to Meta.

Q Referring back to your previous answer about areas adjacent to elections, were there any other examples of areas adjacent to elections that you worked on?

A Yes.

Q And what were some of those?

A Comes to mind the new product features that may have some bearing on election security.

Q Are there any new product features that come to mind?

A Sitting here comes to mind WhatsApp product features.

Q During your time at Meta, is your role for all Meta products, including Instagram, WhatsApp, Facebook, or only some of the products?

A Most of my time focused on Instagram and Facebook, but I would advise from time to time on WhatsApp products, Reality Lab features, Messenger features, and others.

Q As part of your responsibilities, did you ever work on the development of any of Meta's products content moderation policies?

A I did.

Q Which ones did you work on?

A I worked on community standards relating to elections, and I advised on others on a more ad hoc basis, if asked.

Q For the community standards for elections, is that a Meta-wide policy or product specific?

A The community standards apply to content, both on Facebook's platform and Instagram's platform, and certain Messenger features.

BY [redacted]

Q [redacted], earlier you mentioned that there were other election experts at Facebook or Meta. Can you tell us which teams had election experts?

A I couldn't characterize them necessarily as election experts. I just didn't want to represent that there was no one else at a large company that had elections expertise.

Q And so the individuals who had elections expertise, what teams were they on, to your understanding?

A Again, I was trying to indicate that I didn't want to make a representation that all of Meta excluded anyone else with elections expertise.

Q Are there other teams that worked on election issues?

A Yes.

Q And what were those teams?

A Civil rights, which is within legal.

Q Within the legal department, you said?

A That's right.

Q And did they have someone who had legal expertise on their team -- I mean -- excuse me -- elections expertise on their team?

A They had people with elections backgrounds.

Q How many people?

A I don't know all of their resumes sitting here today. I know of at least one who had elections expertise -- or background, rather.

Q Do you remember their name?

A [redacted].

Q Any other teams that you can remember that had election expertise members?

A And during which period of time principally?

Q Throughout your tenure at Meta.

A There was a team called Civic Integrity, and they had researchers whose backgrounds included work in the election space.

Q And how many researchers would you say?

A I don't know how many researchers.

Q Was it a handful?

A With elections --

Q Expertise.

A Again, I can't represent their expertise level, but background in elections, I would say perhaps a handful, as you say, sure.

Q Any other teams who had members with election expertise or background?

A None that are coming to mind at the moment.

BY [redacted]

Q Where is the Civic Integrity Team, out of which department?

A It was a subset of products, and included individuals that may also be from operations, for instance.

Q During your time at Meta, have you had anyone that reports to you?

A I have.

Q How big is your team that reports to you?

A Presently, no one reports to me.

Q Okay. Previously, when you had -- one did, how big was your team?

A For the longest period of time, it was only one member.

Q And who was that?

A His name was [redacted].

Q What role did [redacted] play?

A He was a public policy manager, assisting me.

Q On what issues did he assist you with?

A His duties would range, depending on my needs, but I would ask about elections-related areas.

Q When did [redacted] stop working for you?

A November of last year.

Q And what was the reason?

A He was affected by the first round of mass layoffs.

Q Turning back to the seven individuals who reported to [redacted], you listed a few names. Do you recall any other subject areas or teams that were represented among the seven?

A Those are the only that I recall. And I would defer to the lists rather than the number that was off the top of my head at the time.

Q Was there anyone among the seven who had expertise related to COVID-19 or just medical or health-related information?

[redacted] Which?

BY [redacted]

Q Was there anyone on the team that had an expertise related to medical information?

A Who reported directly to [redacted]?

Q Yes.

A I don't know. I don't -- I don't know.

Q Was there anyone on the team that was responsible for reporting to [redacted] on issues related to content related to COVID-19?

A I don't -- I don't know.

Q Was there anyone else among the seven who reported on issues related to elections other than [redacted]?

A No. Not at the time I was there.

Q You said around mid-2022 was when you -- that reporting structure from you to [redacted] changed. Is that correct?

A Thereabouts.

Q Do you know about more specifically when in 2022?

A I don't.

Q What was the reason for the change?

A Consolidating direct reports.

Q And what was the reporting structure after that change?

A My reporting structure?

Q Yes.

A I reported primarily to [redacted], who leads human rights policy -- human rights policy.

Q Do you know whether after the change there was anyone reporting to [redacted] on issues related to elections?

A Directly?

Q Yes.

A Issues related to elections, yes.

Q And do you know who that was?

A So [redacted], the head of cybersecurity policy, frequently deals with issues that relate to elections, if that was your question.

Q Are there any others?

A Within [redacted]'s work -- or, I'm sorry, within [redacted]'s work, there are -- he leads in work.

Q Sure. Anyone outside of that?

A On elections issues specifically?

Q Yes.

A Not that come to mind.

Q Before this change in mid-2022, had you worked closely with the Human Rights Policy Team?

A Occasionally.

Q And what were the nature of those connections?

A I don't recollect specific interactions, except that [redacted] and I both reported to [redacted] and would participate in team meetings.

Q In addition to you and [redacted], who else would be considered part of Meta's electoral and emerging risk?

A That was it at the time. My understanding is they may be restructuring things. I have not had access to emails or systems since announced layoffs 4 weeks ago today.

Q All right. Was there anyone else who served in [redacted]'s role during your time at Meta?

A No.

Q Are you familiar with the term -- are you familiar with the terms "misinformation," "disinformation," and "malinformation"?

A I've heard those terms.

Q And what is your understanding of the differences between them?

A Misinformation would likely include inaccuracies where the intent may not be to mislead. Disinformation would include things like inaccuracies where the intent is to mislead. Malinformation could be accurate information or comingled accurate and inaccurate information where the intent is to cause harm in some way or the effect would be to cause harm in some way.

Q When working on the community standards, did you work on the community standards with respect to issues related to misinformation, disinformation, or malinformation?

A There is a Misinformation Policy Team that owned misinformation policy and procedure at Meta.

Q And did you work with this team?

A I did.

Q Who leads the team?

A Presently?

Q Yes.

A I believe the director is [redacted].

Q Do you know how long [redacted] has been in this role?

A She preceded me. I don't know whether their internal structure changed.

Q When you say --

Mr. Brown. Can we go off the record, please?

[redacted] We can go off the record.

[Discussion off the record.]

[redacted] We can go back on the record, please.

BY [redacted]

Q What did you understand [redacted]'s role to be?

A I know her title is director.

Q Director of?

A Misinformation policy.

BY [redacted]

Q When you worked with [redacted], what did you work on?

A We were colleagues. Occasionally, members of her team would ask about misinformation policy as they worked on the policy itself.

Q So what types of questions would they ask you?

A Comes to mind, questions around who is a politician for purposes of their fact-checking program.

Q Politicians at the Federal level and State and local level?

A Any level.

Q Any other topics that come to your mind?

A Not immediately.

Q And what was your role in working with her team? Were you to advise the team, answer questions?

A Yeah. I did not own any implementation of their policies. I was only a subject matter expert.

Q Yeah. Did you advise the team? Did you answer questions for the team?

A Answered questions for the team.

Q Okay. Was that the only types of interactions you had with [redacted]'s team?

A Answering questions for the team was the only interactions that come to mind.

Q And what was the frequency of those interactions?

A Fairly rarely.

Q Can you say that one more time?

A Fairly rarely.

Q Fairly rarely. So how many interactions do you think you had?

A In my near 4 years, I don't know.

Q Did they reach out to you once a week?

A No.

Q Once a month?

A No.

Q Quarterly?

A Perhaps.

Q Okay. And so you think maybe eight times you interacted with them?

How many times?

A Answering direct questions for them, I'm cert -- I'm not sure.

Q Okay. And so the only interactions you had with them was answering questions, or did you have interactions with them outside of answering questions?

A We were all on a team that rolled up to [redacted], and there were team meetings and calls, things like that.

Q And so can you kind of describe that team structure that built up to [redacted]?

A I can speak to my team.

Q Okay.

A So [redacted] reports to [redacted].

Q Did you understand [redacted] to report to [redacted] or is she contemporary of [redacted]?

A She does not report to [redacted].

Q Okay. Where is she in the web with [redacted]?

A She doesn't report directly to [redacted]. Yeah. And I believe their orgs may have changed at times. I couldn't represent to you exactly how that worked.

Q Okay. And so I thought that you had said that you and [redacted], your teams were on in meetings because you all reported up to [redacted]. Did I misunderstand that?

A [redacted]'s team, I didn't report to [redacted], but we would have team meetings that could include members.

Q And you attended those meetings?

A Yes.

Q Okay. And so you interacted with [redacted]'s team in those meetings and then via answering questions?

A Yes, or if I had a question.

Q You would reach out to [redacted]?

A Or members of the team, sure.

Q And what type of questions would you ask [redacted]'s team?

A If there were ever any changes to their policy areas, I would try to stay current on them.

Q To the misinformation policy?

A Yes.

Q How frequently did you see changes to the misinformation policy?

A I don't recall.

Q Do you know about how many times you reached out to [redacted]'s team with questions regarding changes to the misinformation policy?

A I don't.

Q Was it more than once?

A Yes.

[redacted] Do you recall if there were changes in the lead-up to the 2020 election?

Mr. Brown. Can I just ask that you could give us a little bit more? Changes to what?

BY [redacted]

Q Sure. So you mentioned that you would reach out to [redacted] regarding changes to the community standards. Do you recall if there were any changes to community standards in the lead-up to the 2020 election?

A I don't recall any.

Q What about with respect to the lead-up to the 2022 election?

A I don't recall any community standard changes.

Q How big was [redacted]'s team?

A I don't want to venture a number.

Q Do you know whether they're changed over time?

A I don't recall, honestly.

Q Besides [redacted], who else would you reach out to on the team?

A It could be anyone on the team.

Q Do you have any names that you can recall?

A [redacted].

Q And who is [redacted]?

A His role -- it may have changed now, but he worked in misinformation policy.

Q Are there any other names that you recall?

A [redacted].

Q Can you say [redacted]'s last name again?

A [redacted].

Q And who is [redacted]?

A Another member of the Misinformation Policy Team.

Q Do you know if members of the Misinformation Policy Team had subject areas that they would focus on?

A I don't know.

Q For [redacted] and [redacted], do you know if they worked specifically on misinformation policies with respect to elections?

A That would have been my interaction with them.

Q Do you recall anyone else on the misinformation team that you interacted with?

A Not that's coming to mind.

Q When [redacted] or any other member of the team would reach out with questions, do you remember what form of communication they would use to reach out to you with a question?

A We participated in informal meetings.

Q Would they send these questions via email ever?

A Could be. Could be.

Q What about internal chat and stuff, Workplace Slack?

A I'm not recalling a specific instance on any internal tools, but it -- I -- that's all I got.

Q When [redacted]'s team would reach out to you, did they ever include language from the community standards guidelines?

A I don't recall.

Q You gave one example regarding what is a politician. Do you recall what other issues you would be consulted on?

A That was the primary one that I recall right now.

Q And what was that issue? How to define what a politician is?

A Yes.

Q Were there any other issues that you were consulted with regarding how to define the term?

A I advised on community standards broadly.

Q When you say you advised on community standards broadly, but you don't recall if they sent you draft language from the community standards -- current language from the community standards?

A The community standards are public on the website. And I recall pulling those up, for instance, on politicians. I pulled them up myself from the public website.

Q And you mentioned that these standards -- the community standards would change from time to time. Do you recall if you noticed the change of what was publicly posted or you noticed it before there was a change and consulted with [redacted] on it?

A Can I clarify, are we still talking about politicians and the definition?

Q No, just generally.

A Oh. So generally, I wouldn't just consult with [redacted] on nonmisinfo-related community standards.

Q You answered earlier that you wanted to be -- you know, stay up-to-date on what the community standards were. All right. Are you aware, before the updated community standards were made public, if someone notifying you about the change, or are you only realizing the change once it's come up?

A If there were questions to me and provide draft language, in those instances, I do.

Q Do you recall any specific instances?

A I participated in policy forums where different language would be suggested.

Q And what is a policy forum?

A It's a meeting that [redacted] holds where community standards changes are reviewed.

Q And is this meeting held in person, over Zoom?

A It was always hybrid, in my experience, except for a period of time when no one was in the office during COVID.

Q And who would be invited to those policy forums?

A It was [redacted]'s meeting, so --

Q But you were one of the people invited?

A I was one of probably 70 or so.

Q Was [redacted] one of the people who would be invited?

A I recall seeing her at some of them.

Q Was [redacted] invited to these meetings?

A I recall seeing him at some of them.

Q Was [redacted] invited to some of these meetings?

A I recall him at some of them.

Q How frequently would these meetings occur?

A I couldn't give you a cadence.

Q How many times a year would they occur?

A Maybe six, but I couldn't give you an exact number.

BY [redacted]

Q How many forums did you attend?

A I don't know.

Q You don't know. Was it more than five?

A Yes.

Q Okay. So if there were six per year, did you attend these forums for more than one year?

A Yes.

Q So did you attend a dozen forums?

A I attended the forums since I joined in 2019.

Q So was there ever a forum you did not attend?

A There may have been.

Q Okay. And what was your role at these forums?

A To listen.

Q Did you ever provide any feedback?

A I may have.

Q And based upon your election expertise, did you provide feedback?

A I don't recall specifically an instance right now.

Q If you provided feedback, would it be election-related feedback, or would the feedback have been related to other topics?

A I don't recall, honestly.

Q But you recall providing feedback. Is that correct?

A I recall speaking in at least one.

Q And it would have been related to a change in the policy that was being introduced at the policy forum. Is that correct?

A Likely.

Q Were there other topics that were discussed at the forum other than the changes to the policy?

A Not that I recall.

BY [redacted]

Q Would materials be circulated before these policy forums?

A Yes.

Q And how were they communicated to the invitees?

A A deck.

Q And was the deck emailed?

A Yes.

Q And would the deck identify which part of the community standards were being considered for a change?

A I couldn't represent the content of every deck.

Q Were there any decks?

A Were there any decks?

Q Were there any decks that had been identified, the content of the community standards that were under consideration?

A Yes.

Q And for these policy forums, for these discussions, did this all -- was there ever -- were the forums used to communicate decisions that had been made or were they used to inform decisions that were still under consideration?

A I was never the decider, so I couldn't represent whether the decider had already made a decision or not.

Q Sure. But how -- when you're attending these meetings, it sounds like some of the others, is the nature of the communication this is a new change or this is a change that was under consideration?

A Consideration.

BY [redacted]

Q How long after each forum would the policy -- would it take the policy to then go into effect?

A I couldn't say.

Q Did you feel like after the forum, [redacted] and her team would take everyone's feedback into consideration and then make the decision on the policy?

A I couldn't represent a process for each of them.

Q Do you understand a process for one of them?

A Yes.

Q Okay. And so after the forum, was there a period of time where it seemed as though [redacted] and her team were considering the feedback they received at the forum or did they just make the decision?

A A period of time.

BY [redacted]

Q Do you have a sense how long that period of time might be?

A I couldn't give you an average.

Q Did these meetings occur with regular cadence?

A I didn't call them. I couldn't say.

Q Did you get a sense that they were scheduled at regular intervals or that something would catalyze and require a meeting to occur?

A I would only receive the invite.

Q Did the invite communicate whether it was a regular meeting?

A Not that I recall.

Q You referenced fact checkers in an earlier response. What did you mean by that?

Mr. Brown. Can you read the question back if you're referring to a specific response?

[redacted] Can we go off the record, please.

[Discussion off the record.]

[redacted] We'll go back on the record.

BY [redacted]

Q Does Meta use third-party fact checkers?

A Yes.

Q And does your team work with the third-party fact checkers?

A No.

Q Does [redacted]'s team work with third-party fact checkers?

A It's my understanding.

Q And do you know what those interactions are?

A I do not.

Q What roles do the third-party fact checkers play with Meta?

A They can review content on Instagram and Facebook platforms.

Q And which teams at Meta do the third-party fact checkers interact with?

A I don't know who they interact with.

Q Do you know some of the teams that they interact with?

A Misinformation policy.

Q So [redacted]'s team?

A Yes.

Q Are there any other teams?

A I don't know.

Q Do you know if [redacted]'s team is responsible for sending content to third-party fact checkers?

A I don't know how their system works.

Q Who would know how the system works?

A I don't know specifically.

Q Was the third-party fact-checking program with the third-party fact checkers discussed at these policy forums?

A I don't recall an instance where that occurred.

Q Do you know how many third-party fact checkers there are?

A I'm sorry, could you restate the question?

Q Okay. Do you know how many third-party fact checkers there are?

A It is a global program.

Q Do you have a sense of how many?

A I don't know globally.

Q Do you know if there were third-party fact checkers devoted specifically to election-related issues?

A I do not.

Q Do you know if Meta had an internal fact-checking team?

A I'm not aware of one.

Q Do you have any sense of the process used to vet third-party fact checkers?

A I do.

Q And what is your sense of what the process is?

A There's a third-party accreditation process described publicly in our -- in a portal for Facebook.

Q And do you know which team is responsible for handling that process?

A I don't.

Q Do you know if [redacted]'s team was involved?

A I don't know if she's involved -- or if her team is involved in the vetting of the individual fact checker partners.

Q During your time at Meta, did [redacted]'s team change in size?

A I don't know.

Q Turning back to questions that you received from [redacted]'s team, do you recall if any of those questions concerned U.S. States' individual election policies?

A I don't recall any instance where she asked about U.S. States and individual election policies.

Q Besides the example you gave of defining a politician, do you recall what other instances you were consulted on?

A It's the only one that comes to mind with her team directly.

Q Which other teams within Meta would reach out to you for advice on issues relating to elections?

A The Civic Integrity Team mentioned earlier. Other peers within [redacted] 's org.

Q And who are some of those within [redacted] 's organization that would reach out to you?

A Let's see. I mean, there's just -- I was available, and that was my team. So it's hard to say how that would -- how that would go.

Mr. Brown. Are you asking him who sent him an email or asked him a question before your period about anything? Is that without your -- I'm just trying to -- perhaps we can be a little more targeted on the collusion or other things. Because it's not really fair to ask somebody, tell me without any prior prep everybody you've talked to in the last 4 years.

BY [redacted]

Q [redacted], can you describe on a day to day what your responsibilities look like?

A Sure. I would respond to my higher-ups on options to refine policies or enhance products related to -- or primarily related to elections.

Q Okay. And I want to be sure I quoted you correctly. Refine policies, is that what you said?

A Yes.

Q And what do you mean by refined policies? Have they changed over time?

A Yes, and as novel scenarios arise.

Q Do you recall what novel scenarios arose during your time at Meta?

A I could recall some.

Q And what are some of those?

A Ways that bullying and harassment might manifest on the platform.

BY [redacted]

Q As it relates to elections or just broadly?

A As it relates to elections.

Q Can you describe that for us?

A Yes. Bullying and harassment is a community standard. It's a broad community standard; how it might apply to individuals who are, say, poll workers would be an example.

Q And so you were asked about how the bullying and harassment policy would affect poll workers. Is that correct?

A So I wasn't generally consulted or -- and I certainly was not part of implementation for policies, but I could be asked to generate ideas on how novel scenarios that could involve poll workers should be handled, not particular reasons of content, but is the policy in the right place.

Q And would these novel scenarios arise because, like, a poll worker was concerned, or how did these novel scenarios arise?

A I would be told to look at them. I couldn't represent where my higher-ups, what prompted them to want it.

Q And who would tell you?

A It could be anyone in [redacted]'s kind of team who was tasked with it.

BY [redacted]

Q Who are some of the people on [redacted]'s team that could task you with something?

A Ultimately, I reported to [redacted] for all times relevant, I think, to what we're talking about.

Q Is there anyone else that you recall?

A I reported to [redacted] and I reported to [redacted].

Q Besides [redacted] and [redacted], do you recall receiving tasks from anyone else on [redacted]'s team?

A [redacted] could, yeah.

Q Anyone else?

A No, that I can recall right now.

Q You listed both policy refining policies and then working on product features as two of your responsibilities. What percentage of your time was devoted to each?

A It varied over the near 4 years.

Q In 2022?

A I would say 70 percent on product.

Q And 30 percent towards policies, or is there other categories of work?

A Could be 30 percent towards policy.

Q And any -- your previous time from 2019 to 2021, was your time spent on policy higher or lower than 30 percent?

A About the same.

[11:04 a.m.]

BY [redacted]

Q Were there any other novel examples that come to mind?

A Not that come to mind at the moment.

Q The COVID pandemic, did that create novel issues that required your consultation?

A Thank you. Yes.

Q And what are some of those examples?

A There was a change to the community standards that's public and would not allow content that overtly claimed that a voter would contract COVID simply by voting.

Q What other examples do you recall?

A I don't recall any other COVID examples in my area.

Q Okay.

All right. Were you ever consulted on issues related to mail-in balloting?

A Yes.

Q Do you recall when?

A 2020 comes to mind.

Q And who at Meta did you discuss mail-in balloting issues with?

A I worked with the product team that prepared voting alerts for users on Instagram and Facebook.

Q Did you ever work with [redacted]'s team on issues related to mail-in balloting?

A I don't recall an instance of that.

BY [redacted]

Q What was the content of your consultations regarding mail-in balloting?

A I spoke with -- I worked on the notification for notifying users that there was an election. And that included notifications that led to a voting information hub on the Facebook platform that had information about mail-in balloting on a State-by-State basis.

Q And where did you get the information to include on the platform regarding mail-in balloting for State by State?

A I did not get that information.

Q Where did -- so who worked on the platform?

A I'm sorry. Who worked on the --

Q The State-by-State mail-in balloting platform.

A The Civic -- in 2020?

Q Uh-huh.

A The Civic Integrity group was responsible for that product.

Q So what was your involvement with this platform?

A I consulted on usability, translation, among other pieces.

Q And what was your understanding where Civic Integrity received the information to include on this platform?

[Discussion off the record.]

[redacted] If I could clarify?

BY [redacted]

Q Yes.

A And then I'll ask to you restate your question.

Q Uh-huh.

A I apologize.

So the hub is called Voting Information Center.

Q Uh-huh.

A So I just wanted to make sure that we were all on the same page that that's what I'm talking about, is the Voting Information Center.

Q And what was your understanding of where the information came from to include on the Voting Information Center? Was it received by State election officials?

A In 2020, we posted the content that we received and vetted with counsel.

Q And where did you receive this information from?

A Counsel employed to find it.

Q Internal Facebook counsel that was employed to find this information?

A I only dealt with internal Facebook counsel. I couldn't represent where specifically and if they had outsourced that to other counsel.

Q Okay.

[redacted] We can go off the record, please.

[Recess.]

[redacted] Back on the record, please. It is 11:20.

EXAMINATION

BY [redacted]

Q Thank you, [redacted], for joining us again.

I just have a couple of questions about your background that you went through with the majority in the last hour.

You mentioned that you worked for the White House in a political appointee position. Is that correct?

A Yes.

Q And that was under Bush Two; is that right?

A Bush Two.

Q Okay. And can you just briefly describe what it is that you did in that position?

A Yes. I was an editor.

Q Like a speechwriter? Is that right? Or am I missing something?

A Proclamations --

Q Got it.

A -- correspondence, things like that.

Q Okay. But it was a political appointee position?

A It was.

Q Okay.

And at that point after you left the White House, or at some point after you left the Bush White House, you mentioned that you worked for the Ashcroft Group. Is that correct?

A I did.

Q And is that the lobbying firm that was named after John Ashcroft, the former GOP Senator, or is that some other organization?

A It is that firm.

Q Okay. And what was your role there, just briefly?

A I was an aide to David Ayres and Mr. Ashcroft -- General Ashcroft.

Q Got it.

Have you had any other professional positions that were partisan in nature?

A No.

Q And so your experience with elections, is it fair to say that most of that experience is in election administration?

A Yes, and education and political management at George Washington.

Q Okay. I guess my question -- I meant to emphasize that your election-related work is not partisan; it was more process or election administration work.

A Correct.

Q Okay. And that's the experience that you drew on when you went to Meta in your current position; is that right? Like, nonpartisan election administration expertise?

A Yes.

Q At Meta, in the job that you currently have, have you ever engaged in content moderation as part of your job?

A I'm not part of the implementation process.

Q Okay. And you've never been part of that implementation process at Meta or Facebook. Is that correct?

A That has never been part of my responsibility.

Q Have you ever at Facebook or Meta been personally engaged in the fact-checking process?

A No.

Q And you don't make any decisions about whether to remove or demote content on Meta's platform, correct?

A I do not.

Q Never have?

A No.

Q Now, you were asked a lot of questions earlier about I guess what I would call the organizational structure of Meta, meaning what person reports to what other people or who is on what team. Do you recall those questions?

A I do.

Q Okay. And you don't know the answer to many of those questions that were asked of you, correct?

A Yes.

Q And so, when you didn't know, you just said, "I don't know"? Is that right?

A That's right.

Q Okay.

Do you think it would be helpful if the majority had an organization chart or a piece of paper from Meta that described the content of these teams, rather than asking you what teams look like?

A I don't know what the majority would find helpful.

Q Okay. But in terms of you being able to provide the information that they were asking for, did you find that it was hard sometimes to be able to describe teams that you personally were not a part of, sort of, the structure of?

A My memory is limited. I tried to caveat where I could.

Q Okay.

Let's move on a little bit from the background.

You mentioned that your expertise -- or, you're a subject matter expert in elections and that various Meta teams have come to you at various points to get your input on something.

And, as far as you know, none of the input that you've provided has had an impact, a direct impact, on a change in community standards, for example?

A I would prepare options.

Q Okay. With respect to what, for example?

A Including for changes that would relate to community standards.

Q Okay. And are you aware of any change that was adopted because of a recommendation that you made?

A Options that I prepared did get adopted at various points.

Q Okay. Could you give an example?

A With regard to the example that I talked through earlier on bullying and harassment, I did work on implementation guidance for poll workers specifically.

Q Okay. Was that change -- did it become part of the community standards that is actually on the website for Meta that actually describes what the community standard is?

A I don't recall whether it was incorporated into the community standards.

Q Okay. So I'm just asking, the community standards are not secret at Meta, correct?

A They are not.

Q And they're actually posted in your -- I think it's called the Transparency Center. Is that right?

A That's correct.

Q Can you just explain for the record, like, what that is and where you would find those standards?

A Yeah. Transparency.meta.com, to my best recollection, is the website. And it includes the community standards as well as supplemental information on all types of procedures and practices that relate to policy.

Q And that's accessible by the public. Is that right?

A Correct.

Q So, if there was a question about poll workers, for example, you are not referring to community standards that are, sort of, hidden inside of Meta's policy; you're talking about what's actually published on your website when you're deciding or making recommendations, right? You're looking at the same thing that the public is looking at. Is that right?

A Community standards are publicly posted.

Q Okay. Sorry, that question was really long. What I'm getting at is just, it's not a secret here, like, what Facebook's community standards are.

A Correct.

Q And your expertise -- when someone within Facebook comes to you, you're just trying to give an opinion about these situations, like, for example, a poll worker being harassed. You're trying to take this real-world example that someone's bringing to you and suggest how the community standards might apply. Is that fair to say?

A I was not part of content moderation implementation.

Q Right.

A But hypotheticals could be raised or real-world events could be raised that would cause someone to ask me about how we should be viewing our community standards.

Q Okay.

Prior to the, I guess it's the 2020 election, Meta had a publication -- this is dated October 21, 2019, and it's titled "Helping to Protect the 2020 U.S. Elections."

Are you familiar with that?

Mr. Brown. Can I interject? If there's a document, could we see it?

[redacted] Sure.

Mr. Brown. Great.

[redacted] We don't have any exhibits, right?

Okay. It will be marked as exhibit 1.

[redacted] Exhibit No. 1.

Was marked for identification.]

[redacted] Do you mind if I look it over?

[redacted] Of course. Just take a minute. I'm not going to ask you very -- I just want to see if you recall this.

Mr. Brown. Can I ask -- as we go through this, there are some parts of this that are highlighted in yellow. And I'm wondering, is that what -- [redacted] It's not, actually. You can actually ignore the highlighting.

Mr. Brown. Ignore the highlighting. Okay.

[redacted] Sorry for the confusion. I just really meant to put that in front of him so he could recall if he's seen the publication.

[redacted] I have.

BY [redacted]

Q Okay. And I know your name is not on this document. You didn't have any role in preparing it. Is that fair to say?

A I started the month prior. I don't recall having any role preparing it.

Q Okay.

When you look through this document, it looks to me like it describes in very general terms some of the goals that Meta had with respect to the upcoming election in terms of, you know, reducing misinformation, anticipating problems. Is that fair to say?

A The document speaks for itself.

Q It does.

There is one section -- where is it? The -- sorry.

Well, I guess all I'm going to ask you to do is just sort of notice the headlines. I mean, on the first page, I guess, the back side of the first page, there's a portion that's highlighted that says "Fighting Foreign Interference."

Do you see that?

Oh, they don't have -- I'm so sorry. You guys have a different version.

[redacted] We can pull it --

[redacted] Yeah, I'm going to pull it out later.

[redacted] We're going to go get a better copy.

[redacted] This is a lot of pages. Sorry, guys.

BY [redacted]

Q [redacted], at the time that you worked for Meta, the company worked to promote voter participation in U.S. elections generally. Is that right?

A Yes.

Q And why was that something that Meta had an interest in doing?

A They had previously done so and wanted to continue it.

Q Do you know why?

A Conversations internally regarded public expectation, shareholder expectation.

Q I mean, is it fair to say that Meta believed that it was in its own interest to promote voter participation in U.S. elections?

A I couldn't speak for all of Meta.

Q Okay.

Does Meta favor any particular ideology with respect to elections?

A No.

Q And was any of your work partisan in nature as you were promoting elections?

A No.

Q Did anyone from Meta try to pressure you in any way that you would consider partisan?

A No.

Q And did anyone from outside of Meta try to pressure you in your role at Meta to effect a partisan outcome?

A I don't know the motives of external folks. I felt no pressure.

Q Okay. That's what I'm asking you.

Okay. So Meta has a stated interest in trying to make voting information accessible to people who are using the platform. Is that right?

A Yes.

Q And you mentioned before that the Voter Information Center was something that voters could access on the platform, correct?

A All users could access on the platform, yes.

Q Okay. And can you tell us, just briefly, like, what does that look like when you go on the platform? What does the user see on the Voter Information Center landing page?

A In 2020?

Q Yes. I'm sorry. Yes.

A In 2020, a user could find the Voting Information Center a number of ways, including through the link notification that I mentioned earlier. There were other access points, including through search, for instance.

Q Okay. And when you landed on the page as a user, what did you see?

A To the best of my recollection, it included information about a State's voting opportunities and facts about voting.

Q Okay. I know you don't have it in front of you, but, to your recollection, the information that you said, the State information that was accessible through that page, that information was not Facebook content or Meta content; it was just a link or something would take them to the State's own information about their websites. Is that correct?

A In 2020, it was native content. It was not a link out.

Q Can you just explain for the record what "native content" means?

A This was content generated by Meta and posted within the hub.

Q Okay.

And if a voter, for example, was on the voter information page and wanted to register to vote in that State, is that the kind of information that they could access through the Voter Information Center?

A Yes.

Q And how would that work, from the, sort of, origin point of the voter? What would they see?

A To the best of my recollection, if a voter read content saying that they could register to vote, there would be a link, and that link would go to the State election authority.

Q In the State where the user was eligible to register?

A Based on the information that we had of the user, which is not always accurate, but yes.

Q Right. Okay.

BY [redacted]

Q So the link would take the Facebook user to the State board of elections or wherever they could register to vote in a certain State, correct?

A Whichever entity that State uses to register.

Q Right. And, then, presumably, if the individual was not actually eligible in the State, they would fill out the form, and it would be up to the State's board of elections to make the determination on that, right?

A Meta had no role in evaluating the eligibility of a --

Q Right.

A -- voter.

Q So, in other words, you were just a pass-through.

A Yes.

Q You just made the information available, and then, you know, people would click on the link and it would take them to an outside website.

A Correct.

Q And Meta had no role in setting any State's election policies, right?

A Correct.

BY [redacted]

Q Other than voter registration information, the Voter Information Center on the Meta page also had a link to the Election Commission -- correct? The Election Commission website, is that right? Or do you recall?

A I don't recall in 2020 whether that link was there.

Q Okay.

A It may have been.

Q Okay. But there was some link, I believe, that allowed voters who were military or overseas voters to access information about how to vote in a Federal election. Is that correct?

If you don't know, it's fine. I'm just asking if you recall.

A We had information about it. Whether there was a link, I'm not sure.

Q Okay. But, again, the point of that portion of the Voter Information Center was just to give information to voters about how to access a ballot, correct?

A Correct, or register.

Q Or register, correct?

A Yes.

Q But it wasn't meant -- Facebook wasn't creating a new opportunity for somebody to vote. They were just giving information or directing them to where they could find the information, right?

A Correct. Meta does not administer elections.

Q Okay.

In addition to voter participation, which Meta has identified as something that you value and that you want to promote, Meta has also sort of taken the position that voter suppression is a bad thing. Is that right, fair to say?

A We have election interference and voter suppression policies.

Q And what are those policies as they relate to your position, if any?

A Voter suppression that is not allowed on the platform includes logistical information, so misrepresentations about when, where, and how to vote; what's required to vote; and whether the vote will be counted.

Q And is that part of the Meta misinformation policy that is part of the community standards?

A It is in the community standards. It is not under the "Misinformation" header.

Q Okay. Do you know what header it would be under?

A It's a broader header, as I recall, called "Misinformation and Harm."

Q "Misinformation and Harm"?

A I believe. But I would let the community standards speak for themselves on their organization.

Q Okay.

But when Meta is talking about voter suppression, it's specific to that kind of information that you just described, right? Like, that kind of inaccuracy about, for example, where people would vote, when, the kind of inaccuracies that could potentially prevent people from effectively accessing the ballot? Is that fair to say?

A The ethos of those policies reflects that. There are additional policies that touch on the same themes.

Q And which are those policies? I'm sorry.

A For example, ads policies, one of which prohibits ads that expressly discourage voting.

Q Okay. And why is that type of ad prevented?

A That policy predates me, so I wouldn't be able to give you a full background on the rationale at the time of adoption.

Q Okay.

BY [redacted]

Q And, to be clear, you -- you said the policy predates your time there?

A The ads policy, yeah.

Q So you didn't have any role in creating it?

A No, no. That ads policy, no.

Q Okay. Thank you.

So, on the questions about when, where, and how to vote, again, Meta doesn't set the policies about when, where, or how a voter can vote, correct?

A Correct.

Q So, to the extent that Meta has that information or, I guess, limits incorrect information, the correct information is available from the State board of elections or other State authorities, right?

A I couldn't speak for all States on what they make available, but it's not our internal --

Q Right.

A -- standards.

Q My point is that it's a factual -- States have times that you can vote, and that is available through the State, correct?

A Correct.

Q And so, to the extent that Meta has that information available, it's because the State has made it available to the public, correct?

A By statute or otherwise, yes.

Q Okay.

BY [redacted]

Q Okay. I think you've made it clear, Meta's policies focus on misrepresentations about time, place, and manner of voting, right?

A They do.

Q And they also prohibit misrepresentations about who's eligible to vote. Is that right?

A Correct.

Q Qualifications for voting?

A Yes.

Q And whether a vote would be counted. Is that fair to say?

A Yes.

Q Meta also prohibits threats of violence related to voting? Is that part of the community standards?

A Yes.

Q Now, content that violates those policies could be removed from a Meta platform, but it would not be something that you would decide. Is that right?

A I never made decisions on what was allowed or not allowed, on particular pieces of content.

Q Okay. And if for some reason that type of content were removed by someone else, the content would be removed regardless of the identity -- the political affiliation of the person who had made the content. Is that right?

A Correct.

Q Because it doesn't make a difference to Meta, for content moderation purposes, whether the target of the misinformation is a Republican or a Democrat. Is that right?

A Correct.

Q Okay.

I don't think I have any other questions. So thank you.

[redacted] We can go off the record. Thank you.

[Recess.]

[12:33 p.m.]

[redacted] We can go on the record, please.

BY [redacted]

Q [redacted], I wanted to ask a couple of followup questions based off of your response from the previous round of questioning.

You mentioned that you would prepare options with respect to community standards. Can you say a little bit more about what your role was? Who would come to you with requests to prepare options?

A Usually through my supervisory chain. So I would refer back to the chain that I mentioned earlier.

Q Is that in reference to [redacted] specifically?

A [redacted], [redacted].

Q Okay. And when this request would come in, would the request include the instructions of how many options to prepare?

A Not that I recall.

Q Would the request specify which types of options should be prepared?

A Generally not.

Q Okay. Do you recall what issues you were asked, or what subject areas, to prepare options for?

Mr. Brown. [redacted] could you give us a timeframe?

[redacted] During your time at Meta.

Mr. Brown. All 4 years?

BY [redacted]

Q Did you receive these types of requests all 4 years while at Meta?

A That was my role.

Q Okay. Sure. Do any examples come to mind during your time at Meta?

A Yes. I worked on options on how we would interpret calls for violence regarding elections administration infrastructure -- for instance, the transport of ballots, calls to obstruct the transport of ballots, for instance.

Q Do you recall any other examples?

A I worked on the previously described considerations around poll workers and how we might apply our bullying and harassment policy.

Q Do you recall working on any examples that fell under the category of voter suppression?

A Very early on, yes.

Q And what were those?

A My recollection is, review of the then-current voter suppression policy for what it included or excluded.

Q In your previous answer, you said "very early on." Do you have a sense of what you meant by that timeframe?

A I think in the first quarter of 2020.

Q And do you remember which aspects of the voter suppression policy you were asked to prepare options for?

A I don't recall specifically. And for clarity, the voter suppression is the previously stated time, place, manner, et cetera. Yeah.

Q Were you asked to prepare options for the election interference section of the community standards?

A Election interference included that example of, like, the transport of ballots, things like that. Yeah.

Q Okay. So, just for clarity, again, that was one.

A Yes. Yes. I was asked -- yes.

Q Do you recall any other examples of instances where you were asked to provide options for the election interference section of the community standards?

A None come to mind.

Q Besides voter suppression and election interference and the bullying/harassment sections you identified, do you recall other sections of the community standards that you were requested to provide options for?

A The previously indicated definition of a politician.

Q Any other examples?

A For any other community standards?

Q Yes.

A Nothing comes to mind, but if there's a particular area that you want to get into, I can try to --

Q Okay. With respect to COVID and its impact on elections, were you asked to consult on its options for -- let's start with consult -- were you consulted with respect to how the community standards guidelines might have to change?

A Yes, on the piece that we discussed earlier.

Q Any others?

A Not that I recall.

Q Were you asked to provide options?

A For -- I'm sorry. Provide options for what?

Q With respect to the example you gave for COVID-19, how that impacted elections.

A I don't recall specifically whether there were multiple options.

Q When you would prepare options, would this be prepared in a memo?

What did your work product look like?

A It could take form however my superiors asked for it.

Q And what are some of the ways that they would ask for it?

A A verbal briefing, something written. Those were the two buckets.

Q And when providing the options, would you also provide a recommendation?

A Occasionally.

Q Do you recall why sometimes you would provide a recommendation and other times you would not?

A I did not always act alone, and recommendations usually reflected consensus positions.

Q By that, do you mean, if you were acting alone, you did not provide a recommendation with the options?

A I may provide a recommendation, but I would be working with others, and if there was no clear consensus, there was not often a recommendation.

Q Okay. So a recommendation would be offered only if there was consensus.

A Not universally. I couldn't represent that as the case. But --

Q Most frequently the case?

A Only in my experience.

Q When you reference consensus and working with others, who are you referring to?

A A decision might involve multiple parts of the company. And it would be the affected part of the company, so if there was another part that had responsibility.

Q Was there a team that you most frequently interacted with in this context?

A Yes. In the timeframe of 2020, that would be the Civic Integrity group, which, as stated earlier, included, you know, people from operations, product, research.

Q The example you gave regarding defining a politician, did you work on that alone or with other teams?

A There were others involved.

Q Do you recall which other teams were involved?

A The previous -- there was a team at that time called Global Elections. And my recollection is Misinformation Policy also. That was an area of their policy, as we discussed earlier.

Q Do you recall who within Global Elections team you worked with?

A Yes.

Q And who was that?

A Her name was [redacted].

Q Do you recall what her role was?

A I don't know what her title was on the team at that time.

Q With respect to, again, this example of providing definitions of a politician, do you recall who on the Misinformation Policy team you worked with?

A It was the previously referenced [redacted].

Could I clarify, you said on the policy, or led the team? Sorry.

Q Who on the team did you work with?

A Oh.

Q Yeah.

A It was [redacted].

Q Okay.

A Yes.

Q When delivering the options and recommendations, if there was a recommendation back, would you be directing it back to the people who sent the request?

A I would present or give it in whatever forum I was asked to.

Q Was that forum ever the policy forums led by [redacted] you referenced earlier?

A I don't recall ever having taken one through that process.

Q When conducting a verbal briefing, how many people would attend the briefing?

A I there was for many years -- or, not many, but for Meta, many -- and the meeting size could change, ranging from one-on-one to more.

Q Do you recall the size of the biggest one?

A I don't. My speculation would not be helpful, I don't think.

Q Do you recall if there was a meeting where more than a dozen people attended the verbal briefing?

A I don't recall a meeting of more than a dozen people, no.

BY [redacted]

Q And with the example of the who is a politician, when you were working with the Global Elections team and the Misinformation Policy team, when you were coming up with the information to either be in a verbal briefing or something written, how did you come up with the information to put into the briefing or the written product?

A We had meetings of the working group that we mentioned.

Q And did you consult outside resources?

A On that one specifically, my recollection is that we worked with a member of the research team within Civic Integrity.

Q And so would the member of the research team consult outside resources to form the research to give to you?

A I couldn't represent what her work process was for that particular question.

Q But would she just come up with the information herself, or did she consult other resources?

A We would ask with the understanding that that researcher would be producing results from research.

BY [redacted]

Q When you issued the options and sometimes a recommendation, would you be notified as to what decision was made?

A Oftentimes.

Q And who would communicate that decision to you?

A Are we sticking with that example, or are we --

Q Who most frequently communicated that decision to you?

A Oftentimes I would be in the room at the meeting and would know from that.

Q Oh, okay.

A Yeah.

Q So the decision would occur during the verbal briefing, if it's a verbal briefing?

A It didn't always reach conclusion during the verbal briefing, but if it did and I was in the room, that's how I would know.

Q For instances where the decision comes after the briefing, do you recall who would communicate the decision to you?

A It varied depending on who the decider was.

Q Do you recall who some of the deciders were?

A Yes.

Q And who were they?

A For different decisions, they were often different, but Nick Clegg in some instances.

Q Was [redacted] ever the decision-maker?

A She was a decision-maker.

Q Was it your understanding that there were multiple decision-makers and a consensus was reached or that there was ultimately one, single decision-maker?

A It was my understanding that there were accountable parties. [redacted] was accountable for our content standards but I understood that there were others who may work with her on that, or with Nick Clegg.

Q Would [redacted] be one of the decision-makers?

A He rolled up to [redacted], and I understood [redacted]'s decisions often to involve him. But I couldn't speak for his interactions with [redacted] on individual decisions.

Q Do you recall why some decisions were presented to some decision-makers and not to others?

A I did not own the meeting invites for those types of meetings.

Q When receiving a request, would you know who was ultimately going to be considering the different options?

A Frequently, yes.

Q And do you recall if there, to take one example, if there were some requests that indicated Nick Clegg would be involved and other requests that he would not be?

A So, for example, that "politician" definition, I understood Nick Clegg to be part of that briefing ultimately during the time that we were preparing for it.

Q Can you say a little bit more? What were the options with respect to defining "politician"?

A Jogging my memory here. In or around January of 2020, my recollection was that the then-new policy, newly announced policy, exempting politicians from fact-checking had been defined and publicized, and the options included maintaining the status quo or creating some variation based on different types of political arrangements globally.

Mr. Brown. Could we go off the record, please?

[redacted] Yes.

[Discussion off the record.]

[redacted] We'll go back on the record.

BY [redacted]

Q With respect to the definition of who a politician is, do you recall how long your team worked on that issue?

A My recollection is somewhere in the neighborhood of 2 to 3 weeks. It was over a period of 2 or 3 weeks. I'm not representing that was exclusively what we did for those days.

Q And, during that time, is this an example of where there was a researcher from the Civic Integrity team that was involved?

A There was, yes.

Q Do you recall if there were other researchers from other teams involved?

A I don't recall any others for that example.

Q And do you recall if the expertise or the information they were providing was developed internally or with consultation with external stakeholders?

A I don't know all the inputs that the researcher had for that particular question.

Q Do you recall if there were any external sources?

A I don't recall any external engagement on that.

Q To clarify your answer, you don't recall one way or the other? Or is your memory that external sources were not consulted with?

A I would not recall one way or the other, because I likely would not have been part of those consultations.

Q Gotcha. So, when there's a team and you're working to build a consensus, are some members of the team working on one angle of the issue and you're only brought in for certain aspects?

A Are we saying in general or in that --

Q This specific example.

A So we would meet, as stated before, as a working group. There was an expectation that if you had area-specific ownership, you may be conducting that, say, research independently from those working groups and bring your conclusions back to the working group.

Q But the working group wouldn't have visibility into how you reached those conclusions?

A We likely would, but I don't recall in that instance whether literature review, stakeholder engagement, some combination thereof, et cetera, was the basis -- user research.

[redacted] Do you know if the researcher received any information from outside entities such as government entities?

[redacted] No, I don't.

BY [redacted]

Q Have you ever worked with the Center for Internet Security?

A I don't remember a specific meeting with them, but I'm aware of who they are and -- yeah, could you be specific, what you mean by "worked with"?

Q Sure. We can take even one step back. To your understanding, what is the Center for Internet Security?

A CIS, as I understand it, is affiliated with Stanford Law School. It's a project of Lawrence Lessig and others. And -- does that answer your question sufficiently?

Q Yeah. When did you first have any level of engagement with CIS?

A I was aware of Lessig and the existence of the center long before I was ever at Meta.

Is that what you're asking? I want to answer what you're asking.

Q Yeah, if you were aware of its existence before you --

A I was aware of its existence, yes.

Q To make sure we're talking about the same thing, by "affiliated," do you mean a program that worked with Stanford or was housed by Stanford?

A I don't know the arrangement between them and Stanford. I understood it to be connected to Stanford.

[redacted] Off the record.

[Discussion off the record.]

[redacted] Let's go back on the record.

[redacted] This will be exhibit 2.

[[redacted] Exhibit No. 2.

Was marked for identification.]

BY [redacted]

Q Ready? Okay.

So, I guess, first, a clarification question: Reviewing this email chain, the Center for Internet Security, which is at the bottom of some of the email signatures, including on the first page, is that the same center that you were referring to in the previous questions?

A Yes.

Q Okay. So you believe this is an entity that's affiliated with Stanford University?

A It's my recollection. You asked for my recollection. I don't know the organizational structure and how that would be.

Q Do you recall being on this email chain?

A I don't recall these emails specifically.

Q Do you recall working with the Center for Internet Security during your time at Meta?

A I don't recall any meeting where I was part of a meeting with the Center for Internet Security.

Q There's reference in the subject line -- this is on the first page -- to a "Social Media Misinformation Reporting Portal." And the second sentence, also just a line down, sort of the first paragraph, referring to the "Terms of Use" with reference to a portal.

Do you recall during your time at Meta having any interactions with a social media misinformation reporting portal?

A I don't.

Q And is that with respect to CIS or with any entity?

A I don't recall using the -- or having an interaction with the portal that's capitalized here.

Q Do you know if Meta established a social media misinformation reporting portal?

A I don't have any memory of that having happened.

Q Okay. Do you know who at Meta may have worked on this issue?

A I assume the people who are in the email. But I -- I can't -- I don't know.

[Discussion of the record.]

[redacted] To be clear, I don't know.

BY [redacted]

Q Do you know who Aaron Wilson is?

A I don't.

Q If you look at the CC line, there are individuals who have an email domain, cisa.dhs.gov.

A This is still on the first page?

Q Still on the first page.

A Okay.

Q Yes.

A Yes.

Q Do you recognize any of those names?

A [redacted] rings a bell. That's it.

Q Do you recall having any -- during your time at Meta and as a function as a Meta employee, do you recall having any interactions with CISA?

A I took part in meetings that include U.S. Government and other industry peers, and, at times, CISA would be part of the U.S. Government group.

Q And, to your understanding, what does CISA do?

A Homeland Security established an office, and they work on critical infrastructure security in the United States.

Q And does critical infrastructure, to your understanding, include election-related infrastructure?

A Elections-related infrastructure was designated as national critical infrastructure, not during my time at Meta.

Q Do you know whether CISA worked on issues related to misinformation?

A I don't -- I don't know. Happy to think about particulars if you're -- with CISA related to disinformation, can you specify what you mean there?

Q Sure. So we went over the terms --

A Yeah.

Q -- earlier, "misinformation," "disinformation," "malinformation." And I could ask the question three ways or all at once: Do you have a sense that CISA worked on any of those three areas?

A So are we still talking about the emails, or are we talking about something else?

Q I mean, this question is not specific to this email chain.

A Oh, okay. Thank you. That helps me. So your question was?

Q To your understanding, did CISA, the agency, work on issues related to misinformation, disinformation, or malinformation?

A I'm aware that CISA tried to put out information about the election in different forums. So it's related to information.

[1:06 p.m.]

BY [redacted]

Q Okay. And with respect to information about the election, would that include -- what do you mean by that?

A So we previously talked about misinformation being neutral as to intent and then disinformation not being neutral as to intent. I don't know if they considered what they were doing -- I can't speak for CISA and what they were trying to tackle. I am aware that they put out information about the election.

Q And by information about the election, does that include information about things -- about whether other information about the election is true or not true?

A I don't know. I know -- I'm trying to understand. They had a -- a set of information that they considered authoritative. If you'd let me know what you're -- if that's not answering or responsive, I want to be responsive.

Mr. Brown. Could we take a break?

[redacted] Can we go off the record, please?

[Discussion off the record.]

Mr. Brown. We're happy to go back on the record. [redacted] wants to be helpful, but he doesn't work for CISA. So, you know, we can stick on this as long as you want, but, like, his knowledge of what CISA does is speculative because he doesn't work for CISA.

[redacted] Well, he can have an understanding of what CISA did.

Mr. Brown. Sure. You're exactly right. And on that, I think he's tried to answer your question. We've tried to lean in to be as helpful as possible, but he doesn't work for CISA.

[redacted] Can we go back on the record, please?

Mr. Brown. I thought we were on the record.

The Reporter. I was on the record.

Mr. Brown. Good.

BY [redacted]

Q Picking back up where we left off. When you say that CISA would provide authoritative information on elections, was it your sense that this information was responding to something or was it just a matter of from time to time they provide information?

A I'm only aware of what I would see on the internet. I don't know their cadence, et cetera.

Q Gotcha. So your sense of CISA providing information is just in a general sense, not based off interactions with CISA?

A I'm not recalling any specific interaction with them on that, yeah.

Q With respect to [redacted], do you recall working with her in any capacity?

A I don't. Her name rings a bell. You asked if I recognized any of the names.

Q We can take these back.

You mentioned there were government industry calls of which sometimes CISA would attend. Independent of those calls, do you recall other interactions with the Federal Government in your role?

A At Meta?

Q At Meta, yes.

A I would engage occasionally with congressional counsel for committees. I think that was the extent of my interaction with Federal entities.

[Discussion off the record.]

[redacted] Yeah. Can we clarify? You said excluding those industries?

BY [redacted]

Q Yes.

A Yes. Okay. Yes. So my answer stands, yeah.

Q Again, excluding those industry government calls, which we'll get to in a moment, do you recall interactions with the FBI in your role at Meta?

A I did not otherwise interact with the FBI, that I can recall.

Q Same question. Independent of the industry government calls, do you recall any interactions with something called the Global Engagement Center housed within the State Department?

A I do not.

Q Independent of the government industry calls you referenced, do you recall interactions with the CDC?

A I do not.

Q Did you ever attend a "be on the lookout" meeting during your time at Meta?

A Apologies. I met with the U.S. Census Bureau once. I'm sorry, could you restate your question? I just want it to be complete.

Q Sure. Let's first follow up on that.

A Sure.

Q Do you recall the nature of your interaction with the Census Bureau?

A Yes.

Q And what was it?

A In the first quarter of 2020, we were linking to the Census website in one of our products, and I recall having met with one of the commissioners. I don't know their titles. I'm sorry.

[redacted] And this was in regards to the 2020 Census?

[redacted] That's right.

BY [redacted]

Q Do you recall any other interactions with the Census Bureau?

A I do not, no.

Q Okay. In your role at Meta, did you ever attend a "be on the lookout" meeting?

A I don't know what that is. I don't -- I don't believe I did.

[[redacted] Exhibit No. 3.

Was marked for identification.]

BY [redacted]

Q This will be exhibit 3. Do you recognize this document?

A I don't recall seeing this document.

Q Okay. Is this document consistent with your recollection to the U.S. Government industry calls that you were referencing in a previous answer?

A I don't remember the specific date, but this would be characteristic of that call.

Q Okay. And for these USG industry calls, do you recall when you first began attending them?

A I first began, I believe, at the -- at -- when I joined Meta at the end of 2019 or in the first quarter of 2020.

Q And do you recall who initiated these meetings?

A The origin of the meeting predated me. Is that what you're asking?

Q Well, regardless of whether it predated you, do you have -- do you know who initiated the USG industry meetings?

A I don't know who initiated it, no.

Q But when you joined Meta, they were already an ongoing meeting series?

A They were.

Q And what is your understanding of what the purpose of these meetings were?

A My purpose was visibility.

Q And what about the meeting more generally?

A I couldn't speak to what each individual member or U.S. Government's desires were for the meeting.

Q With respect to your answer regarding visibility, visibility with respect to what?

A Industry peer practices.

Q Anything else?

A Any -- any helpful information from U.S. Government.

Q By industry peer practices, what did you mean by that?

A To understand what common threats industry peers were responding to.

Q Did you ever participate in these meetings?

A Yes.

Q And what would you do as part of your participation?

A Characteristic or as to this particular meeting?

Q To participating in these meetings.

A Ask clarifying questions occasionally, provide a summary of occurrences at Meta or things that I knew about that would be relevant to the group.

Q And do you recall any examples of a summary you might provide in one of these meetings?

A Yes.

Q And what are some of those?

A In 2022, I summarized a few updates to our practices ahead of the midterms.

Q Do you recall which practices?

A They included the bullying and harassment that we referenced -- or that we discussed earlier, as well as -- as highlighting the existing voter suppression policies and ads policies.

Q So by practices, are you referring to Meta's community standards policies?

A Or ads policies or -- or how we're implementing those.

Q By implementing, would you share how they were being enforced?

A No. Under -- not as to particular content. It would be broad summary of bullying and harassment is being handled this way, if that makes sense.

Q Would that summary include the degree of enforcement or -- I guess, let me ask it this way. What did you mean by handled in the previous answer?

A It would be bullying and harassment as a general policy, the public facing languages general, and the update would be we're considering it in certain instances where it involves poll -- polling -- poll workers.

Q And would other companies provide similar updates?

A They did from time to time.

Q Do you recall who else from Meta would present at these meetings?

A [redacted] principally.

Q Do you recall what he would present at these meetings?

A Oftentimes [redacted] would speak to work that his security policy team was doing around inauthentic behavior on the platform.

Q Was there anyone else at Meta who would provide the summaries, the type of summaries that you would provide?

A When you say the type of summaries, are you talking about --

Q So you --

A Could you clarify?

Q Sorry, yeah. You referenced -- or you said that you would provide updates regarding Meta's practices, including its community standards policies. Is there anyone else at Meta that would provide a summary on that same set of issues?

A I did not say best practices. I meant our policies. I would summarize our policies.

Q Yeah. Sorry.

A Yes.

Q Thank you.

A I don't recall anyone else summarizing our policies in those calls.

Q If there was to be -- if there were to be someone at Meta that had to fill in for you, do you recall who that might be?

A In these meetings, I -- I don't know that anyone did fill in for me.

Q Okay. Do you recall if you attended most of the meetings you were invited to?

A I did attend most of the meetings I was invited -- of this series?

Q Yes.

A Yes.

Q Okay. From when you began attending the meetings in 2020 -- actually, let me back up. Did you -- did these meetings stop at any point?

A Not that I'm aware of.

Q Okay. Is it your understanding, then, that they're still ongoing?

A I don't know. I -- I don't know.

Q During your time at Meta, did the cadence change of how frequently these meetings occurred?

A Yes.

Q And what is your understanding of when the cadence changed?

A They became less frequent.

Q When did they start becoming less frequent?

A After the -- somewhere towards the end of the first quarter of 2021, is my memory.

Q Did the frequency ever pick back up?

A Yes.

Q And when was that?

A In the lead-up to the midterms.

Q In the lead-up to 2020 and in the lead-up -- actually, clarifying question. When you say the midterms, are you referring to the 2022 midterms?

A Yes.

Q In the lead-up to the 2020 election and in the lead-up to the 2022 election, do you recall how frequently these meetings occurred?

A My recollection is that they were monthly in the lead-up to the 2020. My recollection is that it was monthly or close to monthly in the immediate lead-up to the 2022 midterms.

Q Before you would provide an update, would you consult with other individuals at Meta?

A About -- about the policies that I would --

Q About what you would be presenting at these meetings.

A No. I was told that I -- that they needed an update, but that's the only -- it wasn't consultation on content.

Q Okay. And who told you that?

A For the instance we talked about, [redacted].

Q And then at conclusion of one of these meetings, would you provide a summary to anyone else at Meta about what occurred?

A I did not. Occasionally I would flag to my superior, [redacted], if there was something that I wanted him to know for visibility.

Q In an earlier response you said the helpful informa -- the U.S. Government provided helpful information on these calls. Do you recall the -- any examples of topics the U.S. Government was discussing?

A Information I found helpful included open source information about Chinese efforts to effect a state-level contest, Chinese-backed efforts to effect a state-level contest.

Q Independent of whether you found the information helpful or not, do you recall other examples of information that the U.S. Government provided on these calls?

A Yes.

Q And what are some of those?

A It was information about dates of certification of elections at a State level that I found helpful.

Q Again, independent of whether you found the information helpful or relevant, do you recall other examples of information the U.S. Government provided?

A I don't recall specific information that they provided.

Q Would you know in advance if information was to be provided related to elections?

A By government?

Q By government.

A I would not. In advance of them saying it, no.

Q In advance of the meeting?

A No.

Q Were -- was the information that the U.S. Government provided, was it always election related or were there other topic areas as well?

A I only recall election-related comments.

Q Okay. Do you recall concerns related to a potential hack and leak ever being discussed in one of these meetings?

A I don't recall that in one of these meetings, no.

Q Do you recall in a different set of meetings?

A Not with U.S. Government.

Q In meetings without U.S. Government?

A Yes.

Q And which meetings were those?

A There were many meetings regarding scenario planning and red teaming within the policy work.

Q So were these meetings internal only to Meta?

A Those meetings were internal only to Meta, that I'm referencing.

Q And by "those meetings," can you be more specific? Meetings where hack and leak was discussed?

A So I'm trying to make sure I'm being responsive. Hack and leak was discussed in internal meetings.

Q Yes.

A And you're asking if those internal meetings were only internal. Is that right?

Q No. Meetings where hack and leak was discussed, is that entire universe of meetings only internal meetings or were there other meetings?

A Oh. I recall hack and leak being discussed with other industry partners without U.S. Government present.

Q And do you recall the context of these meetings?

A General statements. My memory is general statements emerging from -- or with the backdrop of WikiLeaks events in 2016.

BY [redacted]

Q And when did these meetings where the scenario planning and red teaming occurred, what was the timeframe of those meetings?

A The internal meetings?

Q Yes.

A Initial -- the meetings that I recall --

Q Yeah.

A -- regarding scenario planning began in the summer of 2020, is my recollection. The meetings that I recall regarding red teaming or internal exercises would have been late summer of 2020 or fall of 2020, is my recollection. Have to defer to calendars. I don't -- yeah.

BY [redacted]

Q Do you recall who else from Meta was attending these internal meetings?

A Can you -- can you be more specific which of the scenario planning and red teaming?

Q Let's start with scenario planning, but we'll ask for both.

A Yes. Scenario planning, I recall other teams being involved in reviewing, generating scenarios.

Q Do you recall which teams?

A Yes.

Q And which ones?

A Security policy and strategic response programs, I believe was the name of that org at that time.

Q And do you -- was it the same set of teams involved in the second category?

A It included those but included others.

Q Which other teams?

A And the second category, just to make sure that we're on the same page, is -- is what?

Q So the scenario planning and --

A And then actual --

[redacted] Red teaming.

BY [redacted]

Q Red teaming, yes.

A Yeah. Yeah. That included technical staff as well, operation staff, civic integrity personnel. That's my recollection.

Q Do you recall who organized the internal meetings for the red teaming?

A Who called the meeting? Strategic response programs sent out the invite, that I recall.

Q And what about scenario planning, do you recall who organized the meeting -- meetings?

A The meetings I'm referring to was a working group, and I don't recall who.

And it may have been me who sent out invites, if that's what you're asking.

Q For either the scenario planning or the red teaming, do you recall what motivated or catalyzed, you know, the organization of these meetings?

A The desire for election preparedness, which we have been very public about.

Q And were there historical examples, or why -- what were some of the concerns with election preparedness?

A Sir, is there any way we could be more specific?

Q Sure. Meta has this desire for election preparedness. You're organizing these scenario planning. You know, what is -- take one step back.

Do you remember which scenarios were used as part of the scenario planning?

A I remember broad categories.

Q And what were some of those categories?

A Hack and leak was one of them, with the caveat that hack and leak was inclusive of inauthentic documents or documents that just purported to be hacked or leaked. A second bucket would've been physical security issues affecting elections administration. Those are the two buckets that I recall for those sets of meetings.

Q For hack and leak, do you recall why that was a scenario that was included?

A The backdrop was the company's experience -- the backdrop that informed me, motivated me, was the company's experience with WikiLeaks back in 2016.

Q Anything else?

A Not for me.

BY [redacted]

Q I just want to ask a clarifying question.

A Yeah.

Q With your answers you've treated the scenario planning and the red teaming as two separate meetings. They're two separate meetings. Is that correct?

A Sets of meetings that were on --

Q Two sets?

A Yeah. Yeah. And by red teaming I'm also talking about, you know, drills, tabletop exercises, if you wanted to call it that.

Q And so the scenarios of the scenario planning that you remember are the hack and leak and physical security. Is that correct?

A I remember -- I believe there were likely others as well, but those are the buckets that I'm recalling at the moment.

Q And then for the red teaming or the tabletop exercises that you've explained, are there different scenarios or the same scenarios?

A My recollection is different scenarios.

Q And what do you recall about those scenarios for red teaming?

A There was threat ideation where experts in different threat tactics would game out how they would, if they were a bad actor, work to do some harm.

Q Any other scenarios that you remember or just threat ideation?

A Oh, you're asking for actual scenarios or just what those meetings are? I'm trying to understand.

Q So when you did red teaming or tabletop exercises --

A Yep.

Q -- what was the context of those meetings?

A Ah. Threat ideation was to surface areas that would require preparedness. Tabletop exercises was to surface which areas of the company would be accountable for decisions in the event of those threats materializing.

[redacted] I'm sorry to interrupt, but is the time still --

Mr. Brown. I'm at 59:51.

[redacted] 58:15, so we'll go with my time.

Mr. Brown. Well, if we're going to go with your time, just remember that we have to cut the camera off during those time periods, because I noticed you stopped it when he was consulting with me --

[redacted] Yeah, that's fine.

Mr. Brown. -- sometimes when we went off the record.

[redacted] Okay. I set the time again. Go ahead.

BY [redacted]

Q Did any of these tabletop exercises concern a situation with a hack and leak?

A My recollection is yes, again, with the caveat that hack and leak could've included just documents purporting to have been hacked or leaked.

Q And do you recall as a product of this tabletop exercise which teams would be tasked with handling a hack and leak -- responding to a hack and leak scenario?

A I recall the structure going around, and the individual teams would say what their role in that would be.

Q And what was your team's role, if any?

A [redacted]'s broader content policy team owned the misinformation policy and certain hack-and-leak protocols.

Q Did you ever attend a tabletop exercise that included people outside of Meta?

A I don't recall ever having done so during my time at Meta.

Q You referenced that there were hack-and-leak discussions that occurred with other companies. Do you recall which other companies were part of those meetings?

A The meetings that I'm referring to were meetings with industry, including, for example, Twitter, Google. There were others, but those are ones I recall.

Q Okay.

[redacted] Could we go off the record, please?

[Recess.]

[redacted] We can go back on the record, please. It's 1:48.

BY [redacted]

Q We're going to be really quick, [redacted]. I don't have many questions for you based on that last round.

You did have a few questions about the meetings that you had with the U.S. Government and industry peers, and you mentioned that the government sometimes provided information to you that was helpful. Is that correct?

A Correct.

Q And some of that information you said was about just open source information that might create election-related security issues. Is that fair to say?

A Awareness of election-related security issues.

Q Okay. So other than them providing you information that you found helpful in your job, did any Federal officials ever order Meta to do anything or take any particular action in these meetings?

A No.

Q And to your knowledge, have any Federal officials ever ordered you or other Meta employees to remove an account, page, or any other content on a Meta platform?

A I would not have been receiving those orders.

Q So you personally would not have received anything like that?

A No.

Q Okay. I mean, to your knowledge, has any Federal official or agency ever tried to coerce or pressure Meta into any particular action with respect to its con -- with respect to its content by threatening them, say, for example, with antitrust legislation or some other kind of lever that the government might have over Meta?

A I can only speak to I have never felt pressured there, but I do not deal with formal process. There are divisions within the company that receive subpoenas, child safety related, et cetera.

Q Understood. Okay. So fair to say that in the interactions that you've described here so far with CISA or other government actors, it's been voluntary, conciliatory, and noncoercive on the part of the government. Is that fair to say?

A Entirely, in my view.

Q And they've offered you information but not demanded things from you. Is that fair to say?

A Yes.

[redacted] Okay. I don't have any other questions.

[redacted] do you?

Okay. That's it. We can go off the record.

[Discussion off the record.]

[redacted] We can go on the record, please.

BY [redacted]

Q So we've been discussing that from time to time you'd prepare options that you'd -- you know, whether it be preparing options or another context may advise or consult with respect to the community standards, the language used. So one example you gave was the definition of a politician.

In your time during Meta, did anyone ever reach out to you to request advice on how a policy might be applied to a specific situation?

A I participated in stakeholder meetings occasionally where questions about the policies would come up.

Q And what are these stakeholder meetings that you're referring to?

A They varied and included civil rights groups in the United States. They included entities in other countries. They included press.

Q Did it ever include governmental entities?

A The previously mentioned congressional-related work, and I recall some foreign government entities at different times, but not the specifics about which ones.

Q Other than congressional committees, do you recall any U.S. Federal Government entities?

A I do not, no.

Q Other than these stakeholder meetings, do you recall ever receiving requests to consult, advise on how a community standards policy should be applied?

A For clarity, you're talking about external groups?

Q No, internal as well.

A Internally, preparing options was a big part of the role. So could you clarify your question?

Q Sure. To use the example you provided us, one example but not to limit the question, you helped prepare options with respect to how a politician is defined and a decision of some sort was made. There's a policy, right? We'll use this as one example. Did anyone come to you from within Meta and ask about how to apply whatever the decision was about how a politician was defined, you know, does this individual count as a politician under the policy?

A I was not part of the implementation of our policies. Occasionally I would be asked to advise with additional background, and my time meant I had historical knowledge, for instance, of the policy.

Q Do you recall any examples of when you were consulted?

A Yes.

Q And what are some of those?

A To stay with the politician example, it was not characteristic to be consulted on a particular entity, but the one-off consultation I recall was a public figure in government in the Philippines and whether she counted as a politician under our public policy.

Q And using this specific example of the public figure in the Philippines, when the request came in, was it specifically just to you or was it to multiple individuals at Meta?

A The request I received, I only recall it being to me.

Q And was it your understanding the reason was because you helped contribute to preparing the options for how to define a politician?

A It was close in time to that.

Q Do you recall any other similar examples where someone at Meta asked for your advice on how a policy should be implemented?

A It was rare occasions.

Q Do you recall any other occasions?

A I recall one.

Q And which one is that?

A At some point in 2020, the President made a statement about voting -- appearing and voting in person, something to the effect of even if you had already submitted an absentee ballot, just to be sure. And I was asked to advise briefly on that.

Q And do you recall which part of the community guidelines or community standards section was being considered?

A It would've been the voter suppression time, place, manner, qualifications to vote, that set that we discussed earlier.

Q Do you recall who from Meta reached out to you?

A Yes.

Q And who was that?

A It was [redacted].

Q And for this example, do you recall if the request was just to you or if it was to multiple people?

A I don't recall. I recall it being to me, rather.

Q Do you recall what your recommendation was?

A I don't recall specifically. I don't recall specifically there.

Q Are you familiar with the October 2020 New York Post story on Hunter Biden's laptop?

A I'm familiar with a October 2020 New York Post article.

Q And do you have any familiarity with what steps, if any, Meta took with response to the story?

A Limited to my exposure, yes.

Q And what is your understanding?

A That the content was enqueued for fact checkers to review, if they chose to.

Q And do you know who made that decision?

A Ultimately, [redacted]'s team was responsible, accountable for that.

Q And did you play any role?

A I recall discussing with my coworkers on the day of what was going on.

Q Your recollections of discussing with coworkers, is that in the context of discussing just a newsworthy event or in the context of part of your role as a Meta employee?

A I -- in this particular instance, I was making myself available if they needed anything, but my role was not implementation of the misinformation protocols or process.

Q When you made yourself available, did anyone at Meta take you up on that offer?

A I don't recall them having done so.

Q In addition to [redacted], do you recall who else was involved in handling the issue?

A The misinfo policy team.

Q And do you recall who on the team?

A I don't recall specifically that day, no.

Q You mentioned that it's your understanding that the story was sent to third-party fact checkers. Is that correct? That's your understanding?

A That was my understanding on that day, yeah.

Q Do you know if the third-party fact checkers reviewed the story?

A I don't know.

Q Do you know if the third-party fact checkers returned some degree of assessment, analysis regarding the veracity of the story?

A I'm not aware.

Q And just as a point of clarification, you're not aware one way or the other or that --

A I've not been told that they returned an analysis.

Q Okay. In your discussions with coworkers, do you recall what your coworkers' thoughts were on what should be done?

A I recall generally that there were questions on if any policy applied.

Q And do you recall if some of your coworkers thought certain policies did apply?

A Other than misinfo policy or procedures, I recall no other.

Q Okay. And what are those misinfo procedures you're referring to?

A The misinfo policy team would have to tell you what is involved in the constellation of their practices, but misinfo policy kind of broadly.

Q Was it your understanding that sending the story to fact checkers is part of that?

A Yes. I am -- I am in the process including the ability to include -- enqueue, pardon, to fact checkers for review.

Q And at no point were you consulted to assist with how to respond to the story?

A I don't recall having been, you know, asked whether -- yeah, to assist in the response to the story.

Q Do you know if the -- well, actually, let me take a step back. In October of 2020, do you know whether Meta, at the time Facebook, had a policy with respect to hack-and-leak material specifically?

A My recollection is we did.

Q And is the team responsible for handling the implementation of the hack-and-leak policy different than the misinformation team?

A It's all [redacted]'s work. I don't know -- I don't know whether -- what misinformation considered in its purview at that time.

Q The -- do you recall how quickly you learned of -- actually, let me strike that.

In addition to sending the story to third-party fact checkers, is it your understanding that Facebook took any other steps with respect to the story?

A I'm not aware of any as I sit here.

Q Are you familiar with Mark Zuckerberg's August 2022 interview with Joe Rogan where he discusses how Facebook handled reacting to the story?

A I'm aware of it. I'm aware of it.

Q Were you aware prior to that interview, or I guess even today, are you aware whether Facebook took any steps to, quote, down rank the story initially?

A I'm aware that in 2020, or at that time in 2020, enqueueing to fact checkers did have a distribution effect.

Q And do you recall how quickly you had that understanding or learned that that was the step that Facebook was taking?

Mr. Brown. Can I just ask for frame of -- how quickly compared to what, like what's the frame of reference?

BY [redacted]

Q Sure. So the story comes out the morning of October 14th. Do you recall when you first learned of the steps that Facebook was taking?

A At some point during that day. I don't recall more specifically.

Q Do you have a sense of how widely known within the company people knew that that was the decision that had been made?

A I don't.

Q For anyone, including yourself, falling underneath [redacted]'s team, do you know how widely within the team there was an understanding that day regarding the decision that had been made?

A I don't. Couldn't speak outside of my own experience.

Q Do you recall how you learned?

Mr. Brown. I'm sorry, how he learned what?

BY [redacted]

Q Do you recall how you learned of what decision Facebook decided to take?

A In conversations with coworkers.

Q Do you remember which coworkers?

A I don't.

Q Do you recall what the coworkers that you spoke to, whether they were supportive or opposed to that decision?

A I don't remember any statements about the merits directed to me.

Q Or otherwise, do you recall?

A I don't. I --

Mr. Brown. I'm going to object to the line of inquiry, because I've heard no nexus to the governmental kind of collusion or collaboration or anything that would be within the scope of the committee's jurisdiction, but you can answer the question.

[redacted] We have explained this before to you. Out of respect to the witness, we can have this discussion later.

BY [redacted]

Q Do you recall if there was a sense among coworkers that this might be the byproduct of a Russian-originated hack-and-leak operation?

A There was concern that the origin was unknown.

Q Any recollection that it was Russia specifically?

A I don't remember Russia specifically.

Q So this is October 2020. Do you recall if you were in an office of Meta that day?

A I was not.

Q So these discussions are occurring remotely of some kind?

A Yes.

Q All right. Do you recall how quickly during the day a decision was made?

A I don't.

Q Do you recall whether there was consideration on the days following the 14th in order to change the steps that Facebook had taken?

A I don't recall.

Q Do you have familiarity with a statement that was released about 5 days later, October 19th, from 51 former intel officials regarding the nature of Hunter Biden's laptop?

A I recall being aware of a letter or statement, and it would fit that profile.

Q And did you ever provide any analysis of that letter or discuss it with your superiors?

A I remember discussing it with peers. I do not recall having provided an analysis or discussing it with superiors.

Q Regarding your discussions with peers, is this -- are these discussions in the context as coworkers discussing a newsworthy event or in your role as a Meta employee?

A Coworkers discussing a newsworthy event.

Q Do you know if the letter had any impact on how Facebook continued to handle its response to the story?

A I don't know.

Q Did you ever talk to [redacted] directly about the decision?

A I don't recall having done so.

Q You mentioned on the 14th you were going to make yourself available if needed and that that offer wasn't taken up on the 14th. Just to clarify, to the extent the offer extended for the rest of the week, do you recall if anyone took you up on that offer?

A I don't. I don't recall having been taken up on that offer.

Q Did you conduct any analysis on your own independently?

A Not that I recall.

Q Were you notified when -- let me strike that.

Do you know when the -- you mentioned there was a -- to some effect, a step was taken with respect to the distribution of the story. Do you know if that step was ultimately reversed at some point?

A I don't know.

Q Okay.

A I don't know.

Q Do you recall if the step was changed at any point?

A I don't. I don't know.

Q Are you aware of the Election Integrity Partnership?

A I've heard the name.

Q Do you know what it is?

A Not with any specificity.

Q Do you recall if you've ever worked with the Election Integrity Partnership?

A I don't recall having done so.

Q Do you know if anyone else at Meta has worked with the Election Integrity Partnership?

A I don't know.

Q Earlier we were talking about the Center for Internet Security, and you referenced you believe it's affiliated with Stanford. Do you recall any other -- let me -- strike that.

During your role at Meta, have you had any other interactions with Stanford University?

A I don't recall having done so -- oh, hold one moment. I participated on a call that involved researchers from Stanford regarding internet governance.

Q Do you recall who from Stanford was on that call?

A I don't recall the names.

Q Have you ever worked with someone from Stanford named Alex Stamos?

A I have not worked with Alex Stamos.

Q I'm sorry?

A I have not worked with him, not knowingly.

Q Do you know who that is?

A I do.

Q And who is Mr. Stamos?

A Mr. Stamos is a partner at his cybersecurity group. He formerly worked at Facebook at the time. I was not there during that period.

Q And, sorry, just to clarify, during your role at Meta, did you ever work with -- understanding you didn't overlap and Mr. Stamos left Facebook. In your role at Meta, have you ever worked with Mr. Stamos?

A I don't recall anytime having worked with him.

Q Okay. Are you familiar with the Virality Project?

A Virality Project? I am not.

Q Have you worked with a company named Graphika in your -- during your role at Meta?

A I don't recall ever having worked with them.

Q Have you ever worked with the DFRLab, which was housed with inside the Atlantic Council, as part of your role at Meta?

A I don't recall ever having worked with them.

[2:17 p.m.]

BY [redacted]

Q Have you ever worked with the University of Washington as part of your role at Meta?

A As I sit here today, I don't recall any meetings that I've worked with them, no.

Q Have you ever worked with the Aspen Institute during your role at Meta?

A I don't recall ever having done so.

Q You had mentioned that there was scenario planning, as well as a red team, and that Meta internally would prepare for hack-and-leak -- a potential response to a hypothetical hack-and-leak operation.

Do you recall if, when the New York Post ran the story on October 14, 2020, on Hunter Biden's laptop, if the response from Facebook was consistent with the response that was practiced in these tabletop exercises?

A I don't recall any deviation or consistency.

Q You just don't recall one way or the other?

A I just want to make sure -- the question seems to assume that what was the scenario was similar to what happened, and I'm not trying to draw any link between those two.

Q Okay. Do you recall if any of the tabletop exercises that were practiced over the summer were similar to the actual events that unfolded in October 2020 with respect to Hunter Biden's laptop?

A To the best of my recollection, in my view of it, that they were not similar. One involved a document dump at scale. That's my recollection. And then I won't characterize the last scenario you [inaudible].

Q Okay.

Do you recall if Facebook's response in October of 2020 to the Hunter Biden laptop story, if the initial reaction was to treat it as a potential -- the Hunter Biden laptop as the potential product of a hack-and-leak operation?

A I recall that being a question.

Q And you mentioned that there was -- that both teams fall under [redacted] 's umbrella, but that there was a team whose primary responsibility was handling, you know, the hack-and-leak policies and that there's a separate team handling misinformation policy.

Is it your understanding that those teams worked together, or would each make an assessment independently?

A Just to clarify on my prior testimony, I don't know what misinfo policy believed to be their role with reference to an assessment on hack-and-leak. Not all individual community -- or, individual policies are owned by independent teams. And I couldn't tell you who had what lines, day of.

Q Yeah. Thank you for that clarification.

With respect to how to respond to the Hunter Biden laptop story, do you recall if the team that is responsible for implementing the hack-and-leak policy and the team that's responsible for implementing the misinformation policy were communicating with one another that day?

A It's my testimony that I don't know who owns a hack-and-leak policy specifically, other than the accountability that rolls up to [redacted]. So I don't know some subset or on whose subset --

Q Well, with the understanding you don't know who the team is, is it your understanding that there is a team that is responsible?

A It's my understanding that [redacted]'s work is responsible for that, and I am not aware of any individual team that is segmented off for hack-and-leak assessment, if that's what you're asking. But I want to make sure I'm being responsive.

Q Do you remember if [redacted] was involved in determining how to respond to the Hunter Biden laptop story?

A My recollection is that [redacted] was involved in thinking through that decision.

Q And is it your understanding that [redacted] was involved as well?

A I don't recall whether [redacted] was directly involved.

Q So, since you have knowledge or understanding of [redacted]'s involvement, was his involvement in consultation with [redacted]?

A In my own firsthand -- he was providing information, yes, that was in consul- -- owned by a decision owned by [redacted], yeah.

[redacted] Can we go off the record, please?

[Recess.]

[redacted] Back on the record.

BY [redacted]

Q Regarding the New York Post story, I might have misunderstood you, but I thought you said that you did not have knowledge of any decision that Facebook or Meta made regarding that story, other than someone decided to send it to a third-party fact-check.

Is my understanding correct, or did I miss something?

A My recollection is that I was responding to a question about whether there was any decision on that content in addition to sending it and queuing the content to third-party fact-checkers. So, yes, my understanding -- I don't have any additional understanding of how that was treated or not treated.

Q But you clearly said that you understood that it did go to third-party fact-checking. Is that right?

A Correct.

Q But you have no knowledge of any other decision that anyone at Facebook made with respect to that story. Is that true?

A I don't recall any other.

Q Okay. So, when you're talking about "the decision" that was referred to in the last hour, you're talking about the decision to send it to third-party fact-checking. Is that right?

A That's what I was responding to.

Q Thank you for that clarification.

If you know -- and if you don't, certainly say so -- is there something that happens when a story is sent to third-party fact-checking that results in a demotion or something like that with respect to content automatically?

A It results in a demotion at that time.

Q Is that a separate decision, or is that just part of the initial decision to send the story or content to third-party fact-checking?

A I had understood that to be normal business protocol predating -- for as long as I understood sending something to being queued, it also came with an automatic demotion.

Q Those two things are linked, correct?

A That was my understanding on the day, is that that had always been -- that had been linked, as long as I knew of, in queuing.

Q Okay.

[redacted] No other questions. Thanks for your time.

We can go off the record.

[Whereupon, at 2:27 p.m., the interview was concluded.]

1 [redacted] This is a transcribed interview of [redacted].

2 Do I have your name right?

3 [redacted]. Yes, you do.

4 [redacted] Chairman Jordan has requested this interview as part of the

5 committee's investigation of how and the extent to which the executive branch has

6 coerced and colluded with companies and other intermediaries to censor speech.

7 Would the witness please state your name for the record?

8 [redacted]. [redacted].

9 [redacted] On behalf of the committee, I want to thank you for appearing here

10 today to answer our questions. The committee also appreciates your willingness to

11 appear voluntarily.

12 My name is [redacted] and I'm with Chairman Jordan's staff. I will now have 13 everyone else from the committee who is here at the table introduce themselves.

14 [redacted] I'm [redacted] Oversight Counsel with the Judiciary

15 Committee Democrats.

16 [redacted] I'm [redacted] I'm a legal intern with the Democrats' Judiciary

17 Committee.

18 [redacted] [redacted] with the Judiciary Democrats.

19 [redacted] [redacted] with the Judiciary majority staff.

20 [redacted] [redacted] Judiciary majority staff.

21 [redacted] [redacted] with the Judiciary majority staff.

22 Mr. Halse. Ehren Halse from King & Spalding on behalf of Google.

23 Mr. Bopp. And Michael Bopp from Gibson Dunn, counsel for [redacted]

24 [redacted] I'd like to now go over the ground rules and guidelines we'll follow

25 during today's interview. Our questioning will proceed in rounds. The majority will ask

1 questions first for 1 hour, and then the minority will have an opportunity to ask questions
2 for an equal period of time, if they choose. We will alternate back and forth until there
3 are no more questions and the interview is over. Typically, we take a short break at the 4 end of each hour, but if you'd like to take a break apart from that, please just let us know.
5 As you can see, there's an official court reporter taking down everything we say to
6 make a written record, so we ask that you give verbal responses to all the questions. Do
7 you understand.
8 [redacted]. Yes, I do.
9 [redacted] So the court reporter can take down a clear record, we'll do our 10 best to limit the number of people directing questions at you during any given hour to 11 just the people on the staff whose turn it is.
12 Please try and speak clearly so the court reporter can understand and so the folks
13 down at the end of the table can hear you. It's important that we don't talk over one 14 another or interrupt each other if we can help it, and that goes for everybody present at 15 today's interview.
16 We encourage witnesses who appear before the committee to freely consult with 17 counsel if they choose. And it's my understanding that you're appearing today with 18 counsel. Is that correct?
19 [redacted]. Yes, that's correct.
20 [redacted] Counsel's already stated their name for the record. Thank you.
21 We want you to answer our questions in the most complete and truthful manner
22 as possible, so we'll take our time. If you have any questions or if you don't understand
23 one of our questions, please just let us know. The questions will cover a wide range of 24 topics, so if you need clarification at any point, just say so. If you honestly don't know
25 the answer to a question or don't remember, it's best not to guess. Please give us your

1 best recollection, and it's okay to tell us if you learned information from someone else.
2 Just indicate how you came to know the information. If there are things you don't know
3 or can't remember, just say so, and please inform us who, to the best of your knowledge,
4 might be able to provide a more complete answer to the question.
5 You should also understand that although this interview isn't under oath, by law
6 you are required to answer questions from Congress truthfully. Do you understand
7 that?
8 [redacted]. Yes, I do.
9 [redacted] This also applies to questions posed by congressional staff at an 10 interview. Do you understand that?
11 [redacted]. Yes.
12 [redacted] Witnesses that knowingly provide false testimony could be subject
13 to criminal prosecution for perjury or making false statements under 18 U.S.C. 1001. Do
14 you understand?
15 [redacted]. Yes.
16 [redacted] Is there any reason you are unable to provide truthful answers to
17 today's questions?
18 [redacted]. No.
19 [redacted] Finally, I'd like to make note that the content of what we discuss
20 here today is confidential. We ask that you not speak about what we discuss in this
21 interview to any outside individuals to preserve the integrity of our investigation. For 22 the same reason, marked exhibits that we use today will remain with the court reporter
23 so that they can go on the official transcript, and any copies of those exhibits will be 24 returned to us.
25 All right. That's the end of my preamble. Is there anything my colleagues from

1 the minority would like to add?

2 [redacted] Just thank you for coming today.

3 [redacted] The clock now reads 10:07 a.m. We'll start the first hour.

4 EXAMINATION

5 BY [redacted]

6 Q Can you give us your current job title?

7 A I'm the director of Health Partnerships at YouTube.

8 Q And your educational background, starting with college.

9 A Duke University.

10 Q And what did you study there?

11 A Art history and English.

12 Q And your employment history before your current position?

13 A I worked at the Discovery Channel for about 3 years. I worked at Hugo

14 Boss for about 1 year in New York City. And then I worked -- I've worked at YouTube for 15 15 and a half years.

16 Q Have you had the same role at YouTube the entire time or has it changed?

17 A It's changed.

18 Q Can you describe how?

19 A Yes. Prior to my role on Health Partnerships, I worked on a strategy and 20 operations team working with top creators. Prior to that, I worked on original

21 programming for YouTube. And prior to that I worked on a marketing programs team.

22 Q And in your current role -- so is Health Partnerships, that's a specific team

23 that you do, I take it?

24 A Yes. It's part of our larger partnerships team focused on health partners.

25 Q And how many people are in partnerships or larger partnerships team versus

1 health partnerships?

2 A I don't have the exact number of the global partnerships. Oh, an estimate?

3 Q Yeah.

4 A You know, hundreds, globally. A couple hundred, globally.

5 Q Are you focused on a particular region?

6 A My role is global and scope, so I work with people on multiple countries.

7 Q And who do you report to?

8 A I report to the director of Global Health and the head of YouTube Health.

9 Q Who is that?

10 A [redacted].

11 Q And who reports to you?

12 A I have a team of people in North America, and then I work closely with their 13 counterparts in different countries.

14 Q Do you know how many people report to you, approximately?

15 A Six.

16 Q And who are those people?

17 A Their names?

18 Q Yeah.

19 A [redacted] (ph), [redacted], [redacted], [redacted], and [redacted]

20 [redacted] and then [redacted].

21 Q What does your team do, generally speaking?

22 A Generally, we work with health organizations to bring more authoritative

23 health information to YouTube.

24 Q And when did you begin working in that role?

25 A In February of 2020.

1 Q Okay. So do you have a particular focus when you began in February of 2 2020? I can't imagine what it might be.
3 A When I started in February of 2020, we were just building out the health
4 partnerships team internationally. So when I started, obviously, COVID was a focus
5 initially, and they had not yet built out the team, all those people that I just listed. It
6 was just getting underway.
7 Q Okay. And so who do you work with in partnerships? Presumably, you
8 partner with people or organizations?
9 A We primarily work with accredited organizations, like hospitals and schools
10 of medicine; schools of nursing; medical journals; in some cases, creators who are doctors
11 and nurses.
12 Q Do you ever work with government agencies?
13 A Yes.
14 Q Which ones?
15 A We work with local health authorities in a number of different countries,
16 including the U.S.
17 Q What about Federal agencies in the U.S.?
18 A In some cases.
19 Q Which agencies?
20 A I work primarily with the CDC and NIH and the -- and HHS.
21 Q Do you work with the government affairs team at YouTube?
22 A Yes.
23 Q Is it Google or YouTube?
24 A Well, we have a YouTube government affairs team. Yes, I work with them.
25 Q Do you work with [redacted] there?

1 A I have worked with her, yes.
2 Q And how -- let's go back on what sort of topics.
3 A I worked with her -- during COVID, especially one of the things we were 4 trying to do is not overwhelm health authorities all over the world when we were trying 5 to support them. So we would communicate, make sure we streamline our 6 communications. So they were already really overwhelmed in responding. So we 7 were trying to streamline our communications to health authorities in multiple different
8 countries whenever possible.
9 Q I see. Did you deal with misinformation, disinformation, or
10 malinformation?
11 A No. My role is very focused on raising authoritative information. So I
12 don't work on the development or enforcement or misinformation policies.
13 Q Okay. So you don't -- you don't -- your role doesn't require you to have an 14 understanding of those terms or --
15 A No. I mean, I broadly, you know, know what misinformation is. But I
16 work -- I'm very focused on raising authoritative health information.
17 Q Okay. Do you know who at YouTube does deal with misinformation,
18 disinformation, and malinformation?
19 A Our trust and safety teams are responsible for misinformation policies and 20 their enforcement.
21 Q Do you know who in Trust and Safety?
22 A You know, I don't know who works on each specific issue because I'm not 23 involved in that. It's not part of my role.
24 Q It's okay if you don't know specifically, but to the best of your knowledge,
25 who may generally work on those topics?

1 Mr. Bopp. Are you asking, like, who is the head of Trust and Safety or just who
2 works on misinformation and disinformation.
3 BY [redacted]
4 Q Well, we can start with the head, if you know who that is.
5 A The head is [redacted].
6 Q Okay. And do you know other people there who work on Trust and Safety?
7 A I do, but I know they all work on a variety of different issues. So I don't
8 know who works on each specific issue.
9 Q Can you tell me names, to the extent that you can, who work on Trust and
10 Safety?
11 A [redacted] is a lead on the team.
12 Q Can you spell that?
13 A [redacted], I believe.
14 Q Do you know who [redacted] is?
15 A Yes.
16 Q Have you ever worked with him?
17 A Yes, I worked with him primarily during the response to COVID, streamlining 18 our communications with the CDC so we were not overwhelming them with emails and 19 things like that.
20 Q And you mentioned [redacted]. So what exactly does he do?
21 A He's the global head for YouTube Policy. So he's responsible for overseeing 22 the overall YouTube health strategy. And I work closely with him and our international 23 counterparts.
24 Q How do you -- how is the strategy decided, health strategy? Like, who 25 determines what the health strategy is?

1 A Well, overall for YouTube for several years, the strategy for spaces like
2 health has been anchored on four Rs. I don't know if you're familiar with the four Rs.
3 Q No. Can you please tell us?
4 A It's raise, remove, reduce, and reward. And so that's really the strategy
5 that we've had in place for multiple years in spaces like health where authoritative
6 sources are particularly important. So our role is really focused on the raise part. So
7 how do we make sure that we have enough information on a variety of topics from, you
8 know, symptoms of breast cancer to bicuspid aortic valves, making sure that users can get 9 their answers to their questions from authoritative sources.
10 Q What about the remove part, what's that?
11 A That's really owned by Trust and Safety.
12 Q Okay. And that's about removing?
13 A And that's about removing violative content.
14 Q Okay. So did -- you mentioned working a little bit with CDC. Did you work
15 with Carol Crawford at CDC?
16 A Yes, I did.
17 Q And what did you work with her on?
18 A Related to providing support to helping them get the latest information
19 about COVID to users on YouTube. In March 2020, there really wasn't a lot of 20 information. Local health authorities across the world were pretty overwhelmed. So 21 my role was just helping them, you know, supporting them in any way that we can on 22 how to -- you know, making sure they understand how YouTube works and supporting 23 them in getting the latest health information out there.
24 Q So when did you start working with them on COVID?
25 A In March 2020.

1 Q And are you still working with them on COVID or other topics or did that
2 stop?
3 A No. I believe every now and then we'll have an email, but the cadence was 4 much higher during COVID.
5 Q Okay. So did CDC, HHS ask you to promote certain content or run certain
6 content --
7 A No. During the, you know -- as -- I'm trying to recall how, you know, we
8 began. But really our approach, YouTube's approach was to work with health
9 authorities all over the world and help them get their PSAs out and make sure that people
10 could see the latest information. And so we did that in a couple of different ways. We 11 promoted content from authoritative sources, government and nongovernment, across 12 multiple different countries.
13 On the home page of YouTube, we had a COVID, what we call shelf, which is really 14 just a section of the home page of YouTube that we promoted content from with medical 15 journalists, hospitals, government authorities. So we provided that kind of support just 16 to help them give more visibility to the public.
17 Q You mentioned authoritative information. So who decides what's 18 authoritative information?
19 A We -- during COVID, we relied upon our clinical team to make that 20 determination. And then, you know, moving into 2021, one of the things that we 21 worked on was we had experts, the National Academy of Medicine, the National Health
22 Service in the U.K., the World Health Organization, develop principles for how do you
23 define an authoritative source of information. And those principles, which are 24 published on the National Academy of Medicine website and really informed who's 25 eligible to show up in our health shelf and to receive an information panel that provides

1 context to the user that this is an accredited hospital, this is a government health
2 authority, this is an academic medical journal, things like that. So we rely upon the 3 principles.
4 Q You mentioned the clinical teams. So is that like an inhouse or internal
5 team of medical experts at YouTube or Google?
6 A Yes, we have a clinical team at Google. That's doctors from a variety of 7 different -- primarily doctors in other specialties, but yes, they provide that guidance.
8 Q Do you know whose on that team?
9 A There's several different -- there's a lot of people on the team.
10 Q Can you tell me who they are, to the extent you're aware?
11 A Well, they all roll up to [redacted], who runs Google Health.
12 Q And what's her title?
13 A I believe it's chief health officer for Google.
14 Q Do you know what her background is? Is she a doctor?
15 A I believe so, but I'm not familiar with her background. So I don't want to --
16 Q Okay. Were you ever asked to keep an eye out for misinformation
17 narratives on YouTube by anyone in government?
18 A Not to me, no. Not to my knowledge.
19 [[redacted] Exhibit No. 1.
20 Was marked for identification.]
21 BY [redacted]
22 Q This is exhibit 1 for the record. If you can just take a look at this and 23 just -- obviously understandable if don't remember this particular email.
24 A Okay. If you can just give me a minute.
25 Mr. Bopp. Okay.

1 BY [redacted]

2 Q And just for the record, this is an email from Sheila Walsh at HHS to a few

3 people at Google, including you and [redacted], in which she asks, I guess, the

4 recipients to keep an eye out for work. It says she'd appreciate hearing about any

5 vaccine information needs or misinformation narratives or information needs you see

6 emerging on YouTube.

7 First of all, whose -- do you know who Sheila Walsh is?

8 A Yes. She was the person that -- one of the people that we worked with at

9 HHS.

10 Q Do you know what her role at HHS was?

11 A I can't recall her title or role, but she was working on digital content. I can't 12 recall her exact title.

13 Q Do you recall this email now that you've read it?

14 A I recall it. Yes, I recall it now that I read it.

15 Q Did you keep an eye out for misinformation narratives as she asked?

16 A No. I mean, my role is focused on kind of what's referenced below and 17 helping get additional visibility and raising this content. So I don't work on 18 misinformation narratives or the role in misinformation policy development.

19 Q I understand that --

20 A And I don't believe that we responded to that. I think we -- the focus of 21 this email was really on how to raise the visibility of the videos below.

22 Q I see. I'm obvious -- I don't expect you to speculate about somebody else's

23 mindset, but do you know why she asked you that then or do you have any idea?

24 A I don't want to speculate. I'm not sure why she asked that.

25 Q Was there any internal discussion following that request at YouTube?

1 A Not that I can recall.

2 Q Okay. So, essentially, you just didn't work it?

3 A We -- our followup was to the other part of the email about taking a look at

4 the, you know, these trusted messenger -- they started a series of ask the doctor where

5 they were answering questions that were top of minds of people about these different

6 topics. And so we would raise those and help promote those to get additional visibility.

7 So that was what I recall the followup being.

8 Q Okay. Did you ever attend meetings with people at CDC?

9 A Yes. You mean -- yes, virtually.

10 Q Oh, yeah. In any form?

11 A Yeah.

12 Q Do you recall, approximately, when you attended those meetings, the 13 general timeframe?

14 A To the best of my recollection, primarily in 2020, and then some in 2021.

15 Q And do you know -- what were those meetings about?

16 A Really the focus was on for a lot of different partners, not even just health

17 partners, but across a lot of different parts of YouTube will provide sort of a YouTube 101

18 of how YouTube works, because it can be complicated. And, you know, how does

19 YouTube work and best practices for creating content, especially topics that are 20 complicated. Video can be a good way to explain things. And so we would provide 21 sort of best practices on how to use video as a means of information dissemination.

22 So we do kind of a 101 that -- I recall one of the meetings being that, and then a

23 couple of the other meetings about collaborations with creators and experts from 24 different health authorities. And we did one of those with the CDC, as I recall.

25 Q Do you know who else from Google or YouTube attended those meetings?

1 A [redacted] attended, as I recall, a couple of meetings, and I believe
2 [redacted] did as well.
3 Q And who from CDC was usually at the meetings, or who do you recall
4 attending the meetings?
5 A I recall Carol being there and a couple of other people that I'm not totally
6 remembering their names. I don't want to state --
7 Q Do you know if anybody kept notes or records of those meetings?
8 A I don't know. I do not.
9 Q And do you know how often meetings with CDC were held?
10 A I don't have an exact number. I knew that we did a handful, especially in 11 2020 during the pandemic.
12 Q Did you ever attend be on the lookout meetings with CDC?
13 A I don't believe so. That doesn't --
14 Q Okay. Did you meet with other government agencies during that time,
15 same time period, 2020, 2021, or 2022?
16 A We had some meetings with NIH and -- I don't recall if we met with HHS in 17 2020 or 2021 or both, but we met with HHS as well in the same sort of, you know, 18 YouTube 101, providing some of the same sorts of support.
19 Q Okay. So it was essentially the same topic discussed?
20 A Right. We would sort of take them through kind of our -- how YouTube
21 worked, best practices, how to think about the video as a means of information sharing
22 and dissemination.
23 Q Do you know who from the NIH attended the meetings?
24 A The only person I recall meeting was -- from the NIH was Courtney -- I'm 25 trying to remember her last name.

1 Q Billet?

2 A Yes. Thank you.

3 Q Do you recall what she did at NIH?

4 A I don't recall what her -- what her title or role was.

5 Q Okay. And how about from HHS, who attended those meetings?

6 A [redacted] and [redacted] -- I'm forgetting [redacted] last name.

7 Q [redacted]

8 A Yes.

9 Q And do you know what they did at HHS?

10 A Similarly --

11 Mr. Bopp. I'm sorry. Just, [redacted] what they did at HHS.

12 [redacted] I'm sorry. What their roles were.

13 Mr. Bopp. What their roles were?

14 [redacted] Yeah.

15 Mr. Bopp. And with respect to these meetings that we're talking about?

16 [redacted] No. I meant like their titles, generally, or their purpose.

17 Mr. Bopp. Okay.

18 [redacted]. I don't recall what their titles were.

19 BY [redacted]

20 Q Do you recall communicating with Yolanda Byrd from HHS?

21 A That name sounds familiar, but I don't recall the context or what specifically.

22 I believe she was on a couple of the meetings and emails.

23 Q Do you recall speaking with her about YouTube best practices or maybe 24 email communications?

25 A I believe that she -- I don't want to misstate. I believe she was in -- we had

1 a meeting with HHS where we walked through best practices, and I believe she was a part
2 of that, to the best of my memory.
3 Q When you mean -- when you said -- sorry. When you say walking through 4 best practices, you mean YouTube's best practices?
5 A Yes.
6 Q And on what?
7 A Really it's just, you know, we have tools available for all creators, all people
8 who upload content to YouTube, and making sure that they know how to use the tools,
9 and walking through formats that can be effective on YouTube and, you know, also how
10 to optimize your content. Things like your title and thumbnail and a description that's 11 useful and helpful. Those kinds of things are really helpful in terms of the discovery of 12 your video.
13 Q I see. And did Yolanda Byrd or anyone else from HHS ever advise YouTube
14 about what its best practices should be or --
15 A No, not to my recollection.
16 Q Okay. Did you ever have contact with White House staff in your role?
17 A I believe so.
18 Q Do you recall communications with Clarke Humphrey at the White House?
19 A Vaguely, yes.
20 Q Okay.
21 [[redacted] Exhibit No. 2.
22 Was marked for identification.]
23 [redacted] Thanks. If you can just take a look.
24 [redacted] Is this marked as an exhibit?
25 [redacted] Yes. Sorry. This is exhibit 2.

1 Mr. Bopp. Very good.

2 BY [redacted]

3 Q Okay. So for the record, these are emails with -- from -- well, between

4 Clarke Humphrey at the White House and [redacted] at YouTube, and you're cc'd on

5 them.

6 Do you recall these exchanges?

7 A Vaguely, I recall, yes.

8 Q Do you know why Clarke Humphrey at the White House was working with

9 YouTube?

10 Mr. Bopp. You're asking why -- you're asking [redacted] if she knows why Clarke

11 Humphrey was reaching out to YouTube or working with YouTube?

12 [redacted] Yeah. Yeah.

13 Mr. Bopp. Okay.

14 [redacted]. I don't -- I'm not familiar with how this discussion started. Just

15 from reading the email, it looks like [redacted] somehow -- I don't want to speculate. I

16 don't know how [redacted] and Clarke were connecting initially.

17 BY [redacted]

18 Q Okay. Did you ever meet with Clarke Humphrey?

19 A I believe that we had a meeting with her after this.

20 Q And do you recall who else was there?

21 A I don't recall. I think -- I remember [redacted] and me meeting with her and

22 talking specifically about creator collaborations that we had done. But I don't

23 remember, you know, the outcome of that or if we -- that's all I can remember.

24 Q Okay. And what are creator collaborations?

25 A We -- with health authorities all over the world, we would work with

1 sometimes paracreators, like suggest -- they were creators who expressed interest in
2 wanting to ask questions from health experts. And so that's really what that was. It
3 was another way of getting the health information out there since health authorities in 4 many cases weren't familiar with, you know, creating video content. So creators would,
5 kind of in a talk show format, have them and ask them questions that were top of mind
6 for them.
7 Q I see. Did you ever have contact with Rob Flaherty from the White House?
8 A Not that I recall.
9 Q How about Andy Slavitt from the White House?
10 A Andy Slavitt, I believe, did collaboration with creators, as I recall. I'm trying 11 to remember. But I don't remember speaking to him directly, as far as I can remember.
12 Q Okay. So you don't remember attending any meetings with him?
13 A I don't know that I can recall.
14 [redacted] I actually think that I don't have any other questions.
15 [redacted] Do you need a break before we --
16 Mr. Bopp. Can we --
17 [redacted] We can go off the record.
18 Mr. Bopp. Yeah, we probably want just a couple of minutes, if that's all right.
19 [redacted] Sure, yeah.
20 [Recess.]
21 [redacted] We can go back on the record, please. It is 10:45.
22 EXAMINATION
23 BY [redacted]
24 Q Hi.
25 A Hi.

1 Q Thanks for coming today. I just wanted to have a couple quick questions
2 about your background. I understand your title is director of YouTube Health
3 Partnerships. That's correct?
4 A That's correct.
5 Q And currently you work from Cambridge, Massachusetts. Is that right?
6 A That's right.
7 Q So you flew in here today. Is that right?
8 A Yes, I did.
9 Q At your own expense?
10 A At the expense of my company.
11 Q Okay. And you have private counsel here with you today?
12 A Yes, I do.
13 Q And also counsel from Google, correct?
14 A Correct.
15 Q Did you have to pay for your private counsel to be here today?
16 A No.
17 Q Okay. Was it a hardship for you to travel here today?
18 A You know, I have kids, so there's logistics, but --
19 Q Okay. A lot of the information that you provided regarding, for example,
20 the four Rs, that's available online, is it not?
21 A Yes. Every -- it's all published on how YouTube works in a variety of 22 different places.
23 Q Okay. I'm just going to go through a few of the questions, some of that
24 you've stated. But you do not personally engage in any content moderation at Google
25 or YouTube. Is that correct?

1 A Correct. I'm very focused on raising authoritative sources of health
2 information.
3 Q And you don't engage in any fact-checking in your role at Google?
4 A No, that's not my role.
5 Q Okay. And you do personally have no role -- or you do not have any role in 6 determining what health sources are considered authoritative for purposes of raising that
7 information at YouTube. Is that fair to say?
8 A That's fair to say. We rely upon our principles that are -- were written by 9 experts in the space, and those are all published on those -- on their websites. Those 10 are all publicly available as well.
11 Q Okay. And I just want to go through a little bit of that. I have an exhibit
12 that we're going to mark as exhibit 3, please.
13 [[redacted] Exhibit No. 3.
14 Was marked for identification.]
15 BY [redacted]
16 Q Just take a minute to look at it. It's got a couple of pages, so you
17 understand what it is. And let me know when you've had a chance to see it.
18 Have you had a chance to look at the document?
19 A Yes.
20 Q Do you recognize this document?
21 A Yes.
22 Q And what is it?
23 A This is on our Help Center. So this provides anybody who comes -- we 24 have, you know, in a lot of different places what we call a three-dot menu where you can 25 go and read our Help Center about, you know, why you're seeing the sources that you're

1 seeing, and why -- you know, and more information about the products that we have that
2 help users find authoritative health information.
3 Q This document is on YouTube Help, is that correct, that's part of your
4 website?
5 A Yes, that's correct.
6 Q And it's accessible publicly. Is that right?
7 A Yes.
8 Q And on the first page, I think it's under the heading, Information panels
9 providing help source context. Do you see that in the document?
10 A Yes, I do.
11 Q I think it's -- let's see -- the second paragraph there, starting with the words
12 "To identify eligible health sources." Do you see that?
13 A Yes, I do.
14 Q And you testified in the first hour some of the principles that Google uses in 15 order to identify authoritative health information. Do you recall those questions?
16 A Yes.
17 Q And this refers to those principles. Is that right?
18 A Yes, that's correct.
19 Q And this explains, as you implied earlier, that the principles used by Google
20 are derived from a definition provided by a panel of experts from the National Academy
21 of Medicine and reviewed by the American Public Health Association. Is that your 22 understanding?
23 A Yes.
24 Q And so if someone wanted to understand where your authoritative
25 information came from, they could have simply looked at the YouTube website. Is that

1 fair to say?

2 A Yes, that's fair to say.

3 Q Didn't necessarily need to pull you in here and ask you that question

4 personally. Fair to say?

5 Mr. Bopp. I think -- I'm not sure we want to, you know, answer that question.

6 If you don't mind, let's move on.

7 [redacted] Okay.

8 BY [redacted]

9 Q Okay. If you continue on in the document, this is towards the middle of the 10 page. The paragraph, it says, The principles of authoritative health sources. Do you

11 see that?

12 A Yes, I do.

13 Q Right. Almost in the middle. That document explains: The principles of 14 authoritative health sources developed in the respective papers -- referred to 15 above -- maintain that sources should be science-based, objective, transparent, and 16 accountable.

17 Is that your understanding of the sources that Google and YouTube uses in order

18 to identify which information to raise on your website?

19 A Yes. Per the principles, we use these principles to inform who's eligible to 20 show up and relate these experts are defining what authoritative means in the context of 21 health.

22 Q Awesome. Okay. Would you mind just turning to the next page under 23 the heading, Health content shelf?

24 A Yes.

25 Q And there's also underneath that a heading, Health information panels in

1 search. Do you see those two?

2 A Yes, I do.

3 Q And just for clarity, can you explain, if you understand, those are features of

4 YouTube Health. Is that a fair way to say what those are, something that a user would

5 experience when they come to the platform?

6 A Yes, it's one of the ways that the health -- I'll start with the health content

7 shelf first. So for hundreds of conditions, it can be -- where there's 900-plus conditions,

8 a user can enter a health-related topic or question, and you would see some health

9 sources. Then in that health sources shelf, which moves horizontally on mobile and

10 vertical on desktop, those sources, per these principles, are eligible to show up there with 11 information about that topic and anything from ovarian cancer to diabetes.

12 Q The shelf, is that term used specifically for when someone enters

13 information into the search? Like, is there a difference between entering words in a

14 search on YouTube or like looking at a video, if somebody just started to look at a video?

15 Is there a difference between the features on the website?

16 A Yeah, the shelf is a search-based feature. So when you're searching for

17 something, this is just a way for users to more easily, you know, find information from

18 authoritative sources.

19 Q And if you were just watching a video, is there a similar feature?

20 A For these eligible sources, eligible per the principles, there's an information

21 panel, that's what's referenced in the previous page, which would provide information

22 about that source. So an accredited hospital, government health authority, academic 23 medical journal, school of medicine, those kinds of things.

24 Q But those are the curated features where YouTube is actually trying to

25 elevate the authoritative sources to the users' attention. Is that --

1 A Those are the information panels that for these eligible sources that we -- on 2 any video -- even to your example, if you're just watching a video on the watch page that 3 has information panels providing information about the source would be visible to the 4 user.
5 Q Okay. But if a user, say, wanted to find something specific on YouTube,
6 either a video or just typing words in in the search panel, if they were trying to find 7 something, that was, say, not considered an authoritative source but it was just
8 something out there on the internet, they would still be able to access it with a YouTube
9 search. Is that fair to say?
10 Let me use an example. I was just confusing --
11 A Can you repeat the question? I just want to make sure I understand that.
12 Q Yeah. Suppose there's a viral video out there -- I'm making this up 13 completely. I have no idea if this exists, but --
14 A Okay.
15 Q -- a viral video about, you know, vaccines having a magnetic effect or 16 whatever, right. That's not authoritative information, and it certainly wouldn't be 17 something that YouTube would be -- or YouTube Health would be elevating. But let's 18 say it's out there on the internet and somebody wants to see it. Could they go to 19 YouTube and put in a search term or something like that and find it via the YouTube
20 platform?
21 If you can't answer that because my example is too weird, that's fine too.
22 A Yeah. I guess it depends on, you know, the video. And the shelf is just 23 one feature. There's -- you know, I think there's a lot of different videos that will then 24 be visible.
25 Q I guess that's what I'm trying to say, and I'm not being very clear. But the

1 shelf is the feature that has your content that you are trying to raise, that you consider
2 authoritative, right?
3 A Per the principles, yes.
4 Q Per the principles. But there's also other information lower down or 5 whatever --
6 A Yes, yes.
7 Q -- that just comes up that's not curated by YouTube in any way.
8 A It's just algorithmically generated, as all YouTube search -- yeah.
9 Q That's more clear. Thank you.
10 Is there a word for that? I'm sorry for my --
11 A No, no. I mean, I just wanted to make sure I understood the question
12 clearly.
13 Q Yeah. I call them links, but is there a better word, like the things that come
14 up underneath the shelf?
15 A Video search results. You're in --
16 Q Okay. You can set that aside.
17 A Okay.
18 Q I think I'm done with that for the moment.
19 Okay. So you talked about the four Rs that are kind of part of the core mission of 20 Google. Is that correct?
21 A Yes.
22 Q And those are reduce, raise, remove, and reward, right?
23 A Yes. And just to be clear, that's a YouTube --
24 Q Oh, it's just YouTube?
25 A -- YouTube framework.

1 Q Got it. Sorry about that.

2 Okay. And your responsibilities in the health partnership role fall under that

3 raise rubric, right?

4 A Yes.

5 Q And you explained that you in that role, through a variety of relationships

6 and efforts, are trying to provide authoritative health information to people who use the 7 YouTube platform. Is that fair to say?

8 A That's fair to say.

9 Q Okay. And the health subjects that YouTube Health is interested in raising

10 authoritative information about is not just COVID, it's over 900 different medical or health

11 conditions. Is that right?

12 A Yes. Our team, which, again, is international, so there's people in different

13 countries who are working with, you know, hospitals and other authoritative

14 sources -- the purpose of our team is to ensure that we have that information available

15 from authoritative sources on a variety, as you mentioned, a variety of topics: cancer,

16 diabetes, heart disease.

17 Q And why does YouTube seek to do that? What's the purpose for YouTube

18 to elevate health information that's authoritative?

19 A Our -- you know, my entire -- my job and my team's job is to make sure that

20 we have helpful information. And, you know, operating a responsible platform is a core

21 part of our business and is in everything that we put out about YouTube. You know, it's 22 the space that I'm in.

23 Q Okay. The role that you have as director of the health partnerships at 24 YouTube existed -- did it exist before you took that role? Did you have a predecessor?

25 A No. It was new -- it was a new team.

1 Q Okay. When you came on, you said it was February 2020. Is that right?
2 A That's right.
3 Q And who was the President of the United States in 2020, in February?
4 A Donald Trump.
5 Q Okay. And the role that you had during the Trump administration, did it
6 have anything at all to do with who was in the White House or what administration was in 7 control?
8 A No.
9 Q As the administration changed in 2021, did your role change in any way at 10 YouTube?
11 A No.
12 Q Did your interaction with government officials change in any way when the 13 administrations changed?
14 A No.
15 Q When you interacted with U.S. Government agencies like the CDC or HHS, or 16 even a person at the White House, was your interaction with those agencies typical of 17 your interaction with other partners in your role, in the sense that you were trying to 18 raise authoritative health information?
19 A Yes. I mean, all -- again, all over the world we're working with authoritative
20 health organizations, government health authorities, nongovernment health authorities, 21 with the same goal of ensuring that we have information from authoritative sources on 22 variety of different topics.
23 Q So if somebody at the White House had approached you under a Republican 24 administration and asked you to help them raise authoritative health information in 25 something that they were working on, would you have responded in the same way as if

1 that person worked for a Democratic administration?

2 A Yes. You know, my approach has nothing to do with the political anything.

3 It's really about the authoritative sources.

4 Q Okay. You have described some collaborations that you helped to facilitate

5 with U.S. Government agencies and YouTube creators or influencers. Do you recall that 6 description?

7 A Yes.

8 Q And can you just, in your own words, describe, like, what is that project and 9 how does it -- how did it work?

10 A It's common at YouTube for creators to collaborate with, you know, experts

11 or, you know, other creators. And especially during when COVID was happening and

12 there was a lot of uncertainty and need for information, it was the way that we could get

13 the information out to the public. Because creators are content creators, and so that's 14 what they do. It's core to what they do, and they have the infrastructure and the 15 expertise.

16 A lot of health authorities, government and nongovernment health authorities,

17 they're not creating video content every day for YouTube. So it was another way to get 18 the information out there on how to stay safe.

19 Q Okay. So really the purpose was for you to help the agencies get

20 authoritative information, once again, to YouTube users in a way that's popular and 21 well-consumed by YouTube platform users?

22 A Correct.

23 Q Okay. And then sometimes in your relationship with these government

24 agencies, they would ask you for advice on how to create a optimized video product. Is

25 that fair to say?

1 A Yes. Many of the partners that we work with are looking for best practices,
2 how to make -- you know, especially if you need to make a video quickly in a time of 3 crisis, like, what are the best ways to do that, best practices around video creation.
4 That's really what we do.
5 Q And because you have that knowledge as a YouTube executive, you were 6 just trying to help them create something that would be popular on YouTube and easy for 7 people to find. Is that fair to say?
8 A Easy for people to find and, you know, easily understood in layman's terms
9 kind of the top of mind questions that laypeople have about what was happening.
10 Q Okay. And at any point when you were doing these collaborations with 11 government agencies, was the government agency coercing YouTube in any way to 12 participate in those relationships?
13 A No.
14 Q Would you say it was voluntary on the part of YouTube and the government?
15 A Yes. This was our approach across the world was to help health authorities
16 get the information out there.
17 Q And that's because YouTube on its own has identified that mission as 18 something that's important to the corporate mission of Google and YouTube?
19 A Yes, that's a top priority.
20 Q Okay. And there were times, it appeared, that you interacted more with 21 NIH and the other government agencies, unless, like, the cadence changed over time.
22 How would you explain that change of interaction or cadence over, say, from 2020 to 23 2022?
24 A I think just as the -- you know, as the pandemic evolved initially in 2020, 25 there was, you know, an emergent need for information and, you know, a lot of uncertainty. So, you know, with health authorities in a lot of different countries, I think the cadence was really because of that emergency phase, and then, you know, moved out of the emergency phase to this ongoing mission of raising authoritative health information.

Q So you were responding to the pandemic itself and the changes that were happening?

A Correct.

Q Okay. Did any government, U.S. Government agency ever make any demands of you at YouTube in your role at YouTube in terms of, say, like insisting that you prominently display some information from them or anything of that sort?

A No. No.

[redacted] We don't have any further questions. We can go off the record.

[Discussion off the record.]

[redacted] We can go back on the record.

BY [redacted]

Q Did you work with any individuals on the inhouse -- Google's inhouse clinical team aside from [redacted]?

A Yes.

Q Can you tell us who? Do you know the names?

A [redacted] and [redacted], and others, but primarily those two.

Q And what was the nature of that work?

A Providing guidance on authoritative sources.

Q So were those the people who decided what authoritative sources were?

A Not those two particular people, but just the clinical team in general. They were part of that, yes, provided guidance. Because the principles that we referenced,

1 those were developed in July of 2021. So our -- YouTube was relying on the clinical 2 team to provide that guidance prior to that in terms of what an authoritative source was.
3 Q And those guidelines were developed by Trust and Safety. Is that correct?
4 A The principles that we rely upon for one authoritative source were
5 developed by third parties. Those are the ones that the National Academy of Medicine
6 and others that are published -- public principles that are published that define what an 7 authoritative source was. And those were published in July 2021, the first iteration of
8 that.
9 Q And did you work with any third-party fact checkers to determine
10 authoritative sources?
11 A No, not that I recall.
12 Q And did you work with any individuals on YouTube's trust and safety team on 13 the authoritative information issue?
14 A No. My role is purely on the wayside.
15 Q Okay.
16 [redacted] That's it for me.
17 [redacted] I don't have any questions.
18 Mr. Bopp. All right. Thank you.
19 [Whereupon, at 11:10 a.m., the interview was adjourned.]

2 [redacted] This is a transcribed interview of Brian Rice. Chairman Jordan has
3 requested this interview as part of the committee's investigation of how and the extent
4 to which the executive branch has coerced and colluded with companies and other
5 intermediaries to sensor speech.
6 Would the witness please state your name for the record?
7 Mr. Rice. Brian Rice.
8 [redacted] On behalf of the committee, I want to thank you for appearing here
9 today to answer our questions. The chairman also appreciates your willingness to
10 appear voluntarily.
11 My name is [redacted] and I am with Chairman Jordan's staff. I'll now have 12 everyone else from the committee who is here in the room introduce themselves as well.
13 [redacted] majority staff.
14 [redacted] Chairman Jordan's staff.
15 [redacted] law clerk for the majority.
16 [redacted] law clerk, Chairman Jordan.
17 [redacted] I'm an intern, Chairman Jordan.
18 Mr. Brown. I'm sorry. I couldn't hear your name.
19 [redacted]
20 [redacted] counsel for -- I'm sorry. Go ahead.
21 [redacted] Chairman Jordan's staff.
22 [redacted] counsel for the minority.
23 [redacted] Great. I'd like to now go over the ground rules and guidelines that 24 we will follow during today's interview. Our questioning will proceed in rounds. The 25 majority will ask questions first for 1 hour, and then the minority will have an opportunity

1 to ask questions for an equal period of time, if they choose. We will alternate back and
2 forth until there are no more questions and the interview is over. Typically, we take a
3 short break at the end of each hour, but if you would like to take a break apart from that,
4 please just let us know.
5 As you can see, there is an official court reporter taking down everything we say to
6 make a written record, so we ask that you give verbal responses to all questions. Do
7 you understand?
8 Mr. Rice. Yes.
9 [redacted] So the court reporter can take down a clear record, we will do our best
10 to limit the number of people directing questions at you during any given hour to just
11 those people on the staff whose turn it is. Please try and speak clearly so the court
12 reporter can understand and so the folks down at the end of the table can hear you. It
13 is important that we don't talk over one another or interrupt each other if we can help it,
14 and that goes for everybody present at today's interview.
15 We encourage witnesses who appear before the committee to freely consult with 16 counsel if they so chose. It is my understanding that you are appearing today with 17 counsel. Is that correct?
18 Mr. Rice. Yes.
19 [redacted] Could counsel please state your name for the record?
20 Mr. Brown. Reg Brown, Kirkland and Ellis.
21 Mr. Selassie. Demisse Selassie, Kirkland and Ellis.
22 [redacted] Thank you.
23 We want you to answer our questions in the most complete and truthful manner
24 as possible, so we will take our time. If you have any questions or if you do not
25 understand one of our questions, please just let us know. Our questions will cover a

1 wide range of topics, so if you need clarification at any point, just say so.

2 If you honestly don't know the answer to a question or do not remember, it is best

3 not to guess. Please give us your best recollection, and it is okay to tell us if you learned

4 information from someone else; just indicate how you came to know the information. If

5 there are things you don't know or can't remember, just say so, and please inform us

6 who, to the best of your knowledge, might be able to provide a more complete answer to 7 the question.

8 You should also understand that although this interview is not under oath, that by

9 law you are required to answer questions from Congress truthfully. Do you understand

10 that?

11 Mr. Rice. Yes.

12 [redacted] This also applies to questions posed by congressional staff in an

13 interview. Do you understand this?

14 Mr. Rice. Yes.

15 [redacted] Witnesses that knowingly provide false testimony could be subject to 16 criminal prosecution for perjury or for making false statements under 18 U.S.C. 1001.

17 Do you understand this?

18 Mr. Rice. Yes.

19 [redacted] Is there any reason you are unable to provide truthful answer to

20 today's questions?

21 Mr. Rice. No.

22 [redacted] Finally, I'd like to make a note that the content of what we discuss

23 here today is confidential. We ask that you not speak about what we discuss in this

24 interview with any outside individuals to preserve the integrity of our investigation. For

25 the same reason, the marked exhibits that we will use today will remain with the court

1 reporter so that they can go in the official transcript, and any copies of those exhibits will
2 be returned to us when we wrap up.
3 This is the end of my preamble. Is there anything that my colleagues from the
4 minority would like to add?
5 [redacted] Not at this time. Thank you.
6 [redacted] The clock now reads 10:06. We will start the first hour of
7 questioning.
8 EXAMINATION
9 BY [redacted]
10 Q Mr. Rice, what's your current job title and where do you work right now?
11 A My current job title is vice president for public policy, and I work at Meta.
12 Q And can you give us your educational background, starting with college?
13 A I attended the State University of New York at College of Geneseo for 14 undergraduate.
15 Q What did you study there?
16 A I majored in English and minored in political science.
17 Q And anything subsequent to that?
18 A A number of courses. I didn't -- subsequent to that, but those were my 19 main areas of study.
20 Q And can you give us your employment history after college?
21 A My first position after graduating college was a role with the State Senate
22 Ways and Means Committee in the Commonwealth of Massachusetts.
23 Q And then?
24 A After I spent about 3 years with the committee, and took a position with a
25 consulting firm called Public Consulting Group in Boston, Massachusetts.

1 Q And after that?

2 A After that, I moved to Washington and took a position on the Senate Small

3 Business Committee, United States Senate Small Business Committee.

4 Q And after that?

5 A After that, I continued my role with the Senate. I worked on the Commerce

6 Committee and Finance Committee staff for Senator John Kerry.

7 Q And then after that?

8 A Following my time in the Senate, I took a position with Verizon

9 Communications.

10 Q And then?

11 A And then I spent about 5 years with Verizon, and took a position with 12 Facebook in 2014.

13 Q And is that the same -- have you held the same position ever since or have 14 you changed positions?

15 A Similar positions. It's shifted around a bit. But I've been promoted during 16 my time with Facebook over those 10 years.

17 Q What team are you on or what -- I don't know.

18 A Sure. The U.S. policy team.

19 Q And what does the public policy team do?

20 A The U.S. policy team represents the company in a variety of ways before

21 public policy officials in the United States from State level to Federal level.

22 Q And what do you do in your position? What's your main day-to-day tasks?

23 A Sure. My main scope of responsibility is to represent the company before

24 Congress and before the executive branch.

25 Q Does that mean -- so can you explain a little bit more? You communicate

1 with people from government. Is that accurate?

2 A Yes. That's right.

3 Q On any specific topics?

4 A On any number of topics that are important to the company. You know,

5 they vary depending on, you know, what's before the company and what's before

6 Congress at any given time.

7 Q Typically, do these government officials contact you or the other way

8 around, or how does this work?

9 A It can happen both ways. We advocate before government officials on 10 matters that are important to the company, and government officials come to us and 11 have questions about things that are happening at the company.

12 Q And you -- Meta has a number of -- composed of Instagram, WhatsApp, and 13 Facebook. Is that correct?

14 A Yes. Instagram, WhatsApp, Facebook. Yes.

15 Q Anything else?

16 A Messenger would be another app --

17 Q I see.

18 A -- in the family of apps. Yeah.

19 Q And do you work for all of those or just for Facebook or any in particular?

20 A I work on behalf of the whole company, so anything that falls under the 21 company's scope. So any of those apps.

22 Q And approximately how large is the public policy team?

23 A I would be guessing to give you an answer. The U.S. public policy team has 24 a number of teams that don't advocate directly with policymakers as well.

25 Q Do you -- are you confined to a specific geographical region or do you work all over the world?

A I'm --

Q I mean, not physically, but like the people you're dealing with.

A Yeah. The people I am engaged with most regularly work in Washington for the Federal Government.

Q And who do you report to?

A I report to the head of U.S. policy, Kevin Martin.

Q Can you tell me the name again?

A Kevin Martin.

Q And who does Kevin Martin report to?

A Kevin Martin reports to the head of global policy, Joel Kaplan.

[redacted] I'm sorry. What was the last name?

Mr. Rice. Kaplan.

[redacted] Okay. Thank you.

BY [redacted]

Q And how about Joel, who does he report to?

A Joel reports to our president for public affairs, Nick Clegg.

Q And does Clegg report to Mark Zuckerberg or --

A Yes.

Q And who reports to you?

A I have a number of members in my team who do -- who fulfill, you know, similar functions with the executive branch and the Senate.

Q Approximately how many people is that that report to you?

A The team is approximately, directly reporting to me, five people.

Q And can you give us their names, please?

1 A The -- so the person who helps manage work with the United States Senate
2 is Sydney Paul. The person -- and then there are three individuals who do executive 3 branch outreach as well.
4 Q And who are they?
5 A That would be Sandy Luff, John Branscome, and Sonia Gill.
6 Q And how about in the past, say, since 2019, who's reported to you?
7 A Since 2019? That's the complete list.
8 Q Okay. No one else has reported to you?
9 A I have an executive assistant.
10 Q Okay. What about Carrie Adams, does she report to you?
11 A She does not.
12 Q Okay. How does she -- is her role sort of parallel then or how does that -- 13 A Her role -- yes, it's somewhat parallel. My team and I manage matters that 14 are important to the company with respect to policy engagement, and Carrie's 15 responsibility was focused on sort of management of, you know, plat -- platform usage is 16 the way Members of Congress and policymakers use the platform.
17 Q Does Meta have content moderation policies?
18 A Yes.
19 Q And do you -- are you involved in creating those policies?
20 A No.
21 Q Who is involved in creating those policies?
22 A There is a content policy team that is designated to create and implement
23 those policies.
24 Q Do you have contact with any of them on a regular basis?
25 A I have contact with them, yes.

1 Q Who on that team?

2 A That team reports up through Neil Potts and then to Monika Bickert. I

3 communicate with them -- with those two.

4 Q Potts and Bickert. Does Meta work with other companies or organizations

5 in forming content moderation policies?

6 A I'm not -- I would be -- I'm not familiar with the day-to-day work of that team

7 with respect to other -- their other -- their engagement with other companies.

8 Q Do you know who would know that?

9 A I would think Mr. Potts would be a good source for that information.

10 Q Does your work at Meta involve enforcing content moderation policies?

11 A No.

12 Q Who does that? What team?

13 A That is the same -- it would be the same group.

14 Q Okay. And so same, you deal with Mr. Potts and Ms. Bickert?

15 A Yes.

16 Q Does Meta remove -- let me start that again.

17 How does Meta deal with posts containing so-called misinformation or 18 disinformation? Does it remove the posts, downgrade them, label them, any 19 combination of those things?

20 A Our -- it would be a combination. Our policies are stated publicly. And

21 I'm not the expert in those policies, so it would be a question better framed for a member

22 of that team. But it's a variety -- it's a combination of what you just said.

23 Q Mr. Potts or Ms. Bickert?

24 A Yes.

25 Q Anyone else?

1 A Nope.

2 BY [redacted]

3 Q What are the natures of your interaction with the content policy team like?

4 A Primarily around questions of, you know, if policymakers have questions

5 with respect to how the policies are created or enforced.

6 Q Do they proactively keep you up to date on how policies change?

7 A Not more so than the whole company is kept up to date on those changes.

8 Q So when you are having these discussions about the content policies, is it

9 most frequently because someone from the government has asked you a question and 10 you're taking the question back?

11 A Yes.

12 [redacted] Okay.

13 BY [redacted]

14 Q Do you know what categories of misinformation or disinformation are 15 subject to removal on Meta?

16 A I'm not an expert in those categories.

17 Q Are you aware of any categories that are subject to removal?

18 A I would really be -- I'm not familiar in the details of the policies. I would 19 be -- I would be estimating, at best, here.

20 Q How about health misinformation? Is health misinformation subject to 21 removal?

22 A Not -- no, not as a general rule. But again, I'm not the expert in this area.

23 Q So you've said that you have had contact -- or you have contact with 24 government employees as part of your role. Can you tell us which agencies or offices

25 you work with?

1 A I work with the White House.

2 Q Is that it?

3 [redacted] Hi. I'm [redacted] I'm with the House majority for the Judiciary

4 Committee. Apologies for the interruption.

5 Mr. Brown. I apologize. What was your last name?

6 [redacted] [redacted]

7 Mr. Rice. My responsibility covers the executive branch agencies and the White

8 House.

9 BY [redacted]

10 Q So other agencies as well as the White House, I assume?

11 A Yes.

12 Q Are there any that you have more frequent contact with?

13 A It varies from time to time.

14 Q How about in 2020 to '22, did you have contact with any agencies in 15 particular?

16 A I did have contact with agencies in 2020.

17 Q Which ones?

18 A I would -- I mean, a number of them, given the scope of work of my team.

19 It would have covered, you know, several agencies within the executive branch.

20 Q But which specific ones?

21 A I don't remember all of them off the top of my head.

22 Q Can you tell us which ones you remember, please?

23 A The State Department. Health and Human Services. The White House.

24 Homeland Security.

25 Q Keep going.

1 A That covers the ones that I can remember off the top of my head.

2 Q Okay. And who at the White House?

3 A A number of -- a number of officials.

4 Q Can you tell us who, to the best of your recollection?

5 A In the course of my work, I communicate with a number of different officials.

6 It was 3 years ago, so if there are specific individuals you would be interested in?

7 Q How about Rob Flaherty?

8 A Yes. I communicated with Rob Flaherty.

9 Q How about Andy Slavitt?

10 A Yes.

11 Q How about Clarke Humphrey?

12 A I don't recall.

13 Q And who at the State Department did you communicate with, say -- let's say

14 2020 to 2022?

15 A Again, it was a number of -- it would have been a number of different

16 individuals over the course of those years.

17 Q Do you recall any specific names?

18 A I don't off the top of my head.

19 Q How about HHS?

20 A The same.

21 Q Did you discuss misinformation about COVID vaccines with people in the 22 White House?

23 A I'm sorry. Repeat the question.

24 Q Did you in your capacity at Meta discuss misinformation about COVID

25 vaccines with people in the White House?

1 A Yes.

2 Q And who?

3 A The individuals you referenced earlier.

4 Q How about Dori Salcido?

5 A Not to my recollection.

6 [Rice Exhibit No. 1

7 Was marked for identification.]

8 BY [redacted]

9 Q Okay. This is exhibit 1 for the record. If you can take a look at those.

10 I'm not sure if you've had a chance to read them.

11 A Okay.

12 Q Thank you.

13 If I can draw your attention to 5549 through 50, so the last two pages. Payton

14 Iheme sent an email on February 8 to a number of people at the White House, and you're

15 cc'd.

16 First of all, who is Payton Iheme, if I'm pronouncing her name correctly?

17 A Yes. Payton worked for the company as a member of the U.S. policy team.

18 Q So did you -- you worked with her, I assume?

19 A Yes. I was -- yes.

20 Q And how was your -- what was your relationship with her? I mean, were 21 you her boss, the other way around, colleagues?

22 A No. She was a -- before she left, she was on our team. I managed Payton

23 as well, yes.

24 Q Okay. So if you notice at the end on 5550, Payton signs her email, On

25 Behalf of the Facebook team. Who would she have meant by on behalf of the Facebook

1 team? Who would have been involved in creating and sending this email?

2 A It's really a better question for Payton to ask as the author of the email.

3 Q So you had no input in this email?

4 A I don't recall having input in the email.

5 Q Why was Ms. Iheme reporting Facebook's efforts to the White House in 6 terms of removing misinformation about vaccines, or all of it, frankly?

7 A It's a better question to ask Payton. However, it was an important

8 issue -- the COVID pandemic generally was an issue of great importance to the company

9 and was also an issue that we were engaged with the White House on.

10 Mr. Brown. [redacted] I don't know if you know, but Payton is scheduled to come in 11 for a voluntary interview on June 27th.

12 [redacted] I know.

13 BY [redacted]

14 Q As far as you recall, did anything precede this communication in terms of 15 communications with the White House?

16 A Can you be more specific?

17 Q Well, where did it come from? Did Meta just decide to start

18 reporting -- issuing these reports to the White House? Had the White House solicited

19 them, to the best of your knowledge?

20 A To the best of my knowledge, the White House did not solicit this email.

21 Q Okay. On 5547, another email in which you're cc'd from Payton to the 22 same people in the White House, there's a reference to authoritative information.

23 Mr. Brown. Sorry. Where are you on the page?

24 [redacted] Sorry. 5547, but let me -- it could be the next page. I may have 25 put the wrong number in this. We can talk about that later. We'll come back to that.

1 In that email on 5549, excuse me, there's a reference to expanding Facebook's list
2 of false claims. Who decides what are false claims?
3 Mr. Brown. I'm sorry. Where are you?
4 [redacted] Combatting Vaccine Misinformation, so the last bolded subpane on 5 5549.
6 BY [redacted]
7 Q So why was Facebook expanding its list of false claims -- or its efforts to 8 remove false claims, I should say?
9 A I don't recall this policy change, and it would be a better question to ask a
10 member of the content policy team.
11 Q Okay. Who decides what false claims are?
12 A Again, I'm not part of the process for how those policies are made.
13 Q Okay.
14 [redacted] In your meetings with the White House, do you recall this issue being
15 raised?
16 Mr. Rice. I don't recall.
17 [redacted] What about your meetings with any of the agencies?
18 Mr. Rice. No. Again, I don't recall this issue being raised.
19 BY [redacted]
20 Q So on 5547, Payton's email on February 9, under Good evening Rob, the first 21 sentence: We have provided responses to your initial questions with input from the 22 various teams.
23 What are the various teams that would have provided input?
24 A Again, this is a question for Payton in terms of what she would have been 25 referencing.

1 Q Do you know why you were cc'd on this?

2 A Payton -- you know, Payton reported to me and likely cc'd me as a member

3 of the policy team on this issue.

4 Q But she didn't consult you about the contents?

5 A I don't recall.

6 BY [redacted]

7 Q Did Payton communicate with the White House without you?

8 A I would say not as a matter of practice, but occasionally.

9 Q Who was the primary point of contact at Meta for engagements with the 10 White House?

11 A That would have been me.

12 Q And is there anyone else that had primary responsibility at Meta?

13 A No.

14 Q Okay. So for issues that Rob Flaherty was concerned about, if there was

15 something that he proactively wanted to reach out to Meta to, was it most commonly the 16 case that he would reach out to you?

17 A There would have been others who would have fielded questions from Rob

18 from time to time.

19 Q Okay. And who are those others?

20 A Carrie Adams would have been one.

21 Q Anybody else?

22 A Not to my knowledge.

23 Q Do you recall in the initial days of the administration --

24 A I'm sorry?

25 Q Do you recall in the initial days of the administration what issues from the

1 White House were being raised to you?

2 A I do remember that COVID was a primary focus for them, for the White

3 House.

4 Q And what about COVID in particular?

5 A I recall vaccines, you know, the need to get good information to people

6 about vaccines being a point of discussion.

7 Q Okay. And in addition to the need to get good information about vaccines,

8 do you recall if they raised concerns about misinformation regarding vaccines?

9 A They -- yes, they -- yes.

10 Q And do you recall how soon in the administration these issues were raised?

11 A I don't really recall.

12 Q Do you remember the frequency in which these issues were raised?

13 A No, I don't remember frequency.

14 Q Among the various issues that the White House is raising with you in the first

15 few months of the administration, do you recall if COVID was the most frequent issue,

16 one of the top issues?

17 A I would be guessing if I told you it was the most frequent issue, but it was an 18 issue that they raised.

19 Q What other issues do you recall being raised at a similar rate?

20 A I don't recall other issues off the top of my head that were raised at a similar 21 rate.

22 BY [redacted]

23 Q On the next email, so Payton's email from February 11, she begins: Hi Rob,

24 Quickly following up to see when you would like to have a meeting arranged to speak to 25 our misinformation team reps about the latest updates.

1 Who are the misinformation team reps?

2 A That team, again, would have reported up through Neil Potts.

3 Q Okay. And did this meeting take place, as far as you know?

4 A I don't recall.

5 Q Okay.

6 [redacted] In your interactions with Mr. Potts' team, when you were being

7 briefed on either changes to Facebook's policies or, you know, what the policies are, who

8 is doing the briefing from that team with you?

9 Mr. Rice. Often Mr. Potts. I don't recall specific briefings that were done by

10 other --

11 [redacted] Okay. And when you had contacts with the White House, what 12 forms of communication did those interactions take?

13 Mr. Rice. There were phone calls, and we communicated by email.

14 [redacted] Okay.

15 [redacted] Just one second.

16 [redacted] You done with these?

17 [redacted] Oh, yeah, yeah. We're done with these.

18 [redacted] We can take these back.

19 BY [redacted]

20 Q Mr. Rice, just one clarification question going back earlier. You mentioned

21 there were five people who reported to you. And you said Sydney who handled

22 engagements with the Senate, three individuals who handled the executive branch. Is 23 Payton the fifth individual?

24 A No. I was considering in the current time.

25 Q Okay. So there was six with Payton?

1 A Several of those members of the team were not with the company yet when
2 Payton was with the company. But Payton was a member of the team, yes, before she
3 left.
4 Q Okay. So if there's Sydney, three with the executive branch, who is the 5 fifth that you had in mind?
6 A An executive assistant.
7 Q Oh, okay. Thank you.
8 [redacted] Introducing exhibit 2 for the record.
9 [Rice Exhibit No. 2
10 Was marked for identification.]
11 BY [redacted]
12 Q If you could take a look at these. I think I'm actually just going to ask about 13 3894, so if you prefer to not read all of them, that's okay. Specifically the email from 14 Rob Flaherty on February 19.
15 If I can draw your attention to 3894, Rob Flaherty's email on February 19. He 16 writes to a number of people at the White House, Clarke Humphreys, Courtney Rowe,
17 and then cc's you and other people at Facebook, saying: Agree we should chat about 18 this and what other initiatives you guys are cooking on, as well as a convo on mis and dis.
19 Did you have a meeting about -- presumably meaning misinformation and 20 disinformation -- did that meeting take place?
21 A I don't recall.
22 Q Okay. Did you ever have meetings with him about misinformation or 23 disinformation?
24 A Yes.
25 Q Do you -- can you tell us when, to the best of your knowledge,

1 approximately?

2 A I really can't give you dates of those meetings.

3 Q Okay.

4 BY [redacted]

5 Q Do you recall if that meeting took place over the phone or videoconference?

6 A I don't recall -- I don't recall.

7 Q Do you recall who attended the meeting?

8 A Again, I don't recall a specific meeting with respect to this email.

9 Q Sure. Not -- for the meeting that you're referencing that -- you have a

10 recollection at some point meeting with Rob Flaherty?

11 A Yes.

12 Q Okay. That meeting that you have a recollection for, whether it's this one

13 or not, do you recall who else attended that meeting?

14 A It would have been -- I recall a meeting with Neil Potts to discuss

15 misinformation --

16 Q So Mr. Potts joined you with Mr. Flaherty?

17 A Correct.

18 Q Do you recall anyone else?

19 A I don't.

20 Q Do you recall if anyone joined Mr. Flaherty from the White House?

21 A I recall others on the call, but can't recall who they would have been. Mr.

22 Flaherty led the discussion.

23 [redacted] Do you know if Carrie Adams was there?

24 Mr. Rice. I don't recall.

25 BY [redacted]

1 Q Do you recall if there was multiple meetings or if this was a one-off meeting?
2 A There was more than one meeting to discuss this topic.
3 Q And by this topic, you mean vaccine misinformation?
4 A Yes.
5 Q You mentioned Mr. Potts attended at least one of the meetings. Do you
6 recall if Mr. Potts attended multiple meetings related to vaccine misinformation at the
7 White House?
8 A I don't recall. I don't recall how many, no.
9 Q Is it part of Mr. Potts' responsibilities on a day-to-day basis to engage with 10 the White House?
11 A No.
12 Q Do you recall why he was asked to join the meeting?
13 A As the expert on our content policies, Mr. Potts would have been the best
14 equipped to explain them.
15 Q And do you recall what, you know, in the lead-up, what led Facebook to have 16 Mr. Potts join the meeting?
17 A I would -- frustration around disagreements over what should be on the 18 platform with respect to COVID vaccine information.
19 Q And by frustration, frustration from whom?
20 A Mr. Flaherty was frustrated with -- there was a difference of opinion.
21 Q And what was the difference of opinion?
22 A Just with respect to what the policies covered and how they were enforced.
23 Q Okay. And what was the difference of opinion with respect to what the 24 policies covered?
25 A Mr. Flaherty thought that they would have -- they should cover more in

1 terms of what content should be removed or acted upon with respect to COVID vaccine
2 information.
3 Q And do you recall what issues Mr. Flaherty thought should be covered by the 4 policies but were not?
5 A I don't really recall specific issues.
6 Q With respect to enforcement, what was the difference in opinion there?
7 A It could have been a number of different things related to pieces of content
8 that were appearing on the platform at the time.
9 Q Was the -- did Mr. Flaherty ever express frustration that Facebook was not 10 more aggressive in its enforcement of its policies?
11 A Can you repeat the question one more time?
12 Q Mr. Flaherty ever express frustration that Facebook was not more aggressive 13 with enforcement of its policies?
14 A Yes.
15 [redacted] How did he express that?
16 Mr. Rice. Through his communicating over email and telephone calls, as I
17 mentioned before.
18 [redacted] Can you give us an example of what sort of thing he would have 19 said on a call to convey frustration?
20 Mr. Rice. I really can't. I can't recall specifics.
21 BY [redacted]
22 Q Do you recall if he ever provided specific examples?
23 A I recall -- I can't recall specific examples.
24 Q Sure. To clarify the question, not that you necessarily remember what 25 these specific examples are, but do you recall interactions with Mr. Flaherty where he

1 would provide specific examples to support his point of view?

2 A Yes.

3 Q Do you recall how frequently he would do that?

4 A No.

5 Q Do you recall if there were multiple specific examples?

6 A I don't recall how many.

7 [redacted] Did he have specific names of people that he considered

8 problematic and wanted to be removed from the platforms?

9 Mr. Rice. I don't recall specific names.

10 [redacted] Do you recall if he had specific names?

11 Mr. Rice. No. No, I don't recall him asking for specific people to be removed.

12 BY [redacted]

13 Q Do you recall when the first time Mr. Potts met with the White House on this

14 issue?

15 A I don't.

16 Q Were there meetings in the -- between you and Mr. Flaherty before you had 17 a meeting with Mr. Potts and Mr. Flaherty on this issue?

18 A Say that one more time.

19 Q Sure. Did you have meetings with Mr. Flaherty before the meeting

20 between you, Mr. Flaherty, and Mr. Potts occurred?

21 A Yes.

22 Q And do you recall how many meetings there were before the meeting with 23 Mr. Potts where issues of vaccine misinformation were raised?

24 A I don't.

25 Q Do you have a ballpark sense?

1 A No.

2 Q Was it more than one?

3 A I don't recall.

4 [redacted] Was Mr. Slavitt usually in these meetings?

5 Mr. Rice. No.

6 [redacted] It was just Mr. Flaherty from the White House?

7 Mr. Rice. I -- Mr. Slavitt was not ordinarily on calls or emails with us.

8 BY [redacted]

9 Q Do you recall any other meetings that required Mr. Potts to attend with the 10 White House?

11 A I do. Mr. Potts is, again, as the expert on our content policies, would have

12 been called -- would have been representing the company if there were questions about

13 the content policy. So that was -- that's something that would happen, you know, more

14 than once, yes.

15 Q Do you recall how many times in 2021?

16 A I don't.

17 Q Do you recall if there were multiple meetings with Mr. Potts regarding 18 vaccine misinformation with the White House?

19 A I don't recall.

20 Q In advance of that meeting, do you recall if you met with Mr. Potts?

21 A I don't recall a specific meeting, no.

22 Q Do you recall if you met with Monika Bickert?

23 A No.

24 [redacted] Off the record, please.

25 [Discussion off the record.]

1 [redacted] Back on the record, please.

2 [redacted] This is exhibit 3. Did I give it to you guys?

3 Mr. Brown. No. Do you want 2 back?

4 [redacted] Yeah, sure. I think we're done with that.

5 [Rice exhibit No. 3

6 Was marked for identification.]

7 BY [redacted]

8 Q Just let me know when you've had a chance to read it, please. I think the

9 last few pages are actually the same as the first pages, so you may not need to read them

10 again, but --

11 This appears to be an email exchange between a number of people at Facebook

12 and a number of people in the White House, and you were cc'd. If I can draw your

13 attention to 4735 -- sorry, the next page, 4734. Rob Flaherty apparently sent an email

14 on February 21st, 2021, to Carrie Adams, cc'ing other people in the White House and you.

15 And he says: In the interest of making sure everyone's prepared, one of the questions

16 I'll have around this initiative is around algorithmic production.

17 Relatedly, I'm wondering what plans are in the works, if any, to replicate the 18 strategy you deployed around lockdowns -- the "stay at home" stickers/promoted

19 Instagram story. Looking forward.

20 It appears that this is in the context of discussing a meeting that's scheduled for a

21 couple of days later.

22 [Discussion off the record.]

23 [redacted] Oh, promotion. Algorithmic promotion. Excuse me. I

24 misspoke.

25 What initiative around algorithmic production -- sorry -- promotion was there?

1 Mr. Rice. I'm not familiar with what this is referring to.

2 [redacted] Okay. Were there any plans in the works to replicate the strategy

3 deployed around lockdowns in the vaccine context which Mr. Flaherty implies?

4 Mr. Rice. Again, I'm not sure what this is referring to.

5 [redacted] What do you understand algorithmic promotion to --

6 [redacted] Algorithmic.

7 [redacted] What do you understand it to be?

8 Mr. Rice. I really don't understand it to mean -- I don't have a good

9 understanding of what this would mean. Again, it's a better question for a member of 10 the content policy team.

11 BY [redacted]

12 Q So it appears as though a meeting was scheduled for February 23rd, and 13 then Carrie Adams, on 4743, kind of debriefs on the 24th. Did you attend that meeting?

14 A I don't recall.

15 Q Carrie Adams says she's excited for potential with the CDC. What did she 16 mean by that?

17 A I don't know. I don't have a good sense of what she would have been

18 referring to.

19 Q Did Meta decide to work -- sorry.

20 Mr. Brown. [redacted] I just want to say for the record because I don't think you

21 were in the meeting, we did make Carrie Adams available for a voluntary transcribed

22 interview.

23 [redacted] I know. I was here.

24 Mr. Brown. Okay.

25 BY [redacted]

1 Q Did Meta become involved with the CDC to build and scale the vaccines
2 after -- as a result of this meeting?
3 A Not that I recall.
4 Q How about after this meeting?
5 A I don't -- again, I don't recall this meeting or what would have come out of it.
6 Q Okay.
7 BY [redacted]
8 Q You mentioned in an earlier answer that there was frustration expressed
9 from Mr. Flaherty. Do you recall if there's anyone else in the White House that 10 expressed frustration?
11 A I do. Andy Slavitt was also a member of that team that was fighting -- that 12 was designated to fight the pandemic. He was frustrated.
13 Q And was Mr. Slavitt, to your understanding, frustrated with 14 Facebook's -- both the scope and enforcement of Facebook's content moderation
15 polices?
16 A I just recall a -- I recall a similar line of frustration.
17 Q Similar to Mr. Flaherty's?
18 A Similar in terms of the content -- in terms of the scope of his frustration, yes,
19 in terms of what he was frustrated with the company about.
20 Q Do you recall anyone else in the White House sharing these frustrations?
21 A I don't.
22 [redacted] Do you recall them stating that they were conveying frustration
23 from other people in the White House?
24 Mr. Rice. No.
25 [redacted] You don't recall them saying that these complaints were coming

1 from the highest levels of the White House?

2 Mr. Rice. I don't recall that being said.

3 BY [redacted]

4 Q Were you the one to communicate to Mr. Potts that there were frustrations

5 from the White House?

6 A I don't recall how -- whether or how that was communicated to Mr. Potts at 7 the time.

8 Q Would that have been consistent with your responsibilities?

9 A My responsibility was to represent the company before -- to liaise with the 10 White House. So yes, that would have been in line with my responsibilities.

11 Mr. Younes. Did you consult with anyone when the White House was expressing 12 frustration? Did you consult with anyone at Meta about how to deal with that?

13 Mr. Rice. Our job was to relay the information coming from the White House

14 and to the best of our abilities answer questions that we were being asked. There was 15 no consulting on how to deal with it beyond that.

16 [redacted] So you didn't go to, say -- I forgot who your boss was -- but you

17 didn't go to him and say anything like what do we do about this?

18 Mr. Rice. Not to my recollection, no.

19 BY [redacted]

20 Q Do you recall if these frustrations were shared by any personnel at Federal 21 agencies you interacted with?

22 A I don't recall that, no.

23 Q As part of your responsibilities, in addition to communicating messages from

24 the White House, whether it's frustrations or otherwise, do you also provide context to 25 your colleagues at Facebook about what role different government agencies play?

1 A Not as a -- not as a general rule, no. I don't -- I wouldn't have to explain
2 that.
3 Q Okay. Why did Facebook feel the need to have Mr. Potts attend the
4 meeting?
5 Mr. Brown. Can we go off the record for a moment, please?
6 [redacted] Off the record, please.
7 [Discussion off the record.]
8 [redacted] We can go back on the record, please.
9 BY [redacted]
10 Q Do you need me to repeat the question?
11 A Yes, please.
12 Q With respect to the meeting that required Mr. Potts' attendance to speak
13 about vaccine disinformation and specifically frustrations expressed from Mr. Flaherty, 14 Mr. Slavitt, and others in the White House, why did Facebook bring Mr. Potts to that
15 meeting?
16 A To help explain as the subject matter expert how our content policies are 17 designed and executed, enforced.
18 Q Okay.
19 [Rice exhibit No. 4
20 Was marked for identification.]
21 [redacted] This is exhibit 4.
22 Mr. Brown. Give you exhibit 3 back?
23 [redacted] Yeah.
24 BY [redacted]
25 Q Are you all set?

1 A Uh-huh.

2 Q This is an email from Zach Butterworth at the White House to you -- well,

3 presumably to a host of people, looks as though it went out to a lot of private businesses,

4 and it's about a conference call to help defeat COVID.

5 Did you -- this call was scheduled for February 26, 2021, and Andy Slavitt was

6 discussing the important role the business community can play in supporting recovery

7 efforts.

8 Did you join that call?

9 A I don't recall.

10 Q Do you know if anyone from Meta joined that call?

11 A I don't.

12 Q Okay.

13 Mr. Brown. Should we hand this back?

14 [redacted] Yeah.

15 [redacted] This is exhibit 5.

16 [Rice exhibit No. 5

17 Was marked for identification.]

18 BY [redacted]

19 Q Do you recall this email exchange between you and Mr. Flaherty from 20 March 14th and 15th of 2021?

21 A Yes.

22 Q The subject line is, You are hiding the ball. Do you know what Mr. Flaherty

23 meant by that?

24 A I don't recall specifically. He was referencing, I assume, this story that was 25 linked in the email, but I don't recall exactly what the issue was.

1 Q You don't remember what the story was?

2 A I don't without reviewing it, no.

3 Q It looks to me from the content of the emails that it's about -- well, never 4 mind.

5 You offered to have a call -- or you said you called and left a message earlier on 6 March 15 at 3:42 p.m. Did you ever talk to him about this email exchange?

7 A I don't recall a conversation about the email exchange.

8 Q Do you keep notes of calls with White House personnel, so there would be

9 notes of that somewhere?

10 A No, not -- no, not necessarily.

11 Q So there would be no record of whether or not this call took place?

12 A I don't -- not to my knowledge.

13 [redacted] Do you recall who else at Facebook you talked about this issue with?

14 [redacted] Can you be more specific about this issue?

15 [redacted] Sure. The issue of vaccine misinformation and, specifically, The 16 Washington Post article Mr. Flaherty got into?

17 Mr. Rice. I don't recall specific members of the team on this specific issue, no.

18 [redacted] Do you recall if this took place, this email exchange took place before

19 the meeting that Mr. Potts attended with Mr. Flaherty?

20 Mr. Rice. I mean, just -- I think -- I don't remember the date on the previous

21 email, but the dates of the emails, I think, would demonstrate whether that happened or

22 not.

23 [redacted] Mr. Flaherty was accusing Meta of being one of the top drivers of 24 vaccine hesitancy, in his words, and you responded that: We obviously have work to do

25 to gain your trust.

1 Why did Meta need to gain the White House's trust?

2 Mr. Rice. The COVID -- the COVID pandemic and fighting the COVID pandemic
3 was a top priority for the company, was a top priority for the White House. I think we 4 wanted to be, you know -- we had an interest in making sure that we were doing what we 5 could to fight the pandemic.

6 [redacted] Is this email exchange consistent with your understanding of Mr.
7 Flaherty's frustrations that you mentioned earlier?

8 Mr. Rice. Yes.

9 [redacted] When you said -- sorry. When you said you had a lot of work to 10 do to gain that trust or whatever -- We obviously have work to do to gain your 11 trust -- what was the concern if you didn't gain their trust?

12 Mr. Rice. I think personally for me in my job as, again, the primary person
13 corresponding with the White House, I wanted to be a trustworthy advocate on behalf of 14 the company, someone that has credibility and trust with the offices and policymakers
15 that I communicate with. That's something that I do every day in my job, whether it's 16 talking to Mr. Flaherty or anybody else across the government.

17 [redacted] What consequences do you think the company would face if the 18 company failed to address Mr. Flaherty's frustrations and differences of opinion?

19 Mr. Rice. I never thought that we would face consequences as a result of not 20 meeting his expectation.

21 [redacted] Except you said, I'll expect you to hold me accountable, which 22 indicates otherwise.

23 Mr. Rice. Again, in my personal capacity representing the company and my own
24 credibility in that role.

25 BY [redacted]

1 Q You think that you would have been held accountable?

2 A As a not credible -- Mr. Flaherty was representing that I was not telling the

3 truth or that I was somehow hiding the ball, and my own personal credibility as an

4 advocate on behalf of the company was what I was referring to.

5 Q But were Mr. Flaherty's frustrations with you and whether you were

6 accurately portraying the company's policies and enforcement of those policies or was his

7 frustrations with the company's policies and enforcement?

8 A I think he was -- I know he was frustrated with the company's policies in this

9 instance. It appears that he is also frustrated with whether or not I am telling the truth.

10 Q So with respect to his frustration with the policies and enforcement of those

11 policies, what consequences would the company face if it did not address his frustrations

12 and his differences of opinion?

13 A I just never -- that was not a concern of mine.

14 Q If it was not a concern of yours, was it a concern of anyone else at Facebook?

15 A Not to my knowledge.

16 Q If it was not a concern, why bring in Mr. Potts to that meeting?

17 A My job is to make sure that we are responsive and, to the best of our ability,

18 explaining our policies to policymakers.

19 Q Yeah. But what is the motivation for bringing in Mr. Potts if that's not part 20 of his normal responsibilities?

21 A Because Mr. Potts is best suited to explain those policies as the head of that

22 team.

23 BY [redacted]

24 Q What did you intend to do to avoid being held accountable?

25 A I'm sorry. I don't understand the question.

1 Q Well, you said: I'll continue to do it to the best of my ability, and I'll expect
2 you to hold me accountable.
3 What did you continue to do -- plan to continue to do to the best of your ability in 4 order to avoid being held being accountable?
5 A Yeah. I think I say it right in the email, I would provide the information
6 that's on the level, meaning I would tell them the truth.
7 [redacted] Did you recommend that Mr. Potts attend the meeting with Mr.
8 Flaherty?
9 Mr. Rice. I don't recall exactly how Mr. Potts would have been involved, but I
10 would have been involved in the conversation at some level.
11 [redacted] Was there a discussion to bring in Mr. Potts before this level of 12 frustration by Mr. Flaherty was expressed?
13 Mr. Rice. I don't recall.
14 [redacted] Can we go off the record, please?
15 [Recess.]

2 [11:18 a.m.]

3 [redacted] We're back on the record.

4 And, Mr. Rice, I want to thank you on behalf of the minority for agreeing to be 5 here today.

6 EXAMINATION

7 BY [redacted]

8 Q I want to just briefly cover some things that you touched on in the past hour.

9 Just to confirm, you were not involved in creating or changing any of Meta's content

10 moderation policies, correct?

11 A Correct.

12 Q And you personally did not make content moderation decisions?

13 A Correct.

14 Q So it was not your role to determine whether a piece of content violated

15 Meta's community standards?

16 A That's correct.

17 Q And when -- when you were interfacing with the White House and explaining

18 what Meta's policies did and did not cover, were you receiving that information from 19 others at Meta?

20 A Yes.

21 Q So you were -- I believe either you or your counsel used the word "liaise."

22 You were a liaison between the White House and other teams at Meta?

23 A That's right.

24 Q You worked on Meta, or Facebook when it was known as Facebook, Public

25 Policy Team for 9 years?

1 A Yes. Yes, it was for 9 years.

2 Q And did you interface with the White House during the Trump

3 administration?

4 A No, I did not.

5 Q Okay. That was not part of your responsibility then?

6 A No, it was not.

7 Q Was there somebody else who had that responsibility, the responsibility, the 8 position that you hold now with respect to the White House?

9 A Yes.

10 Q And was that person somebody who identified as a Republican, to your

11 knowledge?

12 A Yes.

13 Q And who was that person?

14 A Sandy Luff.

15 Q And, once President Biden took office, your team actually reached out to the 16 White House to establish the relationship with the new President, the new 17 administration, correct?

18 A Correct.

19 Q Now, you stated -- well, actually, I want to quickly --

20 [redacted] I'd like him to take a look at exhibits 1 and 2 again, if we can 21 briefly put them in front of him.

22 BY [redacted]

23 Q If you could take a look at the last page of exhibit 1 -- actually, no, I'm sorry,

24 page 5549.

25 Mr. Brown. Excuse me. Can we get a third copy?

1 Mr. Rice. I think this is 1 and 2.

2 Mr. Brown. So we need two more copies of --

3 Mr. Rice. Okay.

4 [redacted] And my questions will be very, very brief and general about these.

5 Mr. Rice. Can you repeat --

6 Mr. Brown. Let's just wait. Let's wait until we have the documents.

7 [redacted] Thank you very much.

8 Now, you stated earlier that communication --

9 Mr. Brown. Sorry. Could we have a minute just to review it?

10 [redacted] Oh, of course. I'm sorry.

11 Mr. Brown. Thanks.

12 Which of the documents do you want to start with?

13 [redacted] We'll start with exhibit 1, which is -- starts with Bates 5547.

14 Mr. Brown. Thank you.

15 [redacted] You're welcome.

16 BY [redacted]

17 Q Now, I just -- I want to ask you a question, a general question, and I'll direct 18 your attention to page 5549.

19 You stated earlier that sometimes your team would reach out proactively to the 20 White House, and sometimes the White House would reach out to your team. Is that

21 correct?

22 A Yes.

23 Q On page 5549, that's an example of Ms. Iheme on your team reaching out to 24 the White House to make sure that they saw Facebook's announcement on that day,

25 correct?

1 A That is what it appears to me, yes.

2 Q Okay. And that is, as far as you can tell from this exhibit, the first email on 3 the chain?

4 A Yes.

5 Q And, on exhibit 2, which starts with 3891, turning your attention to page

6 3895, the first email on that chain also appears to be outreach from Ms. Iheme to the 7 White House, correct?

8 A Correct.

9 Q And it's a Facebook -- it's about a Facebook proposal to help mitigate

10 vaccines?

11 A Yes.

12 Q And, again, that was not an email the White House sought. That was an

13 email that Payton initiates, from its face --

14 A That's what it appears to be, yes.

15 Q Okay, thank you.

16 And I'm finished with those exhibits. Actually, I might not be, so hold on to

17 them.

18 Now, you stated earlier that the pandemic was a top priority for the company and

19 that fighting a pandemic was a top priority for the company. Can you explain what you

20 meant by that, and why it was a priority for the company?

21 A I think it was a -- it was a top priority for business in general for all of

22 government, through all of society, and the company felt a responsibility to do its best to

23 combat the pandemic and get us past this as a society.

24 Q And, in addition to this societal concern, this sense of civic responsibility, did

25 Meta have a business interest in fighting the pandemic or making sure that its platforms

1 weren't used to spread misinformation?

2 A The company has a business interest in not spreading misinformation,

3 certainly.

4 Q Can you explain what you mean by that?

5 A The company, you know, wants to be a place, a safe place for users to be

6 able to use the platform.

7 Q And, if it's not a safe space, then would the company expect to use -- to lose

8 users, excuse me?

9 A That would be the expectation. Lose advertisers, lose users.

10 Q Now, is it fair to say -- and I believe you said something along these

11 lines -- that the company wanted to work with the White House to help fight the 12 pandemic?

13 A Yeah, it would be fair -- I believe the way I characterized it was it was a top

14 priority for the White House, and it was a top priority for the company. Those interests

15 aligned.

16 Q And did the White House force Meta to cooperate with its own efforts to 17 fight the pandemic?

18 A No.

19 Q Before President Biden took office, were you involved in Meta's anti-COVID 20 efforts? Or I guess it was Facebook at the time.

21 A I was as a -- yes. As a member of the Public Policy Team, we were all

22 focused on that priority.

23 Q And, in 2020, from the start of the pandemic, was the company interfacing

24 with Federal agencies like Health and Human Services, Centers for Disease Control?

25 A Yes.

1 Q And was the company meeting regularly with those agencies in 2020, if you
2 know?
3 A To the best of my knowledge, there were -- those engagements did happen
4 with the administration, yes.
5 Q Okay.
6 And, if you're aware, did the company have COVID misinformation policies in 7 place in 2020?
8 A I'm not an expert on those policies. My recollection is that, from the start
9 of the pandemic, the company considered how to approach COVID from a content policy
10 perspective.
11 Q And, just for the record, at the start of the pandemic through January 19,
12 2021, Donald Trump was President, correct?
13 A Correct.
14 Q Meta's work -- you work on the U.S. Policy Team?
15 A Yes.
16 Q Do you have information about Meta's work with -- well, you know what,
17 strike that. I'm going to not explore that.
18 You talked about the frustration that certain officials at the White House
19 expressed over what Meta's policies covered and Meta's enforcement of those policies.
20 Did anyone in the White House or any government official coerce you or force you to 21 remove or try to remove a piece of content, an account -- I mean, you -- I'm sorry, Meta,
22 or the company. I'm going to follow your lead and call it the company since it changed
23 names -- from the company's platforms?
24 A No.
25 Q And you were asked earlier about consequences that you expected to face

1 if -- or that Meta expected to face, or the company, if it did not align its policies with what
2 those who were frustrated wanted. Did anyone in the U.S. Government threaten to 3 retaliate if the company did not broaden its policies or enforce them more aggressively as 4 you were asked?
5 A No, not to my awareness.
6 Q And, to your knowledge, did the company change its policies in response to 7 pressure from the U.S. Government?
8 A Not to my knowledge, no.
9 Q And, to your knowledge, did the company enforce its policies, take down any 10 content, make any decisions because of or at the request of or because of pressure from 11 the U.S. Government?
12 A No, not to my knowledge.
13 [redacted] If I could just have one minute.
14 BY [redacted]
15 Q And I just want to ask you -- I believe this is where we left off earlier. When 16 you stated in your email to Mr. Flaherty that you expect to be held accountable, is it fair
17 to say that you meant you expect to be called out if you were not providing accurate
18 information to him about what the company is doing or if he thinks that you're hiding the 19 ball?
20 A Yes. Again, I meant that in terms of my personal responsibility to the 21 company in doing my job.
22 Q And so it was important to you personally to maintain that relationship?
23 A Yes, it was.
24 Q And, when I say "personally," I mean, so that you could --
25 A With respect to my --

1 Q With respect to your job?

2 A Yes.

3 Q Not on a social level or anything like that?

4 A Correct.

5 Q Okay. So that was all about you and your role as an employee for the 6 company?

7 A Yes.

8 Q It was not about keeping the company accountable for its decisions?

9 A That's correct.

10 Q Thank you.

11 [redacted] And that's it for me. We can go off the record while we switch

12 seats.

13 [Recess.]

14 [redacted] We'll go on the record.

15 Just a couple more quick questions about this email.

16 Mr. Brown. I'm sorry. What exhibit number was this?

17 [redacted] This is exhibit 5.

18 [redacted] Five.

19 BY [redacted]

20 Q At the last line of your email on March 15th, on 9563, it says: If interested,

21 I can schedule time to give you more context on how this work is done and why we

22 wouldn't include it in a briefing.

23 Why wouldn't you include it in a briefing?

24 A I don't recall what I was referring to with that statement.

25 Q How about "more context"? What more context?

1 Mr. Brown. Can we take a break?

2 [redacted] Sure.

3 Mr. Brown. We can pause on time.

4 [Discussion off the record.]

5 Mr. Brown. We're ready to go back on.

6 Can you go back to that question?

7 [redacted] Yeah.

8 So you said: I can schedule time to give you more context on how this work is 9 done and why we wouldn't include it in a briefing.

10 So can you give us more context on how this work is done?

11 Mr. Rice. So, in terms of why we wouldn't include it in a briefing, just

12 referencing the language that I used in the email, the work that was being -- that he was

13 referencing was exploratory and not finalized work product, which was the reason we

14 wouldn't have briefed. And, as I said in the email, I was not even aware of it when we 15 did provide him the briefing that he was referencing.

16 [redacted] Okay. We can take this one back.

17 This is exhibit 6.

18 [Rice exhibit No. 6

19 Was marked for identification.]

20 BY [redacted]

21 Q It's actually really only the first page because the rest of the chain we had 22 earlier. So 9776 follows up on that.

23 So, in response to your email that we just discussed previously about gaining the 24 White House's trust back, Andy Slavitt writes: Brian, I appreciate being copied on the 25 note. It would -- excuse me -- be nice to establish trust -- the "be" is missing -- I do feel

1 like, relative to others, interactions with Facebook are not straightforward, and the
2 problems are worse. Like you are trying to meet a minimum hurdle instead of trying to
3 solve the problem, and we have to ask you precise questions, and even then, we get
4 highly scrubbed party line answers. We have urgency and don't sense it from you at all.
5 100 percent of the questions I asked have never been answered and weeks have gone by.
6 Internally we have been considering our options on what to do with it.
7 Now, again, this appears to be in the context of Facebook not removing sufficient
8 posts about vaccine misinformation. That's what The Washington Post article is about.
9 So "internally we have been considering our options on what to do about that,"
10 what did that mean to you?
11 A I didn't really know what it meant to me. It was something that he 12 included in the email, and I didn't interpret it to mean anything.
13 Q So, when the White House says, "we have been considering our options, 14 internally we have been considering our options on what to do about it," that didn't mean
15 anything to you?
16 A I took it at face value. I didn't really interpret it to mean anything specific.
17 Q Well, what options would the White House have?
18 A As far -- again, I was not part of those conversations. No options were 19 related to me. I'm not sure what that would have referred to.
20 Q Okay.
21 BY [redacted]
22 Q Who at Facebook would be in position to understand what options the 23 White House would have at its disposal?
24 A I don't think anyone at the company would have been in that position.
25 Again, it says: Internally we have been considering our options.

1 There are no discussions happening with members of our team on what those 2 options would be.
3 Q Sure, but setting aside whatever specific options Mr. Slavitt has in mind
4 when drafting this email, just regarding the scope, the powers of the White House, who
5 at Facebook would have an understanding of that?
6 A I'm not sure I understand the question.
7 Q So the White House has the opportunity to pursue different initiatives, has 8 options available to it. Who at Facebook would have an understanding?
9 Mr. Brown. Understanding of what? Of what Mr. Slavitt's internal --
10 [redacted] No, just about the high level.
11 Mr. Rice. Of what the White House does?
12 BY [redacted]
13 Q Well, so you receive -- if we understand your position correctly, you
14 communicate to the company what the White House is telling you, right?
15 A Yes.
16 Q Okay. And then there's a line here from the White House saying "we are 17 considering our options," and you said you didn't have an understanding of what options
18 the White House would have available to it.
19 A I think there's a -- Mr. Slavitt is referencing internal discussions at the White 20 House and what actions they might take. I did not -- I don't think anyone in the 21 company was in position to know what the internal discussions would be about.
22 Mr. Brown. [redacted] I apologize, but it looks like some new people have come in 23 the room. Could we identify them?
24 [redacted] [redacted] legal intern, Democratic staff, House Judiciary.
25 [redacted] [redacted] legal intern, House Judiciary, Democratic staff.

1 BY [redacted]

2 Q If you could finish your response.

3 A I was finished. Again, Mr. Slavitt, in his email, is referencing internal

4 discussions that we were not party to about options which we were not discussing with

5 them. We were in no position to interpret that in any way.

6 Q Did Facebook not have an interest in knowing what options the White House

7 was considering?

8 A I mean, we were not considering what those options might be in terms of 9 our response.

10 BY [redacted]

11 Q I mean, Mr. Slavitt goes through a number of reasons why the company is 12 worse than others: You're not trying to solve problems. We got scrubbed party lines.

13 And it then he said -- it says internally we've been considering our options. I

14 mean, it's fair to say that he doesn't seem to be -- he doesn't plan to give you an award

15 when he's talking about considering our options. Is that right? It seems to be 16 negative.

17 A I did not have the impression that he was considering giving us an award, but 18 I did not consider what the options that he would be discussing would be.

19 BY [redacted]

20 Q Did you understand whether any of the options would be negative for the

21 company?

22 A I don't recall considering it.

23 Q You mentioned earlier that there were frustrations expressed by

24 Mr. Flaherty, Mr. Slavitt, that those frustrations led to a meeting -- that those frustrations

25 led to a meeting that Mr. Potts was required to attend. Why have Mr. Potts attend that

1 meeting?

2 A There are two separate issues. The White House, throughout a period of

3 time, was frustrated about our policies and enforcement. Mr. Potts also separately

4 attended a meeting to help explain how our policies are enforced. There wasn't a

5 moment in time where that -- where Mr. Potts came in and met with the team as a result

6 of specific frustrations.

7 Mr. Potts was the head of our Content Policy Team, the team that was designed to

8 implement the policies, and knew most about the policies and was in position to explain

9 those policies to anyone who has questions about them.

10 Mr. Brown. Just to be clear, I don't believe he ever said that Mr. Potts was 11 required to attend a meeting.

12 [redacted] That Facebook decided that Mr. Potts attend the meeting. Not to 13 say he was required.

14 BY [redacted]

15 Q Why not have Mr. Potts attend the meeting before these frustrations have 16 escalated?

17 A Again, they were not in response -- Mr. Potts' attendance at a meeting was 18 not the result of frustration. Mr. Potts' attendance was in response to questions that 19 were being asked about our policies that he was in position to respond to.

20 Q Do you recall who at Facebook you shared this message with, with respect to 21 the White House considering its options?

22 A I don't.

23 Q Who at Facebook would have been an appropriate person to share this 24 message with?

25 A Probably, you know, Mr. Potts, certainly. Kevin Martin might, the head of 1 U.S. policy, essentially.

2 BY [redacted]

3 Q So, when you responded to this email, it looks like the next day, you offered

4 to connect by phone with Mr. Slavitt. Did that conversation take place?

5 A I don't recall.

6 Q Would you have any record of whether such a conversation took place? I

7 mean, kept notes somewhere?

8 A Not that I recall.

9 Q You offered to set up a conversation with our research leads to walk your 10 team through ongoing research and prioritize sharing results as quickly as possible.

11 Did that conversation take place?

12 A I don't recall that -- how -- what meeting I would have been referring to.

13 BY [redacted]

14 Q Do you recall who at Facebook requested that Mr. Potts attend the meeting

15 with Mr. Slavitt and Mr. Flaherty?

16 A No.

17 Q During your -- actually, strike that.

18 In 2021, do you recall having discussions at Facebook with Mr. Potts or others

19 regarding concerns related to public pressure the White House might place on the 20 company?

21 A No.

22 Q You don't recall one way or the other, or it's your testimony those 23 discussions did not occur?

24 A I don't recall. I don't recall having conversations with Mr. Potts about 25 pressure that was being put on the company.

1 Q Is one of the options available to any White House the ability to put public
2 pressure on a company?
3 A That option seems like it's available to anyone with the position to, in public,
4 to apply pressure to anyone. I'm not sure what that -- I'm not sure I can answer that
5 question.
6 Can you repeat the question?
7 Q Sure.
8 Does any White House have the ability to put public pressure on a company?
9 [redacted] Can you explain what that means?
10 Mr. Rice. I'm not sure I understand how to respond to that question.
11 BY [redacted]
12 Q Okay.
13 The President of the United States, the White House have a platform to 14 communicate their positions. Is that correct?
15 A Yes.
16 Q A position that a White House could take is to criticize a company. Is it
17 not?
18 A Yes.
19 Q Do you know whether Mr. Slavitt was referring to that as one of the options
20 the White House was considering?
21 A No, I don't.
22 Mr. Brown. Objection. Asked and answered. You asked him whether he 23 knew what Mr. Slavitt was saying. He told you that he didn't know what he was saying.
24 Mr. Slavitt is a private citizen. You can call him in and ask him for a voluntary 25 interview if you want to know what he thinks.

1 BY [redacted]

2 Q Well, to your understanding, did Mr. Slavitt mean that?

3 A I don't know what Mr. Slavitt was referring to.

4 Q And do you recall asking Mr. Slavitt what he meant?

5 A No.

6 BY [redacted]

7 Q Do you know what Mr. Slavitt's position in the White House was at the time

8 this email was written in March of 2021?

9 A I don't recall the exact title that Mr. Slavitt held at that time.

10 Q Would you say he was fairly high-ranking in the White House?

11 A I know that Mr. Slavitt was responsible for the -- for a scope of work that 12 included COVID response for the White House.

13 Q Do you know if he reported directly to the President?

14 A I don't know that.

15 BY [redacted]

16 Q If you don't know what the options the White House was considering and it

17 wasn't something that was worth following up with, why take the time to engage with 18 Mr. Flaherty, Mr. Slavitt, and why take the time to have Mr. Potts brief them?

19 A In my job as the liaison between the White House and the company, it was in

20 our interest to make sure that the company was understood in terms of the work that we

21 were doing and that we were working toward the objective of helping to end the COVID

22 pandemic.

23 Q And why was it in the company's interest to make sure the company was 24 understood?

25 [redacted] By the White House. Right?

1 [redacted] By any public policy --

2 Mr. Rice. This is -- part of our Public Policy Team is to make sure that, if a story is

3 written by The Washington Post, that it accurately portrays what's happening at the

4 company, and if we're being accused of things that are not accurate, that we go and set

5 the record straight.

6 BY [redacted]

7 Q And what are the consequences if you don't set the record straight?

8 A The credibility of the company is on the line.

9 Q Credibility of the company with respect to the White House?

10 A With respect to any policymaker that would be reading The Washington Post

11 and drawing conclusions from the story.

12 Q But this isn't a public statement. You're engaging directly with the White

13 House.

14 A Yes.

15 Q So is it your testimony then that you're there to protect the company's 16 credibility with respect to the White House?

17 A I think I've explained what my interpretation of my job is, which is to liaise

18 with the public policy officials in the Federal Government, both the executive branch and

19 within the Congress, on matters that are important to the company and to maintain that

20 relationship. That's a role that several people at the company have with respect to 21 other policymakers across the government.

22 Q Wouldn't it help maintain that relationship with the White House if you

23 understood what the White House meant by considering their options?

24 Mr. Brown. Could you repeat the question?

25 [redacted] Sure. Wouldn't it help you maintain the relationship with the White House if you understood what the White House meant by considering their options?

Mr. Rice. Not necessarily, no.

Mr. Brown. We're happy to take a break at this point for lunch if that's okay.

[redacted] We can do one more exhibit.

Mr. Brown. Sure, go for it.

[redacted] This is exhibit 7.

[Rice exhibit No. 7

Was marked for identification.]

Mr. Brown. Can we go off the record?

[redacted] Sure.

2 [12:31 P.M.]

3 [redacted] Can we go back on the record.

4 BY [redacted]

5 Q Back to these, sorry.

6 A Okay.

7 Q On the last page, 9061, you wrote an email to Andrew Slavitt, with Rob

8 Flaherty cc'd, on March 21st. And you started with: Andy, thanks for taking the time

9 to connect on Friday.

10 How did you connect with Andy Slavitt on Friday?

11 A This was a call between Andy Slavitt and Nick Clegg that happened.

12 Q I see. And were you on that call?

13 A I don't recall.

14 Q Do you know what was discussed on the call?

15 A I know from reading this email -- this is the context of my recollection as 16 well -- it was, you know, in response to Mr. Slavitt's previous communications to the 17 company.

18 Q Okay.

19 And point number three: Levers for tackling vaccine hesitancy content.

20 You say: You also asked us about our levers for reducing virality of vaccine

21 hesitancy content. In addition to policies previously discussed, these include the

22 additional changes that were approved late last week and that we'll be implementing

23 over the coming weeks.

24 As you know, in addition to removing vaccine misinformation, we have been

25 focusing on reducing the virality of content discouraging vaccines that does not contain

1 actionable misinformation. This is often-true content, which we allow at the post level
2 because experts have advised us that it is important for people to be able to discuss both 3 their personal experiences and concerns about the vaccine, but it can be framed as 4 sensation, alarmist, or shocking -- or shocking, sorry.
5 We will remove these groups, pages, and accounts when they are 6 disproportionately promoting this sensationalized content. More on this front as we 7 proceed to implement.
8 How was the decision to make these changes made?
9 A I don't recall specifically with respect to this content policy, but that 10 generally the content policy decisions are made by the Content Policy Team.
11 Q So you were conveying information that someone else had given you?
12 A Correct.
13 Q Do you know who conveyed that information to you?
14 A It would have gone up through the chain for Neil Potts' team.
15 Q So did you convey to Neil Potts what -- that there had been a call between 16 Nick and Andy Slavitt?
17 A I don't remember.
18 Q Presumably Mr. Potts would have found that out from someone who was 19 dealing with that, right, dealing with --
20 A It's -- I don't want to presume how he found out. I just can't -- what I can 21 tell you is I don't recall the conversation with Mr. Potts about the call.
22 BY [redacted]
23 Q Early in the first hour you mentioned that the head of U.S. policy was Kevin 24 Martin, who reported to Joel Kaplan, who reported to Nick Clegg.
25 A Yes.

1 Q Is that the same Nick Clegg that you're referring to with this meeting?
2 A Yes.
3 Q Do you recall other meetings with the White House that Nick Clegg
4 attended?
5 A I don't recall meetings other than this one.
6 Q And is this meeting different than the meeting with Mr. Potts and 7 Mr. Flaherty, Mr. Slavitt, that we were referencing in the previous hour?
8 A Yes.
9 Q Do you know which call occurred first?
10 A I don't.
11 Q Do you know what Mr. Clegg's title is at the company?
12 A President for public affairs.
13 BY [redacted]
14 Q Why were these policies changes made, especially the levers for tackling
15 vaccine hesitancy content?
16 A Again, these were decisions that were made by the Content Policy Team, not 17 by me. I don't -- I wouldn't have the expertise to answer that question.
18 Q But these were made following the meeting between Nick Clegg and Andy 19 Slavitt.
20 A I don't know that that's true and -- I don't know that that's true.
21 Q So then why were you reporting up to Andy Slavitt following the meeting?
22 A This was information that was relevant to their discussion about our content
23 policies in this area.
24 Q So, when you say "I wanted to follow up with next steps -- per our 25 discussion, I wanted to follow up with next steps," those were next steps that were

1 implemented in response to -- because it sort of sounds like it.

2 A Not in response.

3 BY [redacted]

4 Q When the Content Policy Team is communicating to you what changes are 5 being made, do they communicate to you why those changes were being made?

6 A No, not necessarily. I mean -- no.

7 Q Ever or?

8 A If there's -- if we have questions or if there's discussion about the rationale,

9 they may, but not as a matter of practice.

10 Q Do you recall in this particular instance whether the reasons were 11 communicated to you?

12 A I don't recall.

13 Q Were you involved in discussions with the team internally about how to 14 revise Facebook's content moderation policies?

15 A Not about how to revise them, no.

16 Q What about how to implement them?

17 A No.

18 Q To your understanding, who at Facebook was part of those conversations?

19 A The Content Policy Team would have been the team that deliberated on how

20 to change the policies.

21 Q And Mr. Clegg, is he above the Content Policy Team? What is his 22 relationship to that team?

23 A Yes. The Content Policy Team reports up eventually to Mr. Clegg's

24 organization.

25 BY [redacted]

1 Q So, as I mentioned earlier, you said: We have been focused on reducing
2 the virality of content discouraging vaccines that does not contain actionable
3 misinformation, often-true content, can be framed as sensation, alarmist, or shocking.
4 We'll remove -- we will remove these groups, pages, and accounts when they were 5 disproportionately promoting this sensationalized content.
6 So that sounds like that's a new step that hadn't been taken before. Is that
7 correct?
8 A I really don't know. I only know what's in front of me in this language. So
9 that's the context of my understanding.
10 Q Did you write the language, or did somebody else write this?
11 A No. I don't recall writing the language.
12 Q So who wrote it?
13 A I don't recall.
14 Q Would it have been someone on the -- Bickert and Potts' team?
15 A I don't recall.
16 BY [redacted]
17 Q How frequently do you interact with Nick Clegg?
18 A Not -- define "frequently." Not very frequently.
19 Q Once a month?
20 A It varies. The answer is it really varies.
21 Q And what are the context of your interactions when you do interact with 22 Nick Clegg?
23 A Around the context of my job. So, if there's a -- if Mr. Clegg has a call with 24 a public official or a question about something happening in the scope of my work, he 25 would reach out, or I could reach out to him.

1 Q And, in instances where it requires -- your role requires interactions with
2 Mr. Clegg, is there a threshold as far as how serious an issue is to raise with Mr. Clegg?
3 A No.
4 Q What sparks -- what is the motivation behind -- what is the reason behind
5 the interactions you do have with Mr. Clegg?
6 Mr. Brown. Just here, when we talked off the record about not intruding on the 7 company's discussions about petitioning the government advocacy, that's constitutionally
8 protected. So I guess I'm curious as to what we're trying to get at here.
9 [redacted] Sure.
10 Mr. Brown. Because a lot of the communications would be protected.
11 [redacted] Mr. Rice is interacting with the White House, and he's representing 12 the position of the company, but he isn't able to say what the reason is for the company's 13 position, and he's pointing to other individuals at Facebook. So it's entirely appropriate
14 to try to understand the nature of his relationship with the relevant folks at Facebook.
15 Mr. Brown. He can answer about the nature of the relationship. Just don't talk
16 about any of your specific advocacy.
17 Mr. Rice. It would -- the threshold was really the audience, the external
18 audience. My role was to represent the company before the White House, before a 19 specific set of policymakers. If Mr. Clegg had work that was happening within that 20 scope of work, I would have engaged with him.
21 BY [redacted]
22 Q But Mr. Clegg, to your understanding, his scope of responsibility is quite 23 broad, other than yours?
24 A He oversees, yeah, the entire Global Policy Team. So, yes.
25 Q And so what would necessitate Mr. Clegg to interact directly with White House personnel?

A On this matter, there was an inquiry from -- on an important issue from someone at the White House who had reached out to Mr. Clegg specifically, and Mr. Clegg was responsive.

Q Do you know who from the White House reached out to Mr. Clegg?

A I believe Andy Slavitt.

Q Reached out directly to Mr. Clegg?

A I believe so, yes.

BY [redacted]

Q On the same thread, Rob Flaherty followed up on your email, on March 22nd. And he says: Awesome, Brian. Similarly to how we're looking out for your game plan on tackling vaccine hesitancy spread on your platform, we'll look out for how you plan to close the gap on equitable access.

What was the game plan for tackling vaccine hesitancy spread on your platform?

A This is another question that would be more appropriately answered by a member of the Content Policy Team.

Q Did you have a discussion subsequent to this email that you implied were going to happen? Could talk tomorrow in the 4 to 5 hour?

A I don't recall -- I don't -- I recall a meeting, yes, along these lines, yes.

Q And who was at that meeting?

A The individuals referenced here attended the meeting.

Q So is that you, Mr. Slavitt, and Mr. Flaherty?

A No.

Q And Nick?

A No.

1 Q Sorry.

2 A No.

3 Q Oh, and Lindsay. Sorry.

4 A This meeting was not -- not Mr. Slavitt and not Mr. Clegg. This would have

5 been a meeting where we introduced Lindsay.

6 Q Right. And who is Lindsay? Is it Lindsay Young (ph)?

7 A Yes.

8 Q Who is she?

9 A She was a member of our Product Team, not our Policy Team. So this is

10 somebody who is close to the work the company was doing around COVID vaccine

11 information sharing.

12 Q I see. What was her job, exactly?

13 A I don't recall exactly what her title was.

14 Q Do you know what she did, like on a day-to-day basis?

15 A She just -- she managed a portfolio of work within the company related to 16 COVID, related to COVID effort.

17 Q To COVID -- sorry, what?

18 A To our efforts around COVID.

19 Q Did that include misinformation?

20 A Not specifically, no. I don't -- she was not part of the misinformation -- or 21 part of the Content Policy Team.

22 Q Okay.

23 Oh, I wanted -- sorry. Going back briefly to the first email that we talked about,

24 the levers for tackling vaccine hesitancy content, can you give an example of often-true

25 content but that could be framed as sensational, alarmist, or shocking that would be

1 removed?

2 A I can't give you an example, no.

3 Q What about people share their own stories of their vaccine injuries?

4 A I would be guessing if I were to tell you that I could give you an example of 5 this.

6 BY [redacted]

7 Q Earlier, when we were discussing that Mr. Flaherty and Mr. Slavitt expressed

8 frustrations about what Facebook's content policies cover and how they were enforced,

9 do you recall if one of those things was often-true content that was alarmist?

10 A I don't recall, no.

11 Q You don't recall one way or the other?

12 A I don't recall that being an area of particular frustration, no.

13 Q Are there any areas that you recall?

14 A No.

15 BY [redacted]

16 Q On 9060, the email we were just talking about from Flaherty to you and

17 Slavitt, Flaherty talks about WhatsApp in the second-to-the-last paragraph: On

18 WhatsApp, I guess I'm confused about how you're measuring reduction of harm. If you

19 can't see the message, I'm genuinely curious. How do you know what kinds of messages

20 you've cut down on? And how -- skipping a sentence. And how effective are you

21 seeing the good information on WhatsApp -- that's a typo -- are you doing cross-platform

22 campaign work to try to reduce people's exposure on WhatsApp?

23 How can you cut down on such messages if you can't see the content?

24 A Yeah, this is a question that was -- that's better responded to by the team

25 that is responsible for that work on WhatsApp.

1 Q So you have no idea?

2 A I would not have been part of the team that is responsible for understanding

3 how to cut down on these messages.

4 Q Because it looks as though that's what you organized a meeting to discuss,

5 this question. So that was not discussed at the meeting?

6 A I don't recall.

7 BY [redacted]

8 Q Understanding this isn't your team's primary responsibility, what is your

9 understanding of the interventions that Facebook was taking with respect to WhatsApp?

10 A I don't have a recollection of the -- of the specific interventions.

11 Q Is the WhatsApp or the team responsible for handling WhatsApp and the 12 other steps Mr. Flaherty is referencing, is that the same Content Policy Team or two 13 separate teams?

14 A The Content Policy Team would have that scope of the work.

15 Q So that would be Mr. Potts and --

16 A Yes.

17 [redacted] This is exhibit 8. You can take a look at these.

18 [Rice exhibit No. 8

19 Was marked for identification.]

20 Mr. Brown. Do you want 7 back?

21 [redacted] Sure.

22 I just have a quick question on this one, actually.

23 There is a reference in this email exchange between you and Rob Flaherty to a 24 white paper. You promised to send it to him. What was the white paper?

25 Mr. Brown. Where is -- what are you looking at?

1 [redacted] Well, the stopping abuse white paper and --

2 Mr. Brown. Where is that referenced?

3 [redacted] Sorry. I have to find that on here. On 8924, white paper is 4 attached in PDF to this email. It's sort of in the middle of the page.

5 Mr. Brown. Yep.

6 Mr. Rice. I don't recall what this would have been referencing?

7 Mr. Brown. Is the issue you don't have this?

8 [redacted] Yeah, we don't have it.

9 Mr. Brown. Oh, I'm happy to follow up and --

10 [redacted] Okay.

11 Mr. Brown. -- get it to you.

12 [redacted] That's fine.

13 Mr. Brown. Is that okay?

14 [redacted] Yeah, that's fine. We can move on.

15 So this will be exhibit 9.

16 [Rice exhibit No. 9

17 Was marked for identification.]

1 [12:55 p.m.]

2 Mr. Brown. Just give me a second here.

3 [redacted] You can -- it's mostly the same. It's just the first two emails as far

4 as out of the chain. So you don't need to read the whole thing again.

5 Mr. Rice. Okay.

6 BY [redacted]

7 Q So on April 9, 2021, Mr. Flaherty wrote to you, and at the end of his email he

8 says: In the electoral context, you tested and deployed an algorithmic shift that

9 promoted quality news and information about the election. This was reported in The 10 New York Times and also readily apparent to anyone with cursory social listening tools.

11 You only did this, however, after an election that you helped increase skepticism in and

12 an insurrection which was plotted, in large part, on your platform. And then you turned

13 it back off. I want some assurances, based in data, that you are not doing the same

14 thing again here.

15 And then you replied: Understood.

16 What did you mean by "understood"?

17 A That I understood what he was communicating to me in the previous email.

18 Q Did that prompt you to take any action, like talking to your superiors or --

19 A No. I don't believe so, but I don't recall.

20 Mr. Brown. [redacted] I mean, are you suggesting that the "understood" is in

21 reference to just the part of this that you read, because you did not read the entire

22 email? You read the last part.

23 [redacted] Fair.

24 Mr. Brown. Just for the record, since it's on video.

25 [redacted] Well, we can clarify since he's here.

1 BY [redacted]

2 Q Did you mean you understood the entire --

3 A I understood what he was communicating to me in the email.

4 Q And what did you understand him to be communicating?

5 A Just what his words state, essentially. I think he was conveying that he

6 was -- that he didn't -- you know, what I understood was that our efforts were not

7 satisfactory to him.

8 Q And what steps did you take as a result of this email?

9 A I don't recall any specific steps that we took as a result of this email.

10 Q Did you talk to anyone at Meta while on this email about it?

11 A I don't recall.

12 Q Would you have any records indicating whether or not you spoke to anybody

13 at Meta about the email?

14 A No, I don't believe so.

15 Q So you didn't speak to anybody on the Neil Potts and Monika Bickert team?

16 A I just don't recall a conversation after this email.

17 Mr. Brown. Done with this?

18 [redacted] Yeah, yeah. This is exhibit 10.

19 [Rice exhibit No. 10

20 Was marked for identification.]

21 Mr. Brown. [redacted] just so the record's clear, I believe you have the white paper,

22 Bates number is 8930 --

23 [redacted] Thank you.

24 Mr. Rice. All right.

25 [redacted] In the first email from Nick Clegg to Andy Slavitt, with you cc'd, Nick

1 Clegg references the knock-on effect. Are you aware of what that is?

2 Mr. Brown. Can I ask, when you say the first, you mean the last?

3 [redacted] Yeah, the last chronologically. The first --

4 Mr. Brown. On the page.

5 [redacted] Yeah.

6 Mr. Rice. I don't know what Nick would have been referring to there.

7 BY [redacted]

8 Q Okay. And did the White House ask for specific steps to be taken about the 9 J&J news, which I presume -- well, do you know what the J&J news was, first of all?

10 A I don't recall what news this was.

11 Q Did the White House ask for specific steps to be taken with respect to that 12 news?

13 A Not to my knowledge.

14 Q Okay. Okay.

15 [Rice exhibit No. 11

16 Was marked for identification.]

17 [redacted] This is exhibit 11.

18 Mr. Brown. You need 10 back?

19 [redacted] Yes, please.

20 Mr. Brown. It's really long. Do you have any idea where you're going to focus?

21 [redacted] Sure, sure. If you don't want to read the whole thing, that's fine.

22 On 9502.

23 Mr. Brown. Okay.

24 [redacted] I'm going to ask about the email that's at the top. So it starts on 25 9501. I don't know if you want to read the whole thing, but --

1 Mr. Rice. Okay.

2 BY [redacted]

3 Q So Mr. Flaherty's email at the top of 9502, the paragraph, "More broadly,"

4 that sentence I'm not so concerned about, but the next

5 one whatever -- sorry -- Moreover, I want to make sure you have eyes on what might be

6 spinning off the back end of this -- that the news about J&J doesn't spin off

7 misinformation. Would be great to get a 24-hour report-back on what behavior you're 8 seeing.

9 Did you provide him with a 24-hour report?

10 A I don't recall providing him one.

11 Q Did anyone else at Meta provide him with a 24-hour report?

12 A Not to my recollection.

13 Q Did you put eyes on misinformation?

14 A I don't recall doing anything different as a result of this email.

15 Q How did you interpret his request to make sure you have eyes on what

16 might be spinning on the back end of this, that the news about J&J doesn't spin off

17 misinformation?

18 A I would be guessing if I told you how I interpreted it. This is not something

19 I recall, an exchange that I recall offhand.

20 Q What would you have done with this exchange and his request?

21 A I would have conveyed it to the appropriate teams dealing with these issues.

22 Q And what team?

23 A The content policy team.

24 Q But you have no recollection of whether you actually did that in this 25 circumstance?

A I don't have a recollection, no.

Q Okay. Turning to 9495, the first email -- well, chronologically the last email, but your email to Rob Flaherty: Hey -- I'm really sorry, I missed this ahead of the 11 o'clock.

The next -- well: We will definitely prioritize for future. And working on both immediate followups -- running down question on Tucker and working on getting you report by end of week.

Is that Tucker Carlson?

A I don't have a recollection of what that referred to.

Q So you don't remember running down the question on Tucker?

A I don't see a question on Tucker in this exchange.

Q Okay. And did a meeting with Flaherty and Slavitt take place? It looks as though one was scheduled for 11 o'clock.

A I don't remember. I recall us trying to change the time of the meeting. I don't recall the meeting itself, if it happened.

Q So you don't know if it happened?

A No.

Q Okay.

[redacted] We can take these back.

This is exhibit 12.

[Rice exhibit No. 12

Was marked for identification.]

[redacted] How are we on time?

Mr. Brown. I think we got three more minutes.

[redacted] Yeah. That's what I have.

1 BY [redacted]

2 Q So this is an email exchange between you and Rob Flaherty on April 14.
3 Flaherty says: The top post about vaccines today is Tucker Carlson saying they don't
4 work. Yesterday was Tomi Lahren saying she won't take one. This is exactly why I 5 want to know what "reduction" actually looks like -- if "reduction" means "pumping our 6 most vaccine-hesitant audience with Tucker Carlson saying it doesn't work," then I'm not 7 sure it's reduction.

8 And then you respond: Thanks -- I saw the same thing when we hung up.
9 Running this down now.

10 What does "running this down now" mean?

11 A Running this down now would mean I'm conferring with the team that 12 would understand what's happening here, the content policy team. And this does 13 seem -- just thinking about the dates of the last exchange, this seems to be probably what 14 I was referring to in the previous exchange as well.

15 Q So what discussion took place after this about Tucker Carlson with the team?

16 A It would have been a -- just looking into -- he asks the question about 17 reduction, what reduction looks like. He was interested in understanding, you know, 18 what reduction -- what a policy around reduction actually translates into if a post can 19 be -- can still be the number one post on the platform. So we would've been trying to 20 understand the context around that.

21 Q So you were trying to understand how somebody's post that, it says, has 22 vaccine-hesitant content and Mr. Flaherty looking into it being number one on the 23 platform?

24 A I don't recall exactly what the team would have been looking into, but there
25 would have been an effort to be responsive to the question.

1 Q Did the team look into taking action against Carlson and Lahren's accounts as
2 a result of this conversation?
3 A No, not to my knowledge.
4 Q What about as a result of the fact that it was number one?
5 A No, not to my knowledge.
6 Q So the accounts were not suspended?
7 A Not to my knowledge.
8 Q Were the posts removed?
9 A Not to my knowledge.
10 [redacted] We're out of time for now.
11 Mr. Jag. Go off the record.
12 [Recess.]
13 [redacted] Back on the record.
14 BY [redacted]
15 Q Mr. Rice, I want to take you back to an exhibit you were asked about a lot
16 before lunch, and that is this email exchange between you, Mr. Flaherty, and Mr. Slavitt
17 starting on March 14. If you look at page 9778, where Mr. Flaherty first emailed you
18 with the subject line, You are hiding the ball, he attached a link to a Washington Post
19 article from March 14, that same day, 2021, about Facebook's vaccine hesitancy with 20 QAnon, correct? That's what the link indicates?
21 A Yes.
22 Q Okay. I'm going to introduce that article. And we are on 13, is that what 23 we're on?
24 [Rice exhibit No. 13
25 Was marked for identification.]

1 Mr. Brown. Do we need to read the whole article?

2 [redacted] Well, I'm going to ask some questions about what it does and it

3 doesn't cover, because I believe it was mischaracterized earlier.

4 Mr. Brown. It might be useful to know whether or not Mr. Rice read the article

5 at the time --

6 Mr. Rice. I would have likely read the article, but don't recall the content. So

7 I'm happy to read it now.

8 [redacted] I'd appreciate that. I think it's important to correct the record.

9 Mr. Rice. Okay. Okay.

10 BY [redacted]

11 Q So this article is about a study that Facebook had commissioned about 12 vaccine hesitancy, correct?

13 A It appears -- the reporting states that, yes.

14 Q And the article does not address, as it was characterized earlier, Facebook's

15 alleged refusal to remove vaccine disinformation?

16 A I'm sorry. What was the question?

17 Q Majority counsel said that the article was about Facebook's refusal to 18 remove vaccine -- I don't remember the term -- dis or misinformation.

19 A Yes.

20 Q Correct?

21 A Yes.

22 Q The article's about a study about what is driving vaccine hesitancy?

23 A That's accurate. Yes.

24 Q And there is not a discussion about Facebook being asked to remove --

25 A That's correct.

1 Q -- particular content?
2 A Yes.
3 Q And in your exchange with Mr. Flaherty and then Mr. Slavitt in exhibit 6, the 4 concern that was expressed to you in these emails was that you had not informed them
5 of the study, correct?
6 A That's correct.
7 Q And nowhere in that exchange does Mr. Flaherty or Mr. Slavitt ask you to 8 have Meta take down any content?
9 A That's correct.
10 Q Okay. And you were asked many questions about what Mr. Slavitt meant
11 when he said, we've been considering our options on what to do about it. I'm not going 12 to ask you to speculate about what he meant, but I am going to ask: Are you aware of 13 the White House actually taking any actions to, quote/unquote, do something about it, 14 whatever it is?
15 A No, I'm not.
16 Q And I believe you stated earlier you were not concerned that there would be 17 consequences as a result of you not informing the White House about that study?
18 A That's correct.
19 Q And on -- I just want to step back a bit. On the issue of vaccine hesitancy, it
20 was the company's goal to encourage as many people in the United States and the world
21 to get vaccinated as possible, correct?
22 A Yes.
23 Q And that was in order to do what the company -- as much as the company
24 could do to help save lives during the pandemic?
25 A Yes, that's correct.

1 Q And was it your understanding that that was a shared goal with the White
2 House?
3 A I believe that was a shared goal, yes.
4 Q Okay. And that discussions about vaccine hesitancy and how to overcome
5 it were in furtherance of that goal to get people who were perhaps hesitant to get 6 vaccinated to convince them or encourage them to get vaccinated?
7 A Yes.
8 Q And I wanted to ask you briefly about exhibit 11. These are not labeled, so
9 this might take me a minute.
10 Actually, you know what, I might save it for later if I need it.
11 [redacted] That's it for now. Thank you. We can go off the record and 12 take a coffee break if you guys like.
13 Mr. Brown. Thank you.
14 [Recess.]
15 [1:48 p.m.]
16 [redacted] This is exhibit 14.
17 [Rice exhibit No. 14
18 Was marked for identification.]
19 Mr. Rice. Okay.
20 BY [redacted]
21 Q So this appears to be an exchange, again, about Tucker Carlson's video on, I
22 guess, the J&J. The -- you responded to Rob Flaherty's complaints on the subject on 23 April 16, the email on 11742: Hey Rob -- understood and sorry for the delay. The team 24 has been heads-down since our conversation to produce the report we discussed on 25 Wednesday afternoon. We are aiming to get you something tonight ahead of the

1 weekend. We want to respond to your questions below as well, but I have been hoping
2 to get this work completed and then to schedule a call to discuss.
3 What was the report that the team was heads down to produce?
4 A There was a report that provided information about the most popular public
5 posts on the platform that demonstrated, you know, what posts were receiving the most 6 views.
7 Q Okay. And was this post that Tuck- -- sorry -- Rob Flaherty was complaining
8 about, was that included in it?
9 A I'm sorry. Could you repeat that?
10 Q Was that considered one of the top posts?
11 A The Tucker Carlson post?
12 Q Yeah.
13 A I believe we said, and in Nick Clegg's email, he noted that it's one of the top
14 100 most viewed vaccine posts.
15 Q Okay. And then you offered to have a call with Mr. Flaherty and maybe Mr.
16 Slavitt, since he's cc'd. Did you have that call?
17 A I don't recall. I don't recall having a call.
18 Q Do you recall discussing the Tucker Carlson issue with them?
19 A Only in the context of what is included here, and we noted that the, you
20 know -- despite their advocating why the Tucker Carlson post should be violative, that it
21 did not violate our policies and that we left it up on the platform.
22 Q Okay. We can take this back.
23 [redacted] This is exhibit 15.
24 [Rice exhibit No. 15
25 Was marked for identification.]

1 Mr. Rice. Okay.

2 Mr. Brown. Can I ask, is this the whole document? Because there's a -- Andy

3 Slavitt wrote something here, and it's not here.

4 [redacted] We certainly didn't redact anything.

5 Mr. Brown. Okay. It might just be the next -- in another produced document.

6 [redacted] Yeah. I don't recall if this exhibit continued, but --

7 Mr. Brown. It looks like that this is not the end of the thread. That's all I was 8 just asking.

9 [redacted] Yeah. To be honest, I don't totally remember, but we certainly 10 didn't like purposefully take something out.

11 BY [redacted]

12 Q So on April 16, 2021, Nick Clegg, with you cc'd, writes to Andy Slavitt: We

13 want to get this to you ahead of the weekend. We believe this is responsive to what

14 you asked for -- namely to provide information on what we are seeing on the platform

15 with respect to vaccine content, as well as interventions we are deploying to counter

16 misinformation. As I mentioned yesterday, our data is lagging and this covers the period

17 April 5th through 11th. I don't yet have a more specific answer on the Tucker Carlson

18 posts -- post. Sorry.

19 This probably goes without saying, but I want to underline that this is not

20 information we normally share. This dataset is not cleanly vetted according to an

21 integrity process that would normally take much longer. But we took your cue the other

22 day that it was important to get this to you quickly even if not polished. We have not

23 made this information public and we hope to continue to be able to share with you and 24 the team under confidence.

25 Did you and Nick Clegg discuss this email before he sent it?

1 A I don't recall discussing it, but it's possible we would have discussed it. I
2 just don't recall a conversation.
3 Q Do you know what he meant by the cue -- your cue -- "We took your cue the 4 other day that it was important to get this to you quickly"?
5 A I understand that to mean we are being responsive to a concern that had
6 been communicated from Mr. Slavitt to Mr. Clegg.
7 Q And Clegg writes about interventions we're deploying to counter
8 misinformation. What were those interventions?
9 A I don't recall the countermeasures that are referenced here.
10 Q When he says, "We took your cue the other day," was that in reference to a
11 meeting that you had with the White House?
12 A I don't have a recollection, and I don't want to speak for Mr. Clegg. He's 13 referring to a conversation or a back and forth with Mr. Slavitt that he had.
14 Q Okay. And then a few days later, you wrote back to Rob Flaherty, it looks
15 like everybody else was removed from that chain: Rob -- sounds like Nick connected 16 with Andy over the weekend. Want to make sure we are running down on our end what 17 they discussed. Let me know if it makes sense to connect quickly today? I was also 18 planning to grab a few minutes to respond to your questions.
19 Did Clegg tell you what happened with the meeting with Andy over the weekend?
20 A I don't have -- I don't recall speaking to Nick about this.
21 Q And you were not at this meeting over the weekend?
22 A I don't remember it.
23 Q Did you end up connecting with Mr. Flaherty as you suggested?
24 A I do not have a recollection of that conversation.
25 Q Do you have any recollection of a conversation on this topic about the

1 Tucker Carlson post with Mr. Flaherty?

2 A No.

3 Q Do you know what the tweet -- so then on the 19th, you wrote: Wanted to

4 make sure you saw this from end of the week. And it's a tweet from someone named

5 Alex Schultz. It looks like the tweet no longer exists when I tried to access it. Do you

6 have any recollection of what that tweet was?

7 A I don't.

8 Q Okay.

9 [redacted] We can take these back. This is exhibit 16.

10 [Rice exhibit No. 16

11 Was marked for identification.]

12 [redacted] We're on 16, right?

13 [redacted] Yeah.

14 Mr. Rice. Okay.

15 BY [redacted]

16 Q Okay. On April 21st -- so this is on 9731, the first page -- Nick Clegg writes

17 to Andy Slavitt. It appears you're cc'd, although -- and this is in an odd format that I'm 18 not entirely sure.

19 Good to speak to you on Sunday -- I understand Brian and Rob had a productive

20 follow-up call today, and I'll get back to you with some further responses.

21 What was the followup that day?

22 A I don't recall what that call would have been.

23 Q Do you recall if it was you and Flaherty only or were there other people

24 there?

25 A I don't recall which call this would have been.

1 Q Would there be any notes or record of what happened on that call?
2 A I don't believe so.
3 Q Okay. On -- a couple of days later, Nick Clegg wrote to Andy Slavitt, with 4 you cc'd, and it says: Andy, just closing the loop on the specific questions you asked
5 below: I asked our data team to dig in to determine whether the post received any type
6 of artifical boost.
7 The rest of that paragraph I'm not concerned about.
8 But that of course does not address your wider question about whether we're 9 drawing the lines re what is removed and/or demoted in the right place. Our teams
10 consult pretty extensively with public health and health and misinfo experts who have 11 varied opinions on the merits of wider removal, but we're looking at options currently 12 and I know Brian is hopeful of receiving any data Rob can share from the researchers you
13 met too. I'll reach out again as/when we have worked up new proposals.
14 I assume Brian is referring to you there?
15 A Yes. I believe so, yes.
16 Q And did Rob share data with you from researchers?
17 A I recall that there was a group of researchers that he had referenced who 18 had shared some information.
19 Q Do you know who those researchers were?
20 A I don't have a -- I don't recall. I believe they were just sharing some talking 21 points that were -- that were, you know, oppositional to the work that we were doing on 22 COVID in terms of our efforts.
23 Q I see. Okay.
24 [redacted] We can take those last exhibits. This is exhibit 17. We're getting
25 there.

1 Mr. Brown. Thanks.

2 [Rice exhibit No. 17

3 Was marked for identification.]

4 BY [redacted]

5 Q So this is an April 23rd, 2021, email from Rob Flaherty to you. It's -- the 6 subject is Research Suggestions. Flaherty says: Here's the crux of their recs. Don't

7 read this as White House endorsement of these suggestions, or also as the upper bound

8 of what our thoughts on this might be. But -- spirit of transparency -- this is circulating

9 around the building and informing thinking.

10 And then he follows with a memo entitled, Facebook COVID-19 Vaccine

11 Misinformation Brief. And my reading of this, this is sort of blaming Facebook for 12 spreading vaccine misinformation. Feel free to disagree with that characterization,

13 but --

14 A That's how I read it as well, yes.

15 Q So how did you interpret his claim that this was -- this was -- he wanted to 16 let you know this was circulating around the building, the White House?

17 A This was what I was referring to as the researchers -- what the researchers

18 had been thinking about, what we referred to in the previous email.

19 Q What did it mean to you that this was circulating around the White House?

20 A I assumed that the groups that are referenced in the document had been

21 conducting meetings across -- not just in the White House, but across, you know, the

22 Federal Government, and with Members of Congress, and with members of the media for 23 that matter. This is circulating broadly.

24 Q And is it fair to say that it looks as though the White House blaming

25 Facebook for vaccine misinformation was not going to be beneficial to Facebook?

A I don't know that that's fair to say. I think this was just being shared with me to provide us with context on what is being said in meetings where we are not present about the issue.

Q Why would Mr. Flaherty have thought you should know what was being said?

A I believe that was responsive to the conversation that we were having on the previous thread around researchers and the meetings that had happened in the White House. I mean, Mr. Flaherty says in the spirit of transparency in his email. I think he was just, again, looking to be -- looking to share what was the other side of the story essentially, that they were hearing.

Q So he just wanted to be nice?

A I --

Mr. Brown. He didn't say that.

Mr. Rice. I don't think he was being nice.

BY [redacted]

Q Okay. What, if anything, did you do with this memo after receiving it?

A I don't recall taking any further action with it. I don't recall doing anything with it.

Q Did anyone at Meta have discussions about it, that you participated in?

A Not that I recall.

Q Did you speak to Flaherty about it after he sent it?

A I don't recall talking to Mr. Flaherty about the memo.

Q Would there be any record of what Meta might have done with this memo?

A Again, I don't recall that we did anything with it, but I really -- we didn't have much -- aware of a record.

1 Q So you didn't forward it or send it to anybody who was higher up?

2 A I don't recall doing that.

3 Mr. Brown. Done with this?

4 [redacted] Yeah, yeah.

5 [redacted] This is exhibit 18.

6 [Rice exhibit No. 18

7 Was marked for identification.]

8 [redacted] I think some of this we've had before. It's like a -- I think you can 9 start on 11720, and read the last.

10 Mr. Rice. Okay.

11 BY [redacted]

12 Q So on May -- sorry -- yeah, May 7, this is on 11717, you wrote to Rob

13 Flaherty. The subject line was forwarding COVID Genomic Sequencing. And you said:

14 Wanted to flag that we are talking to HHS this afternoon about the potential to build a

15 text-based vaccine finder bot on WhatsApp, similar to the one launched last week for 16 SMS. This came through Ben Wakana straight to our WA team.

17 Who's Ben Wakana?

18 A He was a member of the White House staff at the time, I believe.

19 Q So did this mean that he sent this -- I'm a little -- so he sent the --

20 A I believe it refers to a conversation that he had with someone on our team,

21 that I was not a part of and that Rob would not have been a part of.

22 Q And what is a vaccine finder bot on WhatsApp?

23 A I would be -- I'm not an expert in what the tool is. There would be

24 someone who's better on the WhatsApp team in answering that question, but it

25 was -- yeah. I mean, this was a -- it was a tool that we had -- that had been developed to

1 help combat the virus, and we were sharing that it is -- that we were exploring the idea.
2 It was an idea that we were hopeful about.
3 Q The tool combatted the virus itself?
4 A No. To help people find vaccines through WhatsApp.
5 Q I see. Okay. On -- well -- on the day before, on May 6, Flaherty had
6 written to you. And in the, I guess you'd say third paragraph: Won't come as a shock
7 to you that we're particularly interested in your demotion efforts, which I don't think we
8 have a good handle on, and based on the below, it doesn't sound like you do either. Not 9 to sound like a broken record, but how much content is being demoted, and how 10 effective are you at mitigating reach, and how quickly. As I've said, I don't think our 11 position is that you should remove vaccine-hesitant stuff. However, slowing it down
12 seems reasonable. I just can't describe what it means or how you know it's working.
13 And then he asks -- and then skip a little -- Seems like your "dedicated vaccine 14 hesitancy" policy isn't stopping the disinfo dozen -- they're being deemed as not 15 dedicated -- so it feels like that problem likely carries over to groups.
16 Do you know who the disinfo dozen are?
17 A I'm familiar with the characterization disinfo dozen.
18 Q What is it?
19 A They were accounts on the platform that were -- that were seen as 20 spreading an inordinate amount of disinformation on the platform.
21 Q Is current Presidential candidate Robert F. Kennedy part of the 22 disinformation dozen?
23 A My recollection is that he was part of the group, yes.
24 Q So you sort of had a brief exchange with him in the interim about the bot.
25 And then it sounds -- seems -- my read of it is you responded at length to his longer email

1 on the 10th. So that's on 11717. And you told him that: We have strong policies
2 against false claims about COVID and vaccines that we enforce -- and when a page, group,
3 or account repeatedly violates these policies we enforce penalties against them, including
4 removing entities that repeatedly break our rules from our platforms. On at least 11
5 separate occasions, individuals identified by the CCDH have had a presence on Facebook
6 or Instagram permanently removed for violating our COVID-19 or vaccine misinformation
7 policies.
8 What is the CCDH? Is that Center for Countering Digital Hate?
9 A It appears to be, yes.
10 Q And did Meta work with them on a regular basis?
11 A Not to my knowledge.
12 Q So was CCDH just working on this one issue or limited timeframe with Meta?
13 A I'm sorry. What was that?
14 Q Was it -- so -- well, obviously here you're saying that individuals identified by 15 CCDH have had a presence and are on Facebook or Instagram permanently removed for 16 violating our COVID-19 or vaccine misinformation policy. So it sounds like CCDH was 17 telling you to remove accounts?
18 A CCDH, I believe, is telling everyone that these accounts were performing this 19 way and reported publicly on the accounts.
20 Q So Facebook decided to take the recommendations of CCDH?
21 A No, I don't believe we did. I believe the two issues are not correlated.
22 Q Okay. And then you go on to say: We have taken down a number of 23 entities with high follower count since the launch of this policy who are clearly dedicated 24 to promoting borderline content.
25 Which policy are you referring to, the launch of this policy?

1 A I'm sorry. Can you point me to the section?

2 Q Yes. It's the last sort of big paragraph in your email. "Our automated

3 detection" is the beginning. And then the second sentence says: We have taken down

4 a number of entities with high follower count since the launch of this policy who are

5 clearly dedicated to promoting borderline content.

6 So I'm wondering what the launch of -- which policy was launched that you're

7 referring to there.

8 A I can't be totally sure because I don't recall exactly what I was referring to.

9 The paragraph seems to -- the first sentence seems to describe the policy, and the second

10 sentence refers back to the first -- the policy referenced in the first sentence.

11 Q And what is borderline content?

12 A Yeah. It's a question that is better addressed by a member of the content

13 policy team as would have a clearer definition.

14 Q Okay. Why were you telling Rob Flaherty that you were doing this?

15 A Yeah. We were trying to be responsive to the questions that he had asked

16 previously.

17 Q So was this policy changed to accommodate Flaherty or anyone else in the 18 White House's requests or demands?

19 A No. This policy was in place and we were explaining how it

20 was -- explaining its effectiveness, essentially.

21 Q Okay.

1 [2:24 p.m.]

2 [redacted] Can we go back on the record?

3 Mr. Brown. This is exhibit No. 19.

4 [Rice exhibit No. 19

5 Was marked for identification.]

6 BY [redacted]

7 Q So, beginning with the email on 9852 from David Ginsberg to Anita Dunn and

8 recognizing that you weren't -- you're added to the email chain later, David -- do you

9 know who David Ginsberg is?

10 A Yes.

11 Q Who is he?

12 A He is currently the head of communications for the company.

13 Q Is he on a separate team from you, or how do you --

14 A He's on the Communications Team, which is separate from the policy team.

15 Q Okay.

16 And do you know Anita Dunn at the White House?

17 A Yes.

18 Q What does she do?

19 A She's a senior advisor at the White House.

20 Q Did you ever meet her?

21 A I don't believe so.

22 Q Did you ever correspond with her?

23 A I only corresponded to what I see here.

24 Q Apart from this. Apart from this one. It doesn't -- I mean,

25 correspond -- okay, yeah. We can skip that question.

1 So David Ginsberg writes to Anita about a disagreement between the White
2 House and Meta on where the lines should be on misinfo: We have genuinely tried to
3 work with the administration in good faith. Obviously, yesterday things were pretty
4 heated, and I'd love to find a way to get back to pushing together on this.
5 Were you at this -- I presume it's a meeting at which things got heated?
6 A No. I believe this is referencing the President's public comments about the
7 company.
8 Q I see. Okay.
9 When the President made those comments, did you participate in any meetings at 10 Meta about his comments?
11 Mr. Brown. Which comments are you referring to?
12 [redacted] I believe he accused the social media companies of killing people,
13 but --
14 Mr. Brown. Okay.
15 Mr. Rice. I participated in -- yes, I participated. I participated in meetings.
16 BY [redacted]
17 Q And with whom at Meta?
18 A Yes.
19 Q No. With whom? Sorry.
20 A Oh, a variety of members of the policy team and communications teams.
21 Q Can you tell me, to the best of your ability, who specifically?
22 A I know that Nick Clegg was involved in those meetings. I believe David
23 Ginsberg was also part of those meetings.
24 Q And what was discussed at those meetings?
25 A Just the fact that the remarks had been made and how the company should respond.

Q And how should the company respond?

A I believe the response was public and was -- the link in this email may be -- the email at the top of the page may be a link to our public response.

Q Was there concern from Nick Clegg and others about the President's remarks?

A There was concern that the President would make those claims, yes.

Q I'm sorry. What?

A Yes, there was.

Q There was concern that he would do what specifically?

[redacted] I'm sorry?

Mr. Brown. I think he said there was concern that the President made those remarks.

BY [redacted]

Q There was just concern -- was there concern that anything would occur as a result of those remarks or --

A No. No, but they were not remarks that any public company would want to hear about, hear come out of the President's mouth.

Q Were any notes of these meetings taken?

Mr. Brown. If they were, they would be privileged.

[redacted] Well, I can ask the question.

Mr. Brown. Sure, you can.

Mr. Rice. Not to my awareness.

BY [redacted]

Q Do you know when these meetings took place?

1 A In -- they would have been over the next few days after, around the dates of
2 these emails.
3 Q So the President made these remarks, and there were meetings about them,
4 and there was concern about them, but nothing was done?
5 A We issued a public response.
6 Q What was the public response?
7 A It was linked to the email.
8 Q Can you summarize it?
9 Mr. Brown. You have it. The document speaks for itself, and you can print it
10 out.
11 BY [redacted]
12 Q But it was only the public response? There were no internal changes at 13 Facebook or Meta as a result of the President's response?
14 A No. In fact, we leaned heavily on the work we had already done to push 15 back on the response, to push back on the comments.
16 Q So the disinformation dozen were not removed from Meta platforms as a
17 result of the President's remarks?
18 A No.
19 Q On the first page, July 17th email you sent to David Ginsberg, Rob Flaherty,
20 and Anita Dunn, you said: I am really -- along with David, I'm really hoping to close the 21 gap in terms of what's playing out publicly and what we might be able to accomplish
22 working together.
23 How do you close that gap?
24 A I'm not sure that we ever actually did. It was the intention to close the gap
25 on the shared objective of fighting the COVID pandemic.

1 Q You also said you hoped to continue to work to address concerns. How did
2 you continue to work to address concerns?
3 Mr. Brown. I'm sorry. Where are you reading?
4 [redacted] From his July 17, 2021, email, the first real paragraph.
5 Mr. Rice. I think I -- this is just referencing our continued discussions and 6 engagement to educate the Surgeon General's Office and the White House on our efforts.
7 [redacted] Okay.
8 This is exhibit -- where are we?
9 [redacted] Twenty.
10 Mr. Rice. Okay.
11 [redacted] Okay.
12 [Rice exhibit No. 20
13 Was marked for identification.]
14 [redacted] On July 23, 2021, this is on 9171, Nick Clegg wrote to Vivek Murthy,
15 the Surgeon General. You and other people at Facebook are cc'd, in addition to Eric
16 Waldo from HHS.
17 Nick Clegg says -- so this is July 23rd. I believe this is a few days after the 18 Surgeon General's advisory and the President's remarks: We talked about the speed at 19 which we are all having to iterate as the pandemic progresses. I wanted to make sure 20 you saw the steps we took just this past week to address policies on what we are 21 removing with respect to misinformation, as well as steps taken to further address the 22 disinfo dozen. We removed 17 additional pages, groups, and Instagram accounts tied to 23 the disinfo dozen.
24 And he goes on about the -- that topic.
25 So is it still your position that the disinfo dozen was not removed after the White House made those remarks?

Mr. Brown. My understanding -- that's not what you asked. You asked him whether it was removed as a result of the President's statements.

[redacted] Okay, as a result.

Mr. Selassie. You didn't say anything about the timing.

[redacted] Okay. As a result. That's fine.

BY [redacted]

Q Was it as a --

A It was still my understanding and recollection that these accounts were not removed as a result.

Q So it was just a coincidence?

A No. I believe that we were communicating steps that we were taking as the President had made these remarks.

Q So, from that, it would seem to follow that you were taking steps in response to the President's remarks.

A That's not my understanding of what happened.

Q Then help me understand that.

A We were communicating back steps that we had taken as a company to address this group of accounts. It was a group of accounts that had received quite a bit of attention by the media, by concerned organizations over the course of many weeks. The President happened to have said what he said during a time where the company was reviewing these accounts.

I was not part of the process, nor was I a decisionmaker on what happened with these accounts, but that process, as I understand it, was ongoing during this time.

Q So the President made the remark saying that companies were responsible

1 for deaths. The Surgeon General issues this advisory, and then you guys just happened
2 to start reporting your removing of accounts and pages of -- that was just a coincidence?
3 There was no -- no causation?
4 A Not to my knowledge. I believe we were describing actions that were 5 being taken. And, again, you're leaving out the context of what was happening beyond
6 the President's remarks around these accounts.
7 Q Would it be fair to say you have also said that you weren't really responsible
8 for removing it? So somebody else may have greater knowledge of exactly why those 9 accounts were removed?
10 A The Content Policy Team would have been making these decisions.
11 Q So that would be Bickert and Potts?
12 A Yes.
13 Q Okay.
14 Mr. Brown. [redacted] I think we may have produced other documents that might 15 answer your questions in this area. I'm trying to have somebody find those for you right
16 now.
17 [redacted] Okay, sure. I think she has a question.
18 BY MS. JAG:
19 Q Yes, I do have a question regarding that.
20 I guess part of my understanding, though, is that, in some of these exhibits,
21 namely this one in particular as an example, but if it wasn't your decision in removing 22 these particular profiles, do you know or what would be your understanding as to why
23 you would be copied on them?
24 A On? Copied on this --
25 Q On this thread.

1 A -- communication?

2 Q Yes.

3 A In my capacity as the lead point of contact for the administration.

4 Q So there was more of an awareness, or was it -- was there ever any

5 expectation for you to act on any of these communications that you're copied on?

6 A It was more out of awareness that we were -- Nick and I would have been

7 both aware of this communication.

8 BY [redacted]

9 Q You responded it looks -- it appears as though you responded on the same

10 chain to Nick Clegg: Including this week's updated report. Look forward to scheduling

11 our next working session.

12 What working session was that?

13 A This was -- I believe this was after we had the conversation with the Surgeon

14 General's Office, and we had discussed setting up another meeting to continue to try to 15 educate the office on what we were seeing on the platform.

16 Q And do you know when that meeting took place?

17 A No.

18 Q And what was discussed at that meeting?

19 A I don't recall the meeting taking place.

20 Q Did you start having regular working sessions with them?

21 A No.

22 Q Did you schedule another working session?

23 A We worked to schedule additional meetings. We had additional meetings

24 but not regular.

25 Q And what typically happened at those meetings?

1 A These were efforts by the company to help the White House understand
2 what we were seeing on the platform with respect to COVID content.
3 Q And who typically attended these meetings, in addition to you?
4 A The Content Policy Team would have been participating. So Mr. Potts or a
5 designee.
6 Q And who from the Surgeon General's Office?
7 A Mr. Waldo. Eric Waldo, who is referenced in these emails, was our main 8 point of contact during that time.
9 Q Okay.
10 On August 6th -- this is on 9168 -- Eric Waldo of HHS wrote to you, with DJ Patil
11 cc'd. Do you know who DJ Patil is?
12 A He was brought in. He, I believe, was a data scientist. He was brought in 13 by the Surgeon General's Office for our at least one meeting.
14 Q I see.
15 So Eric goes on to say: Hi, Brian. I hope your week has been going well, blah,
16 blah. Also, Brian and Nick, I know on the call with Dr. Murthy he'd mentioned seeing if 17 you were able to send an update of any new, slash, additional steps you are taking with 18 respect to the health information in light of the advisory. We are asking all platforms for 19 this type of update.
20 What other discussion -- what discussion did you have about health information
21 on that call in addition to him asking for updates?
22 A I don't recall another conversation about other health issues. This was the 23 issue that I recall discussing.
24 Q So the only thing discussed on the call was him asking you to send an 25 update, but there was no other discussion at all about misinformation?

1 A This was the call -- I believe this is referring to the call that we did with
2 Mr. -- with the Surgeon General following the advisory where there was a discussion of
3 the advisory generally and steps that the company was taking already to get good
4 information about vaccines to our users.
5 Q And that was -- there was a request for information as well, right, around the 6 same time?
7 A I believe so, yes.
8 Q Did Facebook comply with the request for information?
9 A I don't recall what we sent as a response to this particular question.
10 Q Who at Meta would have that information?
11 A I don't know.
12 Mr. Brown. Happy to look into it.
13 [redacted] Okay. Thank you.
14 Okay. I don't have enough time for the next thing.
15 Ms. Jag. We'll go off the record.
16 [Recess.]
17 [redacted] We can go back on the record.
18 I want to go back to some of the emails that circulated around the Tucker calls and 19 posts that you communicated with the White House about, you and Mr. Clegg.
20 This is exhibit 21.
21 [Rice exhibit No. 20
22 Was marked for identification.]
23 [redacted] And most of this chain was part of previous exhibits, but your 24 response at the top of the exhibit was not included.
25 A Okay.

1 Q Okay, thank you.

2 If you turn first to page 11692, towards the bottom of the page, this is an email

3 from Nick Clegg that was part of an earlier exhibit. And Mr. Clegg told Andy Slavitt:

4 Regardless of popularity, the Tucker Carlson video does not qualify for removal under our

5 policies.

6 Correct?

7 A Correct.

8 Q And then, about a week later, you reiterated that the content does not

9 violate those policies after reviewing it in detail, correct?

10 A That's correct.

11 Q And your explanation for why and your statement that it does not violate

12 those policies, you were, again, conveying what members of the Content Team informed

13 you?

14 A That's correct, yes.

15 Q Now, you mentioned -- you discussed about the video receiving 50 percent

16 demotion. Can you explain what that means?

17 A I am not -- I am not an expert in our content policy -- in our content policies.

18 This 50 percent number is a number that the Content Policy Team could explain more

19 clearly.

20 Q Fair enough.

21 Can you explain to me, to the extent you have one, your understanding of what it

22 means to demote a piece of content?

23 A This means that -- to demote content means that the content receives less

24 distribution on the platform.

25 Q And, when you say it receives less distribution, do you mean it's not

1 highlighted as a recommended post? If you could explain what that means, that would
2 be great. I don't want to put words in your mouth.
3 A Yeah, I'm just not comfortable enough to explain how that policy is actually
4 effectuated.
5 Q But it's your understanding that something that is demoted but not removed 6 is still available?
7 A Yes.
8 Q And so, if I go onto Facebook and I search for that video, I can find it?
9 A Yes.
10 Q So it's not the same, for example, as if a school district decides to ban a 11 book, say, on slavery, and you can't find that book in the library; you have to go outside
12 the school to get it. That's not the situation with Facebook?
13 A If a piece of content is demoted on the platform, it is still able to be found if 14 it's sought out by a user, yes.
15 Q It's just not highlighted by Facebook?
16 A Yes.
17 Q And I think that's it for this exhibit.
18 I now want to ask about several of the previous exhibits. So I might need some 19 help with that. Well, actually, I'm going to -- you might not need them in front of you
20 for me to answer just -- ask some of these questions.
21 Do you recall seeing an exhibit, I believe an email from Rob Flaherty with a report
22 of COVID-19 vaccine misinformation, and you were asked about the phrase "this is 23 circulating around the building and informing thinking"?
24 A Yes.
25 Q Did that statement -- did you take that as a threat?

1 A No.

2 Q This is circulating around the building?

3 A No, I did not.

4 Q Did you take that as coercion?

5 A I did not.

6 Q You understood that just to be Rob Flaherty telling you what the White

7 House's thinking was, correct?

8 A I understood that to be Rob Flaherty telling me that this was part of what

9 was influencing their thinking, yes.

10 Q And, in fact, you preface that remark by saying: Don't read this as the 11 White House endorsement of these suggestions.

12 Correct?

13 A That's correct.

14 Q Now, there was a lot of questioning in the previous hour about the 15 disinformation dozen, as they're known. I want to start by talking about the President's

16 public comments. You were asked about President Biden making comments that social 17 media companies were killing people, correct?

18 A That's correct.

19 Q And that was in July of 2021?

20 A Yes.

21 Q The next day, he walked that back a bit, correct?

22 A I know he walked it back. I was not -- I'm not sure of exactly what the 23 timeline was, but yes.

24 Q And, by walking it back, he clarified that he meant individuals on the social 25 media platforms, not the companies themselves?

A I believe that's correct. I don't remember the exact characterization, but that sounds accurate.

Q And, nevertheless, you mentioned that, after he made the initial statement, that the social media companies were killing people, that the company, your company, decided that it was necessary to issue a public response?

A Correct.

Q And that response was issued by -- or at least it was signed publicly by Guy Rosen, correct?

A Yes.

Q And it was called "Moving Past the Finger Pointing." Does that ring a bell?

A That rings a bell.

Q The finger pointing by the White House and others?

A Yes.

Q And that post is still available on Meta?

A Yes.

Q Now, I want to ask you about exhibit 20. I'll see if I can find it.

Mr. Brown. Sorry. We don't have it.

[redacted] No, no. I'm going to look for it in this general pile in front of us. If you guys have extra copies of it, that would be helpful.

Ms. Jag. 9168 through 9172.

[redacted] Thank you.

Mr. Rice. Okay.

BY [redacted]

Q Okay. If you can look at page 9171. Now, I know that this is an email from Nick Clegg to Vivek Murthy, and I know that you did not write it, but I'm just going

1 to ask you what it says because I believe it was characterized as saying that the
2 disinformation dozen accounts were removed, but what it actually says is that accounts
3 tied to the disinformation dozen were removed, correct?
4 And I'm talking about the paragraph that begins with "we talked about the speed,"
5 a few lines down.
6 A Yes, that's correct.
7 Q And you were asked whether it was a coincidence that those accounts were 8 removed after the government -- after the President's statements.
9 A Yes.
10 Q You don't know when those accounts were removed, do you?
11 A No.
12 Q They may have been removed before the President made a statement.
13 A Yes.
14 Q And you don't know exactly what Mr. Clegg meant, or if you do, you can tell
15 me, by accounts tied to the disinformation dozen?
16 A I don't know. No, I don't have a recollection of what that meant, what that 17 referred to.
18 Q But the primary accounts of those individuals, the accounts under their 19 names are still up on Facebook, correct?
20 A I believe that's correct.
21 Q For example, Representative Kennedy's account is still available?
22 A Yes.
23 [redacted] And that's it for me for now.
24 Mr. Brown. Can we go off the record?
25 [Recess.]

1 [redacted] Can we go back on the record?

2 Mr. Brown. We're ready when you are.

3 [redacted] Okay.

4 BY [redacted]

5 Q You were just asked a couple of questions about demoting content as

6 opposed to removing it. I understand that that's not your specialty, but as far as you

7 know, when a user's content or account is demoted or the contents of the post, does the 8 user know about that? Are they given a warning, or are they in any way alerted to it?

9 A I'm not familiar with our process for alerting users. It's a better question

10 for the Content Policy Team.

11 Q Okay. Thank you.

12 As far as the accounts tied to the disinformation dozen question that we just

13 discussed, what would be the difference between an account tied to the disinformation

14 dozen versus an account belonging to the disinformation dozen?

15 A I don't know exactly what Nick was referring to. They could have been

16 accounts that were linked or connected through -- again, I would be guessing. I

17 shouldn't offer an answer. I would be guessing at that connection.

18 Q Okay.

19 [redacted] Do we have these? I just want to -- I can just read it, I guess.

20 So this email that we just discussed from Nick Clegg to Vivek Murthy with you

21 cc'd --

22 Mr. Brown. I'm sorry. We would want to see it.

23 [redacted] You want the --

24 Mr. Brown. Yes.

25 [redacted] I have one, but it just has writing on it. It was in the last -- I mean, if you don't mind --

[redacted] Here you go.

[redacted] Do you want to take back our copy?

[redacted] Yes. This is -- oh, okay.

[redacted] I'm sorry, which exhibit number?

Ms. Jag. I think it's exhibit 20.

[redacted] 9171.

BY [redacted]

Q If you can look at 9171, that email we discussed earlier from Nick Clegg to Vivek Murthy, with you cc'd: We talked about the speed. Steps taken to further address the disinformation dozen. We removed 17 additional pages, groups, and Instagram accounts tied to the disinformation dozen. So a total of 39 profiles, pages, groups, and IG accounts deleted thus far, resulting in every member of the disinfo dozen having had at least one such entity removed.

So would that last clause indicate that every member of the disinformation dozen themselves had one such entity removed, had their accounts removed?

A I don't believe so, but, I'm not -- again, I'm not an expert on what Nick was conveying here.

Q Well, it says every member of the disinfo dozen having had at least -- so that would indicate to me that those people had one such entity. And then --

A I'm not sure what entity --

Mr. Brown. There's no question.

BY [redacted]

Q And then, just one further point on that, you were asked whether this removal process could have occurred prior to the President's statements. That second

1 sentence in the paragraph begins: I wanted to make sure you saw the steps we took
2 just this past week to adjust policies on what we are removing with respect to
3 misinformation, as well as steps taken to further address the disinfo dozen.
4 Would that suggest to you that the disinfo dozen were removed this past week or 5 those accounts tied to the disinfo dozen?
6 A It's hard to -- it's hard for me to know exactly what Nick was trying to portray
7 here. This is Nick's email. So it's difficult for me to decipher exactly what this meant.
8 Mr. Brown. [redacted] remember I told you earlier we were looking for the 9 document. I believe it's dated August 18, 2021, how we're taking action against vaccine
10 misinformation, and it's by Monika Bickert, which I believe has been introduced to you all 11 and hopefully answers some of your questions about that topic.
12 [redacted] Okay, great.
13 Ms. Jag. Do you know what the Bates stamp on that was?
14 Mr. Brown. I don't but it's on the internet as well. It's a public document.
15 [redacted] This is 22.
16 [Rice exhibit No. 22
17 Was marked for identification.]
18 Mr. Brown. Do you want this one back?
19 [redacted] Yes, please.
20 Mr. Rice. Okay.
21 BY [redacted]
22 Q So on October 19th, 2021, Flaherty wrote to you, with a number of other
23 people in the White House cc'd from HHS. He says -- he's talking about the 5 to 11
24 vaccine roll out: We'd like to talk about what we're seeing as the biggest headwinds.
25 We remain concerned about mis- and disinformation on feed and in groups and the wide reach of hesitancy-inducing content across your platform. With that said, we hope, as ever, that this will be a productive and forward-looking conversation.

And then it looks like there's talk of scheduling a time early next week. Did that meeting occur?

A I don't recall the meeting. I don't, I don't recall.

Q You don't recall any meeting with the White House about the 5 to 11 vaccine?

A I don't recall.

Q Okay. Do you know who at Meta might have a recollection of that?

A No, I don't.

Q Okay.

BY [redacted]

Q Were you generally included in most meetings with the White House, between Facebook and the White House?

A I was the primary point of contact for the White House, so generally, yes.

Q Looking at this email, what did you understand the phrase the "biggest headwinds," what did you understand Mr. Flaherty to be referring to with that?

A Yeah, I think he -- I think he was telling us that he was going to relay that information during the meeting.

Q And do you know, sitting here today, what he meant by that?

A I don't know specifically, no.

Q Do you recall any discussions with the White House regarding headwinds that the White House was concerned about?

A I don't recall.

[redacted] Just two more.

1 Mr. Brown. What exhibit number is this?

2 [redacted] Twenty-four.

3 [redacted] Twenty-three.

4 [redacted] Oh, 23, okay.

5 [Rice exhibit No. 23

6 Was marked for identification.]

7 Mr. Rice. Okay.

8 BY [redacted]

9 Q Okay. On 9091, you wrote an email on February 4th to a number of people

10 in the White House, including Benjamin Wakana, Timothy Manning, Rob Flaherty, 11 Courtney Rowe, with Carrie Adams cc'd.

12 At the end -- well, yeah, at the end of the email, you say: We want to make sure

13 we're in lockstep with your teams, particularly to ensure that we're effective in our

14 efforts to slow the spread of COVID. If you have any questions about these options, I'm 15 happy to set up time with our teams to provide additional details.

16 What did you mean by being in lockstep with your teams?

17 A I was referencing our work on this specific set of priorities in the email and

18 with respect to our work to drive traffic to covidtests.gov and to get good information out

19 about how to get COVID tests.

20 Q Who did you work with on their teams?

21 A The individuals on the email, on the to line were the individuals that we 22 worked primarily with.

23 Q Okay.

24 Mr. Brown. While you're still looking, Rachel, the Bates on that document you

25 asked for is 6161.

1 Ms. Jag. Thank you.

2 [redacted] I don't think I have any more questions about this exhibit. Do

3 you?

4 [redacted] No.

5 [redacted] Okay. This is exhibit 24.

6 [Rice exhibit No. 24

7 Was marked for identification.]

9 Q So, in this email, you write to -- on June 22, 2022, you wrote to Rob and

10 team. This refers to Flaherty and other people in the White House: Wanted to ensure 11 you were aware of our policy updates following the early childhood vaccine approvals.

12 As of today, all COVID-19 vaccine-related misinformation and harm policies on Facebook

13 and Instagram apply to people 6 months or older.

14 We've expanded these policies in coordination with the CDC and ensured that we

15 also included false claims that might be connected to children, such as the false claim that

16 COVID vaccines cause multisystem inflammatory syndrome in children.

17 How did you expand these policies in coordination with the CDC?

18 A We sought expertise from a number of public health officials and experts,

19 including in the CDC. So the reference to coordination would have been through 20 discussions about -- you know, with public health experts.

21 Q And who at CDC did you work with?

22 A I was not part of those conversations with experts. I do not have a

23 recollection of who at CDC that would be.

24 Q Do you know who at Meta had those conversations?

25 A I don't.

1 Q Did you ever communicate with Carol Crawford at CDC?

2 A Not to my recollection.

3 Q When you say "ensure that we also included false claims," how do you

4 determine what false claims are?

5 A Through our -- that would be something I'm not familiar with. I'm not an

6 expert in that process.

7 Q Is that something that the Content Moderation Team would be?

8 A Yes, I believe so.

9 Q So you were just repeating, essentially, what they told you. Is that correct?

10 A I was relaying information that the team had provided.

11 Q Okay.

12 [redacted] If we could take a look at exhibit 22 again, which is 10046 Bates.

13 Mr. Brown. Too good to be true.

14 For future reference, my suggestion would be manila folders for each exhibit.

15 It's a best practice.

16 BY [redacted]

17 Q If I could call your attention to the sentence in the middle of the paragraph

18 from Ralph Flaherty, it says: We remain concerned about mis- and disinformation on 19 feed and in groups and the wide reach of hesitancy-inducing content across your

20 platform.

21 What did you understand Mr. Flaherty to mean by "hesitancy-inducing content"?

22 A I generally took this to mean that Mr. Flaherty was still not satisfied with our 23 approach to content on the platform.

24 Q And, just a point of clarity, hesitancy with respect to vaccinations?

25 A Yeah. I mean, I think that -- I think yes, generally, but I don't have any -- I

1 don't have clarity because it's written by Rob, and I don't know exactly what he
2 was -- intended by it.
3 Q Sure. So setting aside whether Mr. Flaherty intended to communicate this,
4 the question is: How did you interpret it? Did you have a sense of what Mr. Flaherty
5 meant by "hesitancy-inducing content"?
6 A No.
7 Q During your interactions with Mr. Flaherty, which we've gone over in a
8 number of exhibits, did what Mr. Flaherty consider to be hesitancy-inducing content, did
9 his understanding of that remain constant from February 2021 until October of 2021?
10 A It's impossible for me to say. I can say that he -- as is evident here in the 11 email in October and emails over many months, there was disagreement between 12 Mr. Flaherty and our Content Policy Team in terms of what content violated it and what 13 didn't.
14 Q Do you recall if the types of content that Mr. Flaherty was identifying earlier
15 in the administration in, we'll say, February of 2021, was consistent with what he was 16 identifying as problematic content in the fall of 2021?
17 A I wouldn't want to guess as to whether he was -- he had made alterations or 18 changes there.
19 Q So but you're having regular meetings with Mr. Flaherty, and it seems like 20 this issue is ongoing. Is that correct?
21 A It was an ongoing issue for many months.
22 Q And, on these calls, in an earlier round of questioning, you mentioned that,
23 from time to time, Mr. Flaherty would provide a specific example of what he thought
24 might be problematic content. And, again, understanding you don't remember what 25 those specific examples were, but it was your understanding that the purpose of that was

1 for Mr. Flaherty to communicate the White House's position on content they found to be
2 problematic. Is that correct?
3 A There was an assumption in the company that Mr. Flaherty spoke on behalf
4 of the White House.
5 Q And, as he's providing specific examples or is emailing you, or whatever it
6 might be, did you or anyone at Facebook start to gain a better sense of what the confines
7 were of what Mr. Flaherty understood to be problematic content?
8 A We didn't think of it that way in terms of confines. Again, it was our job to 9 relay our own policies and our own confines to the White House and to educate them as 10 to why we believed they were correct.
11 Q Sure. But, with respect to, as you testified, there was a disagreement
12 between Mr. Flaherty and Facebook's position on -- with respect to content and whether 13 there were any problems with it being on the platform, those disagreements appeared to 14 have persisted for at least a few months. Were the disagreements constant, or were 15 there new issues that were arising?
16 A The pandemic was constantly changing the scope of it, and it was an 17 unprecedented situation for the company and the country, and so issues would come up
18 that hadn't come up before. But there was no sense that it was a changed scope of 19 issues. We were always talking about content relating to the pandemic and the
20 platform.
21 Q Were there ever instances where you felt Facebook had adequately
22 addressed Mr. Flaherty's concerns and then he communicated that his concerns were 23 different or had evolved?
24 A I don't recall -- I don't recall a situation where that would have happened.
25 Q When communicating -- I mean, the White House's concerns, how did you communicate these to Mr. Potts?

A Meaning how in terms of --

Q Just logistically. Was it over a phone call?

A It could have been over a phone call. It could have been over an email. It could have been -- yeah, those are two common ways of communicating.

Q Do you recall discussions where the White House raised issues with respect to true content but that true content that would induce hesitancy or lacked adequate context?

A I don't recall -- I don't recall the White House asking us to take content like that down, no.

Q Do you remember it being discussed during the calls?

A True content that would create hesitancy? I remember conversations around all sorts of different types of COVID content. I'm sure that was a topic of our conversation.

Q Mr. Flaherty refers to -- these are his words -- "the wide reach of hesitancy-inducing content." Do you recall during the calls that the White House was providing statistics or evidence of how far-reaching certain types of content were?

A I don't recall that.

Q Do you recall them providing any sort of basis to make that sort of claim in an email?

A I don't recall specifics, no.

[redacted] Can we go off the record, please?

2 [redacted] We can go on the record.

3 [redacted] This is a transcribed interview of [redacted].

4 Is that how you pronounced it?

5 [redacted]: [redacted]

6 [redacted] Chairman Jordan has requested this interview as part of the

7 committee's investigation of how and the extent to which the executive branch has

8 coerced and colluded with companies and other intermediaries to censor speech.

9 Would the witness please state your name for the record?

10 [redacted]: [redacted].

11 [redacted] On behalf of the committee, I want to thank you for appearing here

12 today to answer our questions. The chairman also appreciates your willingness to

13 appear voluntarily.

14 My name is [redacted] and I'm with Chairman Jordan's staff.

15 We'll now have everyone else from the committee who is here at the table to

16 introduce themselves, as well.

17 [redacted] [redacted] Chairman Jordan's staff.

18 [redacted] [redacted] Chairman Jordan's staff.

19 [redacted] [redacted] Chairman Jordan's staff.

20 [redacted] [redacted] Chairman Jordan's staff.

21 [redacted] [redacted] Chairman Nadler's staff.

22 [redacted] [redacted] Legal Intern, House Judiciary, Democratic staff.

23 [redacted] I would like to now go over the ground rules and guidelines that we

24 will follow during today's interview.

25 Our questioning will proceed in rounds. The majority will ask questions first for 1 hour, and then the minority will have an opportunity to ask questions for an equal period of time if they choose. We will alternate back and forth until there are no more questions, and then our interview is over.

Typically, we take a short break at the end of each hour. But if you would like to take a break apart from that, please just let us know.

As you can see, there's an official court reporter taking down everything you say to make a written record. So we ask you give verbal responses to all questions.

Do you understand?

[redacted]. Yes.

[redacted] So the court reporter can take down a clear record, we will do our best to limit the number of people directing questions at you during any given hour to just those people on the staff whose turn it is.

Please try and speak clearly so the court reporter can understand and so the folks down at the end of the table can hear you. It's important that we don't talk over one another or interrupt each other if we can help it, and that goes for everybody present at today's interview.

We encourage witnesses who appear before the committee to freely consult with counsel if they so choose, and it's my understanding you are appearing today with counsel. Is that correct?

[redacted]. Correct.

[redacted] Could counsel please state your name for the record?

Mr. Brown. Reg Brown, Kirkland Ellis.

Mr. Greene. Jordan Greene, Kirkland Ellis.

[redacted] Thank you.

We want you to answer our questions in the most complete and truthful manner as possible. So we will take our time. If you have any questions or if you don't understand one of our questions, please let us know.

Our questions will cover a wide range of topics. So if you need clarification at any point, just say so. If you honestly don't know the answer to a question or don't remember, it's best not to guess. Please give us your best recollection, and it's okay to tell us if you learn information from someone else. Just indicate how you came to know the information.

If there are things you don't know or can't remember, just say so and please inform us who, to the best of your knowledge, might be able to provide a more complete answer to the question.

You should also understand that, although this interview isn't under oath, by law, you are required to answer questions from Congress truthfully.

Do you understand?

[redacted]. Yes.

[redacted] This also applies to questions posed by congressional staff in an interview.

Do you understand?

[redacted]. Yes.

[redacted] Witnesses who knowingly provide false testimony could be subject to criminal prosecution for perjury, or making false statements under 18 United States Code 1001.

Do you understand?

[redacted]. Yes.

[redacted] Is there any reason you are unable to provide truthful answers to today's questions?

1 [redacted]. No.

2 [redacted] Finally, I would like to note that the content of what we discuss

3 here today is confidential. We ask that you not speak about what we discuss in this

4 interview to any outside individuals to preserve the integrity of our investigation.

5 For the same reason, the marked exhibits that we use today will remain with the

6 court reporter so that they can go in the official transcript. And any copies of those

7 exhibits will be returned to us when we wrap up.

8 All right. That's the end of my preamble.

9 Is there anything my colleagues from the minority would like to add?

10 [redacted] Not at this time, no.

11 I will -- I just want to alert everybody one of my colleagues will coming in to hand

12 me something, [redacted]. And then she'll just be leaving.

13 [redacted] Okay.

14 [redacted] Thanks.

15 [redacted] The clock now reads 10:05 a.m. We will start the first hour of 16 questioning.

17 EXAMINATION

18 BY [redacted]

19 Q [redacted], what's your current place of employment?

20 A I work at Meta.

21 Q And what's your current title?

22 A I am head of security policy.

23 Q And what is your educational background, beginning with college?

24 A For college, I attended the University of Chicago.

25 Q And after college?

1 A After college, I was in the Peace Corps.

2 Q Okay. Do you have any postgraduate degrees?

3 A Yes.

4 Q And what are those?

5 A I have a J.D.

6 Q And where did you go to law school?

7 A I went to Yale.

8 Q And what is your employment history following law school?

9 A Following law school, I was a Henry Luce Scholar.

10 Q And after that?

11 A After that, I joined the Department of Justice as an Honors attorney.

12 Q Okay. Which division were you in?

13 A The Criminal Division.

14 Q And after -- or how long were you at DOJ for?

15 A I was at DOJ for approximately 3 years.

16 Q Okay. And after DOJ?

17 A After 3 years, I was detailed to the National Security Council.

18 Q How long were you with the National Security Council?

19 A Between 2 and 3 years.

20 Q At a high level, what did you work on with the National Security Council?

21 A I was director for cybersecurity policy. So I worked on a range of issues

22 involving cybersecurity, including our international work.

23 Q What years were you at the National Security Council?

24 A I joined the National Security Council in 2013, and I left in 2015.

25 Q And where did you work next following the National Security Council?

1 A Following the National Security Council, I joined a cybersecurity startup
2 named Illumio.
3 Q And how long were you at that startup for?
4 A I was at the startup for, I believe, 2 years.
5 Q Okay. And after the startup, where did you work next?
6 A After the startup, I joined Meta.
7 Q When approximately did you join Meta?
8 A It would have been January of 2018.
9 Q And what was your position when you joined Meta?
10 A My position when I joined Meta is the position that I currently have.
11 Q Okay. And you said your title was head of security policy?
12 A That -- we changed my title, I think, about a year in, but it was a similar
13 function.
14 Q Okay. And in your position what are your responsibilities?
15 A The core work for my team is to track and counter determined adversaries 16 across our platform, so to work across the company and with other organizations to, for 17 example, counter foreign interference.
18 Q And how big is your team?
19 A It's a relatively small team. It's designed to be a relatively small team,
20 around a dozen people.
21 Q And from when you joined Meta in January 2018 until today, has your team
22 size changed?
23 A Yes.
24 Q Okay. And can you say a bit more about how it's changed during your time
25 at Meta?

1 A Sure. When I joined, I did not have a team.

2 Q Okay.

3 A So I have -- the team has grown over the course of the last several years.

4 Q Is your position for all of Meta, or is it only for certain products within Meta?

5 A I -- we track and counter bad actors across Meta, although some products at 6 Meta are more independently operated than others.

7 Q So would Facebook, Meta, and WhatsApp all fall within your team's 8 purview?

9 A Sorry. You said Facebook, Meta?

10 Q Excuse me. Facebook, Instagram, and WhatsApp.

11 A Yes.

12 Q Okay. Who do you report to?

13 A I report to [redacted].

14 Q Okay. And you said there's about a dozen people that report to you right

15 now?

16 A Approximately. A dozen people on the team, total.

17 Q Okay. How many of those dozen report to you?

18 A Approximately half report to me.

19 Q And what about the other half?

20 A They report to my deputy.

21 Q And who's your deputy?

22 A [redacted].

23 Q When did [redacted] gain the deputy role on the team?

24 A [redacted] joined the company in 2018, about a year after I joined.

25 Q Okay. And was he your deputy from the beginning?

1 A No. I suppose when he took on that sort of role, it would have been
2 approximately in 2021.
3 Q Are you familiar with the terms misinformation, disinformation, and
4 malinformation?
5 A Broadly, yes.
6 Q And what's your understanding of the differences between those three 7 terms?
8 A The definitions are pretty disputed. People disagree on what they mean.
9 They also disagree on what constitutes each particular term.
10 Q Within Meta, is a distinction made between misinformation, disinformation,
11 and malinformation?
12 A We would say that misinformation is content that is provably false or 13 misleading, and so, the essence of misinformation is focused on the nature of content 14 itself.
15 Disinformation, as it is used in more broadly and in the academic community, is 16 content that is provably false or misleading, that is shared intentionally. So it adds in an 17 actor component, attempting to understand the intent or motivation of the actor behind
18 it.
19 We generally don't use that term within Meta. We focus instead on the behavior
20 of actors or the content that they're sharing.
21 Q And does Meta have a team that handles malinformation?
22 A Malinformation is the least defined term of these three. We don't have a
23 team that handles malinformation.
24 Q Okay. Does your team handle misinformation or disinformation?
25 A My team focuses on tracking and countering determined threat actors.

1 One of the components of that is what we call influence operations which are -- which
2 some people would equate with disinformation.
3 Q Are you familiar with the term "coordinated inauthentic behavior"?
4 A Yes, I am.
5 Q And what is that?
6 A Coordinated inauthentic behavior is one of our policies.
7 Q And what does Meta mean by coordinated inauthentic behavior?
8 A It's a term that we use to describe violating networks that are engaging in 9 influence operations that we would enforce against.
10 Q Is your team the -- is your team the team that has primary responsibility for 11 handling coordinated inauthentic behavior?
12 A Yes. And if you have questions about that, we regularly publish details on 13 networks that we enforce against. We currently can publish them quarterly. We've 14 enforced against more than 200 networks since 2017, and we publish details on these.
15 So you can see both the specific definition of the term "coordinated inauthentic 16 behavior" and some useful information about the different networks we've enforced 17 against.
18 Q And when you reference influence operations, would that include foreign 19 malign influence operations?
20 A Yes.
21 Q Does your team handle issues related to potential hack-and-leak operations?
22 A Yes. We handle a wide range of threats including what we would call cyber 23 espionage which are essentially hacking campaigns, something called coordinated 24 adversarial reporting, influence operations, frauds and scams, and certainly also hack and 25 leak.

1 Q To your understanding, which team at Facebook has primary responsibility
2 for issues related to misinformation?
3 A The misinfo policy team.
4 Q Okay. Who leads that team?
5 A They roll up to [redacted].
6 Q Does [redacted] work on issues related to misinformation?
7 A Not directly.
8 Q Okay. Do you know what other responsibilities are within [redacted]'
9 scope?
10 A [redacted] leads our Trust and Safety organization.
11 Q Okay. And which other teams fall under Trust and Safety?
12 A In addition to my team, we also have the Safety team.
13 Q Any others?
14 A The Dangerous Organizations team.
15 Q Any others?
16 A The Human Rights Policy team.
17 Q Any others?
18 A The External Engagement team.
19 Q Who at the company would be the equivalent for [redacted] with respect to 20 the Misinformation team?
21 A The Misinformation team rolls up to [redacted].
22 Q Okay. Is there a team leader? Is [redacted] the team leader?
23 A It rolls up to [redacted]
24 Q What do you mean by "rolls up"?
25 A [redacted] responsible for the decisions that the team makes and the policies

1 that they enforce.

2 Q Okay. Is there anyone on that team that you work with?

3 A My team works with that team regularly.

4 Q Okay. Who do you work most regularly with on that team?

5 A I work with different individuals on the team. Perhaps frequently, would 6 be [redacted].

7 Q And who is she?

8 A She handles misinformation policy issues on the team.

9 Q Do you know what her title is?

10 A I don't actually know what her title is.

11 Q Do you know if she has a leadership role within the team?

12 A She does have a leadership role within the team.

13 Q And what are the nature -- what's the nature of your interactions with 14 Ms. Isola?

15 A Well, for the misinfo policy team, generally, we tend to handle -- so I don't

16 know if -- there's a useful paper written by a researcher named [redacted] called

17 The ABC Framework. I don't know if you've come across it in your research.

18 It outlines a way to think about adversarial threats online, and it essentially

19 describes that it's useful to think about threat actors, and threats in terms of actors,

20 behavior, and content, So the content they share, the behavior they engage in, and then

21 the nature of the actor, right?

22 So if you think about a network of coordinated inauthentic behavior, a foreign

23 interference campaign being run, for example, by actors from Russia or China, the actor

24 would be the individual behind the campaign. The behavior would be the fact that

25 they're using networks of fake accounts to mislead people who's behind the campaign,

1 and the content would be whatever they share.

2 I think the most focus is generally -- the most focus is generally laid to the content

3 itself, the nature of what's said. We have found, when you're trying to track and

4 counter determined adversaries, it actually turns out that the behavior and the actor

5 dimensions are more, or at least as important in terms of countering these adversaries.

6 And so I give you that framework because it animates a lot of how we think about

7 the problem at Meta. And generally, my team focuses on the actor and behavior

8 dimension, whereas, for example, the misinfo policy team or other teams focus on the 9 content dimension.

10 And so in terms of how we collaborate, we often -- I think externally people often

11 blur these lines and think about content or behavior together. And so, the misinfo

12 policy team, Justine and others, will handle the specific issues regarding content, whereas 13 we would handle specific issues regarding actor or behavior.

14 Q During that answer you mentioned that you said something to the effect of 15 "we have found." Were you referring to the company, Meta?

16 A I suppose so, yes. Meta and then my team, our work in tracking and

17 countering determined adversaries, we have found, Meta, that it is particularly important

18 to be aware of and enforce against the behavior they engage in and the actors who are 19 behind it.

20 So a useful example for this, if you think about coordinated inauthentic behavior,

21 that is a policy that's focused entirely on the behavior of these actors, because often, the

22 content they share is intentionally unobjectionable, and it's designed often to not violate

23 the policies of social media platforms.

24 Q Okay. Can you provide an example of how your team works with the 25 misinformation team? So I hear the division of the responsibilities. If you can say a bit

1 more of like an example that requires both teams to be working together.
2 A I think the reason we most frequently work together is because externally,
3 the behavior and content dimensions get blurred a lot. And so you might 4 expect -- externally, people might expect that these two things are the same. And so to 5 disaggregate them, particularly for external partners, we might be on the same panel to 6 communicate these differences.
7 Q When you say some people blur content, who are you referring to?
8 A Widely, I mean, no one in particular. I think the expert community, even 9 the terms "misinformation" and "disinformation" sort of blur this notion of content and
10 behavior.
11 Q Who are some of the external partners that you're referencing?
12 A Well, just now, I'm just describing any expert, whether they -- or really 13 discussing whether an expert or not in this area will often grapple with this question of 14 how you separate behavior and content. So there's no particular -- I don't know if I used 15 the word "partner" but there's no particular partner in this context. It's just any 16 external group.
17 Q Okay. Sure. So setting aside partner, if you could say a bit more. So you 18 mentioned that someone is blurring content and behavior.
19 A Uh-huh.
20 Q And it sounds like internally, Meta has a good sense of sorting that out.
21 But can you say a bit more about how the blurring leads to action items that that would 22 necessitate?
23 A Certainly. So let me give you an example of a coordinated inauthentic
24 behavior network that we've enforced against, which may be useful. In -- I believe it
25 was September of 2022, we removed -- we disclosed detail about our removal of a

1 network that was run from China. And this was a coordinated operation. So to 2 enforce -- for something to violate coordinated inauthentic -- our policy against 3 coordinated inauthentic behavior, there needs to be a coordinated network of counts,
4 pages, groups, or other assets that are working together to mislead viewers or users
5 about who's behind that campaign. And then they need to centrally rely on fake 6 accounts to do that.
7 Those are the key components of what we would call CIB, a CIB enforcement. All
8 of those are about behavior, by which I mean they are using fake accounts. They are 9 misleading people about who's behind them. They're working together. Those are 10 behavioral factors.
11 On this particular network, when we enforced on it, this was a network operated
12 out of China that was targeting public debate in a couple of places. But the United 13 States was one of them. This was ahead of the midterms. They were operating 14 multiple clusters of fake accounts; so fake accounts that sort of to the public would look 15 totally unrelated but, in fact, these actors were controlling all of them.
16 One cluster was representing itself as American liberals, and was focused primarily 17 on criticizing the Republican Party, Senator Rubio, among others. Another cluster were 18 representing themselves as American Conservatives and was posting content that was 19 deemed or designed to target President Biden and the Democratic Party.
20 This is an instance where you have one operation running two seemingly opposing 21 networks. The content is designed to make them look like they are completely separate 22 and to target different communities.
23 In a situation like that, you would expect people seeing it might think the content
24 was part of the motivation for our enforcement. In fact, when we enforce on CIB, we 25 enforce on the behavior, not the content. And that distinction is particularly important

1 because these threat actors will use content designed to be divisive, designed to call
2 questions.
3 Enforcing on the behavior and then being transparent about that is an important
4 technique that we use to be able to do this consistently around the world.
5 And so, for a network like this, the role of these two teams, you might expect
6 people would think that that work involved an assessment of the content. In fact, it
7 does not. And so we don't work together on the enforcement. We're actually 8 completely separate.
9 But in explaining what happened, and in educating people or answering questions,
10 my team is going to be best placed to answer questions about the behavior and the 11 enforcement. And the misinfo policy team is going to be better placed to talk about 12 questions that might arise about the content.
13 Q So in this example you just gave, [redacted] and her misinformation team did
14 not play any role in the enforcement?
15 A Correct.
16 Q Okay. And when you're referencing working with her team, at least with 17 respect to this example, it's relaying and explaining what Meta did, and explaining that to 18 external partners?
19 A Correct.
20 Q Okay. Other than relaying information and providing explanations to 21 external partners, does your team work with [redacted] or the misinformation team?
22 A Occasionally, but not that frequently.
23 Q Okay. And on the occasions you do, what is the context of those 24 interactions?
25 A When we are developing new policies, it's important to separate out

1 whether we're talking about behavior or content. So we might work with them to make
2 sure that we're drawing clear lines.
3 Q Do you recall any examples of working on policies with the misinformation
4 team?
5 A No specific examples of working with them, but I would say generally, for 6 instance, if we're crafting ours, when we crafted our CIB policy, or if we're crafting our 7 cyber espionage policy, we'll want to make sure that we're not crossing any lines into 8 content and that they understand where the lines should be.
9 Q When you're drafting the CIB policy, who at Meta is the final decision-maker
10 as far as what the final policy looks like?
11 A Well, the CIB policy was drafted actually just as I was joining the company.
12 So it was some years ago at this point. Policies and process evolve over time. But 13 whenever we go through and review one of these policies, we make sure that we have 14 good awareness of it across the company.
15 Q If change is needed to be made to the CIB policy, would your team have 16 primary responsibility for revising it?
17 A For that policy, if it was sort of a relatively minor change like we were 18 clarifying something, it would be a straightforward process, yes.
19 Q Okay. And what about significant changes?
20 A Then I think one of the things that we've concluded is it's very important to 21 be transparent about our policies and the process around that. And so we would have a 22 broad process to make sure that the company was aware and that people external were 23 aware. We publish these policies online, in our community standards.
24 And so, we want to make sure that people see them and can see sort of the 25 change. So you can actually see a change log to observe how changes are made and

1 take similar steps.

2 Q You mentioned the community standards. Is the hack-and-leak policy

3 separate from the CIB policy?

4 A Yes.

5 Q Can you state again if you team has primary responsibility for the 6 enforcement of the hack and leak policy?

7 A Yes.

8 Q Do you know when that policy was first adopted?

9 A I believe it was adopted -- I don't remember the exact date but it was sort of 10 mid-2020.

11 Q Did you work on the development of that policy?

12 A Yes.

13 Q And do you recall which other teams, if any, from Facebook were involved in 14 the development of that policy?

15 A I don't know about specific teams. But within [redacted] org, there

16 were a number of people thinking about issues around the 2020 elections at that time.

17 Q So is it concern about the 2020 elections that led Facebook to adopt a

18 hack-and-leak policy?

19 A In part, yes.

20 Q What specifically about the 2020 election?

21 A As we were preparing for the 2020 elections, we identified that one of the

22 likely risks it was important to prepare for was a hack-and-leak campaign from a foreign

23 threat actor like Russia.

24 Q And by "we," do you mean Facebook?

25 [Discussion off the record.]

1 [redacted]. My apologies. Could you say that again?

2 [redacted] In your previous answer you mentioned "we."

3 Did you mean, when you say "we," are you referring to the company?

4 [redacted]. Uh --

5 BY [redacted]

6 Q Your team.

7 A We -- in reference to what? My apologies. What did I say "we" in

8 reference to?

9 Q You said it was with reference to the 2020 election and that you -- "we" had 10 identified that it was likely -- there was likely a risk relating to hack and leak.

11 Who is doing the identifying?

12 A "We" is the company, yes.

13 Q All right. And would that be primarily your team in particular? Who -- let 14 me strike that.

15 How is -- how did the company identify that hack and leak was a, you know,

16 significant enough risk?

17 A Yeah. So we, "we," the company, work to protect elections around the 18 world. And in the lead-up to the 2020 election, beginning in 2019, we ran an exercise

19 which we call Threat Ideation Exercise to sort of understand what the potential risks

20 would be like for the 2020 election.

21 [redacted] I'm sorry. Can I ask? On threat, what exercise?

22 [redacted]. Threat ideation.

23 [redacted] Ideation.

24 [redacted]. Yes. This -- and one of the important risks we identified was hack

25 and leak.

1 A key part of the reason for this was, of course, that Russian actors deployed hack
2 and leak as a technique to target the 2016 elections in the United States. They deployed
3 hack and leak as a technique to target the French elections in 2017. They tested some 4 techniques that looked like a hack and leak in 2018 for our midterms. And already in 5 2019 and early 2020, there was some indication that Russian-linked actors were taking 6 the first steps that could prepare them to conduct a hack and leak in 2020.
7 BY [redacted]
8 Q When you say there was some indication, is this evidence, evidence that 9 Facebook had internally?
10 A This is -- I'm referring to public information. So in late 2019, which I believe 11 it was December, but in late 2019, Andrii Derkach, who was a prominent Ukrainian 12 politician who at the time was widely believed to have links to Russian intelligence and 13 who subsequently actually the Treasury Department sanctioned for those leaks -- links,
14 began posting online, suggesting that he had sensitive information, stolen information,
15 linked to Burisma that he was going leak. So there was a suggestion already from this 16 actor.
17 Then in January, there was public reporting that Russian military intelligence,
18 specifically the GRU, had hacked into Burisma which is a Ukrainian oil company.
19 Q Is your team monitoring what's out in the public domain or external partners
20 sharing this public information with you? Do you know how it came to the company's 21 attention?
22 A I don't remember how the specific posts came to our attention, in particular.
23 But we do monitor what's happening in the external domain.
24 Q And do external partners ever submit information on these sensitive issues
25 to your team?

1 A When you say information, what are you thinking of, or what do you mean?

2 Q With respect to -- we'll focus on hack and leak. Going back -- you answered

3 earlier. You said there was indication --

4 A Uh-huh.

5 Q -- for a hack and leak.

6 With respect to any evidence, any indication, was any of that provided by an

7 external partner?

8 Mr. Brown. There's a New York times article on the hack-and-leak stuff. It's

9 widely available. We're happy to make a copy of that available to you if that would be

10 helpful from January.

11 BY [redacted]

12 Q Okay. We understand there's some evidence that's in the public domain,

13 but we're trying to get a sense of his team. And there's honestly enough to -- that led to 14 a revision of the policy in the summer of 2020.

15 So picking back up with respect to the evidence, indication, some of it as 16 referenced in the public domain, you mentioned that your team does monitoring.

17 Were there external partners that were sharing this information with you?

18 A I don't remember external partners in particular but there was quite a

19 lot -- and Reg referenced some of it -- of external public discussion about the risk of hack

20 and leak, particularly from Russian actors. So within the sort of public security

21 community, whether you're talking about reporters covering it, or experts discussing it,

22 there was a lot of external discussion of this particular risk.

23 And the external discussion makes some sense because at the time it made some

24 sense, because it's a technique that Russian actors have used, and had used routinely in 25 the past.

1 I mentioned 2016, 2017, and 2018. Those were very recent examples. But if
2 you look back historically, Russian actors had used similar techniques and similar tactics
3 even before the internet age.
4 Q Did the Federal Government ever provide information regarding
5 hack-and-leak evidence?
6 A Yes, but it was later.
7 Q Okay. And by later, what do you mean?
8 A Well, in August of 2020, the Director of National Intelligence put out a public
9 report where they cited a risk -- I don't remember the exact language -- a risk of a
10 hack-and-leak operation from Russian actors involving Burisma that would be used to 11 target then Vice President and candidate Biden.
12 Q Prior to August of 2020, are you aware of whether the Federal Government
13 provided any information regarding the risk of a hack-and-leak operation?
14 A Prior to August?
15 Q Yes.
16 A I'm not sure of the exact timing. We had a regular sync with a number of 17 U.S. Government agencies. At one of those meetings this was a particular topic of 18 discussion that the U.S. Government added, but I don't remember if it was prior to August 19 or post.
20 Q Do you recall who at the company was primarily responsible for drafting the 21 hack-and-leak policy?
22 A My team.
23 Q Did your team initiate the decision to revise the hack-and-leak policy, or was 24 it ordered from someone outside the team?
25 A I don't remember exactly where it started. But it began from a recognition,

1 a realization, and a conclusion that the threat of hack and leak, particularly from foreign
2 actors, was a significant one, and the desire to make sure that we had the tools that we
3 needed from a policy perspective to respond if there was a foreign, government-backed 4 hack-and-leak campaign.
5 BY [redacted]
6 Q What were the regular syncs you mentioned with government agencies?
7 A So beginning as far back as -- I don't remember exactly when they started
8 but we initiated periodic meetings with representatives of the U.S. Government to talk 9 about foreign interference, and to talk about the threats that might be posed by foreign
10 governments to our elections. That began ahead of the 2018 midterms, and continued
11 through the 2020 election.
12 Q Sorry. You said you -- Meta initiated them. So Meta approached the 13 government agencies? Is that --
14 A I said we began them. I don't recall who approached who.
15 Q Okay. And which agencies?
16 A It was hosted by CISA at DHS, but the FBI participated. DNI participated.
17 There were some other agencies from CISA that participated at different points.
18 [redacted] Did you --
19 [redacted]. And I should say, for clarity, other companies participated, as well.
20 It wasn't just Meta.
21 [redacted] Oh, which companies?
22 [redacted]. There was a number of companies that participated at different 23 points, but certainly Google was part of that. Microsoft was part of it. Twitter was 24 part of it.
25 BY [redacted]

1 Q Are you familiar with policy forums, internal policy forums that [redacted]
2 [redacted] would host at the company?
3 A Yes.
4 Q And what are those?
5 A The policy forum is a process that we use to revise substantially revise, I
6 suppose, the community standards.
7 Q And how frequently do they do it?
8 A There isn't a set schedule for them. They occur when there are changes
9 that we need to make to our public community standards.
10 Mr. Brown. [redacted] we're going to likely be producing on that topic. It's 11 information we try to make available to the public, and I expect this week we'll be 12 producing information on those.
13 [redacted] Okay. Do you recall if there was a policy forum regarding the 14 adoption of a hack-and-leak policy?
15 [redacted]. I don't recall that there was a policy forum about that.
16 Mr. Brown. There was not.
17 [redacted] Okay.
18 [redacted]. And you can verify, as Reg mentioned.
19 Mr. Brown. I just did. There was not.
20 [redacted] Okay.
21 BY [redacted]
22 Q Do you recall if there was a policy forum with respect to any changes to the 23 coordinated inauthentic behavior?
24 A I don't believe so.
25 Q Did you ever present at these meetings?

1 A I don't recall presenting at them, but it's certainly possible?

2 Q If we could turn back to your team's work with [redacted] and the

3 misinformation team, so other than the -- making sure the development policies, there's

4 a clear distinction between actor behavior and content, and other than your two teams

5 working to relay explanations to external partners, are there other occasions in which

6 your two teams worked together?

7 A There aren't that many specific -- I mean, I'm not sure I recall specific

8 occasions where we worked together. I think, when you talk about the hack-and-leak

9 policy, there -- there's a content side to the discussion and a behavior side of the 10 discussion. So that's another instance where we would have crossed.

11 Q And can you say a bit more? What would be the content aspect of the hack

12 and leak?

13 A Well, it's not so much an aspect of hack and leak. But when a story is

14 posted, or a piece is posted, you could ask a question about whether it is a hacked

15 operation from a foreign -- so the hack-and-leak policy essentially says that if we are

16 seeing -- that we can take action if we see a hacked -- content that has been hacked and

17 leaked as part of a foreign interference operation, or foreign influence campaign. So

18 that's a behavioral assessment, right?

19 You might also expect there are questions about content that is published in this

20 way. And so that would be where the misinfo policy team would be more involved than 21 us.

22 Q So when a hack-and-leak policy was adopted, was there a content aspect

23 that was adopted, either within that hack-and-leak policy or changes to the 24 misinformation policy?

25 A No.

1 Q So what is your understanding of what role, if any, the content team would
2 play with the hack and leak?
3 A They -- whenever we -- with hack and leak, in particular, I mean, whenever
4 we have a story that's posted, there may be content analysis for violations of that policy
5 or sharing with third-party fact-checkers so they can do their own independent
6 assessment?
7 Q Is the process for fact-checking or otherwise reviewing violations of the 8 misinformation policy, is that any different when the content comes from a potential hack
9 and leak?
10 A No.
11 Q Are you familiar with Facebook's third-party fact-checking program?
12 A Broadly, but I'm not an expert on it.
13 Q Your team doesn't work with the fact-checking team?
14 A No.
15 Q Does Ms. Isola's team work with the fact-checking, third-party fact-checkers?
16 A Yes.
17 Q You mentioned that about half a dozen of your team reports to you, the 18 other half to [redacted].
19 Is there a division of responsibilities geographically? Topically? How does your 20 team decide who reports to who?
21 A My team is divided into a set of different pillars. Each pillar has kind of a 22 substantive focus.
23 Q What are those pillars?
24 A The first pillar is the pillar that David leads which is called Threat Disruption.
25 Q And what is --

1 [redacted] Can you repeat that? I'm sorry.

2 [redacted]. Sure. Threat disruption. That's the first pillar, and that's the 3 pillar that [redacted] leads.

4 BY [redacted]

5 Q And what is threat disruption?

6 A Threat disruption works with our investigators to identify, remove, share

7 information on, and expose campaigns from bad actors around the world. So our threat

8 reports that we mentioned, that team works on putting them out.

9 Q Okay. And what are the other pillars?

10 A We have another pillar called Community Defense.

11 Q And what is that?

12 A If threat disruption is focused on the bad actors, Community Defense is 13 focused on trying to protect the good actors, people who might be targeted. So they 14 work to improve account security and to help targets of operations.

15 Q And who leads that pillar?

16 A Different individual on my team.

17 Q Okay. Are there additional pillars?

18 A There's a third pillar which is called threat ideation.

19 Q I think you started to cover that earlier. But can you say what that is?

20 A Threat ideation is focused on essentially strategic foresight. When we

21 think about bad actors, if we are adopting a new policy, or we are preparing for a major

22 event like an election, how do we think through how a bad actor might target that event,

23 and then put protections in place to get ahead of that.

24 Q And who leads that pillar?

25 A A different person than [redacted] as well.

1 Q Okay. Someone that reports to you?

2 A Yes.

3 Q When it comes to identifying coordinated inauthentic behavior, in other

4 words, fake accounts, what percent are identified internally from Facebook?

5 A I don't know the exact percentage at this point.

6 Q Are some percentage -- is there some percentage that is identified from

7 external partners?

8 A We do get information from external partners. That doesn't identify a

9 network for us, but sometimes it will lead us to find a network based on our own

10 investigations.

11 Q And who are some of those external partners?

12 A We get information from a wide range of external partners. Our policy has 13 been, if someone wants to share information with us, we would like to receive that. Any

14 time we get information, we then investigate it ourselves. If we independently

15 determine that it leads to a violation of our policies, then we will take action but only 16 after our own investigation.

17 Mr. Brown. Can we go off the record?

18 [redacted] Go off the record.

19 [Discussion off the record.]

20 Mr. Brown. Ready to go back on.

21 [redacted] Go back on the record, please.

22 BY [redacted]

23 Q Sorry. You started to say that your team welcomes information when 24 people are able to share it.

25 Who are some of the external partners that will share information with your

1 team?

2 A As I said, it's a very wide range. We would much rather receive information

3 than not. If you go to our public threat reports, you can actually see we often will note

4 if an operation was identified based in whole or in part. Based on information shared by 5 a third party, we will note that in the threat reports.

6 Q Do these external partners include university researchers?

7 A They could.

8 Q Okay. What about the government?

9 A It could, yes.

10 Q Are you aware of instances where the Federal Government provided

11 information?

12 A Yes.

13 Q Which agencies most frequently communicate with your team?

14 A Meta speaks most regularly to -- well, in terms of information-sharing, most 15 regularly information is shared to us from the FBI within the U.S. Government.

16 Q And you mentioned that your team receives information and then

17 independently assesses whether to take any sort of action. Are there instances where 18 your team receives information and decides not to take any action?

19 A Yes.

20 Q I don't know if this is quite the right term. But we'll say a "false positive" or

21 information, you know, where an external partner thinks there may be inauthentic

22 particular behavior, or some sort of foreign network account, when you receive

23 information and decline to take an action because you find that there's nothing there, do

24 you recall what the most common examples are of why the external partner was 25 incorrect?

1 A No. There's a wide range of this, and often, external partners may not fully
2 understand our policy definitions or lines. And so, this is partly why we would rather 3 receive the information and assess it ourselves, because external partners aren't going to 4 be well-suited to sort of knowing where these lines should be.
5 Q Do you recall instances, when the Federal Government was sharing
6 information, where your team did not take action?
7 A I don't recall specific instances, but I know that they happened.
8 Q And do you recall any of the reasons why that was the case?
9 A There have been times when they've shared information. Often when they
10 would share information with us, it's not about our platform. It might be about a 11 website or something else that they know openly off of our platform, and sometimes in 12 that case, there's no action for us to take.
13 Q Okay. Other examples?
14 A I -- as I said, I don't have specific examples, but I know there are times that 15 we have not taken action.
16 Q When -- when the Federal Government provides information about potential 17 inauthentic behavior, do they, when providing this information, identify whether it's 18 domestic or foreign?
19 A In my experience, the Federal Government shares information -- every time
20 the Federal Government has shared information with us, that I recall, they have explicitly 21 said that they believe it is foreign.
22 Q Do you recall if your team ever, after it looked into this information, found
23 otherwise?
24 A I don't recall specific instances of that.
25 Q Absent the Federal Government, just other external partners that you

1 referenced, would they, when providing information, identify whether it was foreign or
2 domestic in nature?
3 A It depends entirely on the partner.
4 Q Okay. Which partners would more frequently be able to identify whether it
5 was foreign or domestic?
6 A It's -- it's not necessarily whether they're able to. It's whether that's the 7 concern they're focused on or not.
8 Q Okay. Could you say a bit more? What's an example of an external 9 partner that isn't concerned about whether the behavior's foreign or domestic?
10 A Well, our coordinated inauthentic behavior policy does not require that 11 behavior be foreign in order to enforce on it. One of the unfortunate truths is that if 12 you look around the world, you see governments, foreign governments, using deceptive
13 techniques to target their own people.
14 We're here talking, and focusing quite a bit on the United States, which certainly 15 makes sense. Of our enforcements around the world, the majority of them target 16 people in the global majority, in different parts of the world.
17 And approximately half or more of the CIB operations that we enforce against are 18 domestic in nature. And, in fact, many of them are governments targeting their own
19 citizens.
20 And so, the domestic-foreign component is particularly important in this context
21 as we talk about U.S. elections. But more broadly for our work, you certainly see 22 domestic violations of the CIB policy.
23 Q And some percentage of those domestic violations you're referring to are 24 U.S. domestic violations.
25 A There have been violations within the United States, yes, but none

1 associated with the government that I'm aware of.

2 Q Okay. Is there a subset of your team that focuses on the United States

3 specifically?

4 A No.

5 Q Okay. Did anyone on your team, when developing the Facebook's

6 hack-and-leak operations, ever consult with external partners when developing that

7 policy?

8 A I don't recall if that happened.

9 Q Okay. Who else was involved in developing the policy?

10 A David was certainly involved.

11 Q Did he have primary responsibility on the team?

12 A I don't -- I don't -- I don't believe so.

13 Q Do you recall who did?

14 A There was another team member who reported to David, who worked on 15 the hack-and-leak policy as well.

16 Q Do you recall who that was?

17 A It was [redacted].

18 Q And is she still a member of your team?

19 A She recently departed.

20 Q In addition to the FBI, do you recall which other Federal Government 21 agencies will provide information to your team from time to time?

22 A I don't recall other Federal agencies providing information to my team.

23 Q Okay.

24 A Specific information sharing about an operation, for example.

25 Q You don't -- you don't recall.

1 A I don't.

2 Q Okay. When information is received from an external partner, who on your

3 team is receiving it?

4 A Generally, that information would actually go to either the Threat

5 Intelligence team or the Legal team. And then my team would get involved as the 6 investigation developed. We wouldn't necessarily be directly involved.

7 Q Okay. And what is the threat investigation team?

8 A It's a team that does -- it's our investigative team. It's the team that 9 investigates threat actors.

10 Q And with respect to investigating threat actors, which other teams do they 11 work with, in addition to yours?

12 A In addition to mine?

13 Q Yeah.

14 A Our legal team.

15 Q Okay. So all of their investigations are routed one way or the other, to 16 legal or to your team or first through legal and then to you?

17 A The threat investigation team covers a range of issues, not necessarily just

18 the ones that my team works on. Of the ones that my team works on, they would all be 19 routed to both us and legal. We sort of work on these together.

20 Q Is there a subset of the threat investigations team that has a focus on issues

21 related to your team, coordinated inauthentic behavior?

22 A Yes.

23 Q And how big is that subset?

24 A It's changed over time. So it depends when you are asking about it. They

25 are designed, sort of like my team, to be small expert group and then there are other

1 teams that might support them in specific areas.

2 Q Okay. We'll start in 2018. Do you know approximately how big that

3 subset team was?

4 A I don't.

5 Q Do you have a ballpark sense?

6 A Not particularly. I mean --

7 Q Fewer than 100?

8 A Yes.

9 Q Fewer than 50?

10 A Yes.

11 Q Okay. About a dozen?

12 A For the core team, the point here is, is that that core team works with a

13 whole bunch of others. And so, to kind of accurately describe who works on these

14 operations, the number's much, much, much, much larger. But in terms of the lead

15 investigators, it's -- it's smaller than that, yeah.

16 Q And do you have a ballpark sense of when you're talking about the 17 organization and it's much, much bigger, approximately how big?

18 A I mean, we've publicly talked about hundreds of people working on these 19 operations.

20 BY [redacted]

21 Q Can I ask a clarifying question?

22 So when you mentioned that it could be hundreds of people, in the broader

23 scheme, would you say that that is consistently or that number fluctuates?

24 A It's been fairly consistent. I mean, you know, over the course of 5 years, 25 teams change.

1 Q And so, if it's roughly, ballpark, give or take 100, they are split up into smaller
2 groups is what you were describing? I just want to make sure I understand for the -- for 3 the record.
4 A Yeah, I mean, what I was describing -- and we've -- we've actually spoken
5 about this publicly in some detail. And so we can -- that -- that would also be useful to 6 see. But, you know, to counter a foreign interference campaign --
7 Q Uh-huh.
8 A -- you need to have investigators; you need to have policy experts; you need
9 to have lawyers; you need to have product leads; you need to have engineers who can
10 understand how to build the systems, to do the detection and the countering. You need 11 to have a whole range of experts in different areas.
12 And so when I describe this broader effort, I'm talking about a whole range of 13 teams.
14 Q And would --
15 A And they're not necessarily solely focused on this, right? They're focused 16 on different issues.
17 Q And would maybe that team be focused on one specific threat, or could they 18 be focused on multiple foreign threats at once normally?
19 A Well, this is a whole group of different actors and they're focused on a wide
20 range of things. So we're talking here about influence operations, but that's only one
21 component of the broader threat work that we do.
22 BY [redacted]
23 Q You mentioned CISA earlier.
24 Do you know what the acronym stands for?
25 A The Cybersecurity and Infrastructure Security Agency.

1 Q Okay. And what's your understanding of what that agency's role is?

2 A They coordinate, work across the Federal Government to do defensive work

3 to counter cyber threats.

4 Q And are you familiar with the Foreign Influence Task Force --

5 A Not at CISA.

6 Q -- at the FBI?

7 A I believe it's the Foreign Interference Task Force.

8 Q Okay. And what is that?

9 A It's a unit in the FBI designed to counter foreign influence or foreign 10 interference.

11 Q And when you referenced earlier that the FBI would sometimes provide

12 information to your team, was it this task force? Was it other offices within the FBI?

13 A Most frequently it was this task force.

14 Q What other interactions has your team had with this task force?

15 A That's the primary interaction. They also participate in those regular 16 meetings we were talking about.

17 Q Have you worked with FBI Agent Elvis Chan?

18 A Yes.

19 Q And what was the context of your work with Agent Chan?

20 A Foreign interference.

21 Q Okay. In addition to these industry syncs, would the tasks force ever meet

22 just directly with Facebook?

23 A Yes, my understanding is they did do that occasionally.

[11:00 a.m.]

BY [redacted]

Q Do you know who at Facebook would attend these meetings or interface with the task force?

A I don't know specific names.

Q Was it ever you?

A I attended a couple of them, but I didn't regularly join them.

Q What about [redacted]?

A I believe he joined them more frequently than I did.

Q Would he ever brief you on those meetings?

A Sometimes.

Q And when those briefings occurred what form of communication would they be?

A Verbal.

Q Okay. What about [redacted] Do you know if she ever attended these meetings with the task force?

A I don't know for certain, but it wouldn't surprise me if she did.

Q Have you ever worked with the State Department's Global Engagement Center?

A Yes.

Q And what was the context of your interaction?

A They were interested in understanding more about our work to counter foreign interference.

Q Okay. What's your understanding of what the Global Engagement Center does?

1 A My understanding is that at State they track instances of foreign
2 interference, work to expose them.
3 Q Okay. And other than an interaction to try and understand more of what
4 your team did, do you recall any other interactions with the Global Engagement Center?
5 A They would sometimes -- they do public reporting on foreign interference
6 campaigns that they've identified. They would share that public reporting with us.
7 Q And they would share it with you -- when you say they would share this
8 public reporting, they would share this information with you only after they had made it
9 public?
10 A I don't remember the exact timing on whether it was before or after.
11 Q Okay. Other than these public reports, did the Global Engagement Center
12 ever share information with your team?
13 A Not that I'm aware of, or at least not that I recall.
14 Q When they share information, is this in the same context as the task force
15 providing information for your team so you consider taking action?
16 A I'm not sure what the context was. It was simply, We've done this report.
17 We wanted you to be aware of it.
18 Q Okay. Would they reach out just to Facebook, or would it be multiple
19 companies?
20 A I would expect that they'd reach out to other companies, but I don't know.
21 Q But your interactions with it is direct?
22 A Generally, yes.
23 Q Okay. Were you the one on the team interacting with the Global
24 Engagement Center?
25 A I believe I've received some emails from them, and I've certainly -- like, I've met with -- I meet with a lot of different organizations at different points.

Q Sure. Do you recall who at the Global Engagement Center that you met with?

A I don't recall specific names.

Q Do you recall any other team members that engaged with the Global Engagement Center?

A David had also engaged with them at times.

Q Have you had interactions with CISA other than the industry syncs that we mentioned earlier in the hour?

A Occasional, but nothing consistent.

Q Okay. And what were the contexts -- what was the context of those interactions?

A I might be at an event that CISA is at, or it might be that we were speaking with someone from CISA in relation to election threats or other support group.

Q Did CISA ever provide information to your team in the same way that the Global Engagement Center did, the FBI's task force did?

A Not CISA. Other components of DHS do their own intelligence reporting, public reports, that in the same way they would share with us.

[redacted] Can we go off the record, please?

[Recess.]

[redacted] We're back on the record.

EXAMINATION

BY [redacted]

Q And, [redacted], again, I want to thank you for coming in today. Are you local, or did you have to travel here from somewhere else?

1 A I live in the bay area, so I traveled in from California.

2 Q You traveled in from California for this?

3 You've been working in the field of national security and cybersecurity since 2010,

4 correct?

5 A Yes. National security and cybersecurity, yes. I mean, some work in it

6 before that, to be honest.

7 Q Okay. Thank you.

8 And when you were at DOJ in the Honors Program, you focused on cybercrimes,

9 correct?

10 A Correct.

11 Q Computer crimes?

12 And at the National Security Council you said you were the director of 13 cybersecurity policy?

14 A I was one of the directors.

15 Q One of the directors.

16 A Yes.

17 Q Thank you.

18 And you worked on cyber threat information sharing?

19 A Yes.

20 Q And you also worked on public-private cybersecurity cooperation.

21 A Yes.

22 Q And so that was something you dealt with well before you got to Meta.

23 A Yes.

24 Q Okay. And then you went to work in the private sector, correct?

25 A Yes.

1 Q And you were still focused on cybersecurity strategy?
2 A Yes.
3 Q And you have been the head of Meta's cybersecurity -- I'm sorry -- security
4 policy since 2018, although you had a different title when you started?
5 A Correct.
6 Q And to be clear, when I say Meta, I understand that the company had a
7 different name, but anytime I say Meta, I'm referring to the company that was formerly
8 known as Meta if that's the time period that I'm referring to, if that makes sense.
9 So your work at Meta builds upon over a decade of work in the fields of 10 cybersecurity and countering foreign influence?
11 A Yes.
12 Q Now, you spoke a lot during the previous hour about the distinction 13 between actors, behavior, and content, and how your team focuses on actors and 14 behavior.
15 So what that means is you personally don't engage in fact-checking, correct?
16 A Correct.
17 Q And you don't engage in what's commonly known as content moderation?
18 A Correct.
19 Q When your team enforces, you're enforcing based on behaviors.
20 A Or actors.
21 Q Or actors.
22 A Yes.
23 Q And can you explain what you mean by enforcing on actors?
24 A There are certain actors that have been such systematic violators of our 25 policies that they aren't allowed back on our platform, and any action they attempt to

1 take would result in an enforcement.

2 Q Thank you.

3 A For example, the Russian Internet Research Agency is banned from our

4 platform.

5 Q All right. And we're going to talk about them in a little bit.

6 So can you explain how foreign governments, such as Russia and others, use

7 Meta's platforms to interfere in civic events in the United States, including elections?

8 A So what we've seen is that foreign governments -- and there is a lot of focus

9 on Russia, as you say, but other actors, Iran, China -- will look to use any tool they

10 can -- that includes Meta's platforms; it also includes other social media platforms; it

11 might include direct targeting of the press or journalists -- to influence, manipulate,

12 corrupt public debate in the United States or other countries ahead of their elections.

13 So a good example of this would be to think about an influence operation, what

14 we would call coordinated inauthentic behavior, which would essentially mean, on our

15 platform, the actors would use a network of fake accounts. These are accounts that are

16 designed to look like a real person controls them -- and, in this case, a real American, in 17 most cases, controls them -- but are, in fact, controlled centrally by a single organization.

18 And they will be based maybe overseas, but they will try to make themself look like they 19 are local.

20 And then they will engage in public debate, they will take extreme positions, and

21 they will engage across the political spectrum really in an effort to create more division

22 within the United States.

23 We also enforce on something called cyber espionage, which is when, in most

24 cases, a foreign government -- it's essentially a hacking campaign, where they are looking

25 to target and expose information about individuals. These might be individuals in the

1 United States. They might be other individuals overseas.

2 Q And do foreign actors sometimes, in that effort, purchase compromised

3 assets to -- or use social engineering, hacking, to gain access to people's audiences

4 online?

5 A Yes.

6 Q Can you talk about some of the other tactics that foreign influence

7 operations use, like, for example, what is perception hacking?

8 A Perception hacking is essentially an effort to try to convince the public that a

9 hacking campaign has already happened, even though it has not. So in the lead-up to

10 the 2018 midterms Russian actors used this technique, and it's a technique that shares

11 some similarities with hack and leak, which we were talking about earlier.

12 They used this technique where what they did essentially is they purchased a

13 number of fairly ineffective and easy to find fake accounts, which we identified, in part

14 based on information shared to us by the U.S. Government, in the final days before the 15 2018 midterms.

16 These accounts had very little following. They likely -- very few people saw 17 them. They didn't have that much impact.

18 The Russians then -- these actors created a website that basically said:

19 Americans, we have hacked your election. We control who's going to win and lose.

20 And they posted a prediction of who would win every race, which ultimately turned out

21 to be inaccurate. And they offered those fake accounts as evidence of their massive 22 campaign.

23 There was no massive campaign. But by providing this little seed, their goal was

24 to create fear, to hack the perception of American citizens into thinking there was a

25 bigger campaign.

1 In that instance -- and I know we've talked a little bit about -- and we talked in the 2 previous session about information sharing -- in that instance, because we received
3 information from the U.S. Government, we were able to very quickly, within a matter of a
4 day or two, identify and remove and expose these accounts.
5 And the timing was such that the Russian actors sort of ran this perception hack in 6 the final hours before the election. Luckily, in part because of the information sharing,
7 we had found and removed these accounts, which meant that their claims were not
8 verified.
9 But that's an example of perception hacking.
10 Q Thank you. I appreciate that.
11 What about mass reporting?
12 A Mass reporting is a different technique where a threat actor will repeatedly 13 and systematically use -- abuse our reporting systems. So let me back up.
14 We have reporting systems so that users can say, this is a piece of hate speech, or 15 this is a piece of pornography for purposes of content, or they can report an account and 16 say, this account harassed me, this account is sharing personally identifiable information.
17 It's really important to have these systems, because, around the world, we want 18 to make sure that users can report when they see something they think might be 19 violating.
20 Unfortunately, any system you produce, you can expect and you need to prepare
21 for bad actors to try to abuse it. And what mass reporting is, is when actors will come 22 together and pick a target and report that account over and over and over and over and 23 over again in an effort to silence them.
24 We particularly see this in repressive countries where the government or 25 individuals associated with the government might use mass reporting to try to silence

1 regime critics.

2 The good news is we have automated systems in place that prevent someone

3 being reported a thousand times doesn't change the assessments as opposed to them

4 being reported ten times. We have protections in place. You can't just sort of 5 overwhelm someone. And the number of reports doesn't factor into the analysis of 6 whether that account, for example, violated a policy.

7 But we have seen instances where you run a network of thousands of fake

8 accounts that all do the reporting, so they look different, look like different people, in 9 efforts to try to silence critics.

10 Q And so in a situation like that, with regular reporting, if I report a post and I

11 think that it violates your community standards against hate speech, for example, or 12 misinformation, that's not the type of report that you would deal with?

13 A No. My team wouldn't deal with those reports, because those are 14 content-based questions. My team would deal with mass reporting or what we 15 sometimes call coordinated abusive reporting, because it is a behavior.

16 Q Thank you.

17 Do foreign influence operations sometimes coopt domestic actors in their target

18 countries to help amplify their message unbeknownst to those actors?

19 A Yes.

20 Q And can you give some examples of how they might do that?

21 A Sure. Sometimes it is unbeknownst; sometimes it is knowingly. But the

22 Russians, in particular, engage in this type of operation. They know that we are focused

23 on foreign interference, with good reason, and if they can trick an American into 24 representing their message, then it sort of evades that detection.

25 So we have seen Russian actors create fake news organizations. And it's worth

1 noting here. My team investigates and enforces on these operations, but many of these 2 operations are not run on our platforms, or touch our platforms marginally but exist, in 3 large part, off of our platforms.
4 So they -- so Russian actors would create, for example, a fake news organization,
5 and then they would try to hire unwitting Americans or Europeans to report for that news
6 organization. They would let them write whatever they want, but they would give them
7 assignments that sort of point them in particular directions. And, as you might imagine,
8 the editors might shape the messaging in various ways.
9 Now, for us and for my team, what they write isn't the point of the analysis.
10 That's a content question. Rather, it is this is an independent-looking media 11 organization that is, in fact, kind of being surreptitiously controlled by foreign actors, and 12 then these individuals are kind of being unwittingly caught up in this.
13 And we've seen a number of cases where they might have approached influencers 14 online to try to get them to amplify messages without telling them who is behind it or 15 what they're doing.
16 And the people who are approached generally don't like being tricked. And so
17 we've seen a number of campaigns get exposed because the people they approached
18 realized what was happening or were concerned about it, started talking about it. And 19 that gave our teams or other teams the information they needed to identify these 20 connections.
21 Q And if an influence operation is able to successfully trick a popular influencer
22 on one of your platforms to amplify their message, then that message could have an 23 extremely wide reach, correct?
24 A It could, yes. We have found they have had fewer efforts to directly try to 25 trick prominent influencers, presumably because the more prominent you get, the more

1 careful you are about things like this. They might offer to pay money. And if you're
2 very prominent, you may not need the kind of money they're offering. So they're more
3 likely to target sort of smaller, more marginal voices that at least can give their story
4 some lift and can sort of launder their role in it.
5 Q So given the breadth and sophistication of the types of foreign influence
6 operations that you've seen in your work in this field, do you believe that these
7 operations pose a threat to American democracy?
8 A Yes.
9 Q And can you explain the nature of this threat?
10 A Well, I think they pose a threat to the democratic process in the United 11 States and around the world.
12 Q Around the world.
13 A Anytime you're going into an election, it's important that voters be able to 14 understand the issues and evaluate the candidates based on what they believe and the 15 facts. And if a foreign government is trying to insert false narratives or simply just 16 generate conflict that can be used to disturb the debate, even more concretely, it can be 17 used to intimidate voters into not voting.
18 Around the 2020 election, there was an instance -- this was not on our 19 platform -- where Iranian actors essentially emailed a whole range of American voters
20 saying, we know how you voted because we hacked into your systems, and if you didn't 21 vote the right way, you're going to have problems. It's a direct threat.
22 Now, this was a perception hack, like we talked about. They didn't have access
23 to that information. All they had was a list of people in the United States. But that can 24 obviously have a very direct chilling effect on sort of people's will, and this is the reason
25 we have secret ballots.

1 Q And those threats, those types of chilling effects and the other types of 2 threats that you described, are why Meta enforces against CIB, correct?
3 A Correct.
4 Q And other influence operations?
5 A And other threats more broadly, certainly. I think that's right.
6 Q So engaging in foreign interference violates Meta's community standards,
7 correct?
8 A Correct.
9 Q And engaging in CIB, coordinated influence behavior, violates Meta's 10 community standards, correct?
11 A Correct.
12 Q And just using fake accounts generally, misrepresenting yourself online,
13 violates Meta's community standards?
14 A Using fake accounts violates our community standards, yes.
15 Q Thank you. That's actually an important distinction.
16 Does Meta have, in addition to wanting to just protect the values that you
17 described earlier and democratic processes around the world, does Meta have a business
18 interest in fighting these types of behaviors?
19 A Yes.
20 Q Can you explain what that is?
21 A It's important to us that people and I think for our business users need to 22 know -- be able to know who they're talking to online. And the truth is that users don't 23 want to engage on a platform that is full of influence operations.
24 Users want to communicate with their friends. They want to share pictures of 25 cats. They want to connect with their family. And it's important that we be able to

1 show people that we are working to keep that space safe for them and that we're
2 countering these threat actors. That is why we enforce against this stuff, and it's also 3 partly why we are public and quite transparent about it.
4 A lot of the discussion here today has been rooted in public reporting we've done,
5 because it's important that other companies and other defenders know about these 6 campaigns so that they can counter them, but also so that users know about these 7 campaigns so they can keep themselves safe online.
8 Q And also you don't want your users going to other platforms if they feel like
9 they won't be safe on Meta's platforms.
10 A That is certainly true.
11 Q I believe you said earlier -- and, if you didn't, then let me just ask -- Meta's
12 CIB policy was developed, at least in part, in response to foreign interference, particularly 13 by Russians, in the 2016 election, correct?
14 A Correct.
15 Q So Meta did not have a policy against CIB in 2016?
16 A No.
17 Q And, in 2019, Meta updated its inauthentic behavior policy specifically to 18 address CIB?
19 A In 2019, CIB was already in our community standards, but we refined and 20 clarified the language.
21 Q And you publicly posted an article that you authored called "How We 22 Respond to Inauthentic Behavior on Our Platforms: Policy Update," in October of 2021,
23 correct? I'm sorry, 2020. No, sorry, 2021.
24 A I may well have when --
25 Q You know what? I think it was 20 -- I'm sorry. It's been a day. It was

1 October 21st, 2019. Does that sound correct?

2 A It's entirely possible. We put out regular reports that I author, and so I

3 don't know about that specific date.

4 Q Fair enough. But you do know that Meta was working on this in 2019 and 5 2020?

6 A Yes. I mean, we have been working on coordinated inauthentic behavior,

7 countering foreign interference, and generally tracking and countering threat actors

8 since -- some of this before I joined, but certainly since I joined.

9 Q And you joined in 2018.

10 A Correct.

11 Q And that was during the Trump administration.

12 A Correct.

13 Q And you stated this repeatedly, but I just want to be clear. When you

14 enforce against CIB, you're enforcing on the behavior or the actor, not on content?

15 A Correct.

16 Q And so, to use a term that might have come up in law school, Meta's CIB

17 policy is content neutral.

18 A Yes. Or you might say content agnostic, yes.

19 Q And I believe you mentioned this earlier. Some of the content that CIB

20 campaigns promote is, in fact, not false and would be perfectly fine if it's something that,

21 say, I posted.

22 A Yes. The, in fact, significant majority of content in CIB campaigns is 23 not -- doesn't violate community standards or policies.

24 Q And, in fact, it's designed that way so that it doesn't get taken down for 25 other reasons.

1 A Correct. A good example of this, there is an influence operation, a CIB
2 campaign that we removed, that was run by Russian actors. They were operating
3 seemingly independent news organizations across the Baltic States in Eastern Europe.
4 These organizations represented themselves as independent news agencies, both on our
5 platform and off, and the content they posted was largely travel focused. Come visit
6 Riga in the fall. It is beautiful. See our architecture. Eat our food.
7 None of that content violates community standards, and I don't think anyone
8 would want that to. The reason we enforced against that and the reason they were 9 running a campaign like that, presumably, is once you build an audience over time you
10 can introduce more harmful or violative messages.
11 And so having it be content agnostic or content neutral means not only can we be 12 clear and consistent that we're enforcing based on behavior, not content, but we also 13 don't have to wait for them to post something harmful or violating in order to take action.
14 We can stop it earlier.
15 And one of the consequences of this is, if you look at our enforcements of 16 coordinated inauthentic behavior since 2017 -- so we're looking out 5-plus years -- you 17 can see that steadily these are being caught earlier, and they're being caught when 18 they're reaching smaller and smaller audiences. That's part of the goal, is to catch these 19 before they sort of cause the harm.
20 Q Thank you.
21 I want to talk to you about some of the networks that you've taken down during 22 your time at Meta. And I mean you, being Meta. I know that you personally are not 23 doing it.
24 In -- ahead of the 2020 election -- well, let me back up.
25 I believe you said several times that CIB networks will sometimes target people on

1 all sides of the political spectrum.

2 A Yes.

3 Q And you gave an example from China in 2022.

4 A Yes.

5 Q Do you recall a CIB operation connected to Russia's Internet Research

6 Agency that recruited journalists in the U.S. and abroad ahead of the 2020 election?

7 A There were a couple operations that included that tactic.

8 Q And do you recall those operations -- an operation that set up websites at 9 both ends of the political spectrum?

10 A Yes.

11 Q And you took down all of those accounts.

12 A Correct.

13 Q All right. It didn't matter which side of the political spectrum they were on.

14 A Correct.

15 Q In October of 2020 -- well, let me back up a little bit.

16 You said that it's very important to Meta to be transparent about its CIB

17 enforcement operations.

18 A Uh-huh.

19 Q And you stated some of the reasons for that. Another reason is also 20 because, by publishing those enforcement operations, you're hoping to deter others from 21 continuing to engage in this pattern.

22 A There's some of that, yes. Some actors can be deterred by that. I think,

23 more important, or at least as important, is you educate the experts who are trying to

24 counter them at other companies, and you educate the public to reduce the effectiveness

25 of campaigns like this.

1 It's part of why we have actually seen, over the past 5 years, a trend where the
2 most repeated aggressive actors -- Russia is a good example -- have moved increasingly to
3 try to run operations on public websites or off of the major platforms, because they're 4 being caught sooner and sooner.
5 Q So, going back to 2020, you were publishing -- and perhaps you still do -- but 6 specifically in 2020, you would publish reports when you would take down an 7 influence -- a significant influencing operation?
8 A Yes.
9 Q And in your October 2020 Inauthentic Behavior Report you discussed
10 operations that you removed, networks that you removed from Vietnam and Morocco
11 that were posting left-leaning messages. Do you recall that?
12 A I don't recall those operations in particular.
13 [redacted] Can I have exhibit 1, please?
14 Exhibit 1. I get exhibit 1. First time.
15 [[redacted] Exhibit No. 1
16 Was marked for identification.]
17 [redacted] And feel free to take your time, but I'm going to direct your 18 attention to page 1838 when you're ready.
19 [redacted]. Just give me a moment.
20 [redacted] Sure.
21 Oh, I'm sorry, [redacted] Did you not get it? I'm so sorry. Let me know.
22 Mr. Brown. Did you say 1838?
23 [redacted] Yes.
24 Mr. Brown. Great.
25 BY [redacted]

1 Q So --
2 A Just let -- let me just finish.
3 Q Yeah, no. Take your time.
4 A Okay. You said 1838?
5 Q Yes. Thank you.
6 A Uh-huh.
7 Q So one of the posts that Meta removed was from an account named My 8 President Biden, correct?
9 A Yes.
10 Q My President Biden 2020. I'm sorry.
11 A Yes.
12 Q And that account posted a question, "What is the one thing that makes you
13 want to vote for Biden?" correct?
14 A That's certainly what I see here in the report.
15 Q Yes. And the report indicates that, rather than that being a post by an 16 American-based user, U.S.-based user, that was actually posted by an account run out of 17 Morocco.
18 A I'm not sure where the account was run out of, but the operation was run
19 out of Morocco.
20 Q Thank you for that distinction.
21 And this same report discusses foreign spamming groups who tried to leverage
22 the racial justice protests in the U.S. in the summer of 2020 for monetization purposes,
23 and that's on page 1841.
24 A Yes. I see that.
25 Q And the report indicates that Meta continues to see deceptive actors try to

1 exploit moments of crisis or tension by leveraging current events, like the Black Lives
2 Matter protests in May and June 2020, to drive clicks to ad farms or merchandise sites,
3 correct?
4 A Correct. I think it's useful to distinguish here. We've been talking about 5 nation-state, Russia-backed operations that obviously have or one would expect to have 6 political goals. Here we're talking about something different.
7 Q Right.
8 A These are financially motivated actors who are engaging with politics
9 presumably because it allows them to sell merchandise. And they engage with -- you
10 gave an example of politics.
11 We also see them engage on sort of health issues. Whatever they think could 12 help them sell content. I mean, device -- like, they literally sell T-shirts. Sometimes 13 they'll sell medicine or things that are claimed to be medicine that are not, in fact,
14 medicine, things like that.
15 Q And you enforce against those operations as well, regardless of whether the 16 motivation is political or financial, if those operations are deceptive.
17 A Correct. We are careful because what we're seeing here is actors that are 18 using what's called abusive audience building. They're trying to create a fake audience.
19 That makes their content look more popular than it is, because if a piece of content looks
20 popular, the theory is it might motivate other people to be interested in it. So we will 21 enforce against these deceptive networks, yes.
22 Q And so, even if the goal of the operators of those networks is financial, they 23 just want to line their own pockets, the tactics they use could influence public debate in 24 the U.S. or elsewhere.
25 A Certainly.

1 Q And it could sow division in the U.S. and other countries.

2 A Yes.

3 Q And so, in this October 2020 report, you removed people behind an account

4 that posted images of George Floyd, one which said George Floyd and used the hashtag

5 Justice for Floyd, correct?

6 A That's what I see in the report.

7 Q And the report indicates that these were profile photos used by spammers

8 from Vietnam and Cambodia.

9 A I see that.

10 Q And it didn't matter that they were using profile photos and posting about 11 themes that were -- many would associate with the American left.

12 A The contents of this wouldn't matter. What we -- in fact, we regularly

13 see -- here, we're talking about financially motivated actors. Financially motivated

14 actors engage with issues on all portions of the political spectrum around the world.

15 They're not interested in a particular point of view. They're interested in trying to 16 deceive people and trying to make money.

17 Q And you take them down regardless.

18 A We do.

19 Q Thank you.

20 I want to talk a little bit about Meta's information sharing with the 21 U.S. Government in its fight against CIB and foreign influence.

22 You were asked some questions about the Foreign Influence Task Force. Do you

23 know, when did Meta start communicating with the Foreign Influence Task Force?

24 A I don't remember the exact -- I don't remember when we started

25 communicating with them.

1 Q Do you remember if you were engaging with them before the -- before
2 President Biden was inaugurated?
3 A Was inaugurated?
4 Q Yeah.
5 A Certainly, yes.
6 Q Okay. So that relationship began at least during the Trump administration
7 or was active during the Trump administration.
8 A My memory is that that relationship began around when the task force was 9 created.
10 Q And do you know when that was?
11 A I don't remember exactly, but it was during the Trump administration, yes.
12 Q Thank you.
13 And Meta's communication with the task force and relationship with the task
14 force is a voluntary choice that Meta makes, correct?
15 A Yes.
16 Q You could choose not to receive information from them if you wanted to.
17 A True.
18 Q And you could choose not to have members of your team attend their
19 meetings.
20 A Correct.
21 Q And did any government official ever tell Meta that it was required to work
22 with or communicate with the task force?
23 A No.
24 Q Why did Meta choose to work with the task force?
25 A We generally look to receive information from external parties. We would

1 much rather get information than not get it so that we can then subsequently conduct
2 our own investigation. And if we identify something that violates our policies, we then
3 take action.
4 We certainly have seen cases -- in fact, we talked about one a few minutes
5 ago -- where the U.S. Government was able to share information with us that helped us
6 identify a foreign interference campaign, a CIB operation, that we were then able to 7 enforce against.
8 Q And the information sharing is a two-way street, correct? You will notify 9 sometimes government actors ahead of publishing your CIB reports, or at the time you
10 publish your CIB reports, to let them know of networks that you've uncovered?
11 A Yes.
12 Q And the task force is not focused just on foreign influence on -- well, let me
13 ask you. Is it focused just on foreign influence on U.S. elections, or is it focused on 14 foreign influence globally?
15 A I'm actually not sure if it's focused globally.
16 Q You're not sure. Fair enough.
17 You talked about communications with the State Department's Global 18 Engagement Center. Do you know when that relationship with Meta began?
19 A I don't remember the -- when it began, no.
20 Q But do you remember communicating with them in 2020?
21 A Yes.
22 Q And, again, that was during the Trump administration.
23 A Yes.
24 Q And as with the Foreign Influence Task Force, Meta's communication with 25 the Global Engagement Center is entirely voluntary.

1 A Yes.

2 Q You could choose to cut off that line of communication at any time.

3 A Yes.

4 Q But you prefer to keep it open because, as you said, it's important to Meta to 5 identify as many of these networks as possible.

6 A Yes. And I would rather we get the information and be able to conduct the 7 investigation ourselves.

8 Q And you talked about Meta's relationship with CISA and the industry working

9 group meetings.

10 A Yes.

11 Q That also is a voluntary relationship?

12 A Yes.

13 Q You could choose not to participate at any time?

14 A Yes.

15 Q But you choose to participate?

16 A We do.

17 Q Okay. And with both of those, the Global Engagement Center and CISA, are 18 those also two-way communication? You're receiving information, but also sharing it

19 sometimes?

20 A Certainly.

21 Q Okay.

22 A Although, to the point we discussed earlier, in terms of information received

23 from government, specific tips about -- specific information about operations were more

24 likely received from the FBI than other partners.

25 Q And when Meta receives the tips, specific tips about operations, whether it's

1 from the FBI or other nongovernmental partners, you don't just act, correct?

2 A No.

3 Q Meta conducts its own internal investigation.

4 A Correct. Whenever we receive information from any third party, whether

5 government or nongovernment, we conduct our own investigation based on what they

6 share with us.

7 If we ultimately identify assets on our platform that violate our policies, we then

8 take the decision to take action, but only based on our own independent investigation.

9 Q And based on your own independent determination that --

10 A Yes.

11 Q -- the information uncovered by the investigation violates Meta's community

12 standards.

13 A Correct. In fact, often the information received isn't about our platform.

14 So it might be an awareness that there are websites that may be controlled by Russian

15 actors that we can't even act on that directly. We run our own investigation. And if

16 based on that information we identify assets on our platform, we take the decision

17 whether or not to act depending on if they violate our policies.

18 Q And it's Meta's decision, not the government's.

19 [redacted] I'm sorry, Reg.

20 Mr. Brown. We're getting close to noon.

21 [redacted] I'm happy to take a break in the middle, whatever you guys

22 prefer.

23 Mr. Brown. Yeah. We'd prefer -- why don't we finish this line, and then we'll 24 take a break.

25 [redacted] Okay. This, I think, will be fairly quick.

1 BY [redacted]

2 Q So when an account is taken down for violating Meta's policies against CIB or

3 foreign influence, it's not because the government wanted an account or a page

4 removed, correct?

5 A Correct.

6 Q It's because Meta made the decision.

7 A When we take action on a piece of content under our CIB policies or other

8 policies, it's because we make that determination.

9 Q And, if you do not take action --

10 A It's also because we make that determination.

11 Q Thank you.

12 [redacted] You know what? We can stop here, and I'll pick up.

13 Mr. Brown. Thank you.

14 [Recess.]

15 [redacted] Okay. We're back on the record.

16 And I want to start, [redacted], by cleaning something up that I handled very

17 inelegantly before, and I'd like to introduce into the record exhibit 2, which is the policy

18 update from October 21st, 2019.

19 [[redacted] Exhibit No. 2

20 Was marked for identification.]

21 [redacted] Actually, can I get one?

22 Mr. Brown. Do you have any more? I'm sorry.

23 [redacted] I'm sorry?

24 BY [redacted]

25 Q And the only question I'm going to ask you about that, [redacted], is you

1 authored this document, correct?

2 A I certainly see my name there, yes.

3 Q Okay. And it was published on Meta's platform on -- well, on Meta's

4 website on October 21st, 2019.

5 A [Nonverbal response.]

6 Q Thank you.

7 So we were talking before the break about Meta's choice to communicate with

8 government agencies and Meta's independent evaluation of tips, other information it

9 receives about CIB networks.

10 To your knowledge, has anyone in any government agency ordered Meta to take

11 down an account or page that it believed was violating your policies against influence

12 operations or CIB?

13 A You mean a U.S. Government agency?

14 Q U.S. Government agency, correct.

15 A No.

16 Q And, to your knowledge, has any U.S. Government agency -- anyone in a

17 U.S. Government agency ever tried to coerce or pressure Meta into taking down an 18 account that it believed violated Meta's policies against foreign interference or CIB?

19 A No.

20 Q And those are policies that you deal with, correct?

21 A Correct.

22 Q And, to your knowledge, has anyone in the government threatened Meta

23 with any adverse consequences if it did not take down accounts that it thought violated

24 Meta's policies against foreign influence?

25 A No.

1 Q You spoke earlier about foreign influence operations of other countries that
2 sometimes operate against their own citizens.
3 Your work is global, correct?
4 A Yes.
5 Q You're looking for influence operations that operate wholly outside the
6 United States --
7 A Yes.
8 Q -- and that target countries, including the United States, but also other
9 countries.
10 A Yes.
11 Q So you remove networks that operate in another country and target another
12 country that have nothing to do with the United States.
13 A Yes.
14 Q And of the top five sources of CIB networks from 2017 to 2020, the U.S.
15 ranked fourth, correct?
16 A Do you mean sources?
17 Q Sources.
18 A Yes.
19 Q Russia had the most CIB networks operating during that time period?
20 A Correct.
21 Q Does that sound right?
22 And then Iran and Myanmar, and then the U.S.
23 A That sounds correct.
24 Q Okay. China's also a growing source of CIB networks?
25 A Growing.

1 Q And from 2020 to 2020 -- I'm sorry -- from 2017 to 2020, including through
2 the 2020 election, Meta removed only nine CIB networks in the United States, correct,
3 that were based in the United States?
4 A I don't remember the exact number, but that sounds right.
5 Q But it was a small number.
6 [redacted] And that is it for me. I did not realize it was so short, but very
7 well.
8 I assume you do not want to break before we go back, just to switch sides and 9 that's it?
10 [redacted] Can we go off the record?
11 [Discussion off the record.]
12 [redacted] Back on the record, please.
13 BY [redacted]
14 Q [redacted], during the first hour we discussed briefly CISA and what your 15 understanding of what their role was.
16 Do you know if, as part of CISA's responsibilities, is it your understanding that the 17 Agency deals with issues related to misinformation, disinformation, and malinformation?
18 A Yes.
19 Q And during the first hour you mentioned the company's perspective of what 20 misinformation is, content based versus an actor, behavior based, and mentioned that 21 malinformation doesn't really incorporate to how Facebook approaches these issues.
22 What is your understanding of what the government means by malinformation?
23 A I can't speak to how they define it.
24 Q What is your understanding of what they mean when they use the term?
25 A Yeah. It's a hard term to define. I really can't speak to how they define it.

1 Q Have you ever had interactions with the government where the term has 2 been used?
3 A It's used pretty widely, so I would expect that I have, but I don't recall any 4 specific interactions.
5 Q And if, let's say, someone from CISA were to use the term, is there a most 6 common definition that you would understand them to mean?
7 A Not necessarily. I have found it to be used in a lot of different ways.
8 Q Okay. What are some of those ways?
9 A I find it to be sort of a catchall, a catchall definition. I really don't have a
10 specific definition for it.
11 Q Are there any specific instances you can recall --
12 A No.
13 Q -- where it's been used?
14 A No.
15 Q Has it ever been used in a way to mean truthful information that lacks
16 adequate context?
17 A I don't know. It's possible, but I don't recall anything like that.
18 Q When engaging with the government and someone uses this term and there
19 appears to be ambiguity about the term's meaning, do you recall anyone raising concerns
20 about what people meant by that term?
21 A I don't recall specific interactions about the term. So I don't.
22 Q Okay. Are you familiar with the October 2020 New York Post story on 23 Hunter Biden's laptop?
24 A Broadly, yes.
25 Q Okay. And are you familiar with what actions Facebook took with respect

1 to moderating the story?

2 A Yes.

3 Q And when did you first learn of the steps that Facebook took with respect to 4 moderating the story?

5 A I don't recall the exact time.

6 Q Okay. Do you know what those steps are?

7 A Yes.

8 Q And what are they?

9 A My team is responsible for the hack-and-leak policy, and so we did not take 10 any steps under the policy that my team coordinates.

[12:42 p.m.]

BY [redacted]

Q Okay. But you said you're familiar with the steps the company did take. Do you know what those steps were?

A I'm not an expert in those. You'd want to talk to the teams that manage those policies. They can certainly give you a better answer there.

Q Let's take one step back. You said your team handles the hack-and-leak policy. If I understood your answer correctly, the company did not take any actions under the companies hack-and-leak policy. Is that correct?

A Correct.

Q Okay. And who from your team was involved in assessing whether the hack-and-leak policy potentially applied?

A I was involved.

Q Okay. And do you recall if you were assessing this matter the day the story came out?

A I believe so. I would expect so.

Q [redacted] came and was interviewed by the committee. He had referenced that there were three elements that your team assesses when assessing a potential hack and leak? Are you familiar with what three elements he was referring to?

A [redacted] is more directly responsible for the hack-and-leak policy than I am.

Q Okay. He mentioned issuing a recommendation to you that the hack-and-leak policy did not apply. Do you recall receiving a recommendation from David?

A I don't recall the specifics of our conversation, but that makes sense.

Mr. Brown. He said he's sure, but generally speaking. I just want to be precise

1 about that.

2 BY [redacted]

3 Q Sure. So he communicated in some way --

4 A Yeah.

5 Q -- that the policy did not apply.

6 Do you know who else at the company he communicated his recommendation to?

7 A No. I don't have other specific people.

8 Q Okay. Did you communicate his recommendation to anyone else at the

9 company?

10 A I expect that I would've, but I don't remember specifically who.

11 Q If you had, who would've been an appropriate point of contact at the

12 company?

13 A I don't remember who we did specifically communicate it to.

14 Q In your normal course of business, would it have been appropriate to report

15 it to [redacted]?

16 A Potentially.

17 Q Do you recall having any discussions with [redacted] the day the story was 18 issued?

19 A I don't.

20 Q Did you share the recommendation with [redacted]?

21 A I don't recall.

22 Q Do you recall having communications with the misinformation team on the 23 day that the story was issued?

24 A On the day that the story was issued? I believe so, yes.

25 Q And what was the context of those interactions?

1 A After -- it was supporting them in their own policy analysis. As we
2 mentioned, there was multiple policies in play.
3 Q And what sort of support were you providing? You say you were 4 supporting their analysis.
5 A They had a specific question, and we were trying to get them context on it.
6 Q What was their question?
7 A They were specifically asking whether there were external experts raising
8 questions about the veracity of the story.
9 Q And do you recall the day the story was issued whether you were able to 10 provide a response?
11 A Yes.
12 Q And what was your response?
13 A I believe I looked back at, for example, Twitter and public commentary to 14 share what some experts were saying publicly about it.
15 Q When you reference experts, were any of those experts employed by the 16 Federal Government?
17 A I don't believe so.
18 Q With respect to the actions that the company ultimately did take, to your 19 understanding, under which of the company's policies was that action taken under?
20 A As I said, I think my team was focused on the hack-and-leak analysis. For 21 the other policies, you'd do better to talk to the other teams that manage those policies.
22 Q Sure. Recognizing what your position is and what your team's position is,
23 what is your understanding as far as which team and which section of the policy were 24 responsible for action about the story?
25 A My understanding is that it was under the misinfo policy team.

1 Q In addition to your discussions with [redacted], did you have discussions with
2 [redacted] on the day the story was issued?
3 A I don't recall specific discussions, but it's possible.
4 Q Do you know who the final decisionmaker was the day the story was issued
5 with respect to deciding to take some sort of action against the story?
6 A I mean, no, I don't.
7 Q If -- under standard protocol, who would be the appropriate person?
8 A It would depend on the situation. Things sort of vary.
9 Q Okay. Under this situation, who would be the appropriate person?
10 A As I said, I don't recall who -- who made the final decision.
11 Q Sure. With the understanding that you don't recall, the company has 12 protocols about how certain situations are handled. For a situation like this one, who 13 would be the appropriate person to make the decision?
14 A I mean, this was a fast-moving situation, and so I don't recall who made the 15 final call.
16 Q Yeah. Again, recognizing you don't recall who made the final decision, the 17 question is, with respect to how the company handles these types of issues. When 18 there are fast-moving issues, who at the company is responsible for making that decision?
19 A There are a range of different decisions, so different people make these 20 calls. In this case, the misinfo policy team rolls up to [redacted].
21 Q Okay. Are you familiar with a statement that was released about 5 days
22 after the story was issued? The statement was issued by 51 former intel officials from 23 both Republican and Democrat administrations. Do you have familiarity with that 24 statement?
25 A I'm aware of it and was aware of it when it was reported.

1 Q Did any of the 51 former intel officials contact you before the statement was
2 released?
3 A Not that I recall.
4 Q During that period of when the story was released, to 5 days after, did any 5 external experts contact you regarding the veracity of the story of the laptop?
6 A I don't recall any specific contacts during that period.
7 Q Okay. After you provided an initial response to [redacted] and the 8 misinformation team the day the story was issued, do you recall if there was a request for 9 you to continually update them if you heard any additional information?
10 A I wish I could help you. I don't recall that.
11 Q How did your communications with [redacted] take place?
12 A In the course of figuring out what to do, we discussed it.
13 Q Sure.
14 Do you recall if it was over the phone? By email?
15 A Yeah, I don't recall the format.
16 Q Okay. What was your most frequent form of communication with
17 [redacted]?
18 A With [redacted] in particular?
19 Q Yes.
20 A We communicated a lot of different ways.
21 Q Email?
22 A We've been on email together certainly.
23 Q Is there internal messenger system in the company?
24 A We do use an internal messenger system sometimes.
25 Q And what's that called?

1 A WorkChat.

2 Q During your discussions with [redacted], do you recall her

3 communicating -- actually, let me strike that.

4 When you first communicated with [redacted], had a decision already been made

5 with respect to whether to take steps to moderate the story?

6 A I don't recall the exact timeline of when I spoke to her, so I don't know.

7 Q And again, just to clarify -- I don't think we got this -- to your understanding,

8 what steps did Facebook take with respect to the story?

9 A My understanding, and as I said, I'm not the expert on this policy, but my

10 understanding is that in cases where there are questions about the veracity of a story,

11 that can be referred to third-party, independent fact-checkers to conduct their analysis,

12 and while they are reviewing, that story can be temporarily demoted.

13 That it's -- it's not removed and it was not taken down, but it can have its

14 distribution reduced. That is my understanding of what was done here, which is a fairly

15 common, or at least consistent thing that we've done under our policies for some time.

16 Q Okay. And do you know for how long it was demoted?

17 A I don't recall the exact amount of time.

18 Q Do you have a ballpark estimate?

19 A I don't know.

20 Q Are you familiar with the interview Mark Zuckerberg gave with Joe Rogan in 21 August of 2022?

22 A I'm aware of it. I haven't watched it, but I'm aware of it.

23 Q Do you think it was about a week the story was demoted? Was it before?

24 Let me ask -- let me start with that.

25 Are you aware of whether the story was -- any content restrictions on it were

1 removed before the election?

2 A I'm not aware of the exact timing.

3 Q Do you know which third-party fact-checkers were reviewing the story?

4 A No.

5 Q Who at the company would know that?

6 A It certainly wouldn't be me or my team. We don't work with those actors.

7 Q Would [redacted] know?

8 A Potentially. The misinfo policy team does work with them.

9 Q Would [redacted] know?

10 A I'm not sure.

11 Q Do you know what the third-party fact-checkers, when they conducted their 12 analysis, what they determined to be the case?

13 A No. I wasn't part of that.

14 Q Do you know if they provided an answer to the company one way or the 15 other?

16 A I don't know how that process functions.

17 Q Do you know what aspects of the article were subject to analysis by the 18 third-party fact-checkers?

19 Mr. Brown. He just told you he didn't have any involvement.

20 BY [redacted]

21 Q Did anyone at the company question your team's judgment with respect to 22 whether the hack-and-leak policy applied?

23 A No. There's a discussion about these things always to make sure you get to 24 the right choice.

25 Q Do you recall there being a discussion in this case?

1 A Not after we made our recommendation.

2 Q Is it your recollection that the recommendation came out the day the story

3 was issued?

4 A I'm sorry, which recommendation?

5 Q With respect to your team, whether the hack-and-leak policy applied?

6 A I don't recall exactly when we offered that.

7 Q Okay.

8 [redacted] Can we go off the record, please.

9 [Discussion off the record.]

10 [redacted] Can we go back on the record, please.

11 [redacted]. Sure. I believe I gave it on the day that it came out.

12 [redacted] Okay. Great. Thank you.

13 Can we go back off the record.

14 [Discussion off the record.]

15 [redacted] We'll go back on the record, please.

16 Mr. Brown. Can we go off for 1 second before we start?

17 [Discussion off the record.]

18 [redacted] Back on the record, please.

19 [redacted] This will be exhibit 3.

20 [Majority Exhibit No. 3.

21 Was marked for identification.]

22 Mr. Brown. This is exhibit 3?

23 [redacted] Yeah.

24 BY [redacted]

25 Q I'll give you a moment to review. This is a transcript of a Signal group chat.

1 Mr. Brown. Are there particular pages that you would like him to focus on?

2 [redacted] We'll highlight a couple --

3 Mr. Brown. This is not our document.

4 [redacted] So we can get started and then when we get to a page, give him a

5 moment to read it and ask questions about it if that works.

6 Mr. Brown. And we'll wait a minute.

7 BY [redacted]

8 Q Take your time.

9 A Yeah.

10 Okay.

11 Q Great. First, do you recognize this group chat?

12 A Yes.

13 Q And what is it?

14 A This is -- or at least it looks like a broadcast channel that was set up in the 15 final days before the 2020 election.

16 Q And this channel was on Signal? Is that your understanding?

17 A Yes.

18 Q What was the purpose of this Signal channel?

19 A The purpose was so that FBI could share with an industry group any 20 indicators of threats to the election that they needed to share.

21 Q In addition to the FBI, are you aware of any other government agencies that 22 were involved?

23 A No.

24 Q Would you, in the lead-up to the 2020 election, participate in other Signal

25 channels that had members of government agencies on it?

1 A No.

2 Q Do you recall who set up this channel?

3 A I think it was at the FBI's suggestion that they be able to share stuff with us,

4 if that's what you mean.

5 Q And when you mention the industry partners, not necessarily to go person

6 by person, but at a high level, are these the same industry partners that were involved in

7 the sync meetings during 2020?

8 A More or less.

9 Q Was there overlap?

10 A Yes.

11 Q In addition to Signal and the meetings, how else did the Federal Government

12 communicate with you and your team?

13 A These were the two sort of regular mechanisms for communication.

14 Q With would the FBI ever send you teleporter attachments?

15 A I don't recall any.

16 Q Okay. Do you know what a teleporter attachment is?

17 A I'm not sure.

18 Q Do you know who determined who had access to this channel?

19 A There was no particular protocol that I'm aware of.

20 Q Okay. Did you need a clearance to join it?

21 A No.

22 Q If we can turn to page 5 which is Bates stamp-numbered 15042.

23 A Uh-huh.

24 Q At the top, just a couple lines down, it says, Yoel Roth added Nathaniel. Do

25 you recall joining this channel?

1 A Yes.

2 Q And if you flip back to page 2, Bates number 15039, a couple lines up from

3 the bottom, it's a message from [redacted] Hey, y'all, [redacted] from the Facebook.

4 Do you recall if [redacted] -- do you recall [redacted] being a member of this channel as

5 well?

6 A Yes.

7 Q And then if I could have you turn back to page 5 that we were on just a

8 moment ago, 15042 --

9 A Uh-huh.

10 Q -- there's a message saying, Hello all, this is the FBI San Francisco Command

11 Post. We will activate on Friday.

12 Is it your understanding that this number representing the FBI was, in fact, the 13 FBI?

14 A Yes.

15 Q Do you know how it was verified that this was the FBI's number joining the 16 group?

17 A I don't remember exactly how that was done.

18 Q Do you know if -- actually let me take a step back.

19 Who is Yoel Roth?

20 A Yoel Roth was -- is -- or was an employee at Twitter at this point.

21 Q Okay. And did you interact with him outside of these industry syncs?

22 A Yes.

23 Q And what was the context of those interactions?

24 A Yoel led teams that Yoel oversaw, grapple with foreign interference, and so,

25 we would speak about those issues. Often when foreign threat actors are running a

1 campaign, in fact in almost all cases, they don't target just one platform. I think our
2 record is an operation that targeted more than 300 platforms across the internet. So
3 you need to be in contact with the teams at other companies who are also looking for 4 these threats.
5 Q Taking page 5 as one example, Mr. Roth appears to play, at least a
6 somewhat active role in adding members. Do you recall who helped facilitate 7 communications between industry partners and government?
8 A What do you mean when you say, "facilitate"?
9 Q Was there one member of industry that played, you know, a more significant 10 role than others?
11 A I seem to recall that, I believe, that Yoel actually created this thread. We all
12 participated.
13 Q If we could turn to page 10, which is Bates number 15047, it's a message
14 from Mr. Roth saying, Hi all, I'll shortly be adding a number of contacts from DHS-CISA to 15 this group.
16 And then --
17 A Oh. Uh-huh.
18 Q -- about two-thirds of the way down, some names are added -- [redacted]
19 CISA, [redacted], and [redacted]. Do you -- are you familiar with any of those 20 names?
21 A I'm sorry. What was your question?
22 Q Sure. The three individuals that Mr. Roth adds on page 10 -- Robert S.,
23 Pierce Lowary, and Alex Zaheer -- are you familiar with any of those individuals?
24 A I recognize the names, but I don't know who they are specifically.
25 Q Do you know if they worked for CISA?

1 A I don't recall.

2 Q If you turn one page, page 11, 15048 at the very bottom, Mr. Roth adds

3 someone named [redacted]. Do you know who Mr. Stafford is?

4 A No, I don't.

5 Q I call your attention to page -- it will be on page 14. The name is at the 6 bottom of page 13, [redacted].

7 A Sorry, what's the Bates?

8 Q Sure. 15050 at the very bottom, it says [redacted] CISA, and then his post is 9 actually on the following page, page 14, 15051.

10 If I could call your attention to the middle of page 14 --

11 A Sorry, which is the Bates stamp?

12 Q Sorry. Bates stamp is 15051.

13 The "to" line is misinformation Reports, and the email address associated says

14 misinformation@cisecurity.org. Are you familiar with the Center for Internet Security?

15 A I know -- I know the name, but I don't know much about it.

16 Q Okay. Are you familiar with any efforts by CIS to set up a misinformation

17 portal?

18 A Not -- no.

19 Q Do you have familiarity with the Elections Infrastructure Information Sharing

20 and Analysis Center, sometimes referred to as EI-ISAC?

21 Mr. Brown. Sorry, can you repeat that name again?

22 [redacted] Sure. The Elections Infrastructure Information Sharing and Analysis

23 Center, and the acronym is EI-IS AC.

24 [redacted]. I recognize the name, but I don't have any particular context on it.

25 BY [redacted]

1 Q In your role at Meta, you have not worked with them?
2 A I don't recall working with them.
3 Q Going back, you mentioned that the purpose of this channel is to share
4 information. With respect to the information that was being shared, did that include
5 reports related to misinformation and disinformation?
6 A Well, looking here at the document, I see reports that describe themselves
7 as misinformation. As we've discussed, the terms are a little unclear. These also look
8 like they were directed at Twitter.
9 Yeah, I see that there are also reports that look more in the realm of what we 10 would describe as threat actors.
11 Q Okay.
12 A With a quick scan, it looks like the majority are in that department.
13 Q Sure.
14 If we could keep your attention on Bates number 15051, with this particular 15 report, there's a -- right underneath the picture, the first two lines read, misinformation
16 report, inaccurate tweet.
17 That is a content-based assessment. Is that correct?
18 A Yes. Although I mean, to be honest, I didn't write this, so I don't know 19 exactly what their intent is.
20 Q Sure.
21 And so information related to the accuracy of information is outside of your 22 team's scope. Is that right?
23 A Correct.
24 Q And which team at Facebook would be responsible for handling an issue
25 related to inaccurate information being posted?

1 A Well, this is referring to tweets, so --

2 Q Yes.

3 A -- this wouldn't be relevant for us.

4 Q Sure.

5 Setting aside this specific example, if it was an analogous example with an

6 inaccurate -- concerns of inaccurate information being posted on Facebook, which team

7 at Facebook would be appropriate to handle?

8 A I mean, it's tricky to speculate, because for different policy areas, different

9 teams engage in them. So it would really depend on the specific circumstance.

10 Q Okay. With issues related to election misinformation, which team at 11 Facebook would be best suited to handle that information?

12 A I mean, it depends a little bit on the nature of the question or the particular 13 information that's being claimed.

14 Q Which teams -- what would it depend on?

15 A These are -- I know we've talked about this, but these are content-focused

16 areas, so I don't know all the details for how we would analyze or route that.

17 Q Okay. Are there multiple teams that analyze content at Facebook with 18 respect to whether it's accurate or not?

19 A Well, we have a range of content policies that different teams support.

20 Q Okay. Does Ms. Isola's team work among, among other things, election

21 misinformation-related issues?

22 A They do.

23 Q Okay. If the government, or any external partner, were to provide your

24 team with information that was an analysis that was content-based, which you said is 25 outside your team's scope, who would you pass that information along to?

1 A It -- I mean, in this circumstance, we wouldn't pass it along to anyone
2 because it was a reference to Twitter.
3 Q Sure. But setting aside this specific example, when information is shared
4 with your team, and if that information is assessing the content, which again, as you say,
5 is outside of your team's scope, who would you pass it along to at Facebook?
6 A I don't recall that happening, so I don't have a specific example there.
7 Q Okay. You have no recollection of ever receiving reports regarding 8 misinformation or otherwise inaccurate claims?
9 A I don't -- again, this is my memory, right, so I could be forgetting something.
10 There was certainly a lot happening around the elections, but I don't recall a specific case
11 of my team receiving a report of a claimed, specific piece of content and then referring it 12 on.
13 Q Okay. What would the company's protocol be if you were to receive a 14 report regarding misinformation, something potentially factually inaccurate? How 15 would you handle that?
16 A It would depend on the particular piece of content that was referred to me.
17 I'd want to make sure that the right team could see it and determine how to proceed.
18 Q And how would you determine who the right team is?
19 A Well, I'm not an expert in understanding sort of content that's shared in, so
20 we would have kind of a group that would help understand who it should go to, but it 21 wouldn't be my team necessarily.
22 Q I mean, would you contact [redacted]?
23 A It really depends on the particular piece of content.
24 Q Well, say, with election-related misinformation, who would be an 25 appropriate contact to share that with?

1 A This is what I'm -- I mean, it really depends on the piece of content we're
2 talking about. There are different teams that handle different parts of election issues,
3 and so it's hard to give you one specific example or answer that will cover every 4 hypothetical that could fit under what we're discussing.
5 Q Okay. It doesn't have to cover every hypothetical. What are some 6 examples that come to mind?
7 A As I said, what we would do is, we would route it to sort of a team that
8 would understand which content team should handle it. I don't necessarily know --
9 Q The intermediary team that decided which content team should handle it,
10 who are you referring to?
11 A So whenever we run an election, we have kind of a rapid response capability
12 to make sure that we can handle issues that come up.
13 Q Okay. In 2020, who handled the rapid response team?
14 A I don't know the specific name. It's a rotating sort of exercise.
15 Q Do you know how far in advance the rapid response team is put together?
16 A I don't know the specific time that it started.
17 Q Do you know which elections had a rapid response team?
18 A I don't know the specific elections. A number of different ones.
19 Q Did the 2022 midterms -- U.S. midterms have a rapid response team?
20 A I would expect so.
21 Q And the 2020 U.S. Presidential election?
22 A I would expect so.
23 Q Do you know if the U.S. 2018 midterms had a rapid response team?
24 A I would expect so.
25 Q If I could turn your attention to page 27 --

1 Mr. Brown. Can we take a break for a second?

2 [redacted] Yeah.

3 [Discussion off the record.]

4 [redacted] Can we go back on the record, please.

5 BY [redacted]

6 Q If I could have you turn to Bates number 15064, page 27, there are a few

7 posts from Mr. Roth, and then it continues onto the following page, and at the top of

8 page 29, Bates number 15066, where Mr. Roth says, My error, wrong channel, but all info

9 is public anyway.

10 Do you know which other channels Mr. Roth may have been referring to?

11 A No, I don't.

12 Q Were there similar Signal channels that you participated in?

13 A No, not that I recall.

14 Q Do you know who at the FBI was operating the FBI's account?

15 A I do not.

16 Q When you were having the industry sync meetings and the FBI had a

17 representative attend these meetings, do you recall who most frequently attended from

18 the FBI?

19 A No, I don't.

20 Q Are there any names that you recall?

21 A No, I don't.

22 Q Do you recall if Agent Jan ever attended the industry sync meetings?

23 A I don't recall specifically, but it's certainly possible.

24 Q With respect to the rapid response team that you had referenced a few 25 answers ago, do you have a sense of how big those teams were?

1 A It varies based on election timing.

2 Q As part of your role at Meta, do you have interactions with those teams?

3 A Sometimes.

4 Q And what's the nature of those interactions?

5 A The purpose of those teams is to sort of coordinate our work, thinking,

6 across an election and all threats that could relate. So it's part of that.

7 Q Do you recall if you had any interactions with the 2020 rapid response team

8 in the days following the October 2020 New York Post story on Hunter Biden's laptop?

9 A No, I don't.

10 Q You don't recall or you didn't have interactions?

11 A I don't believe that I did, and I don't recall interactions.

12 Q Okay. We can take these back.

13 Thank you.

14 This will be exhibit 4.

15 [Majority Exhibit No. 4.

16 Was marked for identification.]

17

18 Mr. Brown. Do you have any idea what you want to focus on here?

19 [redacted] Yeah. There will be specific pages we'll go through, and if the 20 witness is comfortable, we can tee up which page we're going to look at, give him a

21 chance to review, and then ask the questions or --

22 Mr. Brown. I mean, it's a long document, and I don't know what it is, so --

23 [redacted] Sure. I'm happy to represent that this is an industry-only Signal

24 channel that coordinates in conjunction with the industry syncs with the U.S.

25 Government, both the meetings and the Signal channel that was --

1 Mr. Brown. Okay. And you believe that he was a participant?

2 [redacted] Yes. We can --

3 Mr. Brown. I just want to understand that, just so I can decide how much time

4 he needs.

5 [redacted] Sure. On page 3, there's a reference to Mr. Roth updating the group

6 and [redacted] joining the group. The first question was going to be if he recalls

7 participating in this channel.

8 Mr. Brown. Why don't you take a second to read.

9 [redacted]. Just one more minute.

10 All right. Happy to get started, but I don't -- I mean, I haven't had time to read 11 the entire thing.

12 BY [redacted]

13 Q Sure.

14 A -- may have to go back to particular parts.

15 Q I understand.

16 So first, do you recall participating in this channel?

17 A Yes.

18 Q And to your understanding what was the purpose of this channel?

19 A To have a coordination space for industry to share information about threats

20 that we were tracking.

21 Q And to your understanding, was there significant overlap between the 22 personnel participating in this channel with the industry personnel participating in the 23 previous channel, exhibit 3, that we looked at?

24 A On the industry side, yes.

25 Q If I could --

1 [redacted] [redacted] would I be able to do a little bit questioning --

2 [redacted] Sure.

3 BY [redacted]

4 Q If I could have you turn to page 5, Bates number is 16076, about a third of

5 the way down, there's a post from you saying, Anyone else want to jump in after [redacted]

6 And then if you turn the page, I'll give you a moment to read everything, but there

7 are two more posts from you on Bates number 16077.

8 A Uh-huh. Okay.

9 Q Do you recall using this channel during meetings with the U.S. Government?

10 A Yes.

11 Q If I could have you turn to Bates number 16079, page 8, there's a post from 12 Mr. Roth about two-thirds of the way down, and he says, Yep, we can touch a bit on the 13 QAnon stuff we've enforced on and footstomp the lack of foreign interference aspect.

14 Do you recall what Mr. Roth is referring to?

15 A No.

16 Q Do you recall discussions within industry about whether there was a lack of 17 foreign interference with respect to information that was being shared?

18 A Information that was being shared? Sorry.

19 Q Do you recall discussions with industry partners with respect to whether

20 there was a mistake by whoever was providing the information about whether the source

21 of the information was foreign or domestic?

22 A No.

23 Q Do you recall issues related to QAnon being discussed during meetings with 24 the U.S. Government?

25 A Not specifically, no.

1 Q By "not specifically," do you recall at a general level?

2 A It's possible, but I don't recall.

3 Q Okay. If I could turn your attention to -- it's going to be a couple pages, but

4 the first page is 16083, which is page 12, there's a post from you at the bottom of the

5 page. And then, if I could have you read for the next two pages until Bates number

6 16085, page 14.

7 A So the whole next page?

8 Q Yeah. So all of 13 and almost all of 14.

9 A Sorry, you wanted me to read it?

10 Q Yes.

11 A Okay.

12 Mr. Brown. To yourself, right? You don't want --

13 [redacted] Yes. Sorry. Just take a moment to review. No need to --

14 Mr. Brown. Okay.

15 [redacted]. Thank you for the clarification. And where did you say it ends, 16 this section?

17 BY [redacted]

18 Q On page 14, you provide a new --

19 A Sorry, that's?

20 Q That's 85, yes.

21 A Okay.

22 Q Do you recall working on -- and this is in reference to page 16083, the first

23 post -- do you recall working on scoping language, do you recall working on that with the 24 industry partners?

25 A I mean, I certainly see here discussing it.

1 Q Yeah, but do you have recollections of working on this statement?
2 A Not beyond what is included here.
3 Q Do you recall the scope of the meetings being an issue that industry was 4 concerned about?
5 A I mean, I can see here that in the document, we want to be clear about the 6 scope that we're working on.
7 Q And do you know why?
8 A I don't. I mean, when you -- I don't.
9 Q Okay. It's clear you're playing an active role. Do you recall why you or 10 your team were concerned about the scope of the meetings?
11 A No. I mean, I see here my descriptions of some of the things.
12 I don't think I said that we were concerned about the scope of the meetings.
13 Q Okay. I wanted to clarify the scope of the meetings. Is that accurate to 14 say?
15 A I mean, that's -- that seems like what this exchange indicates.
16 Q Do you recall industry and the government having a different sense of what 17 the scope of the meetings should be?
18 A Well, this is the industry chat --
19 Q Yes.
20 A -- so --
21 Q And the industry chat is working on this scoping language, and as we 22 discussed earlier on the -- I think it's page 5 -- this group is communicating in context with 23 industry's meetings with the U.S. Government, and it looks like there were, not in this 24 particular case, but in other cases, realtime communications as industry is meeting with 25 the U.S. Government. Is that right?

1 A My recollection of this exchange is that it was about the industry
2 conversation, not the industry-Government conversation.
3 Q Okay. Setting aside these specific examples, just at a high level, do you
4 recall there being differences of opinion between Government and industry regarding the 5 scope of the U.S. Government-industry meetings?
6 A No.
7 If you look here, you can see the date of this exchange. It's February of 2021, so
8 it's shortly after an election in the United States, and there's some period before another
9 election will happen in the United States.
10 And I think what we're trying to do here is to be clear about, there isn't an election
11 going on. All of these teams are focused on, as we describe, adversarial threat actors
12 around the world. So when we're not in an election cycle, what is the focus of the 13 work?
14 Q Okay. If I could call your attention to 16085, it's page number 14, there's a
15 post from you, saying, I think we may want an explicit exclusion of the content focus so 16 we can defend ourselves against an effort to bring that in.
17 To your recollection, is this consistent with you and Facebook's division of 18 actor- and behavior-based being divided from content-based concerns?
19 A Yes.
20 Q When you say, "We can defend ourselves against an effort to bring that in,"
21 who is trying to bring that in?
22 A I think the point is more that people outside the group might subsequently 23 think it was part of the conversation, and it's important to be clear that we were focused 24 on the behavioral side of things.
25 Q And by people outside of this conversation, do you have anyone in mind, in

1 particular?

2 A In general, we found it's very important and useful to be consistent about

3 what we're talking about and being clear about it so that other people can sort of 4 understand the action we're taking and why we're taking it.

5 Q Do you recall if there was any discussions about public criticism of industry

6 meeting with U.S. Government on these issues?

7 A Early on when we were first meeting, there were questions about it. In the

8 early days of the meeting, there was sort of, like, attempts by the press to understand

9 what was happening and so on and so forth.

10 Q Do you recall if there were concerns specifically with respect to whether the 11 meetings addressed content as opposed to behavior or actors?

12 A I don't recall that.

13 Q With respect to the scope of the meeting, do you recall having interactions

14 with the U.S. Government to clarify the scope of these U.S. Government-industry

15 meetings?

16 A So just for context, when you say, "the scope of the meeting," my 17 recollection is, this exchange refers to the industry meeting.

18 Q Sure, sure. This question was independent of this particular exhibit. Just

19 generally speaking, do you recall -- there were the U.S. Government-industry meetings,

20 other forms of communication -- do you recall there being discussions from industry with 21 the U.S. Government regarding what the scope of the meetings should be?

22 A I mean, any time you have a recurring meeting like this you want to set the 23 scope, so I'm sure that we had those discussions, but I don't recall them in particular.

24 Q And throughout this interview, you seem to have a pretty good sense of 25 actor- and behavior-based versus content-based, and you mentioned earlier that

1 sometimes people will blur those two together.

2 A Uh-huh.

3 Q Do you recall any participants in the U.S. Government-industry meeting who 4 had a tendency to blur content versus behavior and actor-based?

5 A I don't recall specific instances of that.

6 Q In any meeting?

7 A No.

8 Q You don't recall any instances of where it was necessary to clarify whether

9 something was content-based as opposed to actor- or behavior-based, or fall within that 10 group's scope?

11 A Well, again, the content versus actor and behavior distinction, I think the 12 discussion here is explicitly about the industry syncs. We are regularly in external

13 engagement clarifying that point, and that's true with almost any partner we work with or 14 any organization we talk to.

15 Q Sure. And, again, understanding what this exhibit represents, but these 16 questions are meant more generally, independent of what's reflected in this exhibit or

17 not.

18 When industry is having to issue these explanations to external partners, to others

19 outside of your group that have this expertise, and there is this blurring, when you're 20 referring to external partners, are you ever referring to the U.S. Government?

21 A I think we're referring to everyone we work with and everyone we share

22 information with. If you take a look at our threat reports, which for some time, we were

23 publishing every time we did a takedown, then we steadied on a monthly cadence, now

24 we're on a quarterly cadence, each of those reports includes in it clarifying language

25 about the distinction in content and behavior.

1 Q Sure. And so, when you say "everyone," in response to my question about
2 the U.S. Federal Government, just so we're clear on the record, one of the external
3 partners that you share information with and that you receive information from is the 4 U.S. Federal Government. Is that right?
5 A Yes.
6 Q If I could have you turn to Bates number 16087, this is page 16 -- I'll give you
7 a moment to review all the way up to Bates number 16090, which is page 19.

1 [2:05 p.m.]

2 [redacted]. I'm sorry. How far did you want me to read?

3 BY [redacted]

4 Q To Bates number 16090. Actually, it looks like the last message on 16090

5 carries on to the next page, so if you could read to the end.

6 A Okay.

7 Q Could I have you turn to --

8 A Sorry. Yeah.

9 Q If I could have you turn to Bates number 16087, there's a post from you

10 about a quarter of the way down from the top where you say: "Does anyone have a

11 concern if I 'read aloud' our definition of scope for this group to them on this call?"

12 Do you know who you're referring to in that post?

13 A In this post?

14 Q Yes.

15 A I don't know specifically who I'm referring to.

16 Q Okay. Do you know whether it would have been in a meeting with the U.S.

17 Government?

18 A It's certainly possible as I look at the chats.

19 Q And then two posts down, there's a response from you that says: "This is

20 pretty significant" -- "This is a pretty significant demonstration of the shift in engagement

21 from government over the last couple months."

22 Do you recall which -- what shift you're referring to?

23 A So I can't recall the details when I -- I can't recall the details.

24 Q Okay. Independent of this post, do you recall how government engaged

25 with industry on these U.S. Government industry calls ever shifted notably?

1 A So when I look at the chats in here, I think the reference is actually -- you see
2 on the next page -- I refer to the note that they be brief.
3 And I think there was a period around this time when we'd originally constructed
4 these to be fairly substantive, fairly brief calls. If you don't have an important update,
5 we don't need to have a call.
6 And I recall that there was a period around here when we started to get longer,
7 less substantive briefs. And so the shift that I'm describing, for example, on 88, right, is 8 longer presentations without as much substance to it.
9 Q And when you say not as much substance, what do you mean by that?
10 A I just mean someone -- and actually I think it's useful if you go back to the 11 very beginning of this exchange, you'll see a note here, a reference to reading out loud on 12 86, right?
13 Q Yes.
14 A You have a published report and you come on and you read aloud the 15 published report.
16 Q On page Bates number 16089, there's a post of yours about the third of the 17 way up from the bottom where you say: "We've pinged DHS on the side about this and 18 we'll follow-up separately to get government contributions back on track for future
19 meetings."
20 Do you recall who at DHS you discussed this issue with?
21 A No, I don't.
22 Q Would it have been CISA or --
23 A Oh, in terms of agency, you mean?
24 Q Yes.
25 A Then I expect it would have been CISA.

1 Q Okay. And do you recall if CISA shared industry's perspective, if it was 2 industry's perspective, that the meetings were not as concise and substantive as they
3 were previously?
4 A I don't recall.
5 Q Do you recall if there were multiple agencies making presentations during 6 these meetings?
7 A Yes.
8 Q Do you recall if some agencies were doing a better job of providing concise,
9 substantive reports than other agencies?
10 A It varied.
11 Q Okay. The post at the bottom of 16090 carries on to the next page. You
12 say: "The answer we agreed on was we'll talk about it and want to focus on partners 13 that are (a) operational (b) defensive and (c) apolitical."
14 Do you know what this post is in reference to?
15 A Looking at the chain of discussion, I can see that there's a conversation
16 about including other entities in the group, and so that seems to be the reference.
17 Q So, for example, there's a reference to NSC about a third of the way down on 18 16090.
19 Did you understand that to be the National Security Council?
20 A That's what I would expect that acronym to refer to.
21 Q Okay. And do you recall which agencies -- or I should say, do you recall 22 which partners may have failed to meet the criteria laid out in the post of being 23 operational, defensive, and apolitical?
24 A No, I don't. I think -- I mean, you can see here the key factors for us are,
25 first, this sharing of information is about getting access to information that can help us

1 better identify foreign interference, which means having partners that are operational is
2 incredibly important. They're going to be the ones that are most likely to have
3 information that we could use to identify a Russian operation or an Iranian operation or a
4 Chinese operation.
5 Second, the defensive piece, we wanted to make sure we were working with 6 partners, with agencies that are focused on countering influence or interference.
7 And then, third, is apolitical. One of the things that was particularly important
8 for Meta and for industry as a whole, defending elections needs to be an apolitical
9 exercise. You're focused on ensuring everyone has the opportunity to vote. You're 10 focused on ensuring the integrity of the process. You're focused on countering efforts
11 by foreign adversaries to try to manipulate or corrupt that process.
12 And so agencies that don't have a political focus are better placed, and it's 13 important that our partners and that agencies we share information with are apolitical
14 entities.
15 [redacted] Can we go off the record, please?
16 [Recess.]
17 [redacted] We are back on the record.
18 And, [redacted], just a few quick questions.
19 This Signal chat in the binder, that is exhibit 4, I think.
20 [redacted] 4.
21 BY [redacted]
22 Q Do you have any recollection of this conversation or are your statements
23 based just on seeing what's on the paper?
24 A I don't have specific recollections of the conversation. I remember the 25 conversation existed.

1 Q Okay.

2 A That's a long-running thread that we used. So it's primarily based on what

3 I'm reading on the paper.

4 Q Thank you.

5 And at the time when you were using this thread back in January, February of

6 2021, I take it you didn't anticipate that it would one day come up in a congressional

7 investigation.

8 A No.

9 Q And drawing your attention to page 12, Bates 16083, this was a page you

10 were shown earlier.

11 A Uh-huh.

12 Q One of the things you said is, "We could discuss a range of content topics in 13 this context, but our focus should be on the threat actors and behavior rather than the 14 content itself," correct?

15 A Yes.

16 Q And that's something that you've repeated several times here today.

17 A Uh-huh.

18 Q And it's in, as you mentioned, a concept that's in all of your published CIB

19 reports.

20 A Correct.

21 Q So it wasn't just something that you're saying today or that you were saying

22 to the public. It was something in the safety of a Signal chat with the industry you were 23 also -- it was also important to you to emphasize.

24 A Yes. I mean, of course, Meta enforces on content violations.

25 Q Right.

A That exists. But for our work, we separate out content from behavior and actor and it's been sort of one of the pillars of the structure of our approach.

[redacted] Thank you very much.

[redacted] Can we go off the record, please.

[Discussion off the record.]

[redacted] Can we go back on the record, please?

BY [redacted]

Q [redacted], if I could turn your attention again to page 20, 19 to 20. Twenty is Bates number 16091. I just had a couple of questions about your post there and the criteria you lay out.

A Uh-huh. Yes.

Q I think it was the final answer you gave of the previous round of questioning we were doing. You talked about the importance of each of the criteria and in particular -- I shouldn't say in particular -- one of which was the last one, apolitical.

With respect to partners that you consider to be apolitical, would that include most of the Federal agencies that we've discussed so far? Would that include the FBI?

A It would include any of the agencies that were in the working group at this point.

Q Okay. CISA?

A Yes.

Q Would you consider the Executive Office of the President to be apolitical?

A They certainly understand foreign interference. And I think it's been an issue that's been a consistent focus for the Executive Office of the President through administrations. They weren't part of this dialogue, though.

Q So understanding that the Executive Office of the President, if I understood

1 your answer correctly, has a focus on these issues and consider the issues to be
2 important --
3 [redacted] I'm sorry. I didn't hear that. Has what?
4 BY [redacted]
5 Q Has a focus on these issues.
6 Do you consider that office, the Executive Office of the President, to be apolitical?
7 A I mean, the EOP, the NSC is part of that office.
8 Q Yeah.
9 A I served in it. [redacted] on my team also served in it in different
10 administrations. So we've sort of seen how they operate. They are certainly focused 11 on these issues and are focused on them in terms of protecting the country from external
12 threat actors.
13 Q Sure. So regardless of what their intent is, do you consider EOP to be 14 apolitical?
15 A Well, the focus of the work here is, and the focus of the work that I have 16 seen in this space from the NSC, which is the one that's most engaged in the EOP, is 17 focused on foreign threat actors and countering foreign interference. And protecting 18 our elections is certainly a political issue.
19 Q Okay. Outside of NSC, do you consider the rest of EOP to be apolitical?
20 A Well, here what we're talking about is in the context of election protection.
21 And so what I would say is the work that I have seen there, engaged in there, [redacted]
22 engaged in there, is focused on protecting elections and ensuring the process and the 23 legitimacy of the process. That is apolitical.
24 Q Sure. But your answer's not answering what I'm asking, which is you
25 created posts, you gave reasons why each of these criteria is important.

A Uh-huh.

Q And I'm just asking, does EOP, does it meet in this case, what you put as criteria (c), apolitical?

Mr. Brown. He did answer you as to the NSC, which is within the Executive Office of the President.

[redacted] I don't think he answered within the -- okay.

Is the NSC apolitical?

Mr. Brown. He did answer that the NSC --

BY [redacted]

Q What is the witness' response?

A The NSC works on these issues, and their approach to that is apolitical.

Q So your testimony is that the NSC is apolitical.

A My testimony is that here in this context we didn't ultimately need, as I recall, to assess these three characteristics because the NSC wasn't discussed as a participant here.

But I have seen the work of the NSC, been part of it, [redacted] on my team, similarly, both in different administrations. And their work in this context is focused on protecting elections and ensuring the legitimacy of the process. That is apolitical work.

Q Okay. And outside of NSC, is the rest of the EOP apolitical?

Mr. Brown. Can you be specific about what you mean by the rest of the EOP?

[redacted] Any office within EOP that is --

Mr. Brown. I'm --

[redacted] I'm asking the witness' understanding of what he considers to be an apolitical agency or office.

Mr. Brown. I'm asking you to define what EOP means, like, because he gave you

1 a definition and an answer for what he considers to be part of EOP, which is the National
2 Security Council. So I'm asking, if there are other parts of the EOP that you want him to 3 speak to, will you tell us what those parts are.
4 [redacted] Okay. Can you give an example --
5 Mr. Brown. What do you mean?
6 BY [redacted]
7 Q Can you give an example of an executive agency that is not apolitical?
8 A It's not -- I mean, so these three characteristics are structured to work
9 together in the context of investigating and countering threats to elections from foreign
10 adversaries.
11 And so the things that I would look for would be, if they are a more operational
12 agency that is empowered to investigate and counter these threats, they have a 13 consistent record in doing this. Those are the types of factors that go into this analysis.
14 So that's, I think, the lens through which this structure was designed.
15 Q And the last criteria, it didn't come out of nowhere. Do you recall which 16 agencies were under consideration that were potentially political?
17 A This criteria was defined positively as opposed to negatively, by which I
18 mean the agencies that were included met that criteria.
19 Q Okay. Who is deciding which agencies can participate?
20 A Well, I think -- so as I recall, and I think you can sort of see it referenced in 21 here, if there were additional agencies that were interested in participating, then we 22 would discuss as industry and respond with our perspective on that.
23 Q If I could have you, still on page 16091, read to the bottom, there's a post
24 from you.
25 A Uh-huh.

1 Q Do you recall why GEC was being discussed with this group?
2 A I recall that at around this time -- and you can see some references
3 here -- there was a discussion about whether the GEC should join these conversations.
4 Q Okay. And what was the -- what were the considerations at play about 5 whether GEC should join these conversations?
6 A Generally we, industry, generally we in industry had a preference not to add
7 additional partners or additional participants. Every time you add someone new to an 8 operational discussion it sort of creates more complexity. It can slow the exercise down.
9 So our general preference was not to add other partners, GEC or otherwise.
10 Q Do you recall anything specific to concerns related to GEC specifically?
11 A I think one of the key concerns around GEC specifically would be the 12 operational piece. They're not an operational entity, which distinguishes them from the 13 other institutions we were working with.
14 Q Okay. Were there any concerns that GEC was political?
15 A No, not that I recall.
16 Q If I could have you review, starting with that first post on Bates number
17 16091 at the bottom, and then continuing on to page 22, Bates number 16093, there's 18 more discussion about GEC.
19 A Uh-huh. Sorry. How far did you want me to read?
20 Q Through page 22, Bates number 16093.
21 A Got it. Okay.
22 Q At the top of page 16093, there's a post from you saying: "Maybe that will 23 change when a new head for GEC gets officially confirmed."
24 Do you recall why the change of who was running the GEC would have an impact 25 on what industry is considering?

1 A No. But I actually think, if you read the document, you'll see my previous
2 message is noting that they aren't raising GEC with us directly in the meeting. So I think
3 the change that I'm referring to is maybe they will raise GEC with us directly in a meeting
4 once a new head gets confirmed.
5 Q Okay. And by "they," you're referring to the government?
6 A Correct.
7 Q And why do you think the government was not initially raising it?
8 A I don't know.
9 Q Okay. Why would a new head for GEC lead the government to raise the 10 issue?
11 A I don't know. Perhaps it would -- I don't know.
12 Q This is -- these messages are on March 10th, 2021. Do you recall who was 13 leading the GEC before or who took the position you were referencing?
14 A I spoke with them, but I don't recall the name at this particular moment.
15 Q Okay. Do you know if the individual who heads the GEC, whether that's a 16 political appointment?
17 A I'm not sure.
18 Q If I could call your attention to a post by [redacted]. It's on page 23,
19 Bates number 16094. He posts a note that he's leaving Wikipedia. He says he wants
20 to "thank [redacted] for taking point to bring us together."
21 Is this post consistent with your understanding of what your role was in bringing 22 the industry partners together?
23 A I mean, all of industry came together to share this information. You often 24 need someone who can keep a meeting moving, something like that.
25 Q And is that a role that you would play?

1 A At times.

2 Q Did you play a role in initially initiating -- actually, let me strike that.

3 When you joined Meta in 2018, was there already industry partnerships like this?

4 A We certainly already had industry partnerships, yes.

5 Q Yeah. But what about this partnership in particular?

6 A This particular collaboration, it was beginning as I was joining. I think it

7 began after I joined, but I don't quite remember where the original start was.

8 Q Okay. Have you flip forward a few pages. It will be Bates number 16121.

9 This is page 50. There are two posts on page 50 that I want to call your attention to.

10 One's in the middle of the page.

11 It says: "If we end up having to use MDM, I may just quit. I'm not sure I can 12 take it."

13 And David A. responds: "MDMI would have staying power."

14 First off, in your post what did you mean by MDM?

15 A So in this post I'm referring to a shorthand that is used for mis-, dis-,

16 malinformation.

17 Q Okay. And you say: "We end up having to use MDM." Who are you

18 referring to by "we"?

19 A Colloquially referring to sort of all of us.

20 Q All of us publicly or all of us in the collaboration?

21 A I think the essence of this is if MDM becomes the term of art that is used to 22 refer to these threats.

23 Q Okay. Do you recall who in this collaboration wanted to use MDM as a 24 term of art?

25 A I mean, many, many different people wanted -- have wanted to use MDM at 1 different points. If you'll just give me a moment.

2 Q Sure.

3 A When I read the exchange, it looks like this was taking place during a

4 conversation with government. So certainly government also uses the term "MDM" at 5 times.

6 Q Okay. And in earlier answers you discussed -- you said that malinformation

7 is -- not to put words in your mouth -- but an ambiguous term, that it has been used by

8 people to have multiple different means. Is that fair to say?

9 A I think -- yes, I think generally MDM as a term, it's sort of misinformation

10 means one thing, disinformation means another thing, malinformation presumably 11 means a third thing. Putting them all together, you lose the definitional precision of the 12 term.

13 Q And losing the definitional precision of the term, would this be an example

14 of the blurring between actor- and behavior-based as opposed to content-based 15 distinction that Facebook internally at least recognizes?

16 A It depends on how someone is using it, but it certainly could be.

17 Q Okay. Do you recall which government agencies on these calls would use

18 the term "MDM"?

19 A I recall DHS using it at times.

20 Q And by DHS, do you recall, do you mean CISA or other agencies within DHS?

21 A I don't recall which agency.

22 Q Okay. Do you recall if CISA ever used the term "MDM"?

23 A I don't recall specifically.

24 Q Okay. Do you recall what the issue was that this post is referring to?

25 A No.

1 Q Do you recall being discussed during any of these meetings the downsides to
2 using a term like MDM?
3 A No.
4 Q Is it your understanding that issues related to MDM all fall within the scope
5 of CISA's responsibility?
6 A I mean, part of my preference for not using MDM is that it's a broad term
7 that's imprecise. So I think it's hard to say exactly what the scope is that MDM describes 8 or where that responsibility falls.
9 Q Okay. Do you recall if others within industry shared your perspective about 10 the downsides of using a term like malinformation or MDM?
11 A It wouldn't surprise me, but I don't recall specifically.
12 Q You mentioned working with Mr. Roth as an example on issues related to 13 coordinated inauthentic behavior, foreign accounts. Do you recall if Mr. Roth shared a 14 similar viewpoint to you as far as concerns with the term "malinformation"?
15 A It wouldn't surprise me, but I don't recall.
16 Q At least as reflected here in the chat, no one participating in this channel
17 publicly pushes back against your criticism.
18 Do you recall receiving criticism from industry partners about your stance with 19 respect to the downsides of using malinformation?
20 A I don't recall it being a focus of our conversation either way.
21 Q Okay. If I could have you continue reading the next two pages, so this will 22 be until the end of Bates number 16123. Or, excuse me, actually, I'll have you flip ahead
23 to -- it will be Bates number 16151, and that's page 80, and Bates number 16152, page 24 81.
25 A Sorry. I just want to make sure I understand the context.

1 Mr. Brown. Oh, don't apologize. Take as much time as you need.

2 [redacted]. Okay.

3 BY [redacted]

4 Q If I could call your attention first to Bates number 16151. There's a

5 message in the middle of the page from rsalgado saying: "Back in as speaker, told it is

6 being recorded."

7 First, do you know who [redacted] is?

8 A Yes.

9 Q Who is it?

10 A That's [redacted]

11 Q And where does [redacted] work?

12 A At this point he worked at Google.

13 Q And then there's a response by you at the bottom of the page: "Probably 14 for USG requirements."

15 Do you know if these posts are in reference to a meeting with the U.S.

16 Government?

17 A That is what they appear to be from reading them.

18 Q Independent of what's on this page, is it your understanding that your 19 meetings with the U.S. Government were recorded?

20 A Not generally, no.

21 Q Okay. Some of them were?

22 A I don't recall any instances of recording. I wouldn't have recalled this

23 except for seeing this chat.

24 Q Okay. Having seen this chat, do you recall being notified at any point that 25 your meeting was being recorded?

1 A No.

2 Q If I could call your attention to the next page, top of Bates number 16152.

3 You write: "Think it's possible for all of us to refuse to participate if they keep calling it

4 mis/dis/mal information?"

5 Is "they" referring to the government in this post, this message?

6 A I would expect so, yes.

7 Q Okay. And do you recall who from the government was continuing to use

8 the terms mis-, dis-, and malinformation?

9 A No.

10 Q On the page here, looks to be a thumbs-up and a laughing face.

11 Do you recall others within industry sharing your perspective?

12 A I mean, you can certainly see here there's a smiley face and then "(kidding, 13 kidding)." And it's sort of late in the day. So this is -- largely is joking around.

14 Q Sure. Independent of the joking around or whether you are, in fact,

15 meaningfully trying to suggest that you would refuse to participate, does the message

16 accurately reflect your views that you don't think using the terms mis-, dis-, and 17 malinformation is a good way to go about it?

18 A Specifically using them together as a sort of conglomerate, my general

19 concern, as we talked about, is that if you have three separate terms that are intended to 20 mean different things and you lump them together you lose the precision of the terms.

21 Q And that can make it difficult to define scope? Is that correct?

22 A I think in talking about adversarial threat actors it's very useful and 23 important to be precise about what you're talking about.

24 So a good example of this is if we think back to that China operation that we

25 described, that I described us enforcing against, where we enforced against an operation

1 from China targeting the United States with one cluster of accounts purporting to be
2 liberal Americans and another cluster of accounts falsely purporting to be conservative
3 Americans.
4 I think for something like that, it's important to be clear that the enforcement is
5 based on the behavior, not the content. And so referring to that as a CIB operation, 6 referring to that specifically as an operation we enforced against because of behavior is 7 more useful for the discussion than simply calling it MDM.
8 Q With respect to just Facebook, what are some of the benefits of dividing
9 teams so that you have one team that focuses on actor and behavior based and one team
10 that focuses on content?
11 A I mean, one important example is that much of the work of my team is 12 fundamentally adversarial, by which I mean there is a witting, intentional, determined
13 bad actor on the other side of every decision you make. And what that means is you 14 need to think about factors that you wouldn't normally think of if you're not worried
15 about an adversary.
16 So a great example of this, which is not directly related here but we mentioned
17 earlier, if we think about our coordinated abusive reporting work, it's important to have a 18 vehicle or an opportunity for users to report when they see something that violates our 19 policies or think they do. But we have to be prepared that adversaries will try to abuse
20 that.
21 And so this notion of adversarial design, how do you design a system that is 22 resilient to a determined bad actor, when you're talking about bad actors, this really 23 matters because you have in the behavior and actor context sort of bad actors driving it.
24 So you have to think adversarially.
25 When you're talking about content, often the person posting it may not be a bad

1 actor. They may not have had malicious intent. They're not looking in the same way
2 potentially to evade or abuse systems.
3 And so you're dealing with a different challenge, right? In that context it's simply
4 very large-scale, which raises other challenges. So the nature of the challenges you face
5 are different, and so it's useful to have different teams with different types of expertise
6 so you can align that expertise to the challenges those teams are most likely to face.
7 Q With respect to the government, when they're speaking about MDM -- mis-,
8 dis-, and malinformation -- was it your understanding that the U.S. Government was 9 involved in all three facets of the term?
10 A I can't speak to how they interpreted the term, which is part of the challenge
11 with it, of course, is that it's a broad term that means different things to different people.
12 In my experience, in these conversations we focused on behavior, the actor.
13 Q To your understanding, do any Federal agencies, are there any Federal 14 agencies that as part of the scope of their responsibilities have responsibility over issues
15 related to misinformation, disinformation, and malinformation?
16 A I can't speak to their scope, and in particular I'm hesitant to do so because 17 they could interpret mis-, dis-, and malinformation differently. So I don't know.

1 [3:03 p.m.]

2 BY [redacted]

3 Q Yeah. Setting aside whether -- what the agencies think, just to clarify the 4 question, what is your understanding?

5 So we'll take CISA as an example. Is it your understanding that it would be within

6 the scope of CISA's mission to handle issues related to misinformation, disinformation,

7 and malinformation?

8 A To answer that question, I would need to define malinformation.

9 Q Okay.

10 A Can you define how you want to use that?

11 Q Sure. If malinformation is defined as factually true content that lacks --

12 A Okay.

13 Q -- adequate content -- that lacks adequate context, do you believe -- is it

14 your understanding -- or is what CISA believes -- is it your understanding that CISA -- that

15 the scope of CISA's mission allows it to deal with issues relating to misinformation,

16 disinformation, and malinformation?

17 A Could you give me an example of a piece of content that would fit into this 18 category?

19 Q Sure. I -- regardless of --

20 A Can you --

21 Q It could fit into each of these, so --

22 A Right. But I guess into this third category you've described.

23 Q Sure. If there is a content that is factually true about a glitch with election

24 software, but the post ends there, does not provide adequate context such that someone

25 might think the post is -- contributes to skepticism of the integrity of election, would that

1 kind of piece of content, to your understanding of what CISA's scope is, fall within the
2 scope of CISA's mission?
3 A I'm not sure.
4 Q Okay. During discussions with the U.S. Government, do you recall any 5 government official ever noting or discussing limits created by the First Amendment?
6 A Knowing or discussing limits created by the First Amendment.
7 [Discussion off the record.]
8 [redacted]. I know that -- I know that our government partners, the entities
9 that will share information with us, were careful to characterize that they were sharing
10 information about foreign interference, or that they weren't asking us to take action.
11 They were simply sharing something with us for analysis. I don't know if that's relevant
12 to what you're describing, but that's what I recall.
13 Q Do you ever recall them explaining why they were only sharing information
14 as opposed to asking more specifically for a company to take a specific action?
15 A I don't know what is specifically in their head, so I can't speak to their intent.
16 Q Did they ever communicate a reason why?
17 A They were quite -- they were consistent about wanting to make sure that we 18 knew that we should take on the information they shared with us, and take action, but 19 we should make our own decision about whether to act or whether not to act. That was 20 something that each of our partners in government was quite consistent about, ensuring 21 they highlighted when they shared information or all of them spoke in dialogue. So my 22 expectation would be that that's what they're trying to communicate.
23 Q Okay. But do you have any recollection of them providing a reason in 24 addition to communicating what they were communicating?
25 A I don't have a specific recollection.

1 Q Okay. If I could have you turn to Bates No. 16169. This is page 98.
2 There is a new set of messages beginning the middle of the page starting on 3 March 23rd, and you write: Interesting to see them trying to grapple with the domestic 4 side.
5 Mr. Salgado responds: So hard to navigate.
6 Do you recall who you're referring to in your post here?
7 A Give me a moment.
8 No.
9 Q Do you recall a government ever discussing concerns related to issues that 10 involved United States?
11 Let me strike that.
12 Your reference here to the domestic side, do you refer -- what do you understand
13 that phrase to mean?
14 A I mean, I'm simply reading it here. I don't recall what it referred to.
15 Q We -- I think it was in the first hour of questioning -- had discussed whether,
16 when people provided information, sometimes those people would identify whether it
17 was foreign-based or domestic-based.
18 Do you know if this message is referring upon that same dynamic?
19 A I don't know -- I don't recall what this message is referring to.
20 Q Okay. And the them, you don't -- do you recall if that's someone from the 21 government?
22 A I don't recall.
23 Q The other messages we've been looking at and this channel has been 24 used -- used for includes allowing industry to communicate amongst one another during 25 meetings with the U.S. Government?

1 A Yes.

2 Q Is there anything inconsistent with this message to suggest that you're not

3 referring to the U.S. Government?

4 A I'm working through the double negatives.

5 Q Sorry. Is there anything in this message that would suggest that you were

6 not referring to the U.S. Government?

7 A I don't recall what this is referring to either way specifically.

8 Q Okay. Other than the U.S. Government and the industry partners in this

9 collaboration, who else would attend these collaboration meetings?

10 A Do you mean the sync meetings between industry and government?

11 Q Yes.

12 A No one else.

13 Q Okay. But you say: Interesting to see them trying to grapple with the 14 domestic side.

15 And you post this in the industry channel. Is it safe to say the message would not 16 make sense if you were referring to industry?

17 A I see what you're asking. That's reasonable.

18 Q Okay. Do you recall any meeting where a member of the U.S. Government

19 was portraying something as being -- having originated -- was portraying either an actor

20 or behavior or a piece of content that was originating from outside the United States, but 21 industry was aware that there was evidence to suggest otherwise?

22 A You're asking if I recall a -- a meeting where that happened?

23 Q Do you recall any instance where U.S. Government is presenting at a 24 meeting that industry is attending in which this occurred?

25 A I recall times when government would ask industry whether we were seeing

1 foreign activity connected to something that ended up being domestic --

2 Q Okay. And --

3 A -- which is not quite what you were asking, but is similar.

4 Q Sure. So there is an issue domestic in origin, if I'm understanding your

5 answer correctly, and the U.S. Government is asking whether there's a foreign nexus of 6 some kind?

7 A Correct.

8 Q Do you remember what sets of issues an example of this --

9 A One example that comes to mind is January 6th.

10 Q Okay.

11 A If you may recall, particularly in the days following January 6, there was a lot

12 of -- quite a lot of public discussion wondering whether there were foreign actors

13 involved with that, and I recall government looking to understand if we had seen any 14 foreign nexus, your word, to that incident.

15 Q Okay. So this post is from March 2022.

16 Do you have a sense of what incident this might be referring to?

17 A No, I don't.

18 Q [redacted] writes: So hard to navigate.

19 Independent of this chat, in your line of work, is it difficult at times to determine

20 whether the source is domestic or foreign?

21 A Yes.

22 Q Is this a difficulty that U.S. Government agencies have as well?

23 A I mean, I can't speak to their challenges. Their ability to operate and the 24 tools that they use are obviously very different than the tools that we use and how we

25 operate.

1 Q Do you ever recall anyone from the U.S. Government expressing the 2 difficulty in determining whether something originated within the United States or 3 outside?
4 A No.
5 Q In this context of the example you provided, or the high-level example is 6 there's an incident that is domestic, the government is inquiring about a foreign nexus
7 potentially to it, do you recall if any discussions of the First Amendment was ever
8 discussed?
9 A I mean, I don't recall specific instances around this, although I will say I think
10 part of why you saw these questions is, if we go back a few years, you could see instances
11 where foreign actors -- in particular, Russia -- were trying to use online profiles to create
12 physical incidents within the United States.
13 So, for example, they would create events that were trying to gather together in 14 the same place people who might strongly believe on one end of the political spectrum
15 and then on the other end, presumably to try to create a conflict or a physical fight.
16 In a context like that, you have a lot of worry about whether foreign actors
17 interfering, or could even cause direct harm, and that also interferes with the ability of 18 these people within the United States to voice what they believe, which is a commonly 19 understood First Amendment component.
20 [Discussion off the record.]
21 Mr. Brown. Time check, please?
22 [redacted] We're about 45 minutes in.
23 Mr. Brown. Okay.
24 BY [redacted]
25 Q If I could have you turn just a couple pages to 16171.

A 1617 -- so it's the next page. Okay.

Q Yeah. Sorry.

And then have you read on to the next page, which would be 16172.

A Uh-huh. I was hoping we were going to focus on Hello all and happy Wednesday.

Q There is a post I'll call your attention to, a message from you at the top of page 16172. You write: The only major heads-up I have on topics from DHS is that they anticipate doing a DHS brief on some new structures they're putting in place internally.

This message is from April of 2022.

A Uh-huh.

Q Do you recall what new structures you're referring to?

A Just give me one minute.

Q Sure.

[Discussion off the record.]

[redacted]. All right. Sorry. Your question was?

BY [redacted]

Q Your message refers to new structures that DHS is going to be putting into place.

Do you recall what you're referring to?

A I don't.

Q If I could have you turn to page 16184.

A Yeah. And it looks like this meeting may not have taken place if you would look to the next page.

Q Okay.

1 A Sorry. What was the number?

2 Q 16184.

3 A Uh-huh.

4 Q I can have you review the whole page, but I'm going to ask you about the 5 message at the bottom there.

6 A Just give me a minute.

7 Okay.

8 Q Two messages up from the bottom, there's a message from [redacted] saying --

9 A I'm sorry. Which page?

10 Q Sorry. 16184.

11 A Got it.

12 Q There's a message from [redacted] saying that DHS asked us to shift our monthly

13 meeting today since they have an election tabletops exercise.

14 Do you know if industry was invited to that election tabletop exercise?

15 A I don't, although the fact that we were apparently getting notice of it the 16 same day suggests we were not.

17 Q If I could have you turn back to page 161 -- 16169. It's page 98.

18 A 16169. Yes.

19 Q Building off what we discussed earlier, when the U.S. Government was trying

20 to determine if there was a foreign nexus or not to an incident that was domestic also,

21 your reference -- your word choice of grapple, how would that play to what you're 22 referring to as far as domestic versus a foreign nexus?

23 A Well, I mean, to be precise, I gave that example as a way the U.S. had asked

24 us about the possibility of a foreign nexus for domestic events. I don't recall whether

25 that was the context for this message or if there was a different context, so I'm not sure.

1 Q Okay. Do you recall other instances -- so you provided the one example,
2 and understand that, you know, you don't have a recollection whether this message is 3 referring to this type of example where there's something domestic in origin and the 4 U.S. Government is being -- you know, interested to see if there's a foreign nexus to 5 what's unfolded domestically.
6 What other examples do you recall where the U.S. Government might be 7 grappling with issues of domestic or foreign?
8 A Well, as I said, I don't recall what this refers to. I think January 6th is the 9 most prominent example that I recall.
10 I also mentioned the example that previously we had seen, and actually reported
11 on publicly some instances of foreign actors, specifically Russian actors, trying to use
12 online events to generate a domestic incident between American citizens. That would 13 be another example as well.
14 Q Do you recall other examples -- not necessarily examples of the same type,
15 but of a different format where government's having difficulty identifying whether the 16 inauthentic behavior is foreign or if it's domestic?
17 A I don't recall specific examples of government asking us those questions. I
18 think the question of whether -- and let's take this out of the U.S. context for a minute.
19 The question of whether behavior is foreign or domestic is a -- is often challenging,
20 because you can't see who is behind an operation at times. And we've seen that 21 Russian actors intentionally try to -- in fact, I think we were discussing this earlier -- try to 22 coopt unwitting domestic Americans or domestic participants of other countries to make 23 that line harder to determine.
24 Q Again, to the extent you recall during these meetings where different issues
25 come up, you know, we've established the message wouldn't make much sense if it was

1 directed towards industry, if it was put in the industry group channel.

2 What other challenges, to your understanding, does the U.S. Government face

3 when handling issues that relate to content or behavior actors that are domestic in 4 origin?

5 A What other issues does the U.S. Government face --

6 Q Yeah.

7 A -- that are domestic -- I mean, a lot of other issues.

8 Q What challenges does the U.S. Government face --

9 [Discussion off the record.]

10 [redacted]. Sorry.

11 [redacted] Sure.

12 BY [redacted]

13 Q So both U.S. Government and partners are working together on issues

14 relating to, for instance, inauthentic behavior, right, on issues related to that and other

15 similar issues. What challenges does the U.S. Government face when that inauthentic 16 behavior is domestic in origin?

17 A I think you'd need to speak to the U.S. Government about what things are 18 challenging for them in that context.

19 Q During this meeting, though, you're watching them make some sort of 20 presentation, and comment that they're grappling with something. I'm just trying to get

21 a sense of what you know what sort of difficulties the U.S. Government might be 22 discussing?

23 Mr. Brown. I think he's already answered --

24 [redacted]. Yeah. I mean, as a --

25 Mr. Brown. -- this question -- go ahead.

1 [redacted]. You know, as I said, I don't remember what this is referring to.
2 We've talked about the fact that they could well logically refer to government, but I don't
3 remember the specific exchange here.
4 BY [redacted]
5 Q Okay. But, again, absent this specific exchange, again, just at a high level.
6 A Well, but you were just asking in this specific exchange when I was in the
7 meeting.
8 Q Well, using this -- your word choice in this specific example -- using that as a
9 basis to ask at a high level, do you recall instances where a U.S. Government 10 representative, or representatives, are grappling with some set of, you know, challenges?
11 A I mean, I -- I gave you a couple of examples. Those are the ones that come 12 to mind.
13 Q Any others?
14 A Those are the ones that come to mind.
15 Q Okay. Did -- did you attend a hack-and-leak tabletop exercise hosted by 16 the Aspen Institute in the summer of 2020?
17 A I did.
18 Q And was it a one-time meeting, or were there multiple meetings?
19 A You're asking about -- I'm sorry -- the tabletop exercise?
20 Q Yes.
21 A There was only one of those that I recall.
22 Q Were you part of the preparation -- the creation of the exercise itself?
23 A I -- as I recall, I thought the idea of an exercise like that was a useful one, and 24 a good idea, but Aspen designed the scenario --
25 Q Okay.

1 A -- and hosted.

2 Q Do you recall who from the Aspen Institute invited you?

3 A I spoke with [redacted].

4 Q Who is [redacted]

5 A [redacted] is the director of Aspen Digital, I believe.

6 Q Okay. Do you recall the purpose of the tabletop exercise?

7 A The purpose of the tabletop exercise was to -- the tabletop exercise, in 8 particular, you're asking about?

9 Q Yes.

10 A I think you would -- I mean, Aspen pulled them -- pulled it together, so you'd 11 need to ask them what the goal was or what their purpose was for it.

12 Q Why did you attend?

13 A I attended -- well, in the lead-up to the 2020 election -- so if we pull back a

14 little bit, as we were thinking about the threats that were likely to manifest -- we talked

15 about this a bit earlier. I think one of the likely threats that we assessed we needed to 16 prepare for was a hack-and-leak operation.

17 And a hack-and-leak operation is when a threat actor, foreign government, steals

18 information, and then generally mixes it with -- mixes what may be accurate information

19 with inaccurate information, and then releases it in an effort to impact public debate.

20 And we've seen them do that before. We've seen threat actors -- in particular,

21 the Russians -- use this technique multiple times. And so we knew it was something we

22 needed to prepare for.

23 The challenge at Meta is that hack-and-leak operations don't just target Meta,

24 they target public debate broadly. They will impact other platforms. They will impact

25 the traditional media. In fact, often the goal of a hack-and-leak operation is sort of like

1 perception hacking, which we discussed earlier, to try to get traditional media to cover
2 the hack and leak. Essentially, the Russians are trying to trick us into doing their job for
3 them.
4 And what that means is that we as a platform recognize the risk. We need to 5 take steps to counter it, but we can't tackle the problem alone. No single company can
6 do that; not even a single industry. You need to have people across society thinking
7 about, and being ready for the risk. And so a tabletop exercise like this is an opportunity
8 to bring together different people who need to think about the threat and help everyone
9 think about what it could mean and how to prepare for it.
10 Q Okay. So, in addition to the media, journalists, tech partners, does the 11 Federal Government have a role in this space?
12 A I don't recall the Federal Government participating in these conversations.
13 Q The Federal Government did not discuss hack and leak -- the risk of hack and
14 leak --
15 Mr. Brown. It's not what he's -- he's talking about the tabletop. He's saying -- 16 [redacted]. Right. I don't recall the Federal Government participating in the 17 Aspen tabletop that we're discussing.
18 [redacted] Well, the previous answer took a step back on the specific answer
19 about --
20 Mr. Brown. Yeah. Certainly only why they were doing tabletops.
21 [redacted] Yes. And then his answer to --
22 [redacted]. So, to be precise --
23 [redacted] Yes.
24 [redacted]. -- we're talking about the Aspen tabletop.
25 [redacted] And the Aspen tabletop --

1 [redacted]. I do not recall --

2 [redacted] -- your answer is more specifically to Aspen. Is that fair?

3 [redacted]. I do not recall the Federal Government participating in the Aspen 4 tabletop.

5 [redacted] Okay.

6 BY [redacted]

7 Q Who do you recall participating in the Aspen tabletop?

8 A You described some groups that I think was a good representation of who

9 participated.

10 Q Yeah. Did anyone else from Meta attend?

11 A I believe so.

12 Q And who do you think also attended?

13 A I believe that [redacted] also attended.

14 Mr. Brown. Are we at time?

15 [redacted] Thirty seconds. We can go off the record.

16 [Recess.]

17 [redacted] Okay. We're back on the record.

18 BY [redacted]

19 Q And I'm sorry. Do you believe -- I know you all spent a lot of time talking 20 about it, but I'm going to ask you some quick questions about the Signal chat in exhibit 4.

21 And if I could turn your attention to page 98, Bates 16169. This is the grappling of the 22 domestic side comment that has been the subject of --

23 A Yes.

24 Q -- many questions.

25 Just to clarify, you do not remember this conversation or this chat?

1 A Correct.

2 Q You don't know who "them" refers to?

3 A Correct.

4 Q You said that it was reasonable to assume that it was referring to a

5 government agency?

6 A I think what we said was it was reasonable to assume it wasn't referring to 7 industry, and that the only participants in those meetings are industry and government.

8 Industry does meet with other entities as well, so --

9 Q Okay. But it is possible that you were referring to someone from industry?

10 A From industry?

11 Q Yeah.

12 A It's possible. I think it's -- I think it is unlikely to be referring to someone 13 from industry.

14 Q And you do not -- well, for example, on the next page, you say, I see how she 15 just made it my problem again.

16 You don't know who she is?

17 Mr. Brown. Can I pause one second?

18 [redacted] Sure.

19 Mr. Brown. Do we have a third book? We had three to work from. We 20 should have some -- thanks.

21 [redacted]. I'm sorry. Ask your question again.

22 BY [redacted]

23 Q You said -- I'm asking on the next page. You said --

24 A Yes.

25 Q -- I see how she just made it my problem again.

1 You don't know -- as you sit here today, you don't know who she is?

2 A I do not.

3 Q And you don't know what it was -- what the problem was?

4 A I do not.

5 Q You have no memory of this. All those questions were premised on an

6 assumption that it was some government agency?

7 A That's correct.

8 Q Thank you.

9 Now, I want to talk to you --

10 A May I close this up?

11 Q Yes. We're done with it. Well, I'm done with that, I should say. I can't 12 speak for my counterparts.

13 In, I believe, the first hour, you gave a very detailed description of all of the 14 reasons why Meta was on guard for hack-and-leak operations in 2020, and, in fact, even 15 earlier. And some of those reasons -- and correct me if I'm wrong -- included previous 16 hack-and-leak operations by the Russians regarding the 2016 U.S. Presidential election,

17 correct?

18 A Correct.

19 Q Russia's hack-and-leak operation regarding the 2017 French election?

20 A Correct.

21 Q [redacted] posting online that he had sensitive information about

22 Burisma that he intended to leak?

23 A Correct.

24 Q And do you recall when that was?

25 A I believe that was December of 2019 --

1 Q Okay.

2 A -- but I don't remember exactly.

3 Q And, in January 2020, there was reporting that Russia had hacked into 4 Burisma?

5 A Correct.

6 Q And you were aware of all these things at the time?

7 A Correct.

8 Q And I believe you mentioned an August 2020 letter by the Director of 9 National Intelligence on the risk of a hack-and-leak operation from Russia involving

10 Burisma and targeting former Vice President, then-candidate Biden -- Joseph Biden?

11 A Correct. I believe it was a report that they put out.

12 Q And are you referring to the report by [redacted]?

13 A I'm not sure -- I'm not sure who the author of the report was.

14 Q Okay. I'm going to -- exhibit -- and we're at 5, right?

15 [redacted] Yes.

16 [redacted]. Thank you.

17 [redacted] If you can take -- wait, no. Did I just give you the wrong thing?

18 I did. Sorry. I gave you the wrong thing.

19 [Majority Exhibit No. 5.

20 Was marked for identification.]

21 BY [redacted]

22 Q If you can take a look at this and let me know if that's what you're referring

23 to.

24 A It looks like it. The reference that I'm recalling is in the -- it is the headline

25 Russia in a paragraph middle of the second page.

1 Q Thank you. This -- this press release addresses if there was operations from 2 other countries as well?
3 A Correct. It also addresses -- I mean, beyond necessarily influence
4 operations, but threats from China, Russia, and Iran.
5 Q And this press release was issued by the Office of the Director of National 6 Intelligence on August 7th, 2020, correct? That's what's reflected on the front?
7 A That's what's reflected on the front.
8 Q And that was before the Aspen tabletop exercise?
9 A Yes, it was.
10 Q And all of the indicators that you -- that we just spoke about that had Meta
11 as well as the government on guard against Russian hack-and-leak operations had 12 occurred before the Aspen exercise?
13 A I believe that's correct, yes.
14 It's worth noting this one we hadn't gotten to. In September, the Treasury
15 Department actually sanctioned [redacted] and some others as explicitly linked to 16 Russian intelligence.
17 Q Thank you very much.
18 And [redacted] was also somebody who was known to be an associate of 19 Rudy Giuliani, correct?
20 A That may be right. I'm not sure about that.
21 [redacted] If I can just have one minute.
22 That's it for me. We can let the majority continue.
23 We can go off the record to switch places.
24 [Recess.]
25 [redacted] Back on the record, please.

1 BY [redacted]

2 Q [redacted], are you familiar with the Election Integrity Partnership?

3 A Yes.

4 Q And what is it?

5 A My understanding is that it was a group of civil society organizations that

6 were trying to protect the election around 2020.

7 Q Did you have any interactions with the partnership?

8 A Some.

9 Q And what was -- what was the nature of your interactions?

10 A One of the things the partnership wanted to do was to be able to flag to

11 platforms if they identified something they believe violated our policies, and so we spoke

12 with them about how to establish that.

13 Q And, when you say "we," does that include you? Were you having direct 14 interactions with the partnership?

15 A I had some initial interactions with them, and then I didn't have as many 16 once we sort of got into operationalizing it.

17 Q And who did you speak to?

18 A I don't recall. Yeah. I don't recall.

19 Q Do you recall if you ever spoke to Alex Stamos of Stanford?

20 A It's certainly possible.

21 Q How about Renee DiResta, Stanford?

22 A Also possible.

23 Q All right. Did you know them independent of this partnership?

24 A Yes.

25 Q Okay. In your preliminary discussions with the Election Integrity

1 Partnership, who else from Meta was engaging in these conversations?

2 A I don't recall the individuals on our side.

3 Q Okay. You said once it got operationalized, you took a step back. Did

4 someone else from Meta take on --

5 A Presumably, yeah.

6 Q -- the partnership?

7 A Presumably, yes.

8 Q Do you know who?

9 A I don't.

10 Q Do you know which team?

11 A Well, most of what they were sharing was not behavior related, and so it

12 wouldn't have been my team.

13 Mr. Brown. [redacted] just for the record, are you representing that there's some 14 governmental nexus to the engagement between the EIP and Meta?

15 [redacted] There is a government nexus to EIP, so yes.

16 Mr. Brown. Thank you.

17 BY [redacted]

18 Q Do you recall when you were first approached by someone at EIP?

19 A I don't.

20 Q Was it before the 2020 U.S. Presidential election?

21 A Yes.

22 Q Was it sometime within the period of 2020?

23 A I don't remember.

24 Q Okay. Do you -- do you recall having any discussions regarding EIP with

25 [redacted]?

1 A It's possible, but I don't recall specifically.

2 Q What about with [redacted]?

3 A Similar. I don't recall.

4 Q How about with respect to [redacted]?

5 A Same answer. That is, I don't recall.

6 Q Is it your understanding that EIP did, in fact, flag pieces of content that were

7 on Meta's various platforms?

8 A Yes. It is my understanding that that happened.

9 Q Okay. Were you ever directly contacted about pieces of content that EIP

10 was flagging?

11 A Not that I recall.

12 Q Okay. Are you familiar with something called the Jira ticketing system?

13 A Not really.

14 Q Is it a program that Facebook uses?

15 A I don't know.

16 Q Not to your knowledge?

17 A Not to my knowledge.

18 Q Do you have any familiarity with whether someone from Meta was 19 onboarded onto a Jira ticketing program with EIP?

20 A No.

21 Q You don't know one way --

22 A I don't know.

23 Q Okay.

24 A I don't know just one way or the other, yeah.

25 Q Do you know what Graphica is?

1 A Yes.

2 Q What is it?

3 A Graphica is a research firm that investigates threat actors. In particular,

4 influence operations.

5 Q And, in the scope of your work, independent of EIP, do you ever work with 6 Graphica?

7 A Yes.

8 Q And what's the context of your interactions?

9 A They sometimes write reports on takedowns that we conduct.

10 Q Are you familiar with DFR Lab, which is housed within the Atlantic Council?

11 A Yes.

12 Q And what is DFR Lab?

13 A It stands for the Digital Forensics Research Lab.

14 Q And what do they do?

15 A It's a subcomponent of the Atlantic Council.

16 Q And can you be more specific about what the lab itself does?

17 A They do a range of things. They do a range of different things.

18 Q In your course of work at Meta, do you work with --

19 [Discussion off the record.]

20 BY [redacted]

21 Q In the course of your work at Meta, do you ever work with DFR Lab?

22 A Yes.

23 Q What is the nature of your work with DFR Lab?

24 A Similar to the work with Graphica.

25 Q Okay. When you were first contacted by EIP, were you aware that

1 Graphica and DFR Lab were among the partners of EIP?

2 A I mean, I don't recall what I knew at that exact moment when I first received

3 the email, or however they contacted me.

4 Q Okay. Do you know who Kate Starbird is at the University of Washington?

5 A Yes.

6 Q Have you worked with her independent of EIP?

7 A I have spoken with her independent of EIP, yes.

8 Q And you said you had a -- just a high-level familiarity with the Center for 9 Internet Security, CIS?

10 A I know the name. I know that it exists.

11 Q Okay. This will be exhibit 6.

12 [Discussion off the record.]

13 [redacted]. Okay.

14 [Majority Exhibit No. 6.

15 Was marked for identification.]

16 BY [redacted]

17 Q First, who is [redacted] Is that right?

18 A Yes. [redacted] was on my team.

19 Q And does she report to you, or to [redacted]

20 A She is no longer at Meta.

21 Q Okay. But, at the time of this email, she was on your team?

22 A Correct.

23 Q If I could call your attention to -- this is at the bottom of 44284, the 24 paragraph starting with the number 2. There is reference to a CIS portal in reference to

25 a meeting facilitated by DHS in regard to its development of a new portal to have a

1 centralized channel on reporting misinformation.

2 Do you have any recollection of --

3 Mr. Brown. That's not the end of the sentence, right?

4 [redacted]. It's just a reference on the next page.

5 Mr. Brown. It doesn't end with reporting misinformation. It says, We have

6 some questions about the efficacy of this effort that we'd love to talk over together,

7 right?

8 [redacted] It says that as well, yes.

9 Mr. Brown. All right. That's the sentence. Just don't want a fragment of a 10 sentence under here representing it as if it were the whole sentence.

11 [redacted] Okay.

12 BY [redacted]

13 Q Do you recall attending the meeting facilitated by DHS on this issue?

14 A No, I don't.

15 Q Okay. Do you recall in any capacity working on an issue related to a portal

16 created by CIS?

17 A No.

18 Q Do you know why your team is looped in on this project if the stated

19 purpose of the channel is to report misinformation?

20 A I don't, other than to say, outside of the company, people don't always

21 understand what the scope of our teams are, and so, you may end up looped into an

22 issue, and then you route it over to the appropriate team.

23 Q Okay. Based off your understanding of how Facebook's teams have divided

24 the responsibilities, would this portal be providing reports that are better directed toward 25 [redacted] team?

1 A I don't know enough about the portal or whether it was ever created to -- to
2 know how it would have made sense to direct it.
3 Q Okay. So, to clarify, you don't know whether the portal was, in fact, ever
4 created?
5 A Correct.
6 Q Do you know who funds CIS?
7 A No, I don't.
8 Q Do you know if it has any affiliation with the U.S. Government?
9 A I don't.
10 Q Other than trying to potentially set up a portal, did you have any other 11 interactions with CIS as part of your role at Meta?
12 Mr. Brown. I'm sorry. Did you say he tried to facilitate setting up the portal?
13 [redacted] No. Independent of that and appreciating he doesn't have any 14 recollection, does he have any other interactions that he recalls --
15 [redacted]. I'm not sure -- so --
16 [redacted] -- with CIS.
17 [redacted]. -- I was only cc'd on this email.
18 [redacted] Yes.
19 [redacted]. But, reading it, I don't think I would characterize our interaction
20 here as looking to facilitate setting up a portal.
21 BY [redacted]
22 Q To clarify, CIS looks to be -- as described in this email, that CIS is trying to set
23 up the portal.
24 A Fair enough.
25 Q Not Facebook.

1 A Right. I see us -- Saleela here noting some questions on the efficacy of the 2 effort, suggesting sort of the opposite.
3 Q Yes. Thanks.
4 In your role at Facebook, do you recall any other interactions with CIS?
5 A No.
6 Q What about your team generally?
7 A No.
8 [redacted] All right. We can take these back.
9 BY [redacted]
10 Q With respect to the hack-and-leak tabletop exercise hosted by the Aspen
11 Institute that you attended in the summer of 2020 --
12 A Uh-huh.
13 Q -- do you recall if there was a -- hypothetical scenarios created in advance for 14 the tabletop exercise?
15 A I believe that there was.
16 Q And do you remember what, like, the fact pattern was for that hypothetical?
17 A I don't recall the details.
18 Q Okay. Do you recall who was involved in creating the hypothetical?
19 A I know that Aspen took the primary lead in creating the hypothetical.
20 Q Did you play any role?
21 A I certainly played a role in the idea of having a tabletop exercise, if that's 22 what you mean. And I may have commented on the scenario. But they were the ones
23 who were creating it.
24 Q Do you recall if the hypothetical involved a hack and leak related to 25 information related to Hunter Biden?

1 A I don't recall that specific term. What I would expect is that the -- the
2 hypothetical would look pretty similar to what was widely expected to be the most likely
3 threat of a hack and leak at that time.
4 Q And what was that?
5 A Well, at that point, if we look at, for example, the warning highlighted by the 6 Director of National Intelligence, they were highlighting a specific risk. In fact, they were 7 indicating that it was already happening, that Andrii Derkach, a Russian-linked actor, was 8 sharing what he claimed to be sensitive information -- I believe it was phone calls -- that 9 were designed to denigrate then-candidate and former Vice President Biden, particularly 10 around links to Burisma.
11 Q Okay. Did you participate in internal tabletop exercises at Meta?
12 A Internal tabletop exercises. Broadly. I mean, we use tabletop exercises as 13 a tool, so we've certainly done them before, if that's what you mean. Yes.
14 Q Did you do any in the summer of 2020 related to hack and leak?
15 A I don't recall any.
16 Q No?
17 A No, I don't recall any.
18 Q How were the protocols developed to handle a potential hack-and-leak
19 scenario?
20 A Well, we began our preparation for the election back in 2019. And when 21 we did that, we were looking at sort of what some of the major risks or threats would be.
22 One of the major threats was -- that we identified was a hack-and-leak operation. I
23 know we discussed this some of the earlier hours. There is a bunch of different external
24 evidence, including the history of Russian activity, that went into that assessment --
25 Q Okay.

A -- based on that.

We then went to look and see how did our policy stack up against the types of threats we'd seen in the past. Would we have the tools that we would have needed in place to deal with an operation like this from the Russians, modeled on operations we'd seen in the past?

And the hack-and-leak policy, the development of it, was designed to give us further tools, so that if we did see a Russia-backed, or, I guess, a foreign-backed hack-and-leak operation, that we'd be able to take action.

Q At the hack-and-leak tabletop exercise hosted by the Aspen Institute, do you recall anyone else from industry attending?

A I don't -- I mean, I -- I don't recall specific names, but I would expect that others from the industry attended as well, yes.

Q And, regarding the risk of hack and leak, do you recall, on industry-only calls, if that issue was ever discussed?

A I don't recall it specifically, but throughout 2020, we were -- I was trying to raise awareness of this risk. You've seen, I'm sure -- I've put out public statements about it. Meta put out reports about it, and I expect we would have discussed that on the industry calls.

Q Okay.

[Discussion off the record.]

BY [redacted]

Q And, by the industry calls -- just this one clarification. You're referring to industry-only calls, or the USG industry, or both?

A Yeah. I mean, my recollection, I would expect it was part of the industry calls. I believe that there was one USG industry call where it was actually listed on an

1 agenda, so presumably it was part of that as well.

2 Q Turning back to how your team initially handled the Hunter Biden laptop

3 story, your team made an assessment and made the determination or recommendation

4 that the story could not be actioned, or should not be actioned under the hack-and-leak

5 policy.

6 In the days that followed -- the day that the story was issued and the days that

7 followed, did any of your industry contacts reach out to you regarding how you were

8 handling the story?

9 A In the days that followed?

10 Q Yes.

11 A I don't remember a specific exchange, but we took public action. It

12 wouldn't surprise me if they'd asked about it and we clarified what we did.

13 Q All right. Do you recall if Mr. Roth ever contacted you?

14 [Discussion off the record.]

15 [redacted]. I'm sorry.

16 BY [redacted]

17 Q Do you recall if Mr. Roth ever contacted you?

18 A I believe Yoel Roth contacted me on the day of. I don't recall if there were 19 further communications after.

20 Q Yeah. And, when he contacted you the day of, what was -- what did he 21 communicate to you?

22 A I don't remember the substance of the conversation.

23 Q But it was regarding the story?

24 A Yes.

25 Q Do you recall when you learned under what grounds Twitter decided to take

1 action against the story?

2 A When I learned?

3 Q Yes.

4 A I believe Mr. Roth told me when they were planning to take action.

5 Q And to your understanding, did Twitter take action the day that the story

6 was issued?

7 A I don't remember exactly when, but I expect it was the day that the story

8 was issued.

9 Q So Mr. Roth would have communicated with you on that day, then?

10 A That's my recollection, yes.

11 Q Okay. Do you recall having any discussions about your team's assessment

12 that the story did not meet your company's hack-and-leak policy?

13 A I don't recall the specific conversation, but I expect I would have told him

14 that --

15 Q Okay.

16 A -- and probably the industry group as well.

17 Q Okay. Did you share this assessment with anyone in the U.S. Government?

18 A I -- I would expect we did. I don't recall it specifically.

1 [4:14 p.m.]

2 BY [redacted]

3 Q Do you recall receiving information from the U.S. Government?

4 A Receiving information? Sorry.

5 Q Do you recall receiving any information from the U.S. Government regarding 6 the veracity of the story or the authenticity of the laptop?

7 A No.

8 Q And just as a clarifying qualifier for the sentence, from the time the story

9 was issued and, we'll say, within the 2 weeks that followed.

10 Mr. Brown. So, [redacted] further clarification. When you say "you," are you

11 referring to you, Facebook, or are you referring to you, this guy?

12 BY [redacted]

13 Q Referring to Facebook, to your knowledge.

14 A And the specific question is, did we receive -- sorry. Restate the question.

15 Q To your knowledge, did Facebook receive information from the U.S. Federal

16 Government within 2 weeks of the story being issued with respect to whether the story

17 was true or whether the laptop was authentic?

18 A Not that I recall.

19 Sure. So this isn't responsive to your question directly. I do recall that we, that

20 is Meta -- Meta -- asked government if they had any indication whether the laptop was 21 related to a foreign influence operation.

22 Q And did you receive a response?

23 A They said they had no additional information to share.

24 Q Do you know who from Meta communicated this message to the

25 government?

1 A I don't remember the name, but I expect it would have been from our legal
2 team.
3 Q And which government agency was contacted -- or agencies?
4 A It would have been FBI.
5 Q Following the statement -- I think this might have been in the second
6 hour -- there was a statement about 5 days later issued by 51 former intel officials.
7 Following that statement, were you asked to -- was your team asked to reassess whether 8 the story could be actioned under the hack-and-leak policy?
9 A I don't recall being asked to reassess our assessment.
10 Q Okay. Once your initial assessment was completed -- I think it was your 11 recollection it was the first day or very soon thereafter -- were additional assessments
12 conducted by your team?
13 A Additional assessments?
14 Q Yeah.
15 A Sorry.
16 Q There was -- the story comes out. It's very much newsworthy, different
17 information. People are providing information they think may be relevant.
18 Did your team, after, again, conducting the assessment, making a
19 recommendation, did you, in the week that followed, ever go back and make a 20 reassessment based on what you knew later in the week?
21 A I mean, certainly we were monitoring the evolving public understanding of 22 what had happened, but I don't recall getting sufficient evidence such that we reassessed
23 our assessment -- we reassessed our assessment.
24 Q At a general sense, do you recall if personnel within the company thought it
25 was appropriate to action the story?

1 A I mean, our focus was, we had a policy, the hack-and-leak policy. We had a
2 specific set of criteria that were necessary to take action under that policy. We assessed
3 it against that policy. If it had met those criteria, we would have recommended taking 4 action.
5 It did not meet those criteria, and so we didn't recommend taking action under 6 the hack-and-leak policy.
7 Q Did anyone within the company ask you to reassess?
8 A I don't recall that.
9 Q You mentioned that it's your understanding that the decision to take action
10 against the story fell ultimately under the misinformation section of the community 11 standards, that the misinformation team that rolls up to [redacted] was primarily 12 responsible.
13 As they're handling the issue and deciding whether to downrank the story, and 14 then for how long to keep it downranked, are you involved in any of these discussions?
15 A No. No.
16 Q To your knowledge, who was?
17 A I mean, I mentioned that this would roll up to [redacted].
18 Q And do you know if [redacted] was involved?
19 A I don't. I would expect she was, but I don't know.
20 Q As just an employee of Meta, did you receive a notification of any kind
21 regarding when the platform decided to no longer downrank the story?
22 A As an employee of Meta?
23 Q Yeah.
24 A No.
25 [redacted] We'll go off the record.

[redacted] We can go on the record.

This is a transcribed interview of [redacted]. Chairman Jordan has requested this interview as part of the committee's investigation of how and the extent to which the executive branch has coerced and colluded with companies and other intermediaries to censor speech.

Would the witness please state your name for the record.

[redacted]. My name is [redacted].

[redacted] On behalf of the committee, I want to thank you for appearing here today to answer our questions. The chairman also appreciates your willingness to appear voluntarily.

My name is [redacted] and I am with Chairman Jordan's staff. I'll now have everyone else in the room from the committee introduce themselves as well.

[redacted] [redacted] Chairman Jordan's staff.

[redacted] [redacted] Chairman Jordan's staff.

[redacted] [redacted] Chairman Jordan's staff.

[redacted] [redacted] House Judiciary Democrats.

[redacted] [redacted] House Judiciary Democrats.

[redacted] [redacted] House Judiciary Democrats.

[redacted] [redacted] House Judiciary Democrats.

[redacted] [redacted] House Judiciary Democrats.

[redacted] I'd like to go over the ground rules now and guidelines that we will follow during today's interview. Our questioning will proceed in rounds. The majority will ask questions first for 1 hour, and then the minority will have an opportunity to ask questions for an equal period of time if they choose. We will alternate back and forth until there are no more questions and the interview is over.

Typically we take a short break at the end of each hour. If you would like to take a break apart from that, please just let us know. As you can see, there is an official court reporter taking down everything we say to make a written record, so we ask that you give verbal responses to all questions. Do you understand?

[redacted]. I do.

[redacted] So the court reporter can take down a clear record, we will do our best to limit the number of people directing questions at you during any given hour to just those people on the staff whose turn it is. Please try and speak clearly so the court reporter can understand, and so the folks down at the end of the table can hear you. It is important that we don't talk over one another or interrupt each other if we can help it, and that goes for everybody present at today's interview.

We encourage witnesses who appear before the committee to freely consult with counsel if they so choose. It is my understanding that you are appearing today with counsel. Is that correct?

[redacted]. That is correct.

[redacted] Could counsel please state your name for the record.

Mr. Bopp. Michael Bopp, Gibson Dunn, representing [redacted].

Mr. Donovan. Daniel Donovan, King & Spalding, representing Alphabet.

[redacted] Thank you.

We want you to answer our questions in the most complete and truthful manner as possible, so we will take our time. If you have any questions, or if you do not understand one of our questions, please just let us know. Our questions will cover a wide range of topics, so if you need clarification at any point, just say so.

If you honestly don't know the answer to a question, or do not remember, it is best not to guess. Please give us your best recollection and it is okay to tell us if you learned information from someone else. Just indicate how you came to know the information.

If there are things you don't know or can't remember, just say so, and please inform us who, to the best of your knowledge, might be able to provide a more complete answer to the question.

You should also understand that although this interview is not under oath, that by law you are required to answer questions from Congress truthfully. Do you understand that?

[redacted]. I do.

[redacted] This also applies to questions posed by congressional staff in an interview. Do you understand this?

[redacted]. Yes.

[redacted] Witnesses that knowingly provide false testimony could be subject to criminal prosecution for perjury, for making false statements under 18 U.S.C. Section 1001. Do you understand this?

[redacted]. I do.

[redacted] Is there any reason you are unable to provide truthful answers to today's questions?

[redacted]. None that I'm aware of.

[redacted] Finally, I'd like to make a note that the content of what we discuss here today is confidential. We ask that you not speak about what we discuss in this interview to any outside individuals to preserve the integrity of our investigation. For the same reason, the marked exhibits that we will use today will remain with the court reporter, so that they can go into the official transcript, and any copies of those exhibits will be returned to us when we wrap up.

This is the end of my preamble. Is there anything that my colleagues from the minority would like to add?

[redacted] Just thank you for coming today.

[redacted] The clock now reads 10:09. We will begin the first hour of questioning.

BY [redacted]

Q [redacted], what is your current place of employment?

A Right now, I run a small consulting business called [redacted] Strategies, LLC. I'm also an academic. I work at Stanford Law School and will be teaching at Harvard Law School in the fall.

Q And is that -- are you switching universities, or is that just a temporary --

A Adjunct positions at both.

Q Okay. And can you say at a high level what year current consulting firm does?

A Sure. I work with companies that have complex cybersecurity and government data access questions and issues, and I help them navigate through those questions.

Q Okay. What's your educational background, beginning with college?

A I went to the University of New Mexico where I got my bachelor's degree, and then I went to Yale Law School and got my JD.

Q And then following law school, what is your employment history?

A The larger of the jobs I clerked for Judge Babcock in the district court, Federal District Court in Colorado. I worked at a law firm called Williams, Youle and Koenigs, which is a litigation firm in Denver. I worked for a period of time as court counsel for the Supreme Court of the Republic of Palau. I joined the law firm of Cooley Godward after that. And then I went to the Department of Justice and was a prosecutor with the computer crime and intellectual property section.

After that, I went to Yahoo! and served as an attorney in the legal department there on security and data access issues. And after that, I went to Google, where I worked most recently before leaving, and I served as senior director of law enforcement and information security at Google in the legal department.

Q Okay. When did you -- what year did you join Google?

A 2009.

Q And when you joined, what position did you have?

A I was senior counsel when I joined Google.

Q And how long were you in that position for?

A As senior counsel, it was a couple years before I was promoted. I can't remember now exactly how many, but it was a couple years.

Q And what was your next position after you were promoted?

A I was promoted to director, law enforcement and information security, again in the legal department, same role with promotion.

Q Okay. And when you became director, sounds like roughly 2011, 2012?

A That sounds roughly right. I'd need to go back and check, but I think you're in the ballpark.

Q And is that the position you held for the remainder of your tenure at Google?

A I was promoted again to senior legal director.

Q And when was that?

A That was a few years after that. I'm sorry, I don't know the details, but it was shortly after that.

Q Okay. What about after senior legal director?

A That's -- when I left Google, that was the title I had.

Q So when you became senior legal director, do you know -- do you recall if it was around 2015, 2016, a little bit earlier?

A 2016 sounds right to me. I'm guessing a little bit here, but it was that -- it was in that timeframe, yeah.

Q Okay. Starting once you became senior legal director, who did you report to in that role?

A Oh, as senior legal director, my recollection it was -- I reported to [redacted]. It could be that that was earlier, but that's my recollection is [redacted].

Q And who is [redacted]?

A He was in the legal department, and I think he ultimately reported to the general counsel at the time. My recollection on the org chart isn't perfect, but that's my recollection.

Q And as far as your responsibilities as senior legal director, what were the scopes of your responsibilities for that position?

A Sure. It was a managerial role, so I had some teams underneath me. But the subject matter that I covered was around the legal cybersecurity issues that, at the time when I was promoted Google, and then later, Alphabet, faced from foreign adversaries, domestic adversaries, anybody who was attacking the network. It was a worldwide portfolio. And I also handled, as legal counsel, the lawful access issues, which is requests to Alphabet and to Google for user information from government entities, criminal, civil, national security as well as nongovernmental entities, and again, it was worldwide.

Q So in your role as -- you said it was organization-wide, that would cover Google, YouTube, what other major products?

A Yeah, primarily Google and its subsidiaries, but also we provide guidance to some of the other companies that were subsidiaries of Alphabet, and not necessarily Google, although my role was with Google.

Q And you said you had a managerial role and managed some teams?

A That's correct.

Q Which teams did you manage?

A The teams that were there not just as interim included a team of counsel who would provide the guidance I was talking about to the same clients as I was referring to, and we had a team of legal specialists who would handle national security legal requests as it came in. And we had a team that would handle cybersecurity, serious criminal-ish investigations regarding the abuse of our platform that was serious enough that we thought it might constitute a criminal matter.

Q If I heard you correctly, you said setting aside temporary teams?

A Yeah, there was a period -- there was a short period of time where I also managed in an interim basis the legal specialists who also handled the civil and law enforcement requests for data. They were the operational team. They would handle the incoming demands from around the world, so that was interim period.

Just to clarify, there was a team that handled national security. That team was always with me. But the criminal and civil data disclosure operations team was with me only for an interim period.

Q And if we hadn't covered this already, when did you leave Google for Alphabet?

A July of 2022, so almost a year ago.

Q And did you go directly to Stanford after that?

A I've been teaching with Stanford through this period of time, but that is when I set up the consultancy. And there are various other things, but -- that one does when they have more time that aren't necessarily compensated. But as far as paid positions, that's when I'd created the consultancy.

Q When you were senior legal director, how big was the law enforcement and information security team?

A It was getting close to 50 people. I think it was under 50 at its peak, and I don't know where it is now. But when I left, I think we were getting close -- it was probably under 50, but closer to 50 than 40.

Q And from 2016 to 2022, did the team change in size?

A It did, yeah. There was a constant steady growth throughout those years. When I joined Google, there were no -- I was individual contributor, so this was a growth of the team throughout those years.

Q Which of the teams did you work most closely with outside of the law enforcement and information security team?

A Outside of my own team. That's a little tricky, because we provided subject matter, expertise, guidance, to any component within the company, so it wasn't as though we, strictly speaking, had a discrete set of, quote, "internal clients." We did do quite a bit of consulting with the organizations that handled security issues for the company, so that would include the Threat Analysis Group, TAG, as one of the major constituents of that.

There were child safety groups, and we would support them. Public policy dealt with a lot of the issues that our team had expertise in, so we worked very closely with the public policy team. I mean, a little hard for me to identify all of them. There were so many. It was really a matter of our subject matter expertise that decided who needed to come to us for our guidance.

Q What was the Threat Analysis Group? What did they cover?

A The Threat Analysis Group was a team that was established, I think in 2010, in the wake of our discovering that we had some Chinese-backed attackers in our corporate system. And we realized we needed to set up a team to deal with sophisticated advanced threat actors, and the Threat Analysis Group was set up to do that. So it was a group in the engineering team made up of security professionals, engineering.

Q What were the -- what was the nature of your interactions with the public policy team?

A There was -- there's a host of those. A lot of the interactions had to do with legislative initiatives that might be being considered by a committee or subcommittee, and on lawful access issues primarily. So issues covering the Communications Act, the Wiretap Act, maybe some of the national security authorities. We would be able to provide guidance to the public policy team on our experience with those statutes and how Google's products interacts with those statutes. So that would be an example.

Q Any other examples?

A That was most of -- I think that was most of the work with the public policy team, but it would -- I'm sure there are. They're just not popping into my mind right now.

Q Who led the public policy team during 2016 to 2022?

A 2016 to 2022, oh, boy. I know -- I'm sorry, I'm just forgetting the name of the -- it's terrible. I just can't remember the name of the first person who was -- oh, [redacted] ran the public policy team for a period of time. And [redacted] -- oh, I'm blanking on his name now, this is terrible, also who is currently the head is -- was running it for quite a few years as well during that span.

Q And from the same time period of 2016 to 2022, who on the team did you most frequently interact with?

A On the public policy team?

Q Yes.

A Oh, I don't know that there were any front runners. There was a team called the administration team, which dealt with the administration that was run by [redacted]. So I worked with her quite a bit. There were individuals on the team who handled Hill issues, and I dealt with all of them when it came to legislative initiatives, or responses to proposals. Again, it was a team and it changed over time, so there were just various folks there. I'm sorry, I won't be able to give you an exhaustive list, but they kind of matched to the subject matter I was identifying earlier.

Q Are you familiar with the terms misinformation, disinformation, and malinformation?

A I've heard those terms, yeah.

Q What's your understanding of what they are and the differences between them?

A I'm not sure I'm terribly qualified to give you a street definition. I think misinformation is pretty much what it sounds like, information that is wrong. What were the other terms?

Q Disinformation and malinformation.

A Yeah. I don't know that I -- I'd have to sit down and think it through as to whether the definition distinctions had to do with the intent on the part of the person spreading the information. I'd probably defer to others who are better equipped to deal with the nomenclature.

Q We'll start with misinformation. Do you -- which teams at Alphabet would handle issues related to misinformation?

A I'm not actually sure what the teams are. I didn't myself deal with misinformation at Google, but I do know that if anything came to me that I needed to pass on around misinformation or any other categories that -- or any other type of lead that came in relating to the categories you mentioned, I would pass them on largely to the team that I understand on the product side that would deal with the piece of information.

So it would be a different person if it was related to YouTube versus Search versus Maps versus any other of the products. So there would be different teams that I would interact with. I'm not sure that's actually answering your question though, because I don't know behind that who actually dealt with them.

Q If you were to have received information regarding an issue of misinformation on YouTube, who at the company would you direct that information to?

A There would be a couple people I might direct that to. One would be at the time, [redacted], who was also in the legal department and handled YouTube matters. And there -- YouTube also had a Trust and Safety team, and I would have a way to provide -- if a tip came in or information I needed to get to that team, I would be able to provide it to the YouTube Trust and Safety team.

Q Do you know who led that team from 2016 to 2022?

A As I sit here today, I can't recall who that would be.

Q Did you have a point of contact on that team that you would interact with?

A [redacted] at the time was always reliable. If I didn't know who to send something to for YouTube, I could always provide it to [redacted].

Q And what about with respect to Search?

A With Search, I think that was, if I recall correctly, I would go to the product counsel for Search and have the product counsel, somebody in the legal department who worked closely with the product, and provide whatever it is that I was acting as a router for to that person and then they could take it from there. There may have been an email alias for Search, but I don't recall now.

Q Do you recall, staying with the same time period of 2016 to 2022, how frequently, you know, information, other people sending in reports related to misinformation issues were coming in to you?

A It was not -- it was not a common part of my day and -- or even week. So it wasn't -- it wasn't something that took up much of my time as volume goes, but it also wasn't unusual if I would get something and I would be able to quickly turn it around. I don't think I'm equipped now to give you an estimate beyond those generalizations of what the volume was, but it wasn't anything that required a great deal of my time or my team's time.

Q Do you recall who was sending you reports when you did receive them from time to time?

A Oh, we would -- you know, there were so many sources. I sort of served as a face for Google on a lot of matters, and so my contact information, email address was pretty widely available, and people knew that they could send something to me and I would handle it. So that there was a variety of places that tips on all sorts of things, including what you are referring to as misinformation might come in from inside the United States and from outside of the United States, government entities and nongovernment entities. So it was a really an assortment.

Q For requests from inside the United States, do you recall any requests from U.S. Federal agencies?

A I don't remember any requests. We would get tips, and, yes, we would get tips from government agencies in the U.S. and outside, but, yes, in the U.S.

Q Which U.S. agencies provide tips?

A The ones that come to mind now would be DHS's CISA would send in tips and pieces of information. And I think we would get from the FBI as well. I'm trying to think if there was any examples that jump to mind. But as a protocol, we would get information from the FBI. I have a slight recollection of State and local officials as well, although as I sit here now I couldn't think of a specific example.

Q With respect to CISA and the FBI, when you say we were receiving tips, are you referring to your team? You specifically? Do you recall?

A Oh, I'm sorry. I should've been more specific. Me. We're receiving typically email from CISA or FBI representatives that I would then pass on to the product or Trust and Safety team.

Q And did you have interactions with CISA and FBI other than receiving tips from time to time?

A Yes.

Q What were the -- what was the nature of those interactions?

A Well, the FBI -- there were lots of interactions with the FBI and other law enforcement agencies because of the lawful access work I did, which is handling search warrants and all of that, and there's lots of legal process that comes from government agencies, including the FBI. So there was a good deal around that.

There was also interaction with the FBI around network attacks on Google and our users and information sharing, trying to get information sharing arrangements in place so that we could get tips from the FBI when the FBI or one of the other government agencies detected some misuse or attacks against Google accounts. So there was some regular communications with the FBI on cybersecurity issues, so those were the two examples.

Q And with respect to issues related to, let's say, fake accounts or coordinated inauthentic behavior, which team at Alphabet would have primary responsibility for issues related to that?

A It's a little hard to answer. I think when you say fake accounts, I'm not quite sure what a fake account is. But if there was a YouTube account that it was problematic for some reason, or was something that could be looked at under the terms of service or otherwise, the YouTube team would take a look at those.

So if a tip came in about a YouTube URL, that would go to, as I mentioned earlier, either to [redacted] or to the YouTube Trust and Safety team for evaluation. If it looked like it was a true security issue, like an account had been taken over, or if there was an account that was being attacked, that might be viewed less as an issue for the Trust and Safety team and more of an issue for our Threat Analysis Group to take a look at to see if we've got a problem with a, for example, state-sponsored attacker. So it could go different ways depending on the context. And the same would be true with gmail accounts or other accounts that we might have at Google.

Q You mentioned CISA earlier. What is CISA?

A CISA is a DHS subunit, cyber crime and infrastructure S-A, I think security agency, yeah.

Q If I represent it was the Cybersecurity and Infrastructure Security Agency, would that -- does that sound right?

A That would be -- I understand, yes. Thank you.

Q Is CISA a law enforcement agency, to your understanding?

A I didn't view it as a law enforcement agency. I'm not aware of CISA having traditional law enforcement authorities, but that would be my view. I don't know. Others may have other views on it.

Q And what is your understanding of what CISA's responsibilities as an agency were?

A I knew what my engagement with CISA was, and it was really about information, mostly of getting information from CISA that was somewhat generalized, but about attackers and the threat landscape in the form of bulletins and that sort of thing. CISA also had an element -- my interactions with CISA around election integrity during the, I think, 2018 and 2020 general election. So they had that function. So those were the two big -- my two big interactions with the -- the areas of interaction with CISA, or largest interactions.

Q And when you received tips from State and local officials, with the understanding you don't have recollection of any specific examples, was it your understanding that these were State and local law enforcement agencies or any type of State and local agency?

A Oh, yeah, I wasn't limiting it to that, because it could be campaigns, it could be officials, it could be agencies, all sort -- a variety of different entities.

[redacted] Could we go off the record very briefly.

[Discussion off the record.]

[redacted] We can go back on the record, please.

BY [redacted]

Q You mentioned that one of the issues that CISA would handle included election integrity. What was your understanding of what CISA's responsibilities were with respect to election integrity?

A I don't know what their responsibilities were really short of my interactions with them. And those interactions involved meetings, and of getting, as I mentioned earlier, information from CISA about the general threat landscape, and maybe some other related tips. But I don't know that I can speak to what their official role was.

Q Who at CISA did you most frequently interact with?

A During this time period, 2016 through twenty --

A 2022 when I left. There were two people who I think I interacted with most, not terribly frequently but would've been most. One was Matt Masterson, who somewhere in there -- in that time period, left CISA. The other, Brian Scully. Those are two names that pop out. There may be others, but those are the ones I remember most vividly.

Q Do you recall Mr. Masterson's role at CISA?

A You know, I don't know. I don't know what his title was, yeah. From my perspective, he and Brian were points of contact at CISA, but I don't actually know their relationship to each other or their titles as I sit here.

Q When having interactions with either Mr. Masterson or Mr. Scully, did these tend to be direct interactions or were they multi-partner collaborations or meetings?

A There were one-on-one interactions, and there were interactions that involved other parties.

Q Okay. When it was a one-on-one interaction, what was the nature of the interaction?

A Most of those that I can -- as I sit here today, that I can think about are where CISA would be sending, really by email, information either -- it may have actually been to lots of people, but it would be like a CISA bulletin on advisories on threat landscape. And then there could be individual emails from Brian Scully or Matt Masterson on particular issues. As I recall, most of those in that period of time, there weren't that many, but most of them would've been involving issues around election time, place, and manner, restrictions, and rules.

Q And with respect to group or multi-partner communications, what was -- what were the nature of those?

A There were -- going back to the first thing, the advisories were probably multi-party recipients of those, so there's that. And there were also meetings that we had that were hosted by CISA and involved other parties.

Q Do you recall which other parties were involved?

A I don't know that I could be comprehensive, but I do recall some. It was a -- what I'm referring to was an industry government set of meetings. So there were participants from government entities as well as from industry private sector. Government involved CISA, and there was another DH component, I&A. I think that was it for Homeland Security. FBI had representatives. ODNI was also present. And there may be others, but that's my recollection of the government side.

Q Okay. Do you recall any interactions with the Global Engagement Center, which is housed within the State Department?

A I don't know that I had any interactions with them. I could be wrong, but that was not an entity that I dealt with very much.

Q Do you have an understanding of what the Global Engagement Center deals with, the scope of its responsibilities?

A Not really. I had seen some publications that came out of that group, but I was never -- I never dealt with them enough to need to know how they fit in the larger picture.

Q With respect to YouTube, are you familiar at all with YouTube's community guidelines?

A Very -- probably not more than any average YouTube user, and maybe even less.

Q Were you -- as a subject matter expert, were you ever consulted with respect to the development of YouTube's community guidelines?

A No. The -- my subject matter expertise was not in that area.

Q And what about with respect to enforcement of YouTube's community guidelines?

A No, I would not have been the attorney to advise on that.

Q Do you know if YouTube or any other product within Alphabet has content moderation policies with respect to a hack and leak?

A I think I know that there is such a policy, but I'm not even confident on that, and I don't know what the policy is if there is one.

Q Okay. So if there were a policy, you were not -- did not play a role in developing it?

A That's correct.

Q Do you know which teams within YouTube are responsible for developing the community guidelines policies?

A Only generally. There will be others who can answer this with much more authority, but certainly the product counsel would be involved in that. There would be product leads who would be involved in that, and implementation of it and maybe articulation of it might be done by -- with input by the Trust and Safety team for YouTube. That's about the extent of my knowledge.

Q In your interactions with this U.S. Government industry sync, you mentioned a few agencies would be present, also sounded like some industry partners, do you recall other than Alphabet who some of the other industry partners were?

A Yeah. Again, it might be incomplete, but I recall Facebook, later Meta; Twitter; Microsoft; LinkedIn I think joined separately with Microsoft; Reddit; Verizon/Yahoo!, when they were together. And I think -- did I say Reddit? No, Wikimedia I think was also in there. And there may have been more, but I think that's all I'm remembering right now.

Q And how frequently would you attend these meetings?

A I think I went to all of them. I don't remember missing any. It's possible that there was one of them. They weren't that frequent, but it's possible there was one I didn't attend.

Q Okay. And what's your recollection of how frequently the meetings occurred?

A I recall them being, I would say, I -- this is probably easy, better verify than talking to me about my memory, but my recollection is they were pretty rare, like maybe once-a-quarter kind of meetings. We may have picked up the cadence, changed the cadence as we got closer to big election events. But during the acquire periods it was not -- it was definitely not feeling like --

Q Do you recall what kinds of information the U.S. government would provide during these meetings?

A Yeah, in general. I'm not sure I remember any specific meetings, but the meetings would generally start with the government, each one of the government entities that was participating giving a briefing if they had anything to brief on. And they generally were about sort of high-level threat landscape points to make, not very specific on any of the threats. But that was the -- that was sort of the protocols we would go through the government one by -- government agencies one by one, and they would speak.

Q And do you recall just when the U.S. Government was briefing at this high level for the threat landscape if there were any briefings that concerned the degree of a risk of a hack-and-leak operation?

A No, that doesn't sound like a topic. I don't remember that topic being discussed.

Q Are there any topics you do remember being discussed?

Mr. Bopp. What timeframe are you talking about?

[redacted] Still 2016 to 2022.

[redacted]. The whole thing.

[redacted] Whenever the meetings were taking place.

[redacted]. Yeah.

Mr. Bopp. All right.

[redacted]. I -- the topics that stand out for me in those meetings were presentations by mostly CISA on what the election calendar looked like coming up, what the big events were, and a discussion about in -- for the different events what time, place, and manner rules may be in place or may be changing. So it was all very sort of procedural and calendar driven. That's -- those are the kinds of things I really recall.

BY [redacted]

Q Did anyone else from Alphabet attend these meetings?

A Yes. It was typically [redacted] who would join me, and [redacted]. There would be occasions when the personnel changed, but those were the most common participants for Alphabet.

Q So to your recollection, there would typically be three representatives from Alphabet on these calls, you, [redacted], and [redacted]?

A As a consistent manner throughout that period of time, yes.

Q And do you recall when these meetings first started?

A No, I don't, yeah.

Q Did they start before the 2020 U.S. election?

A I think they did start before the 2020 election.

Q Do you know if they started before the 2018 U.S. midterms?

A That would be my question. I don't know if that was set up before the 2018 getting ready for the midterms or after. I don't remember.

Q Were they still ongoing when you left in, you said, I think, July of 2022?

A There -- as I -- at the point I left there had been no discussion about terminating them, so -- but I don't know otherwise.

Q Who is [redacted]?

A [redacted] runs the Threat Analysis Group, which I referred to earlier.

Q When you departed Alphabet, did you know who your replacement was?

A Yes.

Q And who is that?

A It was [redacted].

Q And who is [redacted]?

A [redacted] runs -- is in the legal department, and runs a team called the specialists team or group. And my team, both on the cybersecurity side and the lawful access side, my understanding -- this all happened after I left -- reported into [redacted].

Q So during these U.S. Government industry meetings, U.S. Government is providing information, would either you or [redacted] or [redacted], would any of you provide a summary to share with your Alphabet colleagues?

A I don't really recall -- not as a normal protocol. If there was something that came out of there that was notable to report to others we would, but I don't remember doing that as a normal practice.

Q With respect to information CISA provided related to its election integrity responsibilities, of the three of you that would most frequently attend, who would be responsible for, you know, handling any due-outs related to those issue topics?

A I don't recall there ever being any due-outs from those. It was mostly a collection of information. And to the extent we had anything to report to the group or the other participants, we would. But it would -- there wasn't any -- that I recall, I don't think there was any action items unless it was around logistics of something.

Q In the run-up to the 2020 U.S. election, do you recall if Alphabet or Google created any temporary teams or rapid response teams to help in election-related issues?

A Yeah, I do understand that we created a -- I can't recall the name of it, but an elections integrity team to deal with things as they came up. That included multifunctional representatives.

Q And do you recall who led that team?

A I believe it was [redacted], who ran the Trust and Safety team.

Q And when you reference the Trust and Safety team, is that for a specific product or is it company-wide?

A That -- yeah, let me clarify there. There was a Trust and Safety team for YouTube, which was, as I understand it anyway, separate from the Trust and Safety team that handled other Google products. So my understanding is those were separate but very -- they -- obviously their work was close. But I don't think that [redacted] oversaw the YouTube Trust and Safety work, but I could be wrong on that. But my recollection is she did not.

Q And with respect to this temporary team that handle election-related issues, do you recall where other members of the team came from in the company?

A I don't. There would be -- in addition to [redacted] she would've had other of her team involved in it, so it wouldn't be purely the leader of Trust and Safety but some of the operations folks. But I don't remember who else would've been on that.

Q Okay. Was anyone from your team asked to join?

A Only intermittently. If there was a need to brief them on a security issue, we might attend.

Q Were you ever asked to brief the team or --

A I think so. I think there were times when there was -- I can't remember the details, but I do recall there being requests that me or my team be there to talk about some aspect of a security issue.

Q Are you familiar with the October 2020 New York Post story on Hunter Biden's laptop?

A Yeah, generally, I am.

Q Do you recall being asked at any point to provide any information on the veracity of the story, or the authenticity of the laptop?

A No.

Q Do you know if anyone on your team was asked?

A Not that I'm aware of.

Q Do you -- are you familiar at all with how the company handled the story, whether it would be moderated in any way?

A Not that I'm aware of.

Q Okay. Are you familiar with the statement that came out, I think it was about 5 days later, by 51 former intel officials addressing the story, the laptop?

A That sounds familiar, but it wasn't -- that wasn't something that stands out in my memory. I don't recall that being important to any work I was doing.

Q Do you recall being contacted by any former intel officials in the days following the story's publication?

A About the story?

Q About the story.

A No.

Q You mentioned having contact with a few government agencies, CISA, FBI. Do you recall having any -- receiving any contact from anyone in the U.S. Federal Government regarding the story?

A No.

Q With respect to the story, do you know if there was public reporting that it might be the product of a Russian-originated hack-and-leak operation -- for hack-and-leak operations at a high level? Do you know which team within Alphabet might provide subject matter expertise?

A I'm sorry, I didn't understand -- the beginning of your question I got a little lost in. Would you mind --

Q Sure.

A -- trying to --

Q With -- not necessarily specific to the Hunter Biden laptop story, just in general, if there were concerns that Alphabet had about a potential hack and leak coming from a foreign actor, which teams within Alphabet might be able to provide subject matter expertise?

A It's a bit of a hypothetical, but I can tell you how responsibilities would be allocated in a -- in what you are describing here, a hack and leak. There's the hack side, which is -- when you are referring to a hack, what I'm hearing is an unauthorized access to a Google account, and if that happens, regardless of whether there's a leak or denial of service or extortion or anything else, if there's a security breach, that's largely going to be handled -- where there's concerns about a state-sponsored attacker, that's largely going to be handled by the Threat Analysis Group.

That's separate from what the culprit does with the data they have access to, but they -- the investigation into the security incident, which is the breach of the account, would -- if it looks like a state-sponsored hacker, it would be handled by [redacted] team.

Questions about the leak presumably would be going back to one of your earlier questions about a policy on if that information appears on a product, what does Google do, and I don't know how that would be handled or really what team would deal with that.

Q During your time at Alphabet, do you have familiarity with issued tickets that were internally called bugs?

A Yeah. There was -- there were -- there was a tool called Buganizer that was used to create what you just referred to as bugs, which is a -- it's really a ticketing system, yes.

Q And just at a high level, what was the nature of your interactions with the Buganizer system?

A I didn't use Buganizer very often, but it was -- it's really a generic platform that different teams can use to intake problem requests, feature requests, all sorts of ways of tracking an action item. And it was used in many ways at Google like it is in many companies. So there were times when somebody else would file a bug, and I would want to follow along with what's going on, so I would be copied on it. It was pretty rare for me to file a bug, but I was generally -- I don't think -- I wouldn't say I was competent at using it, but I understood the basics.

Q And what sorts of issues, again, just at a high level, would you be copied on for a bug?

A Oh, most of the -- I think for me it was mostly around requests for improvement on tooling for the data access work that Google was responsible to do, so being able to poll user data in response to legal process asking for improvements to the tools or a fix to the tools or a change to the tools. That would be pretty common if it was an important matter that I wanted to follow along and kind of keep moving.

Q Okay. And with this ticketing tool, is it independent of email? How would you receive messages or notifications?

A I do think it was a standalone tool, but the way -- this is my experience with using Buganizer as not a sophisticated user, but I would get email alerts when there was a new entry on a bug ticket that I was following. And then from that email, I could, depending on my access level, I could see the ticket through the link.

Q With respect to the U.S. Government industry calls that would occur at a somewhat regular cadence, would industry members also provide information or was it only the government provided information --

A Oh, yeah, we stopped there, didn't we. So the protocol of the meetings was that the government would go first and each of the agencies, if they had a briefing, would provide it. And then, it would be turned over to the companies. And each company would have an opportunity, if they had something they wanted to share in that group, they could share it. So we would go through or at least we would open it up for the companies to provide a briefing if they wanted to.

Q Do you recall if you ever provided a briefing?

A It was pretty rare if I did. I have a slight recollection of letting the group know that Google had just published its most recent version of a transparency report. It was along those lines. That's probably the -- that's the only one I remember providing.

Q And would industry ever meet independent of meeting with the government, set up a call in advance to discuss among industry partners only?

Mr. Bopp. Are you talking about industry meeting with [redacted] or just sort of more generally?

BY [redacted]

Q With Alphabet to [redacted] knowledge.

A And we're talking -- we're still talking about --

Q So you mentioned a few industry partners that the U.S. Government is on the call. I'll start with here. In advance of those meetings, would industry ever meet separate without the U.S. Government --

A That's very helpful. Yes, we would, yeah.

Q And what was the purpose of those meetings?

A The meetings with the industry participants in advance of the USG meeting was largely to talk about what we expected in the next meeting that was coming up, to maybe get a preview is there anything anybody wants to say or intends to say, sort of help the meeting move along efficiently. That was the -- that was commonly the purpose of the pre-meets.

Q And when working on security-related issues, during your time at Google, we'll sit with the 2016 to 2022 timeframe, would that ever require across-platform cooperation, working with other tech companies?

A Try me again on that. I'm sorry.

Q Sure. Just in the scope of your responsibilities at Alphabet, were there ever issues that would require you to work directly with, say, Twitter or Meta on a similar security-related issue?

A Yes, although that's -- it's a very broad question. There were lots of security issues and lots of interaction as a result of that, broadly speaking, and not -- not talking about elections necessarily. But, yes, there was -- there were communications around security issues with other companies.

Q Were there communications or issues related to elections in particular?

A There -- I would say yes to that, but once we had the -- the group that was meeting, that was really the primary form for the conversations, but I'm sure there would've been individual communications in addition to that.

Q Did you have a primary form of contact at Twitter with respect to these communications?

A A primary form of contact?

Q Or excuse me, primary contact at Twitter with respect to these --

A Oh, thank you. I -- I would say that if I -- during that period of time, if I needed to contact Twitter, it would probably be through Yoel Roth at the time.

Q And who is Mr. Roth?

A My understanding is at the time he was involved, or at least he was the representative of Twitter for Trust and Safety purposes, and more specifically on election work. But I don't really know what his full set of responsibilities was.

Q Turning back to the October 2020 New York Post story on Hunter Biden's laptop, do you have any familiarity with the steps Twitter took with respect to moderating the story?

A Only what was publicly known. I didn't have any other conversations that revealed anything other than what was already known.

Q In the days following the story's publication and after Twitter had made its decision, do you recall having any contact with Mr. Roth regarding the story or Twitter's decision to moderate it?

A I remember in an industry call that was -- I think it was a pre-industry call for the USG industry, I remember Mr. Roth in that meeting, this was after everything was public about what Twitter was going to do, but basically reiterated that this is what Twitter did.

Q And when you say it was a pre-industry call, just for clarification sake, this would be an industry-only call in advance of an upcoming industry U.S. Government meeting?

A That's correct.

Q Do you recall Mr. Roth, in addition to saying what Twitter had decided to do, provide any further reasoning or explanation?

A No.

Q Do you recall if there was any discussion or response from anyone on the call?

A I don't recall there being any discussion or response.

Q Do you recall if any other of the industry partners shared how their respective companies were handling the story?

A I don't recall that being discussed.

Q Do you recall if Facebook made any presentation related to the issue?

A No, I don't remember anything like that.

Q Did you say you are a lecturer at Stanford?

A Yes.

Q So at the law school?

A That's correct, yes.

Q Do you have any interactions with the Stanford Internet Observatory?

A No.

Q Do you have familiarity with what it is?

A I do.

Q And what's your understanding of what --

A My understanding is it's a research group that's focused on Trust and Safety issues around the larger companies and content moderation.

Q Do you have any familiarity with the Election Integrity Partnership?

A No.

Q You don't?

A I don't.

Q Have you heard of that term?

A As I sit here now, that is not a familiar phrase for me.

Q During your time at Alphabet, did you ever work with someone from Stanford named Alex Stamos?

A Yes.

Q Okay. And what was the context of your interactions?

A My interactions with Mr. Stamos was in his role back then at Meta and not at Stanford. And his role at Meta being -- as I recall being involved in Trust and Safety, so it was similar in some ways to other contacts at other companies about these issues.

Q Do you recall any interactions with him after he left Meta and had joined Stanford?

A Nothing related to elections.

Q Okay. Related to -- other issues related to your work?

A Nothing related to my work.

Q Okay. Did you have a -- just a friendship, personal relationship then or --

A Well, he was at Stanford and I -- after -- I don't think I had any interaction with him after he left Meta and went to Stanford and I was still at Alphabet. I have been in contact with him since I left Google, or left Alphabet, and he's at Stanford, yeah.

Q Sure. But not before you had left?

A But not -- I don't recall anything before.

Q Okay. Are you familiar with the Center for Internet Security, CIS?

A Yes.

Q And what is that?

A It's a program at Stanford Law School that is staffed largely by fellows of various sorts, and it's largely focused on security issues and a few other sort of tech issues that have significant touch points with the law.

Q And are you affiliated with the Center?

A I am one of the fellows.

Q Okay. During your time at Alphabet -- actually, let me strike that.

Are you familiar at all with something called the Virality Project?

A No, I'm not familiar with that.

Q Okay. Are you familiar with something called the Elections Infrastructure Information Sharing and Analysis Center, frequently has the acronym EI-ISAC?

A I haven't had any interaction with them. I've not heard of that, I'm sorry.

Q During your time at Alphabet, we'll say 2016 to 2022, did you have any interactions with Graphika?

A No.

Q What about with respect to the DFR Lab, which is housed with the Atlantic Council?

A I had no interaction with them that I recall.

Q With respect to the U.S. Government industry meetings, do you recall if meeting minutes were ever circulated after a meeting?

A I don't recall there being meeting minutes circulated, no.

[11:05 a.m.]

BY [redacted]

Q To your understanding, were the meetings recorded?

A I don't know that if we didn't record them, I don't know that anybody did.

Q Do you recall who some of the most recent U.S. government representatives were specifically people you mentioned at some of the agencies?

A Oh, you know the only names that stand out to me are Matt Masterson and Brian Scully. I know occasionally -- I recall, Elvis Chan at Sachs -- Elvis Chan coming to some of them on behalf of the FBI. But as for the other agencies, I don't remember their names.

Q Are you familiar with the Foreign Influence Task Force?

A Yes.

Q And what is that?

A That is a task force, my understanding is that it was set up by the FBI to meet with industry, and they may have other functions as well, but what I'm familiar with is meeting with industry to talk about significant security threats, foreign-based.

Q And when the task force would meet with industry, in the context of these industry, U.S. Government sync'd reference, or is there a separate set of meetings?

A It was a separate, separate set of meetings, yeah.

Q And for these task force-specific meetings, were they with -- directly with companies one on one, or is it similar where there were multiple industry partners on the same --

A I can speak only for Google, it was one-on-one meetings.

Q And who from Google would attend?

A Typically, it would be me, [redacted]. Sometimes [redacted] would have other designees from his team participate. And in -- as I started exiting Google and transitioning out, I had [redacted] on my team participate in those. I think [redacted] joined those as well.

Q And who is [redacted]?

A [redacted] is a counsel on my team, and he did security work.

Q Were your interactions with Agent Chan in the context of these Foreign Influence Task Force meetings?

A I'm sorry, say that again?

Q Let me rephrase that. What meeting was the Foreign Influence Task Force? Was Agent Chan one of the representatives that would attend these meetings?

A Yes.

Q And do you recall when these meetings began?

A I don't remember when they had set up that task force. It had been years, but I don't remember when it got started.

Q Do you recall if it predated the 2020 U.S. election?

A It did predate the 2020.

Q And were they ongoing when you left Alphabet?

A There was no termination of them. At the point that I left Google, I don't know what happened afterwards.

Q Do you recall their frequency; how often they occurred?

A Those I think -- I think those were quarterly.

Q Do you recall what foreign meetings would take place? Was it over Zoom, or similar to a Zoom conference?

A If it was the before the pandemic and the shutdowns, it was in-person.

And then we moved to remote. And I think we had gone back to in-person before I had left Google.

Q And where would these meetings take place when they were in-person?

A I recall Google hosting, but there may have been occasions where it was also within an FBI facility.

Q Okay. Can we go off the record, please.

[Discussion off the record.]

[Recess.]

BY [redacted]

Q It is 11:20. Good morning, [redacted]. Thank you for agreeing to be here voluntarily. We appreciate that. I'm going to skip over a lot of the background questions because I think that you made it very clear what your background is. It's impressive. But I wanted to direct your attention to the fact that you have previously testified in congressional committees. Is that correct?

A That's true.

Q And I don't know if you recall how many times?

A It's at least 10 in the U.S. and then some outside the U.S.

Q Was that always while you were employed at Google or Alphabet or in other capacities?

A Always when I was with Google.

Q Okay. And directing your attention, just generally, to testimony that you gave in 2020, do you recall talking generally on the subject of election security and some of the work that Google had done to help with election security?

A Yes.

Q Okay. I'm not going to ask you anything specific about that. And if your recollection is not great, that's fine. Just tell me what you recall or what you don't recall. But I just want to get a broad view of what some of what you said in the past about what Google has done with respect to election security and integrity.

You had said -- and to be clear, your testimony in that occasion, you were talking what Google does as a company, not what you personally might have been involved in. Is that fair to say?

A That's true.

Q Okay. And in your prior testimony -- and you stated that Google has focused on three main areas with respect to promoting integrity of elections. Let me know if I'm stating this correctly. Those three areas include: One, empowering people with authoritative information. For example, information that they can trust when they go to polls. Is that correct as one area?

A Yes, I recall that, yes.

Q And the second area you mentioned was providing account and site security. For example, helping to secure the election, I guess, infrastructure. Is that fair to say, or would you say differently?

A I might say that differently. I don't have the testimony, and I don't recall it. But the I think that point was more about securing the Google aspects of their accounts as it might pertain to campaigns, and others who were relying on Google services when making decisions about election issues.

Q And the third was improving transparency of election advertisements. Do you recall focusing on that as well?

A I remember that being included in the testimony, yes.

Q Okay. I am going to turn to her for a few moments.

[redacted] And I just have another question. Would you say it's fair that in your role at Alphabet, the company's interest in protecting against hacking illegal wiretaps, malicious codes, and other computer crimes have been consistent across different political administrations?

[redacted]. Yes.

[redacted] That's it.

BY [redacted]

Q Now, you testified and mentioned in your prior testimony that Google has developed programs and products that apply, specifically, to the various areas of empowering people with information, providing account security, and improving transparency in election advertisements. Do you recall that?

A I do, yes.

Q And can you just say it briefly. Like, what are some of Google's programs or products that you developed with those goals in mind, beginning with the goal of empowering people with information that they can trust when they go to the polls?

A This is, as you mentioned earlier, a little bit vague, a little bit in the distance for me. So my recollection of this is somewhat vague, and there are going to be more authoritative sources than made to answer that yes. But I do recall that that point included making sure that when users sought information about time, place, and manner of voting and elections, that the information they received was accurate, so that they could exercise their right to vote and have a good understanding of the process for doing so.

Q And what about include how to register to vote, for example, in the State or locality where they lived, or providing like a source for accurate sources where they could find that information?

A That's a bit of a hypothetical, but I would say that yes that would fit in the nature of what I'm referring to.

Q Okay. And when Google sought to provide that authoritative information, were you seeking to provide it to people regardless of their party affiliation?

A Ah, yes.

Q And regardless of what area of the country they lived in?

A Yes.

Q Regardless of any ideology that you expected those populations to have?

A Correct.

Q Google also provided information about congressional candidates, for example, on the search page and what they call knowledge panels. Are you familiar with that product?

A I am a little familiar with knowledge panels, yes.

Q Okay. And correct me if I'm wrong, but those panels were intended to provide the opportunity for candidates to make their own statements, for example, in the panel, so that when somebody searched for the person they were interested in, they would be able to see this information that came from the candidate. Is that a fair description of what some of those knowledge panels intended to do?

A My understanding is that that was one of the purposes of the knowledge panels, yes.

Q Okay. When Google provided this product, did Google provide it without regard to the party affiliation of the candidates?

A I know of no reason to think otherwise.

Q And without regard to the expected ideology or party affiliation of the voters?

A The same answer, right.

Q Google has also partnered with organizations like the Voter Information Project. Do you recall that partnership?

A I was not involved in that partnership, so I don't know the details.

Q All right. I'll skip over that. As far as your involvement personally or that you know with Google and these election security projects, have you ever known Google to provide a product selectively based on their expectation about partisanship or ideology of the person receiving the information?

A Can you repeat it? Would you mind rephrasing it.

Q Have you ever known Google to provide a product like the ones that we've just described with the intent of promoting a certain political party or ideology?

A No.

Q This is another example that YouTube provided a prominently surfaced information on its panel for registered congressional candidates when people did a YouTube search result. That, again, was part of its efforts to to allow people to find authoritative information about their elected representatives or candidates. Is that fair to say?

A I think that was intended to allow the candidates to present themselves as they wished to be presented.

Q Okay. And Google, again, did not -- or YouTube did not provide that opportunity selectively to one party over the other. Is that correct?

A I have no reason to think otherwise.

Q And these efforts that we've described and that you've described in prior testimony, they were done in order to ensure that voters could easily access authoritative content related to candidates that they were interested in. Is that fair to say?

A Yes.

Q And that's part of the Google's larger mission of providing the world with authoritative information about the subjects that interest them. Is that fair to say?

A Yes, it is.

Q All right. That was the first, I guess, focus area that you mentioned in your prior testimony, which you characterize as empowering people with authoritative information. You also talked about a second goal that Google had in this respect, which was securing elections.

Can you just briefly describe, or generally describe like, how does Google seek to accomplish that goal of securing elections?

A During the period of time when I was at Google, those efforts included advanced protection program where candidates and campaigns that use Google services could sign up for alerts and other protection for their accounts to make sure that they weren't breached. So that would be a good example of the type of security protection that Google is providing.

Q So that was aimed at political campaigns or candidates or office holders?

A Yeah, it could be -- excuse me, yes, it could be that. Actually, a lot of people could register for advanced protection for the advanced protection program.

Q Okay. And you provided this service regardless of the political affiliation of the candidate or the office holder?

A Correct.

Q Or the campaign?

A Correct.

Q Why is it that Google wanted to secure or to help secure elections in this manner? How did that benefit Google in your view?

A From my perspective, in my role, this was very consistent with protecting user data and the security of user accounts and the security of the users themselves who are taking advantages of the service that Google offers. And that includes consumers of search results and other sources of information that are available through Google, but also their actual use of the communication services to receive communications as well as to push content to users.

Q Is it fair to say that if a campaign or a candidate or an election official was using a Google product and account or something else, and it was secure, and they had few problems, that that would be good for Google?

A That is a success for Google and for its users, yes.

Q You mentioned in prior testimony that Google offered what was called an Advanced Protection Program. Is that where you were just describing, or is that a different program?

A That is the program I was referring to.

Q Does that still exist?

A I don't know if it still exist. It did at the time that I left Google.

Q Okay. And that product was again something that you offered to campaigns, candidates, and election officials in order to enhance election-related accounts or the security of election-related accounts. Is that fair to say?

A It is, as well as other accounts, but yes.

Q Okay. And again, you did that regardless of the party affiliation ideology or partisanship of any of the campaign officials or candidates. Is that fair to say?

A Yes.

Q You mentioned that Google had a program called Protect Shield. Are you familiar with that, is it product? Is that better to say product?

A If what you're referring to is what I'm recalling, they're the same thing.

Yes, there was a program to help protect sites from going down from denial of service attacks. So the nomenclature, I'm not quite sure is the same, but that sounds similar to what I have in my mind when you said that phrase.

Q Okay. I'm sorry, did I call it a program, or a program or a product? What would be better, or does it matter?

A For our purposes here, it probably doesn't matter. I don't know that there's a meaningful difference.

Q Okay. Well, I'll say service. Was that service provided equally to candidates, officials, and campaigns regardless of party affiliation or ideology?

A Yes, I know there is no reason to think otherwise.

Q Okay. Another strategy that you mentioned in your prior testimony with respect to this goal of securing elections was Google and its employees made efforts to remain vigilant while looking for -- shifting strategies and techniques of attackers. Is that something that you recall Google doing as part of your efforts to secure elections?

A Yes.

Q And as part of that effort to remain vigilant, did you have relationships with U.S. Government agencies and other industry partners to kind of keep up on those threats?

A Yes.

Q And is that some of the purpose of the, you know, relationships and meetings that you described in the earlier hour that you had with U.S. Government agencies?

A Yes.

Q You talked a little bit in the other hour -- I guess, this would also be under the sort of focus of securing elections about what happens if a Google team identifies a malicious actor, an internal demon, some kind of malicious attack. Can you again just briefly describe from your own experience what would happen if you had discovered that if a tip had come to you or somebody internally at Google had brought that to your attention? What would be your role, if any?

A Any role in that would be if I were to receive a tip that there was some security malicious activity going on would be getting a little of the details about it so I know what team to route it to. In most cases, and the types of tips I was getting, it would go to the threat analysis group for their investigation.

Q And that's the national security subject area that we were -- you were saying before these are people that were looking at state acts, threats, or others. Is that the --

A What they dealt with the sophisticated, often state-sponsored attackers. I wouldn't use the word national security necessarily for it.

Q Okay.

A But it was the nature of the attackers was sophisticated adversaries.

Q Okay. What about other kind of threats like -- I am just going to use an example so it can be a little more effective. I'm going to mark this as exhibit 1, if I could. It's got two pages, just front and back here. I'll give one to you and you.

Mr. Bopp. Thank you.

[[redacted] Exhibit No. 1

Was marked for identification.]

BY [redacted]

Q Just take a look at it for a second and let me know if you recognize it.

A Okay. I've read it.

Q First of all, [redacted], do you recognize that particular email or recall it?

A I don't.

Q Okay. Fair to say. It was -- it looks like it was simply back in 2020, November 10th. But if you look at the back page I guess where the email chain begins, can you see that it originates from a [redacted] at dominionvoting.com, and it's sent to Matt Masterson at CISA.

A I see that.

Q Okay. And Matt Masterson is the person that you discussed in the earlier hour that you knew through some of those U.S. Government and industry meetings at CISA, right?

A Yeah, Matt Masterson was one of the CISA representatives.

Q Okay. If you follow along the chain, you can see that Mr. Masterson, after receiving this, forwarded it to some other CISA folks, and that one of them -- I don't even know who -- I guess it was Brian Scully who you also mentioned in the previous hour -- eventually Mr. Scully forwarded it to you. And he just said, according to the email: We received the below report from Dominion, an election infrastructure vendor, who has been the center of several election-related conspiracy theories. In this report, they are concerned about an employee being targeted.

He just sent that along to you. Do you know what he expected you to do when he sent that to you? What would have been your expectation?

A I don't know what he expected from me. My interpretation of this would be to route it to a team for consideration.

Q Okay. So this is an example of one of those things that come to you probably because you have relationships with these government officials in the past year that you described, and then you routed to Google folks who you think are most suited to deal with it. Is that fair to say?

A I don't remember this particular instance, but what you described would be the protocol if I did receive this, yes.

Q Okay. And I see that you had a brief response. It was just: Do you recall if they used the product reporting feature?

Do you see that in the document?

A I do.

Q And what does that mean? What is the product reporting feature?

A My -- again I don't remember this, but it wouldn't have been unusual for me to go back to the reporting party and say, there is a way to report issues of concern through the product. You can do it directly. And also -- so to make sure they're aware of it. But then also to help us deconflict in case we have this coming at us in multiple ways to make sure they were all coordinated and we weren't treating the same matter in different work streams.

Q I see. So they could have somehow on the Google platform reported this themselves, and it would have been sort of automatically routed to people who needed to know or who could have dealt with the problem?

A Yes.

Q You can set that aside. Thank you. And then going back to, again, the goals that you mentioned in your prior testimony about Google's effort to secure elections. The final focus area that you mentioned was Google's goal of improving transparency and accountability in advertising. Do you recall, again, at the time that you were working there, what was Google doing to try to accomplish that goal with respect to elections?

A Yeah, my recollection is a little fuzzy on this, but I do recall efforts at Google to make it more transparent, who was paying for election ads, so that those who were seeing election ads or who were otherwise curious could actually use -- using Google see who it is that actually paid for the ad.

Q Okay. And what you provided that service, would you do it again regardless of the political affiliation or partisanship of the person who is seeking to place the ad?

A Yes.

Q You did not personally have any role in sending Google advertising policy. Is that fair to say?

A Yes, that's true.

Q And you never decided on any specific advertisement, whether it would be allowed on the platform or not?

A No.

Q You talked a little bit about Google's attempts to combat election-related misinformation. And I think you were clear that you had no role in either setting the policy for misinformation, or removing content in any specific case. Is that fair to say?

A That is true.

Q Even though you've never had a role, are you familiar with how Google generally deals with that misinformation with respect to elections?

A Only from the perspective of somebody who would route tips in. But the actual handling of it once I submitted the information to the team, I am not familiar with.

Q Okay. Even though you're not familiar with the way that would happen internally at Google because you never had personal experience with it, have you ever known Google to remove content, or to promote content based on the party affiliation or ideology of the speaker?

A I have no information suggesting that.

Q Okay. I'll skip a lot of this because you already made it clear. Are you familiar generally with Google's terms of service?

A Generally.

Q Okay. Do you know if the terms of service explicitly state that user content may be removed if it violates applicable law?

A That's a clause I have seen and am familiar with.

Q And that relates some in ways to your role as the law enforcement and security information director?

A Not so much. It's just a -- that was a particular legal line that -- it was familiar to me, but I didn't need to use it much, but I have a recollection of it being in there.

Q What's an example, if you know, of content that might violate applicable law?

A An example that I am familiar with would be child sexual abuse material.

Q And did you have any role in removing that kind of content that was on Google's platform?

A Not directly. My team did work on child sexual abuse cases and reporting to the National Center for Child -- children, and the NCMEC -- sorry if I'm finagling the name. But there was another team that actually did the removal of the CSAM material.

Q So you interacted with the law enforcement who was working the prosecution or the investigation? Is that what your team did?

A No, well -- there were two pieces to this. There was working with the internal Google team that handled CSAM, and who would make reports to the National Center for Missing and Exploited Children, NCMEC. My team would interact with that team, because in some instances, we would become aware of content involving sexual abuse of children. It looked like there was a current child in peril. And if we found that situation, we would initiate an investigation to try to rescue the child, and that would involve getting law enforcement involved, and that would be my team.

Q Okay. So if someone at Google saw that on a platform or suspected that on a platform, that that law enforcement contact would be routed through you?

A Not quite. If we detected, or if we were made aware of content on our system that suggested there was a child currently in peril, my team would investigate that and put together what we would refer to as a referral package and then report that to public safety officials to hopefully rescue the child.

Q I see. Aside from that content that you've described, let me just -- have you ever known or heard of Google removing content that is not in violation of terms in service and instead is being removed simply for political ideology reasons?

A I have no knowledge of anything like that.

Q Okay. While in your role as director, or senior director of law enforcement and information security at Google, you've described that you had somewhat frequent contact with U.S. Government agencies like the FBI and CISA. Is that fair to say?

A I had regular contact with CISA and the FBI, yes.

Q But your role was actually beyond the United States. It was a global role, and so you probably also had contact with law enforcement and government agencies outside of the United States. Is that fair to say?

A Yes.

Q You already described this, excuse me. Is it fair to say that some of those interactions with U.S. Government agencies were intended to help Google, for example, by protecting the security of its own networks and hearing threat analysis that might help you protect its own networks?

A Yes, that's fair to say.

Q Is it fair to say that some of these interactions were intended to help the government and their law enforcement responsibilities; for example, like the ones that you described, removing illegal content, like child pornography, or something else that is clearly a violation of law?

A Again, can -- I'm sorry, can you -- I got lost at the beginning.

Q I guess all I'm trying to say is, like, these interactions that you've had in your capacity as the director of legal or law enforcement and security -- I'm sorry, I lost track of your job. But these interactions that you've had, they were intended to help Google, and then they were also intended to sometimes help the government, for example, by assisting in the removal of illegal content or other capacities?

A I wouldn't describe it as intended to help the government.

Q Okay.

A There may be coextensive missions between the company and government. And then it may very well benefit. But our focus was on protecting the users, in the case of CSAM, protecting the child who was in peril. And, thankfully, oftentimes, that's also just the government entity -- equity in the matter, yes.

Q So you're saying any benefits that the government would prove incidentally may have been mutually benefiting each other, but your focus was on user data, privacy, and protection of Google's interest because that's who you were working for. Is that fair to say?

A I think that's true. We had a great fidelity to the law, of course, but Google was very concerned about security of its users and its users' data. And I was the driver for a lot of what we've been talking about.

Q Okay. And it's fair to say that it's in Google's paramount interest is securing that data and providing that security for its users?

A But that is true. One was good for the users, also benefited Google.

Q Okay. During your interaction with U.S. Government officials, did any of these officials ever try to coerce you or anyone else at Google into promoting or removing any content for political purposes?

A We're talking U.S. officials?

Q U.S. Government in this case, yeah.

A I'm not aware of any such request.

Q Okay. Did U.S. Government officials ever threaten you or any other Google employee with adverse actions if Google refused to take any particular action that the government official desired?

A I don't recall any scenario like that.

Q Did any U.S. Government official ever ask Google employees, to your knowledge, to promote or remove any content based on political or ideological viewpoint that was expressed?

A Not that I'm aware.

Q Did anyone working at the White House ever order you to remove a post, an account, or any content from Google's platforms?

A Not that I'm aware of.

Q Are you familiar with the claim made by some of the committee's Republican Members that the Federal Government has both colluded with Google and other private companies in order to censor certain types of far-right political and ideological speech in violation of the First Amendment?

A I'm sorry, what was the beginning of that question?

Q Are you familiar with the claim made by some of the members of this committee that the Federal Government has colluded with Google and other private tech companies in order to censor certain types of far-right political and ideological speech in violation of the First Amendment?

A Yeah, I am familiar with that.

Q Based on your experience at Google, both during the Trump and Biden administrations, do you recall that such collusion was occurring while you were employed at Google?

A I can speak for Google, I'm aware of no such interaction.

Q Okay. And do you have any reason to believe after you left Google that any type of collusion is occurring today?

A I have no reason to believe so.

Q In your experience, do you think that Google has attempted to operate in a manner that respects the First Amendment rights of its platform users?

A Say that again?

Q I'll say it slower. I'm sorry. In your experience, like as a Google employer, former Google employee, do you think that Google has attempted to operate in a manner that respects the First Amendment rights of its platform users?

A Yes.

Q And do you believe that it is in Google's interest as a company to promote First Amendment freedom of platform users?

A It's just not in my area, so --

Q Okay.

A -- that's sort of a personal --

Q That's fair. That's fair.

A Thank you.

Q I don't have any questions at this point. Okay. We're all set. We can go off the record.

[Discussion off the record.]

BY [redacted]

Q Can we go back on the record, please. [redacted], are you familiar with an FBI agent named Aleksander Kobzanets?

A Say the name again, please?

Q Aleksandr Kobzanets, K-o-b-z-a-n-e-t-s.

A Yes, that's familiar.

Q And, to your knowledge, what is Agent Kobzanets' role within the FBI?

A I don't know what it is currently. I do recall -- I think he was a legal attache for Ukraine for some period.

Q And did you interact with Agent Kobzanets during your time at Google?

A Yes.

Q And when was the first time that you interacted with Agent Kobzanets?

A I don't remember. It was brief, but I don't remember.

Q Would it have been prior to February 20, 2022?

Mr. Bopp. February 2022, you said?

[redacted] Yeah.

[redacted]. I heard February of -- I couldn't be sure. I don't know.

BY [redacted]

Q Do you recall the last time you interacted with Agent Kobzanets?

A I don't.

Q And how frequently would you say you interacted with Agent Kobzanets?

A I would say in the scope of things it was rare. A few times, I think.

Q Were there particular periods of time, or would your frequency, interactions increase?

A I would say differently there was a period of time where I had interactions with him, and it was, if I recall correctly, related to the invasion of Ukraine.

Q Are you familiar with an FBI agent named Mark Kellett?

Mr. Bopp. What's the last name again?

BY [redacted]

Q Kellett, K-e-l-l-e-t-t. Kellett.

A The name isn't ringing a bell.

Q So this will be exhibit 2.

A Okay.

[[redacted] Exhibit No. 2

Was marked for identification.]

BY [redacted]

Q At the top here this says this is an email from you. Is that correct?

A That's what it says.

Q And on the CC line, there's an individual. The first name is [redacted]. Do you happen to know who that is?

A Well, yes, [redacted], I know who that is.

Q What is [redacted] role at Google?

A [redacted], I don't know what his current role is. At this time [redacted] was an attorney on my team.

Q And what, specifically, are [redacted] responsibilities to the workplace?

A He would have been on the cybersecurity side of the work that my team did.

Q If you could turn to that second page. Actually, we'll start with the first page at the very bottom. And that looks like it's an email from FBI Agent Kobzanets. Is that correct?

A That's what it looks like.

Q And this was an email to you and [redacted]. Is that right?

A That's what the document shows.

Q At the bottom of the email it says: Just received the following from the National Police of Ukraine as well as the Security Service of Ukraine.

And if you turn to the next page. And: Both services believe that the Russian forces use Google Maps to tag locations on the maps for either targeting by bombing or for attacks by diversant groups. By looking at the maps, it appears that unknown actors changed the tags for sensitive and civilian locations and marked them all as Farming State. Did I read that correctly?

A I think you read that accurately.

Q And then the next email on the first page in the chain is above that. The chronologically next email from Agent Kobzanets. Is that right?

A That's what it looks like, yes.

Q And it says: Forgot to include screen shots?

A I see that.

Q Then you then respond to his email on March 1st at 2:39. Is that correct?

A If that's what the document shows. I don't have a recollection of this. If that's what document shows.

Q And then you say: Thanks, [redacted] We got this to the team. Is that right?

A If that's what the document shows, yes.

Q Do you generally remember interactions about tags on Google Maps with the FBI related to the invasion of Ukraine?

A This seems familiar. I don't remember very specifically, but this does look familiar to me.

Q Now, you referred to a team. Here you said: We got this to the team. Do you have any recollection what that team would be?

A Based on the context here, the team would have been the -- what we refer to as G-O team, or the maps team.

Q And did you have a specific point of contact on that team that you probably would have sent this to?

A There would have been somebody specific I sent it to, yes. I don't --

Q Do you happen to recall that name?

A I don't recall.

Q And would you have sent Agent Kobzanets' request to that team by email?

A Not necessarily. Possibly.

Q What other forms of communication did you use to refer requests from the FBI?

A Say that again, I'm sorry?

Q What other forms of communication would you use to refer requests like these from the FBI?

A Passing along information like this to the product team could be done through email. It could have been voice or video. It could have been through Google Chat. There are multiple ways. It could even be in the hallway.

Q When you say, what voice or videos you would call the relevant person, and then you could tell them about the information. Is that right?

A Yes.

Q We can take that back. Let's go to the next exhibit, exhibit 3.

A Okay.

Mr. Bopp. One second. Okay.

Q If I could direct your attention to that last page, Bates number 80. On the CC line, on the second line, do you see the name ?

A Yes.

Q Who is ?

A was an attorney on my team.

Q And what were her specific responsibilities?

A Her responsibilities were handling the subcomponent on my team that dealt with demands for user data from government and civil cases for nongovernment entities, national security, and criminal.

Q Would that be things like emergency disclosure requests?

A That would include emergency disclosure requests.

Q Now, this email appears to have been sent to an email alias, @google.com?

A I see that.

Q Were you familiar with this particular email address?

A I don't recall this particular email address.

Q So you didn't receive emails that were sent initially to this domain that weren't referred to you?

A I just don't remember this.

BY

Q Is there a practice at the company of creating email addresses for crises that would occur, subject matter, or does it appear to be from a person? Is that fair?

A If it looks like an email, it is to me. I don't know if it's a practice. Creating an alias can be useful to make things more efficient. I don't know if it's a practice or not, but I have seen it.

Q Do you recall any in the context of elections?

A I recall setting up an email alias for non-U.S. elections to be able to give tips from governments elsewhere in the world that were having elections and were worried about their security. So I know we set up an alias for that. I'm not recalling any others.

BY [redacted]

Q Understanding that you weren't originally on this email, having read the email here, it appears that the FBI is raising a similar issue with Google Maps at the last email that we looked at, that the farming State tag. Is that a fair characterization?

A I don't have a specific recollection of the two, but I did note that the phrase was in both.

Q If we could turn to the second page, at the bottom here. It's an email from you to Agent Kobzanets. Is that correct?

A Yes, that's what it says.

Q And this email was essentially at 2:28 p.m. on March 2nd, is that right?

A That's what the document says.

Q In the body of the email you said: Acknowledging receipt and sent to the team. Now, wouldn't that team be the same G-O team that you were talking earlier?

A That's how I would interpret this with my recollection being not great right now, but that's how I would interpret that, yes.

Q The next sentence you say: If you could use this urgent alias only for legal process that has been submitted by alerts, that would help us. Did I read that correctly?

A Yes.

Q And what is LERS?

A LERS is the Law Enforcement Request System. I think that's what it stands for. It is an interface that law enforcements can use to submit requests like subpoenas and search warrants to Google. And there's a good tracking system. So it's sort of an intake system for government demands for user data.

Q The following sentence is: It's set up for the team that handles LERS, not for these Maps or YT matters. YT, did you mean that to be YouTube?

A I would interpret that to be YouTube, yeah, given the context.

Q And do you recall what you meant when you said YT matters here, that this email address was for LERS, not for these Maps for YT matters?

A I think what I was getting at is if there is a request other than for disclosure of data, you don't want to use LERS, you need to go through a different system.

Q The next email in this chain is from Agent Kobzanets that was sent at 11:57 a.m. on March 2nd. Is that right?

A That's what the document says.

Q And then he says: Hi, [redacted], I spoke to the DOJ/NSD about this map matter last night, and they are interested in digging deeper on this. If you conclude and agree with the NPU's assessment that there is a possibility tags are being placed intentionally, they would be interested in following up on this with legal process. Please let me know what would be appropriate. Did I read that correctly?

A Yes.

Q Did you understand DOJ/NSD to mean the Department of Justice's National Security Division?

A I don't really remember this at all, but the normal nomenclature there, that would be the Department of Justice's National Security Division.

Q And would the abbreviation NPU, referring to the National Police of Ukraine be consistent generally with your understanding?

A It would certainly be consistent with the thread.

Q And in this email, Agent Kobzanets refers to being interested in following up on this for legal process. Based on your experience at Google, would that legal process have involved the compulsory removal of the Google tags, or would it be legal process that would have required the disclosure of certain information, or what kind of legal process did you understand this to mean?

A The context here would be the -- it would be legal process for the disclosure of data behind the person or persons who were making changes to map labels.

Q I see. The following email is an email back from you to Agent Kobzanets. Is that correct?

A That's what the document shows.

Q And this email was sent on March 3rd at 8:36 a.m.?

A That's what the document shows.

Q In the email you send: My understanding is that in our investigation of these instances we saw that these were erroneous edits made to the map more than a year ago. Out of an abundance of caution, we are removing user contributions like photos, videos, reviews, and business information and all user-submitted places from Google Maps and Ukraine and Russia and Belarus since the invasion, and are temporarily blocking new edits from being made. Did I read that correctly?

A Yes, I think you did.

Q When you said that you were removing or Google is removing user contributions in Ukraine, Russia, and Belarus, did that mean that the user contributions could not be seen in those three countries, or did that mean that any user contributions made in the system for locations in those three countries have been removed for everyone?

A Again, sorry, try me again on that.

Q Sure. Here you referred to the removal of user contributions to locations in Ukraine, Russia, and Belarus, does that mean Ukrainian users can no longer view those because they've been removed for them, or does that the contributions have been removed across the system? So anybody looking at locations in Ukraine would not have been able to see those user contributions?

A I don't know.

Q To your knowledge, was your team aware of this issue with the farming state tags on location in Google Maps prior to notification by the FBI?

A No.

Q And so, was the decision about removals taken because the FBI initially sent you the concern about those tags?

A I don't know.

Q But the timeline was first notified by the FBI and then the decision to remove was taken. Is that correct?

A It all -- it's a little -- I don't really know that for sure, because this isn't really my area. What I can say is I got the tip and sent it to the team and responded back to the agent per the wording provided to me by the team, but I can't say whether there were other things going on at the same time.

Q But to your knowledge the decision about the removal of user contributions was not taken prior to that notification from Agent Kobzanets?

A I don't really have knowledge either way.

[[redacted] Exhibit No. 4

Was marked for identification.]

BY [redacted]

Q Let me take that back. This will be next exhibit, exhibit 4. This is an email from Agent Kobzanets to you. Is that correct?

A That's what the document shows.

Q And it was sent on March 14th, 2022, at 4:17 a.m. Is that right?

A That's what the document shows, yes.

Q In the email, Agent Kobzanets says: Please see attached a request from the SBU containing some of the YouTube channels believed to be spreading disinformation. The SBU requested your review and if appropriate deletion/suspension of these channels/videos. Did I read that correctly?

A Yes.

Q Is it your understanding that SBU here refers to the Security Service of Ukraine?

A The context of the document suggests that, yes.

Q And are you familiar generally with the SBU?

A No.

Q The subject line for this email was disinformation accounts from SBU for 3/13/2022. Is that right?

A I see that in this subject line.

Q And then in the attachment turning to the second page, it appears there are two paragraphs at the top with texts, and then there are listed YouTube URLs. Is that correct?

A That's what it appears to me, yes.

Q In the second paragraph, it says that: The Security Service of Ukraine has identified a number of YouTube channels used in the interest of the aggressor country to read hate speeches, distribute content that promotes war, inaccurately reflects events in Ukraine, justifies Russian war crimes in Ukraine in violation of international law, and used assistance to the army of the aggressor country by transmitting information on the movement of forces of the Armed Forces of Ukraine as well as by spreading fake information, promoting the shift of legitimate power, namely, and then a list of accounts.

Did you understand aggressor country to refer to Russia in this instance?

A I don't remember this. The timing and all would suggest that, and the last paragraph in the document would be consistent with that interpretation.

Q So you don't recall this specific instance in which Agent Kobzanets sent you this request from the SBU?

A I don't.

Q Do you remember any other instances in which Agent Kobzanets sent you a list of accounts with a request for their removal from the SBU?

A No.

Q Do you recall that generally taking place?

A Yes.

Q Okay.

A I do.

Q And how frequently would you say that?

A This is the only instance, if it strikes just a vague memory for me. So this may be the only one, but --

Q Do you believe this could have been the YT matters you were referring to in the last email trans --

A That would be speculating. I don't remember the date of it and all, but that might be a theory.

Q Would you say that you were the primary point of contact for Google on request of this nature from Agent Kobzanets?

A I don't know who else he might have been submitting things to.

Q Do you recall whether you referred this or any other list provided by the FBI from the SBU to an internal team?

A I don't remember, specifically, doing that. It would have been consistent with the protocol.

Q In this case, what team would you have referred these lists to?

A In this case, what I'm seeing here are YouTube videos. The protocol for YouTube videos would be to send it to the YouTube Trust and Safety Team.

Q And did you have a particular point of contact that you commonly used in the YouTube Trust and Safety Team for requests of this nature?

A For a list of accounts to review, I think I mentioned this earlier, I would either have gone to [redacted], who is counsel, or I would have gone to the YouTube Trust and Safety Team, but I can't recall a specific name.

Q And do you recall whether the FBI ever told you that they vetted these lists prior to them sending it to you?

A That they did what?

Q They vetted the lists prior to their being sent to you.

A No, I don't recall them telling me that.

Q When the FBI sent you these lists, did they ever warn you that some of the accounts on the list were not collecting this information?

A I don't recall them making representations about the list.

Q Typically, after you referred these requests to the YouTube Trust and Safety Team, would they report back to you about the decisions that they made?

[12:24 p.m.]

[redacted]. This wasn't -- I don't think this was typical, so it's a little hard to answer that question. But generally when I would send reports of bad videos to the YouTube Team, there was somebody asserting that it was a problematic video, I would not hear back from that team.

[redacted] And when you received a request like this from the FBI, would you always refer it to an internal team, or would you make a decision about whether the accounts were worthy of this?

Mr. Bopp. Before you answer, you referred several times to "requests like these," and I think [redacted] has made it clear this was the only one that he even has a vague recollection of. So I just want to make sure the record is clear that this is not something that [redacted] believes is typical. He can answer the question, of course, but I want to make sure the record is clear.

BY [redacted]

Q Was this the only instance in which the FBI sent a list of YouTube accounts for review?

A I don't remember other instances. This, like, it was on behalf of the Ukrainian authorities, but I don't remember other instances.

Q To your knowledge, did the FBI ever refer requests for the removal or suspension of accounts on content on behalf of a Ukrainian agency other than the SBU or MDU?

A I can't think of any other instance where the FBI served as sort of a routing for the foreign authority to Google for removal considerations. I can't think of any others.

Q So you don't recall any other instances, Ukrainian or otherwise, in which the FBI referred requests for removal of content?

A Not as I'm sitting here.

Q And did you ever communicate with Agent Kobzanets about the SBU's requests in a form other than email?

A I don't think so. It's always possible you would get a heads-up that an email was going to come. But it would always be information and all would be conveyed through an email.

Q And did you ever have any communications with the FBI in which you discussed the SBU generally?

A I don't recall having that conversation.

Q Were you involved in any discussions within Google in which people raised concerns about malign actors within the SBU?

A No.

Q Are you aware of any such conversations taking place at Google about malign actors in the SBU?

A I don't -- I'm not sure I'm understanding the question. Malign actors and the SBU, what --

Q So foreign malign actors, non-Ukrainian actors, within the SBU that compromised or infiltrated the agency.

Mr. Bopp. What was the question?

[redacted] Are you aware of any conversations taking place between Google employees in which concerns were raised about malign actors within the SBU?

[redacted]. I don't recall any such conversations.

[redacted] I can take that back.

This will be the next exhibit, exhibit 5.

[[redacted] Exhibit No. 5

Was marked for identification.]

BY [redacted]

Q This is an email from [redacted] to Agent Kobzanets and [redacted]@fbi.gov. Is that correct?

A That's what the document shows.

Q And you were copied on this email? Is that right?

A The document shows that, yes.

Q And the subject line of this email is a tilde and then "30 Ukraine EDRs"? Is that right?

A I see that on the document.

Q And would EDR here refer to emergency disclosure request?

A I don't know, but that would be consistent with the context of the rest of the email.

Q In the email, [redacted] says: "We have received about 30 EDRs today submitted by a Tymur Lavrenchuk," then his email address. "They all appear to be related to YouTube. Any that include takedown requests we are forwarding to the removals team for review and action as appropriate, but we wanted to alert you to the requests for data disclosure."

Would that Removals Team, would that team be consistent with your understanding that that referred to the Trust and Safety Team you were talking about earlier?

A I don't remember this, but it would be consistent, yes.

Q On the last page of the attachment, the Bates number ending in 19, it says that this is a "Google LLC Emergency Disclosure Request." Is that correct?

A It says that, yes.

Q And then it says that this request came from Tymur Lavrenchuk, who is an international cooperation officer with the Security Service of Ukraine. Is that right?

A That's what it shows on the document.

Q To your knowledge, were there any other instances in which the SBU requested the removal of content directly to Google without first going through the FBI?

A Not to my knowledge, not to my recollection.

Q And of the requests of which you are aware, do you know whether YouTube ever removed any of the accounts that were originally flagged by the SBU?

A I don't know.

Q To your knowledge, did anyone at the SBU ever submit a request using a dot-gov email address?

A Not to my knowledge.

Q Are you aware of any SBU personnel having access to a dot-gov email address?

A That's well beyond my ability to answer.

Q Did anyone at the FBI ever mention that SBU personnel had been granted access to any nonpublic American government systems?

A I don't recall any such conversation.

BY [redacted]

Q Just one point of clarification from earlier. When receiving requests from the FBI on behalf of Ukraine, do you recall any other countries that would submit requests through the FBI?

A I can't sit here and give you a specific example, but the FBI's legal attache offices, which were around the world, would function as something of a liaison between that jurisdiction's public safety agencies and U.S. companies, including Alphabet or Google.

So it wouldn't be unusual to have communications with a legal attache's office about non-U.S. legal process or requests for user data.

Q Okay. So there would be both instances where the foreign entity is directly contacting Alphabet and then also instances where the FBI is serving as an intermediary?

A Yes.

Q We can take that, these exhibits back.

This will be exhibit 6.

[[redacted] Exhibit No. 6

Was marked for identification.]

BY [redacted]

Q So I will give you some time to review, but we'll represent to you this is a Signal channel with a number of industry partners, as well as the U.S. Government.

Do you recognize this Signal channel?

A Not really. It looks familiar.

Q Do you recall communicating ever with the FBI via Signal?

A Yes. I remember there being a Signal channel set up that this resembles, yes.

Q Do you recall if there were multiple channels, only one?

A I only know of one.

Q Do you recall if there were similar channels created with any other government agencies besides the FBI or besides this channel?

A During this time frame, I don't recall there being anything else.

Q Would the FBI ever send you Teleporter attachments?

A Yeah. There was a system that the FBI used that was called Teleporter, and they could use that to make documents available to us and for us to upload as well.

Q And was it a separate app? How was the Teleporter information -- the information relayed via Teleporter, how was it relayed to --

A I don't really know how Teleporter worked. I know it was an FBI service that they set up and wanted to use for the sharing of information and move away from email. So I'm not quite sure of the back end of how it worked.

Q Okay. Would you receive notifications via email?

A Yes.

Q With respect to the Signal channel, do you remember who helped organize or create it?

A As I recall, this was a government initiative, and I think it was CISA, but I couldn't be sure of that. But it was a -- I think it was the government wanting to have a Signal channel.

Q Do you remember why the government wanted a Signal channel?

A As was explained to me was this would be a quick way to be able to deliver important leads to the people at the companies who could get them routed to the right place as they came in during a sensitive period of time. So it was intended to be, as I understand it anyway, as a reliable, quick way to get information to the companies.

Q Do you know if anyone could add anyone to the Signal channel?

A I don't know. I didn't -- I wasn't familiar with the features. I don't think I needed to do that.

Q On page 2, which is Bates number 15039, there is a message just a couple lines down from [redacted] saying: "I'm here."

Do you believe that to be you?

A It would be consistent with the channel, yeah.

Q And do you recall having some form of Signal communications with the FBI and with industry partners?

A Yes.

Q And you had a moment to review the document. Are some of the names, do they overlap with some of the industry partners who attended the USG/industry meetings that we were discussing in the first hour?

A Yes.

Q On page 5, which is Bates number 15042, there is a message about a third of the way down from the FBI San Francisco Command Post.

Do you recall who was able to verify that that number was the FBI San Francisco Command Post?

A No.

Q Do you know if there's anyone in the industry that took a lead or played a primary role in organizing this group?

A I don't think so. I don't think there was a lead. I don't recall there being a lead.

Q It wasn't you, though, if there was one?

A If there was one, it wasn't me, and I'm not sure there was one.

Q Was there an agent in particular from the FBI San Francisco Command Post that the industry partners would regularly interact with?

A In this context of election and the industry/USG Group, I think the person most of us interacted with -- I know it's true for me -- was Elvis Chan out of the San Francisco Field Office.

Q And could you say just a bit more? We discussed in the first hour the Foreign Influence Task Force. Could you say a bit more about whether there was overlap or there were any relationships between the task force and the San Francisco Command Post for the FBI?

A Well, I guess there was the commonality of Agent Chan being involved in both.

I'm sorry. I'm not sure what else you would like me to address about commonalities, but there was that.

Q With respect to the -- during the first hour you said there were two sets of meetings. There was one for the Foreign Influence Task Force, and there was one for U.S. Government partners and industry partners.

Does that sound right?

A Yes.

Q And so the FBI's inclusion on this Signal channel, is it your understanding that that was consistent with that latter category of meetings, the U.S. Government/industry partners, or is it a third and separate?

A I'm sorry. Try me on that again.

Q Sure. So in the first hour we talked about there was a set of meetings. I think you testified it was direct meetings between Alphabet and the Foreign Influence Task Force, and there may have been other direct meetings with other companies, as well as regular U.S. Government/industry meetings that would occur as a separate set of meetings.

This Signal channel, is it your understanding if it was a byproduct of either of those preexisting sets of meetings?

A The genesis of it was the industry/USG Group. So if there was any connection, like if you wanted to draw a line of where it came from, it would be from that group.

Q Okay. If I could have you turn to page 10, which is Bates number 15047. There is a message from Mr. Roth saying: "Hi all - I'll shortly be adding a number of contacts from DHS-CISA to this group."

And then at the bottom of the page -- well, starting about two-thirds of the way down -- he adds a [redacted] CISA, [redacted], and [redacted].

Are you familiar with any of those three names --

A Those are --

Q -- [redacted] [redacted] and [redacted]

A Sorry. Those are not familiar to me.

Q If you could turn the page, page 11, Bates number 15048. At the very bottom Mr. Roth adds [redacted].

Do you know who [redacted] is?

A I don't recall.

Q On page 14 -- it starts at the very bottom of page 13, 15050, and then the majority of the message is on page 14, 15051 -- there's a misinformation report, photo, and it looks like an email chain that's perhaps been copied and pasted into the group.

In the middle of the page, there's an email address called [redacted]@cisecurity.org.

Do you recognize that email address?

A I do not.

Q And do you recall any discussions about a nonprofit called the Center for Internet Security?

A No, I don't remember that.

Q If I could have you turn to page 27, which is Bates number 15064. There are a series of messages continuing until the top of page 29, Bates number 15066.

And if I could call your attention to the top of page 29, Bates number 15066. Mr. Roth says: "My error - wrong channel, but all info is public anyway."

Do you know which channel Mr. Roth may have been referring to?

A I'm not sure.

Q But, to your recollection, were there any other channels with U.S. Government agencies?

A No.

Q With respect to CISA, did anyone from CISA during the USG/industry sync meetings ever represent that the agency dealt with MDM, mis-, dis-, and malinformation?

A I don't recall that specifically.

Q Okay. Do you recall usage of that term ever in any of the meetings?

A I don't actually remember MDM being an acronym that was used in those meetings.

Q Okay. And if I could call your attention back to page 14, Bates number 15051. The first two words underneath the picture are "misinformation report."

Do you recall, when information was being flagged for industry partners, if there was -- if it tended to be content-based or behavior-based with respect to reports that the FBI or CISA would pass on?

A I'm sorry. I'm having trouble with the question.

Q Sure.

A Can you help me with it?

Q I'll take a step back.

A Okay.

Q With respect to the industry partners, both on this channel and participating in the U.S. Government/industry strings, was it your understanding that both representatives from Alphabet and your industry colleagues, did they tend to work on teams related to moderating content?

A My understanding of some of the companies is that they would have teams that worked on content moderation.

For Google, it was primarily security. For Google's purposes, most of the involvement Google had with 2016, 2018, and there really wasn't much in 2020, was really about account security and not the publication of misinformation through Google.

So we were dealing with this as primarily a security issue, so somebody like me and [redacted] would be our representatives. But it differed by company.

Q And then with respect to the information that the U.S. Government would share at these industry sync meetings and via this channel, some of that information was more relevant to the type of work you do, security-related work? Is that fair to say?

A It was a mixture, yes. And some related to security issues and some might be more about having to look at a URL for terms of service or community guideline violations.

Q Okay. And with respect to that latter category, do you recall during meetings if examples were provided or if it tended to be high level, be on the lookout for certain types of content?

A You're referring to the USG/industry meetings --

Q Yes.

A -- that were headed by CISA?

My recollection of those meetings is that it was more general than that, and there was very little in the way of actual presentation of leads or URLs or any of that. It was much more, as I think I mentioned earlier in the morning, much more about time, place and manner and events that were coming up than it was about specific threats or instances of concerning content.

Q And I understand this is not your direct responsibility with Alphabet, but reports like the one reflected in the channel misinformation report where it is a specific example referring to in this case a tweet, do you recall there being a shift in how the U.S. Government was sharing information that became -- they were in previous meetings providing high-level information? Do you recall at any point where they began providing more granular, specific examples?

A My recollection is they were pretty consistent through the whole series of meetings that I attended, which was pretty high level and focused on what events in the election cycle are upcoming. But I don't recall -- I don't -- my memory is that there was not a shift.

Q Is it your memory that one of the purposes for this channel was to facilitate the government to be able to provide more specific reports directly to the companies?

A I think part of the -- at least the value I saw from the Signal channel was that we might be able to get timely leads that we could take action on, and this eliminated friction that might come -- unnecessary delay that could get the tips to us.

[redacted] If we could be off the record, please.

[Recess.]

[1:36 p.m.]

[redacted] If we can go back on the record, please. It's 1:36.

Let's start with [redacted]

BY [redacted]

Q Hi. I just wanted to clarify a few things with the acronym "CIS."

Earlier this morning, in the first round of questioning, you were asked if you're familiar with CIS. And you had said that, yes, it's affiliated with Stanford and you're a fellow there. Is that correct?

A Yes. CIS there being the Center for Internet and Society at Stanford, yes.

Q Yes. Okay. And just to confirm, to your knowledge, that is different than the CIS that we've mentioned in other discussions today, which is a nonprofit, Center for Internet Security?

A That's right.

Q Okay. So just so it's on the record, there is the Stanford CIS, which you are a fellow at, and then there is CIS, which is a nonprofit that you are not affiliated with?

A I'm not even aware of the second one.

Q Okay.

A I'm not affiliated, and I'm not aware of it.

[redacted] Okay. Thank you. That's all.

[redacted] I'm going to switch gears slightly. And if I could bring back exhibit 4 from the last hour and give that to you. Feel free to take a look at the email.

All right. So, in the previous hour, the FBI's request made in this email was characterized as a request to, quote/unquote, "remove content." But the email actually does not request removal, does it? I'm referring to the email on the first page of the document from March 14th.

[redacted]. Well, let me give you two parts for the answer there.

One, I don't see any request here from the FBI at all. This is a request being submitted through the FBI from SBU.

And, two, it does say, "if appropriate" to delete channels or videos, so that could be a form of content review and removal.

And then the last sentence in the email says: "They" -- in this case "they" is referring to SBU -- "are requesting your assistance in removing this tag." And so they were referring to the, I think, as I understand it, the Google Maps tag.

[redacted] So in terms of that second sentence, "The SBU requested your review and," as you said, "if appropriate deletion," that term -- or that phrase, "if appropriate," did you understand that to mean it's up to your discretion whether or not to remove it? That is not, in other words, an order to remove content?

[redacted]. No, there's --

Mr. Bopp. Before you do answer, so that the record is clear, the sentence you are reading from purports to say or says that the SBU requested review and if appropriate deletion. And I think [redacted] also read the last sentence of this email today: The SBU "are requesting your assistance in removing this tag."

So I just want to be clear in terms of whether you're asking about whether [redacted] reading of this email is that it is saying that the SBU is requesting something or you're asking about whether the FBI is requesting something from [redacted] and/or approval.

[redacted] Thank you for that clarification.

BY [redacted]

Q I'm more so asking the latter, if the FBI is asking directly for removal or if you understood this email to refer to just a review rather than a direct ask for removal.

A My interpretation of this is it's a request to review from the SBU transferred through the FBI.

Q So just to clarify, the FBI here is not ordering Google in any form to take any particular action other than to review?

A No, the FBI is not asking us to review. The FBI is -- my interpretation of this is the FBI is sending along a request from the SBU but not making any -- I don't see any requests from the FBI in this email.

Q And did you remove any content based on this email?

A I don't know.

Q Rather, you simply referred this tip to Google's internal content moderation team. Is that correct?

A I don't remember the specifics here. That would be consistent -- with regard to the first paragraph, which is about videos and the attachments, at least that's what this purports to be, my protocol would have been to send those YouTube videos to an appropriate contact with the YouTube Team for consideration. The second, having to do with Maps, that would have gone to a different team.

[redacted] Understood. Thank you.

BY [redacted]

Q All right. I can take those back, and I'm going to hand you guys copies of what's already been marked as exhibit 6. These are the several pages of the Signal conversation with industry actors and some FBI task force members, as well as CISA.

There is on page Bates number 15050, which is page 13 of the document, if you would turn to that, there's -- actually it begins on the previous page, 015049, [redacted] from CISA.

Do you see that?

A I do.

Q And I think they discussed this in the previous hour, this particular referral. Above you can see that it's an email that has been forwarded with the subject line: "Reported misinfo re: provisional ballots."

But the text beneath the CISA employer, this is Robert S CISA, do you see that text beginning with, "The Cybersecurity and Infrastructure Security Agency"? I said text too. I'm sorry. Not text, but the language.

A I'm sorry. Say that again.

Q I meant to just refer you to the language that begins: "The Cybersecurity and Infrastructure Security Agency." Do you see that?

A Yes, I see that.

Q Okay. I'm just going to read this, and let me know if I'm saying it as it appears in the Signal.

It says: "The Cybersecurity and Infrastructure Security Agency (CISA) of the U.S. Department of Homeland Security (DHS) is not the originator of this information. CISA is forwarding this information unedited, from its originating source -- this information has not been originated or generated by CISA. This information may also be shared with law enforcement or intelligence agencies.

"CISA affirms that it neither has nor seeks the ability to remove or edit what information is made available on social media platforms. CISA makes no recommendations about how the information it is sharing should be handled or used by social media companies. Additionally, CISA will not take any action, favorable or unfavorable, toward social media companies based on decisions about how or whether to use this information."

Is that an accurate reading of the language that appeared in that email that was included on the Signal message?

A It looks -- it seems to me you read that accurately.

Q Okay. Do you recognize that language from your previous communications with CISA?

A Not specifically.

Q Okay. But do you understand it to mean exactly what it says it means, that CISA is not taking any position with respect to how Google or any other social media company responds to the information that is being forwarded to them?

A Yes.

[redacted] Okay. I don't have any other questions.

Do you guys?

Okay. That's it.

[redacted] Could we go off the record, please?

[Discussion off the record.]

[redacted] Can we go back on the record, please?

This will be exhibit 7. It's a lengthy document. I'll represent that it's a Signal channel comprising of some of the industry partners.

[[redacted] Exhibit No. 7

Was marked for identification.]

[redacted] There'll be some passages we'll go over, so if you want to take a few moments to review. I'm not going to go over the entire transcript, but before asking the question, we'll give you a chance to re-review the relevant pages.

Mr. Bopp. Do we maybe want to see -- it would be helpful maybe for you to identify where you want us to focus or it's going to take a while for us to get through all of this.

[redacted] If the witness feels comfortable.

[redacted]. Yeah. I'm not even halfway through.

BY [redacted]

Q Do you recognize this Signal channel?

A I think I do. My recollection on this isn't crisp, but it looks familiar.

Q And is it your recollection that this Signal channel consisted only of industry partners but was related to the Signal channel we reviewed the previous hour?

A I think the first part of that is right, that this would only have industry members. If this is the transcript of the channel I'm thinking of, it would only be industry members. I'm not sure if it relates -- I'm not sure if you could say it relates to the other one in any way. It's a separate Signal channel with industry-only participants.

Q Okay. And on page 1, which is Bates number 16072, there's reference to an [redacted] four lines down that middle paragraph.

Do you see that?

A I do.

Q And to the extent you have a recollection, do you recall joining this Signal channel?

A I do remember being on an industry-only Signal channel, yes.

Q All right. If I could have you turn to page 5, which is Bates number 16076. There are a series of messages. There's one from [redacted]

Do you know if that would be [redacted] from Facebook?

A It's possible. This isn't my document, and I've not reviewed it before, but it would be consistent. There would be a [redacted] on an industry sync -- or, excuse me, industry Signal channel.

Q And [redacted] asks: "Anyone else want to jump in after [redacted] [redacted] answers: "Nothing from us."

Do you know who [redacted] is?

A I can't recall. My recollection is he was with Microsoft, but I'm not sure.

Q Yeah. Do you know whether this channel was used during the industry/U.S. Government meetings, so while the meetings were ongoing members would communicate?

A I think we might have used it as a way to communicate at times during the industry/government meetings.

Q If I could have you turn to page 8, which is Bates number 16079. There's a post from Mr. Roth two-thirds up -- one-third of the way up from the bottom. And he says: "We can touch a bit on the QAnon stuff we've enforced on, and footstomp the lack of foreign interference aspect."

Do you recall what Mr. Roth meant by "footstomp the lack of foreign interference aspect"?

A What's the question again?

Q Do you recall what Mr. Roth meant by "footstomp the lack of foreign interference aspect"?

A No.

Q Do you recall during meetings with the U.S. Government, during the industry sync meetings, whether the United States Government representatives when providing information would try to identify whether it was domestic or foreign in origin?

A Do I recall if during the meetings -- I'm sorry?

Q Sure. So during the meetings, the U.S. Government/industry sync meetings, so the U.S. Government would present information about threats and other issues.

When providing this information, is one of the things that they were trying to provide the source of either the threat, the information, whether it was domestic or foreign?

A I don't recall, the way we would put it, attribution as being a particularly important aspect of the discussions.

Q Do you recall it ever coming up?

A Not -- nothing specific.

[2:00 p.m.]

BY [redacted]

Q If I could have you turn to page 12, which is 16083. There are a series of messages on the next two pages, including page -- up to page 14, 16085. I'll give you a moment to review.

A Okay.

[Pause.]

Q Great. Do you recall discussions among the industry partners regarding scoping language?

A No, although this is somewhat familiar to me, this discussion in here. But I don't remember it other than what I just read.

Q Okay. Starting at the bottom of page 12, 16083, carrying on over to the next page, [redacted] writes: "Our focus should be on the threat actors and behavior, rather than the content itself."

Is that distinction between actors and behavior as opposed to content a distinction that you're familiar with?

A Yes.

Q And do you think it's a distinction that most of the industry partners were familiar with?

A I'm not sure I could say.

Q Okay.

A I saw no sign otherwise.

Q Yeah. Do you recall that distinction and communicating that distinction to ever be an issue with -- actually, let me strike that.

Do you recall representatives from the U.S. Government sharing a similar understanding of that distinction?

A This -- yes. This was a foundational part of the conversation.

Q In the previous hour that we had, we discussed that there were kind of two buckets of information. Some are more threat focused, you might say actor behavior focused, but that there was a bucket that also addressed misinformation.

Would you consider that second bucket to be content based related information?

A I think it's a little hard to make a clean distinction in all cases there, so I'm not sure I can just give you a yes-or-no answer.

Behavior can describe a lot of things. And so I think if we're talking about specific content and specific ideas or messages that are conveyed, yes.

But misinformation generally could be described as a behavior, so it's a -- I have a little bit of a hard time with a yes or no the way you phrased the question.

Q Okay. And how could misinformation be described as a behavior?

A It could be that the way a threat actor behaves is to -- its modus operandi is to send out misinformation without regard to content, without regard to any specific issue, any of that. So that would be a strategy, a behavior on the part of the actor.

Q Do you recall any discussions among the industry partners about keeping the focus on threat actors and behavior rather than the content itself?

A Yes.

Q And do you recall if these discussions occurred with representatives of the U.S. Government as well?

A I do recall that. I don't have specifics in my head, but that was part of the earlier conversations as this got set up, making sure it was understood what the scope and focus of these meetings would be.

Q Do you recall if there are any differences in opinions between what the scope of the meetings should be, if there are any differences between what representatives from the U.S. Government understood versus what industry partners understood?

A I don't remember that ever being an area of disagreement.

Q Do you remember if anyone, whether representatives from the U.S. Government or industry partners, advocated for including content within the scope of the meetings?

A If the government representatives?

Q Anybody at the meetings.

A Anybody. I don't recall anybody advocating for that.

Q If I could ask you to flip a couple pages to page 16, which is Bates number 16087.

Mr. Bopp. What in particular?

BY [redacted]

Q I'll ask that you start reading with [redacted] post at the top of the page, and then to the bottom of the page, [redacted] final post on that page.

[Pause.]

A Okay. I think I've read what you asked me to.

Q Okay. If I could call your attention to that first post by [redacted] on page 16, Bates number 16087. [redacted] asks: "Does anyone have a concern if I 'read aloud' our definition of scope for this group to them on this call?"

You had answered earlier that the calls would include industry partners and U.S. Government. Did you understand [redacted] message to be reading the definition of scope to representatives from the U.S. Government?

A I mean, there's nothing here that tells me there was a call going on. It would be -- that would be consistent with that. I don't -- I'm not sure I have enough here to say that with great certainty.

Q Okay. If I could call your attention two more posts down to [redacted] He says: "This is a pretty significant demonstration of the shift in engagement from government over the last couple months."

Do you recall there being significant shifts in engagement from the government around this time that this post is from, February 2021?

A I don't. I don't recall any shift.

Q Is it your recollection that there was a consistency, or you don't have recollection either way?

A My recollection, it was consistent.

Q Okay.

Okay. If I could ask you to turn to page 19, which is Bates number 16090. There is a post from [redacted] at the bottom that starts on the following page, and it carries on over to the next page. If you could take a moment to review that.

A Okay.

Q Did you understand [redacted] message about "focus on partners that are (a) operational, (b) defensive, and (c) apolitical"? Do you believe that message refers to government partners?

A I don't remember the specific exchange with [redacted] The context in which it appears here in this segment that I am now reviewing to me says that we're talking about additional government participants in the U.S./industry meetings.

Q And with respect to the industry partners and U.S. Government representatives, was there ever a third category of participants in these meetings, if you can recall?

Mr. Bopp. Third as in --

BY [redacted]

Q Someone other than industry partners and U.S. Government representatives.

A Not that I can recall.

Q Okay. With respect to the criteria of operational, defensive, and apolitical, did you agree that these three criteria were good to use when assessing whether industry should have a government partner?

A It's in part. I was never particularly fond of the term "partner." I think there was engagement, and it's arm's length and disciplined and professional. And I never liked the term "partner," because to some it might have a different connotation. But the criteria that was set up here is consistent with what my views would have been for engagement with an entity.

Q Okay. And with respect to -- we don't have to use the word "partner" -- with respect to engagement with a government entity, what are the advantages when having an engagement with an apolitical government entity as opposed to a political government entity?

A It depends on what purpose we're talking about. So some of this is -- this is all so abstract. It's a little hard to answer that question.

It's clear why you would want to have -- we were interested in getting operational information that we could use to secure our systems and to defend our systems.

And that means you are hoping to get it from an operational entity itself, like security engineers or a threat to you, and not particularly from other types that aren't really going to be able to give you useful operational information to defend your system.

You could easily spend your whole career in a job like mine meeting with government agencies that really can't provide operational information to you to secure the system.

So you had to be somewhat careful and selective about those that could actually bring value to help you in work initiatives. So in this context, that's how I would read that.

Q So your answer there addressed the operational and defensive aspects of the criteria. Do you think there are any benefits to ensuring that engagement with government partners is with government partners who are apolitical?

A Well, yes, that's what I was -- maybe it was buried in my answer. But the answer to that was, yes, there are situations where you may find yourself with more actionable information from government entities that are themselves very operational, aren't political in any way. They are the professional security folks, investigators, and others that have a function distinct from anything that we consider, using the term somewhat loosely, "political."

And so from a -- from the role I was in, there would be value in trying to focus on entities that really were in the weeds on trying to track attackers and get signals that could be useful to a network operator to prevent bad things happening on the system.

Q And would CISA be an example of a government partner that would be described as apolitical?

A I don't know if I have an opinion on that.

Q Okay. What about the FBI?

Mr. Bopp. Let me make sure I understand your question, because you mentioned government agencies that have political appointees within the agency. So I'm not sure what you're asking exactly.

BY [redacted]

Q Sure. So we went through the criteria of what makes an ideal or an appropriate partner when engaging with the government. This is a group chat among industry partners. If I understood [redacted] answer correctly is that there are individuals at least within the government who play operational investigative roles he would not identify as political.

And so taking one step back, are there certain agencies that either have people who are not political or agencies whose missions are not political and that you think meet the criteria that is listed out here?

A Yes, there definitely are.

Q And would CISA be one?

A I think CISA could be one, yeah. It's a big organization, but it does have -- my experience anyway, my personal experience at Google was that they could provide useful threat information to the company that would let us do our job better. And the Bureau is another that had those kind of expertise resources that were useful.

Q Do you know if the industry partners ever engaged with the Executive Office of the President?

A I don't -- I certainly don't know about the other companies, and I assume that there are people within Google who engaged with the White House.

Q Sure. Let me clarify the question. With respect to the industry partners and with respect to these industry partner/U.S. Government sync meetings, do you recall the Executive Office of the President ever sending representatives to attend or participate in these meetings?

A Oh, sorry. I don't recall there being anybody from the executive department there. I listed the agencies earlier, and that's my recollection right now.

Q And would you consider the Executive Office of the President to be a more political partner than, say, CISA or FBI?

Mr. Bopp. I mean, first of all, we need to establish is the Executive Office of the President a partner under your understanding of the U.S. industry meetings that were -- that are discussed in this or purport to be discussed in this Slack channel -- or the Signal channel.

[redacted]. Yeah. I mean, no. I guess, I would -- first, I would start with there are no partners, everybody's acting as their own agents, and it's all arm's length. And then I also don't have any recollection of anybody from the Executive Office participating in these meetings.

[redacted] And independent of -- appreciate that you said to your recollection. No one from EOP was attending these meetings. It sounded like the -- at least one of the primary purposes of the meetings is security-related concerns, representatives from the FBI, from CISA.

Setting all that aside, would you consider representatives from EOP to be a political government partner?

Mr. Bopp. So to be apolitical or --

BY [redacted]

Q Sorry, yeah. I can see why that would be unclear.

To be a, and then new word, political partner, so in contrast to apolitical partners, such as the CISA and the FBI.

A I think I understand. I have trouble answering that because that's just not how I thought about things, and that phrasing to me isn't natural, to be assigning those labels. My approach was much more: Do you have information that can help us or do you not? And there are some entities that were more likely to be able to help than others, and that's where we would spend our resources.

Q Would an entity that is political be less likely to provide helpful information?

A As a general matter, if you're taking your threat team representatives into a meeting to get a threat briefing, most of the time the really good information that you're going to get that's useful is going to be coming from the security analysts and not from political appointees.

It's not always the case, and there can be some value in all sorts of different meetings. So I think your question is a little too broad for me to be able to tackle with a simple answer.

For purposes of the kind of work [redacted] and I did, the real valuable meetings were definitely with the security analysts, the security engineers and researchers with the government.

And the other kinds of discussions that went on with political appointees and those that had a slightly different focus in their careers, there were people who had those conversations. And it could be very well that it was valuable. But for the work that [redacted] and I did, we were better off with the analysts who were really knowledgeable about the actors.

Q If I could have you turn your attention to -- well, we'll stay on the same page, 20, which is Bates number 16091. This is a post from [redacted] about the GEC. If I could have you read until the end of the next page, page 21, which is Bates number 16092.

[Pause.]

A Okay.

Q Great. First, is it -- if you have a recollection or your understanding -- that GEC refers to the Global Engagement Center?

A The context here would be that it is, yes.

Q Yeah. Do you recall there being consideration about whether the GEC should be included as a -- I said I wouldn't use the word "partner."

A A participant.

Q A participant that could be engaged with?

A There was -- I do recall there being some discussion about that.

Q And do you remember what the considerations were about whether to include GEC or not?

A Whose considerations?

Q The -- we'll say with the industry partners, what considerations they had.

A I don't. I recall there being discussions about it, but I don't -- as I sit here now, I can't recall what the considerations were.

Q To your understanding, what is the mission of GEC?

A I don't really have much of an understanding about it. If I recall correctly, the GEC would put out some reports, so it was a source of general information, but I don't have a deep understanding of their mission.

Q Do you recall at a high level whether there was consensus among the industry partners about whether GEC should be included or not?

A I don't recall if there was consensus. I don't recall there being a great deal of ire over that issue at all.

Q Do you recall if there was a difference of opinion between the U.S. Government and industry partners with respect to whether to include GEC or not?

A No, I don't remember there being any issue there.

Q If I could have you turn to page 50, which is Bates number 16121. There's a message from [redacted] in the middle of the page where he says: "If we end up having to use MDM, I may just quit. I'm not sure I can take it."

Is it your understanding that MDM refers to mis-, dis-, and malinformation?

A No. No, I mean, it's not my recollection either way.

Q Do you recall any discussions regarding the use of the term "MDM," or mis-, dis-, and malinformation?

A No.

Q Do you recall the term "malinformation" being used internally within Alphabet?

A No, I don't remember that being -- nothing in particular, no memory in particular about that.

Q Just as your experience working in this space, do you recall if there's a consistent definition of malinformation or if people tend to use it to mean various things?

A It just isn't in my area, so I'm not actually familiar with the uses of those terms and how they may have developed and evolved over time. So I don't -- my experience wouldn't be useful on that.

Q I'll have you flip forward to page 81, which is Bates number 16152. There's a post, again from [redacted], at the top of the page saying: "Think it's possible for all of us to refuse to participate if they keep calling it 'mis/dis/mal information'?"

A I'm sorry, I don't think I flipped to the right page. Could you give me the Bates number again.

Q Oh, yeah. It's 16152.

A Thank you. Okay.

Q Do you have any recollection of any of your industry partners discussing the issue of mis-, dis-, and malinformation, or the use of the term "MDM"?

A I don't. I don't remember this.

Q You don't remember this specific example or any reference?

A Any reference.

Q Okay. Looking at the same post still, [redacted] says: "Think it's possible for all of us to refuse to participate if they keep calling it 'mis/dis/mal information'?"

Based off your understanding of the purpose of this Signal channel, do you believe "they" refers to representatives from the U.S. Government?

A This is [redacted] statement, so I'm not sure. It would be consistent with rest of this, but I don't have any special knowledge as to what that meant.

Q Okay. Can I have you turn to page 98, which is Bates number 16169. There's a post from [redacted] about two-thirds of the way down where he says: "Interesting to see them trying to grapple with the domestic side."

There's a response from you: "So hard to navigate."

First, do you have any recollection of this particular exchange?

A I don't.

Q Is it your understanding, looking at [redacted] post now, that his reference to "them" is a reference to representatives from the U.S. Government?

A I'm just looking for any clues that would tell me who "them" is here, but I don't have a recollection of it.

Q This channel is only industry partners. Is that right?

A That's my understanding, yeah. I haven't reviewed the whole thing, but that's what this looks like to me, yes.

Q And during the U.S. Government/industry sync calls, you said there were members from industry and various members from the U.S. Government. And to your recollection, there were no other individuals that would attend these meetings. Is that correct?

A The U.S. Government/industry meetings, yes.

Q Okay. And it's also your recollection that sometimes this Signal channel was used during the U.S. Government/industry meetings as they were referring.

A Yes.

Q Is that right?

A Yes.

Q Okay. So with the understanding you don't have a specific recollection of this post, is this -- would this post, if it's referring to the U.S. Government by "them," would that be consistent with your understanding of how this channel is used?

A It would be. It would be consistent with what you set up, yeah. I just don't know for sure.

Q Okay. Do you recall any discussions during these U.S. Government/industry meetings where the U.S. Government seemed to be grappling with a concern regarding whether a threat or information was domestic or foreign in origin?

A Nothing I can remember.

Q When identifying a network of accounts that are inauthentic or behaving in a manner that's inauthentic, is it difficult to identify whether the actor behind it is domestic or foreign in origin?

A So I can answer this in a couple -- just with one preface. The authentic versus inauthentic, that isn't so much a phrase or a term that was important to me or my work or the work with [redacted] and his team.

So that authentic/inauthentic really was, I think, a creature of that, either scenarios and other companies.

But to answer your question, where we see a threat actor there can be some challenge to determine if they are a foreign-based or a domestic threat actor. But typically it's not -- my experience working at Google, that is not insurmountable. And [redacted]'s team was actually very good at being able to identify in particular state-sponsored attackers.

Q In your experience -- and this might be an issue that falls more under [redacted]'s team's purview -- when receiving information from, I don't want to say government partners, but when receiving information from government agencies, are you aware of any instances where a government agency identified a source as foreign but Alphabet's internal team determined that it was domestic?

A No, I don't recall a scenario like that.

Q Is that information you would've been privy to, or is that outside your team's scope?

A It is possible I would know about that where there was -- especially where I was involved with receiving a lead that then was analyzed, and I may have seen the results that come out from the Threat Analysis Group. So there is some probability that I would know if that happened. But by the same token, they wouldn't necessarily get back to me that there had been a disconnect between the government's view and Google's conclusion.

Q And would [redacted], during your time at Google, would he have been the best person to have knowledge of that issue?

A He would be a knowledgeable person at Google, the Threat Analysis Group.

Q With respect to these U.S. Government/industry sync meetings, when the U.S. Government representatives would ever raise issues related to misinformation, do you recall if there were ever discussions regarding the First Amendment?

Mr. Bopp. Discussions among the industry group?

BY [redacted]

Q Discussions among the U.S. Government and industry meetings, any participants at those meetings.

A If I recall correctly, it was fairly common at the beginning of these meetings, and certainly in the early days of these meetings, for government representatives to make reference to the First Amendment and the -- didn't want to -- to summarize it. But there would be references to the need to honor the rule of law and the First Amendment, freedom of speech, similar to some of the language we heard earlier today from one of the exhibits where CISA sets out what it is and is not doing.

Q And to your recollection, did these references continue, were they consistently made as the meetings progressed?

A It was fairly common to hear references like that, prefaces to make sure that it was understood, at least that's what it appeared to me from the government representatives, of the context in which they were having these conversations.

Q Do you recall any references to the First Amendment specific to a topic area or a piece of information that was then delivered in the meeting, or was it just to provide context at the start of the meeting?

A My recollection is that it was for stage setting at the beginning of the meetings. I don't recall instances where it was reiterated in connection with a particular topic that was being discussed.

Q Okay. I'll have you turn to page 100, which is Bates number 16171. And then I'm going to have you take a look at [redacted] post, which actually starts on the next page, 101, Bates number 16172.

There's a post from [redacted] where it says: "The only major heads-up I have on topics from DHS is that they anticipate doing a 'DHS brief' on some 'new structures' they're putting in place internally." And this message is from April of 2022.

Do you recall what [redacted] is referring to about "new structures" DHS was putting in place around this time?

A I don't.

Q If I could have you turn to page 107, which is Bates number 16178. You say in the middle of the page: "Adding [redacted] to be participating in the Google team."

Is this the same [redacted] that we referred to earlier?

A Yes.

Q Do you recall adding [redacted] to this channel?

A I don't actually recall this.

Q This post was in June of 2022. And you said you left the company in July of 2022?

A Right.

Q So do you have a recollection, is it -- do you recall adding [redacted] because you planned to be departing Alphabet soon?

A Yes. I added [redacted] to this Signal because I was leaving, and he was going to be taking over my role in those meetings.

Q And by "those meetings," are you referring to the U.S. Government/industry sync meetings?

A Yes, and the meetings among the industry representatives themselves.

Q Great. Thank you.

If I could have you turn to page 129, which is Bates number 16200. There is reference to: "[redacted] has left the group."

Do you recall, or is it your understanding now, that you were no longer a member of this Signal channel?

A Yes.

Q Do you know if that was common practice that as people would come and go from companies they would leave the Signal channel?

A I recall there being examples of that, that as people changed roles or left the company they would drop out of the Signal channel.

[redacted] Okay. We'll go off the record, please.

[Whereupon, at 2:38 p.m., the interview was concluded.]

2 [redacted]. We'll go on the record.

3 Good morning. This is a transcribed interview of Mr. Alex Stamos. Chairman

4 Jordan has requested this interview as part of the committee's investigation of how and

5 the extent to which the executive branch has coerced and colluded with companies and

6 other intermediaries to censor speech.

7 Would the witness please state your name for the record?

8 Mr. Stamos. Alexander Stamos.

9 [redacted]. We encourage witnesses who appear before the committee to

10 freely consult with counsel if they so choose, and it is my understanding that you are 11 appearing today with counsel. Is that correct?

12 Mr. Stamos. Yes.

13 [redacted]. Could counsel please state your name for the record?

14 Mr. Bellinger. John Bellinger, Arnold & Porter.

15 Mr. Thompson. Caleb Thompson, Arnold & Porter.

16 [redacted] Thank you.

17 On behalf of the committee, I want to thank you for appearing here today to

18 answer our questions. The chairman also appreciates your willingness to appear

19 voluntarily.

20 My name is [redacted], and I am with Chairman Jordan's staff.

21 I will now have everyone else in the room who is with the committee introduce

22 themselves as well.

23 [redacted] [redacted] with Chairman Jordan's staff.

24 [redacted] [redacted], Chairman Jordan's staff.

25 [redacted] [redacted], chief oversight counsel for the House Judiciary

Democratic staff.

[redacted], House Judiciary Democratic staff.

[redacted], House Judiciary Democratic staff.

[redacted], House Judiciary Democratic staff.

[redacted], House Judiciary Democratic staff.

[redacted], Mr. Jordan's staff.

[redacted], Chairman Jordan's staff.

[redacted] Thank you.

I would now like to go over the ground rules and guidelines that we will follow during today's interview. Our questioning will proceed in rounds. The majority will ask questions first for 1 hour, and then the minority will have an opportunity to ask questions for an equal period of time if they so choose.

We will alternate back and forth until there are no more questions and the interview is over. Typically we take a break at the end of each hour, but if you would like to take a break apart from that, please just let us know.

As you can see, there's an official court reporter taking down everything we say to make a written record, so we ask that you give verbal responses to all questions.

Do you understand that?

Mr. Stamos. I do.

[redacted]. So the court reporter can take down a clear record, we will do our best to limit the number of people directing questions at you during any given hour to just those people on the staff whose turn it is.

Please try and speak clearly so the court reporter can understand and so the folks down at the end of the cable can hear you as well. It is important that we don't talk over one another or interrupt each other if we can help that, and that goes for everybody present at today's interview.

We want you to answer our questions in the most complete and truthful manner as possible, so we'll take our time. If you have any questions or if you do not understand one of our questions, please just let us know. Our questions will cover a wide range of topics so if you need clarification at any point just ask.

If you honestly don't know the answer to a question or do not remember, it is best not to guess. Please give us your best recollection, and it is okay to tell us if you learned information from someone else. Just indicate how you came to know the information. If there are things you don't know or can't remember, just say so and please inform us who, to the best of your knowledge, might be able to article.

You should also understand that by law you are required to answer questions from Congress truthfully.

Do you understand that?

Mr. Stamos. Yes.

[redacted]. This also applies to questions posed by congressional staff in an interview.

Do you understand this?

Mr. Stamos. Yes.

[redacted]. Witnesses that knowing provide false testimony could be subject to criminal prosecution for making false statements under 18, U.S.C., Section 1001.

Do you understand this?

Mr. Stamos. Yes.

[redacted]. Is there any reason you are unable to provide truthful answers to today's questions?

Mr. Stamos. No.

1 [redacted]. Finally, I would like to make note that the content of what we
2 discuss here today is confidential. We ask that you not speak about what we discuss in 3 this interview to any outside individuals to preserve the integrity of our investigation.
4 For that same reason, the marked exhibits that we will use today will remain with 5 the court reporters, and we will collect any copies of the exhibits at the end of the
6 interview.
7 Okay. That's the end of my preamble.
8 Do my colleagues from the minority have anything?
9 [redacted] We would just like to thank the witness for flying out from California
10 to join us today.
11 [redacted] Thank you.
12 Mr. Stamos I understand you have an opening statement. You may proceed.
13 Mr. Stamos. I do. Thank you.
14 Good morning. I'm glad to have this opportunity to describe the work of the 15 Stanford Internet Observatory and to address misperceptions about its participation in 16 the Election Integrity Partnership and the Virality Project.
17 The Stanford Internet Observatory studies misuses of the internet with the goals 18 of publishing research, suggesting technical and policy mitigations, and educating the 19 next generation of cyber specialists. I'm the founder and the director of the observatory
20 and a lecturer in the computer science department at Stanford.
21 To that end, I teach courses in cybersecurity and online safety at Stanford, along
22 with supervising our research efforts. Our research includes work on child safety, online
23 promotion of self-harm, generative AI, and influence campaigns by China, Iran, Russia,
24 and many other countries. I'm visiting Washington this week to brief government 25 officials on our latest projects, a study of large commercial operations selling child sexual

1 abuse materials on Instagram, and our upcoming work on how generative AI will impact
2 child safety work.
3 Let me briefly describe the Election Integrity Project and the Virality Project, both
4 of which have been grossly mischaracterized.
5 In the summer of 2020, SIO organized a group of four institutions in forming the 6 Election Integrity Partnership. The primary goals of the EIP were to document, in 7 real-time, the most widespread online narratives about the functioning of the election, to 8 provide a basis for further academic research of online misinformation dynamics and 9 responses, and to provide local and State election officials with a window into what was 10 happening online in their jurisdictions.
11 The EIP had about 100 contributors from four institutions. About half of the 12 overall workforce came from Stanford, and 42 of our 50 contributors were student
13 research assistants.
14 The majority of those students were undergraduates, mostly ages 18 to 23,
15 studying computer science, political science, and other subjects. To be clear, the vast 16 majority of the analysis for both the EIP and VP was performed by student researchers.
17 The EIP operated transparently and openly, publishing numerous blog posts, 18 holding regular video briefings, and documenting our work in a 274-page final report and 19 multiple peer-reviewed articles. As part of our work, the EIP invited multiple groups,
20 including the Republican National Committee, for example, to submit reports about 21 potentially false or misleading social media posts around the operation of the election for 22 us to include in the work, although in that case the RNC did not respond to our invitation.
23 One of the groups that did provide reports to the EIP was the Elections
24 Infrastructure Information Sharing Analysis Center, or EI-ISAC. EI-ISAC was created in 25 2018 to help State and local election officials with cybersecurity issues. It is operated by

1 the nonprofit Center for Internet Security and offers a switchboard operation for reports
2 of security issues to be raised by the thousands of local and State officials who run
3 elections in the U.S. The vast majority of these officials do not have the capacity or 4 expertise to manage complex cyber issues by themselves.
5 To be clear, at no time did the EIP censor speech or have access to backend
6 platform systems or data outside of public content. The EIP did not take down posts or 7 apply labels and had no power to do so. The EIP did not create targeting lists or 8 blacklists of accounts, and the list of accounts included in our reports as the top spreaders 9 of false information were generated by our academic analysis, which, importantly,
10 occurred after the election. When content clearly violated the policies of social media
11 platforms, we could refer it to the companies so they could make their own
12 determinations.
13 Many of these referrals related to false statements around the time, place, or 14 manner of voting or accounts falsely claiming to be run by election authorities. SIO 15 personnel flagged false statements that could be interpreted as supporting candidates of 16 both major political parties, not solely false statements supporting Republican 17 candidates.
18 I'll give you an example of how the system worked. On October 3, 2020, a
19 member of the Kentucky State Board of Elections sent an email to the EI-ISAC team
20 reporting a Facebook page that was pretending to be run by the Board of Elections and 21 that was asking citizens to report ballot irregularities.
22 The EI-ISAC team opened a ticket in the EIP's tracking system to report the 23 potential issue to EIP.
24 A student researcher at Stanford was assigned the ticket and quickly found a 25 related website and Twitter account. He archived those accounts for further study.

1 The student determined that the registration information for the website matched
2 that of an owner of an online marketing firm who had supported a Democratic candidate
3 for Senate in Kentucky. The candidate had lost in the primary and blamed, without
4 evidence, vote-by-mail. The website asked for personal data while misrepresenting
5 itself as run by the Board of Elections.
6 The EIP team then reported the accounts to the relevant social media platforms
7 and the URL to the Google Safe Browsing list. In this case the social media platforms
8 removed the accounts for impersonation.
9 The team then replied to EI-ISAC with the details of our findings so they could be 10 relayed back to the Kentucky Board of Elections.
11 During the 2020 election cycle, the EIP studied and documented several attempts
12 by foreign actors to influence the U.S. election. This included for-profit actors operating 13 out of North Macedonia, as well as amplification of domestic narratives by foreign 14 propaganda outlets belonging to Russia and the People's Republic of China.
15 In October of 2022, the EIP partnered with Twitter in an analysis of six networks of 16 fake accounts tempting to influence the midterm election on behalf of Iranian and 17 Chinese interests. These networks generally pushed progressive ideas such as Medicare
18 for All and attacked Republican candidates. Despite the conventional wisdom, different
19 American adversaries clearly do intend to interfere in our democratic processes in ways
20 that harm both major parties.
21 After the conclusion of the 2020 election, the surprise announcement of the first
22 COVID-19 vaccines made it clear that the next historical event to play out online would be
23 the testing and distribution of these vaccines. We added new organizations, built 24 relationships with medical professionals, and created the Virality Project to study the 25 most widespread rumors and narratives regarding the effectiveness and safety of COVID

1 vaccines.

2 The goal of the Virality Project was not to identify misinformation, as we knew
3 that the scientific consensus was still rapidly developing, but to study the most
4 widespread narratives regarding the effectiveness and safety of vaccines. The primary,
5 outputs of the VP were its weekly reports, all of which are still available on VP's public
6 website. As stated on the website, our goal was to help guide public health messaging
7 that is responsive to online conversations.

8 As with EIP, no government agencies had any special access to VP's internal 9 research systems, and the VP operated openly and transparently, releasing weekly
10 reports, blog posts, and a 230-page final report.

11 Neither the EIP 2020 or VP received any public funding. SIO's sole source of 12 government funds is a single National Science Foundation grant funded after the 13 completion of both of those projects.

14 Previous testimony to this committee has included some very serious false and 15 misleading accusations about our work and I'm glad to have the opportunities to address
16 some of them.

17 On March 9, Michael Shellenberger testified that the EIP report censored 22
18 million tweets with misinformation labels. Mr. Taibbi made a similar claim in a Twitter
19 thread tied to his testimony. This is false. The EIP had no power to apply
20 misinformation labels to any tweets. The 22 million tweet number was EIP's estimate, 21 calculated after the project completed, of how many tweets overall mentioned the 22 rumors or narratives we studied.

23 In a Twitter thread tied to Matt Taibbi's testimony, he then claimed that after the 24 2020 election, when EIP was renamed the Virality Project, the Stanford lab was 25 onboarded to Twitter's Jira ticketing system, absorbing this government proxy into

1 Twitter infrastructure, with a capability of taking in an incredible 50 million tweets a day.
2 There were two falsehoods here. The SIO and EIP have never had access so any
3 Twitter ticketing systems. The 50 million tweet number is, in fact, Twitter's estimate of 4 the number of tweets made every day related to COVID-19.
5 Mr. Taibbi claimed that, in one remarkable email, the Virality Project recommends 6 that multiple platforms take action even against stories of true vaccine side effects and 7 true posts which could fuel hesitancy.
8 This is false. The misleading fraction of the email Mr. Taibbi released was part of 9 a question sent to multiple companies from students to see which kinds of vaccine
10 narratives the companies were interested in to be notified about. The content from 11 these notifications were then put into the public weekly reports.
12 I'm glad to be able to dispel these and other false statements about our work, and 13 I'm looking forward to your questions.
14 Thank you for the time.
15 [redacted] Thank you.
16 The clock now reads 9:43 a.m.
17 My colleague, [redacted], will begin with questioning.
18 EXAMINATION
19 BY [redacted]:
20 Q Thank you again for being here.
21 Can you state your full name?
22 A Alexander Stamos.
23 Q Mr. Stamos --
24 A You can call me Alex, please.
25 Q Alex, thank you.

1 What is your current place of employment?

2 A I am the director of the Stanford Internet Observatory at Stanford University.

3 Q And what is the Stanford Internet Observatory?

4 A It is a research program as part of the Cyber Policy Center at Stanford, which

5 is a joint project of the Freeman Spogli Institute and the Stanford Law School.

6 Q And when did you become director of the Stanford Internet Observatory?

7 A I came to Stanford in August of 2018, and then we started the observatory as

8 a new program in early 2019.

9 Q I'm sorry? 2019?

10 A In 2019, yeah.

11 Q And did you become director when the program was started?

12 A Yes. I was the original director, yes.

13 Q Starting with college, what is your educational background?

14 A I have a degree in electrical engineering computer science from the 15 University of California, Berkeley.

16 Q Any other degrees?

17 A No.

18 Q Starting with after college, what is your employment history?

19 A My first job after college was with a company called LoudCloud, which was a

20 cloud computing company, before it was a profitable business. That company was sold

21 to EDS, and so I went and worked at a company called At Stake, which was a security

22 consultancy. At Stake was purchased by Symantec, a large security company. And at

23 that moment some friends and I decided to start our first company together called iSEC

24 Partners.

25 We operated that company until 2010, at which point we sold it to NCC Group

1 PLC, a large British multinational security company. I stayed there for a little bit as the
2 CTO of the new combined company. And then I was the chief information security
3 officer at Yahoo. Then after leaving Yahoo in 2015, I became the chief security officer of 4 Facebook, and that was a job I held until the fall of 2018 when I came to Stanford.
5 Q What were your responsibilities at Facebook?
6 A So chief security officer has responsibilities that really fall into two totally 7 different categories. The first was kind of the traditional cybersecurity responsibility at 8 Facebook.
9 Facebook at the time had something like 2 billion users, millions and millions of 10 computers, and 17 data centers around the world. And so the core part of the 11 responsibility was securing those systems and user data from attack.
12 As you can imagine, Facebook was -- had a very high threat profile, so we dealt 13 with some of the worst attackers in the world trying to get access to user data or to our 14 intellectual property.
15 The other side was in support of what is generally called the trust and safety
16 mission in Silicon Valley, which is preventing the platform from being used to cause harm.
17 Now, trust and safety, actually most of that belongs in other parts of Facebook, but as 18 CSO I had the investigation teams that did kind of the really high-end problems. So I had 19 a child safety investigation team that was the team of last resort if there were child safety
20 issues.
21 I built a counterterrorism team so that -- you know, when I started, one of the 22 biggest issues going on was the use of the platform by ISIS. So we built a new 23 counterterrorism investigations team specifically around ISIS, but then expanding out to 24 other kind of extremist groups who were using the platform to cause harm.
25 We also had a threat intelligence team whose job it was to investigate

1 governments trying to manipulate the platform, and that would be both them using the 2 platform to cause direct cyber attacks as well as things like disinformation and such.
3 Q Before we get any further, can you -- are you familiar with the terms
4 "misinformation," "disinformation," and "malinformation"?
5 A I am, yes.
6 Q What is your understanding of the difference between those three terms?
7 A So the problem is that these words are used colloquially in different ways at 8 different times. We try to be very careful with EIP just to make sure that we're all on 9 the same page. So we actually have an index here.
10 By the way, if you guys want the nice paper copy, we can leave you --
11 Mr. Bellinger. We brought you some swag.
12 Mr. Stamos. I'm happy to sign that if you want.
13 So if you don't mind, I'll read from the definitions, which is what we tried to use
14 for these projects.
15 Misinformation is information that is false but not necessarily intentionally false.
16 Misinformation is at times used as an umbrella category for false rumors, disinformation,
17 and other types of false and misleading information.
18 This is page 247 of EIP report. Disinformation is false or misleading information 19 that is purposefully seeded or spread for an objective; e.g., a political or financial 20 objective.
21 This goes on, but effectively the big difference here is misinformation is something
22 that might be untrue but either the speaker doesn't know it's untrue or is not spreading it
23 maliciously, where as disinformation they know something is untrue and then they're 24 spreading it.
25 Malinformation is a term I try not to use because it doesn't really have any kind of

1 reasonable academic definition.

2 BY [redacted]:

3 Q In your experience, is malinformation used by government agencies?

4 A I am sure there are people who work for the government who have used the 5 term "malinformation." Again, that's not my favorite term.

6 Q And when it is used by -- we'll stick with government agencies -- what is the 7 most common definition?

8 A I mean, the mal comes from harm -- they're trying to utilize the same

9 framing as malware, which is software that causes harm. So I expect they mean

10 information that causes harm.

11 Q Which would seem to overlap with disinformation?

12 A Not necessarily. I mean, disinformation -- the definition is things that the 13 speaker knows to be untrue that they're spreading for a purpose. I think if you're saying

14 malinformation, the overlap would be if it was actually harmful that it was being spread.

15 Again, that's why I don't like the word "malinformation." I don't think it really means

16 anything.

17 Q Can malinformation be truthful?

18 A Again, I don't use the term "malinformation." Disinformation can be based

19 upon a kernel of truth, where then the kernel of truth is used to tell a story that is not

20 true, and that's actually an extremely common disinformation tactic.

21 Q When you've heard government agencies use the term "malinformation,"

22 have they ever used it with the meaning that malinformation includes truthful

23 information?

24 A I can't think of an exact -- a situation where somebody has defined it well

25 enough for me to know what they meant. If they meant including truthful information,

1 it's possible.

2 Q Okay. You mentioned in your opening statement you're here briefing

3 government partners. Is that right?

4 A Yes.

5 Q If --

6 Mr. Bellinger. And Congress.

7 Mr. Stamos. And Members of Congress, yes?

8 BY [redacted]:

9 Q Great. And I suspect this is not your first time doing so?

10 A It is not.

11 Q When government partners use a term like "malinformation," is there an 12 effort to clarify what they mean by that?

13 A I've never corrected somebody's use of malinformation. I see it as a term

14 that tries to encompass this entire field of trying to study misleading things said online.

15 But I'm not going to go correct somebody, no. Again, it's not my preference to use it.

16 Q We'll use the terms "misinformation" and "disinformation" as you've defined

17 them, but if at any point you intend to use them differently, just let us know.

18 A Sure.

19 Q You mentioned that Facebook is part of the second half of the trust and

20 safety mission that you have played a role in. That included efforts related to 21 disinformation? Is that correct?

22 A It did. That effort did not start until after the 2016 election.

23 Q Okay. And can you say a bit more about what that effort looked like in 24 your role at Facebook?

25 A Sure. So, after the 2016 election, there were a lot of discussions of -- we

1 knew that a number of untrue things or incorrect stories were being spread on Facebook.
2 The term at the time that everybody used was "fake news," which as we all know is a
3 term that doesn't mean anything anymore, but people were talking about fake news on 4 Facebook. And there was a project that started in early 2017 based upon me going to 5 the executives at Facebook and briefing them on the possibility that some of the fake
6 news had been spread by government actors.
7 And our reason for believing that was that earlier in 2016, we had detected -- we 8 had a threat intelligence team that are people who are dedicated to different threat
9 actors, so we had a China team, we had an Iran team, we had a Russia team. And the 10 Russia team had been following actors that we knew to be working for APT28, which is 11 the hacking team that is part of the GRU, which is the main intelligence directorate of the 12 Kremlin. We don't really have an equivalent, something between NSA and DIA in the 13 U.S.
14 And so we had observed GRU actors using Facebook for -- to map out people who 15 are working for a number of Democratic groups, including the DNC and the Clinton
16 campaign, I believe maybe the DSCC, because what we knew is that the initial targeting 17 and surveillance of individuals of what we call the kill chain of the steps that an attacker
18 takes to take over somebody's account often started on Facebook because everybody
19 had a Facebook account. It's a great way to map out these networks.
20 And so we saw these GRU agents doing that work, and then we notified the FBI of 21 that. I'm not sure what happened to that tip. That's a whole other discussion that 22 perhaps got dropped on somebody's desk somewhere. As you know, there was an 23 intrusion into a number of systems, none of which those intrusions happened on 24 Facebook, but then later what we saw was the creation of fake accounts by GRU agents
25 by same infrastructure that were then used to spread information that had been stolen

1 from the DNC server, from Podesta's Gmail account, the other kinds of things that had
2 been targeted by the Russians that summer.
3 And so we had taken action against that, but we were unaware at the time of 4 what we later figured out, which was that there's a large completely separate Russian
5 campaign to try and influence the platform being run from private institutions. So after 6 the election we talked to the senior executives that we need to look into this fake news
7 thing, and so a project was spun up in early 2017, of which I was one of the leaders. And 8 through that project and then a subsequent one, we eventually found all of the activity by 9 the Internet Research Agency and some other private institutions, mostly run by Yevgeny
10 Prigozhin -- I can give you the spelling of that later, ma'am -- to influence the platform.
11 And that's all information that was then released somewhat famously, infamously, I
12 believe, in September of 2017.
13 Q With respect to both the 2017 project and, just more broadly, efforts related
14 to disinformation on Facebook, did that include any involvement with revising Facebook's
15 content moderation policies?
16 A Yes. After the discovery of all of the IRA activity, one of the things we 17 figured out was a great deal of it did not violate any of Facebook policies. This is 18 because the kind of professional trolls knew exactly what our rules were and would go up
19 to the line without violating them. And one of the things we did not have a policy on 20 was using hundreds or thousands of fake accounts to pretend to be people who you 21 weren't.
22 And so coming out of that, one of the policies we created was the Coordinated
23 Inauthentic Behavior policy, which, effectively, you can call it like a RICO for online
24 manipulation, that you're not allowed to have a conspiracy to create lots of fake accounts
25 and then push any information, whether or not it turns out to be true or false, that the

1 activity of the group lying about who they are, that it is that itself that is manipulative and
2 a kind of platform manipulation.
3 So that became the basis of our takedown of a number of Russian groups and then
4 eventually Chinese, Iranian, and I think continues to be one of the base policies that
5 Facebook uses in this area.
6 Q During your time at Facebook and with the development of this Coordinated 7 Inauthentic Behavior policy, is it fair to say it was actor and behavior based?
8 A Yeah. So it sounds like you're listening to our podcast. I appreciate that.
9 Yeah, so there are three -- for the whole group, there are really three kinds of 10 policies that you have in content policy: actor based, who's the speaker; behavior
11 based, what are they doing; content based, what they're saying.
12 And, yes, that is a policy that was really about -- mostly about behavior, somewhat
13 about actors. There were separate policies that effectively -- if you belong to searching 14 groups that have been determined to be manipulating the platform, you're not allowed 15 on. And so effectively the Internet Research Agency was declared persona non grata on 16 Facebook. And so even like the personal Instagram accounts -- Russians love Instagram, 17 it turns out. This is actually an interesting thing for us in the investigation. A bunch of 18 them went to a wedding together, and so we were able to partially map out the IRA
19 network because they had tagged all of their coworkers in a wedding photo.
20 And so we actually took down all of those accounts, because if you had any 21 relationship to Prigozhin's kind of troll farm ecosystem that you were no longer allowed 22 on the platform. The CIB is really more, with the B in there, behavior based, the 23 behavior of that group.
24 Q So the CIB, is it not content based?
25 A As of the -- the initial intention was for it to be about the behavior, the

1 overall behavior of trying to lie about who you are. I cannot speak as to the exact
2 definition of CIB now because a lot has happened in the last 5, 6 years, and so it's quite
3 possible that the CIB policy has changed to have more content components.
4 Q In 2018, before you left Facebook, you mentioned CIB as one of the content
5 moderation policies. Was there a section of the content moderation policies that was 6 content based?
7 A Most of the content moderation policies are content based.
8 Q And did you work on any of those policies?
9 A I don't -- that was not a core responsibility of the CSO. I specifically worked 10 on CIB because it was my threat intel team that was leading the investigation into the 11 Russian activity. I normally was not consulted on content policies, so I don't recall any 12 other ones. It's possible I might have had input in, say, a terrorism policy since we did
13 have the terrorism investigations. I had child safety investigations. I don't remember a 14 significant child safety policy that changed. So I can't recall any other policies, other 15 than CIB, where I had at least a significant input.
16 Q Do you recall any content moderation policies related to misinformation
17 before you left in 2018?
18 A I am sure there were policies around misinformation, but I don't recall
19 exactly what they were when I left. Again, that was not my core function. The CSO
20 doesn't do a lot of policy work. There's an entire policy organization whose job it is to 21 create those.
22 Q Do you recall the name of that team?
23 A Should be platform policy is when I left. I'm not sure what they're called 24 now.
25 Q Okay.

1 A Facebook likes to reorganize the whole company about every 6 months.

2 Q Do you recall who the director of that team was when you left?

3 A [redacted].

4 Q And just as a point of clarification, you used the term "disinformation."

5 Initially, to your recollection, there was no efforts in your role at Facebook related to 6 misinformation? It's not a primary responsibility. Is that fair?

7 A My primary responsibility related to these areas of specifically government

8 groups who were manipulating platform, since as the runner of the threat intelligence

9 team, which most of our work was about direct cyber, we were already studying these

10 groups, the GRU, SVR of Russia, many states of security, People's Liberation Army of the 11 PRC.

12 So my responsibility here was on the government side. It is possible I was

13 probably in meetings about misinformation that was not government tied, but in that

14 2017 time frame really the big focus was on governments and then also what was the 15 troll farms. So there's a lot of fake news that was just effectively spam. That was

16 really being handled by other folks, but that was the other -- kind of the majority volume

17 of the things of just straight untrue stories that were being pushed, were being pushed by 18 groups of people who were doing it for economic purposes.

19 Q So you leave Facebook, and Stanford is your next place of employment. Is 20 that right?

21 A That's right.

22 Q Yeah. And why did you leave Facebook?

23 A There was a reorganization where a bunch of my people were taken away

24 and split up to two different groups. That was happening at the end of 2017, and so I

25 didn't feel comfortable being the CSO and the face of the company. I was the one that

1 came here to Congress to brief on anything. I was the one who had to go to Brussels.
2 And any country that wanted to yell at us, I was the guy that got yelled at.
3 And I didn't feel comfortable doing that if I didn't have the appropriate team and
4 oversight to be able to follow through, and so I told the company I wanted to leave. And
5 we effectively made a deal where I stayed for most of 2018 to leave the team in a good
6 place and then especially to work on the 2018 midterms to see through most of the work
7 that was being happened. And then I left before the quarter started. The trigger was 8 the quarter was starting at Stanford, and so I wanted to teach my class full time.
9 Q Were you teaching part time earlier?
10 A I had taught one class when I was at Facebook. I had started what is now
11 called the Hack Lab, which is an internet cybersecurity class for non CS majors, so I
12 actually have a lot of lawyers and political science students. You might have some of my 13 students on your staff one day. And I had started that class when I was still at Facebook,
14 and it was just going to be much easier to make the transition before the quarter started.
15 Q Okay. And you mentioned that you served kind of as the public face for the 16 company at Facebook --
17 A Yes.
18 Q -- and would be yelled at?
19 Would that include the U.S. Government as one of the entities you're referencing?
20 A Yes, definitely.
21 Q Okay. And the media as well?
22 A I would do media events and interviews on behalf of the company, yes.
23 Q Okay. Do you recall a time period where the yelling or criticism was higher
24 than normal?
25 A During my entire time at Facebook, the company had lots of enemies in lots

1 of places. But certainly in the U.S., after the 2016 election, things got much more
2 heated.
3 Q And why do you think that is?
4 A I believe a lot -- there's a decent size of people who believe that Facebook is
5 the reason that President Trump was elected in 2016, and they were angry about that.
6 Q By "people," would that include U.S. Government officials?
7 A It certainly included elected Members of Congress. There wasn't really
8 anybody -- you know, the Obama administration only existed for a couple of months then
9 after the election so, I don't recall any interactions with folks working for the executive 10 branch. But there was a lot lots of pressure from Congress.
11 Q In your role at Facebook -- we'll stick with the -- when did you join 12 Facebook? Sorry. We didn't cover that.
13 A 2015 I believe was the exact date.
14 Q Okay. During your tenure at Facebook, which Federal Government
15 agencies did you interact with?
16 A So our primary contact was with the FBI. We'd work with the FBI National 17 Security Division on all of the hacking issues that we deal with. So, say, either somebody
18 tried to break into Facebook or we caught -- I'll give you an example. While I was there,
19 we discovered that an Iranian group was pretending to be young staffers, had fake
20 accounts pretending to be young staffers at the State Department and then were 21 friending those other State Department employees, Hey, saw you in the cafeteria, would 22 love to get coffee sometime, whatever, get the friendship, send them messages, and then 23 were using that to see their friend lists and then possibly to plant malware on their 24 computers.
25 So our team discovered this because we were running machine learning classifiers

1 to look for malicious links and such, and we found malicious links being sent out. And
2 once you looked, it was clearly a campaign against the State Department.
3 And so that was a situation in which we informed the FBI, and they put us in touch
4 with the right people in the State Department, and then we provided our data for them to 5 both remediate the problem and then perhaps for legal action, although we were able to 6 trace it to Iran, so I'm not sure, but I don't think in that situation there has been any 7 subsequent legal penalties applied.
8 Q Are you familiar with CISA, the government agency?
9 A Yes, I am.
10 Q And what does CISA stand for?
11 A It's the Cybersecurity and Infrastructure Security Agency. They like security
12 so much they put it in there twice.
13 Q And do you recall when CISA was created?
14 A It was created during the Trump administration, I believe, in early 2019. I
15 don't know the exact date.
16 Q Yeah. And so it would have been after you had left Facebook?
17 A It was after I had left Facebook, yeah. I believe the organization that was 18 leading -- doing that kind of stuff was NPPD and DHS.
19 Q And what is NPPD?
20 A Other than sounding like a Soviet era spy agency, I think it's National 21 Protection Program Director. It's something like that. But that was like the group in 22 DHS that was doing defensive cyber -- well, there are lots of groups doing that, which is 23 one of the reasons I think CISA was created was lots of people said cyber was their job.
24 Q Do you recall when you were at Facebook if you interacted as a function of 25 your role at Facebook with this DHS subagency?

1 A Yes.

2 Q And what was the nature of your interactions?

3 A So the biggest interaction was I called together a meeting at Facebook I
4 believe in the summer of 2018. I want to say June or July, but I don't know the exact
5 date. I might be able to find it.

6 I think there was news reporting around it, so we could find out the date from 7 that, in which representatives of the government who were working on protecting the 8 2018 election came to Facebook and met with representatives from the tech companies.
9 So I was able to get Google and Microsoft and Snap and a couple of other companies
10 represented there as well.

11 Q In addition to this subagency from DHS, FBI that you mentioned, which other 12 Federal agencies did you interact with most frequently?

13 A We would interact with NSA, so we had contacts with folks at the NSA who 14 were working on tracking specific government attackers, and so we would send 15 information to them about that. And we occasionally would get cleared briefings on the 16 kinds of things that we should be looking out for, as well as declassified, what are called 17 TTPs, tools, techniques, procedures, definitions effectively what should you look out for.

18 If this Chinese group is going to hack you, this is you look out for. So we would 19 get those briefings. Generally that was facilitated by the FBI, but I believe there were 20 situations in which we'd brief them directly too.

21 Q Okay. Among these government agencies, was there a common
22 understanding of what counted as critical infrastructure?

23 A My understanding is that critical infrastructure is defined by an executive 24 order and so -- but that's not really my field, so I can't speak to exactly what's in that.
25 But my understanding is the President defines what critical infrastructure is.

1 Q To your recollection, was election infrastructure added as part of the critical
2 infrastructure at some point?
3 A I believe it was added near the end of the Obama administration, yes.
4 Q And in your role -- well, this would be -- yeah. In your role at Facebook, do
5 you recall having any interactions with Federal agencies with respect to election
6 infrastructure?
7 A Part of our work on protecting the election included us looking out for 8 Facebook being used to attack election infrastructure. I know that sounds a little weird,
9 but the reason is not that Facebook would actually run election systems, but if I was 10 sitting in Beijing and you told me, "I want you to attack Cuyahoga County," I'd go after the 11 people first. And that is generally how high-end attackers do their work is they go after 12 individuals.
13 And so, as part of that, we were doing work in the run-up to 2018 to try to make 14 sure that we were not used as a conduit to attack individuals who were running the 15 election.
16 Q Okay. Do you recall which agencies you worked with on this issue?
17 A So the people who were there at that meeting and who were part of this 18 working group were FBI, DHS. There might have been a White House
19 representative -- I'm not sure -- and the EOP person from maybe like NSC. There 20 probably was a representative from the intelligence community, but I don't recall exactly 21 who was there.
22 [redacted]. Just quickly, when you said Members of Congress blamed Facebook
23 for Trump winning the election, what were the specific accusations?
24 Mr. Stamos. I don't think I'm telling you anything new. You can just look at 25 every night of MSNBC in November 2016. But, you know, the overall accusation was

1 that fake news on Facebook influenced people I believe into voting for President Trump.
2 That is the general gist of it.
3 And then eventually once we released our results, those accusations were much
4 more specifically around Russia.
5 BY [redacted]:
6 Q Do you think those accusations were fair?
7 A I think that's very complicated. It is accurate that the Russian Federation
8 ran multiple campaigns during the 2016 election to either raise the temperature in the 9 American election and, in some cases, specifically to hurt Secretary Clinton. Do I think it
10 is accurate to say without those campaigns Trump would not have been elected, that is a
11 social science question that nobody has been able to answer, but I think people have 12 jumped to that conclusion way too quickly.
13 Q You mentioned -- so you joined Stanford in 2018. Stanford Internet
14 Observatory was created in 2019. Is that right?
15 A Yes.
16 Q And what was the purpose of creating the Stanford Internet Observatory?
17 A The goal was to create a group that would work on these trust and safety
18 issues that had not really been explored in an academic context. So child safety online, 19 counterterrorism, the kinds of things I worked at of preventing organized malicious use of 20 the internet to cause harm was not a field that academia dealt with very well.
21 The example I continue to use is that when I was an undergraduate in the late
22 1990s, computer security was not considered a real part of computer science. There
23 was no one to graduate class at Cal or at any major university. I had to take a graduate 24 seminar.
25 People who did security were seen as kind of weird, not in the center of the CS

1 world, and that that's where we are as of now in the kind of general trust and safety of 2 understanding the misuse of technology outside of core packing.
3 And so the goal was to help organize that as an academic field, and we've done
4 that through our own research. We've done that through creating spaces for research,
5 so we run a journal, the Journal of Online Trust and Safety. We run an academic
6 research conference, September 28, 29 at Stanford -- you guys are welcome. I'll set a 7 ticket aside for you -- and through our own research and then through our teaching to try
8 and teach classes that help educate students about this area and try to make the field
9 more rigorous.
10 Q With respect to trust and safety -- and you mentioned a couple of examples,
11 child abuse, terrorism -- would another example be mis- and disinformation?
12 A Yes. Mis- and disinformation would generally fall under the trust and 13 safety umbrella at tech companies.
14 Q Okay. And with respect to SIO in particular and the research you're 15 conducting, is there an element of SIO that focuses on mis- and disinformation?
16 A It does, and especially with a foreign element, we do a lot of work on trying 17 to understand how foreign countries have manipulating information here in the United 18 States.
19 Q You mentioned within Facebook there was at least an attempt to make a 20 division between kind of actor, behavior based issues, as opposed to content, you know,
21 related issues. In your academic research, is there a similar delineation?
22 A When we do our work, we try to talk about things being actor, behavior
23 based, content based. You will see when we talk about policies, we make that specific,
24 but I'm not exactly sure what you're getting at there.
25 Q Sure. So one subject area might be looking at actor, behavior base, so if

1 it's, you know, a foreign state sponsoring fake accounts --

2 A Yeah.

3 Q -- that seems to be content agnostic?

4 A Right.

5 Q But is the research that is primarily looking at content based?

6 A So I think it matters what we're doing. So I actually have a great example

7 here. I think Caleb has copies if you guys want.

8 This is an exploration we did of overall Chinese capabilities in this space, and you'll

9 see we talk about the actors, so we talk about what groups within the Communist Party

10 and the People's Republic do disinformation work and information warfare.

11 We talk about their behavior of how they do it, and then we obviously talk about 12 the content of the kinds of things, what are the tropes they're pushing, what are the ideas

13 they're pushing.

14 So I see from an academic perspective if you're trying to study what is going on

15 with Chinese misinformation, for example, you would be doing an incomplete job if you

16 didn't look at all three of those things.

17 Q As part of your research, do you look at issues that are purely content based 18 as opposed to -- or does it always incorporate actor and behavior as well?

19 A I mean, there's certainly situations in which an area of content would be

20 interesting to us, but I expect our goal then would be to explore what actors were

21 pushing it. You know, just saying this is content is not as interesting without

22 understanding who is the one who's the speaker or the amplifier and how they're doing

23 that.

24 Q Do you recall in 2018, before you left Facebook, there's -- you mentioned the 25 section CIB and ultimately behavior based. To the extent there was an actor-based

1 element to it, do you recall if there was difficulty in determining if the actor was domestic 2 or foreign?
3 A There would definitely be situations in which it was difficult to determine
4 who they were, especially after we released our results in 2017, because up to that point,
5 I think these organizations, the Chinese, the Russian groups, and such, thought we
6 weren't looking and, to a certain extent, they were accurate. And once we had shown 7 we were able to map these out with the technical details that they left behind, then they 8 had to improve their ops act, their operational security. And so certainly especially after 9 that they would start to cover their tracks.
10 In the pure cyber space, this is called the attribution problem, and it's actually 11 extremely hard. I, in fact, wrote a whole blog post that you can find -- I think that is still 12 up -- for Facebook on how we approached attribution as a private entity versus, say, the 13 intelligence community which has different kinds of standards.
14 Q Before you left Facebook and you're handling CIB-related issues, would the 15 U.S. Government provide tips or reports of accounts or networks that they thought were 16 potentially violating the terms of service?
17 A When I was there, they were providing reports for actual offensive cyber.
18 That was a frequent part of our collaboration. There was -- for the 2016 election, none
19 of the information we used to do our investigation into Russian interference came from 20 the government. It was all generated internally.
21 After our announcements in, like, 2018, I believe, and maybe right before I left,
22 there was the first tip for a group that was doing it. And my feeling at the time was that
23 there was nobody in the FBI or the intelligence community tracking the information
24 warfare actors in these countries in the same way they were tracking kind of the cyber 25 warfare actors.

1 Q Do you recall who that tip came from?

2 A I don't. It was most likely the FBI. They were the ones who would relay.

3 If, say, SVR was spreading malware on Facebook, it would come from the FBI, and they

4 would relay it on behalf of whatever agency might have figured that out.

5 Q Are you familiar with the Foreign Influence Task Force?

6 A I've heard that term for the different groups in the government who work

7 together on foreign influence, yeah.

8 Q Okay. Have you had interactions with that task force?

9 A We've -- I've had interactions with people who are probably part of the task

10 force, FBI agents and such.

11 Q Are you familiar with the Global Engagement Center?

12 A Yes.

13 Q What is that?

14 A That is a group in the State Department that tracks and I think in some cases

15 is counter messaging against foreign groups that are trying to influence global as well as 16 domestic speech within the United States.

17 Q And do you recall when the GEC -- sorry for using that term -- was created?

18 A I don't know.

19 Q What's the nature of your interactions with the GEC?

20 A Now or --

21 Q Well, we'll start, did you have any while you were at Facebook?

22 A I don't recall any interaction with the GEC at Facebook.

23 Q Okay. Then since your time joining Stanford?

24 A During the Election Integrity Partnership, the GEC was able to send in tips for 25 us of potential foreign actors operating to spread disinformation about the operation of

1 the election.

2 Q Okay. Setting aside the EIP, do you recall any other interactions with GEC?

3 A It's possible. I mean, they're at conferences. We interact with, you know,

4 groups of people who study foreign influence all the time. So I'm sure we've had a

5 number of interactions with them.

6 Q You covered this partially in your opening statement, but can you say again,

7 just at a high level, what is the Election Integrity Partnership?

8 A The Election Integrity Partnership was -- it doesn't really exist as of this

9 moment -- well, we are finishing our 2022 report. Right now there's not an organized

10 group doing this kind of gathering. But at the creation in 2020, it was a group of four

11 institutions to study the narratives that were being spread around the operation of the 12 election in 2020.

13 Q And can you say what those four institutions were again?

14 A So it was us at Stanford, the University of Washington's Center for an 15 Informed Public, Graphika, and The Atlantic Council DFRLab.

16 Q And you said it was the University of Washington's Center for an Informed

17 Public?

18 A Yes.

19 Q And what is that?

20 A That is a research group a lot like ours run by a number of professors,

21 including Kate Starbird.

22 Q Okay. And what is Graphika?

23 A Graphika is a private company that makes tools to study manipulation of 24 platforms with a specific focus on Twitter.

25 Q And what is DFRLab?

1 A They are a research group within The Atlantic Council that publishes a lot on
2 foreign influence campaigns in the U.S.
3 Q Before EIP was created, had you worked with the Center for an Informed
4 Public?
5 A Yes.
6 Q And what was the context of your previous work?
7 A We had a number of interactions. I don't know if we ever copublished, but 8 we ran into them all the time. Kate Starbird is a very prominent member of the 9 academic field studying this kind of stuff.
10 Q And before the creation of EIP, had you worked with Graphika before?
11 A We had had interactions with Graphika, and we had used their tools to do
12 some of our research.
13 Q And by "we," you mean Stanford?
14 A Stanford, yes.
15 Q Had you worked with Graphika when you were at Facebook?
16 A I think we had conversations with Graphika. I don't remember exactly
17 what the timing was of Graphika actually releasing their products. I'm not sure.
18 Q And prior to the formation of the EIP, had you worked previously with 19 DFRLab?
20 A Yes. We, again, see them at conferences and such, and I think we had 21 worked on some of the same reports on foreign influence campaigns. They had 22 particular folks on Iran, so I think it might have been some of our Iran work.
23 Q And had you worked with DFRLab while you were at Facebook?
24 A We -- my team did certainly have a relationship with them. I'm not sure I
25 had any direct relationships myself.

1 Q Do you recall what the nature of your team's relationship was with DFRLab?
2 A Our threat intel team would work with think tanks and nonprofits who
3 worked on understanding foreign influence in attacks. So they would have those
4 relationships with folks. I don't recall any specific projects together. A lot of that kind
5 of -- the relationship with direct research projects working side by side occurred after I
6 left.
7 Q Okay. Once CISA is created, 2018, 2019, before the formation of EIP, did
8 you have any interactions with personnel at CISA?
9 A I'm sorry. Can you say the time frame again?
10 Q Sure. So from CISA's creation up until prior to the formation of EIP, did you
11 have interactions with CISA?
12 A Yes.
13 Q What was the nature of your interactions?
14 A So we had invited -- we had CISA folks speak on campus multiple times,
15 including Chris Krebs gave a talk to students and ran a recruiting event, because in those 16 early day of CISA that was one of the things they were trying to do was to get some new 17 blood. He, if I recall, was not super happy with some of the folks he had absorbed from 18 the DHS Civil Service System, and he was looking for people with more -- younger folks
19 with more cyber expertise. And so we had had those interactions with CISA. I'm sure 20 there were other ones as well.
21 Q Who is Chris Krebs?
22 A Chris was the first director of CISA and is now my business partner in a
23 consulting firm.
24 Q Okay. And what does your consulting firm do, just at a high level?
25 A We do cybersecurity consulting for large companies with a geopolitical

1 focus.

2 Q Okay. Do you have any government clients?

3 A We do not do any government work, no. I don't know if you've ever filled

4 out a GSA schedule, but it's not fun.

5 Q Do you know how long Mr. Krebs was director of CISA for?

6 A From its inception until he was very famously fired by tweet in either

7 November or December of 2020.

8 Q Yeah. And when did you two form your consultant business?

9 A In January of 2021.

10 Q Do you recall who first came up with the idea for EIP?

11 A It was me.

12 Q Okay. And what was the motivation? What was the purpose you were 13 hoping EIP would accomplish?

14 A So no matter what, we knew we were going to have to do some study

15 around the 2020 election. This was clearly going to be an event that was going to play

16 out massively on social media. And I was really afraid of foreign interference attempts

17 being repeated against the 2020 election, not just this time from the Russians, but

18 something that I had observed both at Facebook and then at Stanford is the publicity

19 around what the Russians did in 2016 had caused lots and lots of countries to massively

20 build up their capabilities. The biggest beneficiary there would be China. But really

21 almost every country in the world now has some kind of capability to manipulate social 22 media.

23 And so we were going to do some kind of study, and it was going to be a big thing.

24 And so the goal was to spread the work across multiple institutions and be able to get

25 help so that we didn't end up with three or four different groups repeating the same

1 work, that we could work collaboratively, and then do our own academic research based
2 on the data that we had gathered.
3 Q And if I just understood part of your answer correctly, you said the 4 publicity -- is this following the 2016 election -- led foreign states to invest more?
5 A I think the publicity is one thing. In the China situation and particularly the 6 other thing that really accelerated -- and this is something we actually talk about in that
7 report -- that accelerated their capabilities was first the uprising in Hong Kong.
8 So the PRC and the Chinese Communist Party found themselves getting, honestly,
9 their butts kicked by teenagers in Hong Kong, by young millennials who were much 10 better, and they found themselves, like behind the ball of their ability to control the 11 narrative about what was going on there. And the second was COVID. The Chinese
12 had a very big focus on trying to control the narrative around the origins of COVID,
13 China's responsibilities, the quality of their vaccines, all that kind of stuff.
14 And so between those two things, there was a big investment, from what we can 15 see in our research, in Chinese abilities in the non-Chinese languages. They always had 16 a massive capability in Mandarin and other Chinese languages, the important paper that's 17 written by Jennifer Pan, who's a colleague of mine at Stanford. But their ability in 18 English was actually quite poor, and there's a big acceleration post Hong Kong and then
19 during COVID into creating a capability to manipulate the United States, manipulate 20 people in Spanish, manipulate people in German, stuff like that.
21 Q Do you recall, or to the extent you have knowledge, of when it came to 22 Russia's efforts to interfere in the 2016 election how strong their capabilities were with 23 respect to influencing English-based networks?
24 A I mean, I could just -- I don't have -- there's no power ranking here. I can't 25 give you, like, the AP Coaches Poll on who are the best disinformation actors, but the

1 Russians had two decent sent capabilities. The first was their capability in their
2 intelligence agencies, specifically GRU, because they were able to pair up an information
3 warfare capability with actual cyber operations. And so that's what made the GRU
4 component really powerful is that they had the ability to actually break in and steal
5 people's emails, steal documents, and to do technically advanced stuff and then use that 6 to power their disinformation work.
7 On the other side with the troll farms, which had an ability to push stuff, but they 8 weren't as technically advanced and were a little bit disorganized in their work, so I would 9 say the capability the Russians had in 2016, while at the time was a big deal, was pretty 10 weak compared to where a number of countries are now.
11 Q And when you left Facebook in 2018, was it your sense that the company
12 was well prepared to handle issues related -- actually let me strike that real quick.
13 Are you familiar with the term "foreign maligned influence campaigns"?
14 A Yes.
15 Q And to your understanding, what does that phrase mean?
16 A Foreign means not American; malign meaning malicious, trying to cause
17 harm; influence to try to change people's minds.
18 Q Okay. And so these examples with China and with Russia, you put those as 19 types of -- consider those parts of foreign malign influence campaigns?
20 A Yes. I mean, I think each specific set of actions would be considered a 21 campaign, yeah.
22 Q Okay. When you left Facebook in 2018, did you think the company was 23 well prepared to handle foreign malign influence campaigns?
24 A The company was much better prepared than it was in 2016, in that there
25 was a group working on this. There were people in threat intelligence whose job it was

1 to specifically track the information worker actors and not just the offensive cyber actors,
2 and there were policies like the CIB policy that actually covered it.
3 So, yes, I thought the company was in much better shape. It was very hard to 4 know what was coming, so I'm not sure what I thought about -- I don't recall what my
5 exact thought was of whether they were ready or not, but I knew they were in much
6 better shape.
7 Q Okay. And with respect to, we'll say in 2020, summer of 2020, a few 8 months before the election, do you recall what your understanding was as far as whether 9 large social media companies like Facebook and Twitter were well prepared for foreign 10 malign influence campaigns in the lead-up to the 2020 election?
11 A Yes, I think they were generally well prepared for that.
12 Q Okay. And what sort of changes do you think they adopted to be 13 prepared?
14 A So they had teams that were specifically looking for it. They had policies to 15 cover it. They had collaborations. There had been a long history of collaborating on 16 cyber issues in Silicon Valley that really come out of 2009. There was a big People's 17 Liberation Army attack against a big chunk of Silicon Valley called the Project Aurora
18 Attacks. I actually got to help in the incident response for that. And that was like a 19 huge deal. If you remember, that's when Google pulled out of China famously. They 20 shut down their China operations. That was a big deal because it indicated that tech
21 companies were playing at the same level as the defense industrial base, big banks, stuff
22 like that.
23 And so that collaboration existed really on the offensive cyber operations, and 24 they used some of the same kind of capabilities then to study and stop information
25 warfare actors. So if one company found we have this group in Iran that is creating fake

1 accounts that they could share, here are the email addresses, here are the phone
2 numbers with another platform, and they could go find the similar aspects.
3 So there's that kind of collaboration that was happening. There were dedicated
4 teams. I do think the companies were in better shape for 2020.
5 Q So going back then to, what was the goal with forming the EIP? What need
6 were you looking to fill?
7 A So there are really three big gaps that existed that we wanted to fill that had
8 not existed in 2016.
9 The first was to create a real-time historical record of what was happening. Lots
10 of content on social media is ephemeral. It can be deleted by the actors. It can be 11 deleted by the platforms. It kind of can get lost in the sands of time. And one of the 12 things we found coming out of 2016 is there's no good historical record of what actually 13 happened, and that's generated a lot of disagreement about the size and scope of these 14 campaigns.
15 The second was to do academic analysis of how were the actors operating, how 16 does information flow in these platforms, and what were the responses of the platforms,
17 and the possible effectiveness of those responses.
18 And then the third was to provide a help to local and State election officials, who 19 had really very little capability to stand up against dedicated information warfare actors 20 by themselves, to help them understand what was going on in their own backyards.

2 [10:31 a.m.]

3 BY [redacted]:

4 Q For that third purpose, how did you gain this understanding?

5 A I'm sorry. What do you mean?

6 Q Sure. So the third purpose is to help State and local election officials. At 7 what point did it come to your attention that State and local officials, based off your

8 understanding, were ill-equipped to handle these kinds of issues?

9 A So, before 2020, I had been a part of a number of groups that had met with

10 NASED, you know, the National Association of -- well, there's the National Association of 11 Secretaries of State, and then there's a National Association of State Election Directors.

12 So, of the different groups that represent the local and States -- this is where

13 you'd have Matt Warner and other kind of prominent secretaries of states talk about the 14 things they were doing to protect in 2020. In those situations, they talked about their 15 need for help.

16 I think America is the only advanced democracy in which we devolve our elections

17 into thousands of localities. That has a lot of benefits of allowing local control and

18 probably gives us security benefits in that it makes it very hard to steal an overall election

19 because there's a huge diversity in systems and capabilities. But the flip side is that you

20 end up with these local government officials having to stand up to state adversaries.

21 I live in San Mateo County in California. The people who run the elections are

22 nice people, but the idea that they're going to protect their systems against the People's

23 Liberation Army just doesn't make sense. If the People's Liberation Army Air Force flew

24 over San Mateo County, that is not the San Mateo County Sheriff's Department's 25 responsibility to have a SAM site, right? That's the Air Force.

1 And so a lot of this discussion was happening in the runup to the 2020 election
2 about how centralized help could -- from the Federal Government, from other nonprofits
3 and such -- could be provided to local and States on cyber issues. But it also became 4 clear in those meetings that they had challenges around the disinformation side that 5 were probably not going to be met.
6 Q Okay. And just to be clear, these meetings occurred once you were already
7 at Stanford?
8 A Yes. Yes.
9 Q Okay. Do you recall when you started to meet with these types of groups?
10 A I don't have an exact recollection. I'm guessing in late 2019, early 2020.
11 Q Okay. And, when you were meeting with them, would it be with -- you
12 mentioned nonprofits and the Federal Government. Were these meetings with 13 representatives from nonprofits and the Federal Government?
14 A There were people from nonprofits and Federal Government at these 15 events. NASED events, NAS events, and such.
16 Q Yeah. Which Federal agencies were involved?
17 A Well, certainly CISA, which I believe now existed at this time, Federal 18 Elections Commission, EAC, the Election -- I think -- Assistance Commission is what that 19 stands for. I believe those are the three that you would normally have from the
20 government.
21 Q And do you recall who from CISA would attend these meetings?
22 A So you'd see [redacted] a lot. Krebs himself would come. Probably 23 some other folks. I don't recall everybody.
24 Q Okay. Who is [redacted]?
25 A [redacted] is probably the man who knows more about election

1 security than any other living American. He has worked in elections at the local level, at 2 the State level, at the Federal level. He worked for CISA. He was -- I don't know his
3 exact title, but he was effectively kind of a special assistant to Krebs on election security
4 in 2020.
5 After he left CISA, he came and spent a little bit of time with us to document
6 everything he had learned and to do a report on what he had learned out of the 2020
7 election. Now he works at Microsoft, I think, in their group that supports election
8 security.
9 Q Okay. Do you recall when in 2020 you first began considering the 10 formation of EIP?
11 A Yeah. So, in the early summer of 2020, I had a conversation with one of my 12 students who was interning at CISA. And, in that conversation, we talked about how 13 there was no kind of support currently being offered on the disinformation side to local 14 States.
15 And so we had already been planning at that moment to do some kind of study in 16 the fall, but this is where it became clear of -- if we're going to put a group together to 17 work together on the election, that another function that we could provide would be that 18 support.
19 Q Okay. In addition to the student, who else did you consult with in the 20 summer of 2020?
21 A Well, then we ended up sending emails to a number of stakeholders.
22 Obviously, the other groups that were part of EIP. And then we had meetings with CISA
23 to get their feedback.
24 Q Yeah. And who at CISA did you meet with?
25 A I don't recall exactly. I expect it was [redacted], Brian Scully. Those

1 were key people at CISA. And probably a variety of other people.

2 Q Who is Brian Scully?

3 A He was an important person at CISA. He's now at NSC. I don't know his

4 exact title at CISA.

5 Q Okay. Did you consult with Chris Krebs in the summer of 2020?

6 A I probably did, yes.

7 Q Do you recall what sort of feedback anyone from CISA -- whether Mr. Krebs,

8 [redacted], or Mr. Scully -- provided?

9 A I don't recall exactly what they said, but the outcome was that they

10 introduced us to the Election Integrity -- Election Infrastructure ISAC people, and we built

11 the relationship with the EI-ISAC to be able to relay these -- to introduce us to local and 12 State partners and to relay the requests.

13 Q Okay. And what is EI-ISAC?

14 A The Election Infrastructure Information Sharing and Analysis Center.

15 Q Great. And we can stick with the acronym.

16 A Yeah. That's fine. Thank you.

17 Q And what does EI-ISAC do?

18 A So the ISACs are nonprofits that coordinate security inside of a sector, often

19 a critical infrastructure sector. The ISACs have been around for a while, this idea. I

20 believe the first ones were designated by an executive order. The canonical one that

21 everybody uses as an example is FS-ISAC, the Financial Services ISAC, where you have

22 thousands of banks -- big ones, small ones -- sharing real-time information about bad

23 things happening, and then the big banks providing support to the little ones.

24 And so the idea of an ISAC is collective defense, that you're in better shape if one

25 person gets an attack, that they tell all of their friends "I'm getting an attack from this IP address" or "I just saw this piece of malware or "I find this vulnerability in this product; we should get this fixed," that you work together in the ISAC to get that kind of support.

So the EI-ISAC is a similar thing. I believe the central management of it is by the Center for Internet Security, which is a nonprofit that actually runs the kind of coordination, but most of the work is then done by the members themselves who are sharing with one another.

Q Okay.

BY [redacted]:

Q The student you mentioned, was that an undergraduate student that was interning at CISA while --

A Yes. We had four students who were working at CISA. Three of them were new interns. One had had a preexisting relationship. All of them, I believe, at the time were undergraduates.

Q And they were interning for the summer? Or what was the duration of the --

A For the summer. One of them, again, had a preexisting relationship because he had done lots of work in hacking. He had actually hacked the Pentagon as part of a program and did some other stuff like that. So he had a relationship that, I think, postdated the summer. But three of them were there just for the summer.

BY [redacted]:

Q Okay. Do you know who funds CIS?

A So I can't speak to all of their funding. I know they get government grants.

Q Okay. Do you know which government agencies provide the grants?

A Relative to this, I believe they get a grant to run EI-ISAC from DHS.

Q Okay. And do you know if that's true for all of the ISACs? You mentioned

1 there were multiple.

2 A Which ones get government-funded, I'm not sure.

3 Q Okay. By DHS, is it your understanding that CISA in particular provides the 4 grants to CIS?

5 A I can't speak to who the grant holder is.

6 Q Okay.

7 A I believe the EI-ISACs predate CISA. So I'm not sure how that would affect

8 it.

9 Q Okay. Did you ever interact with the EI-ISAC while you were at Facebook?

10 A It's possible. I don't recall. It's possible they had a representative at our 11 meeting, but I don't -- it's possible.

12 One of the projects we did at Facebook is we tried to gather up the Facebook

13 accounts of all the key election officials because we wanted to -- this is something that we

14 had done first for the German and French elections, which occurred right after the U.S.

15 elections, in which the German equivalent of CISA helped gather up all of the key people

16 who were running the German election so we could mark their accounts as being 17 high-risk.

18 So, if a bad guy takes over your Facebook account -- it happens every

19 day -- nobody is going to notice. But, if the bad guy takes over the Facebook account of 20 the key technical person patching systems for a swing State, that's something we want to 21 know.

22 And so we had done a bunch of work that summer to identify those thousands of

23 people who might be targeted as part of a campaign so that we could -- we push

24 notifications for them to turn on two-factor. We force them to change their passwords

25 if their passwords were weak. And then we had special monitoring so if a bad thing

1 happened to that account, it would get locked and a human being would look instead of
2 just allowing them to deal with it themselves.
3 And so it's possible we worked with EI-ISAC on that, but I don't recall exactly who 4 our contact was for that.
5 Q A couple answers earlier when talking about the different ISACs, you
6 referred to critical infrastructure. Did you mean to refer to critical infrastructure as used
7 by the executive order you referenced earlier in the hour?
8 A My understanding is the initial ISACs were created by executive order tied to 9 the critical infrastructure sectors. So there's a national health. There's a power
10 generation, you know -- maybe it's called energy ISAC.
11 But there's ISACs -- aviation -- for critical infrastructure sectors. I believe there's 12 ISACs outside of those, too, but that's the original idea.
13 Q And you mentioned that election infrastructure was added to critical
14 infrastructure at some point in the Obama administration?
15 A That's my understanding, yeah.
16 Q Do you know if EI-ISAC was created after that change occurred?
17 A I am not an expert in the history of the EI-ISAC. I believe it preexisted, but 18 I'm not totally sure.
19 Q Okay. And the Center for Internet Security, other than its operation or 20 helping facilitate the EI-ISAC, had you other interactions with CIS at your role at Stanford
21 before the formation of EIP?
22 A It's possible, but I don't recall any specific ones.
23 Q Okay. What about during your role at Facebook?
24 A Again, it's possible, but I don't recall.
25 Q What was the reason for consulting with the individuals you did at CISA

before the formation of EIP?

A We were offering to them that, if they got reports from their local and State partners, that that's something that we would like to have; one, because we were trying to make the most complete historic and academic record of what was going on, and that we could then provide support through our own exploration of these issues and communicate back to them.

Q So does CISA have any role to play with EI-ISAC?

A I can't speak to the exact relationship between CISA and EI-ISAC?

Q But it's your understanding that there was some relationship between the two?

A My understanding is that they were working together to help local and State officials, that a core challenge of CISA is that they have responsibility for helping secure the election but no real power to do so. And so they need to be a service provider, and that EI-ISAC was one of the tools for which they could provide a service to these local and State election officials so that they're not totally by themselves while securing the election.

[redacted]. Okay. Can we go off the record, please?

[Recess,]

[redacted]. We can go back on the record. It's 10:53 in the morning.

EXAMINATION

BY [redacted]:

Q Mr. Stamos, good morning again.

I want to ask a couple questions based on the prior hour. I don't think we ever got a definition of the term "election infrastructure." What's the definition of that term?

A As I would use it, it would be the systems that are actually used in the -- all the different parts of election, from the registration systems, to the poll books, to obviously the systems that print ballots, scan, if appropriate, ballots, tabulate the results, all the way through the ways in which the results are then announced to the public or sent to the media, which is a part that people often forget about because that last part is actually quite critical.

Q You say systems. Does systems mean machines? Software programs? What does systems mean?

A All of the above. Computers, specialized hardware, software, firmware, all the different components that go into supporting the election, as well as -- I would define it including the normal IT systems of election -- you know, I said San Mateo County. So the Windows desktops of San Mateo County would be part of that infrastructure.

Q So is it fair to say that it's really the technical things that make elections work?

A Yes. I think that's accurate.

Q Okay. I want to turn to -- I think we talked a little bit earlier about the purpose of the Stanford Internet Observatory. I just want to talk a little bit more about the SIO.

And I'm sorry. The Stanford Internet Observatory is sometimes abbreviated as SIO, correct?

A Yes.

Q So I'm going to use that phrase going forward.

A Sounds good.

[redacted]. So I want to introduce Exhibit -- I think this is our first exhibit, actually -- exhibit 1, a printout from the about section from the SIO website.

1 [Stamos Exhibit No. 1

2 Was marked for identification.]

3 BY [redacted]:

4 Q And I should say, we printed this off in reader view, so this is not exactly how

5 it appears on the website. We couldn't get it to print appropriately just hitting control P.

6 Are you familiar with this?

7 A I mean, this looks like you got it from our website, yes.

8 Q Okay. And I want to read the third paragraph down into the record. It

9 says: The Stanford Internet Observatory is a cross-disciplinary program of research,

10 teaching and policy engagement for the study of abuse in current information

11 technologies, with a focus on social media. Under the program direction of computer

12 security expert Alex Stamos, the Observatory was created to learn about the abuse of the 13 internet in real time, to develop a novel curriculum on trust and safety that is a first in

14 computer science, and to translate our research discoveries into training and policy

15 innovations for the public good.

16 Did I read that correctly?

17 A Yes.

18 Q Okay. What does "abuse of the internet" mean in this context?

19 A So, when we talk about abuse, that is misuse of technology to cause harm in 20 a way that's technically correct. So that's what differentiates us from hacking or

21 traditional cybersecurity, is that when you abuse an online system, you're using it in the

22 way it's intended to be used, but the outcome is that something bad happens to 23 somebody.

24 Q And so harm means something bad happening to somebody. Is that how 25 you would describe it?

1 A Yes.

2 Q Okay. And the paragraph says that -- that I just read says that the SIO was 3 established to, quote, learn about the abuse of the internet.

4 What does "learn about" mean in this context?

5 A So, as I was discussing with [redacted], one of my goals here was to help

6 create a more stable academic basis for kind of assumptions that people have always

7 made about things that happen online and the responses. We don't have, like, a good

8 qualitative or quantitative basis to understand what kinds of things are going on, what are

9 the actual harms, and then if the things that companies do -- whether they actually have 10 any positive impact.

11 Q So is it fair to say that the SIO is primarily a research-focused entity?

12 A Yes.

13 Q Okay. And SIO -- you mentioned in the earlier hour a couple different areas

14 that you've looked at. Is it fair to say that you're not focused solely on elections; you're 15 focused on a wide variety of things that happen on the internet?

16 A That's right. We look at a number of things of different kinds of abuses.

17 We do try to restrict ourselves to adversarial abuses. So where there's somebody who is 18 actively doing something bad. But, within that space, we have a pretty wide variety.

19 Q And actively doing something bad, why is that important for you to restrict 20 your focus to that?

21 A So there's a lot of people who study, is the internet bad for you? Are 22 phones melting kids' brains? Totally legitimate area of study.

23 My colleague Jeff Hancock, who is now our faculty director, is a psychologist and

24 has much more of a background in that. For my particular background, coming from a

25 cybersecurity training and then working on specifically stopping people who are child

1 abusers or stopping government agencies, I felt that my skill set was better applied to
2 that area, to adversarial abuse.
3 Q Okay. And I want to look at a recent example of a type of abuse that SIO
4 has looked at.
5 [redacted]. I want to introduce as exhibit 2 the key takeaways in the background
6 section from a report entitled "Cross-Platform Dynamics of Self-Generated CSAM."
7 [Stamos Exhibit No. 2
8 Was marked for identification.]
9 BY [redacted]
10 Q This was written by yourself, David Thiel, and Renee DiResta, and it was 11 published by the SIO on June 7, 2023.
12 A That's correct.
13 Q And you're familiar with this report?
14 A I helped write it, yes.
15 Q Okay. What is self-generated CSAM?
16 A So CSAM, child sexual abuse material, is the term of art we use in the 17 industry to refer to child pornography. For a variety of reasons, child advocates do not 18 want to use that term, so we say CSAM.
19 SG CSAM, self-generated, is content that was created by the child themselves with 20 their consent, to the extent that a child can consent to anything. This is about 21 specifically commercial SG CSAM.
22 So you can have the noncommercial, which is effectively teenagers sending each 23 other naked photos of themselves and such. Sexting, I think, is what a teenager would 24 say. I feel incredibly old saying that with air quotes.
25 This is specifically about the commercialization of that kind of technique.

1 Q Okay. And, on page 3, the first full paragraph on the top of page 3 says:
2 After being alerted to specific hashtags and keywords commonly used in this community,
3 SIO began an investigation to assess the scope and scale of the practice and to examine 4 how platforms are succeeding or failing in detecting and suppressing SG CSAM. During 5 this process, we identified hundreds of accounts dedicated to selling as well as likely 6 buyers detected by social graph connections and public account metadata. These 7 sellers and suspected buyer accounts were referred to the National Center for Missing
8 and Exploited Children, or NCMEC, for further investigation.
9 Did I read that correctly?
10 A Yes.
11 Q Okay. What is the National Center for Missing and Exploited Children or 12 NCMEC?
13 A NCMEC is the federally -- the congressionally designated recipient of all 14 reports in the United States about child sexual abuse material. They are effectively the 15 only people in the country who are legally allowed to hold on to this material. And so 16 they are the clearinghouse that the tech companies work with if they ever find
17 reports -- if they ever find bad stuff, they are legally required to send that to NCMEC.
18 Q So is this an example of an investigation -- or a study, I guess, I should 19 say -- that SIO did that you researched various posts, various types of content online, and 20 then certain ones were essentially flagged and submitted to NCMEC?
21 A Yes. That's right. So this was an academic study -- what you would call
22 this is a descriptive white paper. We are now preparing the manuscript to be submitted
23 to a peer-reviewed journal. That's a process that takes a year and a half, 2 years.
24 And one of the reasons we did this preprint specifically is because we thought the 25 abuse was so bad that going public with it would help us motivate the companies and

1 motivate law enforcement into taking action.

2 And then we also reported to NCMEC. I do not believe we have a legal obligation

3 to do so. So I believe it's 18 U.S. Code 2258a that requires electronic communication

4 service providers, of which we are not. But we thought the only ethical thing we could

5 do in this case would be to hold ourselves to the same standards as Facebook or Twitter

6 and such.

7 Q Okay. And so you found this problematic material, and you reported it to 8 somebody who could potentially take action on it. Is that fair to say?

9 A That's right. Yeah. We briefed NCMEC. We provided them with our

10 Maltega graphs and such with the data that we had gathered around this, and then I

11 believe they did forward it on to the FBI.

12 Q Okay. We talked earlier about misinformation, disinformation -- I guess

13 malinformation, although you said you don't use that term.

14 A I don't.

15 Q But do you recall that discussion generally?

16 A Yes.

17 Q You've been studying disinformation for a fairly long time. Is that fair to 18 say?

19 A I would say that this has been an area of kind of -- organized disinformation

20 has been an area I've been studying since the results of the 2016 Election and the 21 investigation I helped run in 2017.

22 Q And by "organized disinformation," you mean disinformation spread by state

23 actors?

24 A By any actor who is working to do so intentionally. So it's something that I

25 have studied. I try not to call myself a disinformation expert. And certainly I'm not an

1 expert in the overall kind of psychology of these issues. But I do know a lot about how 2 people use platforms to spread disinformation.
3 Q Okay. In your experience -- and I'm sorry.
4 You said earlier you previously worked at Facebook, correct?
5 A Yes.
6 Q And you previously worked at Yahoo?
7 A That's right.
8 Q In your experience, both in your current role and based on your prior 9 experience with social media companies, do social media companies have reason to be 10 concerned about the spread of disinformation on their platforms?
11 A Yes.
12 Q Why is that?
13 A Social media companies exist to show ads to people. If you want to show
14 ads to people, you have to have inventory. Inventory is somebody who is looking at 15 their screen, and they're scrolling through, and they're reading all day. You have to have 16 engagement.
17 What keeps people from wanting to use social media is if they feel it's a bad
18 experience. And that could be an abuse that's really directed against them, or it could 19 be that overall they feel like it is a -- that this is no longer a platform that they can trust.
20 And so I do think the platforms do have a responsibility for all trust and safety.
21 There's an economic incentive to make it an experience that people want to have. And,
22 for a lot of people, that includes not being intentionally lied to.
23 Q Okay. And so I just want to reemphasize what you said. The companies
24 have an economic inventive to address disinformation on their platform?
25 A Yes.

1 Q And that's because people won't -- advertisers won't want to buy ads if
2 people are wary of spending time on the platform?
3 A Yes. I think we actually have a really good example of this right now, which 4 is -- Mr. Musk's takeover of Twitter has become almost a perfect experiment that we 5 never could set up in social science of what happens when you seriously downgrade your 6 trust and safety enforcement. The platform has had really a growth of bots, a growth of 7 spam, probably a growth of organized disinformation actors, although we're still trying to 8 work that out of exactly to quantify that. And they've lost at least two-thirds of their 9 value according to some of the reports I've seen.
10 And so, you know, advertisers do not want to be on platforms that are controlled
11 effectively by a government. Advertisers don't want to be on a platform where people
12 are spreading lies or they're lying about who they are. And users don't want to use a 13 platform if they don't believe the people interacting with them are real.
14 Q Thank you. And I want to talk about coordinated inauthentic behavior a bit
15 as well. And I think you gave the definition earlier, but I didn't write it down.
16 Could you remind me what the definition of coordinated inauthentic behavior is?
17 A It is when a group of people work together to mislead users of a platform,
18 generally about their identity. That's the core -- the definition, I think, at Facebook now 19 is probably actually quite complex.
20 But, when we started this, it was really mostly about the identity. That you can't 21 have 20 people in St. Petersburg pretend to be 500 Americans, that we needed some kind 22 of policy that caught that behavior, even if the individual pieces of content posted by 23 those 500 fake Americans -- that each individual piece did not violate policy.
24 Q Okay. And I think you used an example earlier from the 2016 Election of 25 Yevgeny Prigozhin engaging or leading, I guess, an effort to conduct coordinated

1 inauthentic behavior. Is that fair?

2 A That's right. Yes.

3 Q And Prigozhin - he's a Russian, correct?

4 A I am pretty sure he's a Russian citizen.

5 Q And he is also the head of the Wagner Group, correct?

6 A Yeah. I believe he owns Wagner Group, yes.

7 Q And what is the Wagner Group?

8 A That's a mercenary group. So he seems to have an ecosystem of both troll

9 actors and then groups like Wagner, which are actual physical boots on the ground.

10 In one of the studies we did -- I don't think I have access to it, but we could pull it

11 up on the website -- was looking specifically on his actions in Africa, which demonstrated

12 that he would support certain dictators in Africa with both Wagner boots on the ground

13 as well as with disinformation activity, and in return, he would get economic benefits

14 from those countries.

15 Q Okay. And so, through your time with Facebook, you determined that

16 Prigozhin -- who had supported African dictators and is involved in the war in Ukraine in

17 2016 -- conducted an coordinated inauthentic behavior attack on the United States,

18 correct?

19 A Yes. We were able to isolate a rather large network of Internet Research

20 Agency accounts, and we had very strong technical attribution to specifically the IRA.

21 Q And why was it of concern to Facebook that Prigozhin was conducting 22 coordinated inauthentic behavior attacks on its platforms?

23 A So, for the company, allowing people to manipulate the platform in the long

24 run is not going to be good business, for sure. I think also, personally, I'm an American.

25 Most of the people who work on this are American. So we in particular felt not happy

1 about a foreign actor influencing our democracy.

2 Q The research that you did to examine what took place on the platform, did

3 anybody in the United States Government ask you to conduct that research?

4 A Nobody asked us to do it. There were a number of -- you know, in the

5 runup to that, there were a number of people talking about Russian activity on the 6 platform and who were, you know, blaming Facebook. So if you want to call that asking.

7 But certainly the specific project that started, which we called Project P -- P for

8 propaganda -- in the start of 2017 was something that was triggered by me approaching

9 Mark Zuckerberg and his executive staff saying I think we need to do this work.

10 Q Okay. And Facebook, you said, has now established policies on -- and I'm 11 sorry. I keep saying coordinated inauthentic behavior. It's abbreviated CIB, correct?

12 A Yeah.

13 Q Facebook has now established policies on CIB, correct?

14 A Yes.

15 Q Did the government ask Facebook to establish those CIB policies?

16 A No.

17 Q Okay. And why did Facebook establish those policies?

18 A We did not want large groups of organized people -- working for 19 governments or not -- manipulating the platform. And so we needed a policy that

20 caught both the IRA activity, which was government-related, as well as the Macedonian

21 troll farms and the other kinds of organized groups that we found manipulating the

22 platform.

23 Q And, when you say you didn't want people or entities manipulating the 24 platform, is that because of cybersecurity reasons?

25 A We didn't want it because, just like with other trust and safety issues, it

1 would eventually drive people away if they thought they were being manipulated. And
2 particularly the financially-motivated stuff was very widespread and was creating a really
3 bad experience for people.
4 The eponymous Macedonian troll farms -- they're not all in Macedonia -- but 5 there's, like, a famous example of these Macedonian teenagers who were able to set up
6 entire fake news organizations. And that really is not in the long-term interest of the 7 company.
8 Q Okay. And so the companies have a financial incentive to address CIB on 9 their networks, correct?
10 A Yes.
11 Q Okay. There have been some claims made that, when the Russians or 12 others engage in CIB activity, they're just engaging in free speech. Have you heard those 13 claims?
14 A I mean, I've certainly heard there's lots of debate about what kind of rights
15 do you have as a foreign speaker in American elections, for sure.
16 Q Do you have an opinion on that?
17 A I do. I think -- I'm not a First Amendment scholar, as I'm sure will be really 18 obvious throughout the next several hours.
19 From my perspective, I think it's completely appropriate for foreign governments
20 to have outlets who have speech in the United States. So I don't mind that Russia today
21 exists. I don't mind that CGTN carries the stories of the Chinese Government and the 22 Communist Party. But I think they need to be honest about who they are.
23 And, from my perspective, I don't think you have a free speech right to lie about 24 who you are and to say, "I'm just a good ol' red-blooded American from Texas, and this is 25 what I believe," when you're really working indirectly for the Russian Government.

1 Q And, from the social media company platforms' perspective, the social media
2 companies are private entities, correct?
3 A Yes.
4 Q Okay. And so social media companies are not -- if social media companies
5 have an economic interest in controlling what's on their platforms as a private entity,
6 they have a right to do that, right?
7 A I mean, that is my understanding of the law, yes.
8 Q I want to return to the discussion about the Election Integrity Partnership.
9 I'm going to refer to that as the EIP going forward.
10 [redacted]. I want to introduce a July 27, 2020, post from EIP. It's entitled,
11 "Announcing the EIP." This is on the EIP website. This will be exhibit 3.
12 [Stamos Exhibit No. 3
13 Was marked for identification.]
14 BY [redacted]:
15 Q Have you seen this before?
16 A Yes. This looks like the initial announcement post from 2020.
17 Q Okay. And this is dated July 27, 2020. Do you see where it says that?
18 A Yes.
19 Q Okay. Is that a fair -- is July 27, 2020, approximately when the EIP was 20 stood up?
21 A Yes.
22 Q Okay. You said in the earlier hour that, even before the EIP, you at SIO had 23 been talking about ways to study the 2020 election, right?
24 A Yes.
25 Q Do you have an estimate on when you first started thinking about studying

1 the 2020 election?

2 A Probably right when we started SIO in 2019. I mean, it was clearly going to

3 be the next -- it was the next Presidential election after 2016. It was going to be the 4 most important online information event of possibly our lifetimes.

5 Q Okay. And -- sorry. You said it was going to be possibly the most

6 important information event of your lifetimes. Why did you feel that way?

7 A Because the 2016 election -- the activity that the Russians did, as I talked

8 with [redacted], may or may not have had a real impact on the outcome. That's a very

9 difficult question to ask -- answer. I'm sorry.

10 But the coverage of it meant that anything that was happening online would

11 immediately be seen in the frame of foreign interference and that what the Russians had

12 done was advertise out a capability that we knew lots of other countries would want to

13 utilize. Like I said, China was specifically the country that reacted the most to what the 14 Russians did and to their own internal problems to build up this capability.

15 So I believe I used the term multiple times that this could be the Super Bowl of 16 disinformation and that it seemed likely there were going to be many different groups

17 who were trying to manipulate the election.

18 Q And is it fair to say that, in your role as head of SIO, your interest in looking

19 at the 2020 election was primarily academic in nature? It was primarily for research

20 purposes?

21 A Yes.

22 Q Okay. We spoke earlier about CISA, the cybersecurity and internet security

23 agency?

24 A Cybersecurity and Infrastructure Security Agency.

25 Q Thank you. And you said you had had some meetings with CISA around the

1 time of the creation of the EIP?

2 A Yes.

3 Q Did CISA ever ask SIO to create the EIP?

4 A I don't recall if they ever asked us to do anything. The EIP was my idea, and 5 we approached them with the proposal.

6 Q Okay. So it wasn't like the Department -- did anybody else at the 7 Department of Homeland Security ask SIO to create the EIP?

8 A No. This was my idea.

9 Q Okay. Turning back to this -- what we've introduced as exhibit 3, at the 10 bottom of the page, there's a line reading: We would like to thank the Knight

11 Foundation and Craig Newmark Philanthropies for their support of this effort.

12 "This effort" refers to the EIP, correct?

13 A Yes.

14 Q Are you familiar with the Knight Foundation?

15 A Yes.

16 Q What is the Knight Foundation?

17 A They are a nonprofit that does a lot of grants to universities for research.

18 Q Are they affiliated with the government?

19 A I don't think so, no.

20 Q Are you familiar with Craig Newmark Philanthropies?

21 A Yes. That's a one-man nonprofit by which Craig Newmark is giving away his 22 money.

23 Q And is that nonprofit affiliated with the government?

24 A I don't think so, no.

25 Q Okay. So both the Knight Foundation and Craig Newmark Philanthropies

1 are private philanthropic organizations, right?

2 A Yes.

3 Q To the best of your knowledge, in its work in advance of the election -- so say

4 through December of 2020 -- did EIP receive any funding from any government entity?

5 A SIO has only ever received one government grant, and that happened well

6 after both the EIP and the Virality Project.

7 Q Okay.

8 A I can't speak as to every bit of money ever received by anybody who worked

9 on EIP, of course. I can only speak to SIO.

10 Q But to the best of your knowledge, I should say.

11 A Best of my knowledge, no.

12 Q Okay. I want to look at the second paragraph of this post. It reads: The 13 Election Integrity Partnership is a coalition of research entities focused on supporting

14 real-time information exchange between the research community, election officials,

15 government agencies, civil society organizations, and social media platforms.

16 We talked through in the prior hour what the coalition of entities was, but I want

17 to talk about the real-time information exchange part of this. Do you recall what was

18 meant by that?

19 A We built a database in which we could collect all of the examples we found

20 in real time of disinformation during the election. And, in doing so, we took tips and

21 then tried to provide services back to the local and State election officials. So we

22 wanted to have a real-time exchange between folks, as we believe that that would

23 support our academic mission and then also allow us to report out issues that we saw

24 happening in real time.

25 Q The post continues: Our objective is to detect and mitigate the impact of

1 attempts to prevent or deter people from voting or to delegitimize election results. This
2 is not a fact-checking partnership to debunk misinformation. More generally, our
3 objective explicitly excludes addressing comments that may be made about candidates'
4 character or actions and is focused narrowly on content intended to suppress voting,
5 reduce participation, confuse voters as to election processes, or delegitimize election
6 results without evidence.
7 It's a long paragraph.
8 A Yes.
9 Q I want to go through each piece in turn.
10 To the extent that you recall, what did "content intended to suppress voting" refer 11 to?
12 A So we are -- that is specifically situations in which you might have a post that 13 threatens people, that lies to people about the nature -- or I'm sorry -- like, the time, the 14 place, the mechanics of voting. Traditionally, you've had things like: The vote has 15 been canceled. The vote has been delayed. The polls are closing early. We have at 16 least one example in our database of a bomb threat.
17 And so that's what we mean. Things that you would lie about online to try to 18 keep people from voting.
19 Q To the extent you recall, why did EIP choose to focus on content intended to 20 suppress voting?
21 A So, in all of these situations, we were specifically focused on the operation of 22 the election itself. In this case, there is a long history of disinformation to try to 23 suppress voting. In fact, there was, I believe, even a prosecution of people who were 24 sending text messages telling people the wrong information about when to vote, for 25 example.

1 Q Okay. Is it fair to say that this focused on the time, place, and manner of 2 voting?
3 A Yes. And, in fact, this is drawn from -- if you want to see in more detail, in 4 the EIP report itself, we break down in detail kind of our scope and specifically in these 5 four areas.
6 Q Okay. And I think we'll get to that in just a minute.
7 A Okay. Great. But I do believe we talked about time and place and such.
8 Q So, to the extent that you can recall, what did "content that would 9 delegitimize election results without evidence" refer to?
10 A Right. So, in this case, we were looking for claims of the election being 11 stolen or of being rigged in such that was not based upon an evidentiary basis.
12 Q Okay. Why was that something that EIP chose to include as part of its 13 research?
14 A So, by the summer of 2020, it became clear that the kind of traditional 15 outlines of election disinformation were going to be pushed. By that summer, President
16 Trump had already started laying the groundwork to deny that he had lost the election.
17 Q And why was it of concern -- was it of concern to you if the election result
18 might be delegitimized?
19 A Yes. We have -- we had a very long history of peaceful transfers of power
20 in this country. That's one of the things that makes us the city on the hill, as Reagan
21 might say. It's one of the things that makes us special.
22 And one of my fears, personally, has been that we will end up becoming a
23 pseudo-democracy where people never believe the election. They always believe the 24 election was stolen. I believe that that's actually something we're trending to on a 25 bipartisan basis.

1 And one of the things we wanted to understand was, what were the lies that
2 might be driving those beliefs during that year, and to come up with -- both for us to -- as
3 it says here, in some cases to publish and to demonstrate what is being said, and then,
4 kind of on a longer term, to understand how can we restore trust back in the voting
5 system.
6 Q So your goal in looking at that was to assess how these narratives spread.
7 Is that fair to say?
8 A It's to see what the narratives were, how they were spread, who spread 9 them, and in what situations did specific features of different platforms -- we call those 10 affordances. How would certain platform affordances affect this issue? That's actually 11 one of the key things SIO works on.
12 Back to the child safety thing we were talking about, for example, it's -- what is it
13 specifically about this platform that makes this abuse especially work here? And so 14 those were all kinds of things that we wanted to study.
15 Q Okay. So, again, it was research-focused. Is that fair to say? You
16 wanted to study how -- these affordances?
17 A Yes. And we have. And we have published our results, both in this big ol'
18 report as well as in a number of peer-reviewed journals.
19 Q Okay. In your opening statement, you stated that part of the purpose of 20 the EIP -- sorry, turning away from exhibit 3 -- was to provide local and State election
21 officials with a window into what was happening online in their jurisdictions.
22 A Yes.
23 Q When you say "a window into what was happening online," is that with 24 regards to both how the election operations might be impacted and also with regard to 25 potential delegitimization of the results?

1 A Yes. For all of the issues within our scope, which is the function of the
2 election itself -- if you were, again, Cuyahoga County or San Mateo County, if there was a
3 claim going viral, that's something that we wanted you to know so that you could put out
4 your own accurate information and respond however you thought was best.
5 Q Okay. So EIP conducted the bulk of its collecting of research data in the 6 lead-up to the election, so from July 2020 to November 2020. Is that right?
7 A That's right. We ran for -- I would have to look at the exact date, but we
8 ran for a bit after the election collecting responses to what happened, and then we shut
9 down before the end of the year.
10 Q Okay. And then, after the election, EIP analyzed what it had collected. Is 11 that fair to say?
12 A Yes. We spent much of the first half of 2021 taking all the data we had 13 gathered, and then building our database and then building our analysis, which you see 14 the results of here and those other papers.
15 Q And so EIP ultimately produced a report entitled "The Long Fuse," correct?
16 A That's right.
17 Q Okay. This was published in March 2021?
18 A That sounds correct. I'd have to look at the exact date, but March sounds
19 about right.
20 Q Okay. And did you --
21 A I'm sorry. We have this one marked June.
22 Q Okay.
23 A So I think it probably was June.
24 Q Okay. Did you play a lead role in drafting the report?
25 A I played a role in helping coordinate. Lots of people worked on it. I'm not

1 going to take credit for it.

2 Q Okay. But you were familiar with the report's contents?

3 A Yes. Of course.

4 Q And it's the product of your research? Research that you led?

5 A Research that I helped supervise, yes.

6 Q Okay.

7 A But to be fair, one, there's four organizations involved and, as you can see in

8 here, lots of people working on this who provided both the input into it as well as did the 9 writing of the report.

10 Q Okay.

11 [redacted]. I want to introduce as exhibit 4 -- and I know you have your own

12 copy, but I want to introduce it into the record because I think it's hard to put this into the

13 record -- as exhibit 4 the cover page and the executive summary from "The Long Fuse."

14 [Stamos Exhibit No. 4

15 Was marked for identification.]

16 BY [redacted]:

17 Q On page Roman numeral VI, there's a line reading "what we did" and 18 followed by three goals. Do you see where it says that?

19 A Yes.

20 Q Okay. So I want to walk through each one of these goals in that first 21 paragraph in order.

22 So the first goal -- it says: The EIP's primary goals were to, number one, identify 23 mis- and disinformation before it went viral and during viral outbreaks.

24 What was the -- is that accurate that that was one of your goals?

25 A Yes.

1 Q Okay. What was the purpose of identifying mis- and disinformation?
2 A So both that we could, as it says here, share our own countermessaging and
3 also to inform local and State officials of the kinds of things that were going viral and then
4 in support of our academic research. Without identifying what was going viral, then 5 there's no way you can do any research on what actually happened.
6 Q Okay. And I know that the report is almost 300 pages long, and it discusses
7 in some detail how EIP went about identifying mis- and disinformation, but can you break
8 it down into layman's terms what was done?
9 A Right. So we had monitoring groups of students who had a variety of 10 different tasks that they were given, who worked in shifts during the day so that the shifts
11 got more frequent and longer as we got closer and closer to the election. And they 12 would be given specific tasks to look at the output of certain things.
13 On some platforms, we had automated systems that were taking API data and 14 then surfacing -- these are the pieces of content that are starting to trend on the topic of 15 the election. And so, for example, for Twitter, we had a dashboard of -- these were, like,
16 the biggest tweets about the election overall, and they'd look and they would discard
17 anything that actually had to do with the candidates.
18 So, to be absolutely clear, we did nothing around Donald Trump is bad/Joe Biden
19 is good and vice-versa. Any claims about the candidates, about their kids, for 20 example -- all that stuff was out of scope. So they would disregard anything like that.
21 But then, if there was a claim that fit within these four buckets of different kinds 22 of potential disinformation, they could pull that down, open up a ticket, and start an
23 investigation.
24 Q Okay. And so you mentioned the different types of -- the scope, 25 essentially. And that's listed down below. So let's skip ahead down to that.

1 A Yeah.

2 Q The scope of what was considered mis- and disinformation for purposes of 3 your investigation was fairly limited, right?

4 A Yes. It was only about the functioning of the election itself.

5 Q Okay. And so, in the bullet point section on page 6 -- or Roman numeral

6 VI --

7 A Yes.

8 Q The first example is "procedural interference." Can you explain what you

9 consider procedural interference to be?

10 A So it says here: Misinformation related to actual election procedures. So

11 telling people -- you have to have a passport to vote would be an example of attempting 12 to interfere procedurally by lying to people about something they have to do to vote.

13 Q Okay. And so it's a demonstrable falsehood about how a person can vote.

14 Is that fair to say?

15 A Yes.

16 Q The next bullet is "participation interference." Is that right?

17 A Yes.

18 Q And what is your understanding of what participation interference is?

19 A So here, we define it as content that includes intimidation to personal safety 20 or deterrence to participation in the election process.

21 So an example of that that we had in our database was saying: A bomb threat

22 has been called into this precinct. Don't go. Don't go vote. There's a bomb threat.

23 And there was no bomb threat.

24 Q Okay. And so individuals, if they had heard that bomb threat, might have 25 not gone to vote. Is that fair to say?

1 A Yes.
2 Q Okay. And so people effectively could have been disenfranchised by that
3 information. Is that fair to say?
4 A That's right.
5 Q The next bullet is "fraud."
6 A Yes.
7 Q How did you define fraud for purposes of this project?
8 A So it says here content that encourages people to misrepresent themselves
9 to affect the electoral process or to illegally cast or destroy ballots.
10 So it is effectively people calling on others to help them fraudulently throw the 11 election.
12 Q Okay.
13 A So go get lots of ballots. Go, you know, mark your ballot up for your 14 parents. Go request absentee ballots in places that you aren't allowed to. Those 15 would be examples of fraud.
16 Q In your introductory statement, you used an example of an individual 17 impersonating an election worker. Do you recall that?
18 A Yes.
19 Q Would that be considered fraud for the EIP's purposes?
20 A Yes. I think so.
21 Q Okay. And then the last bullet is "delegitimization of election results."
22 And I think we talked through it, but here it says: Content aiming to delegitimize
23 election results on the basis of false or misleading claims.
24 That tracks with your definition, right?
25 A Yes. That's right.

1 Q Okay. So the second goal listed under "what we did" in that paragraph is:
2 Share clear and accurate counter-messaging.
3 What does countermessaging mean here?
4 A So countermessaging would be providing accurate information to people.
5 And the way we did that was both ourselves, mostly on our blog, of saying, "This is some 6 claim that's going viral, and here's the truth that we could find," or by providing
7 knowledge to those State officials -- local and State officials who then could do their own
8 local messaging.
9 Q So, with respect to the State and locals first, would an example of that be, if 10 there was a claim made about how long polls were open, and it was false, you would let 11 the State or local know so they could put something on their website potentially to make 12 it abundantly clear --
13 A Yes. And that's something that happened multiple times, where people
14 shared the incorrect dates or times of voting so that they could then do their own tweet
15 or their own post or go to the local media and say: Hey, tell people the polls are still 16 open, for example.
17 Q Okay. And then you said, with respect to the EIP specifically, you might 18 post things on your blog about inaccuracies. Is that right?
19 A Yes. Yes. We posted -- for narratives that got lots of traction or seemed 20 to be really important, we would do our own write-ups of both analyzing how it was going
21 as well as linking to any fact checks or any information we could find about the base
22 truth.
23 Q Did you ever affirmatively create social media content for the platforms?
24 In other words, would you create content for Facebook to counter a post that might be 25 misleading?

1 A No. No. We had our own Twitter account where we'd speak as
2 ourselves, but we did not create any content for the platforms.
3 Q Okay. And countermessaging, to be clear, it doesn't actually involve
4 removing content, right? It's just pushing more information out that's accurate?
5 A That's correct, yes.
6 Q Okay. The third goal identified under "what we did" was to document the 7 specific misinformation actors, transmission pathways, narrative evolutions, and 8 information infrastructures that enable these narratives to propagate.
9 I am not a scientist. I'm not a data scientist, for sure. And I don't really 10 understand what that language is. Can you explain what that means?
11 A Yeah. So this is overly flowery academic terms for -- first document the 12 specific misinformation actors. So that is us creating a record of who was either
13 speaking about things that were false or amplifying. The amplification actually became 14 a big focus of our research afterwards. We learned some interesting things.
15 The second, "transmission pathways," how is this incorrect information moving?
16 "Narrative evolutions," how have things changed over time? We wrote both a
17 blogpost and we have a couple examples in here that's, as the facts changed or as States
18 were called, for example, the narrative changed.
19 Or "information infrastructures that enabled those narratives to propagate," that's 20 back to when I was talking about the affordances. What is it about these platforms
21 specifically that allows these things to grow?
22 Q Okay. And the very first word in this is "Document the specific 23 misinformation."
24 A Yes.
25 Q Is it fair to say that by "document," this amounts to tracking or cataloging

1 your findings?

2 A Yes. It was us looking to see what was going big and then archiving it and

3 creating the database for our further study.

4 Q Okay. So, again, one of the major goals of the EIP was research-based. Is 5 that fair?

6 A Yes. Absolutely. Both the research we did specifically in the EIP, and then

7 to support further research because one of the things I saw coming out of 2016 -- when I

8 got to Stanford, I talked to a lot of people about what happened in 2016. Real political 9 scientists. I'm not a political scientist. But political scientists who study democracy.

10 Frank Fukuyama. Larry Diamond.

11 And if you talk to them about what do you think this important question of, did

12 2016 change the results, what most of them will say is: We don't know because nobody

13 was watching.

14 And so one of the things I wanted to change for 2020 is, if something big

15 happened, either in the election or afterwards, that we had a real historical record that

16 did not exist in 2016 that would allow both history to know what happened but then for 17 us to do our own research and for our partners to do their own research.

18 Q Okay. And I want to turn to one, I think, outcome of that research in the 19 key takeaways section on page -- Roman numeral VII.

20 A Yeah.

21 Q And I want to look at the first item on that page, which is: Misleading and

22 false claims and narratives coalesced into the meta-narrative of a stolen election, which

23 later propelled the January 6 insurrection.

24 Can you explain what's meant by a meta-narrative?

25 A So the report talks a lot about -- that you have -- one of the things that

1 happened in 2020 is that the overall belief that the election was going to be stolen before
2 anything had happened started to be laid by President Trump and some of his political
3 allies throughout the summer and the fall of the year. So that's the meta-narrative, is 4 the election is going to be stolen, and then immediately on election day and afterwards,
5 the election has been stolen. The meta-narrative is supported by whatever evidence
6 can pop up and can be utilized for that.
7 And so that's a lot of what we documented here, was -- if people are voting with 8 Sharpies, that becomes a narrative that Sharpies are part of throwing the election. If 9 people are voting with Dominion Voting Systems, that becomes part of the narrative.
10 And so the meta-narrative being stolen election was -- one of the things we talk 11 about here is that once you prime people to believe through repetition over and over and 12 over again the election is going to be stolen -- the election is going to be stolen -- then if 13 they personally witness anything, then they will make it fit that meta-narrative.
14 And so that's a lot of what we talk about here. They get a Sharpie, and they
15 vote, and they're like: Oh, man. It bled through. This must be part of the conspiracy.
16 And that's a lot of what we were trying to study here.
17 And one of our conclusions was that a lot of the narratives that came up were 18 specifically targeted or -- I'm sorry -- were created by the meta-narrative becoming 19 widespread among mostly supporters of President Trump.
20 Q Okay. Thank you for that.
21 Real fast, you referenced Sharpies. That's your reference to what's sometimes 22 called Sharpiegate scandal. Is that right?
23 A That's right. We have a whole -- we have a blogpost about this and a big 24 analysis because that was a great example of an observation a number of people made
25 that then got fit into this meta-narrative. And then, as the night progressed, in

1 particular when FOX News called Arizona, all of a sudden, the narrative changed to make
2 it about Arizona, for example. So it was a really good kind of baseline for our study.
3 Q And the Sharpie -- the allegation -- just so the record is clear -- the allegation
4 was that individuals were filling out ballots with the wrong pen, and it was making the 5 ballot invalid. Is that right?
6 A Right. The allegation is, if you vote with a Sharpie, it bleeds through, and 7 that that would make it not read correctly.
8 Our understanding is that the ballot manufacturers know that Sharpies bleed
9 through, and so that's why there's not voting space on the other side of the ballot. They 10 don't scan that. They don't count that. And, in fact, Sharpies are something that is 11 requested by some of the ballot manufacturers because, unlike ballpoint pens, it doesn't 12 smear off inside of the scanner and jam stuff up.
13 And so one of the things we document here is -- some of the first allegations
14 around Sharpies actually came from people who seemed to be more progressive and 15 from blue States of: Hey, what's going on here? I voted with a Sharpie. It bled 16 through.
17 And then, as the night progressed -- and especially with Arizona because Maricopa
18 County, for whatever reason, a lot of people were using Sharpies -- that as it progressed,
19 then, all of a sudden, kind of a general thing that a number of people said got coalesced
20 into this narrative that Sharpies were only being given to Republicans or in Republican 21 districts, and therefore that was being used to invalidate all those ballots.
22 Q Okay. And the allegation about Sharpies invalidating the ballot, it's untrue,
23 right? It's demonstrably false?
24 A To my best understanding, it's untrue, yes.
25 Q And you also referenced the Dominion theory. That's a reference to the

1 Dominion -- the theory that Dominion voting machines were switching votes. Is that
2 right?
3 A That's right, yeah.
4 Q And that's also demonstrably untrue?
5 A To my best of my knowledge, it's untrue, yes.
6 Q Okay. So you used these examples and talked through how they coalesced
7 into a meta-narrative. I want to look at a couple pages of your report that show the 8 results of this meta-narrative.
9 A Yep.
10 [redacted]. I want to introduce pages 99 to 101, which concerns postelection
11 violence. And this is exhibit 5.
12 [Stamos Exhibit No. 5
13 Was marked for identification.]
14 BY [redacted]:
15 Q So we've clipped the whole part, but I really want to look at page 99, which 16 is the start of the second paragraph under the "during and postelection" heading.
17 It says: Violence-related posts became increasingly tied to claims of election
18 theft or rigging and, at times, were part of increasing rhetoric that more generally
19 referenced the idea of preparation for civil war.
20 A I'm sorry. I think I might be looking -- where exactly is it?
21 Q I'm sorry. It's the second paragraph.
22 A Okay. Yes. Yes.
23 Q It says: Violence-related posts became increasingly tied to claims of 24 election theft or rigging and, at times, were part of increasing rhetoric that more
25 generally referenced the idea of preparation for civil war.

1 Do you see where it says that?

2 A Yes.

3 Q So your team saw a spike in calls for violence after the election. Is that

4 right?

5 A That's correct, yes.

6 Q And did you analyze how the narratives that were already creating the 7 Sharpie, for example, the Dominion voting, fed into those calls for violence?

8 A Yes. That's a big focus of our report.

9 Q Okay. And what did you find?

10 A What we found is that the creation of all of these narratives, that were

11 based, in some cases, on people's real experiences, were factual things that happened

12 but were then turned into narratives that were not true about large conspiracies or the 13 election being stolen.

14 It is the creation of all those narratives that gave people the feeling that

15 something must have gone wrong. This must have been stolen. And that's what most 16 likely led people to do things like call for civil war or call for violence.

17 Q So is it fair to say that your research actually showed that these preelection

18 false claims actually ultimately fed into calls for violence postelection that potentially

19 could have contributed to January 6?

20 A So I would be very careful of making, like, a strong causal claim here. That

21 is not, like, the research question that we had here. But we did document the

22 increasing popularity of these narratives and then, among the same people who seemed

23 to believe the narratives, would have called for violence.

24 Q Okay. Thank you. And then, before I move on from the report, I want to 25 turn to page 9 of the executive summary, which is key recommendations. And sorry.

1 That was the previous exhibit number. No. 4. And I want to look at the one for the 2 Federal Government: For the Federal Government, EIP recommends the development
3 of clear authorities for identifying and countering election-related mis- and 4 disinformation, and creating clear standards for consistent disclosures of mis- and
5 disinformation.
6 A Yes.
7 Q What does "disclosure" mean here?

2 [11:42 a.m.]

3 Mr. Stamos. I am sorry, I was on the second part. Create disclosures. Yes, it

4 means for -- in this case for members of the Federal Government to say here is something

5 that a trending, here is why it's not true. And we specifically refer to rumor control

6 which was a CISA blog that was very effective of doing that during the election.

7 BY [redacted]:

8 Q And so the ideas is that the recommendation is that the government identify

9 and make these things public, but there's no recommendation here that the government

10 sensor or work with the social media companies to take any posts down. Right?

11 A No. We do not make that recommendation, nor do I think that would at all 12 be appropriate.

13 Q And why, why would that not by appropriate?

14 A I don't think it's appropriate for the government to tell platforms to take 15 content down.

16 Q Okay. And so there's no recommendation here that platforms take 17 anything down the recommendation is that more information be pushed out?

18 A I mean in this case, we are not recommending that the Federal Government

19 take content down at all, no.

20 Q Okay. I have about 10 minutes left so I want to turn to some kind of 21 misconceptions that have been circulating around the EIP and what the EIP does. And

22 you I think you touched on some of these in your opening statement. And actually, do

23 you happen to have a written copy of your opening statement.

24 Mr. Thompson. I certainly may have another one.

25 Mr. Stamos. I have this one. I just kind of need it back, if you don't mind.

1 [redacted]. I wanted to -- okay. So we can do without it. I was going to
2 introduce it into the record, but that's okay.
3 [redacted]. You can put it in the record.
4 Mr. Stamos. You can use it.
5 BY [redacted]:
6 Q Are you familiar with Matt Taibbi?
7 A Yes.
8 Q Who is Matt Taibbi?
9 A He is a journalist who testified in front of this committee.
10 Q Are you familiar with an individual named Michael Shellenberger?
11 A I am.
12 Q And who is he?
13 A Likewise he is a journalist and a Substacker he writes on Substack. And he 14 testified in front of the committee.
15 Q Have these individuals made claims about the Election Integrity Partnership?
16 A Yes.
17 Q And I think -- and one that you referenced in here you claim that the 18 EIP -- oh, I'm sorry, Mr. Taibbi claimed that the EIP has succeeded in getting nearly 22
19 million tweets labeled in the run-up to the 2020 vote. Are you familiar with that 20 statement?
21 A Yes.
22 Q Is that accurate?
23 A That is absolutely false.
24 Q You look like you want to say more.
25 A I would be happy to explain.

1 Q Yeah, please do.

2 A So he was pulling out this 22 million number, which I believe comes from

3 here in my statement, I believe I cite exactly where it comes from.

4 So we in our academic study and in our publications one of the things we have

5 done is we have discussed the size of the overall conversation. And one of the things

6 that we talked about was there was something on the order of 800 million tweets in that

7 year about the election at all, about Trump and Biden and anything to do within the

8 election and that there's 22 million of those were specifically about the narratives that we

9 had identified.

10 So if you look in our report we talk about Dominion, Sharpiegate stuff like that.

11 After this was all done, we went back and we looked at Twitter and we said, how many

12 people were talking about these things? Those were not necessarily true or false, it's 13 just people talking about Dominion Voting Systems, people talking about Trumpies.

14 And that was a number of the overall scope of the conversation. It had nothing

15 to do with anything. We reported the platforms. That number had nothing to do

16 except as part of our post facto analysis of the conversation that happened online.

17 Q I want to introduce pages 182 to 183 of The Long Fuse because I believe

18 that's where this comes up.

19 A Okay.

20 [Stamos Exhibit No. 6

21 Was marked for identification.]

22 BY [redacted]:

23 Q So at the top it's not a full paragraph because it carries over from the prior

24 page, but it describes the collection of information. It says, the collection resulted in 25 859 million total tweets. That's 800 million number you just referred to. Right?

1 A That is right, yes.

2 Q And in the middle of page 183 there's a paragraph reading in total our

3 incident related tweet data included 5,888,771 tweets and retweets from ticket status IDs

4 directly, 1,954,015 tweets and retweets collected first from ticket URLs and 14,914,478

5 keyword searches for a total of 21,893,364 tweets.

6 A Yes.

7 Q Correct?

8 A That is right.

9 Q So what does the reference to tickets mean in this paragraph?

10 A Right, so a ticket is an entry into our internal research database describing a 11 narrative or incident. Yeah.

12 Q Okay. And so the ticket is the 21,897,364 number, that's the total number

13 of tickets in your database. Correct?

14 A No.

15 Q Okay. What's that?

16 A So we had -- we had -- the actual number of tickets is elsewhere.

17 Q Oh, I'm sorry. I meant the total number of tweets in your database not the 18 total number of --

19 A That is the total number -- so the University of Washington team, using their

20 API access collected tweets that were related to the election at all. That it is the total

21 number of tweets that then were related to the narratives that we identified.

22 Q Okay.

23 A In that massive database of everything that was said about the election.

24 Q And I'm sorry, you just referenced API data. For the record, what is API

25 data?

1 A API means application programming interface. So that would be the
2 mechanism in this situation in which the University of Washington was able to ask
3 tweeter send us all you will of your public tweets about the election.
4 Q On March 17, 2023, SIO posted a blog post of some type of background on 5 the SIO's project on social media. Are you familiar with that post?
6 A I don't have it memorized but I am familiar with it, yes.
7 [Stamos Exhibit No. 7
8 Was marked for identification.]
9 BY [redacted]:
10 Q And again, this is a blog post. I will refer to the page numbers as printed.
11 But a blog post --
12 A All right.
13 Q Page 3 of this post as printed you address the 22 million claim. And it says
14 that Stanford explains that that's false. And it says, in fact, EIP identified 2,890 unique
15 tweet URLs and potential violation of Twitter stated policies. Does that number track
16 your best recollection of how many tweets are identified in violation of policies?
17 A Yes.
18 Q Okay. So that's actually a bit over .01 percent of the entire data set. Is
19 that right?
20 A That's correct, yes.
21 Q And what does the reference to Twitter stated policies means here?
22 A So we had during our operation in situations where there were egregious
23 violations of the policies that the platforms have already put out which we then 24 provided -- we both provided a public analysis and we had an internal tracker of the what 25 the policy's were per platform. We could then refer to those to the platforms.

1 In which case they would get an email from us that would say saying something
2 like we believe these five URLs might violate policies on fraud. And then the platforms
3 themselves could make a determination themselves could make a determination of 4 whether or not that was true.
5 Q Okay. So I want to emphasize that. You sent this information to the 6 platforms. And after it left your hands, you had no control over what a platform did 7 with it?
8 A That's right. They had to make the determination, it's the same as if you
9 went into Twitter right now and you clicked and said report, it's essentially the same
10 function.
11 Q And anybody can do that. Right? Anybody can go on Twitter and report a 12 post? Right?
13 A Anybody can report a post. And I know there are, multiple organizations
14 that email people. As somebody who comes from a platform, you get email all day,
15 every day of things that people think should be taken down. In our case, we believed 16 we were reporting things that were violative of their policies around election operations
17 specifically. But people do it all the time for all kinds of reasons.
18 Q Okay. And it's the same thing with Facebook. Right? Once if you were 19 to report something to Facebook as potentially in violation of their policies, once it left
20 your hands it was up to Facebook to decide what to do with it. Right?
21 A That's correct, yes.
22 Q And you had no control over how Facebook applied its policies to particular
23 posts. Correct?
24 A We had no control over what they did, no.
25 Q Okay. Mr. Taibbi testified that the EIP targeted more disinformation on the

1 right than on the left by a factor of 10 to 1. Is that correct?

2 A No.

3 Q Could you explain?

4 A So I think what he is doing is misrepresenting our tables that show the size of

5 various narratives and who the super spreaders were. And so we had no goal of

6 targeting anybody or any political -- as I said, I am actually afraid of this becoming a

7 bipartisan issue and we can talk more about how that might happen.

8 And so that was not part of our targeting, but in the end when we did our analysis

9 then, as you might expect, the majority of disinformation around the election did come

10 from conservatives, which is not a surprise because President Trump lost the election and

11 he denied that the election was valid and so that motivated his supporters to be

12 spreading those things. But that is a post facto analysis as part of our academic research

13 into what happened in 2020.

14 Q Are you familiar with what's been referred to as the Hunter Biden laptop

15 story?

16 A Yes, I am.

17 Q And this is a reference to an October 14, 2020, New York Post story about a 18 laptop reportedly belonging to Hunter Biden. Correct?

19 A That's right.

20 Q Did EIP analyze the laptop as part of its work?

21 A No.

22 Q Is it fair to say that the laptop story was entirely outside the scope of your

23 work?

24 A Yes. That kind of claim about the son of a candidate is completely out of 25 scope for us. We had nothing to do with any decisions of any platforms made about

1 Hunter Biden nor does that show up anywhere in our database.

2 Q I think -- we can go off the record.

3 [Recess.]

4 BY [redacted]:

5 Q Mr. Stamos, I wanted to pick up briefly on -- touch on one of your answers

6 from the previous round. You were asked a question about whether the government

7 had ever requested EIP be created or something similar. And during that set of 8 questioning you mentioned that there was "a lot of blaming" that went around to, like,

9 Facebook and other social media companies. With respect to people that were blaming

10 Facebook and others, would that include people in the government?

11 A So if we are talking about post 2016.

12 Q Yes.

13 A Yes. I mean, I think pretty famously you had a number of elected officials,

14 President Obama being at the top of it and most Democratic House and Senate Members

15 talking about fake news on Facebook being a determinative thing.

16 Q And you said you approached Mark Zuckerberg about your concerns and the 17 need to address, coordinate inauthentic behavior?

18 A What I brought to him was this fake news problem that might have a foreign 19 component and that we need to get ahold of it.

20 Q Okay. And as part of your discussions with Mr. Zuckerberg, did you note

21 the public backlash that Facebook was receiving?

22 A I don't recall exactly what I said. I don't think I had to note for him the kind

23 of public backlash that he was getting.

24 Q Do you think he was well aware?

25 A I think he was well aware, yes.

1 Q And do you recall if he was receptive to what you were presenting?

2 A He was. He was receptive. And he ordered XFN, cross functional working

3 group to be put together specifically to look at possible foreign origins of the fake news

4 crisis as we were discussing it at that time.

5 Q And to your understanding, what would the consequences have been if the 6 company had failed to address this concern?

7 [redacted]. I'm sorry. Can we go off the record?

8 [Discussion off the record.]

9 BY [redacted]:

10 Q To repeat that previous question, to the extent you have a recollection, to

11 your understanding were there consequences that Facebook would face if it failed to take

12 action with respect to better countering foreign malign influence campaigns?

13 A I think in the long run it would have been worse for the platform to not do

14 things because people would have lost trust in news worthiness. But in the short run

15 being honest about it probably ended up creating more political pressure on them.

16 Q And what types of political pressure are you referencing?

17 A Well, I -- the pinnacle of this was Mark and Colin Stretch being called to do

18 hearings and lots of blame that Russia controlled fake news, that Russia was larger.

19 There were a lot of discussions like in the late '17 into 2018 of the idea that a huge

20 amount of the content on the platform was controlled by Russia or came from Russian

21 sources and have an overstatement. The stuff that we put out was factual and we

22 thought kind of sober and then that got blown out of proportion in 2017, 2018.

23 Q And you referenced in an earlier answer that there was a sense, primarily by

24 Democrats, that Facebook's failure to better counteract foreign malign influence

25 campaigns, particularly from Russia, materially impacted the outcome of the 2016

1 election. Sitting here today, do you think that's still the case, that a large swath of the 2 public still believes that?
3 A I don't have any survey data here. I think it has become less widespread of 4 a belief. But certainly I am sure there are still Democrats who believe that minus the IRA
5 campaign or the GRU campaign that Donald Trump would not have won.
6 Q And during your time at Facebook, do you recall what [redacted]'s role
7 was?
8 A She was the head of platform policy.
9 Q And do you understand what was her responsibilities?
10 A She ran the team that came up for -- what policies were going to be, the 11 community standards they are called on Facebook and Facebook's other properties and 12 then the interpretation of how those would actually be enforced which was actually the 13 really important component here that is generally not public is how do you take a general 14 statement against hate speech and then define that in really specific circumstances in 15 dozens of languages around the world.
16 Q And when you were briefing Mr. Zuckerberg about your concerns and the 17 need to better address foreign malign influence campaigns who else participated in those 18 discussions?
19 A So it was a big room, it was certainly my boss, Colin Stretch, the general
20 counsel, Sheryl Sandberg, the COO at the time, Chris Cox was the head of product.
21 Probably Mike Schroepfer, who is the chief technology officer. [redacted] would 22 have been in there. Elliot Schrage who is the head of policy, Joel Kaplan with a K was his
23 deputy who ran policy in the D.C. team, probably some other folks from D.C. in policy
24 who I don't recall.
25 Q And do you recall approximately when these meetings took place?

1 A This was in November and December of 2016 was the initial set of meetings.
2 Obviously, as all the stuff progressed over 2017 we had regular updates on our findings
3 and what to do about it and such.
4 Q I also want to touch upon briefly you had mentioned that EIP did not cover
5 the Hunter Biden laptop story.
6 A That's right, yes.
7 Q Did you have a general familiarity with the story?
8 A From the media reports, yes.
9 Q Did anyone from the government contact you regarding the story in the days
10 following the publication?
11 A I don't recall anybody in the government ever talking to me about the 12 Hunter Biden laptop. Sorry.
13 Q Did anyone from Facebook contact you on the days following the story's
14 publication?
15 A I had had regular contact with people at Facebook, I don't remember this 16 being a topic. But I don't recall -- they certainly would not come to me for advice on 17 something like that.
18 Q Do you recall anyone from Twitter contacting you in the days following the 19 story's publication?
20 A Again, I was in regular contact with people at Twitter. I don't recall a 21 specific conversation about the Biden laptop.
22 Q In the fall of 2020, with respect to content moderation, enforcement
23 decision, would you ever be contacted by somebody at Facebook or Twitter?
24 A So they would often ask us for our feedback either on specific things that are 25 happening. So, you know, especially on some of these foreign influence campaigns we

1 would collaborate on the investigations. And around election policy we had a back and
2 forth on sometimes they would ask us generally this has been the summer, well before
3 the election, about what kind of policies issues to put in place. So we did have a kind of 4 an ongoing conversation about that.
5 Q In these ongoing conversations, do you recall any that concerned whether 6 social media platforms should develop policies with respect to potential hack and leak?
7 A We probably had those discussions, but our scope for EIP was specifically
8 about the election infrastructure itself. So we would not have been given advice for 9 anything outside of a hacking campaign that involved the election running, which is 10 something you could consider possibly happening.
11 Q And just a point of clarification, if it involved EIP that would be relevant too,
12 but also just in your position as a former Facebook executive and having expertise in the 13 area. Is it your recollection that when the story, the Hunter Biden laptop story first 14 broke that there were some who believed it was the product of a hack and leak that 15 Russia was behind?
16 A Yeah. I mean that was a pretty widespread believe among people.
17 Q And during that time, do you recall anyone in media or otherwise asking for 18 your expertise regarding whether Russia was behind this as a hack and leak operation?
19 A It's possible. I don't recall.
20 Q You don't have any specific recollections of anyone?
21 A No.
22 Q Do you recall familiarity with the statement that 51 former Intel officials
23 released 5 days later?
24 A Yes, from the media.
25 Q Before that was released, did you have -- did any of the 51 former Intel

1 officials contact you?

2 A I am pretty sure not, no. I don't have a recollection of that, but that seems

3 highly unlikely. And I did not know anything about that letter until it came out.

4 Q If we could -- so if could turn your attention and get back to the summer of 5 2020, you're in the early days of forming EIP?

6 A Yeah.

7 Q Were there any potential partners who you reached out who declined to

8 participate?

9 A Hmm. I don't recall any specific ones. It's possible.

10 Q How did you decide on having UW, Graphika and DFR Lab as Stanford's three

11 partners?

12 A So UW had already been our closest academic partners. And their team

13 was the one that was most aligned to the kind of work that we had done in the past. So

14 they were just a natural fit. We won their academic institution especially for eventually

15 we were going to be publishing peer reviewed work and that's not something that's of 16 interest generally to non academic institutions.

17 Graphika was interesting because they made the software at the time that was

18 the best at understanding networks of amplification on Twitter in particular. So answer

19 to Graphika's data set there and having their analyst use it was going to be the interesting

20 part. DFR Lab we contacted them because of their particular experience doing these

21 foreign investigations. So Graphika, DFA Lab and us, less UW but we had in the past

22 worked with Graphika and DFR Lab on our investigations of different foreign influence

23 actors and such. So they were kind of natural partners since we had already done that

24 work together.

25 Q And you mentioned that there were discussions with CISA prior to the formal

1 formation of the EIP. Once EIP is formed, what role did CISA play?
2 A So CISA made the introduction to EI-ISAC and helped us know who the
3 players were. We didn't -- we didn't know until our conversations with CISA that the 4 central responsibility for the switchboard function of communicating with all the local and
5 State officials was going to exist in the EI-ISAC so that was key role they played. They
6 did not have access to our data nor could they report things to us directly. So EI-ISAC
7 was our primary partner in being able to reach out to the local and States.
8 Q And when did you first learn that EI-ISAC existed?
9 A I don't recall.
10 Q Was it before you joined Stanford?
11 A I don't think it existed for long before I joined Stanford. So it's probably 12 while I was at Stanford. I wouldn't have a recollection of the first time I ran into them.
13 Q You said CISA, you know, introduced you to EI-ISAC. Did you have
14 familiarity at all with EI-ISAC before CISA --
15 A I don't recall. It's possible I'd run into them at, like, the NASS, the secretary
16 of State events and such.
17 Q Yeah.
18 A But CISA didn't -- made the introduction to the people who were actually 19 running this function.
20 Q And are those people at CIS, are they -- or are those people at CIS different
21 than those ruining EI-ISAC?
22 A The people who run EI-ISAC are CIS employees is my understanding, who run
23 the central function. There are thousands of members who then do all the work and 24 create content and such. But the kind of coordination function my understanding is run
25 by CIS.

1 Q Do you recall when CISA introduced the partnership to EI-ISAC?
2 A So it must have been in the June timeframe. I don't have an exact date.
3 Q And did you have an understanding of EI-ISAC before the formal formation
4 of EIP?
5 A I don't recall my knowledge of EI-ISAC.
6 Q Did you have an understanding before you were intro -- before CISA
7 introduced you to the EI-ISAC if there was some sort of switchboarding or reporting portal
8 related to elections that existed?
9 A It probably came up in one of those earlier meetings with election officials.
10 I don't recall the exact timing, though.
11 Q When you were first raising this issue, was the idea that EIP would provide a 12 similar reporting function?
13 A So we had discussed at one point working directly with locals and States, but 14 I think that became clear after we learned about EI-ISAC to be completely improbable
15 because there were thousands of people. It was just not going to be with the time that 16 we had something that we could possibly advertise out to them.
17 And so there was, like, a series of meetings in discussing how could we work best
18 with all of these counties, all of these cities in some cases. And the outcome was that 19 EI-ISAC already had these relationships, it could be the people that routed to us.
20 Q When the introduction was made between CISA and EI-ISAC, did you have an 21 understanding of how familiar the folks at CISA were with EI-ISAC and how it operated?
22 A I mean, I don't recall a specific feeling about that. I -- it's pretty clear that 23 they had been working with each other on building the switchboard functionality.
24 Q Do you recall if there was the switchboard functionality ahead of the 2018
25 U.S. midterms?

1 A If there was, I was not aware of it.
2 Q So you have contacted CISA, CISA introduces you to EI-ISAC. And we are
3 still in the summer of 2020, to the best of your recollection?
4 A Okay.
5 Q What roles did CISA play, if any, after that?
6 A In the EIP they had no official role. They did not have the ability to report
7 things directly to us. We would take things from EI-ISAC. I don't believe anything that 8 EI-ISAC sent us came from CISA employees themselves. And they were not part of our 9 day-to-day operations or our analysis. So they had very little role, if none in EIP.
10 Q Did CISA continue to meet with EIP partners during the summer of 2020?
11 A It's possible, we had meetings. We did a number of briefings for 12 government partners about the kinds of things that we were seeing.
13 Q And happy to use whichever term you want, there's the EIP four partners
14 and there are other external partners as well. You mentioned social media platforms --
15 A There were other --
16 Q -- some sort of engagement with EIP. Is that right?
17 A Yes. I think the term we used is stakeholders was people who we had 18 some kind of communication with.
19 Q All right. And do you recall which social media platforms were some of the 20 external stakeholders for EIP?
21 A So we list all of these in the report. I'm happy to go through them, if you 22 want.
23 Q Would it include Facebook, Instagram, Twitter to your recollection?
24 A Yes, all three of those. Instagram and Facebook for the purposes of this 25 would be the same, it would be the same people.

1 Q How did you decide which social media platforms to include?
2 A So we contacted the platforms that we thought would have the most -- that
3 this content would be found on and that would be the most interesting for us to study.
4 So in some cases we had had preexisting relationships such as with Facebook and Twitter.
5 We had worked with them on these investigations of foreign influence campaigns and
6 such. And some of the cases like for example Reddit we didn't really have much of a
7 relationship with, and so we reached out to them to at least have the ability to report
8 stuff to them.
9 Q So if I could just try to clarify a couple of the wes there. When with you say
10 we worked with Facebook and Twitter, that's in reference to EIP. But when you
11 referenced we earlier, working with Facebook and Twitter, is that Stanford?
12 A Okay. So the Stanford Internet Observatory had worked with Facebook
13 and Twitter on foreign influence campaigns in the past.
14 Q Okay.
15 A So it that was the preexisting relationship we had. And then as part of EIP 16 we reached out to a number companies that we had not had relationships with such as 17 Reddit because we thought they would be of possible -- possibly targeted as part of 18 campaigns. And we wanted to have the ability to report things to them.
19 Q Do you recall any social media platforms that declined the invitation to 20 participate?
21 A I don't recall, but it's possible.
22 Q Okay. And in addition to the social media platforms, what other types of 23 external stakeholders were there?
24 A So we had voting rights groups and other kind of NGOs who related to voting
25 rights and voting suppression who had the ability to send us tips. They didn't have

1 access to anything but they could send things in to us. They had an email address.
2 Like I said, we reached out actually to the RNC to the general counsel's office and they did
3 not take us up on our offer. But effectively we'd reach out to a bunch of groups saying,
4 here's an email account that you could then email if you see anything going on.
5 Q You mentioned that reports can be submitted to EIP as you were setting up
6 this operation and EI-ISAC was one of the primary entities that would be submitting
7 reports. Is that correct?
8 A So we document this in here. Of the entities that submitted reports,
9 EI-ISAC was by far the largest.
10 Q And do you know if every report that was submitted to EI-ISAC was then in 11 some way forwarded or submitted to EIP?
12 A No, I am -- I am pretty sure that most of the reports that went to EI-ISAC
13 were related to more standard cybersecurity issues. And so somebody is port scanning
14 or I found malware or something, those are not forwarded to us. And I -- I can't speak 15 as to what percentage of the things that related to disinformation were forwarded to us.
16 Q Who made the decision whether a report submitted to EI-ISAC would be 17 submitted to EIP?
18 A I believe it was the CIS employees who were running the switchboard.
19 Q Yeah. Do you recall who was running the switchboard at CIS?
20 A I don't recall names of the people, but we could -- I could come back with
21 that.
22 Q Yeah. Do you know who Aaron Wilson is?
23 A I believe he is CIS employee.
24 Q Do you know who [redacted] is?
25 A I don't know. I don't recall who he is.

1 Q You mentioned that the Global Engagement Center was one of the entities
2 that can submit reports, tickets as well?
3 A Yes. They could send -- they could send emails in to us for us to open and 4 to look into, yes.
5 Q Do you recall who at the GEC you interacted with?
6 A I don't- -- I mean, personally I had -- there was a meeting in which I believe
7 the director of the GEC was at here in D.C. I don't recall her name. I -- I didn't have 8 most of those conversations.
9 Q The meeting in D.C. that you just referenced, what was the purpose of that
10 meeting?
11 A I believe it was to tell them about what was EIP was doing and telling them
12 that they could send into us reports of foreign influence that they he saw, potential
13 foreign influence.
14 Q Do you know who first connected GEC and EIP together?
15 A I believe that we had already had preexisting relationships with GEC because 16 they had published in this area before the EIP.
17 Q In addition to CISA and GEC, do you recall any other Federal agencies that 18 played either informal, like, external stakeholder role or otherwise consulted EIP?
19 A So the only groups that could and did report from the Federal Government
20 report anything to us was the GEC, which is actually part of the government and then the 21 EI-ISAC external, you know. And you'd have to give it your own determination of how 22 much of the government that is. But those are the only two groups that did send 23 anything in to us. We did do briefings for several our agencies and we had one ticket
24 that we then sent out to the FBI.
25 Q Which other Federal agencies did EIP briefly?

1 A I did a briefing for General Nakasone then the director of NSA and Cyber
2 Command.
3 Q And did these briefings -- when did they occur in the process? Is it
4 pre-election?
5 A Pre-election, yes. Like in the late summer, early fall we did a briefing. He 6 had come to campus and had heard us talk about our foreign work. And he asked me to 7 brief his executive staff on our concerns and what kind of foreign influence who happen
8 during the election.
9 Q And the FBI mentioned -- received the ticket. Did the FBI also receive 10 briefings for the election?
11 A The FBI was part of that briefing, so I did it from the FBI office in -- in San 12 Francisco because I just can't Zoom in to the NSA.
13 Q Do you recall who set up the meeting between you and the NSA?
14 A Elvis Chan had set up the -- so the meeting was set up because Nakasone
15 had come to campus. Elvis was the facilitator who provided the space and participated,
16 listened to the briefing in San Francisco.
17 Q Yeah. Did you know Mr. Chan before this meeting had occurred?
18 A I did.
19 Q And how did you know special agent Chan?
20 A Yeah, he runs the group in the San Francisco office of the FBI that handles
21 high profile national security cyber attacks and so had I worked with him both at Yahoo.
22 At Yahoo we had been attacked by the -- by contractors working for the Russian FSB.
23 And then at Facebook we had a number of attempted attacks, as well as 24 manipulations of the platform to cause attacks by a variety of government agencies,
25 foreign government agencies. And so Elvis was the primary contact for all of that

1 because he ran the group that would investigate those kinds of foreign actions.

2 Q Do you recall anyone else from the FBI attending this meeting?

3 A There were some other people from his squad. I don't recall their names.

4 Q And so in addition to the NSA, FBI, do you recall any other entities that were 5 present at the meeting?

6 A The -- it was a video conference. In the room were only FBI agents. The 7 only people I knew of who were on the other link were NSA.

8 Q So you mentioned FBI, NSA, GEC and CISA. Were there any other

9 government agencies that received a briefing from EIP?

10 A Not to my knowledge.

11 Q Did you -- in addition to this briefing that the FBI helped facilitate between 12 EIP and NSA, did you have any other interactions with the FBI as a function of EIP's work?

13 A We did the preemptive briefing and we sent them one report related to 14 Arabian action in the election and I believe that was our only interaction with them.

15 Q When EIP was organized, were there new EIP email addresses created for 16 folks?

17 A No. We have a domain that has one working email address info@, which 18 was a mailing list that went to three or four different people.

19 Q Okay. Do you know who those three or four people are?

20 A It was me, probably [redacted] or deputy director of SIO, Kate Starbird and I

21 believe there's a comms person at UDOT, I forgot his name, who'd receive those emails.

22 Because often that would be media requests and he would be the one who handled

23 those.

24 Q So I think we started to touch upon this, but how would members of EIP

25 communicate with one another?

1 A So there was some emailing of each other. We had very regular Zoom
2 calls, you know, at least one or two times a week in the first days and then every day in
3 the days right up to the election, right after the election. We could communicate over
4 Slack channels and we -- but most of our kind of research communication happened
5 within Jira, because that's where you would put content and you'd put any analysis into 6 it.
7 Q And if you could say a bit more, what is Jira? What is a Jira ticket?
8 A So Jira is a popular product made by a company called Atlassian that is used
9 by lots of company for issued tracking. It has a couple of ways you can use it. You can 10 use it for, like, internal IT. It's used a lot for software defect management so finding 11 bugs, tracking how you are fixing stuff or you can use it for work flow management.
12 There's an on premise solution where you host it yourself or you do it in the cloud.
13 We had a cloud account. And so we created a database in Jira service desk,
14 which is the version of Jira we used that EIP members had access to where we could 15 create tickets that would identify lines of research attached to that evidence that we 16 found and then have a conversation about what was going on.
17 Q And when reports are being submitted to EIP, EI-ISAC -- GEC also have the 18 capability. Are they submitted via Jira or how do the reports get from outside the 19 system into Jira?
20 A Right. So for those two organizations for EIP and GEC they had the ability 21 to submit it directly. So the EI-ISAC people had an account they could log into where 22 they could submit reports and then they could see the public components of their ticket.
23 So there's a part of the ticket that was private just to us and the part that was public.
24 They could see the public part of those tickets.
25 For GEC, we'd have to look again, but I believe it was somewhat of the similar,

1 they would file something, they could see the things that they opened themselves or that
2 we added them to specifically.
3 For the other organizations like NAACP, we just give them an email account, they 4 could email us.
5 Q For GEC, when you say they would have access to a public portion of the 6 ticket, by that you mean they are in the Jira system?
7 A Yes.
8 Q This is not an email notification, this is separate from that?
9 A So every user in Jira can change what notifications they want to get. So
10 you can put in there to say if anybody ever mentions me in a tickets or if a ticket changes,
11 I want to get an email. So that's an individual setting by each individual user.
12 So there could be emails generated for the ticket being created and there could 13 have been emails generated for changes to the ticket. But that's really up to each 14 individual user.
15 Q But to see the ticket itself you had to be invited to join?
16 A Right. You had to be logged in. You ha -- the account is Atlassian
17 account, but we'd have to invite your account to have access.
18 Q Do you recall who at GEC had access to the GEC account?
19 A I don't recall who the exact person was.
20 Q Okay. Who at the GEC was most involved with EIP?
21 A I didn't have much of those conversations. I can't really -- I don't 22 remember the exact names of the people.
23 Q Who at EIP had most of the conversations with GEC?
24 A GEC was probably either Renee Diresta or [redacted].
25 Q And who is Ms. Diresta?

1 A She's our research director.

2 Q Besides GEC, which other agencies had access, direct access to the Jira

3 ticketing system?

4 A So to be clear, no agencies had direct access to everything. They could only

5 access the stuff that they gave to us or that we specifically tagged them in. And the only

6 two agencies -- well, not agencies, one organization was EI-ISAC and then the only

7 government agency would be the GEC.

8 Q Did CISA ever ask for access?

9 A I don't believe so.

10 Q Did the FBI ever ask for access?

11 A I don't believe so.

12 Q Did the NSA ever ask for access?

13 A Definitely they did not ask for access.

14 Q Following your meeting with the NSA that the FBI facilitated, did you receive

15 any follow-up communications from the FBI regarding their interest in participating in EIP

16 in any way?

17 A I don't recall our exact communications. I think it was known that the line

18 of communication was open if we saw anything that was actually a significant legal 19 problem or a foreign interference that they wanted to be notified of it.

20 Q Did the FBI and the NSA know that CISA consulted you at the beginning of 21 EIP, had made the introduction between the EIP and EI-ISAC?

22 A I don't know what they knew. We -- most likely, by the time we briefed

23 NSA, we probably briefed them on the EI-ISAC reporting initiative.

24 Q So in addition to EI-ISAC and GEC, you said there were other external

25 stakeholders that would just email reports to EIP?

A Right. They could send in. And I believe we gave them so the -- a Jira database itself can have an email account so effectively you can email to that and the email will get entered into a ticket for somebody to go look at it.

Q Okay. Do you recall what those email addresses were?

A No.

Q Do you know when the domain name would be for those email addresses?

A It would most likely be under atlassian.net or atlassian.com. They were not things that we hosted. That's part of the basic functionality of Jira.

Q And would each organization get a specific email address or did the Jira ticketing system that EIP was using have its own email address?

A I don't recall how we set it up.

Q With respect to choosing the different options to using the Jira system, who at EIP played the primary role in that?

A I am sorry. What do you mean choosing the different options?

Q You said Atlassian provides Jira --

A Yes.

Q In a couple of instances now we talked about different options that may or may not be available. In terms of deciding how to set up the ticketing system, who at EIP was playing a primary role in that?

A So the choice of Jira was mine. It's kind of the default choice of any situation in which you want to do cloud based ticketing. It's extremely widely used across the tech industry. Of the people who did the setup, there's a variety of people doing that. There's two students especially who did lots of work, [redacted]. And I guess he wouldn't be for EIP, for later [redacted] did a lot of work on the Jira configuration.

1 Q And then once a ticket is received, who has the ability to comment or make
2 any provisions on the ticket?
3 A Right. So a comment could have been entered by any of the, like, of the 4 inner members of the EIP. Right. So analysts from us, UW, Graphika and Atlantic
5 Council those are the people who could hack, could see all the tickets and could comment
6 on any of them. Although in general you'd only comment on ones if it was your time to 7 do so, if you were on call and it was your responsibility to do so.
8 The -- there's a pop -- there are different kinds of comments called public
9 comments, which could be seen by either EI-ISAC or GEC if they had either we had tagged
10 them specifically or they had submitted the tickets or we could add tech companies. So
11 if we said, I want Twitter to see something, then you would add -- you would add Twitter
12 to the ticket and then you'd fill out a public comment that would say Twitter, here's 13 something you should look at.
14 Q And when Twitter is added to the comment, can Twitter see who first 15 submitted the ticket?
16 A I am not sure. That's a good question.
17 Q During this time, did CISA at any point have access, the ability to see what 18 was on a Jira ticket, either with access to public comments on Jira or receiving email
19 notifications from Jira?
20 A I don't believe so.
21 Q With respect to when social media companies mentioned Twitter in the 22 previous example, who is making the decision at EIP whether to tag a social media
23 platform?
24 A So that would have been usually a conversation between the tier one and 25 tier two analysts. So the tier one analysts were mostly undergraduates, the tier two

1 were undergraduate students and post docs mostly. There were some undergraduates
2 who operated in tier two. And so the would be a -- the tier one analyst's job was to find
3 content to do the initial analysis to archive it, to open the ticket. And then at the could 4 say, I think this needs to go to -- this looks like it is violating this policy or this is
5 developing and they could tag in the tier two analyst who was on call to go make that 6 determination.
7 Q What was your role in EIP once it's been operationalized?
8 A So there was a manager role that was above tier two for any escalations or 9 questions and so I would occasionally take manager shifts.
10 Q Who else served IP the manager role?
11 A Kate Starbird, [redacted], Renee Diresta. I think maybe one other person.
12 It might have been [redacted] from the University of Washington, [redacted]
13 from Graphika, maybe Graham Bookie, I don't remember, but he was the leader from the 14 DFR side.
15 Q When you are serving in this manager position and you are handling issues
16 that have been escalated from tier two, what sorts of issues might be escalated from tier
17 two to manager?
18 A So if something required -- if there is thoughts that this was something that 19 was going really wide and we might want a write up about it, that would go to a manager
20 to say yes, I think this deserves a --
21 So, for example the Sharpiegate was a great example of, like, this is becoming a 22 big issue. And we made a decision let's write more about this. If they believed that 23 there was a need for something really immediate -- so if there's a possible threat of 24 violence, for example.
25 So we had a couple of threats of violence. We had that bomb threat as I talked

1 about. So those are the kinds of things we would -- wanted them to escalate to a
2 manager. Generally though it was the tier two analysts had -- the students had a lot of
3 flexibility here and what steps they are going to take. This is for if they thought
4 something was a corner case or if something seemed extremely urgent --
5 Q To your recollection, the decision whether to add Twitter, Facebook another
6 external partner was made at the tier two level?
7 A I believe that's generally where it's made, yes.
8 Q Do you recall what criteria was used to determine whether a social media
9 platform should be tagged or not?
10 A So the general criteria was it had to be obviously violative of the policies.
11 Q And at tier 2, when a person is making this determination, is it one person, is 12 it multiple people?
13 A There might have been a conversation between different people or one 14 person could have made it by themselves.
15 Q How big was EIP as --
16 A I think a little --
17 Q -- in 2020, I should say?
18 A A little over 100 people.
19 Q And of the 100, how many served in tier two?
20 A That's a great -- I'm not sure. I'd have to go look.
21 Q Do you know who at EI-ISAC was the individual or individuals who had access
22 to Jira tickets that EI-ISAC was submitting?
23 A I don't. I believe they had a shift system themselves as well so that the 24 person changed.
25 Q And is it your understanding that those individuals would have been employees of CIS?

A I believe they were. I am not sure.

Q Do you know if CIS was in contact with CISA regarding CIS's involvement in EIP?

A It's possible, but I can't speak as to CIS's relationship to CISA.

[Stamos Exhibit No. 8

Was marked for identification.]

BY [redacted]:

Q And this is some of the archived data from the Jira ticketing system that's been produced for the committee. There are many, many rows that its produced in Excel. Two rows have been pulled for exhibit 1 and --

[redacted]. Is this 8?

[redacted]. Exhibit 8, yes.

BY [redacted]:

Q So to be clear, this is an archived data version of what were Jira tickets. Is that consistent with your understanding?

A So yes -- what we turned over to the committee was an Excel spreadsheet that we exported from when we were done with the project we didn't need a live database anymore, we needed that the data in a way that we could do the analysis that you see in here and in our papers and so we downloaded the database as an Excel spreadsheet.

Q With respect to each of these columns, if you could help walk me through with respect to whether and how each column would appear that Jira ticket when it's first being addressed, when the system is still operational and it is in real-time. There are a couple that appear to be pretty self-explanatory who it is assigned to, who the reporter is.

1 If I call your attention to -- this is on the front page about middle of the way there. CIS
2 misinformation reporting, do you know what that's in reference to?
3 A So that means that this ticket came through EI-ISAC from the CIS team.
4 Q Okay. And so when there are references to a CIS misinformation portal in 5 other contexts, does that to you understanding refer to EI-ISAC?
6 A So if there is a portal that CIS was running, that would be different than this.
7 That would be something that they would see. They would have then had to manually
8 go and put it into our system, if that's what you mean.
9 Q Not quite. To your knowledge, was CIS operating a misinformation
10 reporting portal separate from EI-ISAC?
11 A I --
12 Q Both independent of EI-ISAC.
13 A I know people could report to them. I am not sure exactly what the 14 functions were. So it's possible they had a portal that was separate, yes. But they 15 were not -- we did not have a portal on behalf of CIS to be clear.
16 Q Understood.
17 A Okay.
18 Q Great. To your understanding, and recognizing you were not at CIS at any 19 time --
20 A No.
21 Q -- that is CIS could both receive reports and that was separate than the 22 switchboarding function that EI-ISAC operated, that CIS operated. Is that what you are 23 saying?
24 A I -- I don't know. I know CIS could get reports on behalf of the EI-ISAC and 25 then they could choose to put them into our database. But I don't know exactly how

1 you would communicate with EI-ISAC on the other side.

2 Q Gotcha. But to your understanding, when CIS misinformation reporting

3 appears in the EIP system that is in reference to something that was submitted to EI-ISAC

4 and that CIS decided to then submit to EIP. Is that correct?

5 A Yes. That's right.

6 Q Flip the page, backside of the first page, there's a column called description.

7 And then there are a couple of examples beneath it. And for the top one it looks like

8 there's been an email that was copy and pasted and it's from what appears to be a State

9 official and sent to misinformation@cisecurity.org. To your understanding, is this an

10 example of a report, this email I should say, not the fact that it has been copied and

11 pasted, is this email an example of something that has been submitted via EI-ISAC by a 12 State official or via a different reporting portal available to CIS?

13 A I -- this is obviously an email that belongs to CIS. Whether or not this is 14 officially part of the EI-ISAC, I don't know.

15 Q Okay. So if there was a difference between the two, by the time it gets to 16 EIP that to your understanding that distinction is not made?

17 A We would not know that difference.

18 Q Okay.

19 A And I'm not sure what reporting CIS would take outside of their EI-ISAC, but 20 that's something you'd have to ask them.

2 [12:49 p.m.]

3 BY [redacted]:

4 Q All right. With respect to when a ticket is created, can we walk

5 through -- you know, what is the first thing that happens? Is this type of description

6 included on the ticket initially?

7 A Right. So when filling out the form to create a ticket, the CIS people, at

8 least in this case -- and this is, I think, common with a number of the EI-ISAC

9 tickets -- copy and paste it in whatever report they got into the description. And then

10 they could fill out probably a couple of these other fields.

11 You know, all the times would be automatically generated. But, for example,

12 priority based upon their definition of priority, those are probably the only ones they

13 filled out themselves.

14 Q And when an EIP analyst -- we'll start with a tier 1 analyst -- sees this 15 ticket -- first off, are tickets assigned randomly? You mentioned there were shifts. But

16 when someone starts their shift, do they get to pick and choose which tickets they work

17 on?

18 A Right. So in the different shifts, we had different assignments, effectively

19 desks. This was COVID so people were generally not together. They were working 20 from their dorm rooms or home and -- but they would have a specific thing they were 21 responsible for.

22 So probably somebody -- I don't recall the exact assignments, but I expect that we

23 had somebody assigned just to incoming. So if a new ticket was created based upon the

24 shift, it would go in as effectively unseen, and they would have the queue open of tickets

25 that had yet to be addressed, which is generally how ticketing systems work.

1 Q And when an analyst then takes on a ticket -- and we'll use these two as an
2 example -- they would see the email that had been copied and pasted as a submission by
3 CIS. Is that right?
4 A Yes.
5 Q If I could have you flip it over. This would be the front half of page 2,
6 there's a column referring to fact checking.
7 A Yes.
8 Q Do you know who in EIP -- or first off, let me back up.
9 Is it someone within EIP who is responsible for filling out the fact-checking aspect?
10 A Yes. This is part of our checklist of things for tier 1 analysts to do was you
11 can see it says archive URLs. So one of the first things they do is archive the content.
12 As I said, one of our core things was to try to have a historical database here for further
13 study. So they'd archive it in case it got taken down or deleted.
14 And then one of the things in the checklist was if a factual statement was being
15 made, whether or not there were any other -- any fact checks or any other news stories
16 to reference on that factual assertion.
17 Q If I could have you flip one more page, and it starts with the 18 columns -- there's a comment column, and then comment 1, and it starts column 2, 19 column 3, so on.
20 A Right.
21 Q Can you walk me through as far as what this would look like on the Jira ticket
22 as opposed to what we're seeing in the archive data?
23 A Right. So in the Jira ticket, you would have -- the body of the ticket would 24 have the initial email as we talked -- so the summary up top, so just a description. As 25 you can see here, it says CIS dash. So my understanding is that reflects their internal

1 database for CIS of their tracking number.

2 The description -- the issue key is just a monotonically generated integer of

3 counting up ticket by ticket as it's created automatically by the system. So a bunch of

4 these fields you would see there in the body, and then at the bottom people could

5 comment.

6 And so what you're seeing there is it's like Reddit or Facebook or any other place

7 with a common field is somebody could comment, respond, respond. And so these 8 columns represent those comments in order.

9 Q Okay. And who can comment?

10 A So there are two kinds of comments. There were public and private

11 comments. Private comments could only be EIP members. Public could have been

12 comments that were made by EI-ISAC or GEC or one of the tech companies if they had 13 been added to the ticket.

14 Since in this situation the ticket had been reported by CIS, the CIS people had 15 access to those fields automatically.

16 Q And since it had been submitted by CIS, does CIS have access to these 17 private comments that you referenced earlier?

18 A I don't believe so.

19 Q So even the entity submitting the ticket doesn't have access to those?

20 A That was -- the intention was they should not have access to that.

21 Q In this archived format, are you able to tell which comments are public and 22 which are private?

23 A No. You have to kind of infer it by what is being said.

24 Q Okay. If there were -- to your recollection, were there instances where

25 there were multiple tech companies copied, so, like, say, both Twitter and Facebook

1 would be on a ticket?

2 A Yes. We actually document this in our report where we talk about -- so if

3 you look at 38, page 38 in the main report, we talk about which tickets were -- which

4 companies were tagged. And as you can see, it's over 100 percent, because you would

5 have companies -- multiple companies that could be tagged on the same ticket since the 6 ticket was about a narrative, not necessarily a single piece of content.

7 Q And when two companies are tagged, with the understanding that there's

8 these private comments that they can't see but the public ones that are seen, if Twitter

9 posts a comment and both Twitter and Facebook are tagged, can Facebook see what

10 Twitter commented?

11 A I don't recall what they could see. It's possible. I'm not sure.

12 Q If I could have you turn to -- keep flipping until you get to column 5, 13 please -- comment 5, that column.

14 A I see it.

15 Q Great. There's a comment -- there's some text before it, but the language

16 starts: "We heard back from Twitter through CISA with this response: Our team

17 concluded that the tweet was not in violation of our Civic Integrity Policy."

18 Do you know what role CISA is playing that is referenced here?

19 A So I expect this comment was from EI-ISAC. I can only assume based upon 20 what I see here. I have no other knowledge of what role CISA was playing.

21 Q Okay. So with the understanding that -- so it doesn't seem like this

22 comment came from you. But based off your experience in EIP and seeing this Jira

23 ticketing system, do you know whether CIS was working with EI-ISAC?

24 A I know CIS has a relationship with -- or CISA has a relationship with CIS. I

25 don't know exactly what that was like.

1 Q Do you recall any discussions with the social media companies whether they
2 had the understanding that CISA was working with the EI-ISAC?
3 A I don't recall that being something they'd discuss, and I'm not sure why they
4 would discuss that with me.
5 Q If I could have you keep flipping until we get to comment 11, that column.
6 A Uh-huh.
7 Q There's, again, like a string of letters and numbers, but the text starts:
8 "Thanks EIP. We have kept the election official updated on the steps you took. We 9 also received confirmation from Facebook (by way of CISA) that Facebook took action on 10 this case."
11 Same question. Do you know what role CISA is playing here?
12 A No. I expect that this -- since this says "Thanks EIP" and we have kept the 13 election official updated, that this was posted by the EI-ISAC team. They're referencing
14 CISA, but I don't know exactly the relationship between the EI-ISAC and CISA.
15 Q But it is your understanding -- I mean, CISA introduced EIP to EI-ISAC. Is
16 that right?
17 A Yes. I know that, obviously, the EI-ISAC was operating with CISA's blessing 18 to run a switchboard, but what specific role was being played in this is outside of our 19 knowledge.
20 Q Do you recall if -- let me strike that.
21 Throughout the 2020 election that the EIP is operating in, would you make public
22 posts from time to time regarding decisions that EIP was making?
23 A I wouldn't say they're about decisions we were making, but we did public
24 posts about the narratives we found.
25 Q And do you know if -- actually not do you know.

1 Do you recall any interactions with officials at CISA regarding the narratives that
2 you were finding?
3 A It's possible we briefed them. I don't recall any specific conversations.
4 Q Okay. If you were to brief CISA, what form of communication might that
5 be?
6 A Well, I expect we would have e-mailed them if we wanted to have a meeting
7 with them.
8 Q Okay. And who at CISA was your primary point of contact during the fall of 9 2020?
10 A Probably [redacted] or Brian Scully you could say.
11 Q Was there a time where you briefed the tech companies on what EIP is when 12 you were first inviting them?
13 A Yes.
14 Q And when that briefing occurred, had you already made the decision to have 15 EI-ISAC as an external partner?
16 A I don't recall the order in there.
17 Q Okay. Do you recall a time where external stakeholders were brought 18 together for a briefing, including tech companies and the EI-ISAC?
19 A We did lots of briefings. It's quite possible it happened, yes.
20 Q Do you know with the Jira ticketing system, could someone download a 21 ticket ever? Is that a function that was available?
22 A As the administrators, we could download full spreadsheets. It's -- I don't 23 know exactly what configuration we had on individual tickets. Certainly you could 24 always print a ticket. So if you wanted to have a record yourself, you could always 25 generate a PDF.

1 Q Okay. Again, with respect to the commenting system, I'd asked about
2 Twitter and Facebook and whether -- if Twitter comments, can Facebook see it. Same
3 question, but with respect to if GEC is the one that submitted the ticket and is able to see
4 what's going on, do you recall instances where GEC was on a ticket with Twitter and
5 Facebook as well -- Twitter or Facebook?
6 A It's likely. We've turned over all of those tickets, so it should be obvious
7 from the organizations field. So if that was true, you would have GEC as well as 8 Facebook and/or Twitter tagged in organizations.
9 Q And to your recollection, same dynamic or same question as the 10 Twitter/Facebook one. If GEC commented, could -- and both GEC and Facebook were 11 tagged, could Facebook see GEC's comment?
12 A I don't recall. I know that the company should have been able to see the 13 initial description. So if GEC put in something in the initial description, the companies
14 would have seen that, but I'm not sure about the comments, what they would have seen.
15 Q Okay. At what point in time -- so, obviously, it's operational through at 16 least the election of 2020. At what point in time did the Jira ticketing system -- was it no
17 longer operated and then you switched to this archived version of the data?
18 A Well, we stopped our collection a couple of weeks after -- we've got the 19 exact date in here -- of the election, so that's when we stopped changing it. And so
20 probably some point early in 2021 when we were changing the project from -- so it says
21 right here, you know, we started data cleanup in -- around the end of December, so that's 22 when we would have had to export and start to do all of the work necessary to do the 23 analysis. So there's an operational timeline on page 3. So I'm guessing it would have 24 been in the end of December, beginning of January.
25 Q Do you know if this archival process was automatic?

1 [redacted]. Oh, [redacted].

2 [redacted]. We've got 30 more seconds.

3 A Okay. We manually went in and said we wanted to export the 4 spreadsheet, if that's what you mean.

5 BY [redacted]:

6 Q Okay. So it was not an automatic process, just a point of clarification?

7 A We had to -- we had to say we want to export.

8 Q Yeah. And did you have to go to Atlassian to do that, or is it just an option

9 as a user to do that?

10 A If you were an admin, you could just go and click a button in Jira to say

11 export everything.

12 Mr. [redacted]. Okay. Could we go off the record, please?

13 [Recess.]

14 Ms. [redacted]. Okay. It is 1:48. We can go back on the record.

15 BY [redacted]:

16 Q Mr. Stamos, I want to start by talking through some comments that were 17 made in the prior hour before the break.

18 A Okay.

19 Q There was some discussion about an NSA briefing.

20 Do you recall that?

21 A Yes.

22 Q And you said that that was a briefing for a General Nakasone. Correct?

23 A And his staff.

24 Q And his staff?

25 A Yes.

1 Q A virtual briefing?

2 A Yes.

3 Q Okay. And did they request that briefing?

4 A General Nakasone did.

5 Q And why -- what's your understanding of why he requested that briefing?

6 A He had come to Stanford and had visited a number of people, and we -- as

7 part of that visit, I went in with some of my colleagues from SIO, and we gave him an

8 overview of a bunch of our work, and he said -- and it included, you know, the work we

9 were doing to get ready for the election. And he said something along the lines of we'd

10 love to hear from you of what kind of concerns you have for interference in the fall.

11 Q Okay. Were there -- the concern was specifically foreign influence

12 campaigns. Correct?

13 A That's right, yes.

14 Q Okay. So did he -- during that meeting, to the extent you recall, was it

15 primarily you providing a presentation about what you were seeing?

16 A It was me doing a presentation about the capabilities of various actors that

17 we had been tracking and some of the things we were concerned about them doing

18 from -- at the time and still, one of the things we talk a lot about is kind of hybrid warfare.

19 So one of our big concerns was if you were one of these high-end government

20 groups, similar like PLA, GRU, not the Russian troll farms, but like the high-end guys, you

21 could attack election infrastructure.

22 Third, in the chaos, it's really hard to actually change votes. It's not that hard to

23 make things break. And then break things and then use that as a basis of a 24 disinformation attack to say that the election is being stolen, something is going on.

25 And so we talked a lot about that kind of stuff and what we would be looking for

1 and the threat posed by various adversaries in that area.

2 Q Okay. Thank you for that.

3 And so the focus was completely on foreign interference. Right?

4 A Yes.

5 Q And it wasn't about -- well, withdraw. Strike that.

6 A He specifically asked us to brief on foreign interference.

7 Q Okay.

8 A And knowing that the NSA is not allowed to operate domestically, I would 9 have never talked about domestic actors.

10 Q All right. There was some discussion in the earlier hour -- actually a fair

11 amount of discussion on CISA. And I want to take a step back and talk through what 12 CISA, is, what it does, what its role is.

13 I think you were asked, maybe actually in the first hour, when CISA was created.

14 Do you remember that?

15 A Yes.

16 Q And I think you said you thought it was 2018, but you weren't sure?

17 A Yes.

18 [redacted]. So I want to introduce the printout from Congress.gov, which is the 19 reflection of the bill that created CISA. This will be exhibit number 9.

20 [Stamos Exhibit No. 9

21 Was marked for identification.]

22 BY [redacted]:

23 Q And this was bill number H.R. 3359, Cybersecurity and Infrastructure

24 Security Agency Act of 2018. And if you see up at the top, it says: "Latest action:

25 11/16/2018 became Public Law No. 115-278."

1 Do you see where it says that?

2 A Yes.

3 Q Okay. And then if you look up above that, it says the bill's sponsor was 4 Representative Michael McCaul, Republican of Texas.

5 Do you see where it says that?

6 A Yes.

7 Q Okay. And looking down further, I want to start at -- we'll start at the 8 bottom of the actions and work -- it's in reverse chronological order.

9 So the bill was introduced in the House on 7/24/2017?

10 A Yes.

11 Q Do you recall which party was in control of the House in 2017?

12 A I believe it was the Republican Party.

13 Q Okay. And then it was discharged -- it was reported by the Committee on

14 Homeland Security on 12/11/17 and then discharged by a number of other House

15 committees on that same day.

16 Do you see where it says that?

17 A Yes.

18 Q And so one of the committees that discharged it was the Committee on 19 Oversight and Government. Do you see that it says that?

20 A Yes.

21 Q Are you aware that Mr. Jordan was a member of that committee in 2017?

22 A I was not aware.

23 Q Okay. And then later that day, on 12/11/17, it says it was passed and 24 agreed to in the House on suspension.

25 Are you familiar with what the term on suspension -- on the motion to suspend

1 the rules and pass the bill means?

2 A I mean, I believe that's when it's basically unanimous and people say they

3 don't want to slow things down, so nobody objects and, therefore, it passes.

4 Q Okay. So in December of 2017, this passed the House, essentially a

5 Republican House -- Republican-led House essentially unanimously in December.

6 Correct?

7 A Yes.

8 Q Okay. Then it went over to the Senate. Do you know which party was in 9 control of the Senate in 2018?

10 A I believe it was also the Republican Party.

11 Q Okay. So it passed through the Senate Committee on Homeland Security

12 and Governmental Affairs on the 3rd of October, 2018, and then it says it was passed the

13 Senate by -- passed the Senate with an amendment by unanimous consent also on 14 10/3/2018.

15 Do you see where it says that?

16 A Yes.

17 Q So it also passed the Republican Senate by unanimous consent. Is that

18 right?

19 A Right.

20 Q Then there was a conference to resolve differences. It, again, passed the 21 House and the Senate without objection.

22 Do you see where it says that?

23 A Yes.

24 Q Again, House and Senate were both Republican held at the time?

25 A Right.

1 Q And then it was presented to the President on 11/14/2018 and signed into
2 law on the 16th of November?
3 A Yes.
4 Q Who was the President on November 16, 2018?
5 A To the best of my knowledge, it was Donald J. Trump.
6 Q Okay. Thank you.
7 So CISA was created through this bill that passed unanimous consent in the House,
8 unanimous consent in the Republican Senate, and was signed into law by President
9 Trump. Is that correct?
10 A Yes.
11 Q Okay. I want to turn to a CISA web page on election security. This will be 12 introduced as number ten, exhibit 10.
13 [Stamos Exhibit No. 10
14 Was marked for identification.]
15 BY [redacted]:
16 Q And before we actually get into the meat -- you can take a moment to 17 review, and then I'm going to ask you your understanding of what CISA's role is with 18 respect to election security.
19 A Okay.
20 Q You were asked earlier about the definition of election infrastructure and 21 who identified it.
22 Do you see on page 2 the second full paragraph that says: "In January 2017, the 23 Department of Homeland Security officially designated election infrastructure as a subset 24 of the government facilities sector, making clear that election infrastructure qualifies as 25 critical infrastructure."

1 Do you see where it says that?

2 A I do.

3 Q Okay. So that would have been January 2017, so right at the turnover of 4 administrations. Correct?

5 A Yes.

6 Q Okay. And as far as we know, throughout the Trump administration, there

7 were no steps taken to roll that back?

8 A No, I don't believe there were.

9 Q Okay. And then we spoke in, I think, my first hour about what election

10 infrastructure is.

11 A Uh-huh.

12 Q And they have a list here. So I just want to go through and ask you kind of 13 your understanding of what each one of these things are.

14 So it says: "Election infrastructure is an assembly of systems and networks that 15 include, but is not limited to:

16 "Voter registration databases and associated IT systems."

17 Are those the -- those are the technical systems that hold voter registration data.

18 Correct?

19 A That's right. I think they also probably mean the web interfaces and the 20 other ways by which voters can change their information and interact with the databases.

21 Q Okay. And then it says: "IT infrastructure and systems used to manage 22 elections."

23 A Yes.

24 Q So, again, that's all -- that's IT systems. Right?

25 A Yes.

1 Q Okay. "Voting systems and associated infrastructure," are those actually
2 the voting machines? Is that your understanding of that?
3 A I expect that means the voting machines and probably things like the 4 counting systems. Where, like, a counting system falls between IT infrastructure and 5 voting systems is an interesting question, but yes.
6 Q Okay. "Storage facilities for election and voting system infrastructure."
7 Are these, like, warehouses, I guess, where the voting machines might be held?
8 A Yes, I believe so. And I don't think this is a mistake because there have 9 been a number of issues where in the years between elections devices have been lost or 10 stolen or they can't have chain of custody. So I expect that that's a focus on where do
11 you keep all of the polling information and voting information in those off years.
12 Q Okay. And then "Polling places (to include early voting locations)," so that 13 would be probably both the actual physical places where people can go to cast their vote
14 and potentially drop boxes as well?
15 A That's what it sounds like, yes.
16 Q Okay. So these are the actual technical systems, the means by which 17 people vote. Correct?
18 A Yes.
19 Q Has nothing to do with the politics around voting; it's really the operation of 20 the vote. Is that fair to say?
21 A Yes.
22 Q Okay. And then on the next page it says: "CISA's Role." And it says:
23 "CISA is committed to working collaboratively with those on the front lines of 24 elections -- state and local governments, election officials, federal partners, and private 25 sector partners -- to manage risks to the Nation's election infrastructure."

1 Do you see where it says that?
2 A Yes.
3 Q Okay. And, again, the infrastructure is what we just read through?
4 A Yes.
5 Q All the technical -- the nuts and bolts of how voting operates. Right?
6 A Right.
7 Q So CISA is actually tasked with working with the State and local
8 governments? Right? That's part of their role?
9 A That's my understanding, that they are the agency that has been given the 10 primary responsibility for coordinating the security of the election.
11 Q And EI-ISAC that we talked a fair amount about, they're kind of -- is it fair to 12 describe them as something of a trade organization for local election directors or State
13 and locals?
14 A I mean, EI-ISAC is its own thing. I consider it a collaborative -- a defense
15 collaboration.
16 Q Okay.
17 A But, yes. The closer to a trade association I think would probably be NASS
18 and NAZB.
19 Q Okay. So EI-ISAC is -- so the member organizations are -- or the member
20 entities are State and local election officials and entities. Right?
21 A That's my understanding, yes.
22 Q Okay. So EI-ISAC is effectively a conglomeration of those entities, and then
23 it interacts with CISA, which is actually what CISA is supposed to do is interact with State
24 and local entities. Right?
25 A Yes.

Q Okay. We can move on probably.

A Did I pass the civics test?

Q You did.

A Okay.

Q I want to turn to the Jira tickets that we talked a fair amount about in the prior session.

And you said earlier you were the one who selected the Jira software. Right?

A Yes.

Q And you said it's a pretty commercially widely available software?

A Yes. I believe it is the most widely used ticketing software in software development certainly.

Q And is that -- so is it used -- obviously, you use it in your work with research regarding the spread of information online. But is it also used in other social research contexts, to your knowledge?

A I'm sure it is, but I can't -- I can't think of any specific examples right now.

Q Okay. So we talked through the columns, and I want to turn back -- actually I don't know which exhibit number this was.

[redacted]. Eight.

BY [redacted]:

Q Eight. We talked through the columns in exhibit number 8, and we talked through a couple of different examples.

There's a lot of -- and I'm not sure if it's actually in this example or not. What was exported and produced in the Excel spreadsheet, there's a lot of columns for comments. Right?

A Yes.

1 Q Why are there so many columns for comments?
2 A My understanding is when you export a spreadsheet from Jira is it needs a
3 way to represent all of the comments, and some tickets might have zero comments, and
4 some could have 50. So if you're going to represent that in a spreadsheet, you need a 5 column for every single -- the number of columns needs to be equal to the maximum
6 number of columns -- of comments on the max -- of the ticket with the maximum number
7 in the database.
8 Q And I guess what I'm getting at is we talked through in the prior hour the 9 comments that reflected interactions with social media companies.
10 A Right.
11 Q There was actually a lot of internal comments back and forth between 12 students and supervisors and, I guess, potentially between researchers and each other.
13 Right?
14 A Yes.
15 Q And was that actually the primary purpose of Jira was to help do that 16 analysis of this material internally?
17 A Yeah. The two primary purposes was, one, as the data repository that we 18 could use for our analysis and, second, as the way that our people could interact with 19 each other and to track their tasks. So just like a -- ticketing systems are often used in 20 situations where people work shifts so that you don't -- instead of e-mailing Bob, if Bob is 21 done at 8:00 p.m., then you don't want that sitting in Bob's inbox. You want there to be
22 a ticket that then the next person who comes on the shift it's their responsibility to finish
23 the work.
24 Q Okay. So it was kind of an internal communication method?
25 A Internal communication, and it's our primary research database. So, like,

1 for all of the data that went into our publications, the primary database where that was
2 stored was Jira.
3 Q And a significant amount of the information that was produced to us were 4 tickets that were generated by EI-ISAC. Right?
5 A Of the stuff that was produced --
6 Q Right.
7 A -- that includes all of the tickets that were generated by EI-ISAC, yeah.
8 Q But that's not actually representative of the total number of tickets that are 9 in the database. Right?
10 A That's right. So in our report we document the number of tickets, which I
11 believe was -- so in our final summary, we had 639 in-scope tickets. So the actual
12 number in the database is closer to a thousand. This is from later us taking out things
13 that -- test tickets, test data, situations in which two tickets turn out to be about the same
14 thing.
15 Q Okay.
16 A So all of those things were condensed before we did our analysis so we 17 didn't have duplicates. And I believe there's something like 100 and some tickets
18 involving EI-ISAC, so it's less than a sixth.
19 Q Okay. So less than a sixth. Thank you for doing the math for me because I
20 could not have done that in my head.
21 A Sure. How about, like, I'll do the math, and then you can explain how 22 Congress passes laws in a moment.
23 Q So EI-ISAC, which is operated by CIS -- and I'm sorry. CIS is the Center for 24 Internet Security. Right?
25 A Yes.

1 Q Okay. The State and local election officials would send them reports, and 2 then EI-ISAC would effectively just pass them along to you. Right?
3 A They made a determination. I'm not sure how of whether to pass it along.
4 Q Right.
5 A But, yes, they would take, as we can see in here, emails they would get in,
6 and then they could put that into a ticket for us.
7 Q And I guess my point isn't that they were passed along. It's that the 8 original incoming information came from State and local officials. Right?
9 A That's right. If you look through the EI-ISAC tickets, I think for almost all of 10 them you should have an original email that we can see where it came from.
11 Q Okay. And so we just talked through CISA and CISA's role. CISA's role is 12 actually to interact with State and local election officials. Right?
13 A Yes.
14 Q Okay. So to the extent that CISA's name shows up in these, it's kind of part
15 of their task, right, under the law that was passed by the Republicans in 2018?
16 A As I told [redacted], I can't speak to exactly what CISA's role was in some of 17 these tickets where they were not communicating directly with us because they could not 18 get directly into this.
19 Q Okay.
20 A So I don't really feel comfortable answering that.
21 Q Okay. Understood.
22 Do you have an understanding of why State and local election officials would be
23 concerned about the information that they were flagging?
24 A Yes.
25 Q And what's your understanding of that?

1 A So I think it matters in the situation. In the situation where they found that
2 somebody was misleading voters about how to vote, when to vote, that that is -- you
3 know, part of their job is to enfranchise their voters, and that would be obviously quite 4 upsetting if you did all of this work to educate people and then it was being undone by 5 some influencer on Instagram. And so that's part of their job to make sure people are 6 properly educated.
7 In some of these cases, they're probably worried about people who are trying to 8 drive violence. So I believe we have a number of tickets where individuals are making
9 claims about individual voting workers. This is one of the trends in 2020 that I think was 10 an unfortunate new thing that might be with us for a while is trying to intimidate 11 individual people who are working, the little old ladies that work in the polling places, as 12 well as the employees who were like -- could make more money doing anything but 13 working for their county, but then they're having their information posted and such. So 14 in those situations protecting your employees would be a big deal.
15 So, yeah, I mean, I think there's a variety of reasons why they would be really 16 worried about disinformation in their area.
17 Q And I think you touched on this earlier, but I'm not sure I heard the 18 response.
19 Could it have been possible for you -- for EIP, I mean, to have set up a system
20 where every State and local election official in the country could have just e-mailed you
21 directly with items of concern?
22 A I think that would have been impossible with the amount of time we had.
23 My understanding is, you know, one of the things CISA had to do here is just get the email
24 addresses and the phone numbers of election officials, and that by itself was a massive 25 project because there's thousands and thousands of people. And as you can see if you

1 look through the tickets, there's, like, Yahoo accounts, Gmail accounts, AOL accounts.
2 So it's not like they're all coming from.state.oh -- or something -- u.s.
3 And so having like an authenticated list of people that we could interact with 4 would have been impossible.
5 Q Okay. And I'm sorry. You said one of the things that CISA had to do.
6 Does that mean that CISA had to do to set up?
7 A I think to set the switchboard, so I'm not sure if that work was done by CISA
8 employees themselves or if that was done by EI-ISAC. But in creating the switchboard, 9 just having the contact information for all of those people, was a huge project.
10 Q Yeah. Okay. But, again, CISA was not flagging any material or sending any 11 material to you. All they did was set up this switchboard that then enabled State and 12 local election officials to pass things on to you efficiently?
13 A That's right. I'm not aware of any situation in which any of the content that 14 was referred to us came from CISA itself.
15 Q Okay. I want to look at -- actually, I want to talk through, before we get 16 back to this exhibit, the process of what happened after EI-ISAC created a Jira ticket.
17 So EI-ISAC creates a Jira ticket. And is there an alert for an EIP researcher?
18 What happens next?
19 A It would go into a queue. I'm not sure whether generating an alert. But it 20 would have been somebody's job to handle the incoming queue.
21 Q Okay.
22 A So they would have then gone and said, I'm taking this over. There's a
23 button you can push to say this ticket is assigned to me. So a ticket at any moment has 24 to be assigned to somebody, and they assign, okay, I'm taking and then they -- I'm taking 25 responsibility for this, and then they would run the checklist of things that we had given

1 our students of go archive it, go fill out -- we had our little form with all the little form
2 fields. You can see how much is it spreading, how's it going viral, are there news stories
3 or fact checks related to a factual concern, what category is it in. Part of that would be 4 if it was not in one of those categories that we were paying attention, then they would 5 mark it as out of scope and close the ticket; prioritization and such, and then they would
6 fill out a little bit of a narrative in the comments of this is what I found.
7 Q And you said earlier -- you said just a second ago that one thing they would
8 track would be how far it's going and how fast it's going. I think the spreadsheet uses
9 the terms "reach" and "velocity." Is that --
10 A That's right, yes.
11 Q Okay. And so why were you interested in assessing reach and velocity?
12 A So a big part of this project was trying to understand how do viral rumors go
13 viral. And so we were trying to study in real-time how do things go big. We actually 14 have some interesting conclusions in here, I think, that were unique in that -- in some of 15 our published papers, that we have a unique model of -- at least in this election, one of 16 our findings was that virality for most of these narratives was not driven by kind of 17 authentic engagement by individuals but by a relatively small number of influencers, who 18 the moment one of those influencers said -- retweeted something or shared something or 19 said, "I can't believe this is happening," usually a little comment, that would be the start
20 of what we called the hockey stick.
21 So that you would have some claim about Sharpies or something that would -- you
22 know, a couple of people are looking, a couple of people. And then one of the 23 influencers -- you know, we have the top 25 list -- so Don Trump, Jr. retweets it, and then 24 you'll have all the influencers retweet it, and then it goes exponential.
25 So one of the things we were studying was how quickly are things growing. Is it

1 growing in a way that it's people organically looking at it, or is it growing because one
2 incredibly powerful person gave it a kick?
3 Q Okay. And so, again, that was part of your research, the research function
4 of EIP. Right?
5 A That was part of our research, and that directly went into our analysis and 6 the papers we wrote.
7 Q Were you surprised by that finding?
8 A I was. I mean, we always knew that influencers were important, but 9 something that we came out of this understanding is that very few things actually went 10 viral on their own without a relatively small number of people deciding to make them a 11 big deal.
12 Q Okay. So in certain instances after the -- so it sounds like there was an 13 extensive analysis done of whatever the material was that had been identified. Right?
14 A Yeah. So we have that calendar in here where we spent months in the 15 big -- in the first quarter of 2021 doing the data analysis so that we could write this paper.
16 And then there's work that happened after that, after this report, for our peer-reviewed
17 journal articles.
18 Q I'm actually talking about the period during the election.
19 A Oh, I'm sorry.
20 Q So when the ticket came in and there would be certain information entered 21 between -- by the students -- and the researchers are mostly students. Right?
22 A Yes, the majority. 42 of our 50 people were students.
23 Q So there would be certain information entered by these student researchers,
24 and there would probably be some discussion amongst them or between them and a
25 supervisor. Right?

1 A That's right, yes.

2 Q And then at some point -- in certain instances, EIP did make the call to bring

3 certain content to the attention of social media companies. Right?

4 A That's right.

5 Q Okay. How did EIP determine what content was appropriate to bring to the 6 attention of social media companies?

7 A So we had a couple of criteria. If something was dangerous, that was

8 something that we would do immediately. So if we thought there was either a threat to

9 somebody's life or things like the bomb threat situation, then those are the kinds of

10 things that would kind of jump to that, even if it wasn't of high spread. Right? So

11 threatening somebody's life or posting the personal details, even if it only had ten

12 retweets, that would be a big deal for us.

13 If people were doing an impersonation -- again, they didn't have to be

14 widespread, but if somebody was pretending to be an election official, that's something

15 we would report really quickly. And then if something violated their policies and it had 16 good reach and velocity and it clearly violated platform policies, then we could refer it to

17 them.

18 Q Okay. So just to repeat back what you said, threats to life or safety or 19 health?

20 A Yes.

21 Q Impersonations?

22 A Yes.

23 Q And then the third category would be something that potentially violates

24 platform policies?

25 A Right, and that has a reasonable amount of spread. We -- you know, if

1 somebody just said something and four people saw it, even if it was, like, very violative
2 policies, if there wasn't a real risk to people, then we probably wouldn't have said
3 anything. If it got 50, 100, 2,000 retweets and we saw that the velocity was extremely 4 high, then that would be much more likely that we'd point it out to them.
5 Q Okay. And once you pointed something out to a social media company -- I
6 think we talked through this earlier, but just, again, for the record, once you pointed it
7 out to the social media company, it was up to those companies to determine whether a
8 post actually violated their internal content policies. Correct?
9 A That's right.
10 Q And it was up to them to determine whether to take any further action?
11 A That's right. It was totally up to them.
12 Q And they never came back to you and said, you know, what do you -- what's 13 your opinion of this action?
14 A I don't -- I don't know of any situation in which they asked for our opinion on 15 their action. Generally their response is, if you look at the tickets, are ack, which is 16 acknowledge, thank you, and maybe sometimes they would tell us what they did. To 17 do -- we actually have empirical evidence of what they did. To put the empirical 18 evidence together, we actually had to test it ourselves because generally we would not be 19 told by the companies what actions they took.
20 Q Okay. So I want to turn to this exhibit 8 now, and I want to talk through the 21 interactions of social media companies. But before I do that, I want to actually look at 22 the underlying content that's referenced.
23 So the first one, it's Case No. -- I'm sorry. It's issue EIP-482.
24 A Uh-huh.
25 Q And it's -- we talked through earlier. It says: "CIS Misinformation

1 Reporting."

2 A Yeah.

3 Q If you turn to the next page where it says "Description" at the top, it says:

4 "I'm reporting this" -- it looks like it's an email, appears that the email sender said: "I'm

5 reporting this disinformation about elections. Please take steps to stop it, and correct it

6 publicly. Thanks."

7 A Yes.

8 Q Okay. And then on the next page, under "Archive URLs," it says -- there's a

9 web address. It's

10 web.archive.org/save/https://twitter.com/realDonaldTrump/status -- then there's a long

11 string of numbers.

12 Do you see where it says that?

13 A Yes.

14 Q Okay. I want to introduce what that is into the record.

15 So this is exhibit number 11.

16 [Stamos Exhibit No. 11

17 Was marked for identification.]

18 BY [redacted]:

19 Q So this is a tweet from @realDonaldTrump. It says: "Strongly trending

20 (Google) since immediately after the second debate is CAN I CHANGE MY VOTE? This

21 refers to changing it to me. The answer in most states is YES. Go do it. Most 22 important Election of your life!"

23 And it's 6:53 a.m., October 27, 2020?

24 So this is a tweet that then President Trump put out. In your assessment, does 25 the question about changing your vote, is that accurate, do you believe?

1 A My understanding is no. I think because this is in pre-voting so that you
2 would be talking about, for example, absentee ballots is that you cannot change your 3 vote. And, in fact, if you went and tried to send another absentee ballot in, you would 4 be violating the law.
5 Q Okay. So this is -- and it looks like there's a fact check -- I don't actually
6 have the fact check. But on its face, there's certainly questions about whether or not 7 this is true?
8 A Right. And if you look in this, here are multiple stories about it. So if they 9 were in here, this means that the student looked at those and that they had a factual
10 refutation of the claim that was being made here.
11 Q Okay. And a little further down on the page it says the reach was viral,
12 1,001 plus engagements.
13 A Yes.
14 Q Is 1,001 plus engagements, is that like a category? Does that just, like, 15 mean it's the most viral it can be?
16 A Yeah. So this is the reach -- I believe this was a drop-down box that you
17 could choose from a level, and I believe this was viral was the top, over 1,000
18 engagements.
19 Q Okay. And then it says -- on the next page -- sorry -- the column that says
20 "Velocity," it says: "Growing: reach is growing linearly."
21 A Yes.
22 Q Do you see where it says that?
23 A Yes.
24 Q What does that mean?
25 A So we have a couple of different velocity options again in a drop-down box.

1 And so you can see two of them here. One would be linear, so it is growing, but not
2 crazy. Viral would be the top level of growth, which means it's going exponential, like 3 there's a curve like this [indicating].
4 Q Okay. And then I can't quite figure out from this spreadsheet if this was 5 actually referred to Twitter or not, but I'm gathering that it was because of the response.
6 A Right. So there is a response here from Twitter: "Twitter received and is 7 reviewing." You can also check --
8 Q I'm sorry. Which column is that?
9 A Comment 3.
10 Q Thank you.
11 A You can also tell it went to Twitter because if you look in platform column,
12 which is near the end, it's labeled with Twitter. And so that meant that they had been 13 added -- or I'm sorry -- not the platform column; the organizations column. So those 14 organizations, those are the people who could see the tickets. So Twitter had been 15 added specifically. Platform was just our own internal designation.
16 Q Okay.
17 A The organizations is the people who could see the ticket, so we have added
18 @Twitter.
19 Q Okay.
20 A And this is clearly a message from Twitter saying Twitter received.
21 Q Okay. Twitter -- so this was sent to Twitter. Twitter did see this?
22 A Yes.
23 Q You did refer this effectively to Twitter?
24 A Yes.
25 Q And then I want to look at column 5, comment 5. And what it says is -- I

1 think we read the first part of that sentence but not the second part. So the full
2 sentence is: "We heard back from Twitter through CISA with this response. Our team
3 concluded that the tweet was not in violation of our Civic Integrity Policy."
4 Do you see where it says that?
5 A I do.
6 Q Okay. So it says: "We heard back from Twitter." So it sounds like
7 Twitter didn't actually even tell EIP directly?
8 A That's right. They -- generally companies -- it was a crap shoot whether or 9 not they would tell us what they were doing.
10 Q Okay.
11 A They usually would just acknowledge it.
12 Q Okay. But at the end of the day, Twitter concluded that this tweet was not 13 in violation of its content moderation policies. Right?
14 A That's right.
15 Q So they didn't take it down, at least not at that time?
16 A At this time they didn't take it down, no.
17 Q So this is an example of a situation in which the EIP flagged content for social 18 media. The social media company, in this case Twitter, I guess assessed it against its 19 own policies, or did something with it -- we don't know -- and came back and said, no, this 20 doesn't violate our policies. Right?
21 A That's right.
22 Q Okay. So you had no control over that. You just sent it off, and they did
23 what they did and sent it back and said no?
24 A That's right. And we, in fact, have hard empirical evidence on this, in that 25 we went -- for the 4,000-some URLs that were sent to any platform that we went and

1 checked them after the election of what had happened to them, and we found that in
2 only 35 percent of the time had they made any decision, which is what you would expect
3 if they were making their own determination per their policies of what they should do.
4 Q Sorry. So in only 35 percent of the time had they make any decision,
5 meaning that --
6 A I'm sorry. Did they take any actions on anything we referred to them.
7 Q So in -- sorry. So in 65 percent -- am I doing the math right? In 65 percent
8 of the time, they just didn't do anything with it at all?
9 A That is yes. That is what we saw. And the most common action -- and so
10 I'm now looking at pages 39 and 40 of the report.
11 So of the 35 percent, the way that breaks down is 21 percent of all the URLs that 12 were reported were labeled. 13 percent were moved, and one was called soft blocked, 13 which means it wasn't removed, but it was hard to get to.
14 Q Okay.
15 A So the vast majority of time -- first, the majority of time they did not take 16 any action on our report. And when they did, the majority of the time almost two-thirds
17 of the time, their action was to label it. And generally the labels here were pretty 18 generic. It was something like: Elections are complicated. Here's a link to our 19 platforms, information, or our voting center, or something like that.
20 Q Okay. And you didn't have any insight into why they took particular actions
21 with respect to any particular tweet?
22 A No. If they got back to us, sometimes they would say: We determine this 23 is not violative of policy. And that's I think the most we would generally ever here. We 24 had to make this table by going -- we built software that went and checked every single 25 URL to see how it was being treated at that time.

1 Q And I want to look at the next example that was presented. It's EIP-257.
2 A Uh-huh.
3 Q This is misinformation related to absentee ballots and fraud. And there's 4 actually -- there's not an archived web -- an archived URL for this one. But I think it
5 says -- if you look at the description on the bottom of the second page -- or I guess the 6 back of the first page, it says --
7 A So -- I'm sorry. Yeah, I see.
8 Q So I want to -- so I actually want to look at comment number two, which is 9 where the description is.
10 A Uh-huh.
11 Q So it says: "This user is claiming that his father who died in 2018 received
12 an absentee ballot in the mail. According to" -- and then it has a link to the Connecticut 13 Election Services website -- "from the state of Connecticut, ballots are not mailed to 14 individuals until October 2nd, 2020. It's possible (following the calendar) that the mail
15 was in fact a registration form." And then it has a link to what appears to be the post.
16 Do you see where it says that?
17 A I do, yes.
18 Q Okay. So, in this instance, it appears that this content involved a claim that 19 could not have been true. Correct?
20 A Yes.
21 Q Okay. And it specifically concerned ballots sent through the mail?
22 A That's right.
23 Q And ballots, you would agree, are a key part of election infrastructure?
24 A Yes.
25 Q Okay. And so if there's claims spreading about -- inaccurate claims

1 spreading about whether ballots are available, that could impact people's ability
2 to -- whether people choose to vote in an election or it could impact whether they do
3 vote in an election?
4 A Yes. In fact, I think what the evidence shows is that all of the discussion
5 that's incorrect about vote-by-mail ended up disenfranchising a decent number of people
6 who decided not to utilize voting by mail during COVID and perhaps didn't vote at all.
7 Q Okay. And so in my first hour of questioning, we talked about time, place,
8 and manner. This is kind of core time, place, and manner. Right?
9 A Yes.
10 Q And then turning to the description that we -- it's the second page, the 11 description. It appears that the original flag came in from an individual named Gabe
12 Rosenberg. If you look, he is the communications director for the Connecticut Secretary
13 of State at the time. Right?
14 A That's what this says, yes.
15 Q So the individual who actually identified the concerning information worked 16 for the Secretary of State of Connecticut?
17 A That's correct.
18 Q And presumably the Secretary of State of Connecticut would know for a fact 19 the rules around time, place, and manner for voting in that State. Right?
20 A You would hope so, yes.
21 Q Okay. And I want to walk through one more example. We actually -- so
22 we didn't print off the spreadsheet quite like this because in the examples I'm going to
23 show you there were a lot of columns that were unused. So to make it a little more 24 usable, we just took it out and put it into a single page. So it's not how it appears in the 25 actual spreadsheet.

1 So this is exhibit number 12?

2 [Stamos Exhibit No. 12

3 Was marked for identification.]

4 BY [redacted]:

5 Q And I'll give you a minute to review it.

6 A Okay.

7 Q So this is EIP-396.

8 A Uh-huh.

9 Q The short summary is described as "Potential for voter fraud in Oregon and

10 Washington."

11 And I want to actually introduce the -- we don't have it on the sheet that I just 12 handed to you, but the archive URL, the actual underlying Facebook post at issue.

13 We'll mark this as exhibit number 13.

14 [Stamos Exhibit No. 13

15 Was marked for identification.]

16 BY [redacted]:

17 Q And it says, the comment 1 says: Hi Facebook, Reddit, and Twitter. This

18 claim, based on a 4chan thread, that voter can be changed and mail-in ballots cancelled

19 with only limited personal information is rapidly spreading online. There is an

20 associated Gateway Pundit story that is a primary catalyst for the spread of the story off

21 4chan. The Gateway Pundit headline does nothing to dispute the claims even though a

22 number of them are debunked in the story itself. Other claims within the story are left

23 unfact checked with the publication simply stating 'We have not yet been able to confirm

24 or debunk this claim.'

25 As the headline '4chan Users Claim to Have Found Way to Easily Change People's

1 Voter registration and Cancel Ballots Online in Oregon and Washington' leaves open false
2 claims (debunked within the article itself) that delegitimize voting we recommend it be
3 removed from your platforms?"
4 Do you see where it says that?
5 A Yes, I do.
6 Q Okay. So in this instance there was actually -- this is a claim about changing
7 votes, changing ballots. Right?
8 A Yes.
9 Q Again, that's kind of core time, place, or manner. Right?
10 A Right. I mean, I believe they're making the claim that you could cancel
11 ballots and that people had that ability, which is I believe not true.
12 Q Okay. And understanding that, what I want to look at actually is comment
13 number six, because it appears that this was actually sent to Facebook. Right?
14 A It was sent to Facebook, Reddit, and Twitter.
15 Q Facebook, Reddit, and Twitter. And I'm sorry, is -- comment number one is 16 that an internal comment? Is your read on that that that was a comment from student
17 researcher sending this to Facebook and Twitter and Reddit or -- 18 A This would probably be the tier 1 or tier 2 student --
19 Q Okay.
20 A -- writing this out, and then it would be a public comment that was seen by
21 them.
22 Q Okay. And I think in the spreadsheet we don't know what Facebook -- what 23 Twitter and Reddit did with it.
24 A Right.
25 Q But I want to look at comment number six. It says: "[REDACTED]," which

1 I believe is the name of the student here?

2 A Yes.

3 Q "Just following up here. Thanks for flagging this content. After a

4 thorough review of the content, we can confirm that it doesn't violate our community

5 standard as it relates to Voter Suppression." Correct?

6 A Yes.

7 Q Okay. And so Facebook didn't take this down. Correct?

8 A Most likely did not.

9 Q And I want to look at what we've introduced as exhibit 13, which is the 10 actual Facebook post.

11 There's no label on this. Right?

12 A I'm sorry. What do you mean by "label"?

13 Q So there's not -- it's not labeled as inaccurate on the face of the tweet -- or 14 on the face of the post?

15 A Yes. Facebook has not applied the label to this, no.

16 Q Okay. And if you look up in the upper left-hand corner, do you see where it

17 says "6/22/23 7:33 p.m."?

18 A Yes.

19 Q That was yesterday. Right?

20 A Yes.

21 Q Okay. So we actually printed this off yesterday. This is still up on the web

22 today?

23 A Right.

24 Q So there's been no action taken on this post?

25 A That's right. This would be in the 65 percent of the URLs in which no action

1 was taken.

2 Q Okay. So just because a student analyst recommended that something be

3 removed didn't mean that social media companies actually removed the content.

4 Correct?

5 A That's correct.

6 Q Okay. Was content moderation the primary goal of the EIP?

7 A No.

8 Q Okay. And, in fact, an example like this where the ticket was not

9 where -- sorry -- where the information was flagged for a social media company but it was

10 not actually taken down by the social media company, would this still be of use to EIP for 11 your research purposes?

12 A Yes. So we were able to archive this and then include it in our analysis of 13 the different narratives that were being spread.

14 Q Okay. And it's because EIP was, by and large, a research project. Right?

15 A Yes. The fact that 65 percent of the time steps were not taken does not

16 mean the project was a failure. In fact, I think it was a success because of the research

17 we did.

18 Q And the 65 percent of the time, that's only of the things that were actually

19 raised to the attention of social media companies. Right?

20 A That's two things. One, it's only things that were raised to their attention.

21 Two, that is a conservative estimate. Because when we looked later, content could have

22 been taken down by individuals or the entire accounts taken down by one of these

23 platforms for their violations without us having any part to do with it. So 35 percent is

24 the absolutely high watermark of actions that could have been taken based upon our 25 referrals.

1 Q Okay. So it's potentially an overestimation actually?

2 A It's almost certainly an overestimation. It's the best we could do for our

3 research.

4 Q Okay. So just to make this real clear, there were around 600 tickets total.

5 Correct?

6 A That's correct, yes.

7 Q And of that, some small subset was flagged for social media companies

8 because of either threats to life and safety, fraud, or concerns about violating the 9 company's platforms or policies?

10 A Yeah. So if you look on page 37: "Of the 639 tickets," it says, "363 of 11 them tagged an external partner to either report the content, provide situational

12 awareness, or suggest a possible need for fact checking or a counter-narrative."

13 So if you look at the next page you can see which one of them were actually

14 tagged to a platform. So this would not count when we said -- say, sent something to

15 EI-ISAC around, hey, you might want to tell Maryland to go do a blog post, or here's an FYI

16 for Kentucky. So the upper bound would be 363, but then you could see on this table on 17 38 the details of that.

18 Q So it was actually less than 3 -- it was actually probably --

19 A Yeah. We would have to go slice the numbers in a different way, but yes.

20 Q Right. But it's actually less than 363 tickets total?

21 A That's right. That's the absolute high watermark, yeah.

22 Q And of the 363, even assuming that was the universe, which is

23 probably -- that's probably more, in 65 percent of the cases, the social media companies

24 did nothing?

25 A That's right.

1 Q Okay. All right. Moving away from the Jira tickets.

2 A I'm sure we'll come back.

2 [2:33 p.m.]

3 BY [redacted]:

4 Q Are you familiar with allegations or criticisms suggesting that EIP engaged in 5 censorship?

6 A Yes.

7 Q What's your response to those criticisms?

8 A We did not engage in censorship. EIP had no power to take down content

9 or even have it labeled. And that was neither our goal nor the outcome from us doing

10 our work.

11 Q Some activists have claimed that SIO cajoled or pressured social media

12 companies to take certain actions. Are you familiar with those allegations?

13 A Yes, I have seen those allegations.

14 Q And are those allegations accurate?

15 A No.

16 Q Okay. And can you explain that?

17 A We would send URLs to platforms we thought they clearly violated the 18 policies. If you look into the tickets themselves, there was not a "take this down or else"

19 or a demand. I'm not sure how we would demand. We're an academic research

20 project. We have no coercive power in any way. All we could do is refer these to them

21 and then document the outcomes of what was going on in the election.

22 Q And, just by way of example, how many people total were involved in the

23 EIP?

24 A A little over 100, I believe.

25 Q How many employees does Facebook have, if you know?

A Over I think 60,000.

Q Okay. So EIP is kind of a small fish? Right?

A All of EIP is smaller than just the team I supervised at Facebook, yes.

Q Thank you for that context.

Did EIP have a blacklist of accounts that it had -- that it kept track of?

A No, absolutely not.

Q Do you at SIO keep a blacklist of accounts?

A No.

Q Mr. Shellenberger, who we talked about in the first hour, he stated that SIO published a report urging news media to abandon the Pentagon Papers ethic and instead focus on the perpetrators of the hack and leak rather than its contents. Is that accurate?

A That's not.

Q Okay. Do you have any idea where that allegation came from?

A So two different people at Stanford, [redacted] and [redacted], wrote a white paper about how to handle hacker leaks. They are not part of SIO. They had no role in EIP. Stanford has something like 17,000 or 18,000 staff members. And so I am neither the former Secretary of State nor an Olympic swimmer obviously. And so I think he was just -- automatically assumed that anybody from Stanford that he could ascribe that their writings to us, that would be incorrect. And those people have nothing to with EIP in any way.

Q And I actually should have asked this much earlier, how many people are employed by SIO?

A Currently? So, if you count the post docs who are technically employees but are kind of pseudo students, I think we have seven or eight full-time employees.

1 Q Okay. And Stanford has about how many employees total?
2 A I think around 17,000 to 19,000.
3 Q So there's probably a lot of work being done at Stanford that SIO is not
4 involved in. Is that fair to say?
5 A There's a couple of things happening on campus that they don't ask me
6 about, yes.
7 Q Okay. There have been allegations that EIPs were targeting Conservative
8 political speech. Are you familiar with those allegations?
9 A I am.
10 Q Are those allegations accurate?
11 A No.
12 Q Could you explain?
13 A Our goal going into the election was to have an apolitical set of standards
14 around rumors, disinformation and misinformation about the functioning of the election.
15 That could have come from either side. The outcome was asymmetrical, but that is 16 clearly because one side lost and one candidate pushed his followers to believe that it
17 had been stolen. And so I think that's a natural conclusion. But our conclusion, if you
18 look at our statistics around Conservative versus Progressive, which I think people get this 19 idea or the list of the top super spreaders, all of that is part of our academic research, our 20 analysis after the fact. Going in, we tried to be as careful as possible. And, in fact, in 21 2022, we were pretty prepared for the possibility that lots of this content would be
22 coming from both sides because there were candidates in the election who had a history
23 of election denial --
24 Q Okay?
25 A -- from the Democratic side as well.

1 Q And I want to get back to what your research found in just a sound. But,
2 before we do that, when EIP was founded in July 2020, did you reach out to potential
3 partners in both the right leaning and left leaning spheres?
4 A We did.
5 [redacted]. I want to introduce as exhibit 14 an email dated July 21, 2020.
6 [Stamos Exhibit No. 14
7 Was marked for identification.]
8 BY [redacted]:
9 Q This was actually produced by the University of Washington in their 10 production.
11 A Okay.
12 Q And it's part of a chain that began at the calendar invite dated July 30th, 202,
13 but we're only going to look at the top email. I introduced the whole chain for clarity.
14 This email was sent by [redacted]?
15 A Yes.
16 Q And that's a Stanford student. Right?
17 A That's right.
18 Q It's dated July 31st, 2020, time-stamped 14:30:39. It says: Hello all.
19 Thank you for joining us in yesterday's meeting. Please find this week's Next Steps 20 below. Also copied into our Minutes Document at the top of today's notes section and 21 our Slack #general.
22 And then it says: 7/30 EIP Workflows Sync Next Steps. We'll look at number 23 one.
24 It says: Number one, meetings on the calendar for next week: 8/3 -- so
25 August 3 -- NASS/NASED -- that's the National Association of State Election Directors?

1 A Yeah. National Association of Secretaries of State and the National
2 Association of State Election Directors.
3 Q And that's what we talked about earlier; it is kind of a trade association for
4 election --
5 A Right. That's the collection of all the people who run elections at the State
6 level.
7 Q Okay. Common Cause, Twitter. On 8/4, which August 4. ASD, which 8 is -- what's ASD?
9 A I believe this ASD -- I'm not sure actually. I'd have to look this up one.
10 Q Okay. CIS, DNC -- that's the Democratic National Committee. Right?
11 A That's correct.
12 Q And then it says RNC. That's the Republican National Committee? Right?
13 A Yes.
14 Q So is it fair to say that EIP met with the RNC almost as soon as the project
15 was underway?
16 A We reached out to them. I'm not sure who it was -- who actually took the 17 meeting with them. I don't think I was part of that meeting. But we did offer to them
18 the ability for them to send in anything that they saw.
19 Q And did the RNC take you up on that offer?
20 A I don't believe they ended up sending us anything.
21 Q Okay. Did they not agree to join the -- to join your effort, or is it they didn't 22 send you anything?
23 A So, for these kinds of partners, they didn't really have to join anything. We 24 just offered them: Here's an email address, that if you see anything, you can send it in.
25 Q Okay. But you certainly made them aware of what you were doing?

1 A Yes.

2 Q And, as far as you know, this meeting actually did take place?

3 A I don't recall. I remember very distinctly sending the initial introduction

4 email to the general counsel's office.

5 Q At the Republican National Committee?

6 A At the RNC, yes.

7 Q Okay. Do you know approximately when you sent that email?

8 A No, but we can look into that.

9 Q So you said a couple seconds ago that you were very careful with how you

10 approached this project in part because you were mindful of the concerns about bias.

11 Do you recall saying that?

12 A Yes. I think that's a paraphrase, but yes.

13 Q It's definitely a paraphrase. We can't ask the court reporter to read back in

14 this setting, but --

15 A Because that slows everything down incredibly.

16 Q But you agree that, when you undertook this project, you had in mind the 17 fact that research needs to be clean. Right? As clean as possible. It has to be -- you

18 have to address concerns about bias?

19 A Right. I mean, the output here would not be acceptable to us or pass peer 20 review if the work we did was biased politically.

21 Q Are there particular steps that can be taken to account for the risk of bias

22 during the research process?

23 A So we had guidelines of -- for the students, as well as we did training to

24 make sure that they were fairly applying what our standards were for scope. So I think

25 that's where the most likely bias would creep in, would be in a situation where on that

1 initial decision of "oh, I see something," is it actually in scope or not, if they had some
2 feeling of "oh, a complaint from a Democrat is legit, but a complaint from a Republican is
3 not." So we tried to make sure that, in those initial steps, they were accurately
4 recording the things that they saw.
5 Q Okay. And when you were -- after December 2020, when you were going
6 through and looking at the data that you had collected, did you take any particular steps
7 as you were analyzing that data to account for the potential bias?
8 A Well, so we had standard -- you know, a big thing you do in this kind of post 9 hoc data analysis is labeling, where this horrible, horrible job of just going through and for 10 all the pieces of data applying fair labels. And so we had standards for that. In fact, we 11 then did what's called intercoder reliability. So we had multiple people code all of this 12 data. So this is a standard part of social science research, so it's H251. So we 13 published the reliability scores where we tracked from multiple different people doing
14 this work how much differentiation there were in their results.
15 Q Okay. So there's particular actual research steps that you took, and I'm 16 sorry; what is it called multi --
17 A Intercoder reliability.
18 Q Intercoder reliability. There's particular research steps that you take to try
19 and make sure the data is as accurate as possible. Is that fair to say?
20 A That's fair to say, yes.
21 Q Okay. And, actually, during the actual process of gathering the data, so July
22 to December 2020, you actually did identify and report on misleading claims spreading
23 through left-wing -- left-leaning audiences as well as right-leaning audiences. Correct?
24 A That's correct, yes.
25 Q So, for example, you reported on misinformation concerning Postmaster

1 General Louis DeJoy. Do you remember that?

2 A That's right. I believe we did a blog post on that.

3 Q And what was that misinformation, if you recall?

4 A There was a lot of concerns by Democrats that changes to how the post

5 office was handling vote by mail were specifically meant to disenfranchise Democrats.

6 Q And were those claims accurate?

7 A I don't believe they were. And I believe we wrote it up as demonstrated

8 there was no evidence behind those claims.

9 Q Okay. And then, skipping ahead into the 2022 election, EIP actually

10 analyzed six networks of fake accounts attempting to influence midterm elections and

11 determined that they were acting ways that were generally pushed toward Progressive

12 causes. Right?

13 A That's correct. Those were networks that were run by Iranian and Chinese

14 groups that were one very Progressive, kind of Democratic Socialist, Bernie-type content,

15 Medicare for All and such. And then were particularly attacking Republicans. In one

16 example, there was an entire Floridians against Rubio group where all the Floridians were

17 actually Chinese -- not of Chinese descent living in Florida, sorry; people working for the 18 People's Republic of China.

19 Q So, in the 2022 election you actually assessed that there was a -- foreign 20 actors were acting on behalf of Progressive causes. Is that fair to say?

21 A Yeah, in both 2020 and 2022. So, in 2020, the most important foreign

22 influence campaign was an attempt by the Iranians to convince Americans that the Proud

23 Boys were stealing the election from President Trump. This actually came to us via a tip

24 from the NAACP. I believe it's the only thing they sent to us, was they -- members of the 25 NAACP, kind of prominent Black leaders, were getting death threats in email, and so

1 they -- saying, "We are from the Proud Boys" -- and then sent it to us. And I believe the
2 folks in the NAACP really thought it was the Proud Boys. So we asked them to send us
3 the technical details, and then those linked to a video. And the video showed a desktop
4 of somebody as they purportedly broke into the election systems of Alaska, downloaded
5 data, and then used a somewhat obscure mail-in ballot generation system that's meant 6 for overseas servicemembers that they scripted up creating hundreds of thousands of 7 fake votes in Alaska to try to swing the election, all of them for Trump. And then
8 specifically I think they had a Proud Boys background. And the whole thing was set I
9 remember to Metallica's "Enter Sandman." So the first indication is that no, like, actual 10 White supremacist group would use anything off of the Metallica "Black" album as the 11 sellout album of Metallica as their theme. Second, there were technical indicators so
12 we actually could tell from both the emails. And then we paused the video, and there
13 was a moment where they forgot to redact part of it. And, instead of attacking systems
14 in Alaska, it was actually a virtual private server in Moldova where they had set up a fake
15 website for the Alaska State Secretary of State's Office. So, looking at the Moldova stuff
16 and such, we could tell this is almost certainly a foreign actor, and there are death threats
17 involved. So this is a situation where, you know, we did our normal EI-ISAC process, but 18 we also directly sent it to the FBI all of our results. And then, 2 days later, I'm not going 19 to take any credit for this -- I'm sure lots of people in the government were working -- but 20 I believe the Director of the FBI and other core leaders went on the dais in the White
21 House and said: We have detected foreign interference from Iranians trying to blame
22 President Trump.
23 So, yes, the most interesting foreign campaign in 2020 was actually directed at 24 trying to make it look like the Proud Boys were throwing the election to President Trump.
25 Q Is that documented in your report?

1 A Yes. And we wrote a whole blog post about it.

2 Q So, notwithstanding that, at the end of the day, you said a couple of minutes

3 ago that you did identify the most super spreaders, I guess, or the most -- the 4 most -- actually withdraw that.

5 Is it fair to say that, in 2020, EIP did ultimately identify more misinformation or 6 information spreading among right-leaning audiences than among left-leaning audiences?

7 A Right. When we did our analysis, while there was disinformation among

8 left-wing analysis, the more right-wing content and the right-wing accounts were much

9 more effective and had a larger spread in virality of their content.

10 Q And did your research explain why it was that more disinformation was 11 spreading through the more right-leaning accounts?

12 A I mean, I think the obvious example is that President Trump lost. And,

13 therefore, he was the one who denied the election. You're not going to have -- well, let

14 me take that back. There is a small but very dedicated set of Democrats who believe

15 that the 2020 election -- that President Biden won legitimately but that the Republicans

16 winning House seats was fake. That they really believe that there's some kind of bizarre

17 conspiracy where they forgot to rig it for Donald Trump, but they did rig it for local House

18 races. And so there are people like that, but it's a much less widespread belief. And I

19 think the base thing is that President Trump lost, and he's the one who told his followers

20 "it was stolen from me." So, therefore, most of the excitement is going to be there. If

21 the other side won, then there's no reason to think that, you know, that --that it was 22 thrown.

23 Q Do you think, if outcome had been reversed, that Donald Trump had won

24 and Joe Biden had lost, do you think you might have seen trends in the other direction?

25 A I think you would have seen trends in the other direction. I don't think there's any indication that a losing President -- Vice President Biden would have been as aggressive. But certainly I think it's a possibility. If you look -- the specific example I think about from the Democratic side is Representative Stacey Abrams, who was very aggressive in 2018 of saying it was stolen. In fact, that's something we were looking out for in 2022 when she ran again. In the end, there wasn't a lot of content, probably because she lost by a big margin so it just looked silly. But certainly I think -- and this is actually my biggest fear as an American is that we'll get into a place that whoever loses always thinks it was stolen from them.

Q Thank you. We can go off the record.

[Recess.]

BY [redacted]:

Q Mr. Stamos, I wanted to touch back on topic we discussed in maybe in both hours, but certainly the first one. With respect to your tenure at Facebook, when you had the meeting you described with Mr. Zuckerberg, [redacted], and a few others high up in the company --

A Uh-huh.

Q -- was it one meeting or a series of meetings, if you recall?

A There was one big meeting where I presented our results. And then there was a series of meetings to figure out what to do about it, using I think generally a small -- so I think there's only two meetings with Mark Zuckerberg in that initial set and then a smaller group broke off to try to figure out what we were going to do and to structure the investigation of what we were going to.

Q And, during your tenure with Facebook, how frequently would you meet with Mr. Zuckerberg?

A Not very. I'd probably be in a meeting with him two to three times a

1 month. We almost never met one on one during my time there.

2 Q And you said it was kind of well understood within the company that people

3 are upset with Facebook on the 2016 election?

4 A Yes.

5 Q And did it seem it was more heavily weighted by one side of the political

6 aisle than others -- than the other?

7 A I mean, it was pretty clear that Democrats were more angry at the company,

8 yeah.

9 Q And can you just say a bit more, what is it that, to your understanding, the 10 Democrats believed Facebook did wrong?

11 A So, you know, things changed, but initially, after the election, a lot of blame

12 was put on fake news of just any kind of content that was fake being on the platform.

13 And then, later, especially after we made our announcements, the assumption was that a 14 significant amount of the anti-Clinton content was Russian.

15 Q Okay. And you left Facebook -- do you remember which month in 2018?

16 A I believe August.

17 Q So just a few months before the U.S. 2022 -- U.S. 2018 midterms?

18 A That's correct.

19 Q And, in the lead up to those midterms, do you recall there being concern

20 within the company regarding whether a similar dynamic could play out as it had in 2016?

21 A We were certainly concerned about there being some kind of manipulation

22 of the election, and it happened in a platform, which was why at that point we had built a

23 team to deal with it and we were taking those meetings, as I discussed, with both other

24 companies, as well as with the relevant government players.

25 Q Okay. With respect to the steps the government was taking, if I

1 understood your answer correctly with the criticism, it seems two parties at least.
2 Right?
3 Mr. Bellinger. Can I just say we are now at over 5 hours. What he did at 4 Facebook a number of years ago is not relevant to your investigation. You had said we
5 would really try to get out after 4 hours. So I would really like to try to keep this focused
6 on the parts that are relevant to the committee's inquiry.
7 [redacted]. We are happy to turn right back to the questioning. We will 8 complete it, and there will be other topics as well.
9 BY [redacted]:
10 Q It sounded like there were two parts to your answer: the fake news concern, 11 which sounded content-based, that whatever is being posted is not true, and then the 12 fact that some of it allegedly came from Russia so that would be actor based. Is that a 13 fair understanding?
14 A That's right. And then, on the latter, on the Russia, that would also be 15 behavior based since I think the assumption was they were not saying they were 16 Russians.
17 Q And, again, to your recollection, the pressure, the concerns, the awareness 18 of the political backlash that the company was facing, that was still present when you the 19 left the company in 2018. Is that right?
20 A Yes.
21 Q With the understanding that you weren't at the company, but you said you
22 remained in contact with colleagues and maybe friends at Facebook, do you know if that 23 was still present in 2020 -- that feeling?
24 Mr. Bellinger. Again, this is really not relevant to --
25 [redacted]. The witness has the opportunity to answer.

1 Mr. Bellinger. He can answer if he thinks it's relevant.

2 Mr. Stamos. So, yeah, I mean, this has nothing to do with EIP, but certainly, by
3 2020, we were still in what we people called the tech lash, which is kind of an attack, you
4 know, political actors attacking the platforms for a variety of different things, but 5 including concern of foreign interference in elections and fake news and disinformation
6 overall.

7 BY [redacted]:

8 Q And, to the extent you have a knowledge or understanding of this, is it your
9 understanding that Twitter and Facebook both took action to moderate the Hunter Biden
10 laptop story the day it was issued?

11 A So my understanding -- and all of this comes from public reporting and what 12 I observed. So I have no special insight here. But yes, my understanding is, in both 13 those platforms, put some kind of limit on the story. I believe Twitter banned The New 14 York Post URL so you couldn't post the story at all. Facebook, it's my understanding, did 15 some kind of limitation on spread so that you could post it, but they were not 16 recommending it or it wasn't being highly ranked and that both those companies then 17 removed those within a day or 2.

18 Q And, in your opinion, if absent this tech lash, to use the term you were using,
19 do you think the companies would have taken the same content moderation steps that 20 they chose to?

21 A Specifically around Hunter Biden?

22 Q Yes?

23 A I don't know. I think -- so my position is I -- I don't -- I think they made
24 mistakes in doing that. There were two parts to the Russian interference in 2016, as we 25 talked about. There was the hacking leak campaign by the GRU, and there was the

1 activity that was right on the platforms. And the companies responded to both of those
2 things. But the truth is on the hacking leak campaign, there's not much you can do as a
3 platform because the real target there is trying to get the media to cover stories based 4 upon hacked data, which was very effective by the GRU in 2016. And so I am not
5 sure -- it's impossible to imagine what was going on different, but I do believe they made 6 a mistake in that having policies that make them act in a situation where the content is 7 not being posted first under the platform really means that they are so disconnected that 8 there's no way they can make a reasonable determination of whether something was 9 hacked.
10 Q And why do you think the companies adopted the content moderation
11 policies they did with respect to hack and leak?
12 A Because it was a real big part of the Russian campaign in 2016. From my 13 perspective, it probably was the more effective part of the Russian campaign. You 14 know, they very effectively changed the tenor of the conversation in the last couple of 15 months of the campaign to be about Hillary Clinton's email server and stuff like that. So
16 I think they were reacting to that. And the feeling that they were being held
17 responsible, I'm sure that's part of it. But, from my perspective, the appropriate thing
18 for them to be responsible for is the content that is posted directly on their platform
19 where they have some kind of knowledge. So it's different to me; if The New York Post
20 posts something, it's up for The New York Post to authenticate whether they got the data
21 from a Russian actor or something. If somebody creates an account and posts on 22 Facebook, it's Facebook's responsibility to make sure that person isn't lying about who 23 they are.
24 Q We had talked in the first hour about malinformation and the difficulties
25 with that term?

1 A Yeah.

2 Q Again, to your understanding, do you recall any Federal Government

3 agencies that would use the term "malinformation"?

4 A I -- there's an acronym around MDM for mis-, dis-, and malinformation.

5 And so I believe DHS has used the MDM, and maybe some other government agencies

6 have picked up on that.

7 Q And then CISA, which you identified as falling within DHS, do you recall if

8 CISA has ever used the MDM --

9 A I --

10 Q -- term?

11 A I believe that was the name of the subcommittee in CSAC, the Cybersecurity

12 Advisory Council, that was looking at this issue, is they called it the MDM Subcommittee.

13 Q To your understanding, what did the MDM Subcommittee look at?

14 A They were talking about CISA's role in issues involving mis- and

15 disinformation.

16 Q And what does the second M stand for in MDM?

17 A Malinformation.

18 Q Again, understanding that you don't prefer the term, what is your

19 understanding of what CISA meant by malinformation?

20 A My general standing is that malinformation is supposed to involve any 21 information that could be used to weaponize, to cause harm.

22 Q And, to the extent you have an understanding, what is encapsulated under

23 CISA's understanding about malinformation that is not already encapsulated by this

24 information?

25 A I honestly don't know. The term is used by different people. I've never

1 seen like a good definition. So I'd rather not speculate as to whoever at CISA used the
2 term of what they meant by that, you know.
3 Q When you -- you mentioned that you do work with Dr. Kate Starbird.
4 When you engage with one another, does your work ever concern malinformation?
5 A So, I mean, if you use malinformation as kind of an umbrella term, then yes,
6 all of our work on EIP and the like you could count it as malinformation. Again, I would
7 not use that, but if you had to use it, then yes, our conversations would be -- include
8 techniques that include malinformation.
9 Q But would you use the term malinformation, or is that disfavored by the 10 academics you're familiar with?
11 A Some people use it. I'm just saying I don't like it because I don't think 12 there's a good definition in the way we have definitions for mis- and dis-.
13 [redacted]. Exhibit 15.
14 [Stamos Exhibit No. 15
15 Was marked for identification.]
16 BY [redacted]:
17 Q If I could have you flip to the last two pages, Bates No. 159 and 160, there
18 appears to be an email sent from @2020partnership.atlassian.net, and there is reference
19 to an EIP ticket number. To you understanding, is this consistent with an email
20 notification that would be generated by the Jira ticketing system?
21 A Yes.
22 Q And then, if I could have you read the email at the top of Bates No. 159.
23 There's an email -- you are not copied on this email chain, but there's an email that 24 says -- the second sentence says: Evidently Director Krebs personally reached out to 25 Stamos asking what happened around this event, around the time the content was taken

1 down, which is only an hour after this ticket was created.

2 Do you recall if Chris Krebs reached out to you regarding various EIP events?

3 A I don't recall this situation, of him reaching out in this situation.

4 Q How would Chris Krebs know that an event was being monitored by EIP?

5 A So, in this case, it looks like the EIP ticket was forwarded to [redacted] here who

6 probably showed it to him. Although Krebs is not on this exchange so somebody

7 probably showed it to him, or there is another thread.

8 Q So, to your understanding, was Chris Krebs potentially receiving email

9 notifications from the EIP?

10 A He should not have been receiving direct notifications, but somebody could

11 have forwarded it to him. It looks like [redacted] might have forwarded this to people within

12 CISA.

13 Q Do you know how frequently that occurred?

14 A I don't.

15 Q The email address has got an atlassian.net email domain. So, if [redacted] is 16 forwarding it, is she forwarding it from the Jira system?

17 A Yes, she could have put -- she could have put him in there to get straight

18 from Jira. That's what this looks like or -- yes.

19 Q And by "him," are you referring to [redacted]?

20 A [redacted], yes.

21 Q So could individuals be added to the Jira system how does [redacted] receive an

22 email notification that [redacted] is in the Jira system?

23 A He would had to have been added to the ticket.

24 Q And he has a -- if you look an email above his email address is cisa.dhs.gov.

25 It's your understanding that's the email domain address for CISA?

1 A Yes.

2 Q Now, when an individual is added to Jira, do you put in the email address, or

3 is it -- do they have to accept a notification in advance before they can be forwarded

4 the --

5 A I'm not sure exactly what the initial notification would be, whether you just

6 get the ticket or whether you'd have to accept it.

7 Q Do you know who might know that information?

8 A Sir, you're talking about, like, specific generic configurations that don't exist

9 anymore because we haven't used this system in 3 years.

10 Q So your answer is no one would have this information?

11 A I'm not sure we'd have the ability to recreate exactly what the configuration

12 was at that time.

13 Q Do you recall forwarding Jira tickets to anybody during your operation of EIP

14 in 2020?

15 A It's possible. I don't remember forwarding anything, but it's possible.

16 Q Independent of EIP, in the fall of 2020, how frequently were you in 17 communication with Director Krebs?

18 A We probably texted every couple of weeks.

19 Q And did you have other professional interactions, other than EIP during the 20 fall of 2020?

21 A With anybody or with him?

22 Q I'm sorry. With Director Krebs?

23 A I don't recall all the ways in which we interacted in the fall of 2020.

24 Q Are there any that you recall?

25 A So there were events, election security events, that we probably ran into

1 each other.

2 Q Was there any --

3 A It's possible he came to calls in which we were briefing people. I'm not

4 sure.

5 Q When you say "we were briefing people," are you referring to EIP?

6 A Yes.

7 Q And are you referring to, for example, briefs you provided to external

8 stakeholders?

9 A So we did regular briefings on the things that were trending or that we saw

10 happening. And so most of those were public, but, occasionally, I think we did private 11 ones for folks like EI-ISAC and such.

12 Q Do you recall how many private briefings you had with EI-ISAC?

13 A No.

14 Q When you say it was with EI-ISAC, the individuals who were representing the 15 EI-ISAC, are they employees of CIS?

16 A It should have been. It's possible that we sent things for them to forward

17 to their membership. I don't recall our entire schedule of what we did that fall.

18 Q What form would these briefings typically take? Would it be in person, 19 over Zoom?

20 A Probably Zoom. It was COVID; nobody was meeting in person.

21 Q In advance of a briefing, would there be an agenda circulated?

22 A I don't think so. There's probably just a calendar invite.

23 Q After a meeting, were meeting minutes ever circulated?

24 A Not that I know of, no.

25 Q Do you have any recollection of Director Krebs asking to attend one of these

1 briefings?

2 A I don't recall what interactions we had in the fall of 2020. So he might have
3 asked, he might not. If we put out something to the EI-ISAC, he might have gotten 4 something forwarded to him. He might have attended; he might not have. I'm not
5 sure.

6 Q [redacted] email references that Director Krebs reached out around the time the 7 content was taken down, which was only an hour after this ticket was created: If the 8 system is to work, we will need the turnaround time to be much faster for sending these 9 tickets out to States.

10 What is your understanding of what the, quote/unquote, turnaround time for a
11 typical ticket?

12 A So I think in this he's talking to the folks at CIS. So it says: If the system is 13 to work, we'll need the turnaround time to be much faster for sending these tickets out
14 to States. So I think what he's saying is that the delay between us seeing this content
15 and labeling in this EI-ISAC and then the speed at which then that went to California in 16 this case was too slow.

17 Q Okay. So the system here is the EI-ISAC he is referring to, not EIP?

18 A Yes, because, one, we are not on this thread. It is Aaron Wilson and [redacted]
19 [redacted] from CIS are the people he's emailing. So I think he is talking about EI-ISAC's. If 20 we say: Hey, send this to California, that it should be faster for that to go straight to 21 California.

22 Q Would EI-ISAC send that to California only after EIP had conducted its 23 analysis?

24 A So we'd have to go look at this ticket to see exactly how it started, but since 25 this is not how -- it does not look like this is a ticket that came from CIS. This would have been us finding something and then tagging in EI-ISAC, saying something along the lines of: You should probably notify Sonoma County.

Q We can take these back.

[redacted]. Exhibit 16.

[Stamos Exhibit No. 16

Was marked for identification.]

BY [redacted]:

Q Is this email consistent with the Jira notification we saw on the previous email chain, different EIP ticket but --

A This looks like the kind of notification that we would get from Jira.

Q Okay. And is it [redacted], is that -- am I reading -- saying her name correctly?

A Yes.

Q On the front line?

A Yes.

Q And she's with Stanford and with EIP. Is that right?

A That's right.

Q Okay. I will have you take a look at below where it says: View request and turn off this request's notifications.

It says: This is shared with TikTok, Facebook, EI-ISAC, Twitter, CIS misinformation reporting and CISA CFITF. Identified earlier in the spreadsheet, it's your understanding that CIS misinformation reporting versus EI-ISAC. Is that right?

A I believe so, yes.

Q What is your understanding of what CISA CFITF refers to?

A I don't know. I believe FITF is Foreign Influence Task Force. I'm not sure

1 what the C stands for.

2 Q Okay. Was the Foreign Influence Task Force housed within CISA?

3 A I am not sure. I believe -- I thought the Foreign Influence Task Force was 4 between different departments.

5 Q To your understanding, what entity was represented by CISA CFITF in the Jira

6 system?

7 A I have no knowledge of what that is outside of what you just handed to me.

8 Q Is there a way to determine who was represented by CISA CFITF through the 9 archived data or other means?

10 A We'd have to look to see whether there is an entry in the ticket that refers to 11 them that makes it clear. I'm not sure the -- again, this is almost 3 years ago. So we 12 don't have the kind of metadata configuration of the database anymore.

13 Q To your understanding, if a ticket was shared with an entity that's listed

14 here, that would be an entity that could see public comments on a ticket. Is that right?

15 A That was the intention of the public versus private, yeah.

16 Q Okay. So, whichever entity is CISA CFITF, if consistent with the 17 understanding, is likely able to see comments on this ticket. Is that correct?

18 A They should be able to see the public comments our people put in there.

19 Q And would they be able to see public comments by other entities that are 20 tagged there, such as Facebook and Twitter?

21 A As we discussed, I'm not totally sure. We'd have to look to see -- yeah, I'm 22 not sure. We'd have to try to figure out from looking at the tickets if there's any 23 interaction between them.

24 Q Is there anyone else at Stanford that would have this information?

25 A We can go ask folks. I can ask around and see if anybody understands, if

1 they remember exactly what was available in different public comments -- or of which
2 kind of public comments were available to outside entities.
3 Q At a high level, are you familiar with what was redacted in the spreadsheet
4 that was produced to the committee?
5 A Yes, I believe student names and -- was a key thing and the private
6 comments that were only internal to EIP.
7 Q And I think we discussed this earlier, but, based off the spreadsheet, there's 8 no readily identifiable way to determine if a comment is private or public based off the 9 column heading?
10 A No, we had to figure it out based upon context.
11 Q And by "we," do you mean Stanford?
12 A I worked with our attorneys to try to figure that out.
13 Q And what was the rationale behind redacting the private comments?
14 A Because those are internal work product for an academic research project
15 for which we have a pretty well established First Amendment right to do that research
16 and to share publicly. We did not believe that was relevant to the legitimate 17 investigative position of this committee, which is to look into the actions of the executive 18 branch. And so we shared the things that could have been seen by outsiders, including 19 platforms or EI-ISAC or whomever EI-ISAC forwarded things on to.
20 Q But, in determining whether a comment was viewed, was able to be viewed 21 by an external stakeholder, there was no readily identifiable way in the archived data.
22 You had to review the comment and make a determination? Is that right?
23 A Yes. And it's generally pretty clear because it almost always starts with the 24 name of the organization, because the way you would tag an organization in is you would 25 do like an @ symbol and put their name. So that would be the normal way in which you

1 might want to make a comment available to somebody. You say @ -- when you see in
2 there, it says, like, Twitter, Facebook, Reddit, I think it's most likely it is them saying
3 @Twitter, @Facebook, which would automatically add them to the ticket and then have 4 it sent on to them, which would then -- those are the organizations you see in the 5 organization column.
6 Q Are there any -- to your recollection, were there any comments that you
7 determined to be public that did not begin with the organization names?
8 A So certainly things that look like responses would be public. They would 9 have to be public because they would come from those orgs so those were included.
10 Q Do you recall if there were any comments that you were unsure about,
11 whether private or public comment?
12 A I sat with the attorney and worked through the ones that were ambiguous, 13 and we did the best we could to try to determine that.
14 Q Does this document refresh your recollection at all regarding whether the 15 entity that is CISA CFITF have the ability to submit tickets?
16 A I don't know of any situation in which they were able to submit tickets
17 if -- not -- unless it was through EI-ISAC.
18 Q Do you have a sense, just a ball park figure of how many different individuals
19 or entities a Jira ticket was shared with?
20 A So we don't have to ball park that; we have data on that.
21 Q Well, let me ask you this: So there is data in the report. To use the 22 previous exhibit, where it looked like the Atlassian email address was [redacted] forwarding
23 a ticket to [redacted], an individual.
24 A Right.
25 Q Is that captured by the report as in terms of the number of individuals who

1 may have received any EIP ticket?

2 A I don't believe so, no.

3 Q Do you have a sense of how many people that might be?

4 A No, I do not.

5 Q The internal or private comments as you've referred to them, does that

6 include only student comments, or is that -- was that comments that include, for instance,

7 the managers as well but do not include external stakeholders that?

8 A That would include the managers. So, if a student asked a manager for

9 "what do you think we should do here" or "what do you think of X," then the response to 10 them would be a private comment in the ticket.

11 Q And, to your understanding, is there anything in the spreadsheet or the 12 archive data that you have that produces some sort of record of when a Jira ticket is 13 forwarded?

14 A So, if an organization is added, then they end up in that organization column.

15 If it was forwarded to an individual, I have not seen anything in there that would indicate

16 that. So it would have to be in the individual's inbox. They would probably have an 17 email notification; it would be the only record we'd have.

18 Q Do you have any sort of access to that Atlassian email domain? That would

19 seem like an automatic generator system, the one that's -- when an EIP ticket is

20 forwarded to someone outside the system like I saw in the previous exhibit, to your

21 knowledge, does Stanford have any access to that email address?

22 A So the email address is supposed to represent things that come in and out of 23 the database. So anything sent in should end up with a ticket in the database. And 24 things that go out are representative of the configs you put -- of what you put in into Jira.

25 So, beyond what has been turned over, I don't think so, no.

1 Q You mentioned texting with Director Krebs. When communicating with
2 him as part of your role at Stanford, what other forms of communication would you use?
3 A So I know we had some emails and probably text iMessage or Signal.
4 Q Was anyone else from Stanford in touch with Director Krebs with respect to
5 EIP?
6 A It's possible. I don't know.
7 Q In setting up EIP, did you have conversations ever with Atlassian, the 8 company that runs the Jira service ticket?
9 A Yes, we sent them emails because they had an academic discount rate.
10 And so we asked to get the kind of academic package so we didn't have to pay like we 11 were a big company.
12 Q And were you in touch with them at all when you decided to end the project
13 after the 2020 election?
14 A I don't recall. I think generally at that point what we did is we archived the 15 data, and then we started reconfiguring it for a Virality Project. I don't think we had to 16 talk to them about that, but it's possible that somebody at Stanford had some 17 interactions with them.
18 Q And was there a 2022 version of EIP?
19 A Yes.
20 Q And what were some of the differences between the 2022 version and the 21 2020?
22 A So it was much smaller. It was a smaller group with fewer shifts. It was 23 midterms. We thought it would probably be less active, and that was accurate. There
24 was no equivalent to the EI-ISAC relationship so we did not have tips coming from that 25 the local and State governments. And we made no referrals to platforms. So it

1 was -- it was more of just gathering what we found. We posted blog posts, and we're
2 finishing up the final report.
3 Q Did you use the Jira ticketing system again?
4 A Yes.
5 Q And, when you use the system and you're jumping into it in 2022 as the 6 election is leading up, is it the same system you used in 2020, or is it a new one?
7 A So these are new databases every time that we start from scratch.
8 Q And then, with respect to retention of those records, did you follow a similar 9 approach with 2022 as you did in 2020?
10 A I would have to ask the team. I expect we've exported them, and we do all
11 the work in Excel.
12 Q To your understanding, could you go back to the original database with the 13 tickets?
14 A No.
15 Q Why not?
16 A Once we exported it and then we replace the database with the new ones so
17 we can do the VP work.
18 Q So did you overwrite it or --
19 A I believe -- so we have licenses that we are given as part of the contract, and 20 there are a number of seats that we have, and there's only a certain number of databases
21 you're allowed to run. So I believe we downloaded it, deleted it, and created a new one 22 to do our next work.
23 Q Was CISA involved with the Virality Project to your recollection?
24 A It's possible that they were one of the recipients of our output, but they 25 were not kind of the core recipients because -- you know, vaccine issues aren't core to the

1 mandate.

2 Q Who were the core recipients?

3 A So I believe there's Office of the Surgeon General, Health and Human

4 Services, and State and local health officials who signed up for our notifications.

5 Q Who from the Surgeon General's Office did you work most closely with?

6 A I -- I don't recall who that was. I -- I was not part of most of those 7 conversations.

8 Q Who at Stanford was most involved with the Virality Project?

9 A So [redacted] did a lot of work there, but the key person was an undergraduate

10 student, [redacted] was -- and a couple other people -- of students who worked on

11 doing a lot of the interaction because we had had a pretty smooth -- had gone to a pretty

12 good smooth operational place by the end of EIP. EVP was more student run that is EIP

13 was.

14 Q With VP, was there a similar manager role that existed with EIP?

15 A It was a much more simplified structure because the volume was much

16 smaller so I don't -- I don't recall the exact structure there. And, again, well -- I was

17 helping provide feedback to VP; I was not the one who was running it on a day-to-day

18 basis. I was less involved than I was with EIP.

19 Q Were social media companies still receiving Jira tickets as a part of the 20 Virality Project?

21 A Yes. So they could subscribe to different narrative types. So the goal of 22 the Virality Project was quite different in that we knew with these vaccines being

23 brandnew that what was true and what was false was going to be a much harder thing to 24 determine than some of these election situations, which were very, very easy to know.

25 Right? It's easy to know that you can't vote twice and then undo your vote. Right?

1 That was the example it was before. And so one of the differences with Virality Project
2 is that the narratives that were found would be put into categories of different kinds of
3 things that then the companies could subscribe to. And so they would get updates
4 based upon this is what is going viral in these areas, not tied to whether or not it was 5 about their platform or their policies of just like this is what people are discussing in this
6 area. And, in some cases, that was pro-vaccine, and sometimes it was antivaccine. It
7 was effectively like a clipping service for what was the most viral things being discussed
8 on social media related to the vaccines.
9 Q Would you or would the Virality Project when sending a Jira ticket to a
10 company send for instance to Twitter a series of tweets on topic?
11 A So we'd have to look at the specific tickets. But generally I think it was,
12 like: Here's a description of what's being said.
13 And it would include: Here are tweets. Here are Facebook posts. Here is 14 Reddit posts. Here's a YouTube video.
15 Q And obviously the relationship with social media companies dates back to 16 the predecessor EIP. Is that right?
17 A And, for some of these companies, as I said, we had a preexisting
18 relationship before that in our collaboration on foreign influence. But yes, for -- most of 19 these companies were part of the EIP. And so they -- yeah, they already had that 20 relationship, although it was sometimes it was different people at the companies because 21 election security and health misinformation are sometimes different people at these 22 companies.
23 Q Was there an understanding that the social media companies might consider
24 taking down some of the specific pieces of content that were being flagged by the Jira
25 tickets?

1 A So that was up to them. And most of the time, just as with elections, the
2 response the companies had was to tag people and to push people into their own vaccine
3 information centers.
4 Q So, again, with the understanding that EIP and Virality Project don't have the 5 power to directly label or remove a piece of content, was the understanding that sending 6 these Jira tickets may result in that?
7 A The understanding is we were telling them what was the thing that people
8 were talking about. In a situation in which there was a narrative that was clearly false or 9 clearly overblown or not based upon any fact, then it's possible that they might have 10 taken actions under the new policies. In general, the platform policies on vaccine
11 misinformation had a lighter touch than on the election, partially because of this issue 12 that everybody was dealing with that nobody knew exactly what the truth was at the 13 time. So what they did with the information we sent was completely up to them.

2 [3:35 p.m.]

3 BY [redacted]:

4 Q So, turning back to EIP, you know, we walked through the value and the

5 benefit of your team's analysis and the report you issued later. What was the intention

6 with adding in social media platforms as external stakeholders?

7 A For EIP?

8 Q For EIP.

9 A So, as we said, we wanted them to be aware if there was content that was

10 violating their policies. And one of the things that we had the ability to do is, if a local

11 official told us something, especially something that directly lied to individuals about how

12 to vote or the mechanisms of voting or had a life-safety issue, then we felt it was our 13 responsibility to help address that, not just document it.

14 Q Okay. And "by help address that," do you mean share it with the social 15 media companies?

16 A When we shared it with them, then they could take the steps that they

17 thought were appropriate based upon what we shared.

18 Q Okay. Would you send information to the social media companies if you

19 didn't think action was needed?

20 A I believe there are tickets where they're added and it just says: You should 21 know that this is something that is going big. You might want to watch.

22 So, you know, if you had -- if you had a narrative that looked like it might go viral

23 or, "Hey, we don't know if this is true or not, but you should keep an eye on it," then

24 perhaps it's the kind of thing we would have basically been cc'ing them for their

25 knowledge, and I think there are a couple tickets that effectively say that.

1 For the most part though, we really should have -- you know, the goal was to only
2 refer stuff to them if we knew it violative of their policies. So that means they might
3 have labeled it. They might have taken it down.
4 Again, 65 percent of the time, they did nothing, and we knew that we had no
5 power to make them do anything, and that, you know -- especially once we got the 6 project going, that they would have to make their own determinations, and most of the 7 time, they determined not to take any steps.
8 Q When you were briefing CISA in the summer of 2020 or maybe into the fall
9 of 2020 and outlining what your intentions are with EIP, did you include, as part of your 10 discussions with CISA, that you would be onboarding external stakeholders, including 11 social media companies?
12 A We probably told them, yes, that we would have the social media
13 companies, that we'd be able to refer things to them.
14 Q Okay. You said a couple times in different ways that EIP didn't have any 15 power. Would EIP ever note that it -- either on Twitter or elsewhere -- that it had 16 flagged a piece of content for a company?
17 A So, I mean, it's possible, like, in our blogposts where we're analyzing things,
18 we might have said something along the lines of, we sent this to platforms. I'd have to 19 go look to see exactly what we said.
20 Q And we touched upon earlier that, following the 2016 election, at least some 21 of the major platforms were under criticism for not doing enough with respect to fake
22 news and with respect to foreign influence?
23 A Yes. I mean, I would say Facebook got 95 percent of that, and 5 percent
24 was distributed among the other platforms.
25 Q Okay. And, based off your earlier answers, it sounded like there was a

1 particular sensitivity and awareness within Facebook -- and maybe these other companies
2 but to a lesser degree -- of the pushback -- political pushback for not taking enough steps.
3 Is that right?
4 A It was on TV every day. So it was definitely understood by people that we
5 were being blamed, yeah.
6 Q And is it fair to say that the company wanted to avoid being blamed again in 7 the future?
8 A So I think there were individuals who were really sensitive to that. I think 9 the company overall did not want people to lose trust in the platform.
10 If you go on Facebook and you believe that all the people you're talking to are 11 trolls, are fake accounts, are Macedonian teenagers, then that, in the long run, really 12 lowers the value.
13 So -- and Facebook is a company that is very much driven by money and metrics.
14 And so would individuals feel like "I don't like to be blamed for something"? Absolutely.
15 But, in the end, most of these decisions are made based upon, like, hard, metric-driven
16 discussions, and certainly metrics around the trust in the platform were going down
17 during that period of time.
18 Q Do you recall who at Facebook in -- we'll say 2016 to 2018 -- was most 19 sensitive to the political backlash that was occurring?
20 A So, I mean, the people who were dealing with it every day would be Elliot
21 Schrage and Joel Kaplan in their roles of running the government affairs team. Probably 22 of the senior leadership, the person who cared the most about this stuff was Sheryl
23 Sandberg.
24 Q And, with respect to the blogpost, are there any -- did anyone from EIP ever
25 communicate to the platforms that you were going to make these blogposts public?

1 A I mean, it's possible that we gave them a heads-up when we were posting
2 about it.
3 Q And why would you do that?
4 A I think it's a polite thing to do so that they know that we're going public.
5 We didn't want them to feel like we were blindsiding them.
6 Q And what do you mean by "blindsiding" them?
7 A We wanted them to know that there's going to be a possible discussion of 8 what was going on in their platform, and they should know about it.
9 I think the -- you know, we were -- I am sympathetic to how hard it is to be in one
10 of these companies and to try to balance all the different equities. And so, if somebody
11 was writing something that could generate a communications moment during an election
12 period, then that's something I would want to know for sure.
13 Q What do you mean by "communications moment"?
14 A So, if we wrote a blogpost that said, "This is something viral that's happening 15 that's not true," you very well could find members of the media going out and then 16 finding that content on five different platforms and then writing about it being up or not.
17 Q And, if it was still up, would some of those media publications be criticism of 18 the platforms?
19 A It's possible.
20 Q And so, if EIP has the power to flag this content and produce a blogpost,
21 does EIP have any sort of ability to incentivize the platforms to take down the content?
22 A No more than anybody else who has the ability to write a blog.
23 The companies were criticized constantly by both sides. They received letters
24 from Members of Congress on both sides. They received -- according to what I've seen
25 in the hearings -- emails from President Trump's office about content moderation.

1 So, compared to people who have actual coercive power such as Members of
2 Congress or members of the executive branch, I think us saying "here's a narrative that's 3 going viral" -- whether or not we mention the specific platforms where it's going viral -- is
4 the exact same ability every American has, and especially -- and ours would be less than a
5 celebrity or somebody with a massive following.
6 So, no, I don't think you would say we have any more coercive power than 7 anybody else who has the ability to criticize platforms in our democracy.
8 Q You mentioned in contrasting your role in Stanford with the executive 9 branch at Congress and the coercive role and coercive powers they have --
10 A Yeah.
11 Q What do you mean by the coercive powers that Congress and the White
12 House have?
13 A In that Congress has the ability to punish companies through passing
14 legislation, making their lives hard through subpoenas, which I know are always given out
15 for true investigative purposes and not to punish people for their First Amendment
16 speech. And certainly the White House has all kinds of levers in which they can try to 17 make life hard for a company.
18 Q And, with respect to the coercive powers that Congress and the White House
19 have, when you were talking earlier about the tech lash that Facebook was concerned
20 about in 2016 and -- 2018, is part of that concern the coercive powers that Congress and 21 the White House have, to use your terms, punish companies?
22 A Yeah. I mean, I think there was, in that period and for several years after I
23 left Facebook, a real fear of significant regulation coming out of Congress. It turns out
24 that fear was misplaced. Nothing substantive has happened since the 2016 election in 25 this area or in any area of content moderation in the U.S. The E.U. is a different story.

1 But, yes, I am sure that they were worried, which is why each one of you has met
2 probably 10 Facebook lobbyists over the last 6 months and that they have such an
3 aggressive government affairs shop. Is that they do not want to get regulated.
4 Q Okay. And, when talking about this tech lash and the public criticism and
5 the concern of significant regulation, in an earlier answer, you said it tended to be heavily
6 from the Democratic side of the aisle. Is that correct?
7 A That was true at the time, and now it seems to have swapped, where a lot of 8 this criticism is coming from Republicans about the same decisions but from the other
9 side. Decisions that the Democrats thought were not sufficient are seen as overreaching
10 or suppression of free speech by the Republican side.
11 So it is an interesting thing to observe, the tech lash going back and forth
12 that -- effectively, the exact same arguments are being made by -- I saw a funny moment
13 where Elizabeth Warren, I think, was retweeted by Ted Cruz. And that was kind of 14 shocking of -- like, they're both making the same arguments of tech companies bad, but 15 they both had a very different idea of why. And so it does seem to be moving back to 16 the Republican side.
17 Q In 2018, when you were still at Facebook and Facebook is adding the CIB
18 policy, at that point in time, the tech lash and all that was coming from the Democratic 19 side, is your understanding. Is that right?
20 A Yeah. I mean, I think there was a lot more negativity towards Facebook
21 from Democrats in the 2018 -- sorry. That would be 2017. In the 2017 timeframe.
22 Q Okay. And the concern -- when you say "significant regulation," to connect 23 the two answers together, significant regulation coming from being pushed by the 24 Democratic side of the aisle?
25 A I mean, at the time, I believe most of the regulation was being proposed by

1 Democrats, although there has been lots of regulation proposed by Republicans, too.
2 In the last couple years, now, a lot of that seems to have moved to the States.
3 That all the really -- I'll say interesting, but I also mean unconstitutional -- things are being
4 pushed by State legislatures.
5 Q And this kind of public criticism from the Democratic side of the aisle, to 6 your understanding, that still persisted up until the 2020 election. Is that correct?
7 A I think it persists until today. I mean, I think there's -- there's criticism of 8 the platforms for lots of things.
9 The feeling inside the companies is that, if you're a platform that has a couple
10 hundred million Americans, you're going to end up reflecting all of the good and bad of 11 America. But then people end up blaming the intermediary for carrying the speech that 12 they both like and they dislike.
13 So, even today, Democrats are still submitting bills, as you guys know, to regulate 14 the companies. On the Democratic side, it seems more about privacy and a lot of stuff
15 around antitrust.
16 Q Okay. Is your understanding that the approaches to antitrust would be 17 harmful to companies like Facebook?
18 A I mean, something aggressive like breaking the company up would certainly 19 be -- they would consider that harmful, yeah.
20 Q Do you remember any discussions like that when you were still at Facebook?
21 A I wasn't involved in any of the antitrust stuff. That's outside of the realm of 22 a CSO.
23 Q With the understanding it was outside of the realm, do you recall any 24 discussions that arose in meetings or conversations with colleagues?
25 A I mean, I don't recall any discussions about, like, antitrust strategy or

1 anything. They would never include me in that. Certainly -- yeah -- noises different
2 administrations make around antitrust are being noticed by everybody at the company.
3 Q In an earlier answer, you were comparing Stanford and EIP and contrasting
4 that with the coercive powers of the executive branch and Congress.
5 It is true, though, that certain members of the executive branch were at least 6 engaging with EIP. Is that fair to say?
7 A So certainly we were engaging with members of the executive branch in a
8 way that we thought was appropriate and that, my understanding, they had signed off
9 on -- that they had gotten approval of by a Trump administration lawyer, by attorneys at 10 the Department of Homeland Security.
11 But, yes, we were engaging with them. Of course, we were engaging with the 12 parts of the government that have very little power. CISA actually has no regulatory 13 capability. They don't have law enforcement capability. I believe they recently got 14 administrative subpoena capability to do things like unmask IP addresses.
15 But that's actually, I think, one of the good things about CISA, is that for a long
16 period of time, as a CSO, there was nobody in the government that you could work with 17 defensively who couldn't also put you in jail.
18 And so it's like, you can't have a casual chat with an FBI agent when you're an 19 executive at a company. It's not safe. You end up with a $3,000-an-hour row of 20 people sitting next to you.
21 And so the invention of CISA, I think, was a positive thing because it is an 22 organization that does not have regulatory or punitive law enforcement capability.
23 Q And what do you mean you can't have a casual conversation with the FBI?
24 Why is that?
25 A I think defense attorneys would tell you that FBI agents are always looking

1 out -- you might feel like you're having a friendly conversation with them, but you never
2 know if you're actually the target.
3 And I think there has been a number of situations which companies have tried to
4 engage the FBI because they were victims of, say, a cybercrime, and then they end up
5 getting punished or their executives getting punished.
6 There is actually -- this was a big deal over the last couple of years where the CSO
7 of Uber, who was my predecessor at Facebook, was prosecuted for doing some things
8 that I don't agree with, but I understand how he got there. And it was kind of shocking
9 because he was working directly with the FBI in situations where they had aligned law
10 enforcement, and then DOJ turned around them like that.
11 And so, you know, dealing with a law enforcement agency that has coercive 12 powers is just a risky thing to do if you're part of some big organization and some 13 other -- there might be some investigation involving the organization that you don't even 14 know about.
15 Q That perspective you just shared with respect to the FBI, do you think it was 16 widely shared by the executives at Facebook when you were at the company?
17 A Certainly the policy of the company was that an executive could not talk to 18 the FBI without attorneys present.
19 Q Okay. And, with respect to the Uber example you gave, did that -- was that 20 example well known among industry partners?
21 A Sorry. That was just very recent. So that has been over the last, like, year
22 and a half. That's from well after I left Facebook.
23 Q Okay. Do you recall any other similar examples like the Uber one?
24 A I'm sure I could look. But I think a number of people were concerned that 25 you can end up going and having a conversation with the FBI and end up getting yourself

1 into some trouble in a way that was not expected. So, generally, at companies,
2 executives are required to take attorneys with them for those kinds of meetings.
3 Q Okay. And, to use the Uber example as one, even if the government
4 represents that the interests are aligned, it could be the case that, later on, the 5 government changes its mind. Is that right?
6 A Yes.
7 Q Okay. And this fact is well known by tech executives?
8 A Yes. And I think all executives of all public companies understand that 9 there's lots of parts of the government that can punish you for activity that you thought
10 was appropriate.
11 Q And that's regardless of what the government may have said. Is that right?
12 A Yeah. Yes. I mean, I think the determination of any individual U.S.
13 attorney is disconnected from whatever the overall policy of the government happens to 14 be.
15 Q Okay. In addition to the FBI, there are elements of DHS -- or I shouldn't say
16 in addition to. FBI is in DOJ.
17 Are there elements of DHS separate from CISA that have coercive power?
18 A Over companies in particular?
19 Q Yes.
20 A I mean, clearly, if you're an immigrant, DHS is very important.
21 I mean, the only thing I could think of would be his, Homeland Security
22 Investigations. A number of companies work closely with them because they have a
23 long history of doing child safety investigations. They are actually probably the most 24 important Federal law enforcement agency on child safety due to the history of -- if 25 people are bringing child pornography into the U.S., it used to be you did that in

1 magazines and photos in a suitcase. And so the investigations of smuggling raids across
2 the physical border used to be the core of child safety investigations.
3 And so his is still, like, a big part of that, and that's probably the agency in which
4 we work the most. I don't think anybody is really afraid of them. Like, you don't hear
5 about them doing investigations of companies in the same way the FBI does.
6 Q Okay. Are you aware of any other similar types of partnerships that had 7 multiple executive agencies working with them to monitor elections?
8 A Of partnerships --
9 Q So you represented EIP as a, you know, blogpost, which is accurate in a 10 certain sense. You were producing blogposts. But you also partnered with multiple 11 government agencies.
12 Are you familiar with any other types of blogposts or partnerships that had a 13 similar set of relationships with the executive branch?
14 A So I don't think that's an accurate summation of what I represented EIP.
15 EIP was an academic research program that documented and studied what happened in 16 the 2020 election. We happened to then get tips from EI-ISAC and the GEC.
17 To call them partners -- you can use the word "partners," but in the end, they 18 were sending us information, and we sent them information based upon our knowledge
19 and our analysis of activities.
20 I am not aware of any other groups that were working with them like that, but
21 it's -- I wouldn't be shocked, if you look at the NASSes or the NASEDs and the other kinds 22 of organizations that do election security, that there's some kind of relationship with both
23 CISA and the FBI.
24 Q Okay. Are you familiar with anywhere there is both large social media
25 companies, such as Facebook and Twitter, on the same communication with Federal

1 agencies such as CISA?

2 A Well, I think those companies interact with CISA probably all the time.

3 Q Are there any blogposts to help facilitate this?

4 A Are there any -- are there any academic research projects to help facilitate

5 it? I don't know of any at this time, no.

6 [redacted]. Okay. All right.

7 Can we go off the record, please?

8 [Recess.]

9 [redacted]. It's 4:01. Let's go back on the record.

10 BY [redacted]:

11 Q There was a -- Mr. Stamos, there was a comment made in the last hour

12 about SIO and EIP being a blog. Is that accurate?

13 A No.

14 Q Okay. They're research entities, right?

15 A The EIP is a research partnership. It's not actually a legal entity. It was a 16 partnership between four institutions with a history of doing research into -- especially

17 foreign interference into U.S. politics.

18 We had a blog, but we were much more than a blog. We were a group that

19 created, I think, the most complete historical record of disinformation during the 2020

20 election, and I think the most interesting academic research that has been published both 21 in our final report and in multiple peer-reviewed journals since then.

22 Q Okay. And you did -- you said you did have a blog, though?

23 A Yes.

24 Q And I think you were questioned about that a little bit.

25 Did you sometimes write the blogposts?

1 A I contributed. I don't think there's any blogpost that I wrote totally by
2 myself, but I contributed to a number of them.
3 Q Is writing a blogpost an expression of your First Amendment rights?
4 A I believe so, yes.
5 Q Okay. And so there was an allegation made that, somehow, by the act of 6 writing a blogpost, you are acting in a coercive manner. Do you remember that 7 allegation?
8 A I do.
9 Q Is it fair to say that that's effectively suggesting you should be punished for 10 exercising your First Amendment rights?
11 A That does sound like what he was saying, yes.
12 Q Okay. There was a lot of discussion about Facebook's internal reaction and 13 concern about the political fallout -- let's call it -- after 2016?
14 A That's right.
15 Q Russia did, in fact, interfere in the Presidential election in 2016, correct?
16 A That's correct.
17 Q And it did so by manipulating the Facebook platform, correct?
18 A Among other things, yes.
19 Q Okay. Does Facebook have a vested interest in ensuring that nobody 20 manipulates its platform, Russia or otherwise?
21 A Yes. Keeping the platform free of foreign interference, I think, is a key part 22 of them keeping up the trustworthiness metrics that eventually lead to people wanting to 23 use the platform and therefore them making money.
24 Q Okay. You were also asked in the earlier hour about the Hunter Biden
25 laptop story. Do you recall those questions?

1 A I do.

2 Q Okay. Do you know -- and I know you didn't work on the specific -- this

3 issue yourself, but just from public reports, how long was the Hunter Biden laptop story

4 banned on Twitter?

5 A I think it was a matter of hours, but I don't remember exactly.

6 Q Okay. If I represent to you that it was 24 hours, would you agree with me?

7 A That sounds correct.

8 Q Okay. And what about Facebook, do you know how long it was -- how long

9 Facebook --

10 A Probably about the same amount. It was never banned on Facebook, but I

11 believe it was downranked for a day or less.

12 Q Okay. In the -- much earlier -- I think maybe it was the first hour of the day

13 with the majority's questioning -- you were asked if the 2016 Russian election

14 activity -- the Russian interference in 2016 had actually impacted the election, and you

15 said you thought it was actually pretty hard to assess what impact it had. Do you recall

16 that?

17 A I do.

18 Q Okay. Do you think it's possible to assess the impact of the 24-hour ban on 19 the Hunter Biden laptop story on the 2020 election?

20 A On the actual outcome?

21 Q Uh-huh.

22 A I expect it was quite low because I think, in the end, the bans the companies

23 put together created what we call the Streisand effect, that it ended up getting way more

24 coverage than otherwise. I expect if you polled Americans, that a huge percentage of 25 them know that Hunter Biden had a laptop with all kinds of nasty stuff on it.

1 So I expect it actually went the other way, that the blocks were probably beneficial
2 to President Trump or at least not good for Joe Biden.
3 Q Okay. I want to turn back to exhibit 15, which is the email involving [redacted]
[redacted]. It's EIP 243.
5 "Re: EIP 243. Claim the thousands of ballots found in dumpster in Sonoma."
6 A Sorry. I gave my copy back.
7 Mr. Bellinger. Here you go.
8 Mr. Stamos. Okay. I'll just use this one.
9 BY [redacted]:
10 Q Okay. And there was a question about whether the -- whether CISA had 11 been added on to this ticket.
12 This is actually an email, right? It's not a ticket?
13 A This is an email that came from the ticketing system.
14 Q Right. So it was -- but it's not the ticket itself. It's just an email that 15 perhaps attached the data from the ticket, but it didn't allow CISA access to the ticket
16 itself, right?
17 A Right. So CISA did not have the ability to come and just look at tickets.
18 But, if somebody -- like, in this case, it looks like she put in this person specifically to get it
19 forwarded to him.
20 Q Are you familiar with the Sonoma County ballot dumpster story?
21 A I am.
22 Q And can you briefly describe what that is?
23 A This is something we wrote up in -- on our blog. There was a true
24 report -- a photo of a dumpster in Sonoma County with all of these mail-in ballots. And 25 the claim that was made was this was a demonstration of pro-Trump votes being thrown

1 out.

2 It turns out they were real ballots, but they were ballots from the last election.

3 And Sonoma County did something really stupid, which is -- instead of shredding those

4 ballots, as they probably should have, and disposing of them securely, they just dumped

5 them into a dumpster.

6 And so -- yeah. The claim was that these were being thrown away, and they

7 were voting for Trump, but even if you looked at the photo -- if you zoomed in enough,

8 you could see it was the California ballot design from the election before.

9 Q Okay. And so the claim that the ballots were current -- that they were 10 ballots from 2020 that had been thrown out was just flat-out false, correct?

11 A That's right. And this was something we saw a lot of and we continue to 12 see a lot of, is that you have a kernel of truth. Here are ballots in the dumpster. And it

13 makes people feel -- oh, I see a photo. I'm doing my own research. I'm learning for

14 myself. And then they accept the framing around it, which is these are this year's 15 ballots, and these are Trump ballots being thrown out.

16 And so using that kernel of truth allows you to drive a story -- a narrative that's 17 not true.

18 [redacted]. And I want to introduce as exhibit 17 the actual ticket from this.

19 [Stamos Exhibit No. 17

20 Was marked for identification.]

21 BY [redacted]:

22 Q This is from the Excel spreadsheet.

23 A Okay.

24 Q And this is -- I'll tell you, it's stapled on the wrong side, so you want to hold it

25 like that. There you go.

1 And I'm hoping you can quickly turn -- sorry. Not quickly. Take as long as you
2 need. The column labeled "reach." It is on the --
3 A I see it.
4 Q Yep. It says this is "viral, 1,001-plus engagements." Do you see where it
5 says that?
6 A I see that, yes.
7 Q So this demonstrably false claim was among -- it was in the highest category
8 of spread, correct?
9 A That was in the top category, yes.
10 Q Okay. And I'm going to ask you to turn to -- if I can find it -- the column
11 that has the organizations listed.
12 So it's on -- it's labeled -- what's that -- the third-to-last page. Do you see where 13 it says "organizations"?
14 A I do.
15 Q And the organizations listed there are EI-ISAC, Facebook, Reddit, and 16 Twitter. Do you see where it says that?
17 A I do.
18 Q CISA is not listed there, correct?
19 A That's correct.
20 Q Okay. So CISA was not an organization that was brought in on this ticket?
21 A What he showed me before is it looks like an individual person had been 22 added for it to be forwarded out of the platform.
23 Q Right.
24 A But CISA is not added because CISA themselves did not have direct access to 25 the ticket.

1 Q Okay.

2 [redacted]. And now I want to turn to the other example they used, which is

3 exhibit No. 16. It's the DeKalb County.

4 And I want to introduce the actual ticket for this one, which is going to be exhibit

5 18. And, again, this is stapled on the wrong side.

6 [Stamos Exhibit No. 18

7 Was marked for identification.]

8 BY [redacted]:

9 Q Okay. And I'm going to read quickly the description of what this was. It is 10 in tiny, tiny font, so if you can't follow along, let me know, but --

11 A Most of my body is falling apart, but my eyes are actually okay. So I'm fine.

12 Thank you.

13 Q So it says -- underneath description, it says: Can you help with this tweet?

14 A person describing himself as an Emory professor says DeKalb County has rejected

15 40,000 absentee ballots. DeKalb has only rejected 240 ballots so far. Only slightly

16 more than 1,400 have been rejected statewide. His tweet is totally false but is still

17 getting pick-up -- and then there's links to the URLs -- any help you can provide? Ari

18 Schaffer, director of communications, Georgia secretary of state.

19 Did I read that right?

20 A Yes.

21 Q Okay. So is it fair to say that this ticket involved a claim about the number

22 of absentee ballots that had been rejected, and the secretary of state of 23 Georgia -- somebody from that office said this is demonstrably false?

24 A Yes.

25 Q And the Secretary of State's office would be in a position to know if that was

1 true or false, correct?

2 A Correct.

3 Q Okay. And I want you to turn to the "organizations" page for this one as 4 well. I think it's probably near the end. Yeah. It's the last page.

5 And the organizations listed there are EI-ISAC, Facebook, TikTok, and Twitter. Do

6 you see where it says that?

7 A That's correct.

8 Q Okay. And, again, CISA is not listed as one of those organizations, correct?

9 A That's correct.

10 Q Okay. So CISA, again, was not brought in on this ticket?

11 A Unless somebody forwarded it to them.

12 Q Right.

13 A They did not have direct access.

14 Q Right. And they wouldn't have been able to edit the ticket or contact social 15 media companies through the ticket?

16 A They certainly could not have done those things, no.

17 Q Okay. Okay. There's a -- sorry. Real fast.

18 There was a comment made earlier about social media companies being

19 onboarded to the platform. What's your understanding of what the term "onboarded"

20 means?

21 A Onboarded would mean we would set up their accounts in Atlassian and

22 then probably provide them some basic training of what was going to be happening, how 23 they could access the tickets, what kind of notifications they would get, stuff like that.

24 Q Okay. So they were onboarded in that they had access to the platform, but 25 that was really it, right?

1 A Yes. That meant they had a login that they could see the stuff that we put
2 in front of them.
3 Q Okay. A couple questions about the Virality Project.
4 SIO created the Virality Project in 2021, correct?
5 A Yes.
6 Q Okay. And the purpose of the Virality Project -- actually, let's go ahead and 7 introduce -- I want to introduce as exhibit 18 -- no. I think we're on 19, actually.
8 It's an SIO blogpost entitled "Launching the SIO Virality Project."
9 [Stamos Exhibit No. 19
10 Was marked for identification.]
11 BY [redacted]:
12 Q Are you familiar with this post?
13 A This looks like our initial post, yes.
14 Q So, on the second page of the post as printed, the first full paragraph on that 15 page at the end --
16 A Okay. I'm sorry. So there are two things that we call the Virality Project,
17 just to be clear. So our first launch was SIO only, which is what you're seeing here.
18 This is from before the vaccines happened.
19 Q Okay.
20 A We were doing our own study of disinformation around the virus itself,
21 right? So this is May. So things are getting hot.
22 Q Okay.
23 A So, for example, I actually brought a blogpost from it. We did a whole
24 study of -- from this first version of the Virality Project, we did -- maybe I don't have it.
25 We did a study of Chinese lies about the -- or, like, what Chinese social media was doing --

1 Q Okay.

2 A -- and what the Chinese Foreign Ministry was saying around the origin of the 3 virus and Chinese responsibility for it.

4 Q Okay.

5 A Yeah. So this is the paper that came out from that. So that was the first

6 version --

7 Q Okay.

8 A And then we effectively relaunched it. And we had the name, and we had

9 the domain, so we reused it --

10 Q Okay.

11 A -- of relaunching it with the partners specifically around the vaccine.

12 Q Okay. So let's put this exhibit to the side.

13 A Yeah.

14 Q Because this is not actually what I want to talk about.

15 A Yeah.

16 Q The relaunched version. I think there was some muddle earlier in what the 17 purpose of that relaunch version was. Could you just state again your understanding of 18 what the purpose was with respect to the Virality Project, the second iteration of it?

19 A Right. So we -- just like with EIP, our primary purpose was to archive in real

20 time the discussions that were happening around the vaccines. We knew this was going

21 to be an incredibly important historical moment for the whole world and, as a result,

22 would probably be the target of serious disinformation.

23 At this point, we had already, like I said, seen, for example, the Chinese doing lots

24 of foreign influence work around the world, both trying to -- trying to push blame for the 25 virus onto the U.S. and things like that.

1 The second was to then do an academic study of how -- how do people discuss
2 these things in a rapidly moving scientific environment? So, as I said before, the 3 difference between this and the election is that a lie about when the election is, is easily
4 fact-checked. Saying a vaccine causes a side effect is something that is much harder to 5 know whether that's true or not, or there might be a kernel of truth, but then somebody
6 says: That's why you shouldn't take it, or everybody is going to get the side effect, right?
7 And so studying how that stuff worked online was a big goal.
8 And then the third was to provide health officials with a view of what was being 9 said because we wanted them to be responsive to the actual concerns of citizens and not 10 just do the normal doctor thing, which is to lecture at length, you know, in a very 11 scientific way, like: This is what people are afraid of. This is what you should address.
12 Q Okay. There was discussion earlier about the Virality Project -- I'm going to 13 call it VP for shorthand -- the VP's output.
14 A Yes.
15 Q What was the VP's output?
16 A So the primary output was the weekly reports. We did these weekly
17 briefings that we sent to a mailing list, which included public health officials, companies, I
18 think some kind of nonprofits -- NGOs who do public health work -- and then we posted
19 those on the public website. We also then would send -- between those updates 20 around the narratives we were tracking -- to platforms that subscribed to those specific 21 narratives.
22 Q Okay. And that was just one-directional, right? Like, you would create 23 the update, and you would hit "send," and it would go out into the world?
24 A That's right, yes.
25 Q Okay. So it wasn't like there was back-and-forth engagement with the

1 platforms on those?

2 A Right. This was different than EIP in that we didn't have the back-and-forth

3 engagement, nor did we have an EI-ISAC equivalent where you had somebody routing

4 stuff to us from local and State officials.

5 Q Okay. So is it fair to say that you were summarizing the results of your

6 research or whatever the research had been that week, writing it down, and sending it?

7 Is that a fair summary?

8 A Yes.

9 Q Okay. That was also an exercise of your First Amendment rights, correct?

10 A I believe so, yes.

11 Q Okay. Did the Virality Project receive any Federal funding?

12 A No, it did not.

13 Q Okay. And that's true for both the 2020 iteration of the Virality Project and 14 the 2021 iteration of the Virality Project?

15 A That's correct. We didn't get any of the NSF grant, which is our sole 16 government funding, until after both of those projects were over.

17 Q Okay. Matt Taibbi has claimed that the VP had the capacity to take in 50

18 million tweets a day. Is that accurate?

19 A So what he's referring to -- I saw that tweet. He released a leaked email

20 from inside of Twitter where Twitter had sent us an email saying: Hey, here's an API in 21 which you can get COVID information. There's over 50 million tweets a day about

22 COVID-19.

23 So that was an advertisement of Twitter saying: There's 50 million tweets a day.

24 You can access it via APIs.

25 Q And what's an API?

1 A I'm sorry. Application programming interface, which in the end, we didn't
2 have to use because we already had an integration with their general API that would
3 allow us to look at the things we cared about, which was actually much tighter than all of 4 COVID-19. So he had, like, a basic misunderstanding of what that email said.
5 Q And, just to be clear, an API is essentially a tool that Twitter created. Is that 6 a good way to put it?
7 A An API is effectively a way you can talk to Twitter. So it's how Twitter on 8 your phone talks to Twitter, is via an API.
9 Q Okay. It's a Twitter product?
10 A It's a Twitter product, yes.
11 Q Okay. Mr. Shellenberger has reported that the VP, quote, censored 66
12 different social media narratives. Is that accurate?
13 A No.
14 Q Do you know where that -- do you know why he would think that?
15 A So, first off, we censored nothing. We had no power to do any censorship.
16 And I think he's going in that -- we identified in our final report -- we categorized what we
17 found into different kinds of narratives, and I think we might have had 66 narrative
18 archetypes.
19 To say we censored those things is absolutely incorrect because the whole point is 20 that we saw those things on social media. We had -- those narratives are still going on.
21 And our goal was to document: These are the things people were saying about 22 vaccines. Some true; some false. Here are the 66 different categories that we put 23 them into.
24 So we did no censorship at all. And the idea that we censored those things is just 25 empirically wrong because you can look at social media today or you could look at it

1 during that project and you would see plenty of discussion on all those areas.

2 Q And one last claim. Mr. Taibbi has claimed that the VP recommended that

3 platforms take action against true vaccine side effects or posts that would fuel vaccine

4 hesitancy. Is that true?

5 A No. So, in that case -- in that tweet where he makes that claim, he took a

6 subset of an email, which students sent -- the student leaders of the project sent an email

7 out to all of the platforms saying: Which of these narratives would you like to be

8 updated on and get updates on?

9 They did not say you should then take them all down. And, clearly, they didn't

10 because if you look at all of those platforms, all of those things we talked about happened

11 a lot.

12 But we do do study of what kinds of tropes exist, what are the common narratives

13 around vaccines, and that is something that we shared with the platforms, as I believe we

14 have a constitutionally-protected right to do.

15 Q Okay. And you said that, to your knowledge, those are still actually 16 available on social media today?

17 A I think if you opened it up right now, you would find plenty -- you could find 18 an example of all 66 of those different kinds of narratives on social media, yes.

19 Q Okay. Okay. A handful of wrap-up questions.

20 Are you -- are you familiar with an individual named Renee DiResta?

21 A Yes.

22 Q Who is Renee DiResta?

23 A She's my colleague at Stanford. She's our research director.

24 Q How long have you known her?

25 A How long have I known Renee? That's a good question. I probably met her in the 2017 timeframe at a conference or something like that. Yeah. I don't remember exactly when I met her. I've worked side by side with her since 2019. So I've known her well since we hired her at SIO.

Q And you would say you know her well?

A Now, yes.

Q Okay. Are you familiar with an individual named Mike Benz?

A I very much am, yes.

Q Who is Mr. Benz?

A Mr. Benz is a gentleman who has been writing a lot of things about us that are not true. I believe he used to work at the State Department for a short period of time on cyber. And he likes to tweet about us and publish things and seems to be the person who is pushing a lot of these theories to the various committees and such.

Q Okay. I want to focus on one particular thing that he said about Ms. DiResta.

Mike Benz has publicly accused Ms. DiResta of being a CIA spy embedded at the SIO to help the government engage in censorship. And I know there's a lot to unpack there, so let's take it piece by piece.

Is Ms. DiResta a CIA spy, to the best of your knowledge?

A To the best of my knowledge, she is not a spy for the CIA.

Q To the best of your knowledge, did the CIA embed Ms. DiResta at the SIO?

A No. I offered her a job, and she accepted.

Q Okay. Does the SIO engage in censorship?

A No.

Q Okay. So it cannot be the case that -- so Ms. DiResta is, first of all, not a CIA spy?

A Right. So I think where this comes from is Renee was on her own in her family at a very young age and had to pay for college herself and ended up getting a National Security Fellowship that sent her to an internship at the CIA, which then paid for her to go through school.

I'm pretty sure she has not had any relationship with the CIA or been a spy for them or anything. And I think at the time, she was, you know, an undergrad, so she was probably just an analyst sitting at a desk somewhere in Langley. So I'm pretty sure she has had no official relationship with the CIA since then.

Q Are you familiar with the impact that this rumor has had on Ms. DiResta?

A Yes. Unfortunately, yes.

Q Are you able to speak to that at all?

A Renee has come under really extreme personal attacks over the last several months. I have too, but, unfortunately, as you often see online, this thing becomes gendered. So she probably gets five times as much hate mail as I do. I know she has gotten death threats and threats to her children.

Q And Mr. Benz has also tweeted about you. Is that right?

A I believe he has, yeah.

[redacted]. I want to introduce just one of these tweets.

[Stamos Exhibit No. 20

Was marked for identification.]

BY [redacted]:

Q It was actually from 4 a.m. this morning, so you might not have seen it.

A Oh, I probably did not.

Q And I'll give you a second to read it, and let me know when you're ready to continue.

1 A Okay.

2 Q Okay. I'll just read it quickly.

3 Mr. Benz, who tweets @MikeBenzCyber, tweeted: Interesting.

4 December -- Dec -- 2019 was when Chris Krebs flew to Stanford for a meeting with Alex

5 Stamos to discuss election censorship for 2020 election. Krebs' CISA then tapped

6 Stamos' EIP to censor trending narratives. Wonder if Krebs was briefed by FBI on 7 damning Hunter laptop first.

8 And I should say, this follows a comment from an individual named Sean Davis

9 about the Hunter Biden laptop.

10 A Right.

11 Q And this was tweeted at 3:58 a.m., on June 23rd, 2023. I want to take this 12 apart piece by piece.

13 Did Mr. Krebs fly to Stanford in December 2019?

14 A I don't recall. Chris visited and spoke to students and participated in a job

15 fair to recruit students to the new CISA. I don't remember exactly when that was.

16 Q Okay. At any point in December 2019, to the best of your recollection, did

17 you and Mr. Krebs discuss election censorship?

18 A No.

19 Q Did you discuss the Election Integrity Partnership?

20 A No. At that time, it did not exist.

21 Q Okay. And that was actually about 7 months before it would get underway,

22 correct?

23 A That's right.

24 Q So that was well before it was really a thought?

25 A Yeah. It was not until early in 2020 that we started our internal discussions

1 about what we were going to do about the election, and we didn't really pull the EIP
2 together until June of 2020.
3 Q Okay. And then this continues: Krebs' CISA then tapped Stamos' EIP to 4 censor trending narratives.
5 Did CISA tap or ask the EIP to censor anything?
6 A No.
7 Q With respect to the 2020 election or otherwise?
8 A No.
9 Q Okay. And we talked through the Hunter Biden laptop earlier. Just to 10 restate, EIP had nothing to do with the Hunter Biden laptop story, correct?
11 A That's right. We published nothing on that. We had no tickets on it. It
12 was completely out of scope because it was about a candidate's kid. About whether you
13 would vote for a candidate had nothing to do with the actual mechanism of the election.
14 Q Okay. So is it fair to say that this particular tweet from Mr. Benz is entirely
15 false?
16 A He spelled my name correctly. But, other than that, it's pretty much 17 entirely false, yes.
18 Q Okay. Thank you.
19 A And it's unfortunate. I guess he's not a very good sleeper since he's 20 tweeting about me at 4 a.m. That's unfortunate.
21 Q So Mr. Benz, Mr. Taibbi, and Mr. Shellenberger, and others have placed you 22 in the public eye because of your work -- or not because of your work, but because of 23 misrepresentations about what you do. Is that fair to say?
24 A I mean, they have certainly misrepresented what we do, yes.
25 Q Okay. And we talked through the consequences that this has had on

1 Ms. DiResta.

2 Have you also faced negative consequences because of what's been happening

3 with the way you've been -- your work has been misrepresented?

4 A I think you could say that, yes.

5 Q What impact has this had on you?

6 A So there have been a number of threats against me and my family. The

7 most disturbing was actually a very subtle one. I got a Twitter DM that the only thing in

8 the DM was an extremely blown-up crop of my wife's face from a family photo, which I'm

9 pretty sure the implication was not, "Boy, your wife is pretty. Why are you with 10 somebody so beautiful?" That this was a threat against her life, the way it was 11 portrayed.

12 It was pretty smart because it was both very scary and also exactly the kind of

13 thing for which the context to try to represent to Twitter that this is really a threat against 14 my family is quite hard.

15 So, yes, there has been lots of people lying about me. And, unfortunately, this is

16 something that now, if you Google for my name, there's plenty of accusations that are

17 totally incorrect. So I expect that this will have a long-term negative impact on my

18 career.

19 Q And why a long-term negative impact on your career?

20 A Because we've tried very hard to do good academic work that is not

21 politically-biased. And I've never wanted to be seen as a political actor. And, for some

22 people, that's what they want. They want to be seen, and they want jobs where they're 23 particularly partisan.

24 And, since I will most likely one day have to go back in industry, being seen as, like,

25 a political player who is hated by half the country will be a real challenge for me. You

1 know, if somebody googles me for my background and what they find is lies after lies
2 after lies, it's going to make for -- much more difficult, especially if I was going for, like, a
3 chief security officer role again.
4 Q Do you think the fact that you've been facing these kind of threats and the 5 fact that you've been brought into this investigation for that matter -- might that have a
6 chilling effect on your willingness to do this kind of research in the future?
7 A Absolutely.
8 Q In what way?
9 A Because it makes you really wonder whether it's worth it, right? In the 10 end, my primary responsibility is to my wife and my three children, and it's very hard to 11 justify for them -- even if it's unfair, for them to be put at any kind of physical risk because 12 I want to do academic research into the election.
13 Q Do you think if other researchers or other academics are seeing what's 14 happening to you, it might chill their willingness to do this type of research?
15 A Oh, I'm sure it is having that effect. Both this investigation and what is 16 going on publicly, I expect that it is discouraging a number of universities from studying
17 what happens in 2024.
18 [redacted]. All right. Oh, sorry. Before we end, I did want to enter your 19 written statement -- the written version of your statement into the record. This will be 20 exhibit 21. And it's just to have the complete record made.
21 [Stamos Exhibit No. 21
22 Was marked for identification.]
23 [redacted]. Thank you. We can go off the record.
24 [Recess.]
25 [redacted]. Back on the record, please.

1 Do you guys still have the exhibits? One was introduced by the minority in the 2 previous hour. It was the spreadsheet of EIP 833. And then, in my previous round of 3 questioning, there was an email with the same EIP 833 number.
4 Mr. Bellinger. Yep.
5 BY [redacted]:
6 Q Okay. If you were to flip to the second-to-last page of the re-creation of 7 the spreadsheet row, there are two columns, one "organizations," one "platform."
8 A Yeah, I see that.
9 Q And there's reference to EI-ISAC, Facebook, TikTok, Twitter. And under 10 "platform," it's Facebook, Instagram, TikTok, and Georgia Twitter. On the -- 11 A If I may.
12 Q Yeah.
13 A The Georgia is in the State-targeted column.
14 Q Oh, okay.
15 A So it just looks like when it's printed here, but it's in the State column.
16 Q Thank you for clarifying.
17 So the "platform" reads Facebook, Instagram, TikTok, Twitter?
18 A That's right.
19 Q And then, in the exhibit that I introduced in the majority's previous hour of 20 questioning, it says that the ticket had been shared with TikTok, Facebook, EI-ISAC,
21 Twitter, CIS misinformation reporting, and CISA CFITF.
22 For the email, I'll represent that this was produced to the committee by one of the 23 tech companies listed below. When the tech company receives this, they're able to see
24 that both CIS Misinformation Reporting and CISA CFITF received a ticket. Is that right?
25 A If this is what you said, this went to the company -- if that's true, then yes.

1 Q Okay. Do you know why CIS Misinformation Reporting and CISA CFITF are
2 not appearing in the archive data?
3 A So CIS Misinformation Reporting shows up as the creator. So I think what 4 you're seeing here is that EI-ISAC is the organization that the humans are logged into, and
5 CIS Misinformation Reporting is perhaps an automation system we are using to turn their 6 emailed reports into an entity. So it is -- that part is listed here.
7 Q Okay. And what about CISA CFITF?
8 A Yeah. I don't know why that's listed here. It's perhaps that it was 9 individually forwarded or they were cc'd, but that they were added specifically to this
10 ticket. I'm not sure.
11 Q Okay. And, to your understanding, how could CISA be specifically added to 12 this ticket?
13 A I'm not sure.
14 Q Could a government entity -- if it was not the creator and if it's not one of 15 the social media platforms, is there a mechanism by which not just a government entity
16 but other entities could be copied on or added to a ticket?
17 A I believe you could always put individual emails so that they get forwarded
18 something.
19 Q Okay. So it might be the case that CISA CFITF is a personal email?
20 A It could be that that is the name of an email that has -- as it's represented in 21 the Atlassian system, that if you put the email of an individual person the at CISA, it
22 shows up as CISA CFITF. I'm not sure.
23 Q Okay. If you were the recipient of the -- I don't know which exhibit number
24 this is, but the Bates No. is 1934, and the bottom of the email says, "This was shared 25 with," and it lists a bunch of entities including CISA CFITF -- would you be under the

1 impression that this information had been shared with CISA?

2 A It's possible, yes.

3 Q Okay. This is going back to just --

4 A And, to be clear, this was our work of information that we filled out and our

5 analysis. So that's what they would have seen in the public component. But, in the 6 email, that's what they would see, yes.

7 Q Okay. Would they see if this was submitted by EI-ISAC?

8 A So you can tell that from -- it says the CIS mis-. So what they would

9 probably see when they looked in is it would say CIS Misinformation Reporting because

10 that's what the reporter was set for the EI-ISAC tickets.

11 Q Okay. So the tech company would realize CIS created the ticket, and when

12 it's being shared, it's being shared with major social media platforms and CISA. That's 13 what this email represents. Is that right?

14 A That's what they could infer from this, yeah.

15 Q Okay. When -- I want to make sure I use the right term. Whether it's 16 onboarding or engaging with the social media platforms, who was your primary point of 17 contact at Meta in 2020?

18 A The person who supervised the most important team here would be

19 [redacted].

20 Q Do you recall any other names from Meta?

21 A I know a lot of people who work at Meta.

22 Q Sorry. In the context of engaging with EIP in 2020.

23 A Probably [redacted]. He helped lead a bunch of investigations.

24 [redacted]. I'm not sure who else would have -- we would have engaged with 25 directly or who were the people we onboarded on the platform.

1 In the end, I'm pretty sure the people who were doing this was not any of those
2 three, but whoever was on-call in the trust and safety team that was handling the 3 election at the time.
4 Q Do you recall if [redacted] from Meta was involved with EIP in 2020?
5 A It's possible. I don't recall any actual conversations with him, but it's 6 possible.
7 Q Did you have any regular points of contact with Facebook's or Meta's trust
8 and safety team in 2020?
9 A So all of those people work on integrity. Of the team that is actually doing
10 operations -- I should probably have said is probably what's called community operations, 11 which is the team that would take a report from us and then make the decision of what to 12 do with it. And I'm sure we onboarded one of those people, but I wasn't part of that 13 process of onboarding them.
14 Q Who at EIP was part of the process of onboarding the social media
15 platforms?
16 A I don't recall exactly who did that one, but I believe [redacted] and some of the 17 other students did most of those onboardings and trainings.
18 Q Who from Alphabet did EIP engage with in 2020?
19 A So I think the key person was [redacted], who I believe was kind of the 20 point of contact for policy engagement.
21 Q Were there any other names you recall?
22 A That's the only one at this point.
23 Q In 2020, who was EIP's primary point of contact with Twitter?
24 A Probably Yoel Roth and [redacted].
25 Q In 2020, who was EIP's primary point of contact with TikTok?

1 A The person who ran the team was [redacted], who I believe recently left.
2 I'm not sure who the actual person who might have been looking at the output, but [redacted]
3 would be kind of the primary person that we interacted with.

2 [4:42 p.m.]

3 BY [redacted]:

4 Q Who was the EIP's primary point of contact at Reddit?

5 A I've forgotten her name. There was a woman in the policy team. We can

6 come back to you.

7 Q Do you recall with respect to Alphabet if there was different points of 8 contact for Google as opposed to YouTube or if it was the same point of contact?

9 A I believe it was the same. For these purposes, the central Google team was 10 the one who was coordinating on their election policies.

11 Q In 2020, who was EIP's primary former contact with Discord?

12 A I don't recall with Discord.

13 Q What about with respect to Wikimedia?

14 A Yes. There's a -- I don't remember what the name is of the person at 15 Wikimedia. I wasn't a part of those meetings.

16 Q Who would have been part of those meetings?

17 A Probably [redacted] or some of the students who were doing onboarding.

18 Q Who is EIP's primary point of contact with Pinterest?

19 A I don't recall.

20 Q Are there plans to -- you mentioned that EIP -- obviously, this is the 2020

21 iteration. In 2022, you said there were some differences. Are there any plans to have 22 some continuation of the partnership for the 2024 election?

23 A That's an interesting question. I'm going to have to have a discussion with 24 Stanford's leadership. Since this investigation has cost the university now approaching

25 seven figures legal fees, it's been pretty successful I think in discouraging us from making it worthwhile for us to do a study in 2024.

[redacted]. Do you recall which exhibit we're on?

[redacted]. 21 -- 22.

[redacted]. 22. All right.

[Stamos Exhibit No. 22

Was marked for identification.]

BY [redacted]:

Q Do you know who [redacted] is? I don't know if I'm pronouncing her name right.

A Yeah. She was the woman I was thinking of, the head of policy for Reddit.

Q Great. And at her email at the top of the page, she says that "We" -- assuming referring to Reddit -- "are unable to participate in Jiras, but we are happy to receive info over email."

Do you recall that Reddit didn't respond in Jira directly?

A Right. They did not -- for whatever reason, did not want to have something they had to log into. They wanted things to be put in the email and sent directly to them.

Q Okay. And then there's an email below from you. You explain the situation. There are a couple of links. And then below you say: "It would be great if we could get somebody from Reddit on the Jira, just like Facebook, Google, Twitter, TikTok, Instagram, CISA, EI-ISAC."

Were you referring to CISA, the government agency?

A I was probably making a mistake there talking about CISA because EI-ISAC were the people who had access to the Jira.

Q But you list both EI-ISAC and CISA. Is that right?

1 A As I said, I believe I made a mistake in doing so.
2 Q In listing two entities when you meant one?
3 A I'm sure if you look through thousands of my emails, as you're doing, you'll 4 be able to find me make some mistakes and typos, yes.
5 Q But there is a Jira ticket notification that has CISA as well. Is that right?
6 A I believe that that is a Jira ticket that an imudal system member had been 7 added to. But CISA was not an organization that was onboarded that had the ability just 8 to get the stuff. Any ticket, just like with this, could have been sent to somebody -- this 9 is actually a great demonstration of this. Reddit, as is demonstrated in this email, is not 10 onboarded, yet they received a notification, just as CISA does not have to be onboarded
11 to receive a notification.
12 Q True. But you're representing to Reddit that CISA is on --
13 A As I said, in my thousands of emails, I'm sure I misrepresented -- made a 14 mistake somewhere.
15 Q Okay. How do you think Reddit interpreted this email?
16 A She says right here, "Unfortunately as we mentioned at the beginning of this
17 project we are unable to participate in external Jiras, but we are happy to receive info
18 over email."
19 Q Sure. But do you think she read the email to interpret that CISA was on 20 Jira?
21 A Possibly. And apparently it had no impact because her decision, as she 22 made for herself, is that they did not want to participate in being onboarded onto Jira.
23 Q Do you think that they declined to participate in part because they were 24 government partners?
25 A I don't know why they declined to participate. Reddit has always been a

1 little bit of a different company in this. They have kind of a smaller trust and safety
2 team and a different set of ways they enforce their policies because of the complicated
3 relationship they have with their sub Reddits. So it is definitely possible they would 4 approach doing any kind of policy around elections differently than other platforms.
5 [redacted]. This will be exhibit 23. I believe the majority introduced the same
6 statement. As things go along, we will hand out new versions.
7 [Stamos Exhibit No. 23
8 Was marked for identification.]
9 [redacted]. And this is exhibit 7 earlier.
10 [redacted]. No problem.
11 BY [redacted]:
12 Q If I could have you -- first let me ask again, did you play a role in drafting 13 this?
14 A Yes.
15 Q And who else from Stanford played a role in preparing it?
16 A My colleagues inside of SIO, and then we worked with Stanford lawyers and 17 outside counsel.
18 Q If I could call your attention -- it will be the top of page 3. The question
19 begins on page 2. The bolded question is: "Is it true that the EIP censored 22 million 20 tweets and labeled them as 'misinformation'?"
21 And the answer continues -- it starts on the bottom of page 2 and continues on 22 the top of page 3.
23 A Right.
24 Q The last full sentence -- there's a semicolon in there -- says: "The EIP
25 informed Twitter and other social media platforms when certain social media posts

1 violated each platforms's own policies; EIP did not make recommendations to the 2 platforms about what actions they should take."
3 That last half of the sentence, "EIP did not make recommendations to the 4 platforms about what actions they should take," do you understand that statement still to 5 be true?
6 A So the policy of the EIP was that we were informing platforms when we
7 thought content that we found violated their policies. It is possible that individual
8 students would use language like "I recommend" or "we recommend." Those are the 9 words of 18- to 24-year-olds who have no power, no coercive power, and had no ability
10 to force the companies to do anything.
11 Q So when communicating with social media platforms via the Jira tickets, it 12 was only students who would do that?
13 A No. There were also managers and tier 2 analysts, some of whom were 14 professionals, who might add comments that would be seen.
15 Q Okay. In the previous exhibit we saw, it's the email is from you to [redacted].
16 Is that right?
17 A That's right.
18 Q And even if you look down a little bit further, the notification where it's 19 being forwarded to [redacted] and there's that same 2020partnership.atlassian.net, the 20 name that appears next to it is yours. Is that right?
21 A That's right.
22 Q Okay. So there were instances where there were not students sharing the 23 Jira tickets with the social media platforms?
24 A That's right. There were professionals. We too, even employees, have 25 First Amendment rights to have our own opinions about what's going on and to share

1 those opinions with others.

2 Q And did the professionals who were sharing the Jira tickets with the social

3 media platforms, did they ever make recommendations?

4 A It's possible. We'd have to go look. But, again, the EIP had no power to

5 coerce the platforms to do anything. And, in fact, our hard empirical evidence shows

6 that in 65 percent of the time they took no action because they determined that that was

7 their decision under their own policies.

8 Q Same page, on page 3, the question is phrased as: "Did EIP receive direct

9 requests from the Department of Homeland Security's" -- it says "CISA to eliminate or 10 censor tweets?"

11 Did you phrase the question to avoid saying did EIP receive indirect requests from

12 CISA?

13 A We phrased this question to try to be accurate. And the accusation that's

14 have been made in front of a committee that, unfortunately, none of your members

15 corrected repeatedly is that CISA was telling us to censor tweets. And that turns out to 16 be false on multiple levels. We did no censorship, we had no power to have censorship,

17 and we did not have CISA sending us those requests.

18 Q To your understanding, if the question had read: "Did EIP receive indirect 19 requests from CISA," could you have provided the same response of a direct no?

20 A So I can't tell if CISA said something to somebody or if the EI-ISAC forwarded

21 something that perhaps had CISA involved. Beyond the EI-ISAC reporting things to us,

22 we're not sure where it's from. So this is an accurate statement and directly refutes the 23 claims that -- the false claims that were made in front of your committee.

24 Q But if the question had said: "Did EIP receive indirect requests," could EIP

25 represent the same answer of a direct no?

1 A If you asked me did EIP receive indirect requests from Donald Trump or from 2 Chairman Jordan, I also couldn't answer it. That's why we try to say direct. We only
3 have the knowledge of what went directly to us. If something was routed through 4 somebody else, I have no idea. It's possible that President Trump asked somebody, who 5 said something, who said something through EIP, and that would be impossible for us to 6 determine. So we try to be as accurate as possible here.
7 Q Okay. But in the archived data you provided to the committee, there are 8 social media platforms commenting on the Jira ticket system that they communicated
9 through CISA by way of CISA. Is that right? We covered that I think in the second 10 hour.
11 A Yes. Social media companies refer to them talking to CISA directly.
12 Q Okay. And you channel the requests through the EI-ISAC, which you
13 represented is operated by CIS, which is funded by CISA. Is that right?
14 A Partially funded. I don't know where all of their funding comes from, but I
15 do know they have grants from CISA.
16 Q Okay. And there are email notifications being generated by the Jira ticket
17 system where it says the ticket is being shared with CISA. Is that right?
18 A There's at least one case that you showed me where somebody from CISA
19 was cc's on the ticket.
20 Q Okay. And sitting here today -- this statement was drafted I think back in 21 March. Is that right? I don't know if we have a date on here.
22 A That sounds right.
23 Q Sitting here today, based off your understanding of who is involved with the 24 EIP, if the question was phrased "Did EIP receive indirect requests from CISA," what 25 response would be accurate?

A Just as I said, I cannot provide any assurances that requests from CISA or any other political actor did not come through some other actor. So, as you can see, we got requests from government officials and such. And so if President Trump sent a request to a political ally of his in the Georgia Secretary of State's office -- maybe that's a bad example -- in the Florida Secretary of State's office and they sent something via EI-ISAC, that would be an indirect request from the government.

So this was accurate when we wrote it, and I still believe that we did not receive any direct requests from CISA.

Mr. Bellinger. So, [redacted], it is 5 minutes to 5:00. I think just to be respectful to the witness, we're going to leave at 5:00. We've taken an awful lot of time. We spent an awful lot of time in the beginning just doing a lot of background stuff, but -- so can we wrap up in 5 minutes?

[redacted]. We'll be done shortly.

Mr. Bellinger. Well, we're going to leave at 5:00.

[redacted]. Understood.

BY [redacted]:

Q With respect to your Florida Secretary of State example, the Florida Secretary of State is one of the offices that participates in the EI-ISAC. Is that right?

A I expect so. I'm not so sure, but I'm pretty sure they do, yes.

Q Okay. Is it your understanding that the role CIS plays is different than the roles that the offices of the various Secretary of State offices play?

A Yes. My understanding is that CIS operates the internal -- the overall organization that coordinates. They run the events. They run the switchboard. They run the mailing list and such.

Q And does --

1 A And then all of the Secretaries of State and local election directors are the
2 members that generate the communications that then CIS routes.
3 Q And does CISA play a role with CIS's responsibilities with the EI-ISAC?
4 A I really can't speak as to the internal organization of the EI-ISAC.
5 Q Okay. Do you recall what the ticket was that was sent to the FBI?
6 A It was the -- I can try to find the ticket number. It was the ticket about the 7 Iranians and the Proud Boys.
8 Q Yeah.
9 A We sent it to them because there was a direct death threat, and it seemed 10 very possible to have a foreign component. So since that is a straight-up Federal crime,
11 we sent it to the FBI.
12 Q Do you recall if any social media platforms were tagged on that ticket?
13 A So, to be clear, I believe the way I communicated to the FBI is I sent a direct 14 email to them, and then we set up a call where we explained our findings to them.
15 They -- I do not believe they got anything out of Jira. So that was me cutting and pasting
16 our -- effectively a draft of the blog post that we eventually sent and sending them these 17 are our conclusions and then talking them through it.
18 Q Yeah. And so you issued a blog post on this issue. Did that blog post
19 predate the election?
20 A Yes.
21 Q And was it -- as part of the blog post, did you reveal that you had sent the 22 information to the FBI?
23 A I don't recall, no.
24 Q Okay.
25 A The blog post is still available if you want to go to eipartnership.net.

1 [redacted]. Can we go off the record?

2 [redacted] We will go on the record.

3 This is a transcribed interview of [redacted]. Chairman Jordan has

4 requested this interview as part of the committee's investigation of how and the extent

5 to which the executive branch has coerced and colluded with companies and other

6 intermediaries to censor speech.

7 Would the witness please state your name for the record.

8 [redacted]. My name is [redacted].

9 [redacted] We encourage witnesses who appear before the committee to

10 freely consult with counsel if they choose. It is my understanding that you're here with 11 counsel today. Correct?

12 [redacted]. Yes.

13 [redacted] Could counsel please state their name for the record.

14 Mr. Bopp. Michael Bopp, Gibson Dunn, representing [redacted].

15 Mr. Donovan. Daniel Donovan, King & Spalding, representing Alphabet.

16 [redacted] On behalf of the committee, I want to thank you for appearing

17 here today to answer our questions. The chairman also appreciates your willingness to

18 appear voluntarily.

19 My name is [redacted] I'm with Chairman Jordan's staff. This is [redacted]

20 [redacted] who will be leading the questions. I'll now have everyone else from the 21 committee who is here introduce themselves.

22 [redacted] [redacted] with Chairman Jordan's staff.

23 [redacted] [redacted] with Ranking Member Nadler's staff.

24 [redacted] [redacted] with Ranking Member Nadler's staff.

25 [redacted] [redacted] with Ranking Member Nadler.

1 [redacted] Ranking Member Nadler.

2 [redacted] Chairman Jordan's staff.

3 [redacted] I'd like to now go over the ground rules and guidelines that we'll

4 follow during today's interview. Our questions are going to proceed in rounds. The 5 majority will ask questions first for 1 hour, and then the minority will have the 6 opportunity to ask questions for an equal period of time if they so choose.

7 We're going to alternate back and forth until no more questions remain, and the

8 interview will be over then. We typically take a short break at the end of each hour, but

9 if you need a break apart from that, just let us know, lunch break. We're happy to 10 accommodate whatever you need.

11 [redacted]. Sure.

12 [redacted] As you can see, there is an official court reporter here today. So

13 we ask that everything you say you have a verbal response to all our questions and 14 answers so we can create a written record properly. Do you understand that?

15 [redacted]. I do.

16 [redacted] Okay. And so the court reporter can take down a clear record,

17 we're going to do our best to limit the number of people directing questions at you during

18 any given hour to just those people on staff whose turn it is. Please try and speak

19 clearly so the court reporter can understand and so the folks down at the end of the table

20 can hear you. It's kind of hard to hear at the end of the table over the echo.

21 It's also important that we try not to talk over one another during the interview or

22 interrupt each other if we can help it, so that goes for everyone present at today's

23 interview. And we want you to answer our questions in the most complete and truthful

24 manner as possible so we're going to take our time. And if there are any questions that

25 you don't understand, just let us know. We're happy to clarify. And they're going to

1 cover a wide range of topics, so, again, if you need clarification on what the question is
2 referring to, just let us know.
3 [redacted]. Okay.
4 [redacted] And, if you honestly don't know the answer to a question or don't 5 remember it, it's best not to guess. Just give us your best recollection, and it's okay to 6 tell us if you learned that information from someone else. Just indicate how you came
7 to know that information. And if there are things that you don't know or can't 8 remember just say so, and please inform us who, to the best of your knowledge, might be 9 able to provide a more complete answer to that question.
10 You should also understand that by law you're required to answer questions from 11 Congress truthfully. Do you understand that?
12 [redacted]. I do.
13 [redacted] Okay. This also applies to questions posed by congressional 14 staff in an interview. Do you understand this?
15 [redacted]. I do.
16 [redacted] Witnesses that knowingly provide false testimony could be 17 subject to criminal prosecution for making false statements under 18 U.S.C. 1001. Do
18 you understand this?
19 [redacted]. I do.
20 [redacted] Finally, I'd like to make note that the content of what we discuss 21 today is confidential, so we ask that you not speak about today's interview with any 22 outside individual so we can preserve the integrity of our investigation. For that same
23 reason, the marked exhibits that my colleague will be using today are going to remain
24 with the court reporter to be part of that record, and any copies of those exhibits we're 25 going to take back at the end of today's interview.

1 That's the end of my preamble. Anything from the minority?

2 Great. The clock now reads 10:20, and we're going to get started with our first

3 round of questioning.

4 EXAMINATION

5 BY [redacted]

6 Q [redacted], I'd like to begin with your educational background. Do you

7 have an undergraduate degree?

8 A I do.

9 Q And where did you obtain that undergraduate degree?

10 A Cornell University.

11 Q And what year did you obtain that degree?

12 A 2009.

13 Q Do you have any graduate degrees?

14 A I do.

15 Q And where did you obtain those graduate degrees?

16 A Georgetown University.

17 Q And what was the nature of that degree?

18 A Security studies.

19 Q Did you have a specific concentration?

20 A National security policy.

21 Q With the United States specifically or generally?

22 A I believe the title was U.S. national security policy, so, yes, it was certainly

23 focused on U.S.

24 Q And was that your only graduate degree?

25 A It is.

1 Q And what year did you obtain that degree?

2 A 2015.

3 Q And where were you first employed after graduating from Georgetown?

4 A I was employed at the Department of Defense. I worked -- I was -- I

5 worked through grad school.

6 Q And where did you work through grad school?

7 A At the U.S. -- well, I think, when I started grad school, I was working in the 8 House of Representatives. When I finished grad school, I was working in the 9 Department of Defense.

10 Q And from what office did you work in the House of Representatives?

11 A The Committee on Homeland Security.

12 Q And what were your positions?

13 A So I was a legislative assistant and then later a professional staff member.

14 Q And about when did you leave the committee?

15 A 2013.

16 Q And you said you were employed by the Department of Defense after that.

17 Is that correct?

18 A Correct.

19 Q And what positions did you hold at the Department of Defense?

20 A Special assistant to the Assistant Secretary of Defense for Legislative Affairs,

21 and then later special assistant to the Deputy Assistant Secretary of Defense for Cyber

22 Policy.

23 Q And what were the time periods for those respective positions?

24 A Roughly, the first role was 2013 to 2015, and the second role was 2015 to 25 2017.

1 Q And could you describe your responsibilities as special assistant?
2 A For which role?
3 Q In the first one.
4 A So the first role, I was hired to be essentially the liaison to Congress for 5 matters relating to cyber policy.
6 Q And what about the second role?
7 A The second role I was an adviser in the Office of the Secretary of Defense, so
8 an adviser ultimately to the Secretary of Defense on matters related to cyber policy.
9 Q And did that involve social media at all?
10 A No.
11 Q And where were you employed after the Department of Defense?
12 A Goldman Sachs.
13 Q And what was your position there?
14 A I was global head of vulnerability management for Goldman Sachs.
15 Q And what did your responsibilities entail as head of vulnerability
16 management?
17 A So I was responsible for leading a team that's found and helped mitigate 18 software vulnerabilities in Goldman Sachs' technology.
19 Q And what was the time period during which you were employed by Goldman
20 Sachs?
21 A 2017 to 2021.
22 Q And is that when you began your employment with Google, 2021?
23 A Yes.
24 Q Do you remember the month?
25 A I believe I started in October 2021.

1 Q And have you held more than one position at Google?

2 A No.

3 Q And what is your current position at Google?

4 A Head of security policy.

5 Q And what is the name of the team to which you belong?

6 A The broader team I belong is called the Government Affairs and Public Policy

7 Organization.

8 Q And so the Government Affairs and Public Policy is that one consolidated

9 team?

10 A It is.

11 Q And how many people belong to that team?

12 A I do not know. It is several hundred.

13 Q And to whom do you directly report?

14 A [redacted].

15 Q Could you spell that last name?

16 A [redacted].

17 Q Okay. And do you have any direct reports?

18 A I do.

19 Q And who are those individuals?

20 A [redacted] and [redacted].

21 Q [redacted]

22 A [redacted]

23 Q How is that spelled?

24 A [redacted].

25 Q Okay. And what is [redacted] responsibilities?

1 A [redacted] -- you know, our team, our pod is responsible for advising the 2 company on cybersecurity policy mainly, and within that, [redacted] responsibilities, she
3 focuses on device security, Asia-Pacific issues, and cyber workforce policy. Those are 4 her three primary responsibilities.
5 Q Sorry, what was that third one?
6 A Cyber workforce policy.
7 Q And what about [redacted]; what are her responsibilities?
8 A Her primary focus -- her two focuses are the kind of intersection of emerging
9 technology in cybersecurity and emerging markets cybersecurity.
10 Q And with which other teams would you say that you work most often within 11 the company?
12 A Other teams within our Government Affairs and Public Policy Organization,
13 the Legal Organization, our core security team. It's an organization called Privacy,
14 Safety, and Security.
15 Q And is Privacy, Safety, and Security housed within Government Affairs and 16 Public Policy?
17 A It is not.
18 Q And who leads that team?
19 A [redacted].
20 Q [redacted]?
21 A [redacted].
22 Q And who do you interact with most often on the legal team?
23 A [redacted].
24 Q Broadly speaking, what would you say are your responsibilities as head of 25 security policy?

1 A To advise company teams and executives on security or cybersecurity public
2 policy issues and help to set Google's public policy positions related to that topic.
3 Q And when you say teams, does that encompass both Google and YouTube,
4 or is it specific to one or the other?
5 A So my role is more or less Alphabet wide, so, yeah.
6 Q And would that include Alphabet subsidiaries like Madiant, for example?
7 A It would.
8 Q And it would also include all of Google's product offerings, Google Maps,
9 Google --
10 A Correct.
11 Q -- Search, et cetera?
12 A Yeah.
13 Q And, in your capacity as head of security policy, did you have any role in 14 shaping Google's community guidelines?
15 A No. I -- my role -- I have no role whatsoever in content moderation issues
16 or decisionmaking.
17 Q So you also have no role in shaping YouTube's committee guidelines, for 18 example?
19 A No.
20 Q Have you ever directed anyone at the company to remove content on one of 21 Google's platforms?
22 A No.
23 Q Have you ever recommended that anyone at the company do so?
24 A Not to my recollection.
25 Q Were you involved in any capacity in the identification of inauthentic

1 accounts on any of Google's platforms?

2 A No.

3 Q Were you involved generally in discussions about inauthentic accounts?

4 A Not to my recollection, no.

5 Q Are you familiar with the term "misinformation"?

6 A I am.

7 Q And what do you understand the term "misinformation" to mean?

8 A I'm not the expert in this area, but to me it means information that may be 9 false or misleading.

10 Q And what about the term "disinformation," are you familiar with that term?

11 A I am.

12 Q And what do you understand the term "disinformation" to mean?

13 A The distinction with disinformation in my understanding -- again, I'm not the 14 expert -- is that it's information that is deliberately false or misleading.

15 Q In your capacity as head of security policy, have you been involved in any 16 discussions related to misinformation?

17 A Yes.

18 Q What about disinformation?

19 A Yes.

20 Q And what were the nature of the discussions about misinformation?

21 A By the nature of my role, and, again, to be very clear, I am not responsible

22 for those matters, but I am responsible for cybersecurity matters. And so, you know, I'm

23 in conversations about threat groups that are both responsible for hacking, which is an

24 issue I, you know, work on and care about, but some of those actors are also involved in

25 spreading misinformation and disinformation. And so, though that is not my lane or

1 something I focus on, I am in conversations about, for example, Russian foreign
2 intelligence services that might be doing both hacking and spreading, you know, harmful
3 content online.
4 Q And have you been involved in any discussions about misinformation in a
5 domestic context?
6 A No, I don't think so. My world is kind of foreign, you know, intelligence,
7 espionage organizations, that type of thing.
8 Q When you say that you focus on hacking, so that's from a public policy
9 perspective rather than, say, an engineering perspective?
10 A Yeah, correct. That's a good distinction. I have no operational or 11 technical role with the company. I focus exclusively on policy matters.
12 BY [redacted]
13 Q You said you're not the expert at misinformation. Who is at Google?
14 A Well, so there are various teams. I wouldn't say there's a single lead for 15 that topic. There are various teams that focus on different aspects of that -- of that 16 challenge.
17 Q What are some of those teams?
18 A So the Trust and Safety team, and then I think various product teams that 19 may host content have a role.
20 Q Do you work with one team more than another?
21 A I don't work with those teams at all when it comes to this topic.
22 Q Who do you work with when misinformation comes up in like the context of 23 hacking?
24 A So where I have been in conversations where the topic comes up, it's usually 25 with, for instance, our Threat Analysis Group.

1 Q Who leads that?

2 A [redacted].

3 BY [redacted]

4 Q Would you say that your role is external facing?

5 A I would say it's a mixture.

6 Q And do you have interactions with the Federal Government?

7 A I do.

8 Q And so I want to talk about the Cybersecurity Infrastructure and Security

9 Agency, or CISA. Are you familiar with that particular agency?

10 A I am.

11 Q And, to your knowledge, what generally is CISA's mandate?

12 A They have a -- to my understanding, you know, they have a critical

13 infrastructure protection role, which is broadly, I think they call themselves America's

14 Cyber Defense Agency, and they partner with a particular focus on critical infrastructure

15 to help improve security and resilience.

16 Q And do you know who the current Director of CISA is?

17 A I do.

18 Q Do you know her name?

19 A Jen Easterly.

20 Q Okay. Have you ever interacted with Director Easterly during your time at 21 Google?

22 A I have, yes.

23 Q And what was the nature of that interaction?

24 A I have been in meetings with her and her team on cybersecurity policy

25 matters, so that, you know, topics like software security, critical infrastructure security,

1 cyber workforce policy.

2 Q You mentioned previously that misinformation, disinformation had come up

3 in the context of cybersecurity. Did you ever discuss mis- or disinformation with 4 Director Easterly?

5 A No.

6 Q And are you familiar with the Joint Cyber Defense Collective, JCDC?

7 A The Joint Cyber Defense Collaborative, yes.

8 Q Collaborative. And what is the JCDC?

9 A It is a public/private initiative hosted by CISA that brings together CISA and

10 other Federal partners with industry participants with the goal of helping to improve, you

11 know, the security and resilience of our Nation's critical infrastructure.

12 Q Okay. And are you involved with JCDC in any capacity?

13 A Yes. I wouldn't say I have deep involvement, but Google is a founding

14 member of that group.

15 Q But you would say that you are involved?

16 A Yes.

17 Q And -- go ahead.

18 BY [redacted]

19 Q Who are the other founding members, if you're aware?

20 A I couldn't -- I couldn't give you a list off the top of my head, sorry.

21 Q Are you aware of any of the other industry participants in the group?

22 A I would say broadly they're in the telecommunications and technology

23 sectors.

24 Q You don't know a number or approximate amount of members?

25 A I can't. I mean, I can list some examples, and the group is public.

1 Q Okay.

2 A So our, you know, peer Cloud providers, for instance, are involved.

3 Q Okay.

4 BY [redacted]

5 Q Do you know what the relationship is between the JCDC and CISA?

6 A JCDC is a part of CISA.

7 Q And do you know if any non-CISA governmental entities were involved in the

8 JCDC?

9 A Yes. And I don't know if it's a formal mechanism or not, but it's quite

10 common for, you know, activities under the aegis of JCDC to involve other Federal 11 organizations in meetings and things like that.

12 Q And what are some of those agencies?

13 A FBI, Department of Energy.

14 [redacted] This will be exhibit 1.

15 [[redacted] Exhibit No. 1

16 Was marked for identification.]

17 [redacted] And, for the record, we're handing you what we've marked as

18 exhibit 1, which is an email dated November 1, 2022. Just let us know when you've had 19 enough time to review, but take your time.

20 [redacted]. Okay.

21 Mr. Bopp. One moment.

22 [redacted]. Sure. Yeah, please, take your time.

23 Mr. Bopp. Okay.

24 BY [redacted]

25 Q This is an email sent on September 1, 2022. Is that correct?

1 A It appears to be, yes.

2 Q And you received this email. Is that right?

3 A I don't recall, to be honest.

4 Q Okay. Does the document indicate that you received the email?

5 A This is a lot of names to look through.

6 Q Right above the cc line on the left.

7 A There I am.

8 Q I'd like to ask you about some of the names on this email at the bottom of 9 the cc line.

10 A All right.

11 Q Specifically, Geoffrey Hale, does that name mean anything to you?

12 A I do not know him personally, but I believe that Geoff Hale kind of leads 13 election security efforts for DHS.

14 Q And have you ever interacted with Mr. Hale?

15 A I don't believe so.

16 Q What about Brian Scully, right under Mr. Hale, are you familiar with that 17 name?

18 A I'm not.

19 Q And [redacted], to the right of Mr. Scully, are you familiar with that 20 name?

21 A I'm not.

22 Q The subject line of this email is "JCDC Election Security Webinar #3." Is that

23 correct?

24 A That's correct.

25 Q And do you recall whether you attended this particular webinar?

A I do not recall, but I very likely did not.

Q Okay. Have you ever attended any JCDC election security webinars?

A I do not recall.

Q Have you ever attended any JCDC webinars generally?

A I have, yes.

Q And do you recall whether misinformation was discussed at any of the webinars that you attended?

A I do not believe so.

Q What about disinformation?

A I do not believe so.

Q Was election security generally discussed in these JCDC webinars you attended?

A I don't think so. I think I've attended a -- kind of a threat briefing discussion with JCDC before, but I do not believe the topic was election security or misinformation or disinformation related.

[redacted] What was the topic?

[redacted]. I think broader threats. I think there was one that I had attended that was about kind of more Russian hacking activities.

BY [redacted]

Q To your knowledge, does the JCDC host nonwebinar meetings?

A They do.

Q And have you attended any of those nonwebinar meetings?

A I think maybe one or two.

Q And, in those one or two nonwebinar meetings that you attended, was misinformation discussed?

1 A No.

2 Q Was disinformation discussed?

3 A No.

4 Q And what were the topics of those meetings?

5 A I believe I attended one on Cloud security kind of instant response issues.

6 Q In any email correspondence related to the JCDC, do you remember any 7 discussion of misinformation?

8 Mr. Bopp. You're asking him if -- first -- a couple things going on in your

9 question, right. You're first asking him -- or are you asking him if he recalls any emails?

10 [redacted] Well, we've already established that he's received email

11 correspondence about JCDC.

12 Mr. Bopp. Right, but I thought you were asking him about other email

13 correspondence?

14 [redacted] Well, that's part of the question.

15 Mr. Bopp. Okay. Well, would you mind restating the question? I just didn't 16 understand it.

17 BY [redacted]

18 Q Okay. Have you received any other email correspondence related to the 19 JCDC other than this email?

20 A Yes.

21 Q And, in those email correspondence, was there any discussion of 22 misinformation?

23 A Not to my recollection.

24 Q Was there any discussion of disinformation?

25 A Not to my recollection.

1 Q Was there any discussion of content moderation policies generally?

2 A Not to my recollection.

3 BY [redacted]

4 Q How often do they have these webinars?

5 A Well, I believe this specific, you know, thread of webinars indicates that they

6 held at least four in 2022.

7 Q Okay. And what about in-person meetings with JCDC?

8 A So I am not deeply involved with JCDC, as I indicated, but I am aware that 9 they meet more frequently than this.

10 [redacted] We can take that exhibit back.

11 [redacted] Just put it in the middle in case we refer to it later.

12 BY [redacted]

13 Q And maybe you already mentioned this, but who at Google would be most

14 intimately familiar with the JCDC and their meetings?

15 A Our Google Cloud Team is kind of the more or less official participant in the

16 JCDC.

17 Q And who is that led by, if you know?

18 A Well, the Google Cloud CEO is Thomas Kurian, but there are some, you

19 know, colleagues who participate from more of a, you know, working level.

20 Q Do you know their names?

21 A [redacted] would be a name, [redacted].

22 Q Okay. Thanks.

23 [redacted] We've marked this email sent on May 4, 2022, as exhibit 2.

24 [[redacted] Exhibit No. 2

25 Was marked for identification.]

1 BY [redacted]

2 Q This is an email that was sent on May 4, 2022. Is that correct?

3 A Yes.

4 Q And one, two, three, four, five, six, seven lines from the bottom of the cc

5 section, is that your email?

6 A It is.

7 Q Do you recall receiving this email?

8 A I do not.

9 Q The subject line of this email as it's written on the document is "JCDC

10 Election Security Meeting: Cyber Threat Info Sharing." Is that correct?

11 A It is.

12 Q And this is an email from a Mitchell Freddura at CISA. Is that right?

13 A Yes.

14 Q And do you have any familiarity with that name?

15 A Only -- I'm familiar with the name as I get emails from this person. I've 16 never met this person, to my knowledge.

17 Q If I could turn your attention to the second page, Bates No. ending in 40.

18 Do you see the bolded text that says "intended outcomes"?

19 A Uh-huh.

20 Q And, under that, bullet one is a common understanding of the Slack channel

21 competition protocols and work flows. Did I read that correctly?

22 A Yes.

23 Q Do you have any idea what Slack channel this is referring to?

24 A I do.

25 Q And did you have access to that particular Slack channel?

1 A No.

2 Q Do you know what the purpose of that Slack channel was?

3 A I believe to facilitate information sharing and exchange of best practices

4 amongst JCDC members.

5 Q And would that have included Google personnel?

6 A Yes.

7 Q Do you know whether Google personnel took part in the Slack channel?

8 A I do not.

9 Q All right. I can take that back.

10 [redacted] I'm marking this email dated March 22, 2023, as exhibit 3.

11 [[redacted] Exhibit No. 3

13 [redacted]. Okay.

14 BY [redacted]

15 Q Are you familiar with the Cybersecurity Advisory Committee affiliated with 16 CISA?

17 A I am.

18 Q And this is an email dated March 22, 2023. Is that correct?

19 A Correct.

20 Q And the subject of this email is "CSAC, C-S-A-C, turning the corner of cyber 21 hygiene subcommittee meeting." Is that correct?

22 A Yes.

23 Q And, on the bottom line in the middle there, is that your email address for 24 the cc line?

25 A Yes.

1 Q And do you recall receiving this email?

2 A I get a lot of emails, you know, related to this, so this specific one, I don't

3 recall, but --

4 Q And were you a member of CISA's Cybersecurity Advisory Committee?

5 A No. I'm a plus-one.

6 Q And have you ever been invited to an official CSAC function?

7 A Yes.

8 Q And have you ever attended an official CSAC function?

9 A Yes.

10 Q And which function was that?

11 A So, for instance, they recently had a quarterly meeting for members that I

12 attended.

13 Q And have you attended any quarterly meetings prior to 2023?

14 A No.

15 BY [redacted]

16 Q Do they meet outside on a quarterly basis at all, or how often do they meet?

17 A Yes. I mean, as you can see here, this is a virtual subcommittee meeting.

18 Q Do they normally meet virtually or in person?

19 A Virtually.

20 Q And were all the members, everyone, on this email, I presume?

21 A Yeah. I -- the membership is public, so -- but I -- I think that recipients is 22 probably a good starting point. Those are members, members or plus-ones.

23 BY [redacted]

24 Q And did you attend any CSAC functions in 2022?

25 A No.

1 Q Are you familiar generally that the CSAC had a subcommittee related to
2 mis- and disinformation?
3 A I'm not really.
4 Q We can take that back.
5 [redacted] Marking this email dated September 2, 2022, as exhibit 4.
6 [[redacted] Exhibit No. 4

8 BY [redacted]
9 Q The first email on this thread is from [redacted]. Is that correct?
10 A Correct.
11 Q And it was sent on September 2, 2022. Is that right?
12 A Correct.
13 Q And you are cc'd on this email. Is that correct?
14 A Correct.
15 Q And is the [redacted] on the cc line the [redacted], your direct 16 report that we were talking about earlier?
17 A It is.
18 Q Okay. And this email from [redacted] was to [redacted] and 19 [redacted]. Is that correct?
20 A Uh-huh.
21 Q Can I get a verbal yes or no for the record?
22 A Yes.
23 Q Sorry. And do you know who [redacted] is?
24 A I do.
25 Q And is he with the Office of the Director of National Intelligence?

1 A He is.

2 Q And what is his role, to your knowledge?

3 A So his role is -- I probably can't perfectly state the organization, but I believe

4 he's the deputy at the Cyber Threat Intelligence Integration Center within the DNI.

5 Q And have you interacted with [redacted] prior to this email exchange?

6 A Yes.

7 Q And what were the nature of those interactions?

8 A We occasionally engaged with that organization to share information on 9 cyber threats.

10 Q And what about [redacted], do you know who that is?

11 A I believe so.

12 Q And do you know what their name is?

13 A I believe so, yeah.

14 Q Could you state for the record what their name is?

15 A I'm not sure if his -- you know, if it -- I don't think I should be stating 16 someone in the intelligence community's name.

17 [redacted] Okay. Let's go off the record.

18 [Discussion off the record.]

19 [redacted] Back on the record.

20 BY [redacted]

21 Q In this first email from [redacted], that first large paragraph saying "I'm 22 writing." It says: I'm writing to share with you Google's recent blog on our ongoing

23 work to support the 2022 U.S. midterm elections. YouTube also published this blog on 24 its efforts to connect people to authoritative information and help limit the spread of 25 harmful misinformation related to the 2022 U.S. midterm elections.

1 Did I read that correctly?

2 A Yes.

3 Q And do you know why [redacted] informed the ODNI about YouTube's

4 election misinformation policies?

5 A I do not specifically know why that sentence is in the paragraph.

6 Q Do you know why generally Google personnel informed government

7 personnel about updates to their content moderation policies?

8 A So like the content moderation side, I can't speak to if any authority. I can

9 talk in general when it comes to combating threats in the digital domain, particularly for

10 cybersecurity, which is my job. A common thing you'll hear is cybersecurity is a team

11 sport. We need to work together to combat threats to our digital infrastructure, and so

12 we engage with a host of partners to make sure they understand what we're seeing out

13 there in terms of, you know, malicious nation-state threats to users.

14 Q And do you know what [redacted] role is at Google?

15 A I do.

16 Q And what role is that?

17 A She currently works in Cloud security policy within our GAP Team.

18 Q Now, on this email, the only two people copied are yourself and 19 [redacted]. Is that right?

20 A Uh-huh.

21 Q And, as you said before, those are both individuals on your team?

22 A Myself and [redacted] yes.

23 Q Right. Who work on cybersecurity. Is that correct?

24 A Yep.

25 Q Do you know why the two of you work on cybersecurity were copied on this email about limiting the spread of harmful misinformation?

A I would guess it's because of the first sentence, which is "our ongoing work to support the 2022 U.S. midterm elections." Again, I -- I do not work in the content moderation space whatsoever, but cybersecurity is an important component of election security as well, ensuring that the platforms and services used by campaign organizations, election organizations, et cetera, are secure. And so Google has a small but important part to play in that.

Q And is this the only email correspondence that you've been involved on with ODNI?

A No.

Q To your recollection, were there any other instances in which a Google personnel communicated with ODNI about election misinformation?

A It's -- to my recollection, no.

Q But this would've been the only instance? That's two different questions.

Mr. Bopp. I want to make sure the record is clear on this. I think maybe it would be better to just ask whether you have any recollection of any other communications with the DNI on election misinformation.

[redacted]. I'm not aware of any specific other threats on this topic with the DNI.

BY [redacted]

Q Okay. And would you say that it was common for Google to send updates to ODNI about changes to its content moderation policies, to your knowledge?

A It's not my space.

Q Are you aware of other instances in which Google personnel emailed ODNI about updates to the content moderation policies?

1 A Not aware or can't recall.

2 Q Are you aware of any other instances in which Google personnel emailed

3 other government agencies about updates to its content moderation policies?

4 A No.

5 Q Are you aware of any discussions involving pending changes to any content

6 moderation policies between Google personnel and government personnel?

7 A No.

8 Q To your knowledge, did anyone from ODNI ever contact Google about its

9 content moderation policies?

10 A Not to my knowledge.

11 Q What about other intelligence agencies?

12 A Not to my knowledge.

13 Q What about other government agencies?

14 A I think we're going on a string here. What was the first question again?

15 Q Sorry. Are you aware of any instances in which other government

16 agencies, that is to say agencies other than ODNI intelligence agencies, emailed Google

17 about its content moderation policies?

18 A Yes. Not -- so not ODNI, not even U.S. Government, frankly.

19 Q So these would be foreign governments?

20 A Correct.

21 Q I'd now like to turn our attention to the FBI. Are you familiar with an FBI

22 agent named Alexander Kusanex (ph)?

23 A No.

24 Q Are you familiar with an FBI agent named Agent Mark Kellett (ph)?

25 A No.

1 Q And are you familiar with an FBI agent named Elvis Chan?

2 A I have heard that name before. I'm familiar with it, but I can't really place

3 him.

4 Q And have you ever interacted with Agent Chan?

5 A No.

6 Q And are you generally familiar with the security service of Ukraine, or SBU?

7 A Generally.

8 Q And what is your understanding of the role that the SBU serves?

9 A They're the security service of Ukraine.

10 Q And would you say that they're a law enforcement agency?

11 A Internal security in law enforcement.

12 Q Would you say that they have an intelligence role?

13 A Yes.

14 Q In your time at Google, have you ever interacted with SBU personnel?

15 A Not knowingly, no.

16 Q Have U.S. Government officials ever discussed the SBU with you?

17 A No.

18 Q To your knowledge, has the FBI ever referred requests for the removal of 19 content from the SBU to Google?

20 A Not to my recollection.

21 Q To your knowledge, has the FBI ever referred requests from other non-SBU

22 Ukrainian Government agencies?

23 A Yes, I am aware of such things occurring. I could not tell you any specifics

24 about them.

25 Q Are you aware of the FBI referring requests for the removal of content from

1 non-Ukrainian foreign government agencies?

2 A No.

3 Q And, to your knowledge, did anyone at the SBU ever submit a request to 4 Google through a dot-gov email address?

5 A Not to my knowledge.

6 Q And are you familiar with a [redacted]?

7 A Yes.

8 Q And who is [redacted]?

9 A He's a former Google employee.

10 Q And did you interact with [redacted] during your time at Google?

11 A Yes.

12 Q And what were the nature of those interactions?

13 A Generally related to, you know, cybersecurity and cybersecurity policy

14 matters.

15 Q Did they ever involve discussions of misinformation?

16 A No.

17 Q Did they ever involve --

18 Mr. Bopp. When you say "no," do you mean not that you recall? I just want to 19 be clear on the record.

20 [redacted]. Yeah, not that I -- not that I recall.

21 BY [redacted]

22 Q And do you recall any discussions with [redacted] about disinformation?

23 A Not that I recall.

24 Q Do you recall any discussions with [redacted] about foreign influence

25 operations?

1 A Not that I -- not that I recall.

2 Q Are you familiar with a [redacted] at Google?

3 A Yes.

4 Q And who is [redacted]?

5 A She is a current lawyer handling kind of law enforcement access and data

6 disclosure matters for Google.

7 Q And have you interacted with [redacted] during your time at Google?

8 A Yes.

9 Q And were those interactions similar to the ones you had with [redacted]?

10 A Not really, not -- I've barely worked with [redacted], and I generally don't 11 work on that law enforcement access side.

12 Q Have you ever discussed misinformation with [redacted]?

13 A No.

14 Q Disinformation with [redacted]?

15 A No.

16 Q Foreign influence operation with [redacted]?

17 A No.

18 Q Do you know who [redacted] (ph)is?

19 A Yes.

20 Q And who is [redacted] ph)?

21 A He is a lawyer on that Legal Team.

22 Q And have you interacted with [redacted] (ph) during your time at Google?

23 A Yes.

24 Q Have you ever discussed misinformation with [redacted] (ph)?

25 A No.

1 Q Have you ever discussed disinformation with [redacted] (ph)?

2 A No.

3 Q Have you ever discussed foreign influence operations with [redacted] ph)?

4 A No.

5 Mr. Bopp. Once again, when you're saying "no," do you mean categorically no or 6 that -- not that you recall?

7 [redacted]. Not that I recall. It would -- I am engaging with these lawyers on 8 cybersecurity, generally cybersecurity laws and regulations. But not that I recall.

9 BY [redacted]

10 Q Do you recall any discussions of malign actors within the SBU with any

11 Google personnel during your time at Google?

12 A Not that I recall.

14 [[redacted] Exhibit No. 5

15 Was marked for identification.]

16 [redacted]. Okay.

17 BY [redacted]

18 Q This is an email that you sent on March 2, 2022. Is that correct?

19 A Correct.

20 Q And do you recall sending this email?

21 A Yes, more or less, yeah.

22 Q And this email was sent to two individuals, the first of which is a Jeffrey

23 Greene at EOP/NSC. Do you know who Mr. Greene is?

24 A I do.

25 Q And who is Mr. Greene?

1 A He's -- he's Jeff Greene, was at the National Security Council at that time.
2 Q And do you know what Mr. Greene's role was at the NSC?
3 A He was one of the Directors for Cyber Policy.
4 Q Then the next individual this email was sent to is an Iranga Kahangama. Do
5 you know who that is?
6 A I do.
7 Q And who is Mr. Kahangama?
8 A He was also serving on the National Security Council at that time as a
9 Director for Cyber Policy.
10 Q And do you know if there is any distinction in the two roles? You said that 11 they both worked on cybersecurity policy. Did one work in a particular region?
12 A I couldn't tell you the distinction between who was doing what there.
13 Q In the email you say that: Hi, Jeff, Iranga. Long time no speak. I am sure
14 this is very stressful times, so I will cut to the chase. We were wondering if you'd like to 15 connect for 15 minutes in the next couple of days for us to give you a download on some 16 actions we are taking in the Ukraine context to help protect people and fill you in a little 17 bit on what we are seeing in the threat environment.
18 Did I read that correctly?
19 A Yes.
20 Q To your recollection, did this briefing that you offered take place?
21 A To my recollection, this briefing did not take place.
22 Q And why did you offer to brief Mr. Greene and Mr. Kahangama about 23 Google's actions in Ukraine?
24 A Similar to what I said previously, cybersecurity is a team sport, and working 25 together to disrupt threats is critical. And so it's very common for both companies to

1 share information about what's going on in the threat environment with government and
2 vice versa. So that's, I think, what this is all about.
3 Q At the end of that first paragraph, it says: A little bit on what we are seeing
4 in the threat environment.
5 Would that involve things like hacking, or would that also involve things like
6 foreign malign influence campaigns?
7 A Likely just hacking, yeah.
8 Q Do you recall ever having discussed foreign-based disinformation with 9 anyone at the NSC?
10 A Not that I recall.
11 Q What about misinformation generally with anyone at the NSC?
12 A Not that I recall.

19 Q If you could turn to the last page -- excuse me, the second-to-last page,
20 Bates No. ending in 84.
21 A Uh-huh.
22 Q This appears to be an email from an Endrit Demi. Is that correct?
23 A Yes.
24 Q And do you know who that is?
25 A I do not. I mean, I know it's a State Department employee, but --

1 Q And do you recall having received this email?

2 A I do. I don't believe I received this email. I think I was added to this

3 thread.

4 Q And so, when you were added to the thread, would you have been able to 5 see this email?

6 A Yes.

7 Q In the email, Endrit Demi says: One of the things I have been brainstorming

8 with Mike is the possibility of flooding Russian platforms with accurate and detailed

9 information about the war in the hopes of opening the eyes of Russian citizens to the

10 realities next door. Given Google's immense technical expertise and global reach, I

11 would greatly appreciate the chance to discuss with you any possible technological

12 solutions that could help us achieve this goal and potential public/private

13 partnerships -- or excuse me, public/private partnership opportunities we could explore.

14 Did I read that correctly?

15 A You did.

16 Q To your knowledge, did State Department officials ever suggest flooding a 17 platform with certain kinds of information in a domestic context?

18 A Flooding a platform with information within the U.S.?

19 Q Yes.

20 A Not to my knowledge.

21 Q Is this the only instance when a government official suggested an 22 information operation like this one?

23 A To my knowledge, yes.

24 Q And, from the rest of this email chain, it appears that Google took the State

25 Department officials' offer to have a briefing. Is that correct?

1 A It appears so, yes.

2 Q And, on that first page, Bates No. 78, that appears to be an invitation for a

3 Google/State Department/Ukraine discussion. Is that right?

4 A [Nonverbal response.]

5 Q Do you recall whether you attended --

6 The Reporter. What was your answer?

7 [redacted]. I hadn't answered yet.

8 BY [redacted]

9 Q Oh, sorry. I apologize.

10 A To the question of do I recall if I attended? That question?

11 Q No, sorry. This is a Google/State Department/Ukraine discussion. Is that

12 correct?

13 A Yes. It does appear to be, yes.

14 Q And do you recall whether you attended that particular discussion?

15 A I don't recall, but I believe I did not.

16 [redacted] Do you know who did attend that meeting?

17 [redacted]. I don't. I think you could infer based on the people on this email

18 thread. But I don't know, because I was -- I don't believe I was there.

19 [redacted] Were there any other similar meetings to this that you did

20 attend?

21 [redacted]. Define similar.

22 [redacted] Discussing an information campaign like this?

23 [redacted]. No.

24 [redacted] Marking this email dated March 24, 2022, as exhibit 7.

25 [redacted] Exhibit No. 7

1 Was marked for identification.]

2 BY [redacted]

3 Q This is an email invitation sent on March 24, 2022. Is that correct?

4 A Correct.

5 Q And this was an invitation sent to an [redacted]. Is that right?

6 A It appears to be, yeah.

7 Q In the description box, it says that you are invited to join Google and the

8 YouTube representatives for an unclassified briefing on their ongoing response to the war

9 and humanitarian crisis in Ukraine. This is an off-the-record and not-for-attribution

10 briefing.

11 Did I read that correctly?

12 A You did.

13 Q Do you recall this email?

14 A I do.

15 Q And do you recall this meeting?

16 A I do.

17 Q And do you know why this was an off-the-record meeting?

18 A I do not. Presumably to exchange in frank views.

19 Q Does that apply also for the not-for-attribution part?

20 A Yes.

21 Q And it says that you accepted the invitation. Is that right?

22 A Yes.

23 Q And do you recall whether you attended the meeting?

24 A I did.

25 Q Do you see the section where it says "agenda," and there are four bullet points underneath?

A Yes.

Q The first one is "supporting authoritative information." Is that right?

A Yes.

Q And do you recall whether supporting authoritative information was discussed at this meeting?

A I don't particularly recall much about this meeting.

Q Do you recall who attended the meeting besides yourself?

A Well, [redacted] clearly. Likely [redacted] and [redacted], but I'm not positive. I mean, honestly, I don't recall too much about this meeting.

Q And do you recall whether this meeting was with representatives from the United States' delegation to the United Nations?

A Yes, it was.

Q And would [redacted] be one of those individuals?

A Well, you know, one might assume that. I don't recall specific people in the meeting itself.

Q This second point under agenda is "combating mis/disinformation." Is that correct?

A Yes.

2 [11:17 a.m.]

3 BY [redacted]

4 Q Do you recall whether combativeness/disinformation was discussed at this

5 meeting?

6 A It likely was, but again I don't have a great recollection of the briefing.

7 Q Do you recall any other instances in which you would have discussed mis- or

8 disinformation with representatives from the United States' delegation to the U.N.?

9 A This was the only meeting on this topic that I ever attended with the U.S.

10 U.N. team.

11 Q Have you ever attended any other meetings with U.S. U.N. team?

12 A I have, yes.

13 Q Do you recall whether any agenda items of those meetings involved mis- or 14 disinformation?

15 A Yes.

16 Q And do you recall when those meetings took place?

17 A I had a recent meeting about a month ago at the U.N. where -- really, I am

18 not going to be able to properly state this because I am not a U.N. expert. I don't

19 understand how the U.N. works, but they have a new global digital compact thing that's

20 about, you know, how to better improve trust and safety and security online. And so I

21 went to meeting there to talk about cybersecurity and Google's views on cybersecurity.

22 At that meeting -- at one of those meetings, there was also a counterpart from Google's

23 trust and safety team who spoke about, you know, content moderation issues.

24 Q And do you recall who that individual was from the trust and safety team?

25 A [redacted].

1 Q How is that last name spelled?

2 A [redacted].

3 [redacted] His title?

4 [redacted]. He is either a director or senior director in trust and safety. I

5 couldn't tell you what his specific title is.

6 [redacted] And was this recent meeting about the U.N.'s digital contact the

7 only instance that you can recall other than this one in which mis- or disinformation were

8 discussed?

9 [redacted]. Yes, yes.

10 [redacted] Do you recall other meetings with the U.S. U.N. with other Google

11 employees that would discuss content moderation?

12 [redacted]. No.

13 BY [redacted]

14 Q In the meeting that you mentioned, the recent meeting of the global

15 compact, do you recall if any representatives from U.S. U.N. asked questions about 16 mis- or disinformation?

17 A I can't specifically recall, no.

18 Q Do you recall any discussion between government representatives and 19 Google about its content moderation policies and the context of that meeting?

20 A Could you restate the question?

21 Q Sure. During the meeting that you attended about the global compact --

22 A Yeah.

23 Q -- you had mentioned that there was discussion about Google's content

24 moderation policies?

25 A Yes, sir.

1 Q This involves a meeting where U.S. U.N. personnel attended. Is that
2 correct?
3 A Correct, yes.
4 Q And so in that meeting with U.S. U.N. personnel and Google personnel, was 5 there a discussion of Google's content moderation policies as opposed to say a one-point
6 briefing, for example?
7 A There was a discussion portion. The U.S. U.N. official did speak, but I
8 certainly do not recall when to say definitively that there was no, like, direct interrogation
9 of our policies, if that makes sense. There was -- this was largely focused on artificial 10 intelligence and how can we, you know, build policies that can manage risks from artificial 11 intelligence, you know, generative AI.
12 Q So you don't remember the U.S. U.N. representative asking any specific 13 questions about mis- or disinformation?
14 A No.
15 Q Or any specific questions about content moderation policies?
16 A No, I can't recall any specific questions.
17 Q I think our hour is about up, so we'll call it.
18 [redacted] Off the record.
19 [Discussion off the record.]
20 EXAMINATION
21 BY [redacted]
22 Q We can go back on the record. My name is [redacted] I know it's 23 been a bit since we last introduced ourselves. I am joined by [redacted] and [redacted] from Ranking 24 Member Nadler's staff. Thank you for your time today. We appreciate it.
25 A Sure.

1 Q So in the last hour, you described your work with cybersecurity as being sort
2 of a team effort. Can you talk more about that?
3 A Sure. I think, you know, society, you know, industry, government, civil 4 society organizations have found out through kind of hard experience over the years that,
5 you know, we all need to work together to improve the resilience of our technology in
6 society against cyber threats. No one organization has a full picture of what bad guys
7 are doing.
8 And so, you know, Google might have a piece of that and, you know, Microsoft
9 might have a piece of that, and the U.S. Government has a piece of that. And by 10 working together to complete that threat picture, all organizations can be safer. So it's 11 kind of a trope at this point, but it really is a team sport.
12 Q So and information sharing is part of that team sport to make sure
13 everyone's apprised of current threats in the landscape?
14 A Information sharing, and kind of collaborating on best practices, things like
15 that.
16 Q And so just come back to the point of Google as a company, they have a high
17 interest in cybersecurity, I would imagine, right?
18 A That's correct.
19 Q And what would you say that -- how do you help Google maintain that high
20 level of security for its platforms and users?
21 A So really in two ways. And I call it inside out and outside in. So first, you 22 know, we don't just focus on the security of our users, we really focus on the security of 23 our society. And so we take an inside-out approach where we see what we can do with 24 our engineering expertise and talent and tools to partner with others. You know,
25 whether that's government or civil society or other companies to, you know, help protect

1 everybody.

2 And then the outside-in is we work with governments around the world who

3 we're thinking about laws and regulations in this space. And I help us set positions to

4 advocate for, to improve those laws to make sure that those laws are truly going to be

5 effective in helping organizations' cybersecurity posture.

6 Q Excellent. So in this team effort you're describing, you speak with 7 government agencies, correct?

8 A Correct.

9 Q And those government agencies are not just U.S. agencies, correct?

10 A Correct.

11 Q And so you would say that this information sharing is done with many

12 different governments likely in that same way, or would you say that, you know, any one

13 government is unique?

14 A So it really depends because each government is going to be interested in 15 different things. In general, we try to maintain, you know, positive working

16 relationships with governments around the world. You know, that said, of course, we

17 are, you know, a U.S. company. And so a U.S. Government, you know, we probably

18 engage with more than your average government in a different part of the world. But in

19 general, all of those relationships are focused on ensuring that we can ultimately protect

20 our users. And sometimes so we'll share information to better protect our users and 21 protect kind of broader cyber threats to critical infrastructure and the like.

22 Q So Google is not directed, of course, or required by the U.S. Government to 23 share information about threats in cybersecurity or current trends, correct?

24 A There is no compelling surlaw on the books related to cybersecurity threats.

25 And the reason -- I don't want to make that sound strange. We do have laws on

1 reporting incidents. So if we've suffered an incident, but that's different than threats.
2 We certainly any sharing around cyber threats is entirely voluntary.
3 Q And you mentioned in the last hour that it was a two-way street. So you
4 would share information, and they would also share information. So you both would 5 have come out of it knowing more about threat landscapes.
6 A I also want to clarify that I am not in an operational or technical role for 7 Google. And so when I say broadly we will share information, it is generally not me that
8 is sharing information. But I helped to form these partnerships with governments to set
9 up those sharing, you know, to set up sharing.
10 Q Excellent. So I wanted to turn to some of the questions asked in the last 11 hour around the FBI and Ukraine. Even though the possible content moderation that 12 was happening external to the U.S. is outside the scope of this investigation, I just want to 13 ask some questions about it. You were asked whether you were aware that the FBI had 14 gotten requests or requested -- sorry, the FBI had requested Google remove any content
15 from certain foreign actors in the last hour, correct?
16 A I did say something to that effect, yes.
17 Q And you said you were aware that such requests may have been made, but 18 you don't know any specifics?
19 A Correct.
20 Q So you haven't seen any of these requests?
21 A I have not seen the actual documentation of the requests being made. I
22 am aware that we received such requests.
23 Q So you don't know if they were explicitly made to remove content or a
24 request for Google to determine whether or not some content violated their already 25 existing terms, correct?

1 A Correct. I'm not aware, yes.

2 Q And to your knowledge, did the FBI or any U.S. Government agency ever

3 coerce, pressure, or direct Google to remove a piece of content?

4 A No, not to my knowledge.

5 [redacted] Questions?

6 [redacted] No.

7 [redacted] All right. No more questions. Thank you so much for your time.

8 We can go off the record.

9 [Discussion off the record.]

10 [redacted] Back on the record.

11 BY [redacted]

12 Q You mentioned that during the last round of questioning that you were

13 generally aware of requests coming from foreign governments' removal of content, but

14 not the specific documentation. Was that knowledge based on discussions with other

15 employees at Google?

16 A Yes.

17 Q And who would those employees be?

18 A You know, following the invasion of Ukraine, I think we were deluged with 19 various requests of that nature. Generally, within the policy organization that could

20 come from either product policy folks or our central kind of subject matter expertise

21 folks. So it could come from multiple teams.

22 Q And, sorry, the first one was the product policy folks. Is that right?

23 A Yes.

24 Q Did you have discussions, specifically, with people in product policy that led 25 to that knowledge?

1 A I certainly was in discussions, like meetings with lots of people, where it was
2 discussed. I wouldn't say that I ever had like a one-to-one discussion with these people
3 because, again, that's not my issue or area.
4 Q Do you recall anybody specific in the product policy team talking these
5 issues?
6 A Sure, like [redacted] whose the head of YouTube policy.
7 Q Anybody else?
8 A The next person is going to be like -- [redacted], I'm fairly sure is on that 9 team and would receive such requests or actions for such requests.
10 Q You mentioned in the aftermath of the Russian invasion of Ukraine Google
11 was deluged with requests of this nature. Do you know what the primary sources of 12 those requests would be?
13 A The Ukraine Government certainly and, you know, various European 14 Governments and certainly European Union, European Commission.
15 Q And are you aware of any U.S. Government agencies playing a facilitatory
16 role, acting as an intermediary, referring those requests from any of those entities?
17 A Yes, and this gets to a previous line of questioning which is, you know, the 18 way that the MLAT process works is sometimes the U.S. Government Department of 19 Justice would route requests from foreign governments. But I'm not aware of any 20 specifics of those.
21 [redacted] And how would those requests come from, the email, from sort
22 of platform at all?
23 [redacted]. I don't recall. That's not my role.
24 BY [redacted]
25 Q In the discussion of cybersecurity during the last round of questioning, you

1 said that no one organization has a full picture of the threat environment. Is that right?
2 A Correct.
3 Q And cybersecurity is a team sport?
4 A Correct.
5 Q Would you say that each individual actor has a responsibility to identify 6 threat actors and share that information with others?
7 A No, I would not because many organizations are, you know, small
8 businesses, you know, school districts. I would not say that they have a responsibility to 9 identify threats. I think that's the responsibility of other kind of players in the 10 ecosystem, but certainly like tech companies, governments, folks like that I do think have 11 a responsibility.
12 Q Tech companies like Google?
13 A Yes.
14 Q And you said that Google has -- tries to make a positive working relationship
15 with governments around the world. Is that right?
16 A Yes.
17 Q Does that include adversarial governments?
18 A I would not say we try to maintain positive, but certainly maintain 19 professional relationships, yes.
20 BY [redacted]
21 Q You mentioned in the first hour that you were aware of an FBI agent named 22 Elvis Chan, correct?
23 A I've heard the name, yes.
24 Q And have you heard his name in the context of your work at Google?
25 A Yes.

1 Q Who at Google would be interacting with Mr. Chan?

2 A Probably our security legal team.

3 Q And who heads up that team?

4 A [redacted].

5 Q And are you aware of what that team's interactions might be with Mr. Chan?

6 A No.

7 Q And would that same be interacting with the FBI more broadly?

8 A Yes.

9 Q Do you know what their interactions with the FBI had been like?

10 A Have been like? No, I couldn't characterize what their -- the tenor of that.

11 Q What about the nature of their interactions with the FBI?

12 A So, broadly, receiving, you know, requests for information from the FBI and 13 in the opposite direction making law enforcement referrals to the FBI.

14 Q What sort of requests might come from the FBI?

15 A You know, where they might have, you know, evidence or an indicator that a

16 malicious actor or hacker is targeting a Google user or some piece of Google

17 infrastructure or Google service, and they might pass that our way.

18 Q Are you aware of any requests from the FBI regarding content moderation?

19 A No. Except, again, I believe like some of those requests in the Ukraine war

20 where like a government, like the Ukraine Government might ask the FBI who would then

21 ask us. That is my kind of layperson's understanding of how, like, MLAT and things like 22 that work.

23 Q We talked a little bit about sort of interactions with the State Department.

24 Are you aware about the nature and extent of Google interactions with other government

25 agencies outside of what we discussed earlier?

1 A Yes.

2 Q Okay. What's the nature of those interactions?

3 A Google's interactions with other government agencies?

4 Q Correct.

5 A I think it's going to vary based on what the policy issue is. I mean, you

6 know.

7 Q What about content moderation policy?

8 A That's not my area, and I would not have any information about that.

9 BY [redacted]

10 Q During the last round, would it be fair to say that you said that all of Google's

11 interactions with the government, the ultimate purpose is the protection of users. Is 12 that correct?

13 A I would not say that categorically, no.

14 Q Would most of Google's interaction with the government, the purpose be to 15 protect users?

16 Mr. Bopp. Are you talking about [redacted] interactions with the government or 17 Google as a company?

18 [redacted] During the previous round of questions about Google as a 19 company, their interaction with the government.

20 Mr. Bopp. Right.

21 [redacted] So I'm asking about that. So the scope would be the company.

22 Mr. Bopp. Okay. Can you restate the question, please.

23 BY [redacted]

24 Q Sure. Would you say that the majority of Google's interaction with the 25 government, the ultimate purpose of those interactions would the protection of users?

A I cannot say that categorically, no.

BY [redacted]

Q Would Google be best situated to discuss Google's interactions with other government agencies regarding Alphabet and Google content moderation policies?

A The U.S. Government?

Q Correct.

A Likely, the team that is responsible for U.S. Government engagement within the GAAP organization.

Q And who leads that team?

A [redacted].

Q Sorry, what was that last name?

A [redacted] [redacted].

Q Can you -- do you recall any other individuals on that team?

A Sure. [redacted], [redacted], [redacted].

[redacted] We can go off the record.

[Whereupon, at 11:52 a.m., the interview was concluded.]

2 [redacted] This is a transcribed interview of [redacted].

3 Chairman Jordan has requested this interview as part of the committee's

4 investigation of how and the extent to which the executive branch has coerced and

5 colluded with companies and other intermediaries to censor speech.

6 Would the witness please state their name for the record?

7 [redacted]. Sure. [redacted].

8 [redacted] On behalf of the committee, I want to thank you for appearing here

9 today to answer our questions. The chairman also appreciates your willingness to

10 appear voluntarily.

11 My name is [redacted] and I am with Chairman Jordan's staff. I'll now have 12 everyone else from the committee who is here in the room introduce themselves as well.

13 [redacted] [redacted] Chairman Jordan's staff.

15 Committee Democratic staff.

19 [redacted] [redacted] House Judiciary, Democrat.

20 [redacted] I'm [redacted] House Judiciary, Democrat.

21 [redacted] [redacted] Chairman Jordan's staff.

22 [redacted] Okay.

23 I'd like to now go over the ground rules and guidelines that we will follow during

24 today's interview.

25 Our questioning will proceed in rounds. The majority will ask questions first for 1

1 hour, and then the minority will have an opportunity to ask questions for an equal period
2 of time if they choose. We will alternate back and forth until there are no more
3 questions and the interview is over.
4 Typically, we take a short break at the end of each hour, but if you would like to
5 take a break apart from that, please just let us know.
6 As you can see, there is an official court reporter taking down everything we say to
7 make a written record, so we ask that you give verbal responses to all questions.
8 Do you understand?
9 [redacted]. Yes.
10 [redacted] So the court reporter can take down a clear record, we will do our best
11 to limit the number of people directing questions at you during any given hour to just 12 those people on the staff whose turn it is.
13 Please try and speak clearly so the court reporter can understand and so the folks
14 down at the end of the table can hear you.
15 It is important that we don't talk over one another or interrupt each other if we
16 can help it, and that goes for everybody present at today's interview.
17 We encourage witnesses who appear before the committee to freely consult with 18 counsel if they so choose. It is my understanding that you are appearing today with 19 counsel. Is that correct?
20 [redacted]. Yes.
21 [redacted] Could counsel please state your name for the record?
22 Mr. Bopp. Michael Bopp with Gibson Dunn, representing [redacted].
23 Mr. Donovan. Daniel Donovan, King & Spalding, representing Alphabet.
24 [redacted] Thank you.
25 We want you to answer our questions in the most complete and truthful manner

1 possible, so we will take our time.

2 If you have any questions or if you do not understand one of our questions, please

3 let us know. Our questions will cover a wide range of topics, so if you need clarification

4 at any point, just say so.

5 If you honestly don't know the answer to a question or do not remember, it is best

6 not to guess. Please give us your best recollection. And it is okay to tell us if you

7 learned the information from someone else; just indicate how you came to know the

8 information.

9 If there are things you don't know or can't remember, just say so, and please

10 inform us who, to the best of your knowledge, might be able to provide a more complete

11 answer to the question.

12 You should also understand that, although this interview is not under oath, that by

13 law you are required to answer questions from Congress truthfully.

14 Do you understand that?

15 [redacted]. Yes.

16 [redacted] This also applies to questions posed by congressional staff in an

17 interview.

18 Do you understand this?

19 [redacted] Yes.

20 [redacted] Witnesses that knowingly provide false testimony could be subject to

21 criminal prosecution for perjury or for making false statements under 18 U.S.C. section

22 1001.

23 Do you understand this?

24 [redacted]. Yes.

25 [redacted] Is there any reason you are unable to provide truthful answers to

today's questions?

[redacted]. No.

[redacted] Finally, I'd like to make a note that the content of what we discuss here today is confidential. We ask that you not speak about what we discuss in this interview to any outside individuals to preserve the integrity of our investigation.

For the same reason, the marked exhibits that we will use today will remain with the court reporter so that they can go in the official transcript, and any copies of those exhibits will be returned to us when we wrap up.

That is the end of my preamble. Is there anything that my colleagues from the minority would like to add?

[redacted] We just thank the witness for taking time out of your schedule to join us today.

[redacted] The clock reads 10:04. We will start the first hour of questioning.

EXAMINATION

BY [redacted]

Q [redacted], can you state your full name again for the record, please?

A Of course. [redacted].

Q And what is your current place of employment?

A Google, Inc.

Q And what is your current title?

A Head of information quality strategy within the Google trust and safety team.

Q And what is your educational background, beginning with college?

A Sure. I have a bachelor's in law and then a master's in political sciences and one in business.

1 Q And what is your employment history?

2 A I joined Google straight out of college and have remained employed there

3 for the past, I would say, close to 13 years now, approximately.

4 Q Do you recall which year it was you joined Google?

5 A Yes. December 2010.

6 Q And when you joined Google, what was your first position?

7 A I had joined Google within the French PR team.

8 Q And how long were you at the French PR team?

9 A If memory serves well, I stayed employed there until March or April of 2015.

10 Q And what was your next position?

11 A My next position was with the global public policy team in California.

12 Q And what was your position there?

13 A If memory serves well, I was in charge of economic issues.

14 Q And how long were you with the global public policy team?

15 A I was with the global public policy team for somewhere close to 8 years,

16 ending January of this year.

17 Q Did you serve in multiple positions for that team?

18 A I did.

19 Q Can you walk us through the various positions you served?

20 A Yes, with the understanding that positions were shifting in a gradual fashion,

21 not necessarily always in an in-and-out, like, clear-cut. But the positions were, indeed,

22 for the lead for economic issues, then global lead for Search and News, and then head of 23 information quality policy.

24 Q I'm sorry. What was that last one?

25 A Head of information quality policy. Well, starting with global lead, and

1 then head.

2 Q When, approximately, were you global lead for Search and News?

3 A To my recollection, that would have been somewhere around 2016 to 2018

4 maybe.

5 Q And what were your day-to-day responsibilities in that role?

6 A Sure. Thank you for asking.

7 As with most of my roles within the public policy team, my responsibilities would

8 entail engaging with outside stakeholders on behalf of the company, typically to explain

9 or to otherwise clarify our work on the various issues I was covering and, insofar as

10 Google had positions or views it wanted to represent, to represent those, as well as to

11 hear feedback, questions, or concerns raised by third parties and route them to the 12 appropriate teams internally and, if relevant, provide advice on the various topics that

13 these teams were working on.

14 I should say that none of these roles involved making decisions about content

15 moderation in any way, shape, or form.

16 Q When you were with Search and News, who did you report to?

17 A That would have been the head of the Search and News public policy team.

18 Q And who was that?

19 A His name was [redacted].

20 Q You said you were engaging with outside stakeholders. Who were some of 21 those outside stakeholders?

22 A Sure. That was a global role, as most of my -- actually, all of my roles have

23 been since 2015. So that would be any entity around the world, from civil society to 24 academia to in some places governments, wanting to engage with us. I was mostly on

25 the receiving end of these questions and oftentimes would take guidance from local

1 teams on who might be the person we should engage with.

2 Q Which U.S. outside stakeholders did you interact with?

3 A I'm sorry to say, it's hard to provide a comprehensive list. That would be a

4 very wide range of stakeholders. If you have questions about specific stakeholders, I

5 might be happy to confirm, but providing a comprehensive list would be difficult.

6 Q What about just categories? Universities?

7 A Sure.

8 Q Nonprofits?

9 A Yes.

10 Q Did you interact with U.S. Federal Government agencies?

11 A Not to my specific recollection, but that would not be out of place if the U.S.

12 public policy team told me it was warranted.

13 Q Okay. And who led the U.S. public policy team during this time?

14 A That's a good question. I believe it was [redacted]. You're still talking

15 about the time when I was in the Search role?

16 Q Yeah. So this was roughly 2016 to 2018, if memory serves?

17 A Yep. I do believe it was [redacted] then.

18 Q And can you say a bit more of where the global public policy team fit in in 19 relation to the U.S. public policy team? Are these two separate teams?

20 A Correct. They were at the time. The team has -- there have been several

21 variations of structure within the public policy team at Google, but it's always been the

22 case that the U.S. public policy team is a separate branch from global teams and has a

23 remit to determine engagement strategy within the United States across the board,

24 whereas global teams serve as advisors or experts or otherwise more in depth in any one

25 topic and can be brought in in support of these local teams.

1 Q Do you know who the U.S. public policy team reports to?

2 A Yes. That would be the head of the U.S. public policy team, so, at the time,

3 I believe [redacted].

4 Q Uh-huh. And do you know who she reported to?

5 A That would be the head of global public policy.

6 Q Okay. And who was that?

7 A I believe it changed at the time, so I'm not entirely sure if it might have been

8 [redacted] or [redacted].

9 Q In this role, how many people did you have that reported to you?

10 A In that role, none on a stable basis.

11 Q Did you have anybody that reported to you?

12 A No, not on a stable basis.

13 Q Okay.

14 Do you recall -- so, in 2018, you left Search and News, and what was your next 15 position after that?

16 A The team structure changed, and my new role was information quality

17 policy.

18 Q And what were your day-to-day responsibilities in that position?

19 A Very similar to my old role. As I've described the role of the public policy

20 team, I would engage with outside stakeholders on behalf of the company, in that role

21 most particularly with civil society and academia around the world, again in cooperation

22 with local teams and again with the purpose of explaining our work across our services,

23 not just specific to Search and News, as well as hearing questions, feedback, and routing

24 them to the internal teams and helping provide advice to anyone who would need it.

25 Q And how long were you in this role for?

1 A That would have been until January of this year.

2 Q Who did you report to in this role?

3 A That would have been the head of the -- the team that handled these issues.

4 So, if you're asking for a name --

5 Q Yes, please.

6 A -- [redacted].

7 Q Did you have people who reported to you in this role?

8 A Not at first and not until the last year in that role, by which point I had two

9 people reporting in to me.

10 Q And who are they?

11 A You mean name or titles?

12 Q Both, please.

13 A So [redacted] was one of these people, focusing more on 14 information quality. And [redacted] was the other one, focusing on hate speech and 15 violent extremism.

16 Q For [redacted], sorry, could you say again what his --

17 A Sure thing.

18 Q -- responsibilities were?

19 A [redacted]. So [redacted], [redacted], [redacted].

20 Q And then in January of 2023 you changed positions again. Is that right?

21 A Correct.

22 Q And could you say it again, your next title?

23 A Sure. Head of information quality strategy within the Google trust and

24 safety team.

25 Q And what are your responsibilities in this role?

1 A Yeah. In this team, my job is to help advance a number of projects that are
2 strategic to the trust and safety team, pertaining broadly to issues of information quality.
3 And the nature of the responsibilities depend on the project.
4 Q Who do you report to?
5 A The head of the strategic preparedness and response team within trust and
6 safety.
7 Q And who is that?
8 A [redacted], [redacted].
9 Q How many people do you have report to you in this role?
10 A None.
11 Q Your previous position, the information quality policy position, where was 12 that housed? Was that also within trust and safety?
13 A It was not.
14 Q Okay. Within the hierarchy of Alphabet, where was that team placed 15 under?
16 A It continued to be a global public policy team that, as I said, was in charge of 17 engaging externally on behalf of the company and taking feedback or questions back in.
18 It was not a team that made any decisions regarding content moderation. That would 19 be the responsibility of other organizations.
20 Q But the team would communicate content moderation decisions or policies
21 to external stakeholders?
22 A Can I ask what you mean by "communicate"?
23 Q Sure. I guess this was -- first, your answer was, with reference to Search
24 and News, you said that you were often on the receiving end of questions from external
25 stakeholders -- academia, civil society groups, government.

1 Did any of those questions ever concern what Google's content moderation
2 policies were?
3 A Yes, that would be commonplace. It would not be the only questions that 4 we would get, but some ask for clarifications about our work.
5 Q Okay.
6 And I'll ask this for each of the three spots you've had -- Search and News,
7 information quality policy, and then your current role: Is this company-wide, as in all of 8 Alphabet, or specific to Google, YouTube, only some products?
9 A So you asked for each of the three roles. So, in order, with the Search and 10 News role, I was only focused on these two services. And I would say, here, I 11 would address any sort of questions about the services, not just related to any sort of 12 content.
13 And then, within my public policy role, on information quality, that would be
14 across Google services, but I would say with less emphasis on YouTube, who had its own 15 public policy team, with whom I sometimes collaborated with.
16 And, finally, within my current role, my responsibilities are less focused on 17 external engagement. So, when I might receive questions on an occasional basis, I
18 would typically route them to public policy or communications teams.
19 Q And for your current role, is that Alphabet-wide as well?
20 A No. This would explicitly not include YouTube.
21 Q Okay. Who leads the YouTube public policy team?
22 A For clarifying purposes, you mean the head of that organization?
23 Q Yes.
24 A That would be the vice president of public policy at YouTube. If you're 25 asking for a name --

1 Q Yes, please.

2 A -- I believe that would be [redacted].

3 Q Is it your understanding that YouTube has its own public policy team? Is

4 that right?

5 A That is correct.

6 Q Does YouTube have its own trust and safety team?

7 A To my awareness, yes, it does.

8 Q Do you know who leads that team?

9 A I believe the vice president of the YouTube trust and safety team is [redacted]

10 [redacted]

11 Q For your position with the information quality policy team, how big was that

12 team?

13 A So you're asking my prior role?

14 Q Yes.

15 A And when you're asking about the team, what do you mean by that? Is it

16 my specific team and people who are reporting to me, or peers, or --

17 Q So remind me who you reported to in that position.

18 A The head of the organization -- the name changed a few times, but -- whose

19 job was to deal with various issues related to, broadly speaking, content on Google,

20 including in my world but also things like [inaudible] liability or copyright, for instance.

21 Q How many people had a title, you know, affiliated with information quality

22 policy?

23 A That would just be me and my two reports within the organization.

24 Q Okay.

25 In your current role, do you engage with the U.S. public policy team?

1 A I'm sorry to ask, what do you mean by "engaging"?
2 Q Do you have interactions with them?
3 A Yes, I would.
4 Q And what's the nature of your interactions with them?
5 A If they have questions about any of our work or if they need any sort of 6 support for outside engagement, they could reach out to me, among other people.
7 Q You mentioned that you work on projects in your current role?
8 A Correct.
9 Q What types of projects?
10 A That would depend, but the gist of my work in the past, I would say, few
11 months has been focused on generative AI.
12 Q And when you were in your previous position, the information quality policy
13 position, did you ever have direct engagement with the U.S. Federal Government as part 14 of your role?
15 A With the caveat that I don't necessarily recall the specifics of the 16 conversations, yes, I think so.
17 Q Do you recall which agencies?
18 A I recall engaging specifically with the Global Engagement Center within the 19 State Department. And there were other agencies as well, but I'm not certain which, as 20 that would be -- all of this would be at the request of our U.S. public policy team telling 21 me whom I should engage with.
22 Q And we'll start with -- well, actually, let me just take a step back.
23 To your understanding, what is the Global Engagement Center?
24 A To my understanding, it is a part of the U.S. State Department.
25 Q And, to your understanding, what is that agency's mission?

1 A That is not necessarily clear to me. All I can say is how I interacted with
2 them.
3 Q Okay. And what was the nature of your interactions?
4 A Sure. Thank you for the question.
5 We were told that they had questions for us about our policies and practices when
6 it came to various information quality questions and that they might also have observed
7 issues relating to, in this case, I believe, foreign interference with the U.S. democratic 8 system that they might want to highlight for us.
9 I should say that the procedure in this sort of situation would be that whatever
10 they deemed fit for sharing we would consider, but make our independent decisions 11 about always.
12 And so we engaged with them on these premises. And I believe there was, at 13 their request, a series of engagements through the years. I don't recall exactly how 14 many.
15 Q Are you familiar with the terms "misinformation," "disinformation," and
16 "malinformation"?
17 A When you say "familiar," what do you mean?
18 Q Do you have an understanding of what they mean?
19 A It is my experience that definitions are fraught in this space, so it's -- I think it
20 might be that people might have different expectations of what they mean. But, yes,
21 I'm aware of these terms.
22 Q Okay. In the context of engagements with the U.S. Government, what is 23 your understanding of what those terms mean?
24 A To my -- I don't feel very comfortable asserting what the U.S. Government
25 might mean with it. My own personal practice and experience focuses on our own

1 policies and our own practices and how we enforce them at scale.

2 Q Sure. To clarify the question, not necessarily what the U.S. Government

3 individuals -- what their intent of what they wanted the definitions to mean, but what is

4 your understanding of the differences between --

5 Mr. Bopp. I think you already asked him that and he already answered the

6 question.

7 BY [redacted]

8 Q Well, no, I don't think we have covered what your understanding is of what

9 those words mean.

10 A I appreciate the question. I am sorry if I'm not really helpful here, but I

11 don't know what they might have meant by that. All I can say is, when we receive any

12 sort of information from any third parties, our focus is on our policy and practices and 13 how we enforce them.

14 Q Okay. In engagements with the U.S. Government, did they ever use the 15 terms "misinformation," "disinformation," or "malinformation"?

16 A I'm sorry, I don't recall specifics of the conversations, if you will.

17 Q Okay. At any point with any U.S. external stakeholder, did you have 18 conversations concerning misinformation, disinformation, or malinformation?

19 A While I don't recall the specifics of conversations, I'd expect some of these 20 terms might have come up.

21 Q Okay. And, to your understanding, what is the most common definition of 22 "misinformation"?

23 A To my understanding, the way people who are outside of the company

24 might define "misinformation" is information that's inaccurate.

25 Q Okay. And with respect to "disinformation"?

1 A As I understand it, a common definition outside the company is information
2 that is purposefully inaccurate, misleading.
3 Q And with respect to "malinformation"?
4 A That one is not entirely clear to me. I'm not sure. I feel like -- yeah. I
5 don't want to speculate.
6 Q Do you recall any interactions where malinformation was discussed?
7 A I do not.
8 Q You made the distinction as opposed to how external stakeholders might use
9 these terms as opposed to how they're referred to internally. What terminology or 10 what is the equivalent that is used internally in the company to refer to misinformation
11 and disinformation as you just defined them?
12 Mr. Bopp. Do you understand the question?
13 [redacted]. I'm not entirely sure.
14 Mr. Bopp. Because I don't.
15 I'm not sure what you're asking.
16 [redacted] Sure.
17 Mr. Bopp. Are you asking if there's some sort of different way that Google refers
18 to misinformation and disinformation internally?
19 [redacted] Well, he added a qualifier to one of his earlier responses about how 20 these terms we're discussing, mis-, dis-, and malinformation, are referred to. He 21 qualified "inside the company" and then gave his best understanding of how it's used
22 with external stakeholders.
23 Mr. Bopp. Uh-huh.
24 BY [redacted]
25 Q So the question is, you provided two definitions for "misinformation" and

1 "disinformation." When, as you just defined them, misinformation and disinformation
2 are discussed within Google, are they discussed the same way? What is the 3 terminology, just so we're on the same page for future questions, as they're discussed
4 within Google?
5 A Sure. Thank you for clarifying.
6 Within the company, our focus is on the specific rules that we have and how they
7 might apply to any specific use case, as well as how we design our services. In that 8 sense, we don't have broad-strokes definitions within our rules for these terms. We 9 have specific rules about specific contents or behaviors that might be harmful to our 10 users.
11 Q So, if I understand your answer correctly, you have policies that are specific 12 to behavior and do not depend upon content?
13 A We have both.
14 Q And by "both," you mean policies related to behavior and policies related to 15 content?
16 A That is correct, depending on the service.
17 Q Okay.
18 And with respect to content moderation policies, there's a set of policies for 19 YouTube? Is that right?
20 A That is correct.
21 Q And is there a set of policies for other Google products?
22 A It has been my experience that every product has its own set of policies.
23 Q Okay. Which other products' policies are you familiar with?
24 A There are many that I would have brushed against, but I have been mostly 25 familiar with the Search policies.

1 Q And, to your understanding, do Search policies cover both behavior and
2 content?
3 A With the caveat that, as I've said, I do not and never belonged to a team that 4 writes or applies these policies or makes any decisions about these policies, so I would
5 not be the foremost expert here, my understanding is that Search does have limited
6 policies about behavior or content. Most of Search's actions are not removal actions.
7 Search removes very little content from its services.
8 Q Okay. Which team at Alphabet is responsible for writing Search's policies?
9 A That would be the Search trust and safety team.
10 Q And who leads that team?
11 A Currently, I -- so it would be the head of Search trust and safety. I assume 12 you're asking for a name?
13 Q Yes, please.
14 A I believe that would be [redacted], [redacted].
15 Q And which team is responsible for applying Search's policies?
16 A That would be a different part of the trust and safety team focusing on 17 Search.
18 Q So there are two teams within Search trust and safety, one for writing the 19 policies and one for enforcing them, is your understanding?
20 A That is my understanding.
21 Q Okay.
22 With respect to YouTube, which team is responsible for writing YouTube's content
23 moderation policies?
24 A Similarly, that would be the YouTube trust and safety team.
25 Q And I think we covered this, but, again, to your understanding, who leads

1 that team?

2 A As we discussed, I believe the person in charge of the YouTube trust and

3 safety organization writ large would be [redacted].

4 Q And, to your understanding, which team is responsible for applying

5 YouTube's content moderation policies?

6 A I believe it is a separate part of the YouTube trust and safety team, but I

7 would be less familiar with that.

8 Q Do you recall when you first had interactions with the Global Engagement

9 Center?

10 A Not in specifics, no.

11 Q Do you know if it was -- it would've been -- let me strike that and restart my

12 question.

13 Do you recall if the first time you had interactions with the Global Engagement

14 Center was once you had joined the information quality policy team?

15 A Yes. That would have been, I believe, though I am not certain, somewhere

16 in the spring or summer of 2020. With that said, I want to remind that I'm not certain,

17 so this is me doing my best recollection.

18 Q Yeah. No, certainly understand that, and we very much appreciate your 19 efforts coming here.

20 You had referenced discussions with the GEC regarding the company's policies and 21 practices. Do you recall when those discussions took place?

22 A That would be the same timeline. Most of my conversations with outside

23 stakeholders in my prior roles regarded some aspect of the company's policies, practices,

24 products, or issues.

25 Q Okay. And do you recall who else from the company engaged in these

1 discussions with the Global Engagement Center regarding the company's policies and
2 practices?
3 A While I believe it might have varied over time, I do think it involved members
4 of the U.S. public policy team.
5 Q Any in particular that you remember?
6 A I am sure it will come back to me, but right now I'm not sure of a name.
7 Q When these discussions occurred, do you recall, did the Global Engagement
8 Center reach out to you directly, or did they reach out to someone else at the company
9 and you were looped in?
10 A Again, with the caveat that I do not recall the specifics, the most normal
11 procedure for anything like this would be that the U.S. public policy team would be in 12 charge of engagement with all branches of government -- executive, legislative, or 13 otherwise -- and would pull myself and others in whenever they felt it was necessary.
14 So that would be the way it would've happened here as well.
15 Q Do you recall why it was necessary to loop in to these discussions?
16 A I do not recall the specifics, but the normal procedure would be that, if there
17 were specific questions about our services or practices that the team felt I was in a better
18 place to answer than they were, or when they wanted to have people who had more 19 insight into some of these questions than they did, they brought myself or others in,
20 depending on the issue.
21 Mr. Bopp. Just so we're clear, what did you mean by "these discussions"?
22 BY [redacted]
23 Q The discussions the company had with the Global Engagement Center
24 regarding the company's policies and practices, which, to the extent your memory serves 25 correctly, occurred at least in the summer of 2020.

1 A Again, I believe the initial discussions took place then, but I think there were
2 a series of engagements, and I don't recall when I last engaged with them.
3 I would also add that these discussions were not different, from my perspective,
4 from discussions we had with other stakeholders around the world in that regard.
5 Q Do you recall which policies and practices the Global Engagement Center had 6 questions about?
7 A Not specifically, no, I do not.
8 Q Do you recall if it was about Search?
9 A It might have been. I'm not sure.
10 Q Do you recall if there were questions regarding YouTube's policies and
11 practices?
12 A Again, I do not recall the specifics. I expect some of our products were 13 mentioned. I'm not sure which ones when.
14 Q Do you recall how many times you met with the Global Engagement Center?
15 A I do not, but I do recall it was a series of engagements that took place over at 16 least several months, if not more, at their requests.
17 But the discussions were always the same. They might have questions or things 18 they wanted to raise with us, which we would answer to the best of our ability, as we 19 would with any other stakeholder asking those questions. And insofar as they had 20 feedback about anything the company did, that would be something we would take back
21 in and route to the appropriate teams. That was our normal procedure.
22 Q Can you walk me through, what is the typical protocol, from your 23 perspective, that you would take in advance of one of these meetings?
24 So you mentioned there would be multiple folks from the company who would 25 attend. Would you meet with them previously, before having the meeting with the

1 GEC?

2 A Not necessarily, no. That would be fairly infrequent.

3 Q And, then, what about after the meeting concludes? You mentioned

4 sometimes there'd be either information or do-outs that would have to be routed to

5 someone else. Who would be responsible at the company for communicating that

6 information?

7 A I appreciate the question. Again, I don't recall specifics, but the normal

8 procedure would be that, depending on the question or the participants at the meeting,

9 at least one of the participants would communicate with the relevant team, whoever that

10 may be, who would then make an independent assessment as to what to think of or do

11 with whatever was raised or asked.

12 Q Okay. Did you take notes during these meetings?

13 A I do not recall doing so.

14 Q Do you recall anyone else at Google taking notes or circulating meeting

15 minutes?

16 A I don't recall specifics, no.

17 Q Who was your primary point of contact at the Global Engagement Center?

18 A I believe it was, at the time, [redacted].

19 Q Is this the same --

20 A Same.

21 Q -- individual who now works --

22 A That is correct.

23 Q Okay. Is that how you met one another, is through these meetings?

24 A If the question is whether I had any other interactions with [redacted], the 25 answer is no. Indeed, the only interactions I've had before he joined the company were

1 over the course of these meetings.

2 Q I know we covered this briefly, but could you state again what [redacted]

3 responsibilities are at the company?

4 A I am not certain of his present responsibilities, because he is not in my

5 organization anymore. But, at the time when I was in the same team as he was, they

6 were similar to mine -- engagement with outside stakeholders, explaining our work,

7 taking feedback back in.

8 Q Do you recall when [redacted] joined the company?

9 A If memory serves well, that would have been roughly January 2022, along

10 those lines.

11 Q To your understanding, is [redacted] with the same team at Google as he 12 was before you left for your current position?

13 A Yes.

14 Q Was there someone at the company who took your role when you left your 15 previous position for this position?

16 A Again, with the understanding that I'm not in my former team and do not

17 know how they are currently structured, I'm not sure I was replaced exactly role for role.

18 Q Earlier, we were discussing policies that addressed behavior and policies that

19 address content. Again, with the understanding that you aren't on the team that writes

20 or applies the content moderation policies, do you know if the -- we'll start with Search to

21 keep these answers a bit more simple -- if, within the Search team, they divide the team

22 based off folks who analyze behavior, policies related to behavior, as opposed to policies

23 related to content?

24 A I am not certain. And in light of the fact that you asked me to not

25 speculate, I would rather not mislead you. I'm not aware of any such distinction, but it

1 might exist.

2 Q Okay.

3 Independent of the teams you've already identified -- the Search team, the

4 YouTube team -- is there a team within the company generally that analyzes inauthentic

5 accounts or inauthentic behavior?

6 A Again, with the understanding that your question focuses on broader

7 analysis than just policy development or enforcement, then there is at least one other

8 team that I'm aware of that engages in assessing whether behaviors are taking place on

9 our services that are undermining their integrity and potentially deceiving users, and that

10 would be Google's Threat Analysis Group, "TAG" for short.

11 I should note that these kinds of analysis are one part of TAG's remit. TAG also

12 focuses on broader cyber threats, hacking and other similar issues, which I believe would 13 be the center of gravity of its work.

14 Q And do you know who leads the Threat Analysis Group?

15 A Yes. I believe that that would be a specific director within the Google

16 organization.

17 Q And do you know the name of the current director?

18 A I believe, again, if the team structure hasn't changed, that would be [redacted]

19 [redacted]

20 Q In your meetings with the Global Engagement Center, you mentioned that

21 they might provide, from time to time, information regarding foreign interference. Do

22 you recall if anyone from the Threat Analysis Group ever attended these meetings?

23 A I do not recall specifics, but it would have been possible, though, I should

24 say, that would be infrequent, in large part because, in my experience, the Threat

25 Analysis Group's work is mostly focused on analyzing these kinds of threats and not as

1 much on external engagements.

2 Q Across any of Alphabet's products and services, are you aware of any

3 content moderation policies that address a potential hack-and-leak, how to handle

4 information that is the product of that?

5 A I appreciate the question. To your point, I'm aware of the existence of such

6 policies. I'm not certain I know all of the specifics of them.

7 Q Do you know which team or teams would have responsibility for -- let's start

8 with -- writing the hack-and-leak policy?

9 A Thank you for the question. That would depend on the service, but

10 answers I gave you previously about teams in charge of writing policy for each service

11 would apply here as well.

12 Q And would the same answer you gave apply with respect to enforcing that

13 policy?

14 A Correct.

15 Q Again, referring back to your meetings with the Global Engagement Center

16 and their questions with current policies and practices, do you recall any questions that 17 the Global Engagement Center had, or any discussions, regarding a hack-and-leak?

18 A Not specifically, no.

19 Q What is First Draft News?

20 A I'm not entirely sure how they would define themselves. I'm aware that it's 21 an organization, a civil society organization, that Google has engaged with and that, I

22 believe, works with fact-checkers.

23 Q Have you ever been involved with First Draft News?

24 A Thank you for the question. As I've mentioned, as part of my public policy

25 role, I engage with a broad range of civil society and academia actors around the world,

1 and so I believe First Draft News was one of them. I'm only --

2 Q Across Google's various products and services, whether it's company-wide or

3 specific to a product and service, are you aware if the company engages with third-party

4 fact-checkers?

5 A So your question is, just to make sure I understand it, does the company

6 have any interaction with third-party fact-checkers?

7 Q Yes.

8 A To my awareness, yes.

9 Q And do you know which teams at the company engage with third-party

10 fact-checkers?

11 A With the caveat that I am not certain about an exhaustive list, I believe the 12 team in charge of being a primary point of contact for these groups is called the News Lab

13 team.

14 Q And just at a high level, what does the News Lab team do?

15 A Again, I am not entirely certain of the full scope of their mission. I believe it

16 involves broader engagement with the news ecosystem and setting up programs and

17 partnerships to foster journalism writ large, of which fact-checking would be a part but

18 not the sum total.

19 Q Do you know who leads that team?

20 A I am not sure who the current head of that team is.

21 Q With respect to the trust and safety team for Search or the trust and safety

22 team for YouTube, do you recall if either of those two teams have direct engagement

23 with third-party fact-checkers?

24 A I would not know that for sure. I would expect it to be, at very best,

25 infrequent or exceptional.

1 Q And in your current position or in your previous position, did you have
2 engagement with third-party fact-checkers?
3 A And here, by "engagement," you mean interactions of any kind?
4 Q Yes.
5 A Then, yes, as I've mentioned, in my previous position, I was engaging with a 6 broad range of stakeholders around the world across the board, and some fact-checkers
7 were part of that for sure.
8 Q And what was the nature of your interactions with these third-party
9 fact-checkers?
10 A Broadly and to my recollection, they would be the same as what I've 11 described before: explaining our work; answering questions; if they had concerns or 12 feedback, taking those back to the relevant teams internally, who would then make their 13 own decisions.
14 Q So would third-party fact-checkers ever send questions related to specific
15 pieces of content?
16 Mr. Bopp. To whom?
17 BY [redacted]
18 Q To [redacted].
19 A Again, with the caveat that I don't recall any specifics, I would receive from 20 outside stakeholders around the world on a regular basis any number of questions about 21 any number of topics, which could include questions about content.
22 Q Okay. And when you would receive specific questions -- or, when you
23 would -- excuse me.
24 When you would receive questions about specific pieces of content with respect
25 to YouTube, who would you direct either that question or that information to within the

1 company?

2 A Specific to YouTube?

3 Q Yes.

4 A That would depend on the nature of the question.

5 Q Okay. If an external stakeholder, we'll say an external U.S. stakeholder,

6 contacted you with concerns regarding misinformation in a YouTube video, who at the 7 company would you pass that report on to?

8 A While it's hard for me to speculate without any specifics, one normal

9 procedure would be for me to share this kind of information with the YouTube public

10 policy team.

11 Q And on that team, did you have a most frequent point of contact?

12 A That would really depend on the issue in question.

13 Q If the issue concerned a report about U.S. election misinformation, who 14 would be the best point of contact?

15 A Again, I'm sorry, I want to be helpful, but that would depend on the time,

16 that would depend on who was on the team at the time, and on the specific question that 17 was raised. I would just look -- that would vary over time.

18 Q So, when receiving, again, with this hypothetical example, a report about

19 potential misinformation on a YouTube video, was there a general team point of contact

20 that you would send it to? Or you would decide who on the team, based off the subject

21 matter, would be the most appropriate person to contact?

22 Mr. Bopp. This is, again, as you said, it's a hypothetical. You're asking [redacted]

23 to indicate what he would have done if this had happened? Is that what you're asking?

24 [redacted] Yes. So, to clarify, he has said that this was part of his job, was

25 receiving reports from external stakeholders. He's representing he doesn't have specific

1 recollections as far as, like, this video or whatever else, but that, at a high-level sense, he
2 would receive these types of reports.
3 So I'm asking, when he would receive these high-level reports, with the 4 understanding he doesn't have a specific recollection, what was the standard protocol?
5 [redacted]. Thank you for the question.
6 As I've said, it would really depend on the video, on who was on the YouTube
7 team at the time. I would always have a sense of who that person would be, but I can't
8 say that it was necessarily stable over time, and I'm not entirely sure who that would've
9 been, especially given that it's hard to speculate without seeing any one piece of content.
10 BY [redacted]
11 Q To your recollection, do you recall directing to different people based off the 12 subject matter?
13 So, by that, I mean, let's say there are two reports you receive. One alleges 14 misinformation with respect to COVID in a YouTube video, one with respect to 15 misinformation regarding elections in a YouTube video.
16 I'm just trying to get a sense, are these going to the same person, or do you have a
17 contact on the team that tends to deal with COVID-related issues and another contact
18 that tends to deal with election-related issues?
19 A I appreciate the question. I want to be helpful. At the same time, I find it 20 challenging to answer because, again, it would entirely depend on the moment when that 21 came up, who was on the team at the time, who was in the office at the time, any other
22 number of parameters, like whether this was, I don't know, a U.S. or a global question.
23 I can't give you a specific set of names, other than saying that would be the team I
24 would route it towards. And sometimes I may not even know, and I would just send it
25 to the whole team.

1 Q Okay. When you would send it to the whole team, was there an email
2 listserv that you could email?
3 A Not to my recollection. It was just not a very sizable team.
4 Q How big was the team, to your recollection?
5 A I'm not entirely sure of specifics. I would say, less than 10 at the time.
6 Q We'll use the timeframe of 2020. Do you recall any of the less than 10
7 people who served on the YouTube team in 2020?
8 A Again, with the caveat that the teams and the person would change over
9 time and so I'm not entirely certain, I believe I do. But I am not entirely sure who was 10 actually on the team at the time versus later or earlier, if that makes sense.
11 Q Okay. With the understanding that this is just your recollection and there 12 might be folks who were on the team earlier or later, what are those names that you can
13 recall?
14 A Is that something we could come back to you on, if that's okay? Just, I
15 don't want to name people that were not on the team at the time.
16 Mr. Bopp. Are you specifically asking about the YouTube trust and safety team in 17 2020?
18 [redacted] Yes.
19 [redacted]. Oh, you were asking about trust and safety?
20 [redacted] Yes.
21 [redacted]. Oh, I'm sorry. I was under the understanding you were asking about
22 public policy.
23 BY [redacted]
24 Q Okay. How big was the YouTube trust and safety team in 2020?
25 A That I would have absolutely no idea. That would not be a team I would

1 engage with frequently in a capacity, and I'm not sure exactly how big they were.

2 Q Okay. Do you have a ballpark sense? Was it bigger than 10?

3 A I honestly would not know. I don't feel comfortable speculating.

4 Q So, just as a point of clarification, your "less than 10" was with respect to 5 YouTube's public policy team?

6 A Correct.

7 Q Okay.

8 So, in your previous role, you served from 2018 to 2023, January of 2023. Do

9 you recall -- the pandemic hits in the beginning of 2020 -- who at YouTube's public policy

10 team took the lead with respect to developing policies related to COVID-19?

11 A Ah. Thank you for this question. It gives me an opportunity to clarify, and 12 that applies, as well, retroactively.

13 When I say "public policy team at YouTube," I mean the team that was similar to

14 mine, in charge of engaging with the outside stakeholders and taking information back in.

15 That would not be the team that would make any sort of content moderation decisions,

16 whether it is about writing policy, enforcing it, or otherwise deciding about any of the 17 pieces of content.

18 So, whenever I say "YouTube public policy team," that is who I mean.

19 Q Okay. Thank you for that clarification.

20 Do you recall who at the YouTube public policy team was the primary point of 21 contact for engagement with external stakeholders, similar to yours, related to issues on

22 COVID-19?

23 A Again, I'm not entirely sure, because it might have fluctuated over time, if

24 that makes sense. I don't want to mislead you. I'm not sure who was -- if there was a 25 primary and, if so, who that was.

1 Q Do you recall anybody who worked on COVID-19 issues from the YouTube
2 public policy team?
3 A I believe -- and, again, this is to my recollection and with the understanding
4 that I was not on that team and, therefore, would not know the specifics of their
5 allocation. I believe a lot of people on the team might have received questions about it,
6 if that makes sense. I'm not entirely sure how they would've been structured.
7 Q All right.
8 When engaging with external stakeholders in your previous role, do you recall
9 questions regarding the various enforcement options available?
10 A Meaning?
11 Q With respect to -- yeah. Let me rephrase that.
12 In your previous role, when receiving questions from external U.S. stakeholders,
13 do you recall receiving any questions with respect to how YouTube enforced its content
14 moderation policies?
15 A You mean YouTube specifically?
16 Q Yes.
17 A I don't recall specifics of questions I might have received. As I said, it 18 wasn't part of my job to receive any number of questions from stakeholders around the 19 world.
20 I do recall generally receiving questions about YouTube, but I would not 21 necessarily be the primary recipient of those, as YouTube's public policy team might be 22 the one who receives most of them.
23 Q Okay.
24 And when receiving a question from an external U.S. stakeholder regarding either
25 the scope of YouTube's content moderation policies or the enforcement of YouTube's

1 policies, when a U.S. external stakeholder poses the question and you take the question
2 back to the company, are you the one delivering the answer back to the U.S. stakeholder
3 or would you connect the stakeholder directly with the person providing the information
4 at the company?
5 A That would depend on the question and the guidance I would receive,
6 typically from the YouTube public policy team.
7 Q So both would occur? Sometimes you would relay back the answer, and 8 other times you would connect them directly?
9 A Again, I don't recall specifics, but, per normal procedures, both could 10 happen.
11 Q Okay.
12 What familiarity do you have with the enforcement options YouTube has to 13 enforce its content moderation policies?
14 A Can I clarify what you mean by "enforcement options"?
15 Q Sure. So YouTube has its content moderation policies available. Users
16 will violate them. When that happens, there are presumably, you know, enforcement
17 options available to the company to take for people who violate the policies. Do you 18 have an understanding of what those options are?
19 A I would not consider myself an expert on YouTube's enforcement options.
20 I have a base level of understanding.
21 Q Okay. With the understanding you're not an expert and don't serve on the 22 team, is -- removal would be one option; is that correct?
23 A It is my understanding that, yes, when YouTube's publicly stated policies are 24 violated, it usually leads to the content in question being removed.
25 Q Do you know what other enforcement options are available?

1 A To my awareness, violations of YouTube's publicly stated rules lead to
2 content removals in most cases. I'm not aware of other options.
3 Q Is labeling an option?
4 A If it is a policy enforcement option, I am not aware of it.
5 Q To your understanding, then, what is the context for when labeling is applied
6 to a YouTube video?
7 A Again, I am not familiar with the specifics on YouTube, the operations of 8 YouTube's trust and safety teams. I am aware of -- I should take a step back.
9 What do you mean by "labeling" specifically?
10 Q Sure. On YouTube videos, some of them will have labels with respect to 11 concerns related to misinformation or provide a link to authoritative information.
12 So thank you for the opportunity to clarify we're on the same page. Is it your 13 understanding that -- first off, are you familiar with what I'm referring to?
14 A I am aware of information panels being displayed under YouTube videos,
15 some of them at least, depending on the topics that they might cover. And those might,
16 indeed, have a few lines of text on the link.
17 If that is what you're referring to, to my awareness, those are triggered
18 automatically and at scale based on the topic covered. They do not constitute a policy
19 action, to my awareness at least.

1 [11:00 a.m.]

2 BY [redacted]

3 Q Do you know which team is responsible at the company for handling how

4 Search results or recommendations are issued at YouTube?

5 A Again, with the caveat that I was never a part of the YouTube organization, it

6 is my understanding that YouTube has a dedicated products team.

7 Q And who leads the YouTube products team?

8 A I am not certain with regard to the question you're asking, meaning I'm not

9 sure who would be in charge of the topics you just discussed.

10 Q Okay.

11 Again, to the extent you have an understanding, how does YouTube's products

12 team fit within the company hierarchy compared to YouTube public policy and YouTube

13 trust and safety?

14 A Again, I am not certain. To my understanding, these are separate

15 organizations within YouTube. But I want to refrain from speculating.

16 Q As part of your work in your previous position, did you work with the 17 YouTube products team?

18 A Can you clarify to me about working with?

19 Q Sure. Did you have interactions with them as part of your role?

20 A I do not recall specifics, but that might have occasionally been the case.

21 That would be infrequent, though.

22 Q Do you recall any instances of why?

23 A No.

24 Q Which team at the company is responsible -- sorry. Let me strike that.

25 With respect to Google Search, to your understanding, what does that entail?

1 Does the Google Search -- let me rephrase this again.

2 When running a search on Google Search, blue links will appear.

3 A Uh-huh.

4 Q Yeah. Which team is responsible for handling the order in which the blue

5 links appear?

6 A Thank you for the question.

7 To my understanding, the order in which blue links appear on Google Search

8 results is determined automatically and at scale by ranking systems, not by individual

9 humans making these decisions. Those systems are designed by the Search ranking

10 team.

11 Q And who leads the Search ranking team?

12 A I am not entirely sure of how it is currently structured. There have been

13 some reorganizations in Google Search. I believe it would be the vice president in 14 charge, but who that is right now I'm not entirely certain.

15 Q Do you know who the vice president in charge was last year?

16 A I'm sorry. I'm happy to come back to you on that, but I don't want to 17 misrepresent, if that makes sense. That might have changed.

18 Q Again, with the understanding this is just based off your recollection and that

19 your memory may serve incorrectly sometimes, who do you believe was leading the team

20 last year?

21 A I'm feeling a little conflicted because you asked me earlier not to speculate

22 and not to guess, and so I don't want to do that, if that's okay.

23 Mr. Bopp. So you just don't remember who it was?

24 [redacted]. I'm not sure who it was.

25 Mr. Bopp. You're not sure who it was.

1 [redacted]. Yeah.

2 Mr. Bopp. Okay.

3 Are you about at the hour, by the way, or --

4 [redacted] Yeah. We're just at the hour.

5 Can we go off the record, please?

6 [Recess.]

7 [redacted] It is 11:22, and we can go back on the record.

8 [redacted], thank you again for joining us today.

9 EXAMINATION

10 BY [redacted]

11 Q Before we get too far into our questioning, you had used a term in the last 12 hour that I just wanted to get some clarification on.

13 You used the phrase "automatically and at scale" with respect to both the info

14 panels and then also the Search results. What's your understanding of what 15 "automatically and at scale" means?

16 A Thank you for the question.

17 In both cases, I was reflecting the fact that either, in the case of Search, the 18 ordering of blue links or, in the case of YouTube, the decision to trigger or not to trigger

19 an information panel would be handled by automated systems across the corpus of 20 content available in Search or YouTube's index.

21 Q Okay. So there's no human involved in making the decisions on a

22 case-by-case basis?

23 A To my awareness, there is not.

24 Q Okay. Thank you for that.

25 Your current title is head of information quality, correct?

1 A My current title is head of information quality strategy within the trust and
2 safety team.
3 Q Thank you. What's your understanding of what the definition of 4 "information quality" is for Google's purposes?
5 A Thank you for asking.
6 Broadly speaking, at Google, this tends to refer to the set of actions the company
7 undertakes to either elevate information that is reliable and helpful to users or address
8 activities that are harmful to users on our services.
9 Q Okay.
10 How would you describe Google's core mission?
11 A I'm going to try to quote from memory, with the understanding that it may 12 be failing me. But I believe it is, organize the world's information to make it accessible 13 and useful.
14 Q Okay. So can you talk a little bit about how your work as the head of 15 information quality strategy, with the goal, I think you just said, being to elevate the key
16 information, how does that interact with Google's core mission? How does that help
17 advance Google's core mission?
18 A I appreciate the question.
19 First of all, I should note that this isn't -- Google's core mission, of course, is shared
20 by many teams and individuals across the company. I would not be the sole driver, by a 21 very long shot.
22 Q Uh-huh.
23 A But within that remit, as I've said, within trust and safety, I support strategy
24 projects that have ramifications for either helping foster helpful features for our users or 25 address potential risks of harmful or deceptive activities on our services.

1 Q Okay.

2 You said in the earlier hour that part of your role involved hearing questions from

3 outside stakeholders, right?

4 A That applies to my prior role within public policy.

5 Q Correct. Thank you for that clarification, and that's what I want to talk

6 about. In that prior role, what did that actually entail on a day-to-day basis?

7 A I appreciate you asking.

8 That would entirely depend on the interaction, of course, but, generally speaking,

9 as I've mentioned, I would be exposed to questions or feedback or even sometimes

10 concerns raised by outside stakeholders across the world, again, mostly in civil society

11 and academia and mostly on a responsive basis.

12 They would express that they had something they wanted the company to be

13 aware of. And it would be my role to make sure that I route that information to the 14 appropriate teams within the company, who would then make their own independent

15 decisions about what to do with that information. In places where there were simple

16 questions I knew the answers to, of course I would address those.

17 Q Was it your impression that it was important for Google to hear from outside

18 stakeholders in that way?

19 A It is my impression that this was the core function, or at least one of the core

20 functions, of the public policy team at Google.

21 Q Okay. And why was it important for Google to hear those incoming

22 questions from stakeholders?

23 A To my understanding, one of the key reasons why Google wants to have

24 this -- to hear it from these stakeholders is a commitment to be as transparent, as open

25 as can be, and engage with any in society who have a stake and an interest in

1 understanding how our systems work or want to help us do our job better.

2 Q Could you estimate how many stakeholders you might engage with, whether

3 it's a hundred, a thousand, too many to count?

4 Mr. Bopp. Over what timeframe?

5 BY [redacted]

6 Q Over -- in your prior role. So throughout the duration of your entire prior

7 role.

8 A I appreciate you asking. I honestly would have a hard time estimating. It

9 was a daily occurrence.

10 Q Okay. So perhaps, like, too many for you to estimate. Is that fair to say?

11 A That is my impression.

12 Q Okay.

13 You said that, also, part of your role involved explaining Google's policies to these 14 outside stakeholders. Do you recall that?

15 A I did say explaining our overall work, which could include some of our

16 policies but also our practices, our products.

17 Q What did that entail on a day-to-day basis?

18 A Again, this is in my prior role.

19 Q Uh-huh.

20 A When someone would come with a question about, for instance, how Search

21 operates or Search works as a product, I would endeavor to provide them a high-level

22 understanding of how the service is designed, how it operates to sort of rank content,

23 and what kinds of rules might apply to different parts of the service.

24 And, then, if they had specific questions for any of the teams, I would take those

25 back internally and see if we're authorized to answer these questions, and if I did not

1 have the answers myself, try to secure those answers. Yeah, that could be very broad,
2 depending on the question.
3 Q What type of sources would you rely on to gather that information to 4 provide to the outside stakeholders?
5 A To my recollection, the immense majority of the information I would share
6 with outside stakeholders would be information that was available publicly, whether it
7 was in a blog post or dedicated websites or help centers.
8 In some cases, it might not be available publicly, in which case I would seek 9 clearance from the appropriate teams to disclose it. And that would never, to my 10 recollection, be information we'd share only with one external stakeholder. It would be 11 just, are we clear to share this kind of information?
12 Q Okay.
13 And is it fair to say that you didn't have a role in creating the information that you
14 would relay back; you would just find it and relay it back to the stakeholders?
15 A And by "creating," you mean?
16 Q So, for example, if you were referencing a blog post, a public blog post, you
17 wouldn't necessarily have written that blog post; you would just identify the information
18 in that blog post and provide it to the outside stakeholder. Is that fair to say?
19 Mr. Bopp. This is -- we're at a hypothetical stage here. You're asking about a 20 hypothetical. You're asking about what the normal course of dealing would be in a 21 situation like that?
22 BY [redacted]
23 Q I mean, I think what I'm trying to get at is, you were providing information to 24 the stakeholders, but you weren't the one that wrote the policies, for example, that you
25 may refer to, you weren't the one that wrote the blog posts, whatever it is that you were

1 relying on to provide information to the stakeholders?

2 A Again, I appreciate the question.

3 I don't recall specifics of these interactions. Generally speaking, no, I was not in

4 charge of writing any sort of content policy or making any sort of content decision in any

5 of my roles at Google.

6 However, since you asked about blog posts, it might be the case that I helped

7 write some of those. I would, however, never be the sole writer for them. And our

8 communications team would be the one that has the final decision on which blog post

9 would be released.

10 Q Okay.

11 Why was it important for Google to provide this information outwards for the 12 stakeholders?

13 A To my understanding, as I discussed before, it is of core importance to

14 Google's business to appear transparently and maintain trust in the way that we do our

15 work, which includes engaging, sharing information in the open, and addressing 16 questions.

17 Q Okay.

18 You said a couple minutes ago that part of what your work entailed was

19 addressing concerns about potentially malicious actors or efforts to manipulate the 20 Google platform. Is that something that you dealt with?

21 A I did receive questions about these topics, to my recollection.

22 Q Okay. What's your understanding of what it means for an entity to 23 manipulate a platform such as Google?

24 A This is a broad question, but to give an example of how that could work, if

25 you were, let's say, a foreign government and created a website that you want to

1 masquerade as a U.S. domestic news outlet for the purpose of disseminating information
2 in the United States, that would be something that would be deceptive, in that you are
3 misrepresenting who you are to our users. And so that would be something that, at 4 least for some of our services, would be a problem.
5 Q And would it be of concern to Google? You said it'd be a problem for some 6 of your services?
7 A Yes.
8 Q And why is that?
9 A Again, harking back to our mission, it is our job and our value proposition to 10 users to provide them or at least help them find information that hopefully they can rely 11 on when they need to rely on it. And, therefore, items deceiving our users undermine 12 our business.
13 Q How does Google detect -- or what's your understanding of how Google
14 might detect such platform manipulation?
15 A I appreciate the question.
16 As I have mentioned, I was never in one of the teams that does that kind of 17 detection, so I'm speaking only in broad strokes and with some amount of caution here.
18 But it might depend on any number of signals that we might have access to,
19 helping us understand that, for instance, again, a domain that purports to be a U.S.
20 domain is actually operated by a foreign government.
21 Q And you said a couple seconds ago that it would be of concern for Google if 22 an outside entity was manipulating the platform because that might make the Search
23 results less reliable, right?
24 A Correct, or less useful.
25 Q Less useful. Is it fair to say that Google's primary source of revenue is 1 selling advertising?

2 A With the understanding that I have not checked on its financials, but that is

3 my understanding, that ads continue to be the largest part of the company's revenue.

4 Q And is it fair to say that if users don't perceive Google as providing accurate

5 Search results, they might not use the platform?

6 A It is my understanding and certainly my expectation that if users don't find

7 the platform useful, they will not use it.

8 Q And is it logical to conclude, in that case, that if users don't use the platform,

9 Google would sell less advertising?

10 A It is my expectation, though it is speculative and a hypothetical, that, with 11 traffic decreasing, advertising revenue will decrease.

12 Q Okay. So manipulation of a platform could actually impact Google's ability

13 to sell ads. Is that fair to say?

14 A Again, this is a hypothetical, and, obviously, the specifics matter, but that is 15 certainly a concern that we would have.

16 Q Okay. Thank you.

17 We spoke in the prior hour about the Global Engagement Center, the State

18 Department's Global Engagement Center. Do you recall those questions?

19 A I do, thank you.

20 Q The Global Engagement Center is sometimes abbreviated as the GEC,

21 correct?

22 A To my awareness, yes.

23 Q Okay. So I'm going to refer to it as the GEC for the duration of this

24 interview.

25 A Sounds good.

1 Q You described earlier your understanding of the GEC's mission with respect
2 to your interactions with the GEC.
3 A Uh-huh.
4 Q I actually want to introduce our first exhibit. It's about the GEC page from 5 the GEC's public website.
6 A Thank you.
7 Q And this is going to be marked as exhibit No. 1.
8 [[redacted] Exhibit No. 1.
9 Was marked for identification.]
10 BY [redacted]
11 Q Have you seen this before?
12 A Not to my recollection.
13 Q Okay. I'm going to just read the mission statement on the front page.
14 The mission statement is to direct, lead, synchronize, integrate, and coordinate
15 U.S. Federal Government efforts to recognize, understand, expose, and counter foreign 16 state and non-state propaganda and disinformation efforts aimed at undermining or 17 influencing the policies, security, or stability of the United States, its allies, and partner
18 nations?
19 Do you see where it says that?
20 A Yep.
21 Q Okay. To the best of your recollection -- and you had mentioned earlier
22 you'd had discussions with individuals from the GEC, correct?
23 A That is correct, to my recollection.
24 Q To the best of your knowledge, to the best of your recollection, were the 25 matters that you discussed with the GEC pertinent to the mission I just read to you that is

1 pertinent to the GEC's efforts to address foreign and non-state activities that were
2 designed to destabilize the United States?
3 A With the understanding that business, you know, what is pertinent or not
4 pertinent to the mission is one that is subjective, I can just come back to the fact that, to 5 my recollection, discussions did pertain to foreign -- foreign influence writ large.
6 Though, again, I don't recall specifics.
7 Q Do you recall -- sorry, back up a second. Was it your impression that it was 8 important for Google to have discussions such as this with the GEC?
9 A It was my impression that I -- it was important for our U.S. public policy team
10 that we engage with the U.S. State Department and the request.
11 Q Okay. And why was that?
12 A That would be a question for our U.S. public policy team, yep.
13 Q Okay. So you were just essentially acting at the request of U.S. public
14 policy team. Is that fair to say?
15 A To my recollection, I was.
16 Q Okay. Do you recall if some of your interactions were intended to help
17 Google recognize possible malicious activity by foreign actors or non-state actors?
18 A Writ large, I would say that, over the course of my engagement, which, as 19 I've mentioned, were global in scope and included a broad stroke of actors, the vast 20 majority not government, we did receive on a regular basis information from these 21 actors, state or non-state actors, about content or behaviors they purported to have seen 22 on our services that they expected might violate our rules or otherwise undermine the 23 integrity of our services.
24 And that's the kind of information we, obviously, when we receive it, want to 25 make sure to share with the relevant team internally so they can determine if it has

1 merits, independently of course, and if it does have merits, take the right actions.
2 Q And with respect to your role specifically, you received that information
3 from stakeholders such as the GEC, correct?
4 A Yes, that would happen on a regular basis as part of my role.
5 Q And then you would pass it along to the proper team?
6 A That was normal procedure, yes.
7 Q Okay. And then after that, what was your role?
8 A Depending on the issue at stake, certainly, I would not be involved in making 9 a final determination as to whether the claim, whichever claim it was, had merits, but 10 once the determination was made and an action was taken, I may or may not be asked to 11 report back to the entity in question. More often than not, we would not necessarily 12 report back, but that could happen.
13 Q With respect to the GEC specifically, did your interactions -- did you interact
14 with the GEC during both the Trump administration and the Biden administration?
15 A Again, to my recollection, interactions began in the summer or spring of 16 2020. So that would be, I believe, during the Trump administration.
17 Q And did they continue on after January 20, 2021, to your recollection?
18 A I believe they did. Again, it was a series of engagements, roughly on a 19 monthly basis, I believe, but I'm not sure exactly when they ended. I believe they 20 continued in the Biden administration.
21 Q To the best of your recollection, was there any difference in your 22 interactions during the Trump administration versus during the Biden administration with 23 the GEC?
24 A To my recollection, none whatsoever.
25 Q Okay.

1 During your interactions with individuals from the GEC, did anyone who was a
2 State Department employee ever try to coerce you or anyone else at Google into 3 promoting or removing any content?
4 A With the understanding that, again, "coercing" is a term that is somewhat
5 subjective, it has certainly been my experience that we would receive information from 6 GEC that they shared with us but that they always marked as for our consideration, as
7 opposed to requesting, as far as I recall, or otherwise mandating any sort of an outcome.
8 Q Okay.
9 Did any GEC employee or any State Department employee writ large ever
10 threaten you or any other Google employee, to the best of your knowledge, with any 11 adverse action if Google did not act on particular information they had provided?
12 A Again, "threatening" is a broad term, but, to my recollection, when there
13 was any other interaction than during these meetings -- and those meetings were focused 14 on either them asking questions to us about our practices and their taking no for an 15 answer if our answer was that we did not have a response for them, or raising
16 information to us with this for-awareness purpose that I mentioned before, but otherwise
17 no.
18 Q Okay.
19 Did any GEC official or any State Department official writ large ever ask you or, I
20 guess, to the best of your knowledge, any other Google employee to promote or remove 21 any content based on the political or ideological viewpoint that it expressed?
22 A To my recollection, no. And that would've been a strong departure from 23 normal procedure, so I believe I would recall that.
24 Q And when you say it would be a strong departure from normal procedure,
25 what does that mean?

1 A That means that I'm not used, in my role, to receiving requests to elevate or
2 remove content based on its political leaning.
3 Q Okay.
4 Did you have any interactions with anybody at the White House?
5 A I'm sorry to say --
6 Mr. Bopp. You're asking over the same time period, 2018 to 2020?
7 [redacted] Yeah, 2018 to -- before you -- you took your new position in January
8 of this year, correct.
9 [redacted]. Yeah.
10 [redacted] So 2018 through the end of last year.
11 Mr. Bopp. Okay.
12 [redacted]. I appreciate you asking me.
13 I should note that, because many of my meetings at the time were remote and
14 over visual conference, I'm not entirely sure that I have a clear recollection of who I
15 interacted with. I don't recall going to the White House, if that makes sense, but I don't 16 recall all of my meetings.
17 BY [redacted]
18 Q Okay. And as we established earlier, you had so many interactions it's 19 impossible to quantify the number of stakeholders you engaged with, right?
20 A I certainly do not recall the number.
21 Q Okay.
22 Are you familiar with the claim made by -- I think it was raised at the very 23 beginning today and also made writ large in other hearings that we've had by some of the 24 committee's Republicans -- that the Federal Government has colluded with Google and 25 other private companies to censor certain types of political and ideological speech?

1 A And when you say "familiar," you mean am I aware of it?

2 Q Yes.

3 A Then, yes, I have awareness of the claim.

4 Q Based on your experience, personal experience at Google, do you have any

5 experience with such collusion actually taking place?

6 A In my experience, Google across its range of services through the years has

7 consistently made its own independent decisions with regards to what policies, practices,

8 or product development it designs.

9 Q Thank you.

10 And I just want to go through -- you answered a number of these questions

11 earlier, but I just want a clean record on it.

12 In your current role at Google, meaning the role you've been in since January of 13 this year to the present, are you personally involved in making content moderation

14 decisions?

15 A In my current role, I do not have the responsibility or possibility to make 16 content moderation decisions, meaning decisions about individual cases of content.

17 Q In your immediate prior role, so 2018 to December of last year, were you

18 involved in making content moderation decisions?

19 A Same answer. I would not have had the responsibility or possibility of 20 making individual decisions about pieces of content.

21 Q And what about the roles you had prior to 2018? Were you ever in a 22 position to make content moderation decisions?

23 A Same answer as before. I did not have that possibility.

24 Q Okay.

25 In your current role at Google, do you personally engage in fact-checking?

1 A Could you clarify the question? What does it mean to "engage in 2 fact-checking"?
3 Q Are you ever asked to assess a piece of content for whether it is true or
4 false?
5 A I would not be involved in content moderation decisions in any way, shape,
6 or form, including on that.
7 Q Okay. And with respect to any of your prior roles, was that part of your
8 responsibility?
9 A In none of my prior roles was I ever in charge of making decisions about 10 enforcement of any policy or any piece of content, including on fact-checking.
11 Q Okay.
12 And [redacted] in the prior hour asked you about Google News Lab. Do you recall
13 that?
14 A I do recall the question.
15 Q Did you ever work on News Lab?
16 A I did not.
17 Q Okay.
18 You were also asked a number of questions about YouTube. Were you ever
19 assigned to any YouTube-specific teams?
20 A I was not.
21 Q Okay.
22 Were you ever involved in the creation of any content moderation policies at
23 Google?
24 A And by "involved" you mean?
25 Q Did you help to draft any of the content moderation policies at Google?

1 A In my advisory capability, I might have been consulted on any number of
2 policies, but I would never be the person making decisions on the final draft of these
3 policies and what might be raised.
4 Q Okay.
5 Same question. You were asked a number of questions about your
6 understanding of the terms "misinformation," "disinformation," and "malinformation."
7 Were you ever involved in any decision-making at Google regarding what is or is not
8 misinformation or disinformation or malinformation?
9 A While I appreciate the question, in my experience, it does not fit with the 10 functioning of Google, in that it is not the company's approach to have an abstract 11 definition of these terms, but to focus on specific policies or product designs, which 12 would be handled by the appropriate teams.
13 Q So is it fair to say that you actually could not have been involved in any 14 decisions regarding what is or is not mis- and disinformation because Google doesn't do
15 that?
16 A Again, I'm not sure I fully understand the question, but, as I've said, I was not 17 the decision-maker on any sort of drafting of a policy or any sort of enforcement of a
18 policy, nor was I the decision-maker on one of our products.
19 Q Okay.
20 And one last question. Were you ever the final decision-maker with respect to 21 any of Google's community guidelines?
22 A I appreciate the question. I would equate those two policies in my mind, so
23 no.
24 Q Okay.
25 Thank you. We can go off the record.

1 [Recess.]

2 [redacted] Back on the record, please.

3 BY [redacted]

4 Q [redacted], do you -- we'll keep the timeline from January 2020 until today.

5 Do you recall any interactions with the U.S. Census Bureau?

6 A In general terms, yes. Not specifics.

7 Q And, in general terms, do you have a recollection, what was the nature of 8 those interactions?

9 A To my recollection, the Census Bureau was preparing for the decennial

10 census and concern about ensuring that the American public understood it accurately.

11 Q Do you recall who else, if anybody, from the company was engaging with the 12 Census Bureau when you were interacting with them?

13 A Yes -- I mean, again, not comprehensively. I do recall at least one name,

14 but there were many others. But the one person I do recall is one [redacted]

15 Q And who is [redacted]?

16 A At the time, he was in the Google trust and safety team. I'm not sure of his 17 exact title and position.

18 Q Again, the same timeline of January 2020 until today, do you recall any 19 interactions with the FBI?

20 A To the best of my recollection, I do not.

21 Q From January 2020 until today, do you recall any interactions with the U.S.

22 Department of Homeland Security?

23 A Again, to my recollection, no.

24 Q From January 2020 until today, do you recall any interactions with the CDC?

25 A To my recollection, no.

1 Q Are you aware of the Election Integrity Partnership?

2 A Yes, I'm aware of its existence.

3 Q And, to your understanding, what is -- I'll call it EIP, if that's all right. To 4 your understanding, what is EIP?

5 A To my understanding, the EIP was a project that gathered several

6 organizations. Those I know were a part of it include the Stanford Internet Observatory,

7 the Atlantic Council, Graphika I believe, as well as the University of Washington, around, I

8 believe, assessing and elevating threats to the integrity of elections -- at least, the

9 U.S. election.

10 Q With respect to EIP, do you recall who your points of contact were at 11 Stanford?

12 A Let's see. I recall interacting with a number of Stanford personnel. I'm

13 not sure which one I would call my point of contact. But names would include at least, I

14 believe, Renee DiResta and -- yeah, this is the one name I recall for sure. There might be

15 others I'm just not thinking of right now, but if you have names, I'm happy to confirm or 16 infirm.

17 Q Did you have any interactions with Alex Stamos?

18 A I believe I would have on an occasional basis, but he was not a frequent

19 point of contact for me.

20 Q Are you familiar with the Center for Internet Security, sometimes

21 abbreviated as CIS?

22 A To my awareness, no, not really.

23 Q Just a couple of answers ago, you said with respect to EIP that they would 24 elevate certain reports or threats to, presumably, Google? Is that what you were 25 referring to?

1 A Again, with the understanding that I was not a part of the team that ran the
2 project, my understanding is that it would seek to elevate information to a broad set of 3 stakeholders, including but not limited to technology companies and maybe others, such 4 as election officials.
5 Q And do you recall how this information was transmitted, at least to Google?
6 A Sure. To my recollection, the EIP had set up a platform called -- well, in this
7 case, the system was called Jira, the purpose of which was to write down information.
8 The content on the Jira page would be like a blog post page, if you will. There would be 9 written content and then a space at the bottom for people to ask questions or react in 10 some way. And that was the way they would signal information.
11 They would tag, meaning, like, explicitly include or exclude specific entities within 12 tickets, would then be able to see or not see the contents.
13 Does that make sense?
14 Q Yeah. A couple of followup questions.
15 A Sure.
16 Q So, first, when you say it was like a blog post and there would be content
17 and people could ask questions, were you able to ask questions or comment on this post?
18 A So, to my recollection, yes, I was one of the people from Google with access
19 to this platform. Though I should mention, again, to my recollection, we rarely did ask
20 any questions.
21 Our procedure was the same as it would be with any other third party raising
22 information with us. As I described before, we would take that information and route it
23 to the appropriate internal teams for them to make their own independent decisions.
24 Q Who else from Google had access to this Jira system?
25 A To my awareness, one other person from YouTube had access.

1 Q Do you recall the person from YouTube?

2 A I believe it was [redacted].

3 Q And if [redacted] is responsible for YouTube, in your point of contact, were

4 you for other Google products?

5 A Broadly speaking, yes, she was interacting with them on behalf of YouTube

6 and I was interacting with them on behalf of the rest of Google.

7 Q Okay. So, besides YouTube, which Google products were implicated by the 8 reports and information EIP was sharing?

9 A To my recollection, and, again, with the understanding this was a few years

10 ago and I'm not

11 comprehensive in my recollection, the only other Google products I recall being ever

12 mentioned by the EIP are Google advertising systems.

13 Q So you mentioned having access to this Jira system. Would you have to 14 onboard on -- this is not an email; is that right?

15 A No, it was a separate platform that they set up.

16 Q Okay. And so would you have to be invited to join it?

17 A That is correct. They would have to set up a dedicated account and access.

18 Q And then you mentioned that reports, information would be elevated, and, if

19 appropriate, you would send it along to the appropriate team. How did you get the 20 information off of Jira onto however you're transmitting it to the appropriate team?

21 A Thank you for the question. Of course, happy to elaborate on that.

22 If it's okay, I just would like to clarify one thing, which is, you said, if appropriate I

23 would share it. And insofar as I recall, we did not make, sort of, judgments. When a

24 page or ticket mentioned a Google service, we would share that information with the

25 relevant service and make them decide whether it had merit or was appropriate, it did

1 highlight a violation of our rules or did not.

2 But, with that in mind, the standard procedure here, which, again, is similar to

3 what would happen in other places, is, I would read the information, take the relevant

4 parts of it, the parts relevant to Google services, and send that to the appropriate team.

5 I believe, in this case, with email was the most common way of doing it, but I do not recall

6 that being comprehensive, of course.

7 Q And when you're sharing it via email, are you summarizing the ticket? Can

8 you copy and paste what's in the ticket and put it into the email? What does that

9 transmission look like?

10 A Thank you for the question.

11 And, again, I know I'm repeating this, but this is for clarity. It was a few years

12 ago, so my recollections are comprehensive. But, to the best of my recollection, we

13 would aim to copy and paste as much as of the contents of the ticket as we could, while

14 also limiting information that was not pertinent to Google, if that makes sense.

15 There were some parts of tickets that were -- some tickets involved multiple

16 entities, and so we would try to keep the information we send to the part that was

17 relevant for the team we were sending it to, so that it makes things easier for them.

18 Q In an earlier answer, you mentioned that entities could be tagged, and then

19 in this past answer you said there were multiple entities. So there would be tickets

20 where, let's say, Google was tagged but also other tech companies?

21 A To my recollection, yes.

22 Q Do you recall which other tech companies were involved?

23 A And by "involved," you mean the broader project than any one specific 24 ticket?

25 Q Which other tech companies might be tagged on a ticket, if you can recall?

1 A Again, with the caveat that I don't have a comprehensive list of who might
2 be involved, I do believe other companies that might be tagged, depending on the ticket,
3 would include Twitter; Facebook, now known as Meta; I believe TikTok, though I'm not 4 certain.
5 Q And when you say that you would remove the parts that are not relevant to 6 Google, would these be, like, links to tweets that would not be relevant? What type of 7 content, if you recall, would be removed from the ticket that wasn't relevant?
8 A I appreciate the question. Again, it's hard to speak in generic terms, so I'm 9 going to try to approximate the process here, but, obviously, each ticket is different, and 10 therefore it would help to see specifics.
11 In general, if a segment or a paragraph was about alleged abuse regarding another 12 platform's terms of service and happening on their services, we would not share that with 13 our own teams, I don't expect, because it would be less relevant to them. It might be 14 included if we did a broad and a quick copy and paste, but we would try to be diligent 15 about sending pertinent information for the sake of everyone's time.
16 Q And once you pass along the information, would you hear back from the 17 appropriate internal team regarding what decision, if any, was made?
18 A I would not say that was necessarily systematic, but that was certainly a 19 possibility.
20 Q Do you recall if anyone at EIP would ask you what decision was made?
21 A I don't recall specifics, but I believe they were interested in the decisions we 22 made.
23 But, to be clear, also, for the sake of specificity, it is my recollection that we did
24 not systematically and, in fact, did not even frequently report back on decisions.
25 Q To the extent you have a recollection, when multiple entities were

1 tagged -- let's say Google, Twitter, Facebook are tagged on a ticket -- if you or someone
2 from Twitter were to post on a ticket, could the other entities see what was posted?
3 A To my recollection, yes, if someone responded to a ticket in the Jira
4 platform, others would see that response if they had access to the ticket.
5 Q Do you recall if the Jira system would create automatic email notifications?
6 A To my recollection, it was designed to try to do that, but, again, if memory
7 serves well, the very reason why we log into Jira to see the tickets as opposed to receiving 8 emails is because that function was not, for whatever reason, reliable, and so it was not
9 certain that we would get an email with every ticket.
10 To my recollection, our preferred mode of operation, if we could, would have 11 been to receive emails versus logging into Jira.
12 Q I think you mentioned this in an earlier answer, but this was in the lead-up to 13 the 2020 U.S. election?
14 A Yes. These interactions with EIP began, I believe, in the late summer of 15 2020.
16 Q Did you have any interactions with EIP in the lead-up to the 2022 U.S.
17 election?
18 A To my recollection, much more limited, but yes.
19 Q And by "more limited," do you mean the nature of the interaction changed
20 or just the frequency was sparser?
21 A I appreciate the opportunity to clarify. I didn't mean sparser frequencies.
22 The interactions, as with many of our stakeholders, were the same. They might have 23 questions or share with us information we would treat appropriately in light of process.
24 Q Did you have engagements with something called the Virality Project?
25 A "Engagements" meaning interactions?

1 Q Interactions.

2 A Again, to my recollection, yes. I believe it was similar. We received

3 information from them that was shared to the appropriate teams.

4 Q And were you using Jira as part of these interactions with the Virality

5 Project?

6 A Here, I want to give you -- my recollection is not 100 percent clear, but if

7 memory serves well, by that time, the automatic emails worked better, and so we did not

8 have to log into Jira and just received emails. But that is a recollection; it could be 9 flawed.

10 Q Okay. So, again, understanding this is your recollection from a few years

11 ago, Jira was still used, but the email notification system was more reliable, so your 12 recollection is that email was used more frequently?

13 A To put this differently, I did not recall using Jira in the context -- logging into

14 Jira in the context of the Virality Project precisely due to the fact that emails were more

15 functional at the time. But, again, that is a recollection. It's a few years ago. I'm not 16 entirely sure.

17 Q In the lead-up to the 2020 U.S. election, do you recall how many Jira tickets, 18 approximately, you were copied on?

19 A I actually do. To my recollection, it was somewhere less than 50, maybe 20 high 40s, like 47, 48, something like that.

21 Q And do you have a sense of -- we'll say high 40s, roughly -- what percent of 22 those related to YouTube as opposed to ads, I think you said was the other category?

23 A Not in specifics, no. I'm sorry.

24 Q Okay. Do you have a sense of which was the majority?

25 A I'm sorry, that would -- I don't want to guess. I'm not sure.

1 Q If a Jira ticket included information that was relevant to YouTube, would you
2 take that information and pass it along to the appropriate team to handle? Or would
3 [redacted] -- you'd wait until she was logged on and she would take that ticket?
4 A To my recollection, in light of the fact that only two of us had access and not
5 all of -- like, sometimes we took a day off or some tickets would come on a weekend, we
6 typically have an agreement that whoever sees a ticket first sends it to the appropriate
7 areas and have made it very clear in advance what the procedure was so that whichever
8 one of us sends send it to the right place and in the right procedure.
9 Q In the lead-up to the U.S. 2020 election, as this project is going underway,
10 did EIP ask for information from you or [redacted] or from others at the company
11 regarding what YouTube's policies were or what the other Google products' policies 12 were?
13 A To my recollection, the EIP did publish a preliminary report on platform
14 policies ahead of the election that maybe they even kept up to date -- again, fuzzy
15 recollection there -- for which they did engage with not just [redacted] and I but with 16 others as well in order to understand the platform's policies and, yeah, in order to write
17 the report.
18 Q Do you recall who else from the company was part of these discussions?
19 A Not with specificity, no. I expect the YouTube public policy team would've
20 been involved as well, perhaps others on our end too. But I don't recall the exact
21 meeting, if that makes sense, where the discussion took place.
22 Q Do you know who [redacted] is?
23 A I apologize, in that the name rings a bell, but right here and now I'm not able 24 to tell you exactly who that is or what they do.
25 Q This will be exhibit 2.

1 A Okay.

2 [Exhibit No. 2.

3 Was marked for identification.]

4 BY

5 Q I guess just first at a high level, do you recall this email exchange?

6 A Not specifically, no.

7 Q If I could turn your attention, this is the first page, Bates number 24385.

8 This is an email from you that carries on to the next page. And you write, "I was 9 watching your 2nd briefing of the day and you mentioned that YT" -- in this context,

10 would you understand that to be YouTube?

11 A Yes.

12 Q -- "that YouTube had failed to take action on a livestream that you shared,

13 hours ago."

14 Do you recall, would EIP host livestreams?

15 A To my recollection, they did have public livestreams. On what cadence, I'm 16 not sure.

17 Q And then you say, "I was hoping to have more clarity here as I thought that 18 we did take action on the URL, but maybe I'm missing something?"

19 You then clarify, "I heard your correction now, which is nice -- but to be clear, we 20 took action a few hours ago, not because someone was watching this briefing."

21 Someone from Stanford responds, "Yes, sorry! We were trying to correct the 22 record."

23 And then in your response to that email, you say, "All good! Thanks for 24 correcting. You just had me concerned for a second that we were missing something

25 here. (As you might imagine, it's a bit of an angst-inducing notion on election day.)"

1 What did you mean, that it was an angst-inducing notion?

2 A Again, with the caveat that I don't recall the specifics of this exchange, it is
3 certainly the case that, on any day and especially on days when there's a lot of intensity
4 or a lot of public scrutiny, failing to enforce our rules appropriately would be a concerning 5 notion.

6 Q Okay. And when you reference public scrutiny, do you mean that the 7 company, Alphabet, would be under public scrutiny?

8 A I mean that, generally speaking, yes, election days tend to be days when we 9 get a lot of question and attention.

10 Q And, in this context, would the scrutiny be that YouTube had failed to take 11 action on a piece of content that, again, had some sort of issue with it?

12 A Again, I don't recall the specifics of this exchange, but, in general, we do
13 receive questions and feedback on a routine basis from stakeholders around the world
14 about content they believe violates our rules and we should have taken action on that 15 we, in their view, failed to take action on, which we then have to determine whether we 16 think they're right or not.

17 Q And when you reference stakeholders around the world, let's stick in the 18 U.S. focus. Among U.S. stakeholders who expressed a criticism of when the company
19 maybe has failed to take action, would those U.S. stakeholders, does that include the U.S.
20 Government?

21 A Again, to my recollection, no. And that would not be something that I
22 would've experienced directly because I was not the main point of contact for any one
23 branch of government.

24 Q And when you say public scrutiny, would that also just include criticism from 25 the media?

1 A Or users or any set of people. And, in general, just ourselves, that we hold
2 ourselves to a high standard.
3 Q Do you recall when public scrutiny with respect to elections and whether the 4 company was taking adequate steps with respect to content, when those criticisms first 5 began?
6 Mr. Bopp. Are we talking about -- have we established that there were 7 criticisms? I thought that [redacted] was talking about why -- that there might be 8 concerns, that there could be scrutiny, that there would be scrutiny. I'm not sure we've 9 established that there were criticisms.
10 [redacted] I think a previous answer did, but happy to clarify again for the record.
11 BY [redacted]
12 Q Do you recall at a high level whether Alphabet has ever been subject to 13 public criticism with respect to how it handled content moderation decisions?
14 A In specifics, no. But in my 13 years of experience at Google, it's commonly 15 been the case that around the world some person, organization, or other would have 16 concerns with our actions or lack thereof.
17 Q Okay. And that would include U.S. external stakeholders?
18 A Again, without recollection of specifics, yes, it could.
19 Q And, again, we covered this. Among U.S. external stakeholders, do you 20 have any awareness of whether the company has faced criticism in media reporting on 21 whether the company adequately has taken steps with respect to content moderation?
22 A Again, in my experience across 13 years at Google, it is frequently the case
23 that the company is criticized for some reason or other. That would include but not be 24 limited to content moderation.

1 [12:23 p.m.]

2 BY [redacted]

3 Q To the extent you have an awareness on this, do you recall, following the 4 2016 U.S. election, whether the company received public criticism with respect to steps it
5 took to moderate content that may have been the product of Russian disinformation?

6 A I don't recall specifics. That said, as I've mentioned, criticism of the 7 company across any number of topics and issues has been commonplace, in my
8 experience across all of my roles at Google.

9 Q And do you recall, in your experience at least, whether this criticism has 10 been consistent during your time at Google?

11 A Can I ask what you mean by "consistent"?

12 Q Sure. There's some degree of criticism that you have in mind in reference
13 to your previous answer. Do you recall any events or time period where the criticism
14 was greater than normal?

15 A I find, I'm sorry, this is a hard question for me to answer, in that, to me,
16 there's always some amount of discussion of the company in the public sphere, and some 17 of the discussion is positive and some is negative, but it's hard for me to quantify 18 variations of that.

19 Q Okay.

20 Do you recall negative -- I was going to say "negative criticism," but -- negative 21 discussions or criticism regarding the company and the steps it's taken with respect to 22 moderating content prior to the 2016 U.S. Presidential election?

23 A Not in specifics, but I would not say -- it would be a normal topic, as well as 24 many others, for both positive and negative discussion in the public, in my experience,
25 yes.

1 Q Do you recall when, approximately, the company adopted, for any of its
2 products or services, a policy with respect to hack-and-leak?
3 A I'm sorry, I don't recall a date.
4 Q Okay. To your recollection, was it sometime in 2020?
5 A It might've been. I'm so sorry, I'm not sure of the date.
6 Q You made a point of, in this email exchange, to clarify that Google took this
7 action hours ago -- this is at the bottom of the first page, Bates number 24385 -- not
8 because someone was watching this briefing.
9 Why did you think it was important to clarify that?
10 A Again, I don't recall the specifics of this exchange, but, in general, as I've 11 mentioned, common procedure is that Google makes its own independent decisions
12 about which contents may or may not violate rules. It is commonplace for me to remind 13 that this is the case to outside stakeholders.
14 Q Okay. Do you recall if the individuals at Stanford you were engaging with,
15 or had interactions with, what their intention was by sharing information with you?
16 A While I appreciate the question, it is hard for me to speak to it. I don't 17 know what their intentions might be.
18 Q Again, with the understanding that you're not them and can't specify to 19 what's in their head, but, to your understanding, what purpose did they have in sharing
20 the information with you?
21 A Again, I appreciate the question, but I'm not sure what their purpose was.
22 What I can say is that, when we saw information, we did route it to the 23 appropriate teams internally in our process, and if we thought there was evidence of 24 content or behaviors that violated our rules, then the teams would take appropriate
25 action.

1 I don't know what purpose the EIP might have had in their own heads.

2 Q Okay.

3 Do you recall this at the beginning when EIP is being organized, what the purpose

4 of the organization -- let me strike that.

5 Do you recall who was first invited from Google to have Google participate or have

6 interactions with the EIP?

7 A I do not. I don't believe it was me, but I'm not entirely sure.

8 Q Okay. Was there an opening briefing or opening meeting where -- at what

9 point did you come to understand what EIP was?

10 A Again, I don't recall specific meetings or discussions, but I recall my 11 discussions with them would have begun around the summer of -- late summer of 2020.

12 I don't recall any specific meeting, but normal course of action with outside

13 stakeholders would be to understand -- have a conversation with them -- so a meeting to 14 understand what they're doing and how it might fit with our work.

15 Q And do you recall who at Google was the decision-maker with respect to 16 having Google, you know, interact with EIP?

17 Mr. Bopp. You mean, who decided that Google was going to participate in this 18 EIP Jira program?

19 Do you know?

20 [redacted]. I don't believe it was any one single person, to my recollection, but

21 more for shared assessment of how would we receive that information, and what kind of

22 permission would we need to do so, and would that potentially be helpful. But I don't

23 recall any specific decision-maker, if that makes sense.

24 I should note that, when we say "participation," all we mean here is inputs,

25 receiving information.

1 BY [redacted]

2 Q You did testify that the tech companies -- and maybe we can clarify this,
3 about whether Google in particular, but -- the tech companies who were onboarded to 4 the Jira system could receive information, but they could also comment, provide
5 comments on the ticket? Is that correct?

6 A Yes, with the asterisk that we could only see and interact with tickets we 7 were tagged in to, so nothing else.

8 Q Okay. So, for the tickets that the company is tagged in, the companies
9 would have the ability to ask questions, provide comments. Is that correct?

10 A The companies had the technical ability to respond to a ticket however they 11 wanted.

12 Q Okay. Do you recall if the companies ever used -- would respond on Jira
13 regarding actions the company had taken?

14 A I can't speak to other companies, in large part because I don't recall paying 15 much attention to their own responses.

16 But insofar as we were concerned, I do not recall using the Jira system much for 17 responses. I recall individual instances of responding along the lines of acknowledging
18 that I've seen the tickets. I don't recall responding about actions taken.

19 [redacted] Okay.

20 We can take these back, please.

21 Thank you.

22 This will be exhibit 3.

23 [[redacted] Exhibit No. 3.

24 Was marked for identification.]

25 Mr. Bopp. Okay.

1 BY [redacted]

2 Q At a high level, do you recognize this email chain?

3 A If by "recognize" you mean recall, I do not recall the conversation, but I

4 recall -- I recognize that this is an email exchange I was a part of.

5 Q Do you recall if you attended the Stanford cyber December 2020 elections

6 debrief that's referenced in this email chain?

7 A I do not recall. It seems from this thread that I was started (ph) to.

8 Q Okay. Who is Kelly Born from Stanford?

9 A At the time, I believe she was a program officer within the Stanford Internet

10 Observatory.

11 Q In your email at the top, about a third of the way down on Bates number 12 39145, you recognize a person named Steven Bradley. Who is Mr. Bradley?

13 A I do not recall who that person is.

14 Q You say that Mr. Bradley is from CISIC. Do you know what that's in 15 reference to?

16 A I do not.

17 Q In response, Ms. Born seems to be, at least at a somewhat high level,

18 familiar with Mr. Bradley. She references something called "GIFCT." Do you know

19 what that is in reference to?

20 A I believe it stands for the Global Internet Forum to Counter Terrorism.

21 Q And then she says, "GIFCT but for disinformation." The full sentence, for

22 full context, is that Mr. Bradley wants to start something similar to GIFCT but for

23 disinformation.

24 Do you know if such an entity was ever put together?

25 A To my awareness, it was not.

1 Q There are references, including in that same sentence, in parentheses -- this
2 is in reference to Mr. Bradley -- "he ran a few government ISACS before, with DHS I
3 think."
4 Do you know what the reference is to "ISACS"?
5 A I am not 100 percent certain of the acronym, but I believe it referred to 6 information-sharing arrangements.
7 Q And do you have familiarity with the EI-ISAC?
8 A I'm aware of its existence, but I was not, to my recollection, involved directly
9 with it or its activities.
10 Q Okay.
11 Mr. Bopp. You said the EI-ISAC?
12 [redacted] Yes. It would E-I, dash, I-S-A-C.
13 Mr. Bopp. Thanks.
14 BY [redacted]
15 Q Do you recall who at Google, if anybody, had interactions with EI-ISAC?
16 A I'm not sure.
17 Q In your role in 2020, which included, you said, engaging with U.S.
18 stakeholders, did that include DFRLab, which is housed within the Atlantic Council?
19 A As I've mentioned, I engaged with many stakeholders around the world,
20 including in the U.S., in academia and civil society. And I believe I had some interactions
21 with the Atlantic Council.
22 Q Do you recall, at a high level, what any of those interactions entailed?
23 A I don't recall the specifics. To my recollection, they were similar to 24 interactions I would have with other stakeholders, like the ones we discussed.
25 Q In 2020, did you ever participate in a hack-and-leak tabletop exercise?

1 A I do not recall being a part of that tabletop.

2 Q Do you have awareness regarding the hack-and-leak tabletop exercise the

3 Aspen Institute held in June of 2020?

4 A With the understanding I have a fuzzy recollection, I do recall discussions

5 around such a tabletop. I do not recall myself being present there.

6 Q Do you know whether anyone from Alphabet attended that tabletop

7 exercise?

8 A I do not. And, again, I genuinely do not recall if I, myself, was there.

9 Q Do you recall attending any other meetings hosted by the Aspen Institute

10 related to a hack-and-leak tabletop exercise in 2020?

11 A No, I don't recall attendance to any one specific meeting.

12 Q Okay. Do you recall, at a high level, attendance at any meetings?

13 A I recall -- you mean in the pre-2020-election period? I'm sorry. I recall

14 email traffic from Aspen around that period. I don't recall any specific meetings that

15 make sense, just because part of my work involved engaging with many entities around

16 the world and having exchanges with them on our working practices, and I don't recall

17 specific meetings necessarily.

18 Q To your understanding, what does the Aspen Institute do?

19 A To my understanding, it's a think tank.

20 Q And what sorts of issues does the think tank work on that relate to your line

21 of work?

22 A I believe the Aspen Institute writ large tackles a wide range of issues, but I

23 believe one of its centers focused more over time on issues related to what they called

24 "information disorder."

25 Q Okay. And what did you understand them to mean by "information

1 disorder"?

2 A I am not entirely certain of the whole scope of what the Aspen Institute

3 would include in that, but I do believe they wrote a report about it that was published.

4 So that would be my understanding of what they mean by it.

5 Q Okay. And just sitting here right now, what's your understanding?

6 A My best understanding would be issues that -- issues with the information

7 ecosystem that risk deceiving or otherwise misleading citizens.

8 Q With respect to your previous position at Google, did you have interactions

9 with the Global Disinformation Index?

10 A Yes, I did.

11 Q And, to your understanding, what is the -- I'll call it "GDI." What is GDI?

12 A To my understanding, GDI is a not-for-profit organization -- I believe it

13 is -- I'm not sure if it's U.S.-based or not, actually -- whose stated mission involves, at least

14 in some way -- that's the way I'm familiar with them -- forming assessments of content

15 that is, per their words and definitions, disinformation and that is being monetized by 16 advertisers or platforms.

17 Q Okay.

18 We can take these exhibits back.

19 This will be exhibit 4.

20 [[redacted] Exhibit No. 4.

21 Was marked for identification.]

22 BY [redacted]

23 Q Do you recall this interaction with GDI?

24 A Again, not the specifics of each email, but I do recall the interaction.

25 Q Okay. And, first, who is Clare Melford?

1 A To my awareness, she, at least at the time, was the CEO of the Global
2 Disinformation Index.
3 Q And, again, to your recollection, in this email chain, what is being discussed,
4 what sort of interaction between GDI and the company?
5 A Sure. Again, to my recollection, as I have mentioned, GDI has a practice of 6 identifying and oftentimes reporting publicly on content they believe is improperly
7 monetized by advertisers or platforms.
8 It is the case that, as with any other report filed on issues affecting our services,
9 our teams would regularly review that kind of public information to determine whether it
10 has merits in light of our policies.
11 And, in this case, there was a decision to explore whether we could get such 12 information from GDI -- whether it would make sense to get more information from GDI 13 based on the usefulness of the public reports and whether that could be done with the 14 clear understanding, as I believe I mentioned in this email, that Google is, remains, and 15 will be accountable for setting its own service policies and enforcing them independently.
16 Q And so, when you said you're exploring whether it might be appropriate for 17 Google to get more information from GDI -- but you also referenced that GDI puts out
18 public reports. So you're referencing information that's not in the public reports. Is
19 that right?
20 A I don't believe we had a clear perspective at the time on what that might 21 have meant. And part of the effort here, as I --
22 [Sound of door slamming.]
23 A -- believe described in this exchange -- oh. Sorry.
24 Q I don't know what that was. Please.
25 A As I believe, as I referred to in this exchange, it was to understand whether

1 there was such information in the first place that might be helpful to our teams and, if so,
2 how might it be shared in a way that was respectful of the mandates and the operating
3 boundaries of both organizations, particularly with regards to the fact that GDI would 4 indeed continue to write and publish reports about Google and Google would continue to 5 disagree with these reports wherever it deemed appropriate.
6 Q And is the intention, from the company's perspective, that, with the 7 information that GDI may be providing, the company will be in a better position to make
8 determinations on whether to allow certain content to monetize ads?
9 A Again, this was, to my recollection, an exploratory project. But, at least to 10 my recollection, the question was, rather, is it the case that the GDI has information that 11 is pertinent to us to assess whether there might be content on our services that violates 12 our rules?
13 Q And, yes, it's your understanding it does? GDI does?
14 A No. My understanding was that this project was geared towards exploring 15 whether it might have such information.
16 Q Gotcha.
17 Are you aware of any other entities similar to GDI that serve a similar function of 18 issuing reports regarding whether content should be allowed to monetize with ads?
19 A With respect -- if I may reframe a little, I do not believe we were, are, or 20 would be looking to GDI to tell us what should or should not be monetized within our 21 systems. I believe we were exploring whether GDI had information that was pertinent
22 to spotting content that was violative of our rules as we wrote them and understood
23 them, which is slightly different.
24 But with that caveat in mind, while it's not been my team's remit to own such 25 relationships, it is the case that both Google and YouTube have teams whose job it is to

1 try to, across our services, observe whether there is content that violates our rules. And
2 it is my understanding that these teams might, whenever they deem appropriate,
3 contract with third parties that might augment their own understanding with leads or 4 information that they might deem useful.
5 Q Okay.
6 A But my understanding with these arrangements is that always it is the case
7 that Google's teams remain independently in charge of determining whether information
8 they receive does or does not violate a rule and never make any commitments to abide 9 by any third party's definitions of what should or should not be on our services.
10 Q And which internal Google teams are you referring to?
11 A I believe those would be trust and safety teams.
12 Q Okay.
13 Can we go off the record, please?
14 [Recess.]

1 [1:32 p.m.]

2 [redacted] It is 1:32. We can go back on the record.

3 BY [redacted]

4 Q [redacted], I know you had no role in content moderation. You didn't make

5 content moderation decisions. You didn't play a decision-making role in the policies.

6 But you do have a general understanding of how content moderation works, right?

7 A Yes, I do have a general understanding.

8 Q Okay. Do you have an understanding of when content would be taken

9 down from a Google platform?

10 A Sure. I think that depends on the service, but, typically, each service has its 11 own set of rules that govern what content is permissible on the service. And when

12 those rules are violated, typically, that content would be actioned, which most often 13 means removed.

14 Q I want to turn back, and I actually don't remember what it was marked

15 as -- exhibit No. 2, which is the 11/4/20 email.

16 A Yep.

17 Q You recall reviewing this in the earlier hour?

18 A I do.

19 Q And this is an 11/4/2020 email from [redacted] to you, and then a number 20 of other individuals are carbon-copied, right?

21 A That is correct.

22 Q Okay.

23 On page -- the second page of this that's printed, it's Bates-stamped 24386. At

24 the very top, the email from you says, "I was hoping to have more clarity here as I

25 thought that we did take action on the URL."

1 Do you see where it says that?
2 A Yep.
3 Q Do you have any recollection, sitting here, what that URL was?
4 A I do not.
5 Q Okay. And do you have any recollection of what action might have been 6 taken?
7 A I do not have a specific recollection, but on YouTube, typically, if a video
8 violates YouTube's rules, it would be removed.
9 Q Okay. So, understanding you that you don't recall this specific situation, is 10 it fair to assume that, if, in fact, this particular URL was taken down, it was because it
11 violated YouTube's rules?
12 A Yes, that is my experience. YouTube would only remove content that 13 violated its rules.
14 Q Okay.
15 That's all for that.
16 With regard to the Election Integrity Partnership, you recall answering questions
17 about that in the earlier hour?
18 A I do.
19 Q Do you recall anything at all about the substance of the tickets that you
20 viewed through the Election Integrity Partnership?
21 A I don't recall specific tickets. I do recall, typically, they involved instances of 22 content or behaviors that the EIP deemed was, in their view, likely violative of our rules.
23 Q Okay. And when you received a ticket from the -- did you refer to them as 24 "tickets" or do you refer to them as "emails" when you received incoming from the EIP?
25 A We, depending on the project, could receive either. In the case of the

1 original version of the EIP, I believe the emailing function of Jira did not work as well as 2 expected, so we would mostly see the tickets within the Jira platform.
3 Q Okay. And when you saw the ticket within the Jira platform, you said
4 earlier you would copy and paste the portion relevant to Google, put it into an email, and 5 pass it along. Is that right?
6 A Generally speaking, I would indeed copy and paste relevant information and 7 send it to the relevant teams.
8 Q Okay.
9 There was some discussion earlier about whether you could view comments made
10 by other platforms. Do you recall that?
11 A I do.
12 Q Do you recall if you would ever copy and paste information that other
13 platforms had put on the tickets?
14 A Not to my recollection. I can only imagine doing that if it was pertinent to 15 the decision that our teams had to undertake so we would have information pertinent to 16 our own services.
17 Q Okay. But is it fair to say it's not something you did in the regular course of 18 handling this incoming?
19 A That would not be the case, in my recollection.
20 Q Okay.
21 Do you recall if you ever saw the word "CISA," C-I-S-A, on any tickets?
22 A I do not.
23 Q Okay. You have no specific recollection of that?
24 A No.
25 Q Okay.

1 Did you ever make any promises to EIP regarding what Google would do with the
2 information after it had taken it from the Jira system?
3 A I do recall being very explicit, very clear with the EIP, as we were with any
4 other third-party organization we engage with and send information to us, that Google
5 would retain its own right to make independent determinations on whatever information
6 was shared with us and made no commitments with regards to agreeing or disagreeing
7 with EIP's assessments.
8 Q And, to the best of your recollection, did Google, in fact, make its own
9 independent assessment of how to handle particular content that had been flagged?
10 A That has been my consistent experience, not just with this project but in 11 general across my life at Google.
12 Q Okay.
13 And you said in the earlier hour that you had received approximately 14 in-the-high-40s number of tickets from the EIP. Is that right?
15 A That is my recollection.
16 Q And did you also receive incoming comments about content from other
17 sources other than EIP?
18 A Again, I don't recall me pursuing any if I did, but I'm generally aware of the 19 company receiving information or feedback about content from any number of sources at 20 all times.
21 Q Okay.
22 Mr. Bopp. So you're not talking about specifically about the same content that 23 EIP flagged?
24 BY [redacted]
25 Q No, I just -- in advance of the election, did outside entities other than EIP flag

1 content for Google?

2 A I appreciate the clarification.

3 Again, to my recollection, I do not have a recollection specific to that period of

4 time, but, in general, it is my experience that any number of entities around the world

5 and in the United States might send feedback or information about content on our

6 services to various parts of Google on a day-in-day-out basis. And we would treat all of

7 those with the same process, meaning receiving it, routing it to the appropriate teams,

8 letting them decide.

9 Q Okay. And, in fact, that was kind of your job, right, was to receive incoming

10 from all kinds of outside entities?

11 A It certainly was a part of my job, yes.

12 Q Okay.

13 We talked through earlier the Virality Project. Do you recall that discussion?

14 A I do recall that being mentioned, yes.

15 Q Okay. Do you recall what timeframe you interacted with the Virality

16 Project?

17 A Not specifically, but I would expect -- to my recollection, it began sometime

18 after the year 2020, so maybe sometime anywhere between January and March 2021.

19 Q Okay. And you said in the earlier hour that you didn't access -- to the best

20 of your recollection, you weren't accessing information about the VP, the Virality Project,

21 through the Jira system, that at that point there were automated emails sent to you. Is 22 that accurate?

23 A That is my recollection.

24 Q Okay. Do you recall approximately how many emails you received?

25 A I do not.

1 Q Did it strike you as more than 10?

2 A It is hard for me to say. I do not know. I would not, in my recollection,

3 rate these to be a high frequency.

4 Q Okay. So, as compared to the rest of the -- again, your job, day-in and

5 day-out, part of your responsibilities were to receive incoming. As compared to other

6 incoming that you received during this time period, what percent of your time would you

7 estimate was occupied by incoming from the Virality Project?

8 A Again, with the understanding it's really hard to quantify that, I would say, a

9 very low percentage. Low single digits.

10 Q Okay. And, certainly, less frequently than you received incoming from the 11 Election Integrity Partnership, right?

12 A That would be my expectation, yes.

13 Q Okay.

14 And, again, during the course of -- during that time period that we're looking at

15 when you were interacting with the Virality Project, to the best of your knowledge, was 16 Google also receiving incoming content flags from other sources related to COVID-19?

17 A I appreciate the question.

18 Again, with the understanding that I would not, myself, necessarily be the

19 recipient of all of the above, by any stretch of the imagination, it is my understanding and

20 expectation that, yes, Google would receive any number of comments, feedback, or

21 questions from third parties about pieces of content as related to COVID-19 around the 22 world on a daily basis via different parts of the company.

23 Q To the best of your knowledge, was there any difference in the way that

24 Google handled the Virality Project incoming content flags than the way it did incoming

25 content flags from other entities?

1 A To the best of my knowledge and recollection, the procedure that I
2 described above was applied in all cases. The information would be routed internally to
3 the right teams; they would make their independent decisions and would take action
4 appropriately.
5 Q Okay.
6 In the first hour, you were asked about whether the Election Integrity Partnership
7 had asked for information about Google policies. Do you recall that?
8 A I do.
9 Q Okay. To the best of your knowledge, did Google make any changes to its 10 policies based on any interactions with the Election Integrity Partnership?
11 A To the best of my knowledge and recollection, no, we did not.
12 Q Okay.
13 In other interviews, the majority has suggested that the fact that certain content
14 was flagged by institutions such as Stanford might mean that Google gave it more weight
15 when considering potential actions -- for example, how to handle particular content.
16 To the best of your knowledge, did anyone from the Election Integrity Partnership
17 ever place undue pressure on you or anyone else at Google to take particular actions?
18 A I cannot speak to what undue pressure looks like. It's a subjective concept.
19 But I can say, I did not feel pressured, certainly, to take any different approach than I 20 would normally and that was also the consistent guidance we provided to anyone who 21 would ask.
22 Q And what about with respect to the Virality Project?
23 A The same, to my recollection.
24 Q Okay.
25 I want to turn back to what was marked as exhibit -- I think it was 4, the one that

1 we were discussing right when we broke. It's the October 18, 2021, email with the
2 Disinformation Index.
3 A Thank you.
4 Q Could you turn to Bates number 47632?
5 A Yes.
6 Q At 11:31 p.m., you sent an email to Ms. Melford. Do you see where that is?
7 It's the second to the bottom.
8 A I do see it.
9 Q There are two starred bullet points there. The first one says, "Scaling 10 requires agreement on definitions, which is likely something that'd slow us down as we 11 know we don't necessarily see eye to eye here."
12 What did you mean by "we don't necessarily see eye to eye here"?
13 A Sure. Thank you for the question.
14 As I believe I stated earlier, it is the case that consistently throughout my 15 experience at Google, with GDI and others, when engaging with third parties that had a 16 view about what content should or should not be -- in this case, monetized on our 17 services -- we're consistently willing and happy to engage and discuss, but we retain our 18 own license to make determinations about what should or should not be prohibited by 19 our rules, and as others may have different definitions of that, which is their prerogative,
20 that we don't have to agree with it.
21 Q Okay. And so there are instances -- and this is maybe a specific 22 instance -- where Google would sometimes disagree with the Global Disinformation
23 Index?
24 A That would be a regular instance, yes.
25 Q Okay.

1 And you said earlier that, writ large, this was an exploratory agreement -- or, an
2 exploratory discussion. Do you recall if Google ever actually entered into this contract
3 with GDI?
4 A To my knowledge, at the end of the discussion, the relevant teams deemed 5 that there was information that would be helpful for them to spot content that might 6 violate our rules, and they struck an agreement that is similar to one they have with other 7 types of entities that do that.
8 To my awareness, that agreement -- and, in fact, not just in my awareness, but I'm 9 very confident that this agreement continues to establish that, whatever the information
10 sent by GDI is, Google remains sole in charge of making determinations about what 11 should or should not be monetized and reserves a license to disagree with GDI on any or 12 all of what they would send.
13 Q So is it fair to say that GDI in this context is really just providing Google with 14 an additional source of information?
15 A That would be correct.
16 Q Okay. And why is that helpful for Google?
17 A Again, with the understanding I am not part of the team that made the 18 decision to engage with GDI and receive that information, my understanding is that, if a 19 third party, any third party, has information that is regularly -- even if it's not always 20 accurate in terms of characterizing content that might violate our rules, it can be useful to 21 our teams whose job it is to find such content and enforcing our rules more deliberately
22 and efficiently and at scale.
23 [redacted] Okay. And -- strike that.
24 Okay. I think we can go off the record. Thanks.
25 [Recess.]

1 [redacted] Can we go back on the record, please?

2 BY [redacted]

3 Q I would like to turn back -- I think it's exhibit 4. It's the exhibit we were 4 discussing right before we broke.

5 A Sure.

6 Q And when you have a second, if you could turn to Bates number 47632.

7 A Yes.

8 Q And there's an email from you on November 10, 2021, at 11:31 p.m.

9 A Uh-huh.

10 Q And then there's two bullet points. The second one says, "Scaling also has 11 been a historical point of contention for our 2 organizations."

12 Do you recall what that is in reference to?

13 A I appreciate the question.

14 With the caveat that, again, I don't recall the specifics of this exchange on that

15 day, my reading of it today, as I see it, refers to the regular practice by GDI, among other

16 organizations, to allege that Google was not doing a good enough job of enforcing its 17 rules at scale, and, therefore, we may have a disagreement on that.

18 Q And do you recall when you first -- by "you," I mean the company, Alphabet,

19 Google -- first received criticism from GDI on this issue?

20 A I do not.

21 Q Okay.

22 A That would have long predated this email, though.

23 Q Yeah. So, certainly, years before 2021?

24 A It's hard for me to say if it's months or years but certainly not that day.

25 Q Yeah. And you said GDI and other organizations. Do you recall any other

1 organizations that have levied similar criticisms against the company?
2 A In my experience across all of my roles at Google, it's a very commonplace
3 criticism of the company that is shared across organizations around the world, not just in 4 the United States. So it's hard for me to single out one or two. There's a real wide
5 range, if that makes sense. So it's not something that strikes me as unusual in that 6 space.
7 Q Uh-huh.
8 And you'd said in an earlier answer that GDI, in GDI's perspective, their goal is to 9 look at content that should not be monetized. Is that a fair summary?
10 A That it's at least, in my experience, a part of their role. If they have other 11 activities beyond that, I'm not familiar with them.
12 Q Uh-huh. And are you familiar with other organizations that try to serve a 13 similar role as GDI tries to serve?
14 A With regard specifically to the monetization of content?
15 Q Yes.
16 A I'm sure there are others, but no individual name comes to mind right now
17 that I would speak to. Of course, if you have specific names in mind, I'm happy to react
18 or comment.
19 Q Are you familiar with the company NewsGuard?
20 A Yes, I'm aware of it.
21 Q And, to your understanding, what does that company do?
22 A Again, to my awareness, and with the caveat that I'm not a part -- never
23 been a part of NewsGuard and, therefore, I'm not an expert in their mission, I understand 24 that they have at least two kinds of activities.
25 One, to my understanding, involves providing some sort of trust rating -- and I

1 hesitate on these words because I don't know that this is how they would describe it -- for
2 news websites around the world.
3 And the other involves, indeed, some amount of public reporting with regards to 4 content that they believe is -- I think they qualify as disinformation -- I'm not entirely
5 sure -- that either is disseminated or monetized on services.
6 If they have a specific focus on monetization, that is not something I'm, off the top
7 of my head, familiar with. To my understanding, it could be on monetization.
8 Q Yeah. And do you recall interacting with NewsGuard during your time at 9 Google?
10 A I do.
11 Q And what was the nature of your interactions?
12 A Similar to other organizations on the outside, as I've described, NewsGuard
13 has published reports alleging that Google did not either surface or monetize content that 14 it should not surface or monetize or reached out to us directly about these points, which 15 we would've responded to in the same way we do with others, meaning looking at the 16 merits and making our own decisions.
17 Q When --
18 A Sorry. I should clarify for the sake of comprehensiveness, it is also the case
19 that NewsGuard might have reached out to us in order to suggest that we implement 20 some versions of their trust ratings for news websites, which, to my knowledge, we 21 haven't done.
22 Q Does GDI, to your knowledge, do something similar with respect to the trust
23 ratings that NewsGuard does?
24 A If they do, I'm not aware of it off the top of my head, and I don't believe 25 we've engaged with them on that front.

1 Q When GDI or NewsGuard publishes something publicly and it criticizes the
2 company for failing to take steps, does the company proactively reach out to NewsGuard
3 and GDI?
4 A I appreciate the question.
5 I would say that it depends on the report. It depends on whether we believe we 6 might have a correction to bring to something they published or whether there is a value
7 in perhaps explaining our policies and our work if we think that there might be a
8 misunderstanding.
9 So I can't say that it's systematic, but I wouldn't say it's out of place either, as well
10 as for others. It's not specific to GDI or NewsGuard. That would be our procedure for 11 others too.
12 Q With respect to GDI and NewsGuard and the publications they issue, how do
13 you become aware that they've issued a publication?
14 A Most often, I would say, via press releases or public coverage. On occasion,
15 some of these organizations, I believe -- I'm not actually sure if NewsGuard or GDI did, but 16 both could have -- some send early notices of their reports that were filed for our 17 awareness, and that's how we learn about it.
18 Q And with respect to when it is via press releases or public reporting on the 19 issue, who flags the reports for you? Is this something that you independently, you see 20 the press release or the report? Or is someone in the company, Alphabet, flagging the 21 issue for you?
22 A Again, with the understanding that I don't recall specifics, from a procedure
23 and standard process perspective, it could be either. There's not necessarily only one 24 team that is empowered to see things. However, the place to route the report will 25 always be the same, which is the team that are charged with evaluating whether there

1 are, indeed, violations of our rules or not.

2 Q Okay.

3 And I think this was the final question we had in the previous round with the

4 majority. When you reference the appropriate teams, can you say again what you mean

5 by that?

6 A Sure. In this case, I mean, typically, when the report alleges that we have

7 failed to take action on content that might violate our rules, we would route this to the

8 team whose responsibility it is to enforce these rules, depending on the service in

9 question. And they would make, then, their own determination as to whether, based on

10 what we can see in the reports, there were indeed rules that were violated and actions

11 we need to take.

12 Q And so, if the reports reference YouTube, are you referring to the YouTube 13 trust and safety team?

14 A That is correct.

15 Q And for other Google products, the other trust and safety teams?

16 A Whichever trust and safety team is in charge of that specific product.

17 Q With the understanding that, at least -- or prior to your current position,

18 which you said technically falls within the trust and safety team, but with the 19 understanding that your previous positions did not, to your knowledge, are the 20 accusations that GDI has levied against the company accurate?

21 A First of all, you mentioned my current position. I want to be clear about 22 that. In my current position, I do not take part in content moderation decisions either.

23 Still not the case.

24 But to your question specifically about GDI, it is my understanding that, at least

25 somewhere, like, a percentage, I'm not certain if it's a majority or a sizable minority of the content, but it was non-zero, on average, as I recall.

Q And just to clarify the answer --

Mr. Bopp. If I could just -- yeah, go ahead. Clarify.

BY [redacted]

Q By "non-zero," you're saying a non-zero percentage of GDI's accusations had merit to them?

A I appreciate the opportunity for clarification.

What I mean by this is, it is my understanding that the teams that review and decide whether, based on the examples we can see in third-party reports -- in this case, GDI's -- decide whether there were any violations of our rules, at least some were found to be violative.

Q And with respect to GDI and NewsGuard, do you recall whether the company notified GDI and NewsGuard regarding this non-zero percentage?

A To my recollection, we did not. But, again, I don't recall specifics, so I'm not entirely sure.

1 [2:03 p.m.]

2 BY [redacted]

3 Q Same exhibit that we were looking at just a few moments ago. If I could 4 call your attention to Bates number 47630. There are two bullet points that begin in 5 bold, one regarding depth of workstreams and then one regarding narratives.

6 And for the narratives paragraph, it says: That's trickier as we don't share
7 definitions so it's a little more difficult to align. I'd say let's focus on anti-science and 8 voter fraud and QAnon just because it's closer to our policies specific to mis- and disinfo.

9 First, just as a clarification point, in this context, do you understand mis- and 10 disinfo to refer to misinformation and disinformation?

11 A That would be my understanding.

12 Q You then say the entity -- you and GDI don't share definitions, and there's a 13 couple categories listed: anti-science, voter fraud, and QAnon. Do you recall if those 14 terms were first used by GDI or Google?

15 A My understanding is that those were GDI's terms.

16 Q And then to the extent you have a recollection of what agreement was 17 under consideration between GDI and the company, is it that GDI would provide 18 information with respect to these categories?

19 A That is not my understanding. My understanding -- and, again, with the 20 caveat that my recollection is somewhat spotty -- is that at the time we were trying to 21 understand whether it was the case that GDI was in a position to share information with 22 us about content that was violative of our rules.

23 And in that regard, the way I read my response in this email is we don't agree on 24 definitions. For instance, we do not have policies on QAnon or anti-science specifically
25 that I am familiar with. I'm not entirely sure, though. I would not be the expert.

1 I should say, though, that I read this as expecting that these might be places in 2 which they might be able to share information that was at least somewhat likely to
3 violate existing rules.
4 Q Is it your understanding that GDI internally was tracking content that GDI
5 was characterizing as anti-science?
6 A Again, with the understanding that my recollection is spotty, that is how I
7 read this email.
8 Q Are you familiar with the Aspen Cyber Group?
9 A Yes, to an extent.
10 Q And what are they?
11 A I believe they are a branch of the Aspen Institute that we discussed earlier.
12 Q Do you recall interactions with this group?
13 A With the caveat I'm not entirely sure whether it was part of the cyber group,
14 which is hence my hesitation, I do recall interactions with Aspen's Commission on 15 Information Disorder, which I believe I discussed earlier.
16 Q And outside of what we discussed earlier, do you recall any other
17 interactions?
18 A With the Aspen Commission on Information Disorder specifically or Aspen
19 Cyber Group?
20 Q With the Aspen Cyber Group.
21 A Not specifically. They were a stakeholder I would engage with as part of 22 my normal role, as I've mentioned. I know many across the world in civil society and 23 academia, but not in a specific way.
24 Q Are you familiar with the Partnership for Countering Influence Operations,
25 which appears to be convened by the Carnegie Endowment for International Peace?

1 A I am.

2 Q And what is that?

3 A I believe it is the arm of the Carnegie Endowment focused on, as far as I am

4 aware, two, but there might be more, types of projects. In my experience, I've engaged

5 with them on their work to foster a community of practice around countering information

6 operations, as well as their work to facilitate researcher access to that at writ large on

7 platforms.

8 Q And have you had interactions with this partnership as part of your role at 9 Google?

10 A I have.

11 Q And what's the nature of those interactions?

12 A One, the vast majority was what I've described with other stakeholders as

13 well. They were one stakeholder in this space. I would speak to many stakeholders

14 across civil society and academia around the world and engage on explaining our work

15 and taking feedback. That would be what I did with them as well. I also provided, I

16 believe, funding for their work on researcher access at least once.

17 Q Turning back to GDI, the exhibit we were looking at identified a few

18 categories that GDI internally had labeled. Do you recall when GDI would publicly

19 criticize the company for failing to take -- for allegedly failing to take action that GDI

20 believed was violative to Alphabet's various policies? Do you recall any subject matters

21 in particular or categories that GDI identified?

22 A I'm sorry, I do not, not in specifics. If you showed me a specific report, I

23 could try to comment.

24 Q Do you recall serving on a panel in Brussels, Belgium, in November of 2022,

25 hosted by the Institute for Strategic Dialogue?

1 A Not specifically. I don't have a recollection of that specific panel, but I am
2 willing to accept I might have.
3 Q Okay. There's a reference to that panel, but independent of that, do you
4 have a -- or a reference made during your talk on that panel, but independent of whether
5 you have a recollection of that panel, is -- has the company created a permanent task
6 force to handle issues related to mis- and disinformation in Europe?
7 A I'm not sure what that means specifically, what kind of permanent task
8 force.
9 Q Okay. Are you aware of any -- are you aware of either an internal company
10 task force or a task force of which Google personnel are serving on in Europe with respect
11 to mis- and disinformation?
12 A I'm aware of a code of practice on disinformation that is -- exists under 13 European law and which does have a permanent task force, which is not run by Google
14 but which Google is a part of as part of our participation with the code of practice, which 15 is a part of European law.
16 Q With respect to the code of disinformation task force, are you familiar with 17 any reporting pipelines that are being developed?
18 A Again, I'm not sure what the question specifically focuses on, but the code of 19 practice does come with obligations to do public reporting under the code, which we 20 have engaged in as well as other signatories.
21 Q What about with respect to the development of portals for information to 22 be shared from various entities to tech companies?
23 A You mean technical portals?
24 Q Yes.
25 A I'm not aware of any such technical portals being developed.

1 Q With respect to the code of disinformation task force, which team at 2 Alphabet is primarily responsible for interacting with that task force?
3 A Again, this is in the context of Europe, European law?
4 Q Yes.
5 A And within the setting, it has no ramification on the U.S. environment?
6 Q Well, that's what we're getting to, but --
7 A Well, that's my -- the remit of the code does not apply to the United States,
8 to be clear. But it is my understanding that the teams that have interacted with this
9 code involve the local sort of Brussels-based government affairs and public policy team
10 within Google, as well as myself in my prior role as lead on information quality.
11 Q And as you stated, this is European law. Are there steps that the company
12 has been asked to take or is required to take under European law that it would be unable 13 to take in the United States because of the First Amendment?
14 Mr. Donovan. To the extent that you have knowledge.
15 Mr. Bopp. Yeah. He's not a lawyer. You're asking a question about the First 16 Amendment.
17 I mean, do you have any knowledge of or have you done any analysis of whether 18 there might be a violation of the First Amendment with things that are going on in Europe
19 versus here?
20 [redacted] That's where I was going with this. I am not a First Amendment
21 expert or U.S. law expert. What I can say is that, in my experience, the code does not 22 entail any obligation to take action on any one specific piece of content or on any one
23 specific flag from any entity, whether it is the European Commission or otherwise.
24 BY [redacted]
25 Q In your engagement with the U.S. Federal Government, have there ever

1 been discussions regarding what steps the European Commission is taking or just Europe
2 writ large is taking with respect to combating misinformation and disinformation?
3 A Again, it's hard to recall specifics. It would not strike me as out of place for 4 a question to arise about developments we're seeing in other places around the world
5 from any entity we discuss with, but I don't recall any specific conversation about this 6 topic.
7 [[redacted] Exhibit No. 5.
8 Was marked for identification.]
9 BY [redacted]
10 Q Do you recall the -- or do you recall this news event, generally?
11 A Yes.
12 Q And to your recollection, did the discussions referenced in this news article,
13 did the discussions occur?
14 A To my recollection, there was an email thread including many employees
15 within the company where some people raised ideas. I would only call it a discussion so 16 far as it was an email thread.
17 Q And the -- to the extent you have a recollection, did the discussion include
18 suggestion or reference to changing the Google search algorithm?
19 A I do believe someone made that suggestion, yes.
20 Q And which team at Alphabet is responsible for managing the Google search 21 algorithm?
22 A As I've mentioned earlier, I think it would be the Google search ranking
23 team, which, to my recollection, was not on that thread.
24 Q To the extent you have any knowledge of this, can the Google search ranking
25 team prevent certain blue links from appearing in search results?

1 A I appreciate the question. I would say it's hard for me to speculate on what
2 they could do. What I can tell you is that, in my experience, that's not the way the team
3 works, certainly not what happened in this case. The team designs ranking systems that 4 work across the board at scale, and those organize a search results page without human
5 intervention on one specific link.
6 Q Okay. But there's human intervention on the initial creation of the 7 algorithm or whatever else?
8 A If your question is whether the ranking team designs the algorithm, then the 9 answer is yes.
10 Q What is the extent of your interactions with the Google search ranking team
11 as a member of Google?
12 A At the time that I was advising the Google search team, I would on occasions
13 engage with them.
14 Q On what sorts of issues would you sometimes engage with them?
15 A That's where it gets a little murky, my memory, I'm sorry, given that it was a
16 while ago. But I expect anything from helping answer questions about how our systems
17 work to when there was feedback, as I've mentioned earlier, about our work, sharing that 18 with them.
19 Q Do you recall any U.S. external stakeholders asking about how the Google
20 search algorithm works?
21 A Again, with the usual highlight that I don't recall specifics, if you will, that 22 strikes me as a very frequent line of questioning from many stakeholders in the U.S. and 23 beyond.
24 Q Do you recall any questions on how Google searches -- on how the Google
25 search algorithm works from U.S. Government officials?

1 A Not specifically, but as I've said, it's a common line of questioning.
2 Q Do you have any familiarity with how the Google search algorithm works?
3 A Insofar as -- I'm not an engineer myself, but at a high level, yes.
4 Q Okay. And what is your understanding?
5 A As I've mentioned, Google's ranking engineering team devises systems that
6 attempt to elevate information that is relevant and useful to users. To do so, they base
7 themselves on any number of criteria that they believe correlates with these goals.
8 They develop the system at scale and do not have any individual action on any individual
9 link beyond this initial design. The only exception I'm aware of are very specific use
10 cases of -- I believe the narrow use case of -- I'm sorry for mentioning this in this case, but 11 revenge pornography and spam, meaning at-scale attempts at deceiving our systems.
12 Q Referring back to the email chain that you recall and that's referenced in this 13 article, do you recall commenting on that email chain?
14 A I -- again, fuzzy recollection, but I do.
15 Q Yeah. And to the extent you have a recollection, what do you recall adding 16 to the email chain?
17 A My recollection was that I went in to note that anything we would undertake
18 with regard to such ranking should be done in an apolitical way.
19 Q Do you recall others within the company sharing a perspective that was 20 different than yours on this email chain?
21 A I recall others in the company that were not in the search ranking team, that 22 were on different teams, suggesting that we might support certain groups.
23 Q With the understanding that you answered that no action was taken with 24 respect to this email chain and discussion, is it your understanding that taking the action
25 proposed by others was a capability of the Google search ranking team?

A I am not certain.

Q During your time at Google, do you recall any other similar incidents where there was a discussion of elevating certain viewpoints using the Google search ranking algorithm?

A Not specifically, no, but I would say that would be uncommon.

Q It would be uncommon?

A Yeah.

Q When the Google search ranking team makes any sort of modifications to the algorithm, do you know which teams they work with to develop those modifications?

A When you say "work with," you mean?

Q Who else at Google -- let me -- I can reframe the question a different way.

Is it up exclusively to the Google search ranking team to determine what modifications, if any, to make to the algorithm?

A I am not entirely sure. Maybe they consult with other teams, but I would not be one of those.

Q Do you recall having at any time in your point at Google a point of contact at the Google search ranking team?

A Yes.

Q And who are some of those people?

A This would be -- let's see. I believe [redacted] would be one, and [redacted] would be another.

Q Any other examples that come to mind?

A I mean, again, I'm not sure of exact titles to your question earlier, which is why I'm not entirely sure of what position and title to ascribe, but at the executive level also [redacted].

1 Q To your knowledge, has the Google search algorithm ever been modified to
2 down-rank blue links that may contain misinformation?
3 A This is not the way search operates, so it's hard for me to answer the 4 question. To my understanding, the way most search ranking changes are undertaken is
5 Google has, Google Search specifically, has outlined a specific set of goals and purposes
6 that search ranking should aim to achieve. Those goals and purposes, as well as the 7 specifics on how people are trained to assess whether search is doing well or not against
8 these goals and purposes, are all publicly available in a document called the Search
9 Quality Rater Guidelines.
10 And when the search ranking team seeks to improve search ranking, it looks to 11 these guidelines and the raters to make changes, and see if they support the goals
12 outlined in these guidelines or represent a step back, in which case they would try to fix
13 it.
14 Q To your knowledge, has the search function ever been modified so as to 15 down-rank blue links from entities that are believed to disproportionately issue articles
16 and news that is misinformation?
17 Mr. Donovan. [redacted] to be clear, you're asking about [redacted] personal 18 knowledge, correct?
19 [redacted] That's correct.
20 Mr. Donovan. Okay.
21 [redacted]. Yeah. As I was going to say, because I'm not on the search ranking
22 team, I would not be consulted on individual ranking changes. I would not have 23 personal knowledge of any of this.
24 BY [redacted]
25 Q Well, you would agree that just because you weren't consulted doesn't

1 mean you may not have some awareness. You're at the company, are you?
2 A I appreciate that I might have, but in this case I am not certain of the 3 rationale or motive between individual ranking changes other than this procedure I've 4 described, which is aligning on the publicly stated Search Quality Rater Guidelines.
5 Q The converse of the previous questions, instead of down-ranking, are you
6 aware of the search function ever being modified so as to elevate authoritative
7 information or other blue links?
8 A To my awareness, again, yes, that would be in line with the Search Quality
9 Rater Guidelines, which seek to elevate authoritative information.
10 Q The Google search ranking team has engineers on it. Is that right?
11 A That is my understanding, yes.
12 Q Are there other types of personnel on that team?
13 A I am not entirely sure. I believe so. The rater quality guidelines I've 14 mentioned are also run by that team, so that would be another type of person, though it
15 may be engineers writing them. I'm not sure.
16 Q I'm sorry. So it was the rate quality guidelines?
17 A Rater quality guidelines. Sorry. Search Quality Rater Guidelines is I
18 believe the exact title of the document, which, again, is public and regularly updated.
19 Q So that's in reference to the document. Is there a team that goes by that 20 name as well?
21 A That might be the case. Again, I'm not entirely sure on the nomenclature,
22 if you will, but I do know that there's a team that writes these guidelines and then 23 ensures that raters understand them.
24 Q And to your understanding, the team that writes these guidelines meets
25 with the engineers, who then implement them for the algorithm?

1 A I would not know the specifics of how they work together.

2 Q With the understanding that you don't have exact familiarity with the team

3 that's writing the guidelines and what the name of that team is, is it your understanding

4 that those individuals fall within what you previously identified as the Google search

5 ranking team or is that a separate team you're referring to?

6 A My understanding is that they are part of the same organization. Again, I

7 want to caveat by saying I am not entirely sure of nomenclature or current company

8 structure.

9 Q You had mentioned some interactions where -- with the Google search

10 ranking team with respect to, I think, questions from external stakeholders, from a

11 number of different stakeholders. Do you recall any similar engagements with the 12 personnel responsible for writing these guidelines?

13 Mr. Bopp. Let me make sure I understand. Similar interactions. What's -- can 14 you give us an idea of what you're asking for or asking about?

15 [redacted] Sure. So we went through a few questions where [redacted] identified

16 that it's fairly common people have questions about the Google search algorithm. He

17 will either pass that information along or he might have to consult with the Google search

18 ranking team. And then we've also since identified individuals who are responsible for 19 writing the guidelines.

20 BY [redacted]

21 Q Do you recall -- when I say similar interactions, I'm referring to either passing

22 information along or consulting with them in order to provide information back -- with 23 any of the individuals you identified as responsible for writing the guidelines?

24 A Again, not specifically, but it would have been normal course of operation

25 for my work to engage with any internal team that has relevant information to a question

1 I receive and, of course, confirm whether we are clear and authorized to share a response
2 on the topic.
3 Q To the extent you have any knowledge -- actually, let me strike that.
4 To the extent you have any recollection, do you recall discussions with reference
5 to the email chain that's referenced in this exhibit, do you recall any discussions that 6 were -- that came out of this email chain, discussions that were internal in the company?
7 A And when you say coming out, you mean?
8 Q Well, so there were ideas that were at least floated on the email chain.
9 And do you recall -- and then the email chain at some point becomes public, because it
10 was reported on in the news. Do you recall having discussions within the company as a 11 byproduct of what unfolded?
12 Mr. Bopp. You're asking whether [redacted] was party to any such discussions?
13 [redacted] That's right.
14 [redacted]. To my recollection, as I've mentioned, I weighed in on that thread
15 along the line I discussed. If there were separate discussions, I was not a part of them,
16 but the output was clearly that no such action would take place. And I believe, if I recall
17 correctly, this came pretty fast, probably the same day. And that was the end of the 18 conversation.
19 BY [redacted]
20 Q Do you recall anyone at the company that was unhappy with that decision?
21 A That is hard for me to project on. As I've mentioned, this was all over 22 email, so it's hard for me to know exactly who reacted what way.
23 [redacted] Can we go off the record, please?
24 [Recess.]
25 [redacted] We can go back on the record. It's 2:34.

1 BY [redacted]

2 Q Before we get back to this article, you just answered a whole number of 3 questions about the Google search ratings. To be abundantly clear, you're not on any 4 teams that have anything to do with search rating, correct?

5 A Thank you for the question. That is correct. I have -- I am not and have 6 not been in a team which was involved in rating search results.

7 Q Okay. So everything you just said is based on your best understanding in 8 your current position and your past positions, but you don't have any personal knowledge
9 of how search ratings work?

10 A I have no firsthand involvement in search ratings.

11 Q Thank you.

12 In the prior hour, you answered a number of questions about the Global 13 Disinformation Index. Do you recall those questions?

14 A I recall answering a question about the GDI.

15 Q And I think there were some comments made about accusations that the 16 GDI made against Google. Do you recall that?

17 A I recall comments about the GDI criticizing Google.

18 Q To the best of your knowledge, did Google ever alter any of its policies
19 because of criticism it received from GDI?

20 A To the best of my knowledge and recollection, no.

21 Q Okay. Turning to this article that was introduced as, I think it was 6 -- 5.
22 The decision about the travel ban from Muslim majority countries was -- took place in 23 early 2017, correct?

24 A With the understanding that timing is a little fuzzy on my part, I believe that 25 was the case.

1 Q In 2017, what was your position in the company?

2 A Again, as I've mentioned, I'm not entirely sure of dates. I might already

3 have been supporting the Search organization or I might not. I'm not entirely sure. It

4 was a transition, based on the time.

5 Q Okay. So to the -- so this article refers to you as being an individual who

6 held a management-level position. To the best of your recollection, in January-February

7 2017, did anyone report up to you?

8 A No, no one did.

9 Q Okay. You discussed the email chain. The article suggests that there

10 were conversations. You said, to the best of your recollection, it was a single email

11 chain, correct?

12 A To the best of my recollection, it was.

13 Q Do you remember the subject of the chain?

14 A I do not.

15 Q Okay. Do you remember how many people were on the chain?

16 A I do not.

17 Q Do you think it was more than five?

18 A I -- sorry. I do not want to speculate.

19 Q Okay. And I think there was a comment, you said that there -- there was a 20 comment made that there were these ideas, plural, floated.

21 Do you recall if the subject of the article, the suggestion that the search algorithm

22 might somehow be altered, was that raised by multiple individuals on the chain or just 23 one individual?

24 A Again, this is a long time ago. I am not entirely sure. I believe it was one

25 individual, but I'm not fully recollecting that day and that thread.

Q Okay. And just to be abundantly clear, you said that once the -- the chain took place over a short period of time. Is that your best recollection?

A That is my recollection.

Q And that you don't recall -- to your knowledge anyway, there were no further conversations after that chain was concluded?

A I am, in fact, quite confident, you know -- again, recollection fuzzy, but quite confident that once it was clear that no action will be taken along those lines, that was the end of the conversation.

Q Okay. Thank you.

[redacted] Okay. Thank you. We can go off the record.

[Whereupon, at 2:39 p.m., the interview was adjourned.]

2 [redacted] Can we go on the record, please?

3 This is a transcribed interview of [redacted]. Chairman Jordan has requested

4 this interview as part of the committee's investigation of how and the extent to which the

5 executive branch has coerced and colluded with companies and other intermediaries to

6 censor speech.

7 Would the witness please state your name for the record?

8 [redacted] [redacted].

9 [redacted] On behalf of the committee, I want to thank you for appearing here

10 today to answer our questions. The chairman also appreciates your willingness to

11 appear voluntarily.

12 My name is [redacted] and I'm with Chairman Jordan's staff. I'll now have

13 everyone else from the committee who is here in the room introduce themselves as well.

14 [redacted] [redacted] Chairman Jordan's staff.

15 [redacted] [redacted] Chairman Jordan's staff.

16 [redacted] [redacted] Chairman Jordan's staff.

17 [redacted] [redacted] with Ranking Member Nadler.

18 [redacted] [redacted] Ranking Member Nadler.

19 [redacted] [redacted] Ranking Member Nadler.

20 [redacted] I'd like to now go over the ground rules and guidelines that we will

21 follow during today's interview.

22 Our questioning proceed in rounds. The majority will ask questions first for 1

23 hour, and then the minority will have an opportunity to ask questions for an equal period

24 of time if they choose.

25 We will alternate back and forth until there are no more questions and the

1 interview is over.

2 Typically, we take a short break at the end of each hour, but if you would like to

3 take a break apart from that, please just let us know.

4 As you can see, there's an official court reporter taking down everything we say to

5 make a written record, so we ask that you give verbal responses to all questions.

6 Do you understand?

7 [redacted] I do understand.

8 [redacted] So the court reporter can take down a clear record, we will do our best

9 to limit the number of people directing questions at you during any given hour to just

10 those people on the staff whose turn it is.

11 Please try and speak clearly so the court reporter can understand and so the folks

12 down at the end of the table can hear you. It is important that we don't talk over one

13 another or interrupt each other if we can help it. And that goes for everybody present

14 at today's interview.

15 We encourage witnesses who appear before the committee to freely consult with

16 counsel if they so choose. It is my understanding that you are appearing today with

17 counsel. Is that correct?

18 [redacted] That's correct.

19 [redacted] Could counsel please state your name for the record?

20 Mr. Brown. Reg Brown.

21 Ms. Bedgood. Isel Bedgood.

22 [redacted] Thank you.

23 We want you to answer our questions in the most complete and truthful manner

24 as possible, so we will take our time. If you have any questions or if you do not

25 understand one of our questions, please let us know.

1 Our questions will cover a wide range of topics, so if you need clarification at any
2 point, just say so.
3 If you honestly don't know the answer to a question or do not remember, it is best
4 not to guess. Please give us your best recollection, and it is okay to tell you us if you
5 learned information from someone else. Just indicate how you came to know the
6 information.
7 If there are things you don't know or can't remember, just say so, and please
8 inform us who, to the best of your knowledge, might be able to provide a more complete
9 answer to the question.
10 You should also understand that although this interview is not under oath, that by
11 law you are required to answer questions from Congress truthfully.
12 Do you understand that?
13 [redacted] I do understand.
14 [redacted] This also applies to questions posed by congressional staff in an
15 interview.
16 Do you understand this?
17 [redacted] I do understand.
18 [redacted] Witnesses that --
19 Mr. Brown. Can we pause for a second, and can we go off the record?
20 [Discussion off the record.]
21 [redacted] We can go back on, please.
22 Witnesses that knowingly provide false testimony could be subject to criminal
23 prosecution for perjury or for making false statements under 18 U.S.C., Section 1001.
24 Do you understand this?
25 [redacted] I do understand.

1 [redacted] Is there any reason you are unable to provide truthful answers to
2 today's questions?
3 [redacted] There is not.
4 [redacted] Finally, I'd like to make a note that the content of what we discuss
5 here today is confidential. We ask that you not speak about what we discuss in this
6 interview to any outside individuals to preserve the integrity of our investigation.
7 For the same reason, the marked exhibits that we use today will remain with the
8 court reporter so that they can go in the official transcript, and any copies of those
9 exhibits will be returned to us when we wrap up.
10 That is the end of my preamble. Is there anything that my colleagues from the 11 minority would like to add?
12 [redacted] Not at this time. Thank you.
13 [redacted] The clock reads 10:03. We will start the first hour of questioning.
14 [redacted] Can you tell us your current job title and where you work right
15 now?
16 [redacted] I'm the vice president of public policy at Bumble Inc.
17 [redacted] And your educational background, beginning with college?
18 [redacted] I have a bachelor's degree and -- 19 [redacted] [redacted], can I ask you to speak up a little bit? I'm having 20 trouble hearing you.
21 [redacted] I have a bachelor's degree and a master's degree.
22 EXAMINATION
23 BY [redacted]
24 Q Where are those degrees from and what are they in?
25 A My bachelor's degree is from the University of Texas. It's in

1 communications technology and public relations. And I have a master's from GW in 2 government affairs and public policy.
3 Q And can you tell us your employment history just after college? Nothing
4 before that.
5 A I worked in the military after college for some time, many years, and then 6 transitioned to different roles past that.
7 Q Can you specify what those roles were?
8 A Yes. I served many years in the military, so I have served years overseas,
9 abroad. I've served Stateside, various States. I've served some time as a fellow, and 10 I've served in the administrative branch as well before I moved over to private sector.
11 Q Okay. And did you work in the U.S. Senate?
12 A I did.
13 Q Can you tell us who you worked for and what those positions were?
14 A I was a military fellow with the United States Army. When I was in the 15 Senate, I worked in an office of Senator Barbara Boxer at the time, but I also worked 16 generally for a wide number of members in the Senate liaison division in the Senate.
17 Q And then after that, what did you do?
18 A I worked in the Pentagon after that.
19 Q And then after that?
20 A After the Pentagon, I worked in the White House.
21 Q What was your role there?
22 A I was an adviser on technology.
23 Q And you worked at Meta after that? Is that right?
24 A That's correct. I worked at Facebook after my time in the White House.
25 Q Okay. It was still just Facebook then, is that true?

1 A That's correct.

2 Q Okay. And what team did you work on?

3 A I worked on a policy team, managing liaison to government.

4 Q Which policy team, what was the name?

5 A The executive branch.

6 Q Okay. And can you tell us what your role was at Facebook, what you did

7 specifically?

8 A My role was to be a liaison. So if there were questions that came in, either

9 way, or questions were going out. And also just to keep track of news and current 10 events, issues of interest to government or technology sector.

11 Q Okay. And when you say you worked as a liaison, you were typically

12 communicating between the executive branch -- or relaying communications between 13 the executive branch and people at Facebook? Is that correct?

14 A That would be one of the duties.

15 Q Okay. And were there any particular parts of the executive branch you

16 worked with more than others?

17 A I tended to work with the Veterans Affairs quite a bit, probably more than 18 others.

19 Q Okay. And how large was your team approximately?

20 A Our team for the majority of the time was just a couple, couple of us.

21 Q And who did you report to?

22 A I reported to [redacted].

23 Q And who reported to you?

24 A I didn't have reports.

25 Q Okay. Did you work with [redacted]?

1 A I did.

2 Q What was she in relation to you? Was she -- how would you describe her

3 role in relation to yours?

4 A She was on a different team that did government engagement, more on the 5 product side.

6 Q Okay. What about [redacted]?

7 A [redacted] worked with [redacted] on that same work.

8 Q Okay. And did you work with [redacted]?

9 A I did work with [redacted] at some point while I was at Facebook.

10 Q What did you work with him on?

11 A He was on the -- like the trust and safety team.

12 Q So what did you work with him on?

13 A We just would be sometimes in the same meetings or whatnot, but I don't

14 remember anything specific that he and I specifically, like, worked on together.

15 Q Okay. How about [redacted], did he work with her?

16 A I did work with [redacted].

17 Q And what did he work with her on?

18 A With [redacted] it was usually, like, national security issues, terrorism, threats.

19 Q Can you elaborate a little bit more on that?

20 A For example, their team, one of their responsibilities is the trust and safety

21 of the platform. So if there were items that were in the news or reported that were

22 possibly hurting users, their team would probably be involved, and then to some extent if

23 there were questions either way, sometimes that team would be involved.

24 Q Okay. Does Meta have -- I guess Facebook when you were there -- did

25 Facebook have content moderation policies?

1 A They do.

2 Q Did you play any role in creating the policies?

3 A I did not.

4 Q Who does?

5 A I am not sure who all makes those rules for content policy. It just wasn't

6 really my purview of who all the people are involved in making those rules.

7 Q Did you ever work with anybody who created those rules?

8 A I believe when I -- you mentioned [redacted] or [redacted]. They're part of 9 those discussions that do that.

10 Q Okay. Do you know if Meta consulted or worked with outside companies

11 or organizations on content moderation policies?

12 A I don't have insight into that.

13 Q Okay. Did your work involve enforcing content moderation policies?

14 A It did not.

15 Q Did you work with people who enforced content moderation policies?

16 A I believe so. I worked with the trust and safety team, and they're part of 17 those discussions.

18 Q So the trust and safety team both created and enforced them, but it was

19 different people on --

20 A I can't -- yeah, I can't say.

21 Q Okay. Thank you.

22 A My answer was I wasn't sure.

23 Q Okay. So when you worked with government employees, what was the 24 nature and purpose of that?

25 A Primary role was to be a point of contact if there should be a need to pass

1 information in the sense of they wanted to speak to someone or they had a question
2 about the platform or how to use it or policies.
3 So it was to just position yourself as a point of contact so they knew who to reach
4 out to if they needed to reach the company.
5 Q Okay. And were there specific people in government that you
6 communicated with on a regular basis?
7 A I was at the company sometime, so I don't remember the names, and 8 administrations change --
9 Q Let's say after, like, from 2020 and on.
10 A It still was quite a long time ago. I don't remember all the names that I 11 might've come across during that time.
12 Q Which names do you remember?
13 A I just -- I'm not sure. It's been a long time.
14 Q You don't remember anyone?
15 A Yeah. I can't recall a name just off the top of my head.
16 Q Okay. What about Carol Crawford from CDC?
17 A I do remember Carol from CDC.
18 Q Okay. Did you ever discuss misinformation about COVID or COVID vaccines
19 with the White House?
20 A Yeah, there were discussions about COVID with the administration.
21 Q And who did you have those discussions with at the White House?
22 A Again, I don't remember fully names, but I do remember talking about 23 COVID with the CDC, Carol Crawford.
24 Q How about at the White House? Rob Flaherty?
25 A I do remember that name.

1 Q Clarke Humphrey?

2 A I do remember that name.

3 Q How about Andy Slavitt?

4 A I remember the name. Again, I don't -- I can't remember or recall if I was 5 the one who had contact. But I do remember those names.

6 Q How often did you have such contact?

7 A With?

8 Q With the White House.

9 A On?

10 Q On COVID or COVID vaccines, approximately. I understand --

11 A Yeah, I don't know.

12 Q Okay.

13 [[redacted] Exhibit No. 1

14 Was marked for identification.]

15 BY [redacted]

16 Q This is exhibit 1. If you can take a look and let me know when you've had a 17 chance to read it.

18 All set?

19 So starting with the last email -- the first email chronologically, which is the last

20 email, the one you sent on February 8th -- this starts on 5549 -- February 8th, 2021, at 21 1:18.

22 Do you recognize these exchanges or this email?

23 A I recognize the content, not this particular email per se, but I recognize these

24 discussions.

25 Q Do you recall what preceded this, why you were reporting Facebook's policy

1 changes or -- yeah, policy changes, expansion of efforts to remove false claims about
2 COVID, to the White House?
3 A I mean, I don't remember much of the details, but I just am recognizing there
4 was an announcement made of changes.
5 Q Do you know why those changes were made?
6 A I don't.
7 Q You signed it on behalf of the Facebook team. Do you recall who provided
8 input in writing this email?
9 A I know the information was provided to me, but I can't speak to all of the 10 people who might have pulled the information together.
11 Q So you didn't actually write it, it was just given to you and -- okay.
12 How did -- so on 5549 there's a reference to, at the bottom, under "Combating
13 Vaccine Misinformation," "Since December, we've removed false claims about COVID-19
14 vaccines that have been debunked by public health experts."
15 How did Facebook decide what were false claims that had been debunked by 16 public health experts?
17 A I don't know how they made those decisions.
18 Q Okay.
19 BY [redacted]
20 Q Do you recall any names of who at the company you consulted with prior to 21 sending this email?
22 A Well, the names on the CC usually would've been my contacts that provide 23 the information -- or providing me this is what we're sending.
24 Q And I think we covered [redacted] and [redacted]. Who's [redacted]?
25 A [redacted] is a team member who I believe worked on another Facebook team but

1 with the same group.

2 Q And which Facebook team?

3 A Ads, I believe.

4 Q I'm sorry?

5 A Ads.

6 Q Ads?

7 A Advertisements, I believe.

8 Q Okay. Is there anyone from the trust and safety team included on this

9 email?

10 A It doesn't appear so.

11 Q Do you recall if you had communications with the trust and safety team prior 12 to sending this email?

13 A I don't. And like I said, I can't vouch for all the information in the note 14 that's sent over.

15 Q Would it be standard protocol to consult with the trust and safety team prior 16 to sending a note like this?

17 A I can't say that that there's a protocol that that has to happen before the 18 note is sent.

19 Q Following up on my colleague's question about how claims are debunked

20 and the policies that Facebook has, was your answer that you don't recall, sitting here

21 today, how it was handled, or was this outside the scope of your responsibilities at the 22 time this email was sent?

23 A Both. I wouldn't know how they came to those decisions, but it also wasn't 24 part of my job.

25 Q And who at the company would you consult with on an issue like this?

1 A I would usually pass it to the people that you see cc'd here on the note,
2 including my manager, and then they would have further-on conversations to advise me
3 on how to respond.
4 Q You had said that [redacted] was who you reported to. Is that correct?
5 And there were only a couple of you on your team. Who were the other people on your
6 team?
7 A For a long time, [redacted] and I were the only two people on our team. Many 8 years.
9 Q And did you add people after a certain point?
10 A There were people added -- oh, you know, I was there for several years.
11 There were people who came and went. But the majority of those early years was [redacted]
12 and I.
13 BY [redacted]
14 Q So did you play any role in writing this email, or do they just give you an 15 email -- someone gives you an email and you send it?
16 A The questions here are ones that are outside of my job scope, so I wouldn't 17 be the person drafting or making these decisions. My job is to be the liaison. So 18 they're asking about things that are beyond my job description.
19 Q Would you, like, edit it or refine it? Or you literally just passed along what 20 someone else said?
21 A I can't speak to all communications, but this is not within my job scope, so I
22 wouldn't be in a position to be editing.
23 Q Okay. On 5547 there are a number -- Rob Flaherty writes a number of 24 emails about -- asking some questions. And then --
25 Mr. Brown. I'm sorry. There's no email from Rob Flaherty on 5547.

1 [redacted] No, I know. I meant, like, in between, he wrote an email on 5548,
2 and then there's a response. Sorry. So he only wrote one -- I apologize for the 3 misstatement -- he wrote one response, and then you responded to him on 5547 to 48.
4 And actually also there's another email.
5 You offered to have a meeting or a discussion about his questions. Did that 6 meeting take place?
7 A I don't remember if the meeting took place.
8 Q Okay. No, go ahead. Sorry.
9 Just actually, just to clarify for the record, it looks as though Rob Flaherty wrote
10 two emails in a row asking questions, and his questions were about the framework for 11 removing debunked claims, whether there's a strike policy like YouTube, does the severity
12 of the claims matter. He wants to know how these misinformation policies are being 13 implemented. And then he asks a question about civic and health-related groups and 14 reforms and stuff like that, in any event.
15 So on 5547, on February 11th, 2021, at 2:17 a.m., you responded and offered to 16 have Mr. Flaherty meet with the -- or speak to the misinformation team reps. Who are 17 the misinformation team reps?
18 A I know my contacts, which would be [redacted]'s team, but I don't know
19 exactly who those are, which is why there's a kind of generic nomenclature there, as I'm 20 not sure who would be the people answering these. But I -- my job is to offer a meeting
21 to help answer the questions.
22 Q And you don't remember if that meeting took place?
23 A I don't.
24 Q Did anyone keep track of such things? So would there be a record
25 somewhere of whether such a meeting took place?

A I don't think so.

Q Okay. So Facebook would have no internal memo of such a meeting?

A I can't vouch for it.

Q Okay.

A Yeah, I can't vouch for it. I mean, there's many meetings that occur, so I'm not sure.

Mr. Brown. [redacted] we're happy to follow up with you if you would like to know whether this actually happened or not.

[redacted] Sure.

Mr. Brown. Okay.

[redacted] We would like to know, yes.

BY [redacted]

Q You also referred in the same email, they also have a more detailed misinformation analysis prepared based on the discussion/questions from the previous meetings during the transition time period.

What was this misinformation analysis?

A I don't specifically know what the analysis was, but I was told that there was additional information and to relay that.

Q Who had told you that?

A My boss, [redacted].

Q [redacted]. Okay.

[redacted] Did you partake in any of the previous meetings during the transition that you reference in your email?

[redacted] You know, I don't recall if I was on transition -- on the transition work. I don't recall. I don't want to misspeak, but I was there for many years.

1 [redacted] Are we done with this one?

2 [redacted] Yeah.

3 [redacted] I'm going to be asking about it. I don't know if you want to hang

4 on to that for a little bit.

5 [redacted] If you want to keep a set --

6 Mr. Brown. I suggested Manila folders, quite some time.

7 [[redacted] Exhibit No. 2

8 Was marked for identification.]

9 BY [redacted]

10 Q This is exhibit 2.

11 Starting with the email on 4840 to 41 that you sent on February 18th, 2021, to a

12 number of people at the White House, with [redacted], [redacted], and [redacted]

13 cc'd, on 4841 -- well, first of all, what prompted this exchange? Why did you send this

14 email?

15 A I don't remember specifically why this was sent. I mean, I see the context

16 in here. Looks like there's an idea.

17 Q Did [redacted] or someone else at Facebook typically tell you to report policy

18 changes to the White House?

19 A I usually would send a note if asked to send a note on a particular topic.

20 Q Okay. Had the White House asked you for such updates?

21 A I don't recall.

22 Q You mention on the first line of 4841, "I also want to circle back on the 23 misinfo meeting we are looking forward to having today. It would include some new 24 insights we have and a deeper discussion of what more we can do. We think best to

25 have the proper reps to include yourself, HHS, and CDC." And you also refer to "Josh at

1 HHS."

2 Who is Josh at HHS?

3 A I don't remember his role, but he was in a leadership role at a division at 4 CDC.

5 Q Do you know what his last name is? Josh Peck?

6 A I want to guess, but I don't want to be wrong.

7 Q Okay. Did this meeting take place?

8 Mr. Brown. I'm sorry. Which meeting?

9 [redacted] The one, "circle back on the misinfo meeting we are looking

10 forward to having" with CDC and HHS, as well as the White House apparently.

11 [redacted] I'm not sure.

12 [redacted] Would there be any record of whether that occurred?

13 [redacted] I'm not sure.

14 Mr. Brown. We're happy to take the email back and try to answer the question 15 for you.

16 [redacted] Sure.

17 Mr. Brown. If that would be helpful.

18 [redacted] That would be great.

19 BY [redacted]

20 Q On 4839, at the top of the page -- sorry -- 4840 at the top of the page,

21 Rob Flaherty wrote -- responded and said, "We should chat about this and what other 22 initiatives you guys are cooking on, as well as a convo on mis and dis."

23 Did that conversation take place?

24 A Which conversation?

25 Q About mis and dis.

1 A I'm not sure.

2 Q Presumably misinformation and disinformation.

3 A I'm not sure.

4 Q Okay. Then, on 4838, a couple of days later -- or maybe it's the same

5 day -- Flaherty writes that, "In the interest of making sure everyone's prepared, one of

6 the questions I'll have around this initiative is around algorithmic

7 production" -- sorry -- "promotion." I keep doing that.

8 Mr. Brown. I'm sorry. Where is this?

9 [redacted] On 4838, the -- not [redacted]' email at the very top but the next

10 one, Rob Flaherty at 8:35 p.m. on February 21st, "In the interest of making sure 11 everyone's prepared --"

12 BY [redacted]

13 Q Do you know what "algorithmic promotion" means?

14 A I understand promotion in the general sense, what surfaced, what might

15 have a priority, but I don't have any deep understanding of what this term means.

16 Q Do you know if Facebook had discussions about algorithmic promotion

17 following this email?

18 A I'm not sure.

19 Q Flaherty then asked, "What plans are in the works (if any) to replicate the 20 strategy you deployed around lockdowns -- the 'stay at home' stickers/slash promoted

21 Instagram story."

22 Were there any plans like that? I think he means around vaccines.

23 A Can you repeat the question?

24 Q Were there any plans in the works -- that Flaherty asked -- to replicate the

25 strategy -- I think he means in the context of vaccines -- that you deployed around

1 lockdowns?

2 A Yeah. I'm not actually quite sure on what's being discussed in detail or 3 what plans they're specifically talking about.

4 Q Who would know that?

5 A I mean, at this point, I couldn't point to someone. I just know I don't have 6 that insight of what the plans were around that.

7 Q So given that he asked this, is this something you would've conveyed the 8 question to someone else?

9 A Right. So you see some of these are from [redacted], and they're more

10 on the product side. I'm not necessarily the person having the conversation. So it's

11 just once we start switching out of more the liaison space and into the product, I just

12 don't have as much knowledge about some of the terms or some of the items that are 13 mentioned in there.

14 Q Okay. I see. So once it got more into the product side, you sort of 15 switched over, you had [redacted] take over the communications? Is that correct?

16 A Yeah, that's what I'm seeing here. And traditionally I'm not on the product

17 side, so it's not something that I would be -- communicate in depth about.

18 Q Okay. Got you.

19 [redacted] Do you recall attending any meetings in February/March of 2021 that 20 were attended by Rob Flaherty?

21 [redacted] I don't know timelines. I think I do remember being in a meeting

22 where they might've been present. I can't remember dates, times.

23 Mr. Brown. I'm sorry. When you say being at a meeting, do you mean in 24 person? Do you mean virtual?

25 [redacted] At this time I think it's most likely it was a virtual.

1 Mr. Brown. It's 2021. I don't know.

2 BY [redacted]

3 Q But either way, attending a meeting, whether the meeting is virtual or in 4 person?

5 A I mean, there's phone calls, there's meetings. Again, we weren't in the 6 office, but I remember exchanges with some individuals here in the sense of that there

7 were discussions, but I can't remember intro calls, date, times at this time. I just don't

8 remember.

9 Q And would it be the company's standard protocol if prior to a meeting with

10 Rob Flaherty or someone else in the White House, would there be a pre-meeting where

11 Facebook internally would huddle up to discuss what would be discussed on the call with

12 the White House?

13 A I don't think I'd be -- I can't be in a position to say what happens before

14 every meeting because it's fairly fluid, so I'm not in a position to say what happens before

15 every meeting.

16 Q Do you recall that happening before any meeting with the White House?

17 A I would talk to my boss usually before a meeting with the White House,

18 [redacted].

19 BY [redacted]

20 Q So you don't recall any specific meetings where Rob Flaherty was -- that 21 Rob Flaherty attended?

22 A I can't recall a specific meeting, but I do believe I remember there was a

23 meeting with Rob on that.

24 Q What was the meeting about?

25 A I believe it was that the topic would've been COVID or it was a meet-and-greet, but I just really can't remember what the topic of it was.

Q Was Andy Slavitt there?

A I don't know.

Q Do you know who else from Facebook was there?

Mr. Brown. I'm sorry. Which question? Slavitt or --

BY [redacted]

Q At the meeting with Flaherty that she can't remember exactly.

A Yeah, I don't remember at -- I forgot the name already you said.

Q Andy Slavitt.

A I don't know if Andy Slavitt was in the meeting.

Q Going back to Flaherty, do you -- was anybody from Facebook -- was anyone else from Facebook there, or who else from Facebook was there?

A I can't say per se, but likely my boss. Me and my boss often did meetings together. But I can't remember because I don't remember specifically what meetings that occurred or who was exactly in that.

Q Do you remember any contentious meetings with Rob Flaherty?

A I don't remember any.

[[redacted] Exhibit No. 3

Was marked for identification.]

[redacted] This is exhibit 3.

[redacted] I'll take these back.

Mr. Brown. Do you need these?

[redacted] That one I'll need.

Mr. Brown. Okay.

Need the gift policy for the House of Representatives.

1 [redacted] This, if you can just take a look at the first email from Becca Siegel.
2 You don't need to read the whole thing.
3 Sorry, the first one, like, chronologically, so not -- not -- sorry. The first one -- the 4 one from --
5 Mr. Brown. What page are you on?
6 [redacted] 7498. So just on the very first page.
7 Mr. Brown. Yeah, I understand. There's a series that she's on --
8 [redacted] Yeah.
9 Mr. Brown. -- that relate to us that might have context, so I wanted to give her a
10 second to read it.
11 [redacted] Sure. Yeah, yeah, of course.
12 BY [redacted]
13 Q So that email from Becca Siegel on 7498 to you and some people at HHS and 14 [redacted] and other people, it looks like, I'm not sure actually, maybe Facebook or 15 FDA.
16 Who is Becca Siegel at the White House?
17 A I don't remember her role. I don't remember her title or her role.
18 Q Have you communicated with her before?
19 A I see that I have communicated with her. I don't know that I have 20 communicated with her before this context.
21 Q Okay.
22 A But I don't remember what her specific title was.
23 Q Okay.
24 A But I know that she was working on COVID-related things, but it doesn't 25 mean that that's her full title.

1 Q Okay. So she asks if Facebook can target by ZIP Code for -- it's a little
2 unclear exactly what she's asking actually -- vaccination rate. "I think this would be an
3 improvement over SVI alone."
4 Do you know what SVI is?
5 A Only because it's identified in the text of the email on 499, Social 6 Vulnerability Index.
7 Q Okay. And did Facebook agree to do this?
8 A I don't know if they agreed to do that. And then, like I said, the 9 terminology -- by ZIP Code, by not -- it's just more detail than I had privy into.
10 Q How would Facebook have known the vaccination rates of various 11 neighborhoods?
12 Mr. Brown. [redacted] with respect, I think we might be misreading this. They are 13 offering to share ZIP Codes with Facebook, not the other way around --
14 [redacted] Yeah.
15 Mr. Brown. -- to help promote vaccine awareness in areas where there are lower
16 vaccination coverage rates predicted based on CDC data. That's described on 7499. So 17 it's them asking us, not the other way around.
18 [redacted] Right. Okay.
19 BY [redacted]
20 Q So they want you to target by ZIP Code for the vaccination campaign? Is 21 that -- or they want Facebook to? Is that correct?
22 And you don't know if Facebook did that?
23 A I don't.
24 Q Do you know who you would've taken this request to?
25 A Yes. I would've shared that with my manager at the time, or I would've

1 shared it with [redacted], the general people you see on the email thread from Facebook.

2 Q And you wouldn't have been part of any decisionmaking process about what

3 was done with this?

4 A No.

5 Q Okay.

6 [[redacted] Exhibit No. 4

7 Was marked for identification.]

8 BY [redacted]

9 Q This is exhibit 4.

10 So on 7478, Eric Waldo from HHS writes to you, Nick Clegg at Facebook, and

11 [redacted] at Facebook, and offers to connect on Friday or suggests that you will connect

12 on Friday. Do you know if you did connect on Friday?

13 A I'm not sure. I'm not sure directly if we did make that connection. I see it

14 referenced here that that was the plan, but I'm not sure if we followed through.

15 Q You don't have any recollection of whether that meeting took place?

16 A I don't remember if it specifically did, especially given there's an overlap

17 here. As you see, I wasn't on the original communication.

18 Q Yeah, I see you weren't on the original communication.

19 Do you know if this was discussed internally at Meta, the --

20 A A meeting request?

21 Q Yeah. Well, the meeting request and then the -- sorry, this is about the

22 Surgeon General's advisory, the release of his advisory tomorrow about health

23 misinformation. Do you know if that was discussed internally at Meta?

24 A I'm sure it was because of the email to the leads here.

25 Q Did you participate in any discussions?

1 A I did not.

2 Q Do you know who would've participated in such a discussion?

3 A I assume my boss would have. I don't know who would've been with him.

4 Q Did Facebook discuss -- so on the same page, 7470 (sic), but further up, Eric

5 Waldo writes to you and some other people on July 14th, 2021, and says, "I don't think

6 there will be too many surprises. On the technology side, at a high level, the Advisory

7 notes that technology companies and social media organizations have a role to play in

8 product and policy design to help slow the spread of health misinformation. Again, I

9 know you have all been working hard on thinking deeply about this issue."

10 Was Eric Waldo's email discussed internally at Facebook?

11 A Yes, I'm sure it was.

12 Q Did you participate in that discussion?

13 A I wasn't on the discussion.

14 Q And do you know who would've?

15 A [redacted], at minimum.

16 Q Do you know who else might've been part of that discussion? Would 17 [redacted] and [redacted] have?

18 A I would only be assuming, because I wasn't in the meeting, who was in the

19 meeting.

20 Mr. Brown. And we don't do that.

21 BY [redacted]

22 Q On the following page -- well, 7477 -- you wrote an email to Eric Waldo on

23 July 15th, 2021. "Hi, Eric. Good evening and quick question for you. We heard

24 during the press conference today that Jen listed a focus on the following items and that

25 we had received these requests already."

1 Is that Jen Psaki?

2 A I believe it is. Spokesperson.

3 Q Okay. And then, "Was this part of what you were going to speak to

4 Facebook about at the upcoming meeting? Our team not sure they are tracking a

5 specific list of requests." And then the list of the requests.

6 Do you recall discussing those requests with people at Facebook?

7 A I remember discussing what we heard from Jen with my manager, which is 8 outlined here in the email.

9 Q And by your manager, you mean [redacted]?

10 A I do.

11 Q And what was the discussion about? What was the sum and substance of 12 the discussion?

13 A That we observed what was said from the White House, there were things

14 that they said they were tracking. As noted in the note, we weren't aware that they

15 were looking for this information. Shared that with [redacted].

16 Q Was [redacted] or you or other people at Facebook, were you concerned about 17 this tracking?

18 A What does "concerned" mean?

19 Q Well, were you concerned that the administration was frustrated with 20 Facebook or didn't think Facebook was doing enough?

21 A I think there was a general, of course, people felt disappointed with that.

22 Anytime that you feel someone feels that you could be doing more. And that was a

23 discussion. We heard it, we logged it, passed it to [redacted] for whatever discussions he 24 needed to have.

25 Q Do you know if anyone else at Facebook expressed concern about this issue?

1 A I believe the people that I normally work with -- [redacted], [redacted] -- we all
2 monitor government and work with the White House, and we all saw the response and
3 the request.
4 Q How did you perceive the administration's statements? Was it -- did you
5 perceive it as a request or something that had to be complied with? Or why were you
6 concerned?
7 Mr. Brown. I'm sorry. Can we -- I just want to make sure she can take those 8 one at a time.
9 [redacted] Yeah. Sure.
10 Mr. Brown. So which one do you want to --
11 [redacted] Was it -- did you perceive it as a request to do more?
12 [redacted] I don't -- I think I don't know what it was, which is why you see the 13 email and why I'm talking to my manager about it, because it's unclear what the 14 statements meant.

[10:59 a.m.]

[redacted] Was there concern that there could be negative repercussions for Facebook if Facebook did not do more?

[redacted] I can't speak to that. I think everyone is just trying to understand what the conversation was or what information, you know, they were trying to relay.

[redacted] When you say you can't speak to that, because you don't recall what their understanding was or --

[redacted] I don't know. I don't know what their thoughts were. You know, I only know my thoughts when I saw the statement and then me passing the information to my boss, but I wasn't in the room or in the conversations or, you know, I don't know what they thought when they -- when they said that.

This was COVID so we're all individually -- you know, we're not in the office. You know, we're at our own homes. So I don't know what they thought. I can't speak for what other people thought when they heard it.

BY [redacted]

Q What did you think when you heard it?

A What did I think? I was, like, oh, that's interesting. I remember trying to log down what they had asked about and then to make sure I collected what they had said on the announcement and to pass it to our teams internally. So for me that would be [redacted].

Q Were there discussions that occurred after this, after Jen Psaki made these statements about changing policies in order to comply with the White House's requests?

A I don't recall that there were discussions on changing policy.

Q Do you know if policies were changed in order to accommodate the White House?

A I don't know.

Q Do you know who would know?

A I'm not really quite sure who would make those decisions or if a decision was even made. You know, my role was to kind of collect what was said and pass it to [redacted] for his use.

Q On 7475, you wrote to Eric Waldo and Kyla Fullenwider at HHS. You said you wanted to follow up on a few questions you asked in the meeting focused on CrowdTangle, data on the online interventions, and Facebook's borderline content policies.

What meeting was this?

Mr. Brown. I'm sorry. Where are you on the page?

[redacted] Sorry. 7475, the first paragraph, "Hi Eric and Kyla," right under that.

Mr. Brown. Okay.

[redacted] I don't really remember more than maybe what's in the email specifically what meeting it was. I can just reference, you know, what's stated here, that it looks like there was a discussion?

BY [redacted]

Q And what is Crowdtangle you refer to in that sentence, the second sentence?

A It's a company that was maybe acquired by Facebook some time ago. I think it aggregates information.

Q What kind of information does it aggregate?

A Again, I'm not on that team, so I don't fully know what its full scope is. But

1 we're a platform, so it aggregates information that's out in the social sphere.

2 Q Is that team the trust and safety?

3 A The Crowdtangle team?

4 Q Oh, it's the Crowdtangle team. I see. It's separate, but okay. I didn't

5 realize it was an entire team.

6 A Well, I was just referring to the company. You asked what is Crowdtangle.

7 It's a company that was acquired.

8 Q I see. So it was owned by Facebook, and then it aggregates information for

9 Facebook?

10 A I don't know that. I can't speak to that.

11 Q Okay. Who -- do you know anyone from Crowdtangle?

12 A I don't remember any names from the Crowdtangle team, yeah.

13 Q Then you go on to talk about: "We wanted to follow-up on a few questions

14 you asked in the meeting focused on CrowdTangle, data on the online interventions, and

15 Facebook's borderline content policies."

16 What are the online interventions?

17 A I don't know.

18 Q Do you know who gave you the language in this email that would know?

19 A Usually my primary contacts are the ones that we're talking about. [redacted]

20 [redacted], [redacted], you know, [redacted], that group of individuals would provide the 21 context for the emails.

22 Q And then Facebook's borderline content policies, are you aware of what

23 those policies are?

24 A I don't. I mean, I know that they have a lot of their policies listed on the 25 website and things, but I can't speak to them.

1 Q Do you know what borderline content is?

2 A I don't.

3 Q So you had -- you just were conveying this, and you have no idea what it

4 means?

5 A [Nonverbal response.]

6 [redacted] Okay.

7 [redacted] Can we go off the record, please?

8 [Discussion off the record.]

9 [redacted] Okay. We are back the record.

10 EXAMINATION

11 BY [redacted]

12 Q [redacted], my name is [redacted] I'm counsel for the minority, and I

13 want to thank you for being here today.

14 A Okay.

15 Q One thing I want to ask that I don't think we've established yet is when did

16 you start working at Facebook?

17 A 2016, early 2016.

18 Q And when did you leave?

19 A I believe early fall 2021 perhaps.

20 Q So it has been nearly 2 years since you've worked there?

21 A Yes.

22 Q And we can tell, I assume because of that, you don't remember a lot of the 23 details of emails that you sent and meetings that you had?

24 A And because some of the emails are older than even the 2 years.

25 Q Given that you haven't worked at the company for 2 years and

1 your -- because of the passage of time your memory is not very clear -- let me just ask you
2 this.
3 Did you want to be here today?
4 A I am a veteran, as you may know. I understand, you know, the process of 5 government. So I was asked to be here, so I decided to come. But it would have not 6 been my choice to spend my day here.
7 Q Was it your understanding that if you didn't agree to come that you
8 ultimately would have been subpoenaed?
9 A It is.
10 Q Thank you.
11 And just to reiterate some things that you said earlier, you in your 5 years at 12 Facebook did not make any content moderation decisions. Correct?
13 A I did not.
14 Q And what that means is it was not your role to determine whether or not a
15 piece of content violated Facebook's community standards?
16 A That's correct.
17 Q And if one of the people who you were a liaison with, someone in the 18 executive branch, flagged a piece of content that they thought violated Meta's -- I'm 19 sorry -- Facebook's community standards, you would forward that on to someone at the 20 appropriate team rather than making the assessment yourself?
21 A That is correct.
22 Q And then that person would make a determination?
23 A I can't say that that person would make the determination.
24 Q Fair enough.
25 And I believe you testified that you were not involved in the creation of

1 Facebook's content moderation policies?

2 A I did not -- I did not make those, and I was not part of that.

3 Q And you were not part of the creation of any of their content policies?

4 A That's correct.

5 Q And all of those policies, to your knowledge, are available online. Correct?

6 A I don't know if they're all available online.

7 Q So your work on Facebook's policy team spanned three presidential

8 administrations?

9 A That's correct.

10 Q And you worked on the team during the entire Trump administration?

11 A I did.

12 Q And then not -- less than a year on the Biden administration?

13 A [Nonverbal response.]

14 Q And you talked about how some of your communications with the executive

15 branch were about COVID. And I believe we saw in one of the exhibits a reference from

16 the White House, or it might have been Health & Human Services, to our shared goal of 17 increasing vaccine adoption.

18 Was that a goal for Facebook during the pandemic?

19 A Facebook's goal was just to make sure that the platform was as safe as 20 possible, and they were surfacing the best information because, again, they don't create

21 headlines for health. And that's as far as I can state as far as the goal, but I can't speak

22 to them referring to our shared goal.

23 Q Fair enough.

24 You would, as we've seen, sometimes reach out to individuals at the White House

25 to provide information to them about either new policy changes or new initiatives that

1 Facebook was implementing. Correct?

2 A Yes.

3 Q And that was part of your role as a liaison?

4 A Yes.

5 Q And so we saw from several of the exhibits that they began with an email

6 from you saying something to the effect of, Hey, I just wanted to reach out and let you

7 know we're doing X or we changed X policy. Correct?

8 A That's correct.

9 Q And that was not unusual for you?

10 A It was not.

11 Q When the pandemic began, you were speaking with officials at the CDC

12 about how to deal with issues raised by the pandemic. Correct?

13 A That's correct.

14 Q And you were speaking to them as early as January of 2020. Correct?

15 A I don't recall the date, but --

16 [redacted] If I could have exhibit C.

17 Sorry about that.

18 [[redacted] Exhibit No. 5

19 Was marked for identification.]

20 Mr. Brown. What's the exhibit number on this?

21 [redacted] This is exhibit number 5, at least that's what I have. Is that what 22 everybody else has?

23 Mr. Brown. Yes.

24 BY [redacted]

25 Q Okay. Are you ready?

1 A I am.

2 Q Thank you.

3 So in late January 2020, you exchanged some emails with Ian Williams at the CDC.

4 Correct?

5 A Uh-huh.

6 Q And he mentioned that he got pulled into the 2019-nCoV response.

7 Correct?

8 A Yes.

9 Q And you understand that to mean what we now refer to as COVID-19?

10 A Yes.

11 Q And on January 28th -- I'm referring to page 15232 -- you told Mr. Williams:

12 "If there is any messaging or task force set up/developing that has a pillar for public

13 messaging, we would like to be involved sooner rather than later. Currently we are 14 standing by for any guidance or requests."

15 Correct?

16 A Correct.

17 Q And on that same page, just above that, Carol Crawford from the CDC stated

18 that she would love to talk about how Facebook can support the coronavirus response.

19 Correct?

20 A Correct.

21 Q And that was in early February, and this is well before lockdowns or anything

22 like that.

23 And then once the pandemic really took hold and people were locked down,

24 people from Facebook -- I don't know if you were involved, but Facebook held weekly

25 meetings with the CDC to talk about how to deal with these very rapidly evolving issues.

1 Correct?

2 A I don't know if they were weekly.

3 [redacted] If I could have exhibit A, please.

4 Mr. Brown. Do we give you 5 back?

5 [redacted] I don't need that.

6 Mr. Brown. Okay.

7 Mr. Brown. So this will be 6?

8 [redacted] This will be 6, yes.

9 Mr. Brown. Okay.

10 [[redacted] Exhibit No. 6

11 Was marked for identification.]

12 BY [redacted]

13 Q Thank you.

14 So turning your attention to the first page of that exhibit, on January 26, 2021, you

15 sent an email to several individuals at the White House and Health & Human Services in

16 which you stated: "Facebook has been meeting with the CDC weekly on Wednesdays

17 (3pm Eastern) for the last year to coordinate on COVID-19 initiatives."

18 Correct?

19 A I see that here.

20 Q And all but 6 days of that year were during the Trump administration.

21 Correct?

22 A I assume.

23 Q Based on what you see in the email?

24 A Yeah.

25 Q And you continued to reach out to the CDC and the White House about

1 COVID, as you stated during, the Biden administration until you left the company.
2 Correct?
3 A That's correct.
4 Q And in this exhibit, as in some of the others we've seen, after that email
5 there's several pages of content about Facebook's initiatives and different information.
6 That was not -- you did not author that?
7 A I did not.
8 Q That was provided to you by somebody else?
9 A That's correct.
10 Q I want to ask you about some of the questions about some of the exhibits
11 that we saw earlier, if I can --
12 Mr. Brown. Are we done with this one?
13 [redacted] We are. Yes. Thank you.
14 Mr. Brown. Okay.
15 [redacted] If I could have exhibit 1, please, and if [redacted] could have that.
16 Do you guys have a copy of that?
17 Mr. Brown. No, we did not keep them.
18 [redacted] That pile right there, is that -- 19 [redacted] Those are just leftovers from what was handed to me. I believe the 20 first two exhibits were recollected, correct, from the folder?
21 Mr. Brown. Could we go off the record, please?
22 [Discussion off the record.]
23 Mr. Brown. We're ready to go back on.
24 [redacted] Okay. We can go back on the record.
25 BY [redacted]

1 Q So I'm showing you the email chain that began as exhibit 1 -- I'm sorry -- that
2 was labeled as exhibit 1.
3 And in this email chain, this email chain began -- I'm looking at page 5549 -- with 4 you proactively reaching out to the White House to advise them about authoritative
5 COVID-19 vaccine information and expanding Facebook's efforts to remove false claims
6 about COVID-19. Correct?
7 A Correct.
8 Q And some of that information included helping people find where they can 9 get vaccinated. Correct?
10 A I see that.
11 Q Right. And, again, this is -- even if you don't remember sending this email,
12 you know that you would not have written that yourself. That was information --
13 A Correct.
14 Q Okay. I'm sorry. I didn't mean to speak over you.
15 And then Mr. Flaherty asked some questions including: "And as far as removal of 16 your claims, do you have data on the actual number of claims-related posts you've 17 removed?" And I'm sorry. He started by saying: "Can you share more info about 18 your framework here? May, of course, is very different than 'will.' Is there a strike
19 policy, ala YouTube?"
20 Do you see that?
21 Mr. Brown. Page where that is?
22 [redacted] I'm sorry. On page 5549. I believe it actually comes up a few 23 times, but I was reading from 5549.
24 BY [redacted]
25 Q And then on page 5547, it looks like you put some of his questions in bold

1 and then provided answers. Correct?

2 A Correct.

3 Q So for that question about can you share more about your framework here

4 and is there a strike policy ala YouTube, your response was: "We don't disclose the

5 details of our thresholds publicly due to concerns about users gaming the system to avoid

6 enforcement."

7 Correct?

8 A Correct.

9 Q And then you continue to say that you do notify groups, pages, and 10 advertisers when you've removed content that violates Facebook's community standards.

11 Correct?

12 A I see that there, yes.

13 Q And -- okay. I think we're done with this one.

14 If we could have exhibit 2, please -- actually, you know what, we don't have to 15 have the exhibit. I'll just ask.

16 Exhibit 2 was -- there was a reference to stickers on Instagram and profile stickers

17 related to --

18 Mr. Brown. Sorry. Could we get the document just --

19 [redacted] Sure.

20 Mr. Brown. -- to make sure she's got appropriate context?

21 [redacted] Exhibit 2, Bates number 8447 is the first page.

22 [redacted] No. I think it's 4838.

23 [redacted] Sorry.

24 [redacted] There's a copy.

25 BY [redacted]

1 Q And, [redacted], I'm referring on that first page, you were asked
2 about -- well, in the email -- actually if you could give me just a moment.
3 So this was the email chain that began with an email from you on page 4840 on 4 February 18, 2021. Correct?
5 A Correct.
6 Q And, again, it appears that you were reaching out unsolicited from the 7 greeting: "I hope everyone is doing well and taking care amidst this wintery weather."
8 Correct?
9 A I don't remember if it was -- you know, the context of the outreach.
10 Q Fair enough.
11 And the following email after that was [redacted] replying all and jumping in 12 with some information about the U.K.'s NHS using profile frames.
13 And then the rest of the exchange appears to be between [redacted] and individuals at 14 the White House. Correct?
15 A Correct.
16 Q And there was a mention of a strategy that Facebook deployed around
17 lockdowns with stay-at-home stickers and promoted Instagram stories.
18 Do you recall that strategy when it was employed?
19 A I only heard about it. I focused on the U.S.
20 Q Okay. You mentioned earlier when you were asked what executive branch
21 agencies you worked with, the first one that you mentioned was the Department of 22 Veterans Affairs. Correct?
23 A [Nonverbal response.]
24 Q What types of work would you do with them?
25 A The items that I mentioned were -- usually trying to help wounded veterans

1 was probably the most prominent one that made public or made press. So a lot of it
2 was wounded veterans, you know, veterans seeking job opportunities after they've left
3 service that might have cross-pollinated with the SBA. So it was more in the sense of,
4 like, wellness in a way and then also being a liaison to help them use the product better,
5 for outreach.
6 Q Helping the VA use the products better?
7 A Uh-huh.
8 Q And during COVID you also helped meet with them to help the VA learn how 9 they could use your platform to be able to reach their communities, to reach veterans
10 during the pandemic, and help connect them to the services they need when it was very 11 difficult to do so because of the pandemic. Correct?
12 A Right. And that's generally the scope. I can't specifically say it was just 13 during the pandemic, but that's the scope of my job generally.
14 Q And because you were at Facebook for 4 years --
15 Mr. Brown. Could we go off the record, please?
16 [Discussion off the record.]
17 [redacted] We're back on the record.
18 BY [redacted]
19 Q [redacted], because you started in 2016, you were working with the 20 executive branch well before COVID was --
21 A That's correct.
22 Q -- even existed. Correct?
23 And as you said, you worked on many issues other than just COVID. Correct?
24 A Correct.
25 Q And your work with agencies like the CDC, that was -- it was Facebook's

1 choice to have those relationships. Correct?

2 A Correct.

3 Q Nobody forced Facebook to sit down and have meetings with the CDC every

4 week. Correct?

5 A That's correct.

6 Q Not during the Trump administration --

7 A Yeah, from my understanding, that's correct.

8 Q And that was the whole nature of your job was to interface with the 9 executive branch?

10 A That's correct.

11 Q And that was your job regardless of who was in office?

12 A That's correct.

13 [redacted] Okay. No more questions at this time. Thank you.

14 We can go off the record.

15 [Recess.]

2 [12:30 p.m.]

3 [redacted] We will go back on the record.

4 BY [redacted]

5 Q We talked a little bit in the -- previously about Eric Waldo from HHS. I

6 know you didn't recall any specific meeting, but do you recall meeting with him at all at 7 any point?

8 A I believe I did.

9 Q Do you know what you met with him about?

10 A I'm not sure.

11 Q How about the CDC? Did you attend meetings with people from the CDC?

12 A I did.

13 Q And do you recall when you started attending those meetings?

14 A I don't recall the date.

15 Q Not exact dates, but approximately?

16 Mr. Brown. Could you maybe speak up a little bit? They're having a hard time

17 hearing.

18 [redacted] I don't recall the dates specifically.

19 BY [redacted]

20 Q Do you recall like the year or approximate time frame?

21 A The COVID time frame.

22 Q Okay. And who from the CDC was usually at those meetings?

23 A A name I remember is Carol Crawford.

24 Q Was there anyone else?

25 A She had people from her team. I'm -- some of the names are -- I don't

1 remember off the top of my head, but there was various people.

2 Q Okay. Were there people from other tech companies at the meetings?

3 A Our meetings were -- if I recall, I think our meetings were, you know, our 4 company and theirs.

5 Q Okay. And who else from Facebook were at the meetings?

6 A [redacted] would sometimes be there, [redacted] -- well, they would usually

7 be there.

8 Q Sorry?

9 A They would usually be there.

10 Q What were the meetings about?

11 A They were meetings that we had on COVID and learning what they were 12 doing and them learning what we were doing.

13 Q Were they about misinformation on social media?

14 A If I remember correctly, the meetings were focused on trying to surface like

15 health information on COVID, advice, handwashing, et cetera, you know, how to stop the 16 spread.

17 Q Did you attend meetings with the CDC called Be On The Lookout meetings

18 specifically?

19 A I believe so.

20 Q Do you know how many of those meetings you attended?

21 A I don't.

22 Q Approximately?

23 A I don't.

24 Q Do you know how frequently they occurred, like every week or month or --

25 A I don't remember how frequently, but --

1 Q Did you attend -- so you have no idea if, like, five, ten?

2 A No, I don't.

3 Q Okay. And what were those meetings about?

4 A Those meetings, I believe, were them surfacing, you know, things that they

5 were seeing, trends that they were seeing people talking about or that they're aware of

6 related to COVID.

7 Q And what were they -- what was the purpose of the meetings?

8 A Our purpose of the meeting was to just hear them out and listen to what -- if

9 they had concerns or opportunities, you know, where they thought, Hey, this is great

10 information, you know, to help mitigate the spread of people getting ill.

11 You know, I can't fully speak to what their motivations were behind the meetings.

12 Q Who was typically in attendance at those meetings?

13 A Carol was. She had team members. I don't remember who they were.

14 And then myself, [redacted], or [redacted] would usually be in those meetings.

15 Q Were other tech companies at those meetings?

16 A [Nonverbal response.]

17 Q Okay. Just Facebook.

18 Did Crawford or others from the CDC make recommendations about how 19 misinformation about COVID should be handled?

20 A No, not that I'm aware of.

21 Q Were there ever examples of misinformation given, specific posts?

22 Mr. Brown. I'm sorry. Were there ever --

23 [redacted] Did Crawford or anyone at the CDC show specific posts and say this

24 is an example of --

25 Mr. Brown. To the witness or to somebody else or what --

1 BY [redacted]

2 Q Well, at the meetings were there slides of posts?

3 A I don't recall if there was slides. I generally believe that they would

4 have -- if they saw something that was incorrect or something that we posted that was

5 incorrect about how to keep one safe or stop spreading the disease, they would say so.

6 Q And what would be the point of showing those posts?

7 A I don't know their point.

8 [redacted] So you mean showing them to her during the meeting?

9 [redacted] Well, to -- yeah, to whomever was attending from Facebook.

10 [redacted] I don't fully -- I can't fully speak to what their motivations are on 11 their side.

12 [redacted] Well, was there any context? Like, I mean, if they're saying this is 13 an example of misinformation, what was the context for that?

14 Mr. Brown. She didn't say they did that. I just want to --

15 BY [redacted]

16 Q Yeah. Okay.

17 A Yeah, I can't speak to what -- to that of, you know, what -- that being shared 18 or what their context was. I just really wouldn't know.

19 Q Okay. After these meetings when you'd go speak to other people at Meta

20 or Facebook about what happened, were there internal meetings to discuss the meeting,

21 the BOLO meetings?

22 A I wasn't a part of discussions afterwards. You know, [redacted] or [redacted] were

23 in the meeting. We all take the information back to our managers, and I'm not sure

24 what happens after that.

25 Q So when you take it back to the manager, did you report it over email or --

1 A What happened -- I'd often have conversations with [redacted] all the time. He
2 was my direct manager.
3 Q But it would just be like a one-on-one conversation?
4 A Yes.
5 Q So this is exhibit 7.
6 [[redacted] Exhibit No. 7
7 Was marked for identification.]
8 BY [redacted]
9 Q Are you all set?
10 Okay. So this appears to be an invite from Carol Crawford to a Be On The 11 Lookout meeting, and it's sent to people from Google, Twitter, and Facebook. It actually 12 looks like you're on the initial invite and appear to have attended from this anyway.
13 Do you know why Census was involved in this -- or invited to this?
14 A I cannot speak to the government's work and other organizations. I don't 15 know the scope of the work.
16 Q So in your response you -- well, not response, but you're sort of discussing 17 this with people at Facebook, it looks like: "Hi ladies can we please attend -- focus is on 18 COVID-19 misinfo themes Census team helping CDC wants to relay?"
19 So you don't know why the Census team was helping CDC relay misinfo themes?
20 A I guess in my position I can't really speak to what's happening on the 21 government side. Right? I understand many times organizations will help each other.
22 Right? But I can't speak to what the conversations were or, you know, how that arises,
23 and et cetera, on their side. But, clearly, I see, you know, since this was definitely 24 helping in part of these discussions.
25 Q Do you know if Census attended the meetings, the Be On The Lookout

meetings?

A I believe that they may have.

Q Had Census worked with Facebook before?

A They had.

Q In what context?

A They were working to get out the timelines for the census applications through any way possible, whether that was News or, you know, anyone could reach citizens. So I remember they had an interest in trying to make sure people understood the deadlines for returning census information.

Q So that was 20 -- is that 2020 or --

A I don't remember, but know there was a distinct period that the Census was happening, and they wanted to make sure that they were providing the right information to people about the deadlines or if there was incorrect deadlines out there somewhere that they were corrected. Okay. We can take these back, unless --

Q This is exhibit 8.

[[redacted] Exhibit No. 8

Was marked for identification.]

Mr. Brown. Could I ask, is this the complete message? I note that at the beginning of the first page it says: "Best, [redacted]," which would imply there was another page.

[redacted] It looks -- yeah, it looks like there was probably another email, but I was only going to ask --

Mr. Brown. Do you have the rest of the context?

[redacted] Not here, but, I mean, these were sent before, so anything else would have come after.

1 Mr. Brown. Well, it's just difficult to understand the full context without the
2 whole thread.
3 [redacted] Well, not --
4 Mr. Brown. But we'll proceed, but I do want to reflect --
5 [redacted] Not really for these questions.
6 Mr. Brown. Well, I don't know that. You know, that might be right, but I don't
7 know that because I can't see the whole thread.
8 [redacted] Are we ready?
9 BY [redacted]
10 Q So this is an email exchange from January of 2021.
11 So we talked a little bit about CrowdTangle earlier and the CrowdTangle team.
12 So that -- I didn't quite fully understand what that was. So they aggregate information
13 and give it to other teams at Facebook. Is that correct?
14 A I just said that they were a company that was acquired and they aggregate
15 information. I can't speak to, you know, where it -- the dissemination and what their full 16 scope is.
17 Q You don't -- what did they do with -- what was their interaction with your 18 team? Let me put it that way.
19 A In this case they provided a report that I relayed.
20 Q Okay. So what were these reports or this report, if you recall, specifically?
21 Like, what are CrowdTangle reports?
22 A I don't work on the teams. I don't have a lot of insight into what their 23 reports are or what they are. I know from the contents of the email, it's just as it's 24 stated. But I really can't go into depth about their process or what's in the scope of the 25 reports.

1 Q I see. Do you know who [redacted] and [redacted] are?

2 A They were on that CrowdTangle team --

3 Q Okay.

4 A -- or representing the CrowdTangle team.

5 Q Okay. And do you know what Facebook did with CrowdTangle reports?

6 A I don't.

7 Q Okay. Why did you send this to Carol Crawford at the CDC?

8 A I was asked to by my manager.

9 Q And that's [redacted]?

10 A Uh-huh.

11 Q But you don't know why?

12 A I mean, I -- anything I'm sending obviously is because I was asked. But it

13 looks like from the content of this, I was sending a report to them.

14 Q Okay. In the next email from Carol Crawford to you in response to the 15 email about CrowdTangle, Carol Crawford said: "One group we'll be adding is the 16 Census group who hopefully will soon start their project with us."

17 Do you know what the project was?

18 A I don't know the scope of the project.

19 Q You don't know what the project was at all?

20 A I know it's on COVID, but I don't know the scope -- you know, I don't know

21 the full scope of --

22 Q Yeah. You don't know anything more specific?

23 A Yeah, like, I don't know the specifics of what the scope of it is. But, you

24 know, obviously, it's on COVID and the work they're doing.

25 Q Okay. And, again, do you know why Census was involved in this?

A Not more than because of the work that they've done trying to track and keep deadlines, et cetera. But I don't know the full details of why Census was particularly the group brought in or if it's the only group brought in. You know, I just don't know that.

Q I see. So Census was involved in tracking COVID data?

A I don't know that I can speak to that.

Q Okay. Just because you said "track." I didn't know what you meant by track.

A Just a terminology, my own terminology, vernacular.

Q Okay. So you mean just track sort of general population --

A Because they were trying to keep -- they were trying to be aware of timelines with the Census. That's the work I know that I did with the Census is them trying to keep track of timelines, when reports were due in on the Census. That's the work that I know from them.

Q I see. Okay.

Did you send -- so you sent the CrowdTangle report, it looks like, to CDC. Did you send it to any other agencies?

A I don't recall.

Q We're done with this one, so I don't know if --

[[redacted] Exhibit No. 9

Was marked for identification.]

Mr. Brown. Is this exhibit 9?

[redacted] Yes.

BY [redacted]

Q Are you all set?

1 Okay. On 7397 on to the next page 7398, the email at the bottom that you
2 wrote to Carol Crawford, you say: "I saw that DHS/CISA is planning/possibly working on
3 COVID-19 misinfo concerns."
4 Where did you see that?
5 A I don't remember where I saw that.
6 Q What was the greater context for that? How were they working on COVID 7 misinfo concerns?
8 A I'm not sure where I saw it, so I'm not really sure the detail that I was 9 speaking about here.
10 Q Do you have any idea why DHS and CISA, which are sort of -- well, do you
11 have any idea why DHS and CISA were working on COVID misinfo?
12 A I don't.
13 Q Okay. Do you know where there might be additional information about
14 that?
15 A It's not something that I have. I don't know.
16 Earlier I referred to maybe -- I don't know the government discussion, so it might 17 be just a conversation that you have to have with those mentioned.
18 Q Okay. And then shortly after you say: "There is quite a bit of focus on 19 misinfo and it's growing among Members of Congress et cetera."
20 Why did you believe it was growing among Members of Congress?
21 A I remember that headlines or news or discussions and a lot of confusion
22 entering COVID about what do you do, what do you not do, you know, people who were 23 sick, et cetera. So this is general, you know, press, et cetera, understanding people
24 talking about it quite a bit, that there was uncertainty during those years of COVID.
25 Q Okay. You said -- okay. So right after that you say: "We really would

1 need to be partnered with government on this effort as we don't know what
2 would/should be flagged as misinfo in some cases."
3 What do you mean by "partnered with government1.
4 A It wasn't a conversation that we are the ones who know all four corners of 5 the topic, so we -- and you see that I'm asking questions for clarity.

2 [12:56 p.m.]

3 BY [redacted]

4 Q So you wanted to partner with government to get the information. Is that

5 right?

6 A In the email, I'm just asking for clarity multiple times of just what's

7 happening or what are discussions.

8 Q Clarity about -- I mean, clarity about what, I guess?

9 A In the email, I'm asking -- I saw that there's working groups or they're

10 planning possibly working on items. You'll see the questions I'm asking.

11 And so what I mean that way, these are government discussions. I am not privy

12 to those. And my job is to liaison. So if something is going to come across or they're

13 going to ask me something, just positioning myself to make sure that I'm in my liaison

14 role.

15 Q And did that come from someone else, the idea of being partnered with 16 government on this effort? Was that -- I mean, did that come from [redacted] or 17 somebody higher up who wanted you to convey that information?

18 A I'm not sure what you mean.

19 Q Well, was that you speaking or was that you conveying someone else's idea

20 about being partnered with government on this effort?

21 A It's just me trying to understand exactly what I was hearing from

22 government. So I would need to work with Carol to understand: Is this true? What

23 is being discussed? So I would have to work with her on understanding the questions

24 that I have put in the email.

25 Q Okay. On 7397, you wrote an email on February 4th, starting with, "Hi

1 Carol. A couple months back we thought perhaps some examples of the misinfo could
2 be sent to us. That way we are also educating our misinfo team and know what to be
3 looking for. In addition, if something is especially egregious, we could also be doing the 4 work to make sure it's not going viral."
5 How did you end up determining what was especially egregious?
6 A I didn't make those determinations.
7 Q How about to make sure it's not going viral?
8 A I also wouldn't be in charge of making those decisions.
9 Q Okay. I think I'm done with this one.
10 [[redacted] Exhibit No. 10
11 Was marked for identification.]
12 BY [redacted]
13 Q Okay. On March 30th, on 7988, you sent an email to Carol Crawford and 14 said, "Hi Carol. Yes, I think good to have questions from Census so we make sure we 15 have the right person."
16 It looks like there was going to be a meeting with CDC and Facebook and Census.
17 Do you know what you meant by that?
18 A By what?
19 Q What did you mean by that, "I think good to have questions from Census so 20 we make sure we have the right person"?
21 A I don't specifically remember what I was referring to there other than trying 22 to organize the meeting.
23 Q Do you know if Census did end up attending this meeting?
24 A I can't confirm. I'm not sure.
25 Q And was this part of a -- was this meeting, since the subject line of the email

1 is "This week's meeting," was this a weekly meeting that took place with CDC?
2 A There were several meetings with CDC. I can't speak to the exact interval,
3 but I've seen in reference that they were weekly.
4 Q Okay. And then on March 31st, you said: "Hi Carol. We are working on 5 a proposal of how set up sharing partnership on the misinfo items...what it would look 6 like."
7 Did you end up setting that up, the sharing partnership on misinfo? I don't --
8 A I'm not sure.
9 Q Okay. You don't know at all if that happened?
10 A I'm not sure, as categorized here, if that happened.
11 Q Well, did any kind of sharing partnership on misinfo items end up getting set 12 up?
13 A We set regular meetings to have discussions. I think that's the -- what you 14 see here is us trying to get organized, understand what questions they have, what 15 questions we have, just to make it more efficient. Lots of emails. Just to make it more 16 efficient for both sides.
17 Q On just right before that, Carol Crawford had written you an email about 18 what Census would like to discuss, and it has to do with vaccine themes.
19 When she mentions adding labels to certain stories, for example, "local news
20 coverage of deaths after receiving the vaccine. What's the approach for adding labels to 21 those stories," what was the approach for adding labels to those stories?
22 A I don't know. This is me organizing the meeting and trying to make sure
23 the correct people are in the room to answer to specific things, but it's not something 24 that I had knowledge of.
25 Q Who were the correct people?

1 A I would have brought in my colleagues, [redacted] and the ones you've seen on
2 the emails, to make that decision.
3 Q What about people like from trust and safety, like [redacted], [redacted],
4 or people like that, would they have been part of this conversation?
5 A I don't recall.
6 Q Were there people who worked under [redacted] and [redacted] who 7 would have dealt with this sort of thing?
8 A The people that I connected with were the ones you've seen on the emails,
9 [redacted], [redacted], [redacted], that was my interface on the COVID work, or the other emails.
10 That's just the group of us who were on those emails.
11 [[redacted] Exhibit No. 11
12 Was marked for identification.]
13 BY [redacted]
14 Q This is exhibit 11. On 5401, [redacted] wrote an email to Carol 15 Crawford and you were cc'd. And [redacted] refers to "our COVID misinfo channel up for 16 CDC and Census colleagues."
17 What's the COVID misinfo channel?
18 A I can't speak fully to it. The email is not from me, so I can't really explain 19 the full details of what that might be.
20 Q Do you have any idea what it is?
21 A I can't guess fully what it all entails.
22 Q So you have no idea what it is?
23 A I see what's in the note.
24 Q Okay. So you hadn't heard of the COVID misinfo channel or you hadn't 25 used it other than what's in the note?

1 A I've heard of it from this email that I'm looking at, but I just don't recall what 2 it is.
3 Q Okay. Just one more question about this one. On May 7th -- this is on 4 5400 -- [redacted] wrote to Carol Crawford, with you cc'd as well as [redacted],
5 saying, "Following up from our meeting yesterday. It looks like Monday, May 17th at 6 12:00 p.m. will work for onboarding meeting. The overlaps with your standing Census
7 meeting you mentioned."
8 What's the "standing Census meeting"?
9 A Those would be the meetings that you referred to earlier where we'd meet
10 from time to time with Census.
11 Q I see. Oh, are those different from the meetings with the CDC?
12 A I think -- I'm not sure, but I think it's -- it could be the same. It could be 13 referring to the same meeting.
14 Q Were there any meetings with just Census?
15 A I don't know.
16 [redacted] Okay. We're done with this.
17 [[redacted] Exhibit No. 12
18 Was marked for identification.]
19 [redacted] This is exhibit 12.
20 Mr. Brown. We're ready if you are.
21 [redacted] On 3407, these are emails between Elvis Chan and some people at
22 Facebook.
23 Mr. Brown. She's not on these.
24 [redacted] Yeah, I acknowledge you're not on them.
25 Do you have any idea if these meetings took place?

1 [redacted] I don't.

2 [redacted] Okay. I actually am not sure why these are here. That may have

3 been an error.

4 [[redacted] Exhibit No. 13

5 Was marked for identification.]

6 [redacted] On 36289, on an email on June 24th, 2021, you wrote to Josh,

7 who's Special Assistant to the President and Special Advisor to the Homeland Security

8 Advisor on Countering Domestic Violent Extremism, National Security Council, about 9 veteran misinformation.

10 What is veteran misinformation?

11 [redacted] Obviously, dealing with the veteran population. And the 12 misinformation, I don't know fully what it is in this context, but it must be something

13 about confusion. But I don't know what it's referring to specifically in this note.

14 Mr. Brown. The rest of the sentence says, "in the wake of 1/6."

15 [redacted] In the wake of 1/6, yeah.

16 Mr. Brown. Which I assume is a reference to January 6th.

17 [redacted] I would assume that too.

18 BY [redacted]

19 Q Do you know if veteran misinfo -- so is that a term that was used apart from 20 January 6th ever, or was this only in relation to January 6th?

21 A Veteran and misinformation terms exist outside of January 6th.

22 Q No, I mean the term "veteran misinformation." Like --

23 A Yeah. Those exist outside of January 6th.

24 Q Outside of January 6th.

25 A But, like I said, I still don't know the context of what they're -- what

1 specifically was the content here.

2 Q Okay. And it appears that you were asking Josh Geltzer at the NSC for

3 contacts at DOD or the VA who could help with this misinformation.

4 Did you end up talking to anyone there, at either of those agencies?

5 A I see from the email I was connected.

6 Q And what was the sum and substance of that discussion?

7 A The goal was to just understand if -- that DOD or VA was working with

8 outside groups, is what I'm gathering from this email. Outside groups were saying they 9 were working with DOD and VA. We didn't know if that was true.

10 Again, I do government relations. So if it's not government, it wouldn't be

11 something that I would need to be in my portfolio. So this is me trying to determine

12 that.

13 Q I see. Okay. Just sort of out of curiosity, why was there a particular 14 concern about veterans? Was there -- yeah.

15 A I can't say. I can only go by the email. You know, someone may have

16 reached out. You know, I might have -- something might have come across my desk

17 which made me determine what is this, who is this group, let me determine if this is 18 something with the government portfolio or if this is not.

19 Q Do you know of any other types of veteran misinfo other than January 6th, 20 like specific examples?

21 A The terms are very generic, so it could -- you know, it could cover anything.

22 [[redacted] Exhibit No. 14

23 Was marked for identification.]

24 BY [redacted]

25 Q So you were just added at the end to this email chain about a meeting with

1 the U.S. Government Accountability Office about information sharing, and I guess -- yeah,
2 information requests related to January 6th, and it's a meeting on that topic.
3 Did you attend that meeting?
4 A I don't recall.
5 Q Did you attend any meeting with the U.S. Government Accountability Office?
6 A I don't recall.
7 Q So you don't recall anything about this meeting?
8 A No.
9 [redacted] Okay. I think I'm all set.
10 Mr. Brown. Are you done too?
11 [redacted] Just give me one second.
12 Yes, we're done.
13 Mr. Brown. Thanks. Appreciate your time.
14 [redacted] Thank you for coming.

[redacted] Can we go on the record, please.

This is a transcribed interview of [redacted]. Chairman Jordan has requested this interview as part of the committee's investigation of how and the extent to which the executive branch has coerced and colluded with companies and other intermediaries to censor speech.

Would the witness please state your name for the record.

[redacted]. [redacted].

[redacted] On behalf of the committee, I want to thank you for appearing here today to answer our questions. The chairman also appreciates your willingness to appear voluntarily.

My name is [redacted] and I'm with Chairman Jordan's staff. And, I'll have everyone else from the committee who is here in the room introduce themselves as well.

[redacted] [redacted] with Chairman Jordan's staff.

[redacted] [redacted] with Chairman Jordan's staff.

[redacted] [redacted] with Ranking Member Nadler's staff.

[redacted] [redacted] oversight counsel for the Democrats and Judicial Committee.

[redacted] [redacted] Chairman Jordan's staff.

[redacted] I'd like to now go over the ground rules and guidelines that we will follow during today's interview.

Our questioning will proceed in rounds. The majority will ask questions first for one hour, and then the minority will have an opportunity to ask questions for an equal period of time if they choose. We will alternate back and forth until there are no more questions and the interview is over.

1 Typically we take a short break at the end of each hour, but if you would like to
2 take a break apart from that, please just let us know.
3 As you can see, there is an official court reporter taking down everything we say to
4 make a written record. So we ask that you give verbal responses to all questions.
5 Do you understand?
6 [redacted]. I do.
7 [redacted] So the court reporter can take down a clear record, we will do our best
8 to limit the number of people directing questions at you during any given hour to just
9 those people on the staff whose turn it is. Please try and speak clearly, so the court
10 reporter can understand and so the folks down at the end of the table can hear you.
11 It is important that we don't talk over one another or interrupt each other if we
12 can help it, and that goes for everybody present at today's interview.
13 We encourage witnesses who appear before the committee to freely consult with 14 counsel if they so choose. It is my understanding that you are appearing today with 15 counsel. Is that correct?
16 [redacted]. That's correct.
17 [redacted] Could counsel please state your name for the record.
18 Mr. Bopp. Michael Bopp from Gibson, Dunn, representing [redacted].
19 Mr. Halse. Ehren Halse from King & Spalding, representing Alphabet.
20 [redacted] Thank you.
21 We want you to answer our questions in the most complete and truthful manner
22 as possible. So we will take our time. If you have any questions or if you do not
23 understand one of our questions, please let us know. Our questions will cover a wide
24 range of topics, so if you need clarification at any point, just say so. If you honestly don't 25 know the answer to a question or do not remember, it is best not to guess. Please give us your best recollection, and it is okay to tell us if you learned the information from someone else. Just indicate how you came to know the information.

If there are things you don't know or can't remember, just say so, and please inform us who, to the best of your knowledge, might be able to provide a more complete answer to the question.

You should also understand that although this interview is not under oath, that by law, you are required to answer questions from Congress truthfully. Do you understand that?

[redacted]. I do.

[redacted] This also applies to questions posed by congressional staff in an interview. Do you understand this?

[redacted]. Yes.

[redacted] Witnesses that knowingly provide false testimony could be subject to criminal prosecution for perjury, or for making false statements under 18 U.S.C. section 1001. Do you understand this?

[redacted]. Yes.

[redacted] Is there any reason you are unable to provide truthful answers to today's questions?

[redacted]. No.

[redacted] Finally, I'd like to make a note that the content of what we discuss here today is confidential. We ask that you not speak about what we discuss in this interview to any outside individuals to preserve the integrity of our investigation. For the same reason, the marked exhibits that we will use today will remain with the court reporter so that they can go in the official transcript, and any copies of those exhibits will be returned to us when we wrap up.

1 That is the end of my preamble.

2 Is there anything that my colleagues from the minority would like to add?

3 [redacted] Thank you for agreeing to speak with us voluntarily today.

4 [redacted] The clock now reads 10:05. We will start the first hour of

5 questioning.

6 EXAMINATION

7 BY [redacted]

8 Q Can you state your full name again for the record, please.

9 A [redacted].

10 Q And where is your current place of employment?

11 A Google.

12 Q And what is your current title?

13 A Director.

14 Q And director of?

15 A Security Legal.

16 Q Security Legal?

17 A Yes.

18 Q And what is your educational background, beginning with college?

19 A USC, University of Southern California for undergraduate, as well as for law

20 school.

21 Q And beginning with your graduation of law school, what is your employment

22 history?

23 A After graduating law school, I joined the Department of Justice through a

24 fellowship called the presidential management fellowship. Through that program, I

25 started first as a budget analyst for the Department of Justice and then transitioned to an

1 attorney advisor position for the executive office for the U.S. Attorneys.

2 From there, I was a special assistant U.S. Attorney in the Eastern District of

3 Virginia for a short period of time, and then I became an assistant U.S. Attorney in the 4 Southern District of California.

5 Following that, I took a role back here in D.C. at the computer crime and

6 intellectual property section as senior trial counsel, and then I joined Google in 2017 as

7 corporate counsel. And at Google, I was promoted to senior counsel at some point and 8 then director.

9 Q And since 2017 until today, have you been with the same team?

10 A So I was first hired to a team called the Law Enforcement and Information

11 Security, or LEIS. That team was disbanded, and my team, security legal, became a team

12 in 2022.

13 Q In 2022?

14 A Yes.

15 Q Thank you.

16 And your current team was the exact same team as before and just renamed, or 17 did folks move about as part of that transition?

18 A Folks moved about. LEIS was the larger team and was divided, roughly, in 19 half, and one half was now security legal.

20 Q So prior to this 2022 transition, what were your responsibilities as part of the 21 law enforcement information security team?

22 A I was first hired as corporate counsel, and my primary role was to advise the 23 operations or compliance team in relations to third-party user data requests. This

24 would be things like subpoenas and search warrants Google was receiving from law

25 enforcement in the United States.

1 Q And did you do that both as corporate counsel and as senior counsel?
2 A Yes.
3 Q When did you become director?
4 A November of 2022.
5 Q And was this after the transition had taken place?
6 A Yes, soon after.
7 Q Who was head of LEIS?
8 A When I was hired, the director of LEIS was [redacted].
9 Q And at the time of the transition?
10 A He was still the director but soon left Google soon after.
11 Q And during your period with LEIS, 2017 to 2022, is this for the -- all of 12 Alphabet or only Google or certain products or services?
13 A Primarily Google.
14 Q And when you say primarily Google, would that include YouTube?
15 A Yes.
16 Q How big was the LEIS team?
17 A When I was hired, I would say it was approximately -- there were 18 approximately six attorneys and then some investigators operations. I want to say in 19 total approximately 20.
20 Q When you say "investigators," what were some of the issues that they would 21 be investigating as part of the team?
22 A They would investigate things such as like ad fraud or abuse of Google
23 products.
24 Q Did the -- actually, let me take one step back.
25 Are you familiar with the terms "misinformation," "disinformation," and

1 "malinformation"?

2 A Very generally. It's not an area of expertise.

3 Q To the extent you have an understanding, what is your understanding of the 4 differences between those three terms?

5 A I don't think I can accurately discern the three. I think of them collectively

6 as fake information on the internet.

7 Q Was there any aspect of the LEIS team that dealt with, we'll say, fake

8 information, false information as part of the team's responsibilities?

9 A My primary duties were advising the compliance team on user data

10 requests. It's possible that -- what time period are we talking about right now?

11 Q 2017 to 2022.

12 A So at the time, [redacted] advised TAG, the threat analysis group, and was 13 also involved in, I believe, some election information issues.

14 Q And where does the -- I think you said TAG. Threat Analysis Group. Is 15 that right?

16 A Yes.

17 Q Where does TAG fit in relation to the LEIS team during this --

18 A They are a security engineering group, and LEIS advises them as attorneys.

19 Q And as part of your responsibilities, did you interact with TAG?

20 A I do now, yes.

21 Q Did you in the LEIS team?

22 A Kind of towards the tail end, yes, and very little at that time.

23 Q In addition to [redacted], do you recall anyone else on the LEIS team who 24 dealt with election information issues?

25 A No.

1 Q Are you familiar with a company called Mandiant?
2 A Yes.
3 Q And what is it?
4 A It's a cybersecurity company that Google acquired.
5 Q And when did the -- to your understanding, when did the company acquire 6 Mandiant?
7 A I don't remember an exact date. Sometime last year.
8 Q And for the security legal team, post transition, were there multiple teams
9 that came out of the transition or was it --
10 A Two teams.
11 Q Two teams? What was the name of the other team?
12 A Data disclosure strategy.
13 Q And at a high level, can you say the differences of the scope and 14 responsibilities for security legal, as opposed to the data disclosure strategy team?
15 A Yes. Data disclosure strategy advises the operations or compliance teams
16 on third-party user requests. So again, the subpoenas and search warrants. Security 17 legal advises teams on security issues, cybersecurity, physical security, some parts of user
18 security.
19 My team also has a group of investigators that do law enforcement referrals on 20 behalf of Google.
21 Q And as director, what do your day-to-day responsibilities look like?
22 A I sit in a lot of meetings. Practically, I manage this team of lawyers and 23 investigators.
24 Q And how big is your team right now?
25 A I believe it's 19 people.

1 Q Do you have a primary deputy or anyone assisting you?

2 A No.

3 Q So the other 18 or 19 folks report to you?

4 A Oh, the attorneys all report to me. There is five of them. And then the

5 investigators, there is -- one of my reports manages them, and they have submanagers as

6 well.

7 Q Who is the individual who reports to you that manages the investigators?

8 A [redacted].

9 Q Did you work with -- of the 18, 19 folks, did you work with any of them

10 previously at LEIS?

11 A Some of them.

12 Q And do you recall when last year, like which month this transition took 13 place?

14 A In May.

15 Q During your time at the company, do you interact with the government

16 affairs and public policy team?

17 A Yes.

18 Q And what's the nature of your interaction with that team?

19 A They do our policy work, and so, if there are new laws coming up,

20 particularly cybersecurity laws, often they are flagging for us, so we will flag for them.

21 Q And who on that team is your primary point of contact?

22 A [redacted].

23 Q And do you know who leads that team?

24 A The head of policy?

25 Q Yes.

1 A I believe his name is [redacted].

2 Q If there are issues -- this might apply more to YouTube than other products,

3 but maybe others as well, with concerns regarding inauthentic accounts and behavior,

4 would that fall under your team's responsibility?

5 A Could you explain what you mean by inauthentic behavior?

6 Q In the kind of broader sense of content moderation, the tech companies will

7 handle it. Some will make a distinction between actor and behavior base, as opposed to

8 content base. With respect to actor or behavior base, would issues related to that fall

9 under your team's responsibility?

10 A Not generally.

11 Q Do you know which team would generally be responsible for that?

12 A We have an organization called trust and safety.

13 Q And to your knowledge, who leads that team?

14 A [redacted].

15 Q During your time at Google, have you interacted with the trust and safety

16 team?

17 A Yes.

18 Q And what is the nature of your interactions?

19 A They do abuse operations, and so, if they see large abuse behavior, they may 20 flag for my team to potentially do a law enforcement referral.

21 Q To your understanding, does the company have policies related to a 22 potential hack-and-leak operation?

23 A I am not aware.

24 Q With respect to concerns related to a form line influence campaign, which 25 team would have primary responsibility for issues related to that?

1 A Responsibility for?

2 Q Handling issues related to concerns of if a form line influence campaign was

3 taking place, could take place?

4 A I would say either the threat analysis group or trust and safety.

5 Q Do you have any familiarity with YouTube's community guidelines?

6 A I know they have them, yes.

7 Q As part of your job responsibilities, do you have any familiarity other than 8 awareness that they're out there?

9 A Not particularly.

10 Q Do you have any interactions with Google search ranking team?

11 A No.

12 Q As part of your responsibilities, both with LEIS, and now in your current role

13 as director of security legal, what interactions do you have with the U.S. Government?

14 A I interact with law enforcement from time to time and at other times,

15 perhaps, other regulators, but --

16 Q And when your team is interfacing with the Federal Government, are you

17 the primary point of contact?

18 A One of them, yes.

19 Q Who else on the team serves as a primary point of contact?

20 A Depending on the issue, any member of the team could be interacting with 21 government or law enforcement.

22 Q How are responsibilities divided within your team?

23 A My attorneys handle different portfolios. So some work on cybersecurity

24 issues, others work on physical security issues, child safety issues. And then the 25 investigations teams break up into digital crimes, imminent threats, child safety, and

1 hardware investigations.

2 Q In an earlier answer, you mentioned that it was your understanding that

3 [redacted], among his other responsibilities, would handle election information issues.

4 Is that right?

5 A Yes.

6 Q And you said that [redacted] left the company last year?

7 A Yes.

8 Q To your understanding, who handled that segment of his portfolio following

9 his departure?

10 A He transitioned contact with law enforcement on those issues to me.

11 Q Which Federal Government agencies are you in touch with related to 12 election information issues?

13 A The FBI.

14 Q Any others?

15 A And DHS.

16 Q Within DHS, do you know which subagency?

17 A I believe it's CISA.

18 Q And just so we're on the same page, what is CISA?

19 A I'm blanking on what it stands for, but it's their, like, internet arm.

20 Q If I represented that it was the Cybersecurity and Infrastructure Security

21 Agency, would that sound right?

22 A Yes.

23 Q In addition to the FBI and CISA, are there any other Federal agencies that 24 you recall working with?

25 A On election issues?

1 Q On election issues, yes.

2 A No.

3 Q Is there anyone else on the legal security -- on the security legal team that

4 works on election information issues?

5 A Other attorneys may, at times, step in, yes.

6 Q Is there any attorney, in addition to you, that has most frequently worked on 7 these issues?

8 A One of my attorneys, [redacted].

9 Q And before [redacted] left the company and had you transition, take over

10 this part of the portfolio, what familiarity did you have with his work on election

11 information issues?

12 A Very little.

13 Q To your understanding, what types of issues fall within the scope of election

14 information issues?

15 A Sorry. Can you specify?

16 Q Sure.

17 So if I understood your previous responses correctly, first [redacted], and then

18 you, following his departure work on election information-related issues. What types of 19 issues fall into that category?

20 A It was primarily helping set up meetings with the FBI's Foreign Influence Task

21 Force.

22 Q And what is the Foreign Influence Task Force?

23 A It is a FBI task force focused on foreign influence.

24 Q Does it have a focus on election-related issues, or can it touch upon

25 anything?

1 A I think on anything.

2 Q Who is your primary point of contact in the government with respect to the 3 Foreign Influence Task Force?

4 A An FBI agent named Elvis Chan.

5 Q Prior to taking over [redacted] portfolio on this set of issues, had you had

6 interactions with Agent Chan?

7 A Yes.

8 Q And what was -- at a high level, what was the nature of those interactions?

9 A Elvis serves as our primary point of contact with the FBI, and so an example

10 would be if we were sending a law enforcement referral on a matter, and they contacted

11 Elvis to ask which office was most appropriate, or if he would receive it.

12 Q And so in your current role, do you work with Agent Chan in other context in 13 addition to the Foreign Influence Task Force?

14 A Yes.

15 Q Did you have familiarity at all with the Foreign Influence Task Force prior to 16 taking over [redacted]'s portfolio related to election information issues?

17 A Very little.

18 Q So in addition to setting up meetings and having meetings with the Foreign

19 Influence Task Force, what else falls within the scope of election information issues that 20 you work on?

21 A For what I've done, that was primarily it.

22 Q Is there anything else that comes to mind?

23 A Other than those meetings? In the FBI, not particularly.

24 Q With respect to election information issues and your responsibilities

25 handling that portfolio, did it change in the lead-up to the 2022 U.S. midterm elections?

1 A Not particularly.

2 Q So as a percentage of your workload, was it relatively consistent

3 pre-midterm elections up until today, summer of 2023?

4 A Yes.

5 Q How frequently do you meet with the Foreign Influence Task Force?

6 A I believe they meet quarterly.

7 Q And when these meetings occur, is it just Alphabet and the Foreign Influence

8 Task Force, or are there other --

9 A Just Google and the Foreign Influence Task Force.

10 Q To your understanding, does the Foreign Influence Task Force have similar 11 meetings with other tech companies?

12 A I don't know.

13 Q And since you took over last year, have the meetings, in fact, occurred on a, 14 roughly, quarterly basis?

15 A Yes.

16 Q And are they ongoing today?

17 A Yes.

18 Q Who else from Google attend these meetings?

19 A We typically have representatives from the threat analysis group and my 20 team. That's usually the attendees.

21 Q Who from the threat analysis group usually attends these meetings?

22 A The director of TAG, is what we call it, is [redacted], and he may have 23 analysts or engineers come.

24 Q And for your team, who primarily attends these meetings?

25 A [redacted], myself sometimes.

1 Q Sometimes?

2 A Sometimes, yeah.

3 Q And do you have a ballpark sense of how many you've attended?

4 A As a ballpark, maybe three.

5 Q At a high level, can you say what occurs at these meetings? Is it the

6 company sharing information with the FBI? Does the FBI share information with the

7 company?

8 A It's typically the FBI sharing information with Google.

9 Q Does Google ever provide information to the FBI?

10 A Sometimes, yes.

11 Q The meetings you have attended or have knowledge of, what has been the 12 subject matter of the meetings?

13 A Disinformation campaigns by nation states.

14 Q Do you recall any government personnel other than the FBI attending these

15 meetings?

16 A No.

17 Q Have these meetings typically occurred via Zoom or video conference? Are 18 they in person?

19 A We've had both.

20 Q When they occur in person, whose office are they in?

21 A At Google.

22 Q For the meetings that you attended or have familiarity of, how many FBI

23 representatives typically attend one of these meetings?

24 A Approximately, 10.

25 Q And to the extent you have knowledge of this, are all 10 affiliated with the

1 task force, or are they elsewhere in the FBI?

2 A I believe all affiliated with the task force.

3 Q For the meetings you've attended or have familiarity with, has Agent Chan

4 attended all of them?

5 A I believe so.

6 Q Is there a primary person that helps facilitate the meetings or, you know,

7 leads the meetings?

8 A The FBI comes in teams of China or Russia, and they will go around sharing

9 information.

10 Q With respect to issues related to disinformation campaigns by foreign states,

11 you said there were two teams that are at these meetings, TAG and your team. Of 12 those two teams, which team generally has primary responsibility?

13 A For coordinating, we will help coordinate, substantively TAG.

14 Q In advance of one of these meetings, will you or anyone from your team

15 meet with [redacted] or anyone from his team?

16 A About?

17 Q In advance of the meetings if you're preparing for them. Or you said

18 sometimes Google will share information.

19 A Often to arrange calendars, see when people are available. Nothing comes

20 to mind substantively, no.

21 Q During the meetings, to your knowledge, does anyone from the company

22 take notes?

23 A Not that I know of.

24 Q And to your knowledge, does anyone, whether within the company or at the 25 FBI, circulate meetings minutes or similar output after a meeting has occurred?

1 A Not that I can recall.

2 Q Have you had substantive discussions with [redacted] or anyone on his

3 team regarding any potential do-outs following one of these meetings?

4 A Nothing that I specifically remember.

5 Q When it comes to identifying -- let me strike that.

6 Do you have familiarity with the term "attribution" in this context?

7 A Yes.

8 Q And to your understanding, what is it?

9 A Identifying who an actor is on the internet.

10 Q When it comes to disinformation campaigns by foreign states, what degree

11 of difficulty is there when it comes to attribution?

12 A I don't know specifically.

13 Q Who at the company would be in the best position to answer that question?

14 A TAG.

15 Q And would that include [redacted]?

16 A Yes.

17 Q Do you recall any discussions with [redacted] or anyone on his team

18 regarding difficulties related to attribution, specifically difficulties determining domestic 19 versus foreign?

20 A No.

21 Q During meetings with the Foreign Influence Task Force, do you recall any

22 similar discussions, the difficulties of attribution and, specifically, the difficulties related

23 to foreign versus domestic?

24 A Not that I remember.

25 Q How do you communicate with the Foreign Influence Task Force in addition

1 to these meetings?

2 A Via email.

3 Q Anything else besides email?

4 A Maybe I'll talk to Elvis on the phone, but it's primarily email.

5 Q Are there any Signal channels between you and the FBI?

6 A Just us specifically?

7 Q Yes.

8 A No.

9 Q What about with others?

10 A There are -- there is an industry group for election integrity, and they use the 11 signal channel.

12 Q And for the industry group, does the signal channel include the government?

13 A There are two channels, one with the government, I believe, and one 14 without.

15 Q And are you on either of these signal channels?

16 A I am now on both.

17 Q And are both channels active, being used right now?

18 A They are active in the sense that you can send a message. They are not

19 particularly active in traffic.

20 Q We'll start with the one with the government. To the extent you have a 21 recollection, when was the last time someone posted or sent a message in that channel?

22 A I don't remember.

23 Q Any this year?

24 A I don't remember specifically, but probably.

25 Q And for the channel without the government, do you recall when the last

1 time someone sent a message in that channel?

2 A I don't, but I'll say this year.

3 Q To your knowledge, who else from the company is on either channel?

4 A [redacted], and I believe -- that's the only person at Google I'm sure of.

5 Q Do you ever send messages in either channel?

6 A I don't think I ever have.

7 Q To the extent you can recall, when did you join both channels?

8 A Right before [redacted] left Google.

9 Q And [redacted], to your understanding, was on both channels?

10 A Yes.

11 [redacted] This is exhibit 1.

12 [[redacted] Exhibit No. 1

13 Was marked for identification.]

14 BY [redacted]

15 Q So you're added at the very end of this email chain and copied on. Do you

16 have any recollection of being added to this email chain?

17 A Vaguely.

18 Q And the email is dated June 24, 2022. Is this consistent around the time

19 you were taking over part of [redacted] portfolio?

20 A Yes.

21 Q Do you know who [redacted] is?

22 A I don't.

23 Q Do you recall any interactions with her since the date of this email?

24 A I can't remember if we actually created a one-pager or not.

25 Q In the title of her email address, she identifies as being on the mis-, dis-, and

1 malinformation team at CISA. To your understanding, what is that team?

2 A I don't know.

3 Q Have you had any interactions with anyone else on the MDM team at CISA?

4 A Not that I'm aware of.

5 Q Do you recall any discussions with [redacted] regarding his interactions

6 with CISA?

7 A I don't.

8 Q When we were -- earlier in the hour, you had identified the FBI and DHS as

9 two government agencies, and then CISA as the subagency within DHS you had had

10 interactions with. To the extent you have recollections, what happened in your

11 interactions with CISA since, we'll say June of 2022?

12 A On election interference?

13 Q Yes.

14 A They are also on that industry group I mentioned, and that would be all.

15 Q And when you say the industry group, are you referring to the signal

16 channel?

17 A Yes. And then they hold a call on occasion.

18 Q So to your understanding, on the signal channel, there are -- the one with 19 the government, there are individuals from the FBI and individuals from CISA?

20 A I believe so.

21 Q Do you know who from CISA?

22 A No.

23 Q How frequently do the calls with CISA occur?

24 A So I don't -- it's not just CISA. The industry call, I believe, is quarterly and 25 then cadence can change based on what people want.

1 Q And when did you first begin attending these industry calls?

2 A I don't remember exactly, but I believe my first call was right around this

3 time period before [redacted] left.

4 Q To your recollection, how many of these industry calls have you attended?

5 A Two, maybe three.

6 Q And does anyone else from your team, the security legal team, attend these

7 calls?

8 A No.

9 Q Do you know who else from Google attends these calls?

10 A [redacted], and then, I believe, members from trust and safety also join.

11 Q Who from the trust and safety team has joined these calls?

12 A I believe it's [redacted].

13 Q And who is [redacted]?

14 A He's a trust and safety -- I don't know his exact title.

15 Q Do you have interactions with him as part of your job?

16 A Not often.

17 Q On the few occasions it does occur, what's the context for those

18 interactions?

19 A In relation to elections. I believe his work involves election security.

20 Q And just to clarify, are these interactions other than being on the same

21 industry call?

22 A Or inviting him to it, yes.

23 Q And for the interactions other than the industry call or any kind of just

24 logistics of getting everyone on the call, what's the nature of these -- of your interactions

25 with [redacted]?

1 A They would be in relation to elections.

2 Q Okay. Is he providing you information or you providing him information?

3 A Not really one way or the other.

4 Q I guess a different way of phrasing the question is what requires the security

5 legal team to interact with the trust and safety team?

6 A On election security?

7 Q On election security.

8 A There is very little interaction.

9 Q And on the few occasions it does, what sort of examples of --

10 A You know, asking if someone is going to be on this call. I believe if they had 11 information, that at times they may have shared things, but there isn't that much.

12 Q If your two teams are, what it sounds like, focused on different sets of 13 issues, are the -- is the subject matter of the industry calls broad? Are there a number

14 of topics?

15 A No. I believe they're related to election security and integrity.

16 Q With the understanding that you started joining these calls only last 17 year -- actually, let me strike that first.

18 On these calls, is it the government providing information to industry, or industry

19 providing information to the government?

20 Mr. Bopp. When you say these calls, just so the record is clear, what calls are 21 you talking about now?

22 BY [redacted]

23 Q The industry calls with CISA and others.

24 A I believe it's primarily the government sharing information.

25 Q And to your understanding, does -- do industry representatives on the call

1 ever share information with the government?

2 A I believe they have, yes.

3 Q And do you recall anyone from Alphabet, from Google, presenting

4 information on one of these calls?

5 A Not specifically to the government, no.

6 Q And have you ever presented on one of these calls?

7 A No.

8 Q When the government is sharing information, with the understanding that

9 you joined these calls only last year, to which team at the company is the information

10 usually the most relevant to?

11 A To TAG.

12 Q [redacted] team?

13 A Yes, or trust and safety.

14 Q So would you say your team is kind of the third most relevant?

15 A We're the other team on the call.

16 Q Fair enough.

17 Are these calls ongoing?

18 A I believe so.

19 Q Independent of this email chain and the one-pager discussed by CISA with 20 [redacted], do you recall any other similar projects or tasks that your team has been a 21 part of?

22 A I don't.

23 [redacted] We can take these exhibits back.

24 BY [redacted]

25 Q In the context of your communications with Agent Chan and the Foreign

1 Influence Task Force, have you ever received Teleporter links?

2 A I have.

3 Q And what are those?

4 A It is the file sharing system the FBI uses.

5 Q And is Teleporter used just by the Foreign Influence Task Force, or is it used

6 by other teams and task forces within the FBI?

7 A I believe others use it, too.

8 Q With respect to who you have received Teleporter links from, has it only 9 been Agent Chan and the Foreign Influence Task Force?

10 A No. I would say Agent Chan or other agents that work with him. I don't 11 know if they are part of the Foreign Influence Task Force or not.

12 Q Do these Teleporter links contain, at a high level, contain information related 13 to election-related issues at all?

14 A Not that I remember specifically.

15 Q The Teleporter links that are being sent, the subject matter, is it similar to

16 the subject matter that is discussed during the calls between -- in the meetings between 17 Google and the Foreign Influence Task Force?

18 A I believe sometimes, but not always.

19 Q What are some of the additional topics or areas?

20 A Hacking campaigns by nation states.

21 Q What is Google's protocol for handling these Teleporter links?

22 A They typically come to either [redacted] or myself. One of us will download.

23 If I download, I will forward on to [redacted] and to TAG.

24 Q And then once it's downloaded, is there -- are there any other steps

25 regarding maintaining a written record of what happens next?

1 Mr. Bopp. I'm not sure I understand the question. So you're saying
2 post-download, does [redacted] group, or are we talking about just generally does he know
3 if there are any steps that are then taken with the Teleporter information by Google?
4 BY [redacted]
5 Q Yeah, so the first question will be with respect to standard protocol, and 6 then we'll ask the same questions as far as how it actually plays out.
7 A So I forward it on to TAG. I don't know what specifically TAG does with it 8 after.
9 Q Are there ever links that you don't need to forward on to TAG?
10 A No. I send them all.
11 Q Are there links that require work from your team?
12 A Not that I can recall specifically. I can't think of a specific time. Typically,
13 we would send it on. I guess if they had a question, they would ask us, but nothing is 14 coming to mind.
15 Q In an earlier answer, you said either you or [redacted] would download the 16 links. Did I hear that correctly?
17 A Yes. I think we're typically the two they send it to.
18 Q So to your understanding, you two serve as the points of contact for the 19 company, but generally, the Teleporter links are most relevant to [redacted] team. Is 20 that correct?
21 A That's correct.
22 Q To the extent you have knowledge, do the Teleporter links ever include in 23 the body of whatever is in the Teleporter message, links to YouTube or any content that's 24 hosted by Alphabet?
25 A I believe at times they have, yes.

1 Q And to the extent you can remember, when there are links to YouTube, what
2 is the context of why the government is sending along those specific links?
3 A I don't remember specifically. I assume it ties to a nation state or foreign
4 actor.
5 Q When -- let me take a quick step back.
6 These Teleporter links, are they sent via email?
7 A Yes.
8 Q And who from the government is most frequently the sender?
9 A Elvis.
10 Q And when Agent Chan sends the links, does the company follow up with 11 respect to the information received?
12 A Follow up with who?
13 Q With Agent Chan.
14 A We will confirm receipt often. I think they may be able to just see it on 15 their end as well.
16 Q Has Agent Chan ever followed up on specific links to see if any action was 17 taken?
18 A Not that I remember.
19 Q To your knowledge, is Agent Chan in contact with [redacted] at times
20 independent of you?
21 A Not that I'm aware of. I guess I wouldn't be aware, though.
22 Q Are there -- let me restart that question.
23 Are you familiar with the Foreign Influence Task Force, FITF Global?
24 A Is that a separate entity from -- I think my answer here then is no.
25 Q Okay.

1 [redacted] Just for the record, this will be exhibit 2.

2 [[redacted] Exhibit No. 2

5 Q So first question, this email is dated February of 2022. I don't know if

6 we've covered this previously. When did you first start, to your recollection, attending

7 meetings with the Foreign Influence Task Force?

8 A I don't remember, but my guess would be sometime in 2022.

9 Q And it's sent to [redacted], to you, and to [redacted], and we spoke about

10 both of the other gentlemen there. Does this document refresh your memory at all with 11 respect to what the FITF Global unit is?

12 A Not at all.

13 Q To your understanding, are there multiple units within FITF?

14 A As I mentioned before, I think of them as broken up by, like, country. So a

15 group that's focused on Russia, maybe a group that's focused on China, North Korea, et 16 cetera.

17 Q And then other than those geographic distinctions, do you recall any other 18 distinctions within the task force?

19 A I don't.

20 [redacted] We can take these back.

21 BY [redacted]

22 Q In this context and in the context of engagements with the FBI, do you know

23 what the acronym GSRS stands for?

24 A Is that a Google acronym or an FBI acronym?

25 Q I believe it's a government acronym. We'll introduce an exhibit to try to

1 refresh your memory, but wanted to see if you had knowledge independent.

2 A Let's go ahead and look at an exhibit.

3 Q Okay.

4 [redacted] This will be exhibit 3.

5 [[redacted] Exhibit No. 3

6 Was marked for identification.]

7 BY [redacted]

8 Q Ready?

9 Now that you've had a moment to review, in this context, do you know what

10 [redacted] is referring to by GSRS?

11 A Yes. GSRS is the acronym for Google's security organization. So it's a 12 Google acronym.

13 Q And by Google security organization, is that an internal Google team or a 14 security organization that Google hires?

15 A An internal Google team.

16 Q And in relation to your team and TAG, where does GSRS fit?

17 A Earlier I mentioned that we counsel physical security. GSRS's broad mission

18 is security of physical security, Google or Google campuses.

19 [redacted] We can take these back.

20 Mr. Bopp. Is this a good time for a break?

21 [redacted] We've got just a couple minutes left so.

24 BY [redacted]

25 Q Do you recall why Agent Chan was asked about Mandiant?

1 A Yes.

2 Q And what was the reason?

3 A It seems he read something that Mandiant had published and was asking if

4 there was a law enforcement referral that would accompany it. This was

5 post-acquisition of Mandiant, and I think he was reaching out, wondering if my team was

6 working with Mandiant in this regard.

7 Q Was your team working with Mandiant?

8 A No.

9 Q Do you know if Agent Chan has -- had direct contact with the folks on the 10 Mandiant team?

11 A I don't know.

12 Q Other than this particular report and incident, do you recall if Agent Chan

13 has had questions about Mandiant and its work since it's been acquired by the company?

14 A Nothing that I remember specifically.

15 Q Does Mandiant work with TAG?

16 A Yes.

17 Q Do you know how frequently they work together?

18 A I don't.

19 Q Do you know who leads the Mandiant team right now?

20 A I'm going to blank on the CEO's name. Charles Mandiant. Is that his 21 name?

22 Q And how frequently does your team interact with Mandiant?

23 A On occasion.

24 Q And to your recollection, in meetings with the Foreign Influence Task Force,

25 have representatives from Mandiant ever attended?

1 A I'm sorry. Could you repeat that again?

2 And I think, also, his name is Kevin Mandiant.

3 Q Okay.

4 To your recollection, in meetings between Google and the Foreign Influence Task

5 Force, in addition to the Google representatives, have there been representatives from

6 Mandiant on any of these calls?

7 A Not that I know of.

8 Q Okay.

9 [redacted] Can we go off the record please.

10 [Recess.]

4 Q Good morning, again.

5 A Good morning.

6 Q I'm going to ask just a couple of brief background questions. You

7 mentioned that you worked for the U.S. Department of Justice, computer crimes and 8 intellectual property section in the past. Is that correct?

9 A Yes.

10 Q And your role there was senior counsel, or you were also in another position

11 as well?

12 A I want to say I was hired as senior trial counsel, but maybe the title change

13 came while I was there. I don't recall exactly.

14 Q Do you remember how long you worked there?

15 A Just under 3 years.

16 Q And what kind of work did you do in that capacity?

17 A I prosecuted computer crime and intellectual property cases.

18 Q Was that a civil service position or a political appointment?

19 A Civil service.

20 Q Have you ever held a political appointment in the Federal Government?

21 A I have not.

22 Q All right. In your current role at Google as director security legal, you're not 23 personally involved in any content moderation decisions; is that fair to say?

24 A That is correct.

25 Q And in your current role, you're not personally involved in any fact-checking

1 of content?

2 A That's correct.

3 Q Have you ever been involved in setting content moderation policy for

4 Google, Alphabet or YouTube?

5 A In relation to, like, election integrity, things of that sort?

6 Q First, just generally, like would you -- have you been involved in setting

7 content moderation polity for the company?

8 A For a team perspective, one of the topics we advise on is child safety. And

9 so when it comes to child sexual abuse media, or CSAM, we do advise, and it's treated as 10 contraband. There's a law prohibiting things of that sort.

11 Q So you advise internally on content moderation policy that has to do with 12 child sexual abuse material; is that --

13 A My team does, yes.

14 Q Okay. Any other subjects other than child sexual abuse material?

15 A The team also covers like nonconsensual exploitive imagery, or NCEI.

16 Q Can you just generally explain what that means?

17 A It's colloquially referred to as revenge porn.

18 Q Is that also prohibited by law?

19 A In some countries, yes.

20 Q Any other subject matter that you would advise Google, Alphabet, or 21 YouTube on with respect to content moderation policy other than those two?

22 A For the moderation or removal of it?

23 Q Exactly.

24 A Not that comes to mind.

25 Q Okay. Have you ever played any role in the development of Google's

1 community guidelines or its terms of service?

2 A No.

3 Q And have you ever played a role in deciding whether a particular content on 4 the platform would be removed or downgraded?

5 A No.

6 Q Okay. I'm going to step back a little bit and talk broadly about what

7 I -- questions about Google's sort of core mission, if you know as an executive in the

8 company.

9 Would you agree that Google's core mission as a corporation is to help people

10 around the world find information that they're seeking?

11 A Yes.

12 Q In your current role as director legal -- security legal, sorry, do you work to 13 advance that mission?

14 A Yes.

15 Q And could you say in your own words generally how you do that in your 16 current role?

17 A Broadly speaking, we, you know -- the security of the company itself and the 18 data it handles and compliance with laws around the world regarding that goes towards

19 protecting both the company as well as our users. When it comes to the protection of 20 users themselves, helping stop scams or crimes, things of that sort, allowed individuals to

21 use the platform to get the information. And so we want users to feel safe or secure in 22 using our products and services.

23 Q And would you say that allowing or creating that space where Google can be 24 used without harm to users is in the economic interest of Google?

25 A Yes.

1 Q And that's partly your job as an executive at Google is to advance that
2 interest?
3 A Yes.
4 Q I'm going to ask you generally about some threats to Google's platform. I
5 don't know if this is within your responsibilities, so please tell me if it's not. But in your 6 role currently at Google, do you have any responsibility with respect to concerns about 7 the security of Google's networks and platforms generally, and by that, I mean the 8 physical security of those networks and platforms?
9 A Yes.
10 Q And what is your role with respect to maintaining that security?
11 A We advise engineering or security teams in their work protecting our
12 platform.
13 Q Okay. And what's an example of a physical threat to your platform?
14 A If somebody was to break into our offices to steal things.
15 Q Okay. Other than giving advice to your engineering team, do you have any 16 other role in attempting to mitigate this type of threat?
17 A When you say this type of threat, you mean the physical threat?
18 Q I mean -- yes. The one we just spoke of.
19 A Physical threats primarily just advice.
20 Q Okay. Another type of threat, malicious actors attempting to hack a Google
21 account -- a Google user's account. Is this the type of threat that in your role at Google, 22 you have a concern for?
23 A Yes.
24 Q And what, if anything, do you or your team do to mitigate that threat?
25 A Again, we provide legal advice to security teams, engineering teams that

1 protect our platform.

2 Q Are you concerned in your role with Google platforms or accounts being

3 used to commit a crime?

4 A Yes.

5 Q And what, if anything, do you do to mitigate that threat?

6 A So my investigation teams will look into this activity, and if appropriate, we

7 may either file a civil suit, lawsuit, or provide a referral to law enforcement so that they

8 can further investigate.

9 Q Okay. How about a threat that I would characterize as a malicious actor

10 attempting to manipulate the Google platform, or an account through coordinated

11 inauthentic behavior? Is that the type of threat that you would be concerned with in 12 your role?

13 A Just generally speaking, but the work here would be done by TAG.

14 Q Okay. Can you -- are you familiar with the term coordinated inauthentic

15 behavior?

16 A At a very high level.

17 Q Okay. From your perspective, what does that mean?

18 A That a group of actors are working together to present false information.

19 Q And I think you've said this, but that type of threat is normally addressed by 20 the TAG team. Is that fair to say?

21 A Yes. TAG, or trust and safety.

22 Q Okay. Do you know if Google has its own means of detecting coordinated

23 inauthentic behavior, I mean, internally?

24 A Yes. I mean, if we're using coordinated inauthentic behavior to mean,

25 again, like foreign actor groups, yes. TAG investigates those groups.

1 Q And when I say, or ask if they have an internal means of detecting that type
2 of behavior, I'm asking if it's possible for Google to detect that behavior without it being
3 referred from an outside source like law enforcement?
4 A Yes.
5 Q Okay. And sometimes, does Google internally find those type of 6 coordinated inauthentic behaviors?
7 A Yes.
8 Q And I understand this is not your role in particular to deal with this kind of 9 behavior. Is that fair to say?
10 A To detect it myself, no.
11 Q Well, once it's detected, do you have any role in addressing it?
12 A Not typically.
13 Q Okay. You spoke in the first hour about different types of interactions that 14 you have with U.S. government agencies, like the Department of Justice, the Federal 15 Bureau of Investigations, and CISA.
16 Can you just step back outside a little bit, and in your own words, describe when 17 do you interact with those agencies?
18 A I primarily interact with the U.S. Department of Justice and the Federal 19 Bureau of Investigation. I don't personally interact with DHS very often. And most of 20 my interactions are related to abuse of our platform in a criminal context, and the 21 referrals that we may be giving.
22 Q So in that respect, can you give an example of what type of things that 23 you're doing in abuse of the platform?
24 A For example, last year, if we detect, you know, users perhaps operating a bot
25 net, or committing ad fraud on our platform, and we can identify who those individuals

1 are, as well as a criminal violation, beyond just the abuse of our platform, we will refer
2 that to law enforcement with the hope that they will further investigate.
3 Q Okay. So fair to say that internally in those examples, Google has identified
4 some behavior like ad fraud, for example, and someone on your team, or in a Google
5 team somewhere decides that that may be a criminal violation, and therefore, they're 6 going to make a referral; is that fair to say that's how you would respond?
7 A Yes.
8 Q Okay. Even -- I mean, let's say the example of ad fraud, it's possible that 9 what you find or what the team finds might not be a criminal violation, but it might also 10 separately violate your own terms of service or your community standards; is that fair to 11 say?
12 A Yes.
13 Q And so Google could deal with that in its own internal processes; is that 14 right?
15 A Yes.
16 Q So the law enforcement referral may or may not happen, but it's a different
17 track; is that fair to say?
18 A Yeah.
19 Q What I mean is, like if you come across a type of behavior on your 20 platform -- and I'm going to stick with your example of ad fraud that you brought up, 21 something that you think constitutes ad fraud, that behavior may separately violate some 22 internal community standard, or terms of service of Google; is that fair to say?
23 A Yes.
24 Q And you would internally deal with that or somebody in Google would deal
25 with that by addressing the content based on your terms of service or your community

1 standards, right?

2 A Yes.

3 Q That same behavior might also violate a criminal law, correct?

4 A Yes.

5 Q But you don't make that determination, right?

6 A In the violation of criminal law, whether we should do a referral --

7 Q Well, you said that you make the referral; is that right, if you think it could

8 violate the criminal law?

9 A Yes.

10 Q But you don't decide whether -- you don't prosecute it, obviously, right?

11 A No.

12 Q So you have your internal processes that have to do with your community

13 standards or something internal, and then there's a separate process of law enforcement

14 referral that may happen outside of Google, right?

15 A The law enforcement referral would go from Google, and then law

16 enforcement would independently act on that, yes.

17 Q Okay. You interact with government agencies also for lawful access work, 18 like subpoenas and search warrants; is that right?

19 A I used to, yes.

20 Q But not any longer in your capacity in this job?

21 A Not typically, no.

22 Q Do you also interact with law enforcement agencies outside of the United

23 States in your current role?

24 A Yes.

25 Q Okay. You spoke in the first hour about specific interactions with the FBI's

1 foreign influence task force. Do you recall those questions?

2 A Yes.

3 Q All right. And I think you indicated that those were roughly quarterly

4 meetings that you've attended since you've been in your current position?

5 A I believe so, yes.

6 Q And specifically, you interacted with Special Agent Elvis Chan; is that right?

7 A Yes.

8 Mr. Bopp. Just one clarification, I don't believe [redacted] said that he's been 9 attending the meetings regularly, or since he got into his current position.

10 BY [redacted]

11 Q Okay. Could you clarify then? Since you've got into your current position, 12 have you been attending the foreign influence task force meetings regularly?

13 A I've gone to some.

14 Q Okay. In some of those interactions or meetings, you've interacted with 15 Special Agent Elvis Chan; is that right?

16 A Yes.

17 Q Okay.

18 [redacted] Could I have this marked as marked exhibit 5?

19 [[redacted] Exhibit No. 5

20 Was marked for identification.]

21 BY [redacted]

22 Q So this exhibit is marked exhibit 5. Take a second to look at it. This is not 23 your statement. It's a statement from Elvis Chan.

24 [Witness reviews the document.]

25 BY [redacted]

1 Q The only pages I've included in the exhibit are the first page to identify that
2 it's a deposition taken on Tuesday, November 29, 2022, in a civil lawsuit, and then
3 pages 32 and 33 and 34 have some statements that Mr. Chan made relating to his 4 interaction with social media groups like Google.
5 So let me direct your attention to page 32 of the exhibit, and I think you should
6 see the highlighting on there?
7 A Yes.
8 Q Okay. Just have a quick look at that and familiarize yourself with it, if you 9 would?
10 A Yes.
11 Q Thanks. Let me know when you had a chance to look at it.
12 A I'm ready.
13 Q So Special Agent Chan has described the purpose of the foreign influence
14 task force as periodic meetings with Google and other tech companies as sharing
15 information that Google can use to protect its platform as it deems appropriate.
16 Do you agree generally with Agent Chan that the purpose of those meetings
17 seems to be to share information generally so that Google can protect its platform as it 18 deems appropriate?
19 A Yes.
20 Q Okay. And if you would turn to page 34? Yeah. Sorry, we're skipping
21 over 33. Do you see the highlighted portion? There's two of them. Just take a look 22 at that really quick of the witness's statement.
23 A I'm ready.
24 Q Okay. Agent Chan has also stated that when the FBI provides information
25 to tech companies like Google, the expectation is that the company, quote, "can take

1 whatever actions they deem appropriate without any suggestion or interference from the
2 FBI," unquote.
3 Do you agree with this characterization of the FBI's information sharing practices
4 as they apply to Google?
5 A Yes.
6 Q On the same page, Agent Chan has testified that when the foreign influence
7 task force has identified suspected state-sponsored or state-controlled accounts, and 8 alerted Google to their suspicion, the decision to take down the account or not is 9 Google's, quote, "own choice and not result of any FBI direction."
10 In your experience is it true that the decision to take down such an account is 11 made by Google internally without direction from the FBI or any other government 12 actors?
13 A Yes.
14 Q In the prior hour -- we can take that back. Thank you.
15 In the prior hour, you were asked about some Teleporter links that you received 16 from the FBI's information-sharing or file-sharing system. Do you recall those 17 questions?
18 A I do.
19 Q Okay. Agent Chan has spoken about what he called tactical information
20 that he shared via Teleporter links with Google on occasion. And he described some of 21 that information, for example, as identifying specific accounts, or URLs, that the FBI had 22 concluded with high confidence are foreign originated accounts or URLs pretending to be 23 American.
24 Have you, personally, ever received any such tactical information from Agent
25 Chan?

1 A When you say personally, do you mean via Teleporter?

2 Q Yeah, that came to you in your current role at Google.

3 A I believe so, in the sense of information related to URLs or accounts.

4 Q Okay. Often this type of tactical information will include a statement from

5 the FBI, something to the effect of, we assess that these accounts are being controlled by,

6 for example, the internet research agency of Russia, or some other foreign

7 state-sponsored actor.

8 Do you ever recall receiving that kind of message with that kind of assessment

9 from the FBI?

10 A Generally. No specifics.

11 Q Okay. If you had received that, what would be your response?

12 A I would send it onto TAG.

13 Q Okay. And would you ever make any decision yourself in your position at 14 Google with respect to that account or information that had been flagged?

15 A No.

16 Q I'm sorry. Could you say that loud?

17 A Sorry. No.

18 Q Thank you. All right. In addition to the FBI and DOJ, you also mentioned

19 that you had a few interactions with CISA; is that correct?

20 A Yes, referring to the -- I believe they're in the industry calls.

21 Q Yes. And I think that you said, just to clarify, that your interactions with 22 CISA were pretty limited and limited to quarterly industry calls; is that fair to say?

23 A In this context, yes. And the email I was shown earlier, I believe was from

24 CISA.

25 Q Okay. And you estimated that your participation in these quarterly calls

1 that involve CISA maybe amounted to two or three total; is that fair to say?

2 A I believe so.

3 Q Okay. Is it fair to say that those calls were mostly on the subject of election

4 integrity and election security?

5 A Yes.

6 Q Have you -- well, also, the information that you received from CISA, if any,

7 during these meetings, is it fair to say that normally it would relate to time, place, and

8 manner information about the elections?

9 A I don't remember.

10 Q Okay. During your interactions with government officials, including CISA

11 officials, did anyone from the government ever demand that you or anyone at Google

12 remove any content on one of your platforms or shut down any user account?

13 A Not that I recall.

14 Q Okay.

15 [redacted] I'm going to mark this as exhibit 6.

16 [[redacted] Exhibit No. 6

17 Was marked for identification.]

18 BY [redacted]

19 Q I've marked as exhibit 6 a letter from the United States Department of 20 Justice to Chairman Jordan of this committee on the subject of DOJ's interaction with

21 social media companies. The letter was signed by Assistant Attorney General Carlos

22 Felipe Uriarte, and there's no date on here.

23 I'm going to direct your attention --

24 Mr. Bopp. Can you give us a minute to --

25 [redacted] Oh, yeah, of course. Take a minute.

1 Mr. Halse. There's a date on the signature line.

2 [redacted] Is it? I was looking for that earlier. The date for the letter is

3 June 21st, 2023.

4 [Witness reviews the document.]

5 BY [redacted]

6 Q Okay. Okay. [redacted], with respect to the DOJ and FBI, the Department

7 of Justice has publicly explained how it works with private companies like Google to share

8 information and to help Google prepare to detect illegal conduct on its platform. This

9 letter is marked as exhibit 6. The letter clearly states that with respect to content

10 moderation decisions, the social media companies with which DOJ and FBI interact are,

11 quote, "themselves have the responsibility and authority to make decisions based on 12 their own terms of service and how to apply those terms to protect their platforms and

13 users."

14 Do you have any reason to believe that this is not true?

15 A No.

16 Q In your experience at Google, do you agree with the statement that DOJ

17 allows Google to take responsibility and to exercise the authority to make content

18 moderations decisions itself?

19 A Yes.

20 Q The letter further states, quote, "engagement with social media companies

21 is critical to disseminate information about potentially ongoing criminal activities and to

22 share strategic and tactical information to help the companies identify national security

23 threats on their platforms."

24 In your experience in your role at Google, do you agree that such information

25 sharing is important to advance Google's interests?

1 A Yes.

2 Q The DOJ letter then broadly describes five categories of disinformation that

3 the FBI and DOJ have sought to share with social media companies. These include:

4 One, counter and foreign malign influence operations; two, election-related time, place,

5 and manner disinformation; three, combating terrorist use of social media platforms;

6 four, cyber criminal activities; and five, other crimes and security threats online.

7 We've talked with you previously in the other hour about foreign-maligned

8 influence operations. And with respect to that, DOJ has stated that it shares tactical

9 information with social media companies, including information like IP addresses, email

10 accounts, file hash values, in order to quote, assist a social media company's own

11 independent investigation into whether there is violation of its own terms of service.

12 In your experience, is that the type of information that is received from DOJ?

13 A Generally, yes.

14 Q And for the purpose of -- do you agree that the information seems to be

15 shared for the purpose of allowing Google to make its own independent investigation,

16 and to determine whether there's a violence of its own terms of service?

17 A Yes.

18 Q The DOJ further stated that the U.S. government does not, quote, "does not

19 direct or coerce companies to take any action with respect to users or accounts."

20 In your experience, is it true that the U.S. government does not, quote, "direct or 21 coerce companies to take any action," unquote?

22 A Yes.

23 Q The DOJ also stated that its decision to share information with the social 24 media platforms about a foreign maligned actor's social media activity, quote, "is not 25 based on the content or particular viewpoint expressed in the posting," unquote, but

1 instead is based on, quote, "on the conclusion that the account is part of a cohort effort
2 by a maligned foreign actor," unquote.
3 In your experience, does this appear to be true, that DOJ's information-sharing
4 practices are not based on the content of the information, but on the suspected covert
5 foreign actor's status as a covert foreign actor?
6 A Yes.
7 Q The DOJ letter talks with respect to election time, place, and manner
8 disinformation about the FBI or DOJ relaying tips about these type of disinformation posts 9 to social media companies, and that according to the letter, this information is shared in 10 order to make the social media platform aware that this information is being passed in 11 order to minimize the scope of harm to victims who might be misled by the information.
12 Again, the letter states that DOJ and the FBI, quote, "does not pressure or coerce
13 platforms into taking any action. The FBI relies on the platforms to take the actions they 14 deem appropriate under its terms of service," end quote.
15 Do you agree with that statement with respect to DOJ and FBI not coercing or 16 pressuring Google to take any action with respect to time, place, and manner of 17 disinformation?
18 A Yes.
19 Q And finally, the third category that we've discussed a little bit is cyber 20 criminal activity on social media platforms. With respect to that kind of information, the 21 DOJ letter states that the FBI may in some circumstances notify social media platforms of 22 spear-fishing, malvertizing, or other fraud enabling activities on their platforms. The 23 letter states that, quote, "the FBI's practice is not to pressure or coerce companies to take 24 any actions, and companies do not necessarily disclose to the FBI whether they took any 25 action on such fraud," end quote.

1 In your experience in your role at Google interacting with the FBI, is this true?
2 A Yes.
3 Q On the first page, there's a footnote on the letter that refers to a public
4 report from July 2, 2018. The report is titled, Attorney General's cyber digital task force,
5 and there's a large quote in that footnote.
6 The quote says, "The department maintains strategic relationships with social
7 media platforms that reflect the private sector's critical role in addressing the threat.
8 Social media providers have unique insight into their own networks and bear the primary
9 responsibility of securing their own products, platforms, and services. The FBI can assist 10 the providers' voluntary efforts to identify foreign influence activities and to enforce the 11 terms of service that prohibit the use of their platforms for such activities. This 12 approach is similar to the department's recent approaches in working with providers to 13 address terrorist use of social media and more traditional collaborate to combat child
14 pornography, bot nets, internet fraud, and other digital infrastructure" -- and sorry,
15 "other misuse of digital infrastructure. By providing information about potential

17 platforms, identify foreign influence operations on those platforms, share information 18 across diverse products and services, and better ensure their users are not exposed to 19 unlawful foreign influence," end quote.
20 Do you agree generally with the characterization of DOJ's information sharing
21 relationship with Google as it was described in that footnote?
22 A Yes.
23 Q During your interactions with U.S. Government officials, did any of the 24 officials you interacted with ever try to coerce you or anyone else at Google into 25 promoting or removing any content for political purposes?

1 A No.

2 Q Have any U.S. Government officials ever directed you or anyone else at 3 Google, to your knowledge, to change its community standards or terms of service?

4 A No.

5 Q Have any U.S. Government officials ever tried to persuade you or anyone

6 else at Google that you know of to change its -- sorry. Strike that. I just asked that.

7 Did U.S. Government officials ever threaten you or any Google employee with

8 adverse actions if Google refused to take any particular action the government official

9 desired?

10 A No.

11 Q Did any U.S. Government official ever ask Google employees to promote or 12 remove any content based on the political or ideological viewpoint that it expressed?

13 A Not that I'm aware of.

14 Q Did anyone working at the White House ever order you to remove a post, an 15 account, or other content from Google's platforms?

16 A No.

17 Q Are you familiar with the claim made by some of this committee's

18 Republican Members that the Federal Government has, quote, "colluded," unquote, with

19 Google and other private companies to censor certain types of political and ideological

20 speech in violation of the First Amendment?

21 A Very generally.

22 Q Based on your experience at Google during both the Trump and Biden

23 administrations, do you believe that such collusion was occurring while you were 24 employed at Google?

25 A No.

1 Q Do you have any reason to believe that this type of collusion is occurring
2 today?
3 A No.
4 Q In your experience, do you think that Google has attempted to operate in a
5 manner that respects the First Amendment rights of its platform users?
6 A Yes.
7 Q Do you believe it's in Google's interest as a company who promote freedom
8 of speech for its platform users?
9 A Yes.
10 Q And why is that?
11 A There is benefit from hearing from a diverse audience and a difference of 12 thoughts, I think, is good for free society generally.
13 Q Even though you've never had any role in content moderation policy other 14 than the advice you described giving with respect to the two type types of child sexual 15 abuse content and the other illegal content, do you have a basic understanding of how 16 content moderation works at Google?
17 A A very basic understanding, yes.
18 Q Okay. You've said that those decisions are not made by your group; is that
19 right?
20 A That's correct.
21 Q Okay. Are you familiar generally with Google's terms of service?
22 A Generally, yes.
23 Q Are they published publicly on the website?
24 A Yes.
25 Q Are you familiar with Google's community standards?

A Generally, yes.

Q And are those also publicly available on the website?

A Yes.

Q Is that true as well for YouTube?

A Yes.

Q Do you know if the terms of service for Google explicitly state that user content may be removed if it violates applicable law?

A I don't know specifically.

Q Okay. Let me ask you this: Do you know -- I know that you don't work directly with content moderation or removal of content, but have you ever heard or understood Google to remove content based solely on the political and ideological viewpoint of the speaker or the content producer?

A No.

[redacted] I don't have any other questions. Thank you. I can take those back. Thanks.

[redacted]. Can we take a 5-minute break?

[redacted] Absolutely.

[Recess.]

2 [11:57 a.m.]

3 [redacted] Back on the record, please.

4 BY [redacted]

5 Q [redacted], do you have familiarity with what the election integrity

6 partnership is?

7 A I don't.

8 Q And as part of your work at Google, do you have any interactions with the 9 global disinformation index?

10 A I don't know what that is.

11 Q Do you have any interactions with the company Graphica?

12 A Not that I can think of.

13 Q What about with the DFR lab, which is housed within the Atlanta Council?

14 A No.

15 Q Regarding the U.S. Government industry sync calls we've discussed in both

16 previous hours, can you go through, again, just to your recollection of which government

17 representatives you recall being on it just by agency? So you named CISA as one.

18 A Yes.

19 Q Do you recall which other government agencies?

20 A The FBI.

21 Q Are there any others?

22 A Not that I'm aware of.

23 Q And not holding you to provide an exhaustive list, but to your recollection,

24 which industry partners tended to attend these meetings?

25 A I know that Meta is on there. Twitter is on there. There are others, but

1 I'm not certain of which ones.

2 Q Do you recall the last time you attended one of these meetings?

3 A I don't. Not specifically.

4 Q Do you recall if it was this year?

5 A Maybe.

6 Q In advance of these U.S. Government industry calls, would there be 7 pre-meetings that were industry only?

8 A Sometimes, yes.

9 Q Did you ever attend those meetings?

10 A I have.

11 Q And just at a high level, what's the purpose of these meetings?

12 A To discuss whether there were questions to ask government or specific 13 topics to raise.

14 Q Okay. And do you recall the forum of which these meetings took place?

15 Was it Zoom or something similar?

16 A Yes.

17 Q Do you recall who from Alphabet would attend these meetings?

18 A [redacted] is the only other one that I'm certain of.

19 Q And do you recall how frequently you would attend these industry only

20 meetings?

21 A I've gone to one or two, maybe three.

22 Q To your understanding, does the cadence of the industry-only meetings

23 match the cadence of the U.S. government industry meetings?

24 A I'm not certain, but something along those lines.

25 Q And to your understanding, then, is there typically -- maybe not in every case, but typically an industry-only meeting for each U.S. Government industry meeting that takes place?

A I think that's true.

Q In the meetings you did attend that were industry-only, would you take notes during those meetings?

A No.

Q Do you recall anyone on the industry call circulating meeting minutes after a meeting?

A Not that I remember.

Q Who among the industry partners kind of plays the role of facilitating or bringing everyone together for the industry meeting; do you know?

A Meta.

Q Meta does. Do you know who at Meta?

A I believe it's [redacted].

Q Other than these industry meetings, as part of your role at Google, do you have interactions with [redacted]?

A I run into him on occasion.

Q Okay.

A But nothing regular.

Q When the FBI is attending these U.S. government industry meetings, is it representatives from the foreign influence task force?

A I don't know.

Q Okay. To your recollection, has Agent Chan ever attended one of the U.S. government-industry meetings?

A I believe so.

1 Q And to your recollection, the U.S. Government-industry meetings, the 2 subject matter tends to focus on elections, or it can be other topics as well?
3 A Elections, I believe.
4 Q Okay. And that's in contrast to the -- Google's meetings with the foreign 5 influence task force where some may be election-related, but it could be other subject
6 matters as well?
7 A That's correct.
8 Q As part of your work related to election information issues, have you had any 9 interactions with ODNI?
10 A Not that I can think of.
11 [redacted] This will be exhibit 7.

15 Mr. Bopp. Okay. You good?
16 [redacted]. Uh-huh.
17 Mr. Bopp. All right.
18 BY [redacted]
19 Q Do you recall this email chain at all?
20 A Not particularly, no.
21 Q Okay. Do you recall if a meeting ultimately was set up between ODNI and 22 individuals at Google?
23 A I don't know.
24 Q And so you don't recall whether you have ever attended a meeting with 25 Olivia or anyone else?

A I don't think I have.

Q Okay. And the [redacted] who's referenced here and responding to some of those emails, that's the same [redacted] that is on your team that you referenced earlier?

A Yes.

Q Are you familiar with any of the individuals from ODNI who are on the email chain?

A I am not.

[redacted] We can take these back.

BY [redacted]

Q As part of your issues related to election information security, did you have any interactions with the White House?

A Not that I can recall.

[redacted] This will be exhibit 8.

[[redacted] Exhibit No. 8

Was marked for identification.]

[Witness reviewing document.]

[redacted] You're ready?

[redacted]. Yes.

BY [redacted]

Q Do you recall this email chain?

A Vaguely, yes.

Q And what is your recollection of the purpose behind it?

A I was added onto by someone in your policy shop. I believe they were setting up a meeting.

Q And to your understanding, did a meeting ultimately occur?

A I believe so, yes.

Q Did you attend this meeting?

A I think I did.

Q And what was the purpose of including you and your team on this call?

A I think they were looking to add an attorney, and I think broadly speaking as security issues go, I was added here.

Q And why do you think they were looking to add an attorney?

A Perhaps just for awareness from legal's side.

Q To your understanding, what is the legal risk with attending a meeting like this?

A I'm sorry. Could you rephrase?

Q Sure. So you said the benefit or the purpose would be for the legal team's awareness. What is the reason behind having the legal team to have awareness of this meeting?

A Oh, I think probably more broadly just that someone from legal is aware. We would have to ask [redacted] why she added me.

Q Who is [redacted]?

A She's in Google's policy, or used to be, at least.

Q To your understanding, where is she now?

A She had changed roles to, I believe, somewhere in Google Cloud policy. And then is now -- she's somewhere in Google's policy teams generally.

Q What were your interactions with [redacted] before this email chain?

A One of [redacted]'s roles was to have interactions with law enforcement or national security. And so, at times, she would either invite us to meetings, or keep us apprised of ongoings of Google and those agencies.

1 Q In addition to the White House here, do you recall which other Federal
2 Government entities [redacted] would -- meetings with other Federal Government
3 agencies [redacted] would include you on?
4 A Law enforcement. So if they had meetings with the FBI or security
5 agencies, things of that sort.
6 Q The other folks from Google who are in the BCC line there, do you recognize 7 the names of anyone?
8 A Generally, yes.
9 Q Can you just quickly run through who they are?
10 A I believe they're all on Google's policies teams.
11 Q And do you recall interactions with any of these policy folks?
12 A Nothing specific, no.
13 Q Do you recall interactions with any of these individuals that is different than 14 your interactions with [redacted]?
15 A No. I interacted with [redacted] more than everyone else there.
16 Q Is [redacted], around this time, fall of 2022, is she your primary point of 17 contact on the policy team?
18 A No. The policy team people have different roles. So I wouldn't say she's 19 my primary contact.
20 Q Reviewing this email chain to the extent you have a recollection, was there a
21 law enforcement angle to this meeting? What was the purpose of the meeting?
22 A So I'm reading the description here, but my recollection of this meeting
23 involved narcotics smuggling.
24 Q Reference to the -- as discussed in the email below [redacted] from the White
25 House, do you recall the meeting ever discussing disinformation?

1 A I don't.

2 Q In addition to this meeting, do you recall other interactions with anyone

3 from the White House?

4 A I don't.

5 Q Do you recall if this meeting took place over Zoom or something similar?

6 A Yes.

7 Q And by yes, they did take place --

8 A A virtual, yes.

9 Q Do you recall who else from Google attended this meeting?

10 A I don't.

11 Q Do you recall if [redacted] attended?

12 A Yes.

13 Q Did anyone else from your team attend?

14 A No.

15 [redacted] We could take these back.

16 BY [redacted]

17 Q In your time at Google, have you had interactions with the Global

18 Engagement Center?

19 A No.

20 Q Have you had engagements with the CDC?

21 A No.

22 [redacted] This will be exhibit 9.

23 [[redacted] Exhibit No. 9

24 Was marked for identification.]

25 BY [redacted]

1 Q Do you recognize this meeting invite?

2 A Nothing specific about it, no.

3 Q The -- Agent Chan is listed at the very top. There are other individuals from

4 the FBI listed in the "to" line. To your understanding, are these agents affiliated with 5 the foreign influence task force?

6 A I don't know.

7 Q Okay. Do you recall having a meeting with the FBI prior to the 8 22 -- 2022 -- excuse me, 2022 U.S. midterm elections?

9 A I don't know if I attended this meeting.

10 Q Do you know who at Google may have attended this meeting?

11 A Based on this list, if it occurred, I would assume [redacted] or [redacted]

12 [redacted]

13 Q To your knowledge, you mentioned that the foreign influence task force

14 meetings would occur kind of a regular cadence. I believe you said quarterly. Is this 15 meeting a part of those quarterly meetings, or is this a one-off meeting?

16 A I don't know.

17 Q Typically, when you would receive meeting invites for the foreign influence

18 task force meetings, would it be as specific as, you know, midterm election touch point,

19 or would it just be the next Google meeting?

20 A I don't remember. This seems more specific. Yeah.

21 Q Do you recall discussions with the FBI specific to the 2022 U.S. midterms?

22 A I don't.

23 Q With respect to the U.S. Government industry calls, do you recall if the 24 cadence -- the frequency increased ahead of the 2022 U.S. elections?

25 A Yes.

1 Q And do you know how, to what degree? I think you said initially it was 2 quarterly or around there?
3 A I think quarterly, monthly, and perhaps closer to an election, it went to every 4 2 weeks.
5 Q Okay.
6 A That's my general recollection.
7 Q In the foreign influence task force meetings with Google that you attended
8 or had familiarity with, when election information-related issues were discussed, did that 9 ever include issues related to misinformation and disinformation?
10 A I don't remember any specific, but yes, I think the foreign actor was 11 spreading misinformation, disinformation, that would be a topic, yes.
12 Q And at least with respect to the Teleporter links, you said in most cases, that 13 was more relevant to [redacted] TAG team; is that right?
14 A Yes.
15 Q With respect to concerns whether a foreign actor was spreading
16 misinformation or disinformation on YouTube or another Google product, which team
17 within the company would that fall under their purview?
18 A Either TAG or trust and safety.
19 Q On this meeting invite, there's [redacted] from your team who you testified.
20 There's you. There's [redacted]. At this time in November 2022, none of the folks
21 from Google on this invite are from the trust and safety team; is that right?
22 A That's correct.
23 Q Do you know, would anyone from Google brief trust and safety on what was 24 discussed at a meeting like this one?
25 A If there was a reason to, it would be TAG.

1 Q Okay. And to your understanding, would it be most likely [redacted]

2 doing that?

3 A Or someone on his team.

4 Q If a briefing were to occur between TAG and the trust and safety team, did

5 you ever attend any of those briefings?

6 A I don't believe so.

7 [redacted] All right. We can take these back, please. Thank you.

4 Q With respect to the two signal channels -- there's one with the government,

5 and one that's industry only. Is that correct?

6 A Yes.

7 Q When you were added, do you recall who added you to the signal channels?

8 A Yes, it was [redacted].

9 Q To your understanding, can anyone in the channel add in people?

10 A I don't know.

11 Q Do you know at least for the personnel from Google, whether messages

12 from signal retained in any way?

13 Mr. Bopp. Or what in any way?

14 BY [redacted]

15 Q Retained.

16 A Yes, I guess for my messages.

17 Q For your messages, are they still available; is that what you're saying?

18 A Yes.

19 Q What familiarity did you have with either signal's channel before you were 20 added?

21 A I don't think I knew about them. I don't recall learning about them before.

22 Q Do you recall the signal channels ever being used to transmit Teleporter

23 links?

24 A No.

25 Q Do you know if the folks on the signal channel for the one with the

1 government, if you have to have a security clearance or anything similar?

2 A I don't know.

3 Q Now that you're on the signal channels, are they -- is it discussed on either in

4 the U.S. Government industry calls or any of the industry calls that kind of mirror in 5 advance of the U.S. Government industry calls?

6 A Sorry, is what discussed?

7 Q Just that there is a signal channel and what is discussed, if anything?

8 A Not that I can think of.

9 Q Is the industry-only signal channel used by industry partners during a

10 meeting with the U.S. Government?

11 A Clarifying, do you mean do people message to signal channel during, like, a 12 meeting with the government?

13 Q Yeah.

14 A Not that I remember.

15 Q Do you know if the government knows about the industry-only signal

16 channel?

17 A I don't know.

18 Q We'll give this version to the court reporter. We only have a couple, so

19 we'll use this. This will be exhibit 10.

23 Q And this is a lengthy exhibit. If I could have counsel and the witness turn to 24 Bates No. 16178. I think it's page 107. If you wish, you're welcome to review prior,

25 but there's a message from [redacted] saying: Adding [redacted] who will be

1 participating in the Google team. You said to expedite things if you want to start your 2 review from there.
3 A I'm ready.
4 Mr. Bopp. Wait a minute. How far should we go here?
5 [redacted] I'd call attention to specific pages, but the range is 107 until the end,
6 136.
7 Mr. Bopp. Okay.
8 BY [redacted]
9 Q So first, if I could have you turn to the first page where you're at right there
10 167, 168. It's dated June 10th, 2022. Is that consistent with your recollection of when 11 you were added to the channels?
12 A Yes.
13 Q And having had a moment to review, is it your understanding that this is the 14 industry-only channel?
15 A Yes, I believe so.
16 Q And do you recall what [redacted] represented to you when adding you to 17 this channel, about what its purpose was?
18 A Generally speaking, that this was an industry group discussing election
19 integrity issues.
20 Q And not necessarily person for person all the way across, but to your 21 understanding, are the folks on the signal channel largely the same industry folks that are 22 on the U.S. industry calls?
23 A I would believe so, yes.
24 Q If I could have you turn to page 16182.
25 A Okay.

1 Q [redacted] name is at the very bottom on the previous page, but the
2 message starts at the top of 16182. Then there's a series of messages that continue on 3 to page 16184.
4 A Okay.
5 Q Yeah. [redacted] posts two from DNI, and then he provides a set of 6 questions. To your recollection, did ODNI ever attend these U.S. Government industry
7 meetings?
8 A I don't know.
9 Q With respect to [redacted] message that is on the top of 16182, did you
10 understand these questions to be from representatives from DNI?
11 A Reading this, that's how I would read it, yes.
12 Q And do you recall any meetings that discussed the questions laid out here?
13 A I don't.
14 Q If someone had a question regarding how Google looks at these questions, 15 who would you direct that question to?
16 A To [redacted].
17 Q If I could have you turn to Bates No. 16186. There's about a third of the 18 way down a message from [redacted] saying a few last-minute questions from the USG side.
19 And then there's a discussion that continues until page 16188.
20 A Okay.
21 Mr. Bopp. One second. Okay.
22 BY [redacted]
23 Q A similar question as before, did you understand -- actually, let me take one 24 step back. Who do you understand [redacted] to be?
25 A I don't know.

1 Q Did you understand these posts to be questions posed from the U.S.
2 Government to industry?
3 A That's how I would read this, yes.
4 Q And the questions posted here, are these the types of subjects and
5 questions that he discussed during U.S. Government industry meetings?
6 A Generally speaking, yeah, with foreign actors maybe doing.
7 Q Do you have any recollection about whether these specific questions were
8 discussed in any U.S. Government industry meeting?
9 A I don't.
10 Q On page 16187, this is the fourth question of [redacted]'s posting, and it says, 4:
11 From July meeting, what narratives are taking a foothold in diaspora communities? And 12 are engagements broad or narrative specific? Do you recall any discussions either
13 relevant to this specific message or at a more general level regarding specific narratives?
14 A I don't.
15 Q If I could have you turn to Bates No. 16190. There are two messages again
16 from David A. The second message corrects the first message. So I'll read it with the 17 correction. It says: Good morning, colleagues. Today's a meeting agenda from USG,
18 as a reminder, was just an ask for updates around the group on new policies, products,
19 and changes to staffing and posture as the election draws closer.
20 Do you recall any U.S. Government industry meetings that involved anyone from 21 industry providing an update on a company's -- any of the company's policies, products,
22 or changes to their staffing posture?
23 A I don't. And you mean the company staffing?
24 Q Yes.
25 A I don't.

1 Q And for any company, not just Google?

2 A You know, what I remember about this thread earlier is that several Twitter

3 people have left, and the thread indicated that. So I don't know if that's the reference

4 to that or not, but that would be a staffing change.

5 Q What about with respect to policies and products?

6 A No.

7 Q Would [redacted] be in a position, if necessary, to discuss Google's policies

8 and products relevant in this context?

9 A Possibly.

10 Q Okay. Would you be able to speak about Google's policies and products?

11 A In regard to election integrity?

12 Q Yes.

13 A This was all new to me at the time. And so, it is not an area of expertise of 14 mine.

15 Q And so you, to your recollection, did not present at any meeting Google's

16 policies and products --

17 A No.

18 Q -- in the election space? Do you have any recollection of whether [redacted]

19 [redacted] ever did?

20 Mr. Halse. With respect to this chain?

21 BY [redacted]

22 Q With respect to the U.S. Government industry meetings.

23 A Yes, I don't remember what he says, but I do believe [redacted] chimed in in one, 24 at least one meeting.

25 Q And in at least that one meeting, do you recall roughly when that occurred?

1 A I don't.

2 Q Do you recall if it was in the lead-up to the 2022 U.S. elections?

3 A I don't, but that wouldn't surprise me.

4 Q And prior to 2022, it's your recollection that you didn't attend any U.S.

5 Government industry meetings that occurred earlier?

6 A Prior to 2022, not that I can remember.

7 Q Yeah. Do you have any understanding about whether these meetings

8 occurred in the lead-up to the 2020 U.S. election?

9 A I wasn't involved, but I feel like I have general recollection that [redacted] was 10 involved in meetings like this would occur.

11 Q With respect to the one instance where -- actually, I'll take a further step

12 back. Regarding industry partners presenting any information on their policies and

13 products as it relates to the election space, for the industry-only meetings that would

14 occur prior to a U.S. Government industry meeting, do you recall any company sharing

15 information on their policies or products in the election space?

16 A Nothing specific, no.

17 Q What about just at a general level, would that be the topic of conversation?

18 A No -- I mean, it may have been. I don't remember anything, though.

19 Q Just from the context of these U.S. Government industry partner meetings,

20 when [redacted] is representing the company, is he representing Alphabet, just Google,

21 only certain products within Google?

22 A I think we'd have to ask him.

23 Q All right. If there were any questions regarding YouTube, would that be 24 within the scope of [redacted]'s responsibility?

25 A Yes, and I guess to clarify my last answer, between Google and Alphabet, I

1 don't know where that would fall. But YouTube would fall under Google. So I would
2 say yes to Google.
3 Q Okay. Thank you. Yeah, if I could have you turn to page 16197. There
4 are messages from [redacted] starting at the bottom of 16197, and then there's a
5 conversation that continues for a couple of pages until 16199.
6 A Okay.
7 Mr. Bopp. Just one second.
8 [redacted] Okay.
9 BY [redacted]
10 Q [redacted] posts a few messages, including: It also seems a lot of this has 11 moved to speculation versus observed activity. And then a subsequent message: And 12 not being clear on the difference.
13 Do you recall what [redacted] was referring to when he posted these messages?
14 A I think generally speaking to that, there wasn't much actual activity being 15 observed by groups.
16 Q And when you say not much activity being observed by groups, would that 17 include the U.S. Government was not observing much activity by groups?
18 A Here I think I would just speak for Google. As to what [redacted] meant
19 specifically here, I would have to ask him.
20 Q There's a message from [redacted] that begins at the bottom of 16198, and 21 then continues onto the next page. And he says: Midterm syndrome: In 2018, they 22 were overindexing on a repeat of 2016. In 2022, they seem to be overindexing. That it
23 will be a repeat of 2020. Then there's another message from [redacted]. He said: I
24 mean, it's good to be watching out, but it does seem like always fighting the last war.
25 Do you have any recollection of what [redacted] meant by these messages?

1 A Very generally speaking, I believe there was not much foreign interference
2 or nation-state activity in this space for the 2022 elections. And so, that input he's 3 mentioning, that, perhaps, there's an expectation that things would be like the past, but 4 that's not what's being observed in this election cycle.
5 Q And to your understanding, did that prove to be true with respect to the
6 2022 U.S. election?
7 A That is my understanding.
8 Q Do you recall having any discussions with [redacted] on this issue outside
9 of this channel?
10 Mr. Bopp. Why don't we -- you can answer only to the extent that you would 11 not implicate the attorney-client privilege?
12 BY [redacted]
13 A I think he would have made similar comments that he is doing here.
14 Q All right. We can take these back. In addition to the two signal channels
15 you've identified, the one with government, and the one that we just looked at, industry
16 only, are you aware of any signal channels that relate to the U.S. Government industry
17 partner meetings?
18 A The election integrity, no.
19 Q Can we go off the record please.
20 [Discussion off the record.]
21 [Whereupon, at 12:44 p.m., the interview was concluded.]

2 [redacted] We'll go on the record.

3 Good morning. This is a transcribed interview of Mr. Eric Miller. Chairman

4 Jordan has requested this interview as part of the committee's oversight of the Federal

5 Bureau of Investigation.

6 Would the witness please state your name for the record?

7 Mr. Miller. Eric Miller.

8 [redacted] We encourage witnesses who appear before the committee to

9 freely consult with counsel if they so choose. And it is my understanding that you are

10 appearing today with personal counsel. Is that correct?

11 Mr. Miller. That's correct.

12 [redacted] Would counsel please state your name for the record?

13 Mr. Kravis. Good morning. My name is Jonathan Kravis from the law firm of 14 Munger, Tolles & Olson. And I'm here representing Mr. Miller today.

15 [redacted] Thank you.

16 On behalf of the committee, I want to thank you for appearing here today to

17 answer our questions. The chairman also appreciates your willingness to appear

18 voluntarily.

19 My name is [redacted], and I'm with Chairman Jordan's staff. I'll now have 20 everyone else here in the room who is with the committee introduce themselves as well.

21 [redacted] [redacted], Chairman Jordan's staff.

22 [redacted] [redacted], chief oversight counsel for the House Judiciary

23 Committee Democrats.

24 [redacted] [redacted], oversight counsel for the Democrats, Judiciary

25 Committee.

1 [redacted] [redacted] with Chairman Jordan.

2 [redacted] [redacted] with Chairman Jordan.

3 [redacted] [redacted] With Chairman Jordan.

4 [redacted] Thank you.

5 I'd like to now go over the ground rules and guidelines that we will follow during

6 today's interview.

7 Our questioning will proceed in rounds. The majority will ask questions first for 1

8 hour, and then the minority will have an opportunity to ask questions for an equal period

9 of time if they so choose. We will alternate back and forth until there are no more

10 questions and the interview is over.

11 Typically, we take a short break at the end of each hour, but if you would like to 12 take a break apart from that, please just let us know.

13 As you can see, there is an official court reporter taking down everything we say to

14 make a written record, so we ask that you give verbal responses to all questions. Do

15 you understand that?

16 Mr. Miller. Yes.

17 [redacted] So the court reporter can take down a clear record, we will do our

18 best to limit the number of staff directing questions at you during any given hour to just 19 those people whose turn is.

20 Please try and speak clearly so the court reporter can understand, and so the folks

21 down at the end of the table can hear you as well. It is important that we don't talk

22 over one another or interrupt each other if we can help it, and that goes for everybody

23 present at today's interview.

24 We want you to answer our questions in the most complete and truthful manner

25 as possible, so we will take our time. If you have any questions or if you do not

1 understand one of our questions, please let us know.

2 Our questions will cover a wide range of topics, so if you need clarification at any

3 point, just let us know. If you honestly don't know the answer to a question or do not

4 remember, it is best not to guess. Please give us your best recollection, and it is okay to

5 tell us if you learned information from someone else. Just indicate how you came to

6 know the information.

7 If there are things you don't know or can't remember, just say so, and please

8 inform us who, to the best of your knowledge, might be able to provide a more complete

9 answer to the question.

10 You should also understand that by law, you are required to answer questions

11 from Congress truthfully. Do you understand that?

12 Mr. Miller. Yes.

13 [redacted] This also applies to questions posed by congressional staff in an

14 interview. Do you understand this?

15 Mr. Miller. Yes.

16 [redacted] Witnesses that knowingly provide false testimony could be subject

17 to criminal prosecution for making false statements under 18 U.S.C. Section 1001. Do

18 you understand this?

19 Mr. Miller. Yes.

20 [redacted] Is there any reason you are unable to provide truthful answers to

21 today's questions?

22 Mr. Miller. No.

23 [redacted] Finally, I'd like to make note that the content of what we discuss

24 here today is confidential. We ask that you not speak about what we discuss in this

25 interview to any outside individuals to preserve the integrity of our investigation. For

1 the same reason, the marked exhibits that we will use today will remain with the court
2 reporter so that they can go in the official transcript, and any copies of those exhibits will
3 be returned to us when we wrap up.
4 All right. That's the end of my preamble. Is there anything that my colleagues
5 from the minority would like to add?
6 [redacted] We just thank the witness for taking time out of your day to join us
7 today.
8 [redacted] Any opening statements from you all?
9 Mr. Kravis. No, not from us. We're happy to answer any questions you have 10 this morning. Thank you.
11 [redacted] Thank you so much.
12 Okay. The clock now reads 10:01 a.m. We will start our first hour of 13 questioning.
14 EXAMINATION
15 BY [redacted]
16 Q Mr. Miller, I want to begin with just a bit of your professional background.
17 Where do you currently work?
18 A I work for Amazon Web Services.
19 Q And when did you start at that job?
20 A I started in September of 2021.
21 Q And what are your roles and responsibilities with Amazon?
22 A I lead the industrial security and compliance organization that supports our 23 Federal Government contracts.
24 Q And in your current role, do you have any interactions with the FBI?
25 A Periodically.

1 Q And what do those entail?

2 A Generally, it has to do with -- mainly our contracts.

3 Q Okay. And going to your time with the Bureau, when did you join the FBI?

4 A I joined in May of 2006.

5 Q And what was your motivation for joining the Bureau?

6 A Well, I grew up in a small town in rural Indiana with relatively low crime in

7 just a farm community. And I also remember my dad telling me stories about my

8 grandmother, who was a branch manager of a small bank, who actually got robbed twice

9 in the, I think, early 1950s.

10 And she would tell stories about the interactions that she had with the FBI, and

11 how they investigated, and how great they were, and how well they treated her and her

12 colleagues. So that kind of started my interest. And then, you know, as I got into high 13 school and college, it kind of just grew from there.

14 Q And do you mind walking us through some of the positions you held at the 15 FBI starting with May 2006?

16 A So upon graduating Quantico, I was assigned to the Dayton, Ohio RA. I

17 worked on a criminal squad. We handled several different violations. Everything from 18 bank robberies, kidnappings, transnational organized crime, drug trafficking, public

19 corruption.

20 And then from Dayton -- I spent about 5 years there, and then I was transferred to 21 the Chicago division under the current transfer policy, which basically limited agents to 22 around 3 to 5 years in their first office.

23 Once I was transferred to Chicago, I was assigned to a counterterrorism squad and

24 was there for about 3 years. And then in the summer of 2014, I was promoted to a

25 supervisory special agent position at FBI Headquarters with the counterterrorism division.

1 I spent 2 years in that post, and then I was promoted, again, to unit chief with
2 our -- with the FBI Weapons of Mass Destruction Directorate, and I was there for 3 approximately another year and a half, almost 2 years.
4 And then I was assigned in late 2017 -- early 2017 to the Washington Field Office
5 to Squad CR-15. While at CR-15, I was a line agent for approximately a year and a half.
6 And then around 2018, I was the acting squad supervisor. And I was acting for about 6
7 to 8 months, and then I was permanently promoted to the role.
8 Q Okay.
9 A And I was in that role until I left in August 2021.
10 Q So what was your title as of August 2021?
11 A Supervisory special agent.
12 Q Okay.
13 A In CR-15.
14 Q And can you describe your roles and responsibilities in that position?
15 A I oversaw the squad. All squad investigations in the squad had the 16 investigative mandate of investigating the executive branch, legislative branch, judicial 17 branch of Federal Government, as well as Federal Government fraud investigations.
18 Q And how many individuals did you supervise?
19 A It would vary, but approximately 13 to 15.
20 Q Okay. And can you describe the organizational structure of the squad?
21 A It was myself as the supervisory special agent, and those 13 or 15 field
22 agents.
23 Q So everyone was a special agent, then?
24 A Correct.
25 Q Okay.

1 A Well, we also had two intelligence analysts and two staff operations
2 specialists.
3 Q Okay. And so that would have counted into the 13 to 15 individuals?
4 A No, 13 to 15 agents.
5 Q Okay.
6 A But the additional would have been anywhere from three to four
7 intelligence analysts or staff operations specialist positions.
8 Q And who was your direct supervisor at that time?
9 A Well, when I started on the squad -- as supervisor, my direct -- well, when I
10 started as an SSA, my direct supervisor was Kevin Vorndran, who was the ASAC at the 11 time.
12 Q Okay. And then did it ever change from Kevin Vorndran?
13 A Yes. Then Kevin was promoted, and Tim Thibault became the assistant
14 special agent in charge.
15 Q And about what timeframe was that, that Mr. Thibault became ASAC?
16 A I believe that was sometime in approximately 2018 to early 2019, I believe.
17 Q Okay. So Mr. Vorndran was there from 2017, and then Mr. Thibault came 18 on sometime in 2018, 2019? Is that accurate?
19 A Yeah. Probably closer to 2019.
20 Q And then you said you left the Bureau in August of 2021. Is that correct?
21 A That's correct.
22 Q And you immediately then went to Amazon. Is that accurate?
23 A Yes.
24 Q And what prompted you to leave the Bureau?
25 A I had spent the -- all of my professional career in public service with

1 government, starting with local government and then obviously with the Federal
2 Government, and had no real private sector experience. So when the opportunity came
3 to diversify my leadership experience, and it was a great opportunity, I took it.
4 Q And in your various positions at the Bureau, how often did you interact with 5 FBI Headquarters?
6 A Throughout my career, depending upon the investigation, it was sporadic.
7 But I would say I interacted with Headquarters -- not frequently until I was actually really
8 assigned to the -- or when I was working counterterrorism investigations in Chicago, I
9 started working more with the counterterrorism division, and then obviously when I was 10 promoted to Headquarters.
11 Q And then when you were the SSA for CR-15, how frequently did you interact
12 with FBI Headquarters?
13 A I interacted with Headquarters -- mainly the Public Corruption Unit -- every 14 other week, generally.
15 Q Okay. And who specifically did you interact with most at FBI Headquarters
16 during your time at CR-15?
17 A Mainly with the supervisory special agents and the unit chiefs that were 18 assigned to the Public Corruption Unit.
19 Q And who were those individuals?
20 A I'm not comfortable saying those individual names.
21 Q Okay.
22 A I would refer you back to Congressional Public Affairs for those individual
23 names.
24 Q Okay. Did the individuals that you interacted with, the SSA and the unit 25 chief -- did they change at all, or were they the same individuals during your tenure on

1 CR-15?

2 A Generally, that would change usually every 18 months to 24 months.

3 Q And you said you interacted with them -- was it every other week or once a

4 week?

5 A I would say, on average, once every 2 to 3 weeks.

6 Q Okay.

7 A So, yeah, generally speaking, that would be probably average.

8 Q And what was the normal reason for the outreach?

9 A Mainly to discuss -- to provide them case updates. That was generally the 10 reason for the interaction.

11 Q And was the SSA and unit chief, was that the highest level you ever

12 interacted with from Headquarters?

13 A No. I would periodically interact with the deputy assistant director, the 14 section chief, the assistant section chief.

15 Q And the deputy assistant director, what division was that for?

16 A That would be the Criminal Division.

17 Q The Criminal Division.

18 And the section chief?

19 A With the Public Corruption Section.

20 Q And so is it accurate to say that there's a Public Corruption Unit,

21 Headquarters, and then WFO? Would the CR-15 have its own Public Corruption Unit?

22 A That's correct.

23 Q And how often did you interact with anyone at Main Justice from DOJ?

24 A In that role?

25 Q Correct.

1 A In that role, with Main Justice, I interacted probably, on average, monthly
2 with the Public Integrity Section.
3 Q Okay. And who most often did you interact with with the Public Integrity
4 Section?
5 A Just various trial attorneys --
6 Q Okay.
7 A -- with PIN.
8 Q And you said you interacted monthly. What was the purpose of those
9 interactions?
10 A Just to discuss ongoing cases and investigations.
11 Q And specifically, turning and focusing on CR-15 -- so during your tenure with 12 CR-15, at one point, you were the acting squad leader, and then you became the squad
13 leader. Is that correct?
14 A Correct.
15 Q And that was in the position of SSA. Is that correct?
16 A Correct.
17 Q And so the number of employees that were assigned to the squad, did it
18 ever fluctuate?
19 A Generally, like I said, it was usually around 13 to 15 agents at any given time.
20 Q Okay.
21 A And we had four to six support personnel. Again, that was intel analysts,
22 the SOS. And actually, I recall we had two financial analysts as well.
23 Q Okay. And can you help us understand, did everyone work on the same 24 subject matter, or were people cordoned into groups with agents assigned to specific 25 types of cases?

1 A No. All the agents on the squad were assigned a variety of cases.
2 Q Okay.
3 A And at the time, we also had the Federal Government fraud mandate. So
4 we would investigate any allegation of contract fraud within the government. So most
5 agents had a variety of investigations on their -- in their portfolios. So some had -- there
6 was a few fraud cases, and they may also have corruption cases as well.
7 Q And so cases were just randomly assigned, if you will, or did individuals
8 specialize in certain types of cases?
9 A No. No one specialized.
10 Q Okay. So the cases, when they came in, they would just be assigned to 11 different agents?
12 A And they would be assigned based on the current workload. So if one 13 agent had -- we tried to assign investigations so one agent didn't have more than the 14 other. Just a balanced workload.
15 Q And can you talk a bit about the workload? What was the typical number 16 of cases that CR-15 was handling?
17 A I don't recall the number of cases we had at any given time.
18 Q Was it more cases than you had had in your previous position, or was it
19 about the same?
20 A No. No. Yeah. I don't recall, over the course of my 15-year career, you
21 know, a breakdown of how many cases each squad had at any given time when I was on.
22 So, no, I can't really compare those.
23 Q Yeah. Would you say CR-15 was a busy squad? Always had cases going 24 on?
25 A Absolutely. Every squad that I ever worked on was -- had a lot of cases.

1 Q And during your tenure at CR-15, were there cases -- big investigations that
2 began and finished during your tenure?
3 A Not -- I don't recall a case that started and finished in my tenure there, no.
4 Q Were the cases typically multiyear investigations and prosecutions?
5 A Yes.
6 Q And do you know the average time span or how long a typical case would 7 take?
8 A No. I couldn't speculate as to the average time a case would take. Each
9 case is so different depending upon the fact pattern. Each case is -- there's no real 10 average time that a case would start -- from start to finish -- would conclude.
11 Q But a typical case that the Public Corruption Unit would handle, it would 12 normally be finished in a year. Is that correct?
13 A I don't recall one being finished in a year.
14 Q Okay. And did you -- and you said you directly interacted with the DOJ's
15 Public Integrity Section. Is that correct?
16 A That's correct.
17 Q And so the prosecutors on the cases, would they typically come from the 18 Public Integrity Section?
19 A Not typically.
20 Q Okay.
21 A We would -- we would have prosecutors from the Public Integrity Section.
22 We would have prosecutors from the U.S. Attorney's Office for the Eastern District of 23 Virginia.
24 Q Okay.
25 A We would also have prosecutors from the U.S. Attorney's Office for the

1 District of Columbia as well.

2 Q Okay. And what was kind of the percentage breakdown of cases that were

3 handled in the Eastern District of Virginia and D.C.?

4 A I couldn't give you a percentage breakdown. I don't really recall

5 exactly -- again, that would be going back to the sheer number of cases that we had, and

6 that breakdown -- you know, having been gone almost 2 years now, I really can't give you

7 that.

8 Q Did you mostly interact with the Eastern District of Virginia?

9 A No. I wouldn't say -- I think I personally, in my role, interacted with -- the 10 same amount of time with each of those prosecutor's offices because part of what my 11 role was is to kind of be the liaison with those individual U.S. Attorney's Offices and their 12 leadership. So I tried to stay in contact with each of those three main offices equally.

13 Q Okay. Okay. So your time was split equally between the Public Integrity

14 Section, Eastern District of Virginia, and the District of Columbia?

15 A Correct.

16 Q Okay. And I want to talk to you about ASAC Timothy Thibault.

17 And you said he came on, you know, sometime in 2018, 2019. Is that correct?

18 A [Nonverbal response.]

19 Q Do you know what his position was prior to coming on as ASAC?

20 A Prior to ASAC, he was assigned to FBI Headquarters.

21 Q And so what was his exact title? He was the assistant special agent in 22 charge of the Public Corruption Unit? Or what was his title?

23 A He was the assistant special agent in charge of the Criminal Branch. Branch

24 two, I believe.

25 Q For the Washington Field Office? Is that correct?

1 A Correct.

2 Q Okay. And so he worked out of the Washington Field Office?

3 A That's correct.

4 Q And how would you describe ASAC Thibault?

5 A A professional, dedicated public servant.

6 Q Okay. And what kind of reputation did he have at the Bureau?

7 A He had a very stellar reputation, and as an agent with a lot of public

8 corruption investigative experience.

9 Q And are you aware of a letter -- Senator Grassley has sent a series of letters

10 on ASAC Thibault, and he sent a letter to Director Wray and Attorney General Garland on 11 May 31st, 2022, regarding Mr. Thibault's political social media posts. Are you aware of 12 that letter?

13 A I did become aware of that letter, yes.

14 Q I'll offer that letter as exhibit No. 1.

15 [Miller Exhibit No. 1

16 Was marked for identification.]

17 BY [redacted]

18 Q Please take your time to review.

19 And when I refer to specific sections, I'll refer you to the page number.

20 A Okay.

21 Q So on the second page of the letter, the first full paragraph, the first

22 sentence there states, "For example, ASAC Thibault's social media postings, comments,

23 and 'likes' (i.e. public expressions appreciation, validation, and approval) demonstrate a

24 pattern of improper commentary related to, for example, ongoing FBI investigations,

25 including those under his purview."

1 Were you aware of any of these posts while you were on CR-15 with ASAC
2 Thibault?
3 A No, I was not.
4 Q Did you ever become aware of the posts or look at the posts?
5 A No.
6 Q And did you ever talk with Mr. Thibault about his internet postings?
7 A No. During my time on CR-15, I had no idea that he had a social media
8 account.
9 Q Okay. And then in that same paragraph, the next sentence states, "It is 10 noteworthy that ASAC Thibault's LinkedIn network includes current and former FBI 11 personnel, and the general public is able to review his social media content, which 12 includes his political views, biases, and objections."
13 Were you aware of anyone on the CR-15 squad who interacted with Mr. Thibault
14 on social media?
15 A No.
16 Q And what's your reaction to reading this letter and reading some of the posts
17 that Mr. Thibault made?
18 A Well, when I first became aware of it and saw the letter, I was surprised
19 because, as I said, I didn't know that he had a social media -- social media accounts.
20 Q And while he was in the office, did he ever make any partisan or political 21 comments that you're aware of?
22 A No, not that I'm aware of.
23 Q As the lead of the squad, did any of your agents who were under your 24 command ever come to you with concerns about comments made by Mr. Thibault?
25 A Not concerns about comments made by Mr. Thibault, no.

1 Q Okay. Did any of your agents come to you with other concerns?

2 A My -- there was a time when it was brought to my attention that, generally,

3 there was talk among the squad of -- there was political-opinion talk around the squad

4 area.

5 When I learned of that, I addressed it with the squad immediately because of

6 our -- our investigative mandate. It's imperative that the agents obviously remain

7 objective. And I had no serious concerns about any of the objectivity from any of the 8 agents, but there was a concern that there was just general political talk and chitchat

9 around the squad area at times. And even that is something that should not and cannot 10 happen in that arena because of our mandate at the time.

11 So I just generally addressed it and reminded them that, although obviously

12 everyone has a political viewpoint, that that should be checked at the door and that, you

13 know, any political discussions should not be had within the squad area.

14 Q And did you ever become aware of what the general political-opinion talk

15 was of the squad?

16 A No. When it was brought to my attention, it was just brought to me by a

17 senior agent who had a lot of experience in the squad, and was very aware of that being

18 the underlying -- objectivity and even the appearance -- even a general appearance of 19 bias not being something that could be exhibited in the squad area, or frankly, anywhere

20 within the FBI.

21 So that's when I addressed it with the squad, just to remind them of that -- of the 22 importance of that and that, you know, they should adhere to that.

23 Q Did you -- after you addressed it with the squad, did you have any other 24 concerns that were raised to you about political-opinion talk?

25 A No additional concerns after that were raised to me.

1 Q Okay. And about what time period was that when those concerns were
2 raised?
3 A That was -- I believe that was the spring, early summer of 2020.
4 Q Okay. And the political-opinion talk was done by agents on the squad.
5 Was that your understanding?
6 A That was my understanding.
7 Q Okay. And turning back to the letter, on page 3 -- the last paragraph on 8 page 3, it states, "Given ASAC Thibault's authority over major investigations coupled with 9 the fact his LinkedIn network includes FBI and DOJ personnel and the general public, his 10 posts illustrated clear risk of systemic political infection within the Justice Department
11 and FBI."
12 Did you ever have any concern that ASAC Thibault seemed to be politically biased?
13 A No, I did not. Like I said, I was surprised when I read this letter the first 14 time in the media.
15 Q Yeah. When you read the letter, did you see why the posts, when they 16 were put all together in one letter, would be concerning to outside observers regarding 17 the objectivity?
18 A Based on the information that was provided in this letter, yes, I could see 19 where the general public would be concerned about objectivity, again, if they're reading
20 this letter.
21 Q And after Senator Grassley sent his letter to Director Wray and Attorney
22 General Garland, ASAC Thibault then suppressed his social media postings from public 23 view.
24 But on May 31st, 2022, was it your understanding that Mr. Thibault was still with 25 the CR-15 squad or still the ASAC?

1 A I don't know where he was May 31st, 2022.

2 Q Do you know when Mr. Thibault left the FBI?

3 A I do not.

4 Q Do you know any of the circumstances surrounding his departure?

5 A No. I don't know the specific circumstances around how he left or when he

6 left.

7 Q Did you follow the media reporting on his departure from the FBI at all?

8 A I read a couple of articles about the -- based on the Grassley letter, but not

9 about -- I don't recall reading anything about -- specifically about his departure.

10 Q And what was your understanding from the news articles you read?

11 A My understanding was he retired.

12 Q Okay. And is it accurate to say that the WFO CR-15 oversaw some of the 13 highest-level national public corruption investigations --

14 A That's correct.

15 Q -- and prosecutions?

16 And for any of the high-level national public corruption investigations that have

17 finished and are no longer ongoing, can you tell us any -- like, high-level, what they

18 concerned?

19 A No, because I don't know which ones are currently open and which ones are 20 currently closed.

21 Q Do you know of any investigations that CR-15 has closed?

22 A No.

23 Q Did you close any investigations while you were SSA at CR-15?

24 A Oh, absolutely.

25 Q And can you describe one of those investigations that you closed?

1 A I closed many. I would have to -- I would have to be given a list of those
2 from the Bureau so I could review those.
3 Q Yeah. And, I mean, I'm not asking for all of them. Can you remember one
4 that you handled? Like, what was the content?
5 A Like I said, there were many that we closed. Many that were -- again, most
6 investigations were multiple-year investigations. So I can't -- I don't recall a specific one
7 that we did close, but I know there were several that we closed.
8 Q Yeah. So if -- for example, if an elected official had done some sort of 9 wrongdoing that violated Federal statute, would that be under the purview of the CR-15?
10 A Yes.
11 Q Okay. Can you give us any other examples like that of what CR-15 would 12 typically handle?
13 A Sure. So it would handle allegations of the Federal Election Campaign Act.
14 Q Okay.
15 A It would investigate allegations of violations of 1001 -- Title 18 U.S.C. 1001;
16 the bribery statutes; the wire-fraud and mail-fraud statutes. Yeah. Those were the 17 main statutory violations that generally we handled.
18 Q Yeah. And without getting into the specifics of the case, while you were at 19 CR-15, did you handle investigations related to the statutory violations --
20 A I did.
21 Q -- in each of the categories?
22 A I did.
23 Q Was there one that took up more time for CR-15, or was it a mix?
24 A No. Not one case comes to mind that we spent more time on. Again,
25 most, if not all, cases were multiyear investigations.

1 Q Were there specific statutory violations that you dealt with most often?

2 A Most of the violations were around those violations. You know, the 1001,

3 mail fraud, wire fraud, the bribery statute.

4 Q And would it be typical for investigations at CR-15 handled to have multiple

5 statutory violations?

6 A Yes.

7 Q Okay. And on July 18th, 2022, Senator Grassley wrote again to Director

8 Wray and Attorney General Garland regarding ASAC Thibault. I'll offer that as exhibit

9 No. 2.

10 [Miller Exhibit No. 2

11 Was marked for identification.]

12 BY [redacted]

13 Q Are you familiar with this letter? Have you read the July 18th letter?

14 A I don't recall.

15 Q Okay. I'll give you time to please review. And, again, I'll make sure to 16 refer to specific sections.

17 Have you had sufficient time to review?

18 A Yes.

19 Q Okay. So looking at page 1 of the letter, the very last paragraph there, I'm 20 going to read starting with the second sentence.

21 "In fact, the information I have received reveals that Thibault's political

22 partisanship went much deeper than the inappropriate social media posts. Instead, it

23 impacted his official decision-making on sensitive public corruption investigations.

24 Equally concerning is that, based on Justice Department and FBI policies, Thibault's

25 partisanship likely affected investigations briefed to and approved by senior Justice

1 Department and FBI officials."

2 And these allegations came from whistleblowers to Senator Grassley's office.

3 Are you familiar with any of these whistleblower allegations?

4 A Just what was released in the media.

5 Q Okay. And was today the first time you were aware of this letter, or had 6 you read it previously?

7 A I don't recall reading this letter, no.

8 Q Okay. And had you heard the allegations within the letter prior to today?

9 A I had. That was when it was reported in the news.

10 Q And what was your reaction to hearing the reporting?

11 A Again, I was surprised. My interactions with all of -- you know, Mr. Thibault

12 on up throughout the Washington Field Office with leadership -- I never got the sense

13 that anyone had a political bias.

14 Q Okay. And so, you never got the sense that his partisanship was likely 15 affecting his investigations?

16 A No.

17 Q And how often did you interact with Mr. Thibault and with the CR-15?

18 A I would say, you know, every other day, generally.

19 Q And did he sit with the CR-15 squad, or did he have an office that was 20 separate from where the squad was?

21 A He had an office that was separate.

22 Q Okay. But all within WFO. Is that accurate?

23 A Correct.

24 Q So turning to page 2 now, the first paragraph. It says, "Whistleblowers

25 have reported to me that, although the FBI and Justice Department maintain policies

1 dictating specific standards requiring substantial factual predication to initiate an
2 investigation, Thibault and other Justice Department and FBI employees failed to comply
3 with these requirements. By disregarding these policies, Thibault was able to open or 4 approve, or cause to be opened or approved investigations based on unsubstantiated or 5 unverified statements sourced to biased media publications."
6 And during your time with the CR-15 and interacting with ASAC Thibault, was he
7 responsible for multiple squads besides CR-15, or was it just CR-15?
8 A No. He was responsible for multiple squads.
9 Q Was CR-15 the only squad that handled public corruption investigations?
10 A No. There was a squad that handled Northern Virginia public
11 corruption-based investigations and another squad that handled D.C.-specific public
12 corruption investigations.
13 Q So then was CR-15 nationwide, or what was --
14 A No. CR-15 was specifically mandated to investigate the Federal branch
15 agencies. So the executive branch, the cabinet agencies, the legislative branch, as well
16 as the judicial branch.
17 Q Okay. And then you said there was another squad under Thibault's
18 command that was specific to Northern Virginia. Is that correct?
19 A Right. And they could -- they were mandated to investigate anything
20 from -- you know, at the local level all the way up through the State level.
21 Q Okay. And then there was another squad that Mr. Thibault oversaw that 22 was dedicated solely to the District of Columbia. Is that correct?
23 A Correct.
24 Q Okay. But that wouldn't have handled any of -- like, you know, the Federal 25 branch public corruption?

1 A No. District of Columbia was, again, just local level up to -- you know, local 2 level agencies, and then also, again, fraud cases that might be derived out of those
3 particular agencies.
4 Q Okay. So is it accurate to say that the other squads -- the Northern Virginia
5 squad and the District of Columbia squad -- they were focused on local public corruption
6 cases?
7 A Yes. Local- and State-level public corruption cases.
8 Q Okay. And then CR-15 handled specifically those that involved Federal 9 officials. Is that accurate to say?
10 A Correct.
11 Q Okay. Okay. And so during your time at CR-15, can you describe the 12 process by which investigations were opened or approved?
13 A So they were opened by following the process that's outlined in the 14 Domestic Investigations and Operations Guide. That is basically the guidelines and the 15 standard operating procedure that's outlined by the FBI to open those investigations, also 16 along with the Attorney General guidelines.
17 So these cases required approval from not only the squad supervisor, but also 18 from the assistant special agent in charge, the special agent in charge, and then you
19 would also need to have -- the case agents would have had to consulted with a local 20 prosecutor's office, being D.C. U.S. Attorney's Office, Eastern District of Virginia, or Public
21 Integrity Section.
22 Q Okay. So if an investigation was to be opened, it would need to be 23 approved by the squad supervisor. Would that have been you?
24 A Yes.
25 Q So you approved all investigative -- investigations opening. Is that correct?

1 A Correct.

2 Q And then the ASAC, would that have been Mr. Thibault?

3 A Well, during my time, it would have been either Mr. Vorndran and then,

4 eventually, Mr. Thibault.

5 Q Okay. Mr. Thibault. Okay.

6 And then the SAC -- who was the SAC of the Washington Field Office when you

7 were there?

8 A That was Jim Dawson.

9 Q Okay. Was there anyone above Mr. Dawson that had to approve any case

10 openings?

11 A No. Not at the Washington Field Office level. Then you had to have 12 consultation with -- basically notification to the Public Corruption Unit at Headquarters.

13 Q For every case that you opened?

14 A Correct.

15 Q Is that correct?

16 And who would you most liaise with at the Headquarters Section?

17 A Well, it was the case agent's responsibility to notify the responsible

18 supervisory special agent at the Public Corruption Unit --

19 Q Okay.

20 A -- of that opening communication. And then they -- the responsible

21 supervisory special agent would convey that to their chain of command. And I don't

22 recall how far up that actually went at the Public Corruption Unit.

23 Q Okay. And the SSA with the Public Corruption Unit, would they need to 24 sign off on the investigation, or was it just a notification that was required?

25 A It was a notification.

1 Q Okay. And so the FBI policies that CR-15 followed to open investigations,
2 you said, were the DIOG and then the Attorney General guidelines. Is that correct?
3 A That's correct.
4 Q Okay. And so what was Mr. Thibault's role in approving -- what was 5 required for his approval?
6 A He -- well, it was just -- you would assess the allegations and the predication
7 that was outlined in the opening communication, and if that particular individual agreed
8 that there was sufficient predication according to the DIOG, they would approve it.
9 Q Okay. And so, before Mr. Thibault reviewed and approved the opening 10 communication, you would have approved the --
11 A I would have done the same thing.
12 Q And your review process was the same as Mr. Thibault's. Is that your 13 understanding?
14 A Correct.
15 Q So when you were there, did you ever see any, you know, opening or 16 approving investigations based on unsubstantiated or unverified statements?
17 A No.
18 Q Were you ever aware of any statements that were sourced directly from 19 media publications?
20 A Sourced from media publications? I don't believe there were any opening
21 communications that directly cited a media publication.
22 Q Okay. That you reviewed?
23 A Yeah. Based on my recollection -- based on everything I've -- based on the 24 opening communications I've read, I don't recall ever reading an opening communication
25 that was based on a media report.

1 Q Okay. And so, was this only for full investigations that this approval
2 process would have to go through?
3 A I would have to consult back to the DIOG. Based on my recollection, I
4 believe a preliminary investigation also required the same leadership approval.
5 Q Okay. And if it was just an assessment, was there any sort of leadership
6 approval that you remember?
7 A If -- assessments could be -- were approved at the supervisory special agent
8 level.
9 Q So you would have just approved those. Is that correct?
10 A Correct.
11 Q Okay.
12 A And generally, those were what's referred to as guardian assessments.
13 Q Okay. And so, you know, with all the approval processes for assessments,
14 preliminary investigations, full investigations, you know, you were pretty involved with all
15 of those. Did you have a good handle of what CR-15 was working on at any given time?
16 A Yes. I had complete oversight of all the open investigations.
17 Q Okay. And so, turning back to the letter, the same page, that next
18 sentence, it says, "In other instances, whistleblowers have reported that Thibault declined 19 to open or approve investigations based on partisan objectives notwithstanding the 20 existence of proper predication. This double-standard in the application of Justice
21 Department and FBI policies has resulted in investigations opened in a manner appearing 22 to benefit the political aims and objectives of a select few Justice Department and FBI
23 officials."
24 Mr. Miller, are you aware of any investigations that Mr. Thibault declined to 25 approve?

1 A I believe there were investigations that were -- that he declined. I'm sure
2 there were. I don't recall which ones.
3 Q And so, you know, going through the process again, you would have already 4 approved and determined that there was proper predication in your mind for the 5 investigation -- is that accurate -- before it went to Mr. Thibault?
6 A Correct.
7 Q Okay. So were you ever aware of any instances when Mr. Thibault declined
8 to approve an investigation when there was proper predication in your mind?
9 A I can't recall an exact -- a definite investigation where he declined to approve
10 it. But given the sheer number of cases that we were -- opening communications that 11 were -- at any given time were moving through the approval chain, I would -- I believe 12 there may have been one or two. I don't want to speculate. I just -- given the sheer 13 number, my recollection is he probably did --
14 Q Okay.
15 A -- not approve some, but I don't recall which ones.
16 Q And whistleblowers that have spoken with Senator Grassley as well as the 17 committee have said that there was a dramatic difference in how many cases CR-15
18 opened on Republican officials versus Democrat officials.
19 From your perspective, was there an even spread?
20 A From my perspective, there was no difference between Republican or 21 Democrat officials. No.
22 Q No? Okay.
23 In the final sentence of that paragraph, it states, "Further, it is my understanding
24 from whistleblowers that when FBI agents sought a uniform and consistent application of 25 these standards, their concerns were marginalized or otherwise not acted upon."

1 As an SSA, did anyone in your chain of command ever report to you that they felt
2 marginalized?
3 A No.
4 Q Did anyone under your supervision raise objection to you about how CR-15
5 ran its investigations?
6 A No.
7 Q So no one ever raised concerns to you regarding how investigations were 8 handled? Is that accurate?
9 A No. We would have discussions about internal -- actual investigations that 10 were opened and, you know, the next investigative steps, and there was always healthy
11 discussion around what was the next logical step we needed to take in an investigation.
12 But I don't recall any concerns being raised to me about how we were opening cases.
13 Q And did you feel that there was an open line of communication between you 14 and your line agents?
15 A Absolutely.
16 Q And they would feel comfortable coming to you with any sort of concerns?
17 A Oh, absolutely.
18 Q And they would feel comfortable coming to you with any sort of concerns
19 they had about leadership above you, Mr. Thibault? Is that accurate to say?
20 A Absolutely. And, again, there were many -- you know, there were 21 always -- there were always healthy conversations around next investigative steps, 22 and -- but nothing that I recall about opening investigations or, you know, which 23 investigations we should open and which ones we shouldn't.
24 Q Okay. And are you familiar with a Main Justice official named Richard 25 Pilger?

1 A Yes.

2 Q And how are you familiar with him?

3 A Mr. Pilger was assigned to the Public Integrity Section as a trial attorney, and

4 I believe he specialized in election crimes.

5 Q And how often did you interact with Mr. Pilger?

6 A When I started on CR-15 -- actually, when I came from Headquarters and

7 was a line agent, I interacted with him initially on one investigation.

8 Q Okay. So just one investigation that you interacted with him?

9 A Yes.

10 Q Has that investigation been closed, to your knowledge?

11 A To my knowledge, I believe it has, but I can't confirm that.

12 Q And how often did he, Mr. Pilger, interact with CR-15? Was it frequent?

13 A Given his specialty was election crimes, he had -- I would say frequent

14 interaction with the various agents on the squad.

15 Q Okay. And in the letter, going to the second paragraph there on page 2,

16 the second sentence says, "Whistleblowers have indicated that Thibault and Richard

17 Pilger, director of the Election Crimes Branch within the Justice Department's Public

18 Integrity Section, were deeply involved in the decisions to open and pursue this

19 investigation."

20 Was Mr. Pilger deeply involved in the opening of any investigations?

21 A My recollection is, for election crimes investigations, he had to be consulted.

22 Q Okay. And was that typical with when you, in the approval process, said

23 that you would need to consult with prosecutors, or notify prosecutors of the 24 investigation?

25 A That's correct.

1 Q So that was the typical outreach?

2 A Right. And if it was alleging an election crime, then it would -- you would

3 have to -- they would have to consult with Mr. Pilger.

4 Q Okay. And then, specifically, turning back to that paragraph -- I'll just read

5 it to keep the record clear here.

6 It says, "According to CNN, the FBI is investigating former President Trump's

7 campaign and its advisors, and the Justice Department has issued subpoenas to

8 individuals linked to electors during the 2020 election. Whistleblowers have indicated

9 that Thibault and Richard Pilger, director of the Election Crimes Branch within the Justice

10 Department's Public Integrity Section, were deeply involved in the decisions to open and

11 pursue this investigation. Based on allegations, the investigation's predicating

12 document is based, in substantial part, on January 2022 CNN News articles, which relied

13 on information derived from a liberal nonprofit, American Oversight, and referenced as

14 Boris Epshteyn's interview on MSNBC. As you know, a high-profile investigation such as

15 this would require the Attorney General and FBI Director to be briefed on the full factual

16 predication, which they would then review and approve. Based on allegations, the 17 opening memo that you approved included selective assertions created, in large part, by

18 Thibault and either removed or watered-down material connected to the aforementioned

19 left-wing entities that existed in previous versions and recommended that a full

20 investigation -- not a preliminary investigation -- be approved. As you know, a full

21 investigation requires a heightened factual basis as compared to a preliminary

22 investigation."

23 Mr. Miller, were you still at the Bureau when this investigation began?

24 Mr. Kravis. And I'm just going to interject here.

25 As you know, Mr. Miller is here for the voluntary interview today pursuant to an

1 authorization letter that was provided by the general counsel of the FBI. I did provide 2 copies of the authorization letter to counsel for both sides yesterday in advance of the
3 interview.
4 The authorization letter that Mr. Miller was provided does caution him not to 5 discuss investigations that were active at the time of his service at the FBI. I don't know
6 whether the investigation that is referenced here falls into that category, and I don't
7 know whether Mr. Miller participated in it at all.
8 So I'm just going to instruct you now, Mr. Miller, in answering the last question, 9 you should not discuss the particulars of any active investigation that you participated in 10 while you were serving at the FBI pursuant to the authorization letter. Does that make 11 sense?
12 Mr. Miller. Yes.
13 Mr. Kravis. Do you want her to read back the question since that was a lot to 14 say?
15 Mr. Miller. Please do.
16 BY [redacted]
17 Q Yeah. So the paragraph that I just read from said that the predicating
18 document was based on articles from January of 2022. And my question was, were you
19 still at the Bureau when this predicating document would have been working its way
20 through the approval process?
21 A No. I left the Bureau in late August of 2021.
22 Q Okay. Thank you.
23 And was it -- I think we kind of talked about this earlier, but was it normal for 24 predicating documents to cite to news articles?
25 A No, it was not normal.

1 Q Okay. And moving on, during your time at CR-15, were you familiar with an
2 FBI official named Walter Giardina?
3 A Yes.
4 Q And what was his role?
5 A He was a line agent on CR-15.
6 Q Was he there when you were there?
7 A Yes.
8 Q Okay. And did you work closely with Mr. Giardina?
9 A Yes.
10 Q To your knowledge, is he still with the Bureau?
11 A I don't know.
12 Q Okay. But he was still there when you left the Bureau. Is that correct?
13 A Yes.
14 Q How long has Mr. Giardina worked for CR-15?
15 A He was on CR-15 when I arrived in 2017 and then was on the squad when I
16 left.
17 Q Okay. And what would you describe Mr. Giardina's reputation to be?
18 A Hardworking, professional. He had a good mix of experience in 19 investigating various violations of Federal law.
20 Q And we've received whistleblower reporting that he worked on the Crossfire
21 Hurricane investigation. Are you familiar with that?
22 A I was not a part of that investigation. So, no, I'm not.
23 Q Were you aware that Mr. Giardina was assigned to that investigation?
24 A Not that investigation specifically. I was not aware that he was assigned.
25 I know that he was assigned -- when I came on the squad, he had just, I believe, come

1 back from being assigned to the special counsel's office.

2 Q Okay. And special counsel's office, meaning Special Counsel Mueller?

3 A Correct.

4 Q Okay. And whistleblower reporting indicates that Agent Giardina

5 proactively had an outside vendor use a program to wipe his Crossfire Hurricane laptop.

6 Are you aware of this episode at all?

7 A No.

8 Q So there was no squad talk about this happening, or did you ever became 9 aware?

10 A Not that I recall.

11 Q And did you ever receive any reporting from your line agents about 12 Mr. Giardina, about how he handled cases or investigations?

13 A No. No one brought any concerns directly to me.

2 [10:57 a.m.]

3 BY [redacted]

4 Q And during your tenure at the Washington Field Office, were you ever

5 involved in any investigations regarding the events that occurred at the Capitol on

6 January 6th, 2021?

7 A Yes, I was.

8 Q And what was your -- without getting into case specifics, what was your

9 involvement with those investigations? Was it after January 6th or before?

10 A No, I responded to the U.S. Capitol on January 6th.

11 Q So you physically came to the Capitol. Is that what you mean by 12 responded?

13 A That's correct.

14 Q Okay. And what was your involvement with the January 6th investigation?

15 A I was dispatched to the -- initially to the Washington Field Office around

16 approximately 2:00 p.m. that day. While I was en route, we were diverted to a staging

17 area near the Capitol, which was basically a parking lot. I believe one of the secure

18 parking lots on the Grounds. Because the -- there was a fear that the crowd was starting

19 to get near the Washington Field Office, and we had to lock it down.

20 So all the responding agents were redirected to this particular staging area near

21 the Capitol site. When I arrived, I was briefed by the special agent in charge at the time,

22 and also Deputy Director Bowdich. And I was asked to take a large contingent of agents

23 to secure the Members of the Senate.

24 Q Okay.

25 A And so I took a team to work with the U.S. Capitol Police and other agencies

1 who were, at the time, with the Senators. And we responded, essentially took over the
2 protection of them at that point. And then I worked with other law enforcement
3 leadership to secure a route that would allow the Senators back into the Chambers so
4 they could continue the certification. So we secured a route. We escorted them back
5 in and secured the Senate Chamber for the rest of the night while they continued their 6 business.
7 Q Okay. And you said that you were briefed by the deputy director at the 8 SAC at the time. Who was the SAC at the time?
9 A The SAC was Jim Dawson.
10 Q And that was the same Jim Dawson you mentioned earlier being the SAC?
11 A Correct.
12 Q Okay. And do you remember you said you were on your way at 2:00 p.m.
13 Is that correct?
14 A It was approximately 2:00, 2:30.
15 Q And when were you briefed by the deputy director and the SAC?
16 A It was probably 3:00, around 3:00 p.m. I would probably gather -- or I would 17 guess. And it was just a very brief we need to assist with securing the Senate and just 18 grabbed as many agents as you can and go meet with Capitol Police leadership.
19 Q Okay. And then you immediately headed to the Senate. Is that accurate
20 to say?
21 A I -- I responded to an undisclosed location.
22 Q Okay. And about what time was that?
23 A It was -- I would say around 3:00.
24 Q Okay.
25 A 3:15. It was- -- yeah?

1 Q And did your whole squad get dispatched to the Capitol that day?

2 A The entire Washington Field Office got dispatched.

3 Q Okay. And following the events at the Capitol, were you involved in the 4 investigations starting after January 6th?

5 A Yes.

6 Q And we're ending the near of our time here so I'll stop here and pick back up

7 on our next round.

8 [Discussion off the record.]

9 BY [redacted]

10 Q Good morning again, Mr. Miller. I just want to ask you a couple of 11 follow-up questions to start off from your discussion with the majority counsel from the

12 first hour. You mentioned a couple of people; Richard Pilger, who was the DOJ public

13 integrity attorney. Is that correct?

14 A That's correct.

15 Q And he's a career line attorney with that section. Is that right, if you know?

16 A During my interaction with him he was the lead prosecutor for election

17 crimes.

18 Q Okay.

19 A I don't recall his exact title.

20 Q Got it. But is he -- to your knowledge, is he a political appointee?

21 A I don't know.

22 Q Okay. How many -- you said he had a specialty in election crimes and those 23 cases tended to be referred to him. Is that fair to say?

24 A Yes.

25 Q Okay. And in your experience with him, what was his reputation at the 1 Department of Justice?

2 A My recollection is his reputation was -- that he was professional and

3 was -- yeah, I didn't really -- like I said, other than the one case, I really didn't interact with

4 him a lot. But generally speaking, I had heard that his reputation was -- that he was very

5 knowledgeable about election crimes and was kind of the authority on election crimes.

6 Q Did you ever hear of anyone raise concerns about political bias on his part?

7 A No.

8 Q Or partisanship?

9 A No.

10 Q Did you personally have any concerns along those lines with respect to 11 Mr. Pilger?

12 A No.

13 Q And also, with respect to Walter -- Walter Giardina, who was also mentioned

14 in the first hour, are you familiar with his reputation at the FBI?

15 A Yes.

16 Q And how would you describe that reputation?

17 A Extremely hardworking.

18 Q What about with respect to any bias or political opinions, was it ever your 19 experience that he let those kind of opinions interfere with his work?

20 A No.

21 Q Have you ever heard anyone complain that he had let bias or political 22 personal opinions interfere with his work?

23 A No.

24 Q Okay. You spoke quite a bit about your background, and I'm not going to

25 have you go over that too much, but I just want to understand. When you left the FBI,

1 you were in the position of supervisory special agent in the WFO CR-15 squad or --

2 A That's correct.

3 Q Okay. And you've described your responsibilities there. Is it fair to say

4 that during your 15-year career, that you've had a wide variety of experience, including

5 serving as a line agent handling investigations yourself, supervising line agents, and also

6 holding leadership positions within the FBI. Is that a fair characterization of your entire

7 career?

8 A Yes, that's correct.

9 Q Did you receive any awards or commendations during your period with the 10 FBI?

11 A Yes.

12 Q Can you just briefly describe some of those?

13 A They were just awards for work that I had done on various cases. Just,

14 like -- just merit awards I guess you could say.

15 Q Okay. Going specifically to your time with the public corruption unit, you

16 indicated -- sorry, I'm going to show you again what the majority had marked as exhibit 1,

17 that's the May 31st -- you guys already have your copy or was it already taken from you?

18 Mr. Kravis. No, we returned our copy.

19 [redacted] Do you guys have exhibit 1?

20 [redacted] Yes, a copy is right there.

21 [redacted] Sorry, guys.

22 BY [redacted]

23 Q In the first hour were you asked to look at page 2 of exhibit 1 and the second

24 paragraph that begins, "for example." Let me know if you've located that paragraph.

25 A Yes.

1 Q That paragraph discusses Assistant Special Agent in Charge Thibault's social
2 media postings. And when you were asked about that during the first hour you
3 indicated that you didn't know about these social media postings while you were working
4 with Mr. Thibault. Is that correct?
5 A That's correct.
6 Q And you learned about them after they were publicized in the media. Is 7 that fair to say?
8 A Yes.
9 Q You indicated when you were directed to the sentence in the letter about 10 the social media postings that you were surprised, I believe that was the word you used,
11 to learn of those social media postings. Is that right?
12 A Yes.
13 Q And you were also asked as you went through this letter what your reaction
14 was to Senator Grassley's claim that these postings, quote, "demonstrate a pattern of 15 improper commentary related to, for example, ongoing FBI investigations, including those 16 under his purview."
17 Is it fair to say that you were surprised, at least in part, because what is depicted
18 in this letter is not consistent with your personal experience with Agent Thibault?
19 A I was surprised because again I didn't have any insight into Mr. Thibault's 20 social media accounts. So, yeah, again I was -- I guess the best word to describe it is 21 surprised, yes.
22 Q Okay. And the social media accounts referred to in this letter are personal
23 accounts, not FBI accounts. Is that right?
24 A Based on what is depicted here, yes.
25 Q And FBI agents are human beings with personal opinions in your experience.

1 Is that right?

2 A Yes.

3 Q And Mr. Thibault, in your experience, did not share those personal opinions

4 at work with you. Is that fair to say?

5 A He did not share any personal opinions with me.

6 Q And did you hear of him sharing his personal political views with other

7 agents at work?

8 A No one brought that to my attention while -- during my time at the FBI.

9 Q Okay. You can set the letter aside.

10 There were a couple of questions earlier about the nature of the investigations

11 that you do in the CR-15 squad in terms of how complex they are and how many years

12 they might last. Would you say that the cases really varied depending on the individual

13 investigations and the facts that you have, or is there kind of a uniformed duration that 14 those cases tend to have?

15 A All cases are very different in duration. Obviously, it's based on the 16 complexity of the allegations and, you know, where the facts take the individual

17 investigation. So you can't, you know, really look across the board and assess that 18 there's an approximate timeframe to any group of investigations, each one is so different.

19 Q Okay. It's fair to say that as an FBI agent in the CR-15 squad, it's your job to

20 just investigate as long as you need to get to the truth, or to have a proper understanding

21 of what happened. Is that fair to say?

22 A Correct. You -- you investigate until there are no additional leads to -- to 23 pursue. And then you assess the -- the results of the investigation at that point.

24 Q Okay. And you indicated that some of those investigations were multiyear

25 investigations. Is that correct?

1 A Yes.

2 Q And in your experience, during some of those multiyear investigations,

3 would there be sometimes a change of presidential administration as those case -- cases

4 continued?

5 A Yes.

6 Q And when that happened, did the change of presidential administrations, in

7 your experience, affect the way the FBI agents took their investigative steps in those

8 cases?

9 A No.

10 Q Have you ever seen the change of a presidential administration or a political

11 appointee in an executive agency interfere with the investigative steps that the FBI agents

12 were taking in their investigations?

13 A No.

14 Q How about the DOJ attorneys that you worked with during those

15 investigations, did they tend to be the same people over different administrations or did

16 you tend to see a change in staffing from DOJ when one presidential administration

17 would come in and another would be replaced?

18 A No, I never saw a change in staffing with the group of attorneys that we 19 worked with.

20 Q Okay. And that's what I meant, is the DOJ or AUSAs that you were working 21 with, did those tend to be career lawyers, and not political appointees?

22 A Correct.

23 Q All right. Let's- -- I'm going to make sure I got all of these.

24 Sorry, really quick back to the letter, you don't have to refer to any specifically, but

25 that letter regarding Mr. Thibault's social media accounts, when you learned that he had

1 personal social media accounts that expressed some personal views, did that change the 2 opinion that you stated earlier that Mr. Thibault was, quote, "professional," and had
3 quote, "a stellar reputation" as an FBI agent?
4 A During my time working with and for Mr. Thibault, that is how I would
5 describe him as being professional, dedicated, just like all the other agents I worked with.
6 Q And you continue to believe that he had a stellar reputation or has a stellar 7 reputation?
8 A I can't speculate today as to what his reputation is.
9 Q Oh, you mean other people's opinion of him?
10 A Correct.
11 Q Okay. I just meant your own opinion of him. I'm sorry.
12 A I will say that my opinion, again, is based on my interaction with him during 13 that time. Again, I was -- I'm surprised and a little shocked when I read this particular 14 reporting.
15 Q Yeah.
16 A Yeah.
17 Q But in your time with Mr. Thibault, you never saw him allow his personal 18 opinions to interfere with his work. Is that fair to say?
19 A That's fair to say.
20 Q And you never saw him exhibit any kind of bias with respect to any 21 investigative decisions that he made at work or that he approved at work?
22 A No.
23 Q All right. You indicated in the first hour that at some point when you were 24 working at the supervisory special agent in CR-15, there was, I think you said, some kind
25 of talk or partisan opinions being shared among some squad members. Do you recall

1 that discussion?

2 A I -- yes. It was brought to my attention that there was political discussions

3 being had in this squad area.

4 Q Okay. Do you know -- do you recall when that discussion happened or 5 when it was brought to your attention?

6 A I think -- I think it was around spring 2020, I believe.

7 Q Okay. Can you tell us how it was brought to your attention?

8 A It was brought it my attention by a senior agent on the squad.

9 Q All right. Was the squad that was having this discussion, was this a field

10 office in Manassas?

11 A Yes.

12 Q Okay. And that's part of the public corruption unit, but a particular squad

13 within that unit that works out of Manassas?

14 A CR-15 is assigned to the Northern Virginia RA which is in Manassas.

15 Q So that's physically where they're located?

16 A Correct.

17 Q Okay. And you indicated that you gave a talk or a warning to some of the 18 agents on the squad cautioning them that partisanship was unacceptable in their work.

19 Is that correct?

20 A Correct.

21 Q Did you give that talk to everybody in the office, or just certain agents?

22 A No, I gave it to the entire squad.

23 Q Okay. But it was predicated or your need to give that warning was 24 predicated on what you heard from this other agent about specific talk that was partisan?

25 A Correct.

1 Q All right. Can you describe anything about the circumstances of, you know,
2 that caused you to have to give that warning, other than what you've already said?
3 A No, it was just brought to my attention that there was generally political 4 discussions being had around the squad area. It was not specific to what kinds of 5 political discussions.
6 Q So you never actually heard that discussion yourself?
7 A No.
8 Q Do you know from the special agent who reported it to you what the 9 comments were about?
10 A No.
11 Q Okay. But your response was that you had to address it in some way, fair
12 to say?
13 A Correct.
14 Q And can you explain why you felt you had to address it?
15 A Again, given our mandate and what the responsibilities are of an FBI special 16 agent investigating any crime, especially allegations of any public corruption, it's 17 incumbent that we be objective and that we not show any, even apparent or implied bias
18 with anything that we do. So even discussions in the squad area, you know, you could 19 characterize it as water cooler-type discussions about politics was not to be done. And I
20 just again reiterated that it was their responsibility to, although we all have opinions, to 21 leave that at home, check it at the door and obviously do not, you know, bring that 22 to -- to work.
23 Q Okay. And was -- sorry, do you want to --
24 BY [redacted]
25 Q Yeah. You said that you -- in the first hour you used the term "chitchat."

1 Do you recall that?

2 A Yes.

3 Q What is your understanding of what chitchat is?

4 A Water cooler discussions.

5 Q Okay. And you said a couple times that the senior agent that brought this

6 to your attention, he didn't tell you the substance of what the chitchat was. Is that fair?

7 A That's correct.

8 Q And so he didn't tell you, for example, if the comments were pro one

9 political party or pro another party or anti one party or anti another party. Is that fair to 10 say?

11 A That's correct.

12 Q So it's just broadly speaking, any political discussion, whether it's pro

13 Democrat, pro Republican, pro Green Party, whatever is inappropriate for that type of 14 squad. Is that right?

15 A Correct.

16 Q Okay. So the substance never -- the substance was somewhat irrelevant to 17 you because any such discussion would have been inappropriate?

18 A That's correct.

19 Q And you didn't know the substance?

20 A No, I did not.

21 BY [redacted]

22 Q Was it unusual, in your experience, to have to warn these agents about 23 partisan discussion?

24 A It was the first time I'd ever had to do it. But again, I think -- it was more

25 highlighted and very important to remind them of that because of CR-15's mandate,

1 especially given the investigative authority that we were assigned.

2 Q What was the response within the unit when you gave that warning?

3 A Everyone listened intently and there was no -- I didn't get any additional

4 feedback after I provided that admonishment.

5 Q Did you have to do it again or did it appear to you that it was -- your warning

6 was successful in kind of tamping down that kind of talk?

7 A No, I never had another discussion with the squad.

8 BY [redacted]

9 Q Sorry. Going back a second, the warning when you delivered it was it live

10 in person, was it over Zoom? What were the actual circumstances?

11 A It was live in-person.

12 Q And so it was like a squad meeting that you called?

13 A Correct.

14 Q Okay, thank you.

15 BY [redacted]

16 Q Do you have any opinion about why in the spring of 2020, it became

17 necessary for you to tamp down on partisan talk? Was there anything happening in the 18 world that sort of led you to believe that the agents were becoming more prone to this

19 chitchat, as you put it?

20 A No, I don't know what -- what led to this additional -- these additional

21 conversations in the squad area that led to that agent coming to me. I don't remember

22 what the particular motive was.

23 Q Okay. Was one of the agents that you were warning about partisanship

24 [redacted]?

25 A I believe he was on the squad at the time, yes.

1 Q Do you know if he was present when you gave that warning?

2 A I don't recall.

3 Q Okay.

4 A But I believe everyone was there at the time, so I would assume -- I don't

5 recall anyone not being there who was assigned to the squad.

6 Q Can you tell me, how do you know [redacted]?

7 A I -- he was assigned to the squad. He came from FBI headquarters from a

8 previous assignment, and was interested in coming to the Northern Virginia RA. He had

9 been referred to me from other agencies he had worked with in the past, and he was

10 interested in CR-15. And as an agent coming from headquarters, coming back to 11 Washington Field Office, most agents will reach out to various supervisors that they

12 might -- supervisors of squads that they might be interested in joining, and have

13 discussions with them about whether it was any availability on the squad as far as, you

14 know, is the squad -- does -- do they have an opening. And I recall having met with him

15 to discuss yeah, that we did have openings and that, you know, we would -- that he could

16 certainly request through the -- I believe it was the SAC at the time. If he wanted to, he 17 could request to be assigned to CR-15.

18 Q Do you remember when it was that he asked to be placed on CR-15 squad?

19 A I don't.

20 Q Okay. Any, just even year that you could recall?

21 A No. I --

22 Q It's okay.

23 A I really don't recall.

24 Q Okay. Do you know how long he was with CR-15?

25 A I believe a couple of years, but I don't recall when he actually came on the 1 squad.

2 Q Okay. And were you his direct supervisor?

3 A Yes.

4 Q The whole time he was there?

5 A Yes.

6 Q At some point, when were you still the supervisory special agent on CR-15,

7 [redacted] left that unit. Is that correct?

8 A That's correct.

9 Q And are you familiar with the circumstances under which he left the unit?

10 A Yes.

11 Q And can you describe those?

12 A It had come to my attention through FBI headquarters that he had some

13 family connection I think through -- if I recall, through one of his children, that they were

14 employed by a media outlet. And based on that -- and again, going back to any kind of 15 appearance of partisanship, I asked [redacted] about that when it was brought to my attention.

16 And I said, You know, that given that he was new, fairly new to the squad, especially new

17 to working public corruption cases that any kind of a potential appearance of bias is

18 always something to be very aware of. So I said, You know, given what the 19 investigation, any kind of corrupt, public corruption investigation in the oversight, and the

20 scrutiny that those get, if you see any potential or even -- even an apparent bias, that you

21 should really think about whether or not you want to be put in that position.

22 So I said, You know, it's probably something that you should -- you should maybe

23 look to just work government fraud cases. If you're not interested in government fraud

24 cases, I think it would, you know, be better to work on a different squad. And if you

25 know, you could have your pick of any squad, it's completely, it's left up to him. But my

1 concern was, again, for kind of really protecting him. So I said, You know, just
2 something to think about, those are what -- if I were in your shoes, that's what I would
3 consider to be my options. And he chose to go to a different squad at the Northern
4 Virginia RA.
5 Q Okay. So the media outlet that his child worked for, was it a partisan
6 outlet, in your opinion?
7 A I believe so.
8 Q Okay. And that was the concern that there was partisanship sort of 9 displayed in that connection to the media outlet that?
10 A There was -- that there could be an appearance of.
11 Q Okay. The way that came to your attention, is it fair to say, was through a 12 tip in reviewing [redacted] sourcing review? I don't know how you characterized it, but at 13 the FBI is there a -- do agents -- source reporting, does it get reviewed by either FBI
14 headquarters or someone in intel or some other division?
15 A Source reporting is -- is visible, but -- visible by FBI headquarters and they do
16 review it. And that information came to me by way of FBI headquarters. I don't 17 recall -- I don't know how they became aware of it in the process by which they became 18 aware of it, but it was brought to my attention by public corruption unit that -- that that 19 particular connection was -- was identified and they wanted just to be -- to be aware of it.
20 Q When you say that connection, they are talking about the fact that his 21 daughter worked for a partisan news organization?
22 A Yes, it's -- yeah. The employment was identified.
23 Q And are you aware also that she was a writer for the Urb Blogger (ph) for the 24 news organization, and that she actually wrote about, quote, "someone her father was 25 investigating," unquote?

1 A I think I became aware of that after that particular -- after it was initially
2 brought to my attention that she was employed by a particular news outlet.
3 Q Okay. So you didn't know at the time that you spoke to [redacted] that his
4 daughter was actually writing --
5 A No.
6 Q -- about his cases?
7 A No, I didn't know the subject matter by which she wrote about.
8 Q Okay. Would that have been even more concerning to you if you learned 9 that not only did she have a connection to this media organization but that she was 10 actually writing about some of the people that her father was investigating at CR-15?
11 A Yes.
12 Q And why would that be concerning?
13 A Because, you know, we certainly wouldn't want to create a connection
14 between someone who was running or investigating the case in any media news outlet.
15 Q And are FBI agents, particularly on the squad, allowed to speak about their 16 open investigations to family members?
17 A No.
18 BY [redacted]
19 Q A couple of follow-up questions. You said you certainly wouldn't want to 20 create or have any appearance of a connection between anyone on the squad and any 21 media outlet. Why is that?
22 A To maintain the integrity of the investigation.
23 Q And can you explain that a little more, like, what's --
24 A Well, it's paramount to maintaining the integrity of the investigation, and we 25 certainly don't want to create even the appearance that there's a relationship with news

1 media and a particular investigator. So we're not opening up a particular line of 2 communication between that investigator and the news media.
3 Q If a case, for example, were to go to trial and that information came out,
4 could that be damaging to the case?
5 A Yes.
6 Q And why is that?
7 A Well, certainly, any defendant's counsel could focus that -- on that particular
8 aspect of the case and it could take away from, you know, the facts, and could take away
9 from the overall arbitration of those facts.
10 Q Is it fair to say that it could potentially impact the ability for the FBI or DOJ to 11 obtain a conviction in that case?
12 A I certainly -- it would depend on the case.
13 Q Okay.
14 A But again, it would take away from the facts of the case and it would give 15 any defense counsel something to focus on and take away attention from the facts and 16 the evidence that we are bringing by way of the prosecution away from that and refocus
17 it on a potential or appearance of bias.
18 Q Okay. And you said a couple minutes ago that part of that concern here is 19 that you wanted to protect him. What did you mean by protect him, meaning
20 [redacted]?
21 A You know, [redacted] was a -- was a professional, you know, hardworking FBI
22 agent. I knew him to be, you know, very new to public corruption, but had vast 23 experience in counterterrorism. And because he had not worked these kinds of 24 higher-level public corruption investigations where you have a heightened level of 25 scrutiny, I wanted to make him aware of the potential pitfalls as you get closer. You

1 know, as you open an investigation and you're moving through to potential prosecution,
2 and if you got to a prosecution and there was discovered to be a relationship, a family
3 relationship or any kind of personal relationship with someone on the outside that would
4 be -- again, that could refocus the defense's attention on that case or could provide a
5 potential appearance of bias, or with the media there's always the concern that, you
6 know, that we could damage the integrity of the investigation. I wanted to make him
7 aware of how that could be perceived.
8 So he understood what potential pitfalls there could be. And that's why I
9 recommended that, you know, he focus -- not open or not investigate cases that were 10 public corruption cases, but instead, focus on cases that were fraud-related, or go, you
11 know, to a different squad and investigate an entirely different violation.
12 Q And when you made the offer for him to go to another squad, did he take 13 you up on that? Did he agree that he should go to another squad?
14 A Yes. My recollection is I -- I told him, you know, take the weekend think 15 about what he wanted to do and then let me know. And he came back and said that 16 he'd be interested in going to another particular squad and I worked with him to get him
17 assigned to that squad.
18 Q So you helped to facilitate that transfer. Is that fair to say?
19 A Yes.
20 [redacted] Okay. Thanks.
21 BY [redacted]
22 Q Did [redacted] make any complaints to you when you had this conversation
23 when he left the CR-15 squad?
24 A Oh, no, no.
25 Q And I guess I meant specifically about being advised that it might be better

1 for him to be on another squad?

2 A No, and we had, you know, quite a lengthy conversation about it. And my

3 recollection was that he, you know, even asked if he should have a conversation with one

4 of his kids about the situation. And I also have grown children, and I said, You know,

5 that's completely up to you, but we certainly can't dictate where our kids work. So I

6 said, you know, I think these -- that's your decision to make, but I would -- I would

7 definitely consider these -- these options as being probably the least disruptive, given the

8 situation and so that's why I laid out the option of working just fraud cases, or going to a 9 squad of his choice.

10 Q Okay. So he didn't make any formal complaints about his reassignment?

11 A No.

12 Q Other than what you just described in terms of hearing from headquarters

13 about this connection with [redacted] child, were there ever any other concerns

14 brought to your attention about [redacted] partisanship?

15 A No.

16 Q I'm going to ask you a couple questions about Special Agent Thibault,

17 because you were asked many questions about him. How long have you known Agent

18 Thibault?

19 A I met Mr. Thibault when I joined CR-15, I believe in early 2017.

20 Q You said 2017?

21 A 2017.

22 Q He's now retired, correct?

23 A I believe so.

24 Q Are you aware that Mr. Thibault spent 25 years as an FBI agent?

25 A I didn't realize it was that long, but that sounds about right.

1 Q It doesn't surprise you?

2 A No.

3 Q Okay. Are you aware that Mr. Thibault spent a substantial portion of his 4 career investigating public corruption cases?

5 A Yes.

6 Q Are you aware that during Mr. Thibault's career, he was primarily

7 responsible for the investigation of Congressman William Jefferson, which was a fairly

8 high-profile investigation that led to the Congressman being charged with many Federal

9 offenses, and serving time in jail?

10 A Yes.

11 Q I'm going to introduce exhibit 3.

12 [Miller Exhibit No. 3

13 Was marked for identification.]

14 BY [redacted]

15 Q I'm sorry about the print, it's extremely small. This is an article -- this is

16 actually from the FBI website, you can see the source on the bottom in extremely small

17 print. And guess I would characterize it as kind of a press release or a retrospective

18 about some of the cases that the FBI had done. Just take a minute to look at it and let 19 me know if you're familiar with this investigation at all.

20 A I wasn't involved in this investigation. I wasn't assigned to the Washington

21 Field Office at the time, but I was aware of generally of the media reporting around the

22 investigation.

23 Q Okay. I'm just going to direct your attention to, I guess it's the second to 24 last full paragraph, it begins "FBI agent Tim Thibault." It is above the public corruption 25 primer heading.

1 A Yes.

2 Q I'm just going to read that and tell me if you agree that that is what is

3 written. FBI agent Tim Thibault who worked the case out of Washington Field Office,

4 that means that he was the lead agent on this investigation of Congressman Jefferson.

5 Is that accurate?

6 A Based on my information that I had after the fact, I had learned that he was 7 the case agent, yes.

8 Q Okay. And I don't know. Do you know who William Jefferson is?

9 A Yes.

10 Q Okay. He is, or was -- Congress -- was the Second Congressional District

11 Congressman from Louisiana, a Democrat, correct?

12 A Yes.

13 Q And we can put that down for a moment.

14 Are you aware that Mr. Thibault, during his career oversaw an FBI inquiry into the 15 Clinton Foundation?

16 A Yes.

17 Q And are you aware that Mr. Thibault oversaw an FBI investigation into 18 former Virginia Governor Terry McAuliffe, a Democrat?

19 A Yes.

20 Q Does it surprise you that Mr. Thibault played a role in the investigation of 21 both Democrats and Republican elected officials during his career?

22 A No.

23 Q And why doesn't that surprise you?

24 A Because he was assigned to CR-15 that had investigative jurisdiction over the 25 Federal Government.

1 Q And CR -- sorry, go ahead.

2 A I was going to say it had investigative jurisdiction across all Federal branches

3 of the executive, judicial and the legislative branches.

4 Q All right. In your experience with Mr. Thibault, do you believe that he

5 allowed his personal views to influence the decisions that he made with respect to FBI

6 investigations?

7 A No.

8 Q If you had become concerned about Mr. Thibault or any other FBI employee

9 at CR-15, that they were allowing their personal or political beliefs to influence an

10 investigation, how would you have responded?

11 A I would have been the first one to bring it to the attention of leadership.

12 Q Have you ever had to do that?

13 A No, not beyond my conversation with the squad.

14 Q Okay. Are there procedures in place within the FBI, and particularly within 15 that squad or unit that would allow you to raise that kind of concern about partisanship?

16 A Absolutely you would bring it to the attention of the Washington Field Office

17 or field office management. And then you could also bring it to the attention of DOJ

18 inspector general.

19 Q Okay. Did you ever feel constrained, or, in any way, discouraged from 20 bringing such a concern --

21 A No.

22 Q -- while were you at CR-15?

23 A No.

24 Q Had anyone that you were supervising ever brought those concerns to your

25 attention?

1 A No.

2 Q Are you aware that Mr. Thibault received FBI awards during his career that

3 recognized his, quote, "professionalism," and quote, "sterling reputation"?

4 A I was not aware of any awards.

5 [redacted] Does it surprise you to know that he received those awards?

6 Mr. Miller. Based on this particular case generally most agents that obtain

7 convictions in larger cases, even small cases will be recognized.

8 BY [redacted]

9 Q Is that because it's a good amount of work to kind of bring that investigation

10 to fruition and prosecution?

11 A Yes. I think it's -- it's the FBI's opportunity to -- to recognize the hard work

12 of the entire case team.

13 Q Okay. Is it fair to say that Mr. Thibault was well regarded within the FBI?

14 A Yes.

15 Q And that he was promoted several times during his career that you know of?

16 A Yes, I am aware that he was promoted.

17 Q Okay. All right. Are you aware that Mr. Thibault was -- had some role in 18 opening an investigation into former President Trump with respect to the 2020 electors?

19 Mr. Kravis. And Mr. Miller, I'm just going to reference again the authorization

20 letter that we received from the FBI concerning your voluntary appearance at the 21 interview today. I don't know the status of the investigation, the subject of the question

22 here, but I'm just going to instruct you, as with the last round, to refrain from discussing

23 the specifics of any active investigation that you worked on while you were at the FBI, just 24 as we did the last time. Does that make sense?

25 Mr. Miller. Yes.

1 Mr. Kravis. Okay. Go ahead.

2 BY [redacted]

3 Q Okay. I don't plan on asking you any specific questions other than do you

4 know if Mr. Thibault was involved in the opening of that investigation?

5 A I'm not aware of that.

6 Q Okay. Are you -- do you want to?

7 BY [redacted]

8 Q If Mr. Thibault or anyone else on CR-15 were to receive a congressional

9 inquiry shortly after opening a case, do you think that could have the impact of 10 discouraging them from pursuing that case?

11 A I can't speculate as to how they -- how that would be perceived.

12 BY [redacted]

13 Q Okay. I'm going to mark this as exhibit 4. This is a news article from The 14 New York Times, dated May 18th, 2023.

15 If you wouldn't mind, Mr. Miller, just take a look at it and see if you're familiar

16 with this article or the information reported in it. It's a few pages so it will just take a 17 moment.

18 [redacted] Off the record.

19 [Discussion off the record.]

20 [redacted] We're going to withdraw the exhibit and we'll reintroduce it again in 21 the next round. Thank you.

22 BY [redacted]

23 Q I'm going to ask you a couple of questions about January 6th, you were

24 asked about your involvement that day in an FBI operation to basically secure the 25 Senators. You indicated that you had to come into work on January 6th in response to

1 what was happening on the Capitol that day. Is that fair?

2 A That's correct.

3 Q And you weren't otherwise planning to be at work that day?

4 A No, I was at work that day.

5 Q Okay.

6 A I was at the Northern Virginia agency --

7 Q I see.

8 A -- at the time.

9 Q So you responded to D.C. because of what was happening at the Capitol?

10 A That's correct.

11 Q Okay. And what did you see when you arrived here?

12 A When I arrived at the staging area, a large police presence from various

13 agencies, and we were -- again we were kind of a few blocks away from the Capitol at 14 that point. And just a large amount of traffic in a -- foot traffic and vehicle traffic.

15 Q Where was the staging area that you arrived at?

16 A It was a secure parking lot just near the Capitol Grounds.

17 Q Okay. And was there a crowd around at that point?

18 A I don't recall seeing a crowd.

19 Q At some point, you were asked to move into the Capitol Building itself,

20 correct?

21 A Yes. We -- later that evening we escorted the Senators back to the Senate

22 Chamber.

23 Q Okay. And can you describe that scene? First of all, how many agents

24 and other agency officers were with you approximately when you had to do that?

25 A I don't recall how many agents and other law enforcement we had in the

1 group. We, again, secured a facility where the Senators were being housed. And then
2 we identified another route back to the Senate Chamber, secured that route, and then
3 escorted the Senators back into the Chamber. But I don't recall how many law
4 enforcement agents and officers were involved in that particular operation. With 5 my -- with our group, I think it was probably -- probably over 30.
6 Q Okay. And were you all armed?
7 A Yes.
8 Q Why was that?
9 A All FBI agents are armed.
10 Q Did you have concerns for your safety?
11 A Yes. With any operation, there's always a safety concern.
12 Q Did you have concerns for the safety of the Senators?
13 A Yes.
14 Q And can you describe what that concern was?
15 A I mean, it was based on the fact that they were removed from the location
16 and being housed in an offsite location that was undisclosed based on what was going on 17 at the Capitol at the time.
18 Q So why were they removed?
19 A Because a large crowd entered the Capitol.
20 Q And what happened when they entered the Capitol, to your knowledge?
21 A To my knowledge, they -- they entered the Grounds and law enforcement
22 officials at the time deemed that it was dangerous to, you know, staff and Senators and 23 Congressmen and women. So they were -- they were removed and secured at other 24 locations.
25 Q Had you ever, as an FBI agent, been asked to secure the Members of the 1 United States Senate before while they were conducting their business?

2 A No.
3 Q Have you ever heard of the FBI being asked to do that kind of operation?
4 A No.
5 Q What was your -- do you have any opinion that you can share about what it
6 was like to have to be asked to do that?
7 A It was -- it was a very unique operation, a unique experience.
8 Q Were you concerned that somebody might get hurt, that one of the Senators
9 might get hurt?
10 A Yeah, we were concerned about, yeah, the safety of the Senators and the 11 safety of all law enforcement involved during that day.
12 Q Okay. How about the Vice President, did you have any role in 13 his -- securing his safety when he was at the Senate that day?
14 A No.
15 Q Did you have any reaction to the fact that the FBI that day was being asked
16 to physically secure U.S. Senators so that they could perform their constitutional duty to 17 certify the electoral count of a Presidential election?
18 A My concern that day was for the safety of the Senators and our entire time.
19 Q Okay. Now you -- when you were at the FBI, in the Washington Field
20 Office, you actually -- did you actually work on some January 6th prosecutions that 21 happened because of events that occurred that day?
22 A Yes, CR-15 were assigned a number of January 6th cases.
23 Q Okay. Are you familiar with the conspiracy theory that's out there being 24 promoted by some people on the right that the FBI had a confidential human source at 25 the Capitol on January 6th who was there to incite violence as a false flag against Trump

1 and his supporters? Are you familiar with that theory?

2 A No, I'm not familiar with it.

3 Q You never heard it?

4 A No.

5 Q Do you have an opinion about that theory --

6 A No.

7 Q -- if you knew it existed?

8 A No, I don't.

9 BY [redacted]

10 Q To your knowledge, was there a confidential human source at the Capital

11 placed to incite violence as a false flag operation to impugn Trump and his supporters?

12 A I wasn't aware of anyone -- any confidential sources being there.

13 BY [redacted]

14 Q Okay. Are you familiar with the conspiracy theory that another group,

15 antifa, or some other, was really behind January 6th? Are you familiar with that 16 conspiracy theory?

17 A No.

18 Q Do you have any evidence that there was left-wing group, antifa or others,

19 that were posing as a false flag operation and were really behind the violence that 20 occurred on January 6th?

21 A No, I'm not aware of that.

22 Q In your experience with the prosecution of January 6th, suspects or

23 defendants, do you think they were treated any differently, based on their perceived

24 partisanship or ideological beliefs?

25 A Not the cases that I was familiar with.

1 Q Are you familiar with how those suspects were arrested, like the manner of 2 the arrest in the cases that you worked on?
3 A Yes.
4 Q Was the manner of arrest of these suspects in any way different or 5 treated -- approached differently than it would have been approached for defendants in 6 any other kind of case?
7 Mr. Kravis. And Mr. Miller, I'll just give you the same instruction about active
8 investigations that you worked on during your time with the FBI. To the extent you're 9 sort of able to answer the question that was asked at a general level, you can go ahead
10 and answer, but please do not get into the specifics of any active investigation that you
11 worked on while you were at the FBI.
12 Mr. Miller. Okay.
13 Mr. Kravis. Go ahead.
14 BY [redacted]
15 Q So just -- I'm not actually asking you about the cases themselves, but when I
16 mean manner of arrest like how the FBI took the person into custody, like,
17 how -- methods that you used. Were those methods chosen in any way differently for 18 January 6th defendants than the methods of arrests were chosen for other defendants
19 who were not involved with the January 6th events?
20 A January 6th defendant arrest operations were assessed and evaluated no
21 different than any other arrest operation that we would conduct.
22 Q Did anybody in the FBI complain to you about the manner that those 23 defendants were arrested?
24 A No.
25 Q The January 6th defendants?

1 A No.

2 Q Did anybody in the FBI complain to you about the way those cases were

3 handled?

4 A No.

5 I think we're good for now. Thank you.

6 [redacted] We can go off the record.

5 Q Mr. Miller, when we wrapped our first round of questioning and then just

6 wrapped the last round of questioning with my colleagues from the minority, you were

7 discussing January 6th investigations, and you had said that CR-15 was assigned

8 January 6th investigations.

9 What was CR-15's role?

10 A So CR-15, like all squads at Washington Field Office, were assigned

11 January 6th investigations.

12 Q Uh-huh.

13 A So, given the sheer number and volume of the cases, all the squads were 14 assigned those investigations, as were squads across the country.

15 Q So were you working the investigations on specific subjects?

16 A I was supervising those investigations.

17 Q And then your line agents were the ones that were working the cases?

18 A That's correct.

19 Q And would they communicate at all with other field offices regarding the 20 case they were working?

21 A Yes.

22 Q And did you have an understanding of how the investigations were handled?

23 Was Washington Field Office handling the investigations?

24 A When the investigations began, Washington Field Office was really the 25 intake point.

1 Q Uh-huh.

2 A And for defendants that were -- you know, for subjects that were identified
3 as residing in the Washington Field Office's area of responsibility, Washington Field Office
4 would open those cases.

5 For other subjects who were identified and the initial investigation, you know,
6 identified, you know, identities, where they may live, once we've identified a particular
7 residence that was outside of the Washington Field Office area of responsibility, those 8 investigations were sent to the field office that had jurisdiction over where that particular 9 person lived.

10 Q Uh-huh. And was it your understanding that after the Washington Field
11 Office sent the investigation over to the other field office, would Washington Field Office
12 take their hands off the investigation, or were they involved in those investigations?

13 A Washington Field Office agents were not involved, unless there was a lead
14 that came back where they needed Washington Field Office assistance. But those 15 investigations were transferred to that field office where that person was living, and they 16 handled the investigation from there.

17 The preliminary investigation was done by Washington Field Office by way of just 18 identifying, you know, where they were on the Capitol that day, who they were, where 19 they particularly are residing. And then that packet of information was then sent to the 20 field office where that person may be -- where we believed that person was living at the 21 time.

22 Q And when you said that the Washington Field Office would get involved
23 again if a lead came back, what do you mean by a lead that came back?

24 A If there was, like, a question about, okay, where did they stay when they 25 were here, and they identified they were staying in a hotel in the Washington area, that

1 lead would come back to the field office for an agent to go out and, with a subpoena, get
2 information from that particular hotel.
3 Q Uh-huh.
4 A Or, you know, any investigative step that had to be taken back in this area,
5 that's when they would send a lead back to the Washington Field Office, and that agent, a
6 Washington Field Office agent, would handle that action.
7 Q And was your squad -- were they responsible for creating these, I think you
8 used the word "packages" that were sent to the other field offices? Or were they 9 working specific cases?
10 A Well, it was a combination of both. It depended upon -- if the person,
11 again, was believed to be living in the Washington Field Office area of responsibility, then 12 the entire investigation would be run by a Washington Field Office case agent.
13 If there was a -- again, just preliminarily, they did a, you know, investigation where 14 they identified who they were, where they might live, after looking at the various video 15 evidence, they would take that and send that information to another field office if that 16 person was believed to be living in that area.
17 Q And were your squad agents involved in doing any of the -- executing any of 18 the arrest warrants or search warrants involved with January 6th subjects?
19 A Yes.
20 Q And were they all within the Washington Field Office area of responsibility,
21 or were they across the country?
22 A The agents assigned to CR-15 were only working cases, from start to finish,
23 of defendants that were in the Washington Field Office AOR, area of responsibility.
24 Q So those were the warrants that they were involved in the execution of?
25 A Correct.

1 Q Okay.

2 And was it your understanding that the FBI was following the DIOG in relation to

3 January 6th investigations?

4 A Yes.

5 Q And when the investigations were given over to the field office, was there

6 any involvement from the Washington Field Office about how those field offices should

7 run their investigations?

8 A No, we did not consult with them on how they should run the investigations.

9 Q Okay.

10 And do you know how the cases were classified? January 6th investigations, how 11 were they classified?

12 A I don't recall the actual classification.

13 Q Were they classified as domestic terrorism cases?

14 A I don't recall.

15 Q Okay.

16 And through the course of our investigation, we've learned of a list that Bank of 17 America turned over to the FBI of customers regarding purchases that were made in the 18 D.C. area between January 5th and January 6th that also included purchases of firearms.

19 Are you aware of this list?

20 A No.

21 Q Did you ever see it come into the Washington Field Office?

22 A No.

23 Q Did anyone ever tell you about the list from Bank of America?

24 A No.

25 Q During our course of investigation, we've also learned about a bus trip of individuals who were attending the rally from Boston and they came on a bus all together. There were 140 of them.

The two individuals who organized the bus trip actually entered the Capitol, and so the FBI investigated those individuals, and they were prosecuted.

But we've learned that the Washington Field Office asked the Boston Field Office to open investigations into all of the individuals on that bus.

Are you aware of that episode at all?

A No.

Q Did anyone ever raise concerns to you about this bus trip?

A No.

Q Okay.

I'm going to turn it over to my colleague [redacted].

BY [redacted]

Q Mr. Miller, just for the benefit of the committee, working public corruption at the FBI appears to be a fairly nuanced type of violation, from what we understand, compared to perhaps other violations.

A Uh-huh.

Q Can you just walk through, for the benefit of the committee, what's a little different about the approval chain and the mechanisms and sort of the coordinative partnerships that you have to, you know, have at the ready in order to be able to embark upon that violation?

It's a little different than, perhaps, my understanding of maybe what a bank robbery investigation is like, which is more linear.

Can you just kind of walk that through for the benefit of the committee, please?

A Well, given the sensitivities of a public corruption investigation, being that it

1 is targeting a public official, the FBI, you know, through their, you know, publishing the 2 DIOG, which I've referenced before, outlines a different set of approvals that are
3 necessary to open those cases.
4 So, as I mentioned, for a -- I believe it's a -- if my memory serves me correctly, it
5 was a 58 case, so it's a public corruption investigation, the requirement is that the 6 supervisory special agent assigned to the squad approves the opening. It would then go 7 to the assistant special agent in charge for approval, and then on to the special agent in 8 charge.
9 And then you also had to send a letterhead memorandum to DOJ outlining and 10 summarizing predication, notifying them of the opening and also that you have 11 consulted -- already, you know, previous to the opening, consulted with the prosecutorial
12 office in your area of responsibility.
13 Q Would it be fair to say that there's a much more -- how would I say
14 this? -- that, early on, there's a partnership and a more centralized approach to the way
15 that's managed because of the sensitivity of that investigation? Would that be correct?
16 A Yes. You know, from my assessment, the reason that the FBI outlines the 17 specific number of positions that need to sign off on those opening electronic 18 communications that actually initiate the case, that's due to the sensitivity and due to the 19 fact that it is a public official.
20 Q And the committee understands that one thing that would be different 21 about, say, public corruption from a violent crimes or other types of investigations would 22 be, as opposed to a more action, officer-oriented working relationship with the U.S.
23 Attorney's Office, you would also be working oftentimes with main Justice, and someone 24 at main Justice might be consulting or also otherwise giving advice, counsel, or even 25 approval, as needed, depending on the level of the investigation.

1 Would that be accurate?

2 A There was no approval necessary for Department of Justice to open it. It

3 was just, you needed to consult with them and review the predication prior to drafting

4 and sending the opening communication up through the approval chain. So it needed

5 to reference in the body of the communication that that meeting and that discussion had

6 occurred between the particular --

7 Q Sure.

8 A -- case agent and the prosecutors.

9 Q But beyond the opening, as things might develop in a case, there may be

10 approvals, depending on where the investigation's logical facts, circumstances, et cetera,

11 may occur, right? If you're going to necessitate further intrusive techniques or 12 something of this, as far as investigative techniques --

13 A Right. Investigative techniques obviously would be -- there would be a

14 requirement for, you know, search warrants. Or, to back up, you know, you would need

15 to get subpoenas, so you would have to open up a grand jury investigation. And, you

16 know, that would require the prosecutor's office actually initiating that. And then the 17 next step, being search warrants for any number of things or items or places, would 18 obviously require going to the court.

19 Q Yeah. Well, thank you for that.

20 Just to put a fine point on that, I just wanted to distinguish the fact that it's a very

21 nuanced investigation and that it's very sensitive, and, therefore, the levels of

22 coordination and approval vary juxtaposed with other more -- I don't want to say

23 "mundane" or "routine," but -- you know, criminal investigative matters the Bureau might 24 handle.

25 So thank you for that, Mr. Miller.

1 BY [redacted]

2 Q Going back to January 6th for one more question there, during the last

3 round, you spoke to my colleagues about confidential human sources and whether or not

4 there were CHSes at the Capitol on January 6th.

5 Following the events that occurred at the Capitol on January 6, 2021, did you ever

6 come to learn that there were FBI CHSes on the Capitol grounds that day?

7 A No, not while I was with the FBI. I learned or I heard about that through

8 media reporting.

9 Q And that was after you had left the Bureau. Is that correct?

10 A Correct.

11 Q And what was your understanding from media reporting?

12 A Just that there was reporting that, you know, sources were present during

13 January 6th.

14 Q But you never became aware of any CHSes on the grounds during your 15 tenure at the FBI. Is that correct?

16 A That's correct.

17 Q Okay.

18 I'm going to move on to -- I'll introduce as exhibit No. 4 a July 25, 2022, letter from 19 Senator Grassley.

20 [Miller Exhibit No. 4

21 Was marked for identification.]

22 BY [redacted]

23 Q Please take your time to review.

24 Have you had sufficient time to review?

25 A Yes.

1 Q So, on July 25, 2022, Senator Grassley sent another letter to Director Wray
2 and Attorney General Garland regarding ASAC Thibault as well as whistleblower
3 disclosures purporting to show that the FBI developed information in 2020 about Hunter
4 Biden's criminal, financial, and related activity.
5 Were you aware of this letter before today?
6 A I remember reading about it, yes.
7 Q And when did you read the letter, or did it --
8 A When it was referenced in the news media.
9 Q Okay.
10 And, again, I'll refer to the specific pages when I read from the letter.
11 So, on the first page, that last paragraph, second sentence, it states, "It is further 12 alleged that in August 2020, FBI Supervisory Intelligence Analyst Brian Auten opened an 13 assessment which was used by a FBI Headquarters ('FBI HQ') team to improperly discredit 14 negative Hunter Biden information as disinformation and caused investigative activity to 15 cease. Based on allegations, verified and verifiable derogatory information on Hunter
16 Biden was falsely labeled as disinformation."
17 Mr. Miller, are you familiar with SIA Brian Auten?
18 A Yes.
19 Q And did you ever interact with Mr. Auten while you were at the Bureau?
20 A I may have had one meeting at headquarters where he was in attendance.
21 Q And how did you become familiar with SIA Auten?
22 A Just in that meeting. Like I said, I believe he was in that meeting. But I
23 don't recall what that was regarding. I just remember the name.
24 Q Were you aware of what team or squad Mr. Auten was assigned to?
25 A No.

1 Q He was not assigned to CR-15. Is that correct?

2 A Correct.

3 Q Did he regularly interact with agents at CR-15 or the intelligence analysts of 4 the CR-15?

5 A No.

6 Q What did you understand Mr. Auten's roles and responsibilities to be?

7 A I don't know what his roles and responsibilities were, other than he was

8 assigned to FBI headquarters.

9 Q Okay. Did you understand if he was in Mr. Thibault's chain of command?

10 A He was not. If he was assigned to headquarters, he was not in the chain of 11 command.

12 Q Okay. And are you familiar with the assessment that Mr. Auten opened on

13 Hunter Biden?

14 Mr. Kravis. And, Mr. Miller, I'll just offer you the same caveat I've been offering

15 about information on active investigations. I am not certain whether this falls into that

16 category or not, but I'll just give you the same instruction that I mentioned in the last 17 round.

18 Go ahead.

19 [redacted] Thank you.

20 Mr. Miller. Could you repeat the question?

21 BY [redacted]

22 Q Yeah, absolutely. Are you familiar with the assessment that Mr. Auten

23 opened on Hunter Biden that was referred to in Senator Grassley's letter?

24 A No, I'm not.

25 Q And do you know which FBI headquarters team the letter was referring to?

1 A No.

2 Q Okay.

3 On the second page of Senator Grassley's letter, it's the last paragraph on that
4 page, it says, "It has been alleged that in September 2020, investigators from the same
5 FBI HQ team were in communication with FBI agents responsible for the Hunter Biden
6 information targeted by Auten's assessment. The FBI HQ team's investigators placed 7 their findings with respect to whether reporting was disinformation in a restricted access
8 sub-file reviewable only by the particular agents responsible for uncovering the specific
9 information."

10 Are you familiar with this episode referenced in the letter?

11 A No, I'm not.

12 Q Do you have any information regarding investigators placing their findings
13 regarding disinformation on Hunter Biden in a restricted file?

14 A No.

15 Q Turning to the third page of the letter, the first full paragraph there, I'll read
16 it so the record is clear.

17 It says, "Third, in October 2020, an avenue of additional derogatory Hunter Biden
18 reporting was ordered closed at the direction of ASAC Thibault. My office has been 19 made aware that FBI agents responsible for this information were interviewed by the FBI
20 HQ team in furtherance of Auten's assessment. It's been alleged that the FBI HQ team
21 suggested to the FBI agents that the information was at risk of disinformation; however,
22 according to allegations, all of the reporting was either verified or verifiable via criminal
23 search warrants. In addition, ASAC Thibault allegedly ordered the matter closed without 24 providing a valid reason as required by FBI guidelines. Despite the matter being closed
25 in such a way that the investigative avenue might be opened later, it's alleged that FBI

1 officials, including ASAC Thibault, subsequently attempted to improperly mark the matter
2 in FBI systems so that it could not be opened in the future."
3 Are you familiar with this episode referenced in the letter here?
4 A A little bit.
5 Q Okay.
6 A I'm familiar with the reference to the Auten assessment and how -- that was 7 actually shared with us initially. But it does -- I think it also speaks back to an ongoing
8 investigation, so I don't think I can comment any further on that.
9 Q Okay. And when you say it was "shared with us," was that shared with the 10 CR-15?
11 A Yes --
12 Q Okay.
13 A -- some aspect of it was shared with the CR-15.
14 Q Okay.
15 And what was your understanding of ASAC Thibault's involvement in this
16 investigation?
17 A I don't have specific information -- well, again, I think it speaks back to the 18 ongoing investigation that I believe is still open, as far as my recollection is concerned.
19 Q Uh-huh.
20 A So I think I'm restricted via the -- in accordance with the authorization letter.
21 Q And so, referring back to the letter here, it's accurate to say that ASAC
22 Thibault would've had some involvement in this investigation?
23 A I believe that there was -- because it was shared, that assessment was 24 shared with CR-15, he would've had access to that assessment.
25 Q Okay.

1 And what information do you have about ASAC Thibault allegedly
2 ordering -- excuse me, Thibault -- ordering an avenue of derogatory reporting on Hunter
3 Biden closed?
4 Mr. Kravis. And I'll just offer the usual --
5 Mr. Miller. Uh-huh.
6 Mr. Kravis. You know the spiel by now.
7 Mr. Miller. Yeah.
8 I'm not -- I think it speaks back to the initial -- or, an open investigation. So I
9 don't know if I can -- I don't think I can comment on that.
10 BY [redacted]
11 Q So, besides the sharing of the Auten assessment with the CR-15 team, was 12 CR-15 involved in this investigation?
13 A The investigation was not assigned to CR-15 --
14 Q Uh-huh.
15 A -- no. The -- which investigation are you referring to? The Hunter Biden
16 investigation?
17 Q Correct.
18 A That was not assigned to CR-15.
19 Q So what was assigned to CR-15 that you received the Auten assessment?
20 A I believe that was regarding a line of intelligence that was related to the 21 Hunter Biden investigation. I don't recall exactly why it was shared with CR-15, only that 22 it was shared.
23 Q Did CR-15 take any action on the assessment?
24 Mr. Kravis. I'll offer you the same caution about not revealing information about 25 active investigations from your time at the FBI, pursuant to the authorization letter that

1 we previously discussed.

2 Mr. Miller. Yeah.

3 I think I'm not able to comment on that, given the authorization letter restrictions.

4 BY [redacted]

5 Q Okay.

6 And are you familiar with an individual named Tony Bobulinski?

7 A Yes.

8 Q And how are you generally aware of Mr. Bobulinski?

9 A His name came to us as having been someone who could potentially have 10 information regarding the Hunter Biden investigation.

11 Q And when you say "came to us," was that --

12 A CR-15.

13 Q CR-15. And just general information about Hunter Biden? Or what was 14 the -- when you say it came to you?

15 A Only that he had information concerning the investigation.

16 Q Okay, that was assigned to CR-15, a portion of the investigation.

17 A The investigation was not assigned to CR-15.

18 Q Okay. So then why did information about Mr. Bobulinski come to CR-15?

19 A Again, I don't think I can get into that, given that it's still an ongoing

20 investigation.

21 Q Okay.

22 According to reporting, the FBI designated ASAC Thibault as the point man to 23 manage Mr. Bobulinski.

24 Are you aware of that reporting?

25 A Yes.

1 Q And are you aware that the FBI interviewed Mr. Bobulinski on October 23,
2 2020?
3 A Yes.
4 Mr. Kravis. And I'll give you the same instruction about not revealing particulars
5 of active investigations from your time at the FBI, as we've previously discussed.
6 I'm sorry. I didn't mean to interrupt you.
7 Mr. Miller. No, yeah.
8 Yes, I'm aware of that interview.
9 BY [redacted]
10 Q Were you involved in Mr. Bobulinski's interview?
11 A I was involved in facilitating it. I was not involved in the interview itself.
12 Q Okay. Were others on CR-15 involved in facilitating the interview as well, 13 or just you?
14 A Yes.
15 Q Okay.
16 And, according to Mr. Bobulinski, he gave the FBI the contents of three cell
17 phones containing encrypted messages between Hunter and his business partners, along
18 with emails and financial documents detailing the Biden family's corrupt
19 influence-peddling operation in foreign countries during President Biden's Vice 20 Presidency.
21 Are you aware that Mr. Bobulinski turned over this evidence?
22 Mr. Kravis. I'll just give you the same instruction about not revealing particular
23 information about active investigations during the time that you served at the FBI,
24 pursuant to the authorization letter that we previously discussed.
25 Mr. Miller. Yeah.

1 BY [redacted]

2 Q Okay.

3 Just for clarity, I'll enter as an exhibit a September 4, 2022, New York Post article

4 titled "FBI agent Timothy Thibault hid intel from whistleblower on Hunter and the 'Big

5 Guy' Joe Biden."

6 [Miller Exhibit No. 5

7 Was marked for identification.]

8 BY [redacted]

9 Q You can feel free to review. I'll just refer to specific passages in the article.

10 A Okay.

11 Q It's lengthy because there's a lot of photos.

12 Have you had sufficient time to review?

13 A Yes.

14 Q So I'm looking at the first page here. It's the -- one, two, three -- fourth

15 paragraph.

16 The article reads, "Bobulinski gave the FBI the contents of three cellphones

17 containing encrypted messages between Hunter and his business partners, along with 18 emails and financial documents detailing the Biden family's corrupt influence-peddling

19 operation in foreign countries during Joe's vice presidency."

20 And the "Joe" is in reference to President Biden now.

21 Did I read that correctly?

22 A Yes.

23 Q And is this accurate, to your knowledge?

24 Mr. Kravis. And I'll just offer you the same instruction about not providing

25 specific information about particular active investigations that you worked on when you

1 were serving at the FBI.

2 Mr. Miller. Right.

3 Yeah, I can't comment on this regarding whether or not it's true or not, based on 4 the fact that it's still an open investigation.

5 BY [redacted]

6 Q Are you aware of whether or not the FBI promptly analyzed the information

7 provided by Bobulinski?

8 Mr. Kravis. I'll give you the same instruction.

9 [redacted] And that's to not answer the question? Is that correct?

10 Mr. Kravis. I'm sorry, what?

11 [redacted] Is that to not answer the question? Is that the instruction you're 12 providing?

13 Mr. Kravis. Yes.

14 [redacted] Okay.

15 BY [redacted]

16 Q And at the conclusion of the interview, Mr. Bobulinski reports that he was 17 given ASAC Thibault's information and told that ASAC Thibault would follow up.

18 Mr. Bobulinski contends that he never received any followup from ASAC Thibault. And 19 this is on the -- one, two, three -- the fourth page, there at the top.

20 Do you have any information as to whether ASAC Thibault followed up with 21 Mr. Bobulinski?

22 Mr. Kravis. And I'll give you the same instruction about questions regarding 23 particular active investigations during the time that you were serving at the FBI.

24 [redacted] And that instruction is to not answer the question? Is that correct?

25 Mr. Kravis. Correct.

1 [redacted] Okay.

2 BY [redacted]

3 Q Do you know if Mr. Bobulinski was ever interviewed again by the FBI, or was 4 it just the one occurrence?

5 Mr. Kravis. The same instruction.

6 [redacted] And that's to not answer the question? Is that correct?

7 Mr. Kravis. Correct.

8 BY [redacted]

9 Q And why did the WFO not investigate Mr. Bobulinski's allegations further?

10 Mr. Kravis. I'll give you the same instruction.

11 [redacted] And that's to not answer the question? Is that correct?

12 Mr. Kravis. Correct.

13 BY [redacted]

14 Q Okay.

15 And so, besides as you've testified already today regarding receiving the Auten

16 assessment, receiving reporting that Tony Bobulinski could have information on the 17 Hunter Biden investigation, and then helping to facilitate Mr. Bobulinski's interview, were 18 there any other actions related to the Hunter Biden investigation that CR-15 took?

19 Mr. Kravis. If you can describe at a general level your -- this is slightly different, 20 not the same instruction.

21 [redacted] Uh-huh.

22 Mr. Kravis. If you're able to describe at a general level anything that you were

23 involved in without revealing the details of a particular active investigation from your

24 time at the FBI, then you can go ahead and answer the question that way. Does that 25 make sense?

1 Mr. Miller. Yes.

2 Nothing beyond facilitating that particular interview.

3 BY [redacted]

4 Q Okay. And the Auten assessment and then receiving reporting regarding

5 Mr. Bobulinski?

6 A Correct. Yeah, nothing more than those three items.

7 Q Okay.

8 During your tenure with the CR-15 and related to this investigation specifically, did

9 you ever have any communications with the U.S. Attorney's Office for the District of 10 Delaware?

11 A No. Oh --

12 Mr. Kravis. Well, okay. Never mind.

13 Mr. Miller. No.

14 BY [redacted]

15 Q Any communications with the U.S. Attorney's Office for the District of 16 Columbia?

17 A During my tenure?

18 Q Related to this specific investigation.

19 A Not that I recall.

20 Q Okay.

21 Any communications with the U.S. Attorney's Office for the Central District of 22 California?

23 Mr. Kravis. You're asking about this particular matter?

24 [redacted] Yes, sir.

25 Mr. Miller. No.

1 BY [redacted]

2 Q Okay.

3 Did you ever have any communications with specifically, from the U.S. Attorney's

4 Office for Delaware, U.S. Attorney Weiss?

5 A No.

6 Q Assistant U.S. Attorney Lesley Wolf?

7 A No.

8 Q Did you have any communications with anyone at headquarters, FBI

9 headquarters, regarding this investigation?

10 A Nothing outside of those three items.

11 Q Okay. And who did you communicate with these, or the unit or section 12 that you communicated with?

13 A I don't recall specifically who, but public corruption unit would've been 14 involved.

15 Q Uh-huh.

16 And did you ever have any communications with the Public Integrity Section of 17 DOJ regarding this investigation?

18 A Not that I recall.

19 Q Did you have any communications with DOJ's Tax Division on this

20 investigation?

21 A No.

22 Q Did you have any communications with any individuals that were from the 23 Internal Revenue Service regarding this investigation?

24 A No.

25 Q Okay.

1 And then, during your tenure at the FBI, were you ever assigned to any of the 2 Special Counsel's investigations -- Special Counsel Mueller's investigation?
3 A Not assigned to the actual investigations, no.
4 Q Okay. Did you work on any of the investigative matters that Special
5 Counsel Mueller was covering?
6 A No, I did not work on the actual investigations.
7 Q Okay. Did you have any sort of involvement?
8 A Once the Special Counsel's Office was closed, we assisted with supporting 9 the prosecution phase of their investigations.
10 Q And what did that entail, supporting the prosecution phase?
11 A Just providing -- the agents provided support to the prosecutor team to 12 prepare for trial.
13 Q Okay.
14 And were you ever assigned to do any sort of tasks related to Special Counsel John 15 Durham's investigation?
16 A No.
17 Q Were you ever assigned -- I think this was after your tenure. Were you
18 ever assigned any tasks related to Special Counsel Jack Smith's investigation?
19 A No.
20 [redacted] I think that's all the questions I have for now. We'll go off the 21 record.
22 [Recess.]
23 [redacted] We can go back on the record. It's 12:48 p.m.
24 BY [redacted]
25 Q Mr. Miller, I want to just address -- kind of get some clarification on the

1 record.

2 There have been a number of references made during the course of the interview

3 to the authorization letter that you received from the FBI.

4 A Uh-huh.

5 Q And you've reviewed that letter, right?

6 A Yes.

7 Q Okay.

8 Before we turn to that, when did you leave the FBI?

9 A August of 2021.

10 Q And it's now July of 2023. So, in the intervening almost 2 years, have you

11 had any conversations with anybody at the FBI about any ongoing matters?

12 A No.

13 Q Okay.

14 So there have been a number of references made during the course of this

15 interview to "open" investigations. To the extent that it's been referenced, that refers

16 to investigations that were open during the time that you were at the FBI, right?

17 A Correct.

18 Q Okay. So you don't have any knowledge, sitting here today, about whether 19 any particular investigation that was open when you left is still open today.

20 A Yeah, I wouldn't know which ones were open and which ones were closed at 21 this point.

22 Q Okay.

23 And I want to go ahead and introduce into the record the authorization letter that

24 you received. Your attorney provided us with a copy of that yesterday. This will be

25 exhibit No. 6.

1 [Exhibit later withdrawn.]

2 BY [redacted]

3 Q Have you reviewed this before?

4 A Yes.

5 Q Okay. And if you want to take a minute to look through it again, you're 6 welcome to.

7 A Okay.

8 Q On page 2, the second full paragraph --

9 Mr. Kravis. I'm sorry, I think there may be a page missing from the versions that 10 were handed to us.

11 [redacted] Oh.

12 Mr. Kravis. But I have a copy that you can read from.

13 BY [redacted]

14 Q I'll just read it into the record. We don't need -- we can withdraw it. That 15 won't be exhibit No. 6. We'll withdraw it. I'll just read into the record the sentence.

16 On the second page of the authorization letter, the second full paragraph

17 reads -- the first two sentences read, "The Department expects you will abide by your

18 obligations under the law and Department policy to refrain from disclosing information

19 relating to sensitive law enforcement information and deliberations. This includes FBI

20 deliberations concerning investigations or prosecutions that were ongoing while you

21 served in the FBI."

22 Did I read that correctly?

23 A Yes.

24 Q Okay. And so the authorization letter that you received specifically

25 references matters that were ongoing while you were in your tenure at the FBI, correct?

1 A Correct.

2 Q Okay. So, to the extent that you're discussing anything here today, it was

3 just about investigations that were ongoing, again, during your tenure at the FBI?

4 A Correct.

5 Q All right.

6 On the questions about Mr. Thibault that you -- or, I'm sorry, Mr. Bobulinski that

7 we just talked through, I want to look back at the New York Post article dated

8 September 5, 2022. And I think this was exhibit No. 4, but I didn't actually mark it. No,

9 this was exhibit No. 5.

10 Had you seen this article before it was presented to you today?

11 A This is the September 5th article?

12 Q The September 5, 2022, article from the New York Post.

13 A Yes.

14 Q Okay. Do you see on the first page where it says it's written by Miranda

15 Devine?

16 A Yes.

17 Q Are you familiar with who Miranda Devine is?

18 A No.

19 Q Okay. Are you aware that she is -- was a -- considered a tabloid journalist

20 from Australia?

21 A No, I'm not aware of Miranda Devine.

22 Q Okay.

23 Turning to the exhibit 4, it's the July 25, 2022, letter from Senator Grassley

24 concerning the Auten assessment.

25 You said that your team received the Auten assessment. Do you recall if you

1 personally reviewed that assessment?

2 A I don't recall.

3 Q Okay. You don't recall if you reviewed it, or you did not review it?

4 A I don't recall reviewing it.

5 Q Okay. So you don't know -- there are a number of allegations made in this

6 about the contents of the assessment. Sitting here today, you don't recall reviewing it,

7 so you don't know if any of the allegations in here could be true about that assessment.

8 A I don't recall reviewing the assessment, no.

9 Q Okay.

10 There's an allegation in this letter that Mr. Thibault hid intelligence. And,

11 without getting into the substance of any investigations, we talked through extensively in 12 the prior hour your experience with Mr. Thibault, your understanding of his reputation.

13 Is it consistent with your understanding of his reputation or your experiences with him

14 personally that he would hide intelligence?

15 A That's not consistent with what I know about Mr. Thibault.

16 Q Okay. Did anybody who you supervised ever bring allegations to you about 17 Mr. Thibault hiding information or hiding intelligence?

18 A No.

19 Q Okay.

20 [redacted] Go ahead.

21 BY [redacted]

22 Q A couple little points of clarification from the previous hour.

23 You had a couple questions about what differences, if any, there are in the 24 approvals that you have to seek for cases on the public corruption unit versus, sort of,

25 run-of-the-mill criminal investigations. Do you recall those questions?

1 A Yes.

2 Q At one point, there was a question about investigative techniques and the

3 approvals that you needed to get subpoenas, for example, or search warrants. Do you

4 recall --

5 A Yes.

6 Q -- those questions? And just to be clear, you have to get a prosecutor's

7 approval or involvement to get a search warrant, correct?

8 A Correct.

9 Q And that's true of any criminal investigation, not just something that 10 happens in the CR-15 unit, right?

11 A That's correct. That's any criminal investigation.

12 Q And the same with a grand jury subpoena, correct?

13 A Correct.

14 Q So those are not special procedures for your unit; they just apply to any 15 criminal investigation that you were doing?

16 A Right. Those are not special investigative steps designated only for public

17 corruption cases.

18 Q Okay.

19 But you indicated that you do notify D0J or U.S. Attorney's Office prosecutors in a

20 memo sort of laying out the predicate for certain public corruption offenses when you are 21 investigating those. Is that fair?

22 A When we open them.

23 Q When you open them?

24 A Yes.

25 Q But not when you're seeking -- no special approval is needed when you're

1 seeking more invasive investigative steps than the approvals that you would need
2 otherwise in a criminal case?
3 A Correct.
4 Q Okay.
5 You also were asked just a couple of questions about the allegation that there was 6 an FBI confidential human source placed on the ground on January 6th. Do you recall
7 that question from the last hour?
8 A I recall that question, yes.
9 Q And the questions that you were asked were based on media reporting,
10 correct?
11 A I don't recall.
12 Q I'm sorry, that's a weird way for me to ask. Let me just say this. You don't 13 have any knowledge from your experience at the FBI that there was any confidential
14 human source on the ground on January 6th. Is that fair to say?
15 A I was not aware of that, no.
16 Q Okay. And when you were asked about the confidential human source
17 allegedly being present on January 6th, that allegation was from a media source. It was 18 from reporting that you had seen. It was not something that you learned as an FBI
19 agent, in your official duties as an FBI agent. Fair to say?
20 A Correct.
21 Q Okay. So you have no idea whether that reporting is true?
22 A I do not.
23 Q Okay.
24 All right. Now, you have been given -- I guess it's three letters here. I don't 25 recall all the exhibit numbers. You don't need to look at them specifically. But -- the

1 three letters from Senator Grassley that are not addressed to you, right?
2 A Correct.
3 Q But you may have heard some of the allegations in those letters in the 4 media. Is that fair to say?
5 A Yes. I learned about these letters in the media.
6 Q Okay. And how about the allegations contained in them? The particular 7 ones that we went over today, did you learn of those allegations generally from public
8 media reporting?
9 A Yes.
10 Q Okay. And while you were in the position of supervisory special agent at 11 CR-15, you indicated before that no one had come to you with these allegations in your 12 official position while you were there. Is that right?
13 A That's correct. I don't recall any allegations that are outlined in these 14 letters being directly brought to me.
15 Q If an FBI agent had raised any of the concerns that are addressed in these 16 letters from Senator Grassley to you while you were serving as supervisory special agent
17 in CR-15, what would your response have been?
18 A I would have immediately brought it to the attention of my bosses to find
19 out if there was any merit to them.
20 Q Fair to say that when you say "find out if there was any merit," you would 21 have been in a position then to maybe figure out if these things were true?
22 A Depending upon the particular allegations and the facts, potentially. It 23 would depend on what the allegation is.
24 Q I mean, let's just take, for example, the general allegation that Mr. Thibault 25 was burying evidence or refusing to follow through on investigative leads for political

1 purposes. If an agent had come to you with that kind of complaint, like the ones raised
2 in the letter, would you have been in a position to try to do something about it?
3 A Absolutely, if it would've been -- especially if it was a case that was under 4 marked review.
5 Q And you said you would've gone to your superiors, is that fair to say, with 6 those?
7 A Yes.
8 Q And then you or they together or separately, someone at the FBI, could've
9 tried to find out whether there was merit to those allegations, right?
10 A Correct. And there's a process by which you would bring those concerns to 11 your superiors and then potentially over to FBI headquarters, to the Office of Professional 12 Responsibility. Also, you could bring them to the DOJ inspector general.
13 Q And are your line agents trained with respect to that process, how to raise 14 those kind of concerns?
15 A Yes. Every agent knows that if there are concerns about particular actions
16 on the part of FBI employees, how they could report those allegations of wrongdoing.
17 Q Do you know how they receive that training or how often they receive it?
18 A I don't recall how often they get that training.
19 Q Is it called whistleblower training or something like that?
20 A I believe whistleblower training is part of the annual training curriculum.
21 There's also training, again, about -- where the policies that guide, you know, what's 22 appropriate for agents, you know, as far as agent behavior and so on.
23 So I think it all goes back to the general annual training around policy. But, if I
24 recall, there was whistleblower training as well.
25 Q Okay.

1 So is it fair to say that those policies are in place exactly for situations like those
2 alleged in Senator Grassley's letters, so that, for example, if an agent believes that
3 somebody is being influenced by partisanship in their investigative steps, they have a
4 place within the FBI to raise that concern and to put it to a stop? Is that one of the 5 reasons those policies exist?
6 A Yes, that's why those mechanisms are in place.
7 Q So, as someone who formerly was in a position to try to address those kind
8 of allegations, does it frustrate you at all to learn of them in the public versus when you
9 were in a position where you actually could've addressed them if they were meritorious?
10 A I would just say that I would hope that agents and FBI employees would 11 know to use that mechanism and that that's in place for reporting any allegation. Yeah.
12 Q Okay.
13 A lot of the concerns that are in those letters are directed at one particular FBI
14 employee; that's Mr. Thibault. Fair to say?
15 A Yes.
16 Q Not all of them, but a good portion of them.
17 [redacted] And for clarity, we're talking about the letters from Senator Grassley
18 dated July 18, 2022; May 31, 2022; and July 25, 2022.
19 BY [redacted]
20 Q Right, the ones that have been introduced as exhibits here.
21 A Yes.
22 Q Okay. And you've already said many times that you did not personally 23 receive any complaints and did not personally have any concerns about partisanship on 24 the part of Mr. Thibault with respect to his official investigative work. Is that --
25 A That's correct.

1 Q -- fair to say? Okay.

2 I'm going to introduce -- what's our exhibit? Are we at 6?

3 The Reporter. Six.

4 [redacted] Okay. Let's mark this exhibit 6.

5 [Miller Exhibit No. 6

6 Was marked for identification.]

7 BY [redacted]

8 Q There we go. This is all the pages of a New York Times article dated

9 May 18, 2023. The title of this article is "Taking on the F.B.I., Trump Allies Single Out a 10 Former Agent."

11 Do you see that title at the top?

12 A Yes.

13 Q Are you familiar with this article?

14 A I have seen this article, yes.

15 Q Okay. And are you aware that the former agent that they're referring to 16 that's being singled out by Trump's allies is Tim Thibault, according to the article?

17 A Yes.

18 Q Okay.

19 I'm going to direct your attention in particular to paragraph 3. It begins,

20 "Powerful Republican lawmakers." Do you see that paragraph?

21 A Yes.

22 Q And would you mind just reading that one paragraph? It's only, like, two 23 sentences.

24 A "Powerful Republican lawmakers, including Representative Jim Jordan and 25 Senator Charles R. Grassley, demanded that Mr. Thibault testify before their committees.

1 Citing an anonymous G.O.P. official, Mr. Jordan's panel in a news release last year
2 denounced Mr. Thibault as 'public enemy No. 1.'"
3 Q Okay. Were you aware that this GOP official, via Chairman Jordan, had
4 denounced Agent Thibault as, quote, "public enemy No. 1"?
5 A No.
6 Q Does it concern you at all that an FBI agent, particularly one whose job is to 7 investigate congressional officials or public officials, is being targeted by Members of 8 Congress and other partisans as, quote, "public enemy No. 1"?
9 A Could you rephrase the question, or --
10 Q Yeah. Does it concern -- does the language concern you, is really what I
11 mean? Like, does targeting an FBI agent and referring to him as, quote, "public enemy
12 No. 1" publicly, does that concern you, as a tactic?
13 A I'm concerned if any FBI official is referenced in a media article in any 14 negative light.
15 Q Can you explain, like, why it would be a concern for Mr. Thibault, for 16 example, or others?
17 A I think it is a -- it could have a chilling effect to, you know, any official, any
18 FBI employee, for that matter, again, any time that they're singled out in the media
19 without being particularly charged with a crime or -- I think that it can, again, have a 20 chilling effect to the overall employee base when it comes to doing their job.
21 Q And do you mean it would be chilling because if they investigated somebody
22 and that upset powerful people that they also would be targeted?
23 A No, I wouldn't -- I don't know. That's a hypothetical. I really don't know.
24 Q Okay.
25 BY [redacted]

1 Q What do you mean by "chilling effect"?

2 A Like I said, I just think that any time an FBI official or an FBI employee is

3 highlighted in the media negatively, I think it can affect morale and their ability to 4 potentially do their jobs in an objective way, in the way that they're expected to.

5 Q And just with respect to the "chilling effect" specifically, could it potentially

6 make an agent think twice about taking a particular investigative step, if they had

7 concerns about being lambasted in the media about it?

8 A There's any number of possibilities of how agents could react to seeing

9 other, you know, colleagues being highlighted in the media.

10 Q Are you familiar with reports that threats against FBI agents have increased

11 sharply over the past 2 years?

12 A I haven't -- I'm not familiar with that particular report. I have seen media

13 reporting that FBI agents were threatened.

14 Q Is that of concern to you, as a former FBI agent?

15 A Absolutely.

16 Q And why is that?

17 A They're my colleagues, and I'm a former FBI agent, so I, of course, am

18 concerned about their well-being and their ability to do their job safely.

19 BY [redacted]

20 Q All right. With respect to Mr. Thibault, just before we move on, the 21 allegations that have drawn attention to Mr. Thibault and that are the subject of the 22 various letters from Senator Grassley and that earned him this moniker "public enemy

23 No. 1," those allegations were not only never criminally charged or even rise to the level

24 of a criminal allegation, but they were never raised with someone at the FBI who could

25 address them in the process that you described earlier, as far as you know, correct?

1 A I'm not aware of any -- I'm personally not aware of any allegations being
2 brought to me or any of my superiors at the time during my time at the FBI.
3 Q So you would have no idea, from your position in the FBI, as to whether any
4 of the allegations raised against him in the media or in these letters from Senator
5 Grassley are actually true?
6 A No, I wouldn't have that information.
7 Q And, in fact, they're actually inconsistent with your personal experience with 8 him such as it was when you were at the FBI?
9 A As I stated, I was surprised when I read what was being reported.
10 Q Okay.
11 The chilling effect that you were speaking of, I know that you described it as much
12 as you seem to want to, but I just want to ask you specifically about FBI agents who are 13 on the public corruption unit and charged with those type of cases.
14 Fair to say that if, hypothetically, a Congressman on this committee had 15 committed a crime that would fall under the jurisdiction of public corruption, like bribery
16 or statute or some kind of election-related offense, it would be those agents in particular 17 who would have to investigate those Congressmen. Is that right?
18 A If it was an allegation against a particular Congressman, yes, it would fall on
19 CR-15.
20 Q So, I mean, is it particularly troubling that a Congressman is calling an agent
21 "public enemy No. 1" when that agent might personally be responsible for investigating
22 wrongdoing that that Congressman committed, if he did so, in office?
23 A I mean, that's up to that particular agent that is being called out. Everyone
24 would react to it differently --
25 Q Sure.

1 A -- I would assume. So I couldn't speculate as to how one person would
2 react or feel about media attention versus another.
3 Q Okay. But do you think that there could be a chilling effect that is kind of 4 special in the public corruption unit if they are being called out by people who are public
5 officials that they may need to investigate if the occasion arises?
6 A I believe that any media attention directed towards an agent, really
7 regardless of their assignment, would be concerned about that level of attention --
8 Q Okay.
9 A -- in the public eye.
10 Q Thank you.
11 [redacted] Thank you.
12 We can go off the record. Thank you.
13 [Whereupon, at 1:10 p.m., the interview was concluded.]

2 [redacted] This is the transcribed interview of Laura Dehmlow.

3 Chairman Jordan has requested this interview as part of the committee's oversight

4 of the Federal Bureau of Investigation.

5 Would the witness please state your name for the record?

6 Ms. Dehmlow. Laura Dehmlow.

7 [redacted] Could agency counsel please state your name for the record?

8 [redacted] [redacted] FBI.

9 [redacted] [redacted] Department of Justice.

10 [redacted] And, Ms. Dehmlow, you understand agency counsel has the primary 11 fiduciary duty to the Bureau and not to you individually?

12 Ms. Dehmlow. I do.

13 [redacted] And so you would like to continue with agency counsel today?

14 Ms. Dehmlow. Yes.

15 [redacted] On behalf of the committee, I want to thank you for appearing here

16 today to answer our questions.

17 The chairman also appreciates your willingness to appear voluntarily.

18 My name is [redacted], and I'm with Chairman Jordan's staff.

19 I'll now have everyone else from the committee who is here in the room introduce

20 themselves, as well.

21 [redacted] [redacted] with Chairman Jordan's staff.

22 [redacted] [redacted] with Chairman Jordan's staff.

23 [redacted] [redacted], Chairman Jordan's staff.

25 [redacted] [redacted], Chairman Jordan's staff.

1 [redacted] [redacted] oversight counsel for the Democrats and Judiciary
2 Committee.
3 [redacted] [redacted] chief oversight counsel for the House Judiciary
4 Committee.
5 [redacted] [redacted] Democratic staff and intern.
6 [redacted] Thank you.
7 I would like to now go over the ground rules and guidelines that we will follow
8 during today's interview.
9 Our questioning will proceed in rounds. The majority will ask questions for 1 10 hour, and the minority will then have an opportunity ask questions for an equal period of 11 time if they so choose.
12 We'll alternate back and forth until there are no more questions and the interview
13 is over.
14 Typically, we take a short break at the end of each hour, but if you would like to 15 take a break apart from that, please just let us know. We're happy to accommodate 16 that.
17 As you can see, there's an official court reporter taking down everything we say to 18 make a written record.
19 So we ask that you give verbal responses to all questions.
20 Do you understand?
21 Ms. Dehmlow. I do.
22 [redacted] So the court reporter can take down a clear record, we will do our
23 best to limit the number of people directing questions at you during any given hour to 24 just those people on the staff whose turn it is.
25 Please try and speak clearly so the court reporter can understand and the folks

1 down at the end of the table can hear you, as well.

2 It is important that we don't talk over one another or interrupt each other if we

3 can help it, and that goes for everyone present at today's interview.

4 We want you to answer our questions in the most complete and truthful manner

5 possible. So we'll take our time. If you have any questions or if you do not understand

6 one of our questions, please just let us know.

7 Our questions will cover a wide range of topics. So, if you need clarification at 8 any point, please just say so. If you honestly don't know the answer to a question or do

9 not remember, it's best not to guess. Please give us your best recollection. It's okay to

10 tell us if you learned information from someone else. Just indicate how you came to 11 know that information.

12 If there are things you don't know or can't remember, just say so and please

13 inform us who to the best of your knowledge might be able to provide a more complete

14 answer to our question.

15 You should also understand that by law you are required to answer questions

16 from Congress truthfully.

17 Do you understand that?

18 Ms. Dehmlow. I do.

19 [redacted] This also applies to questions posed by congressional staff in an

20 interview.

21 Do you understand this?

22 Ms. Dehmlow. I do.

23 [redacted] Witnesses that knowingly provide false testimony could be subject

24 to criminal prosecution for making false statements under 18, U.S.C., United States Code,

25 section 1001.

1 Do you understand this?

2 Ms. Dehmlow. Uh-huh.

3 [redacted] Is there any reason you are unable to provide truthful answers to

4 today's questions?

5 Ms. Dehmlow. No.

6 [redacted] Finally, I'd like to make note that the content of what we discuss

7 here today is confidential. We ask that you not speak about what we discuss in this

8 interview to any outside individuals to preserve the integrity of our investigation.

9 For the same reason, the marked exhibits that we will use today will remain with

10 the court reporter so they can go in the official transcripts. And any copies of those 11 exhibits will be collected at the end of the interview.

12 All right. That's the end of my preamble.

13 Is there anything my colleagues from minority would like to add?

14 [redacted] Just thank the witness for taking time out of your schedule to join us

15 today.

16 [redacted] [redacted] or [redacted] do you have anything for the record?

17 [redacted] No.

18 [redacted] No.

19 [redacted] Okay. Well, the clock now reads 10:06 a.m.

20 We'll get started with our first hour of questioning.

21 Ms. Dehmlow. Okay.

22 EXAMINATION

23 BY [redacted]

24 Q Good morning.

25 A Good morning.

1 Q Could you state your full name for the record?

2 A Laura Dehmlow.

3 Q Okay. And where do you currently work?

4 A The Federal Bureau of Investigation.

5 Q And what is your current title?

6 A I'm the section chief of the Foreign Influence Task Force.

7 Q And what is the Foreign Influence Task Force?

8 A The Foreign Influence Task Force is a component part in Counterintelligence

9 Division that is charged with understanding and mitigating foreign malign influence

10 operations targeting the United States.

11 Q And how long have you been in that role for?

12 A A bit over 2 years.

13 Q What is your educational background, beginning with college?

14 A Sure. I have an undergraduate degree in political science from Colorado

15 State University and a master's in public administration, public policy from University of 16 Florida.

17 Q And, following your master's degree, what is your professional background?

18 A I worked as a temp in Washington, D.C., for 10, 11 months while I applied to 19 Federal jobs and then joined the FBI soon after.

20 Q What year did you join the FBI?

21 A 2007.

22 Q And what was your first position?

23 A I was an intelligence analyst in Counterintelligence Division.

24 Q And how long were you in that role for?

25 A Five-plus years.

1 Q And what was your next position?

2 A I was a supervisor intelligence analyst in -- in -- in Counterintelligence

3 Division.

4 Q And how long were you a supervisor analyst for?

5 A Doing the math, until 2017, so 4 to 4 and a half, 5 years, something to that 6 effect.

7 Q And, just at a high level, what were your day-to-day responsibilities in that

8 role?

9 A So I promoted in the same unit I started in as an intelligence analyst, and I

10 was working primarily counter -- China counterintelligence issues. I worked both Taiwan

11 issues and China tech transfer for the majority of those years.

12 Q And, in that position, who did you report to?

13 A There were a number of different unit chiefs. I'd have to go back, and 14 they're not SES employees. So I'd have to check with these guys.

15 Q And you said it was about until 2017 --

16 A Uh-huh.

17 Q -- to your recollection?

18 A Yep.

19 Q And then, in 2017, what was your next position?

20 A I took a joint duty assignment with the National Counterintelligence and 21 Security Center. I was a national counterintelligence officer for Economic Security and

22 Threat Finance.

23 Happy to repeat that. It was a mouthful of a title.

24 Q If you could, please.

25 A Yes. The national counterintelligence officer for economic security and

1 threat finance.

2 Q And how long were you in the this role for?

3 A A bit under 2 years.

4 BY [redacted]

5 Q When you were an advisory intelligence analyst, what unit did you work for?

6 A It was called [redacted].

7 Q And was that a China unit, you said?

8 A It was, yes.

9 Q Just focused, that was the subject matter of the --

10 A Yep.

11 Q -- unit?

12 [redacted] Okay.

13 BY [redacted]

14 Q With respect to your -- you described it is as a joint duty assignment?

15 A Uh-huh.

16 Q Can you describe what you meant by that?

17 A Yeah, absolutely. I was essentially detailed to the NCSC. National

18 counterintelligence officers are responsible for a CI mission management for a specific

19 either regional or functional portfolios. I had a functional portfolio.

20 And it was the -- I was the first person in that role. It was during the Trump

21 administration's -- largely during the Trump administration's pivot to economic security,

22 national security issue.

23 And so I did a lot of engagement with different parts of the ODNI workforce,

24 different parts of the U.S. Government to enhance people's understandings of the 25 counterintelligence risks posed and then economic securities space, largely from China.

1 But it was a global portfolio. So I also did Russia and other adversary work.

2 Q And who did you report to in this role?

3 A I'm not sure if they're an SES, but it was the NIM for Counterintelligence.

4 And, ultimately, Bill Evanina was the National Counterintelligence and Security Center

5 Director.

6 Q And do you recall when you left this position?

7 A 2019.

8 Q And what was your next position?

9 A I was the acting unit chief of the Foreign Influence Task Force, China unit,

10 before I permanently took on that role in the fall of 2019.

11 Q And what were your responsibilities and if there were any differences

12 between acting unit chief and unit chief?

13 A Essentially just applying for the job and hope that you get it. So

14 responsibilities did not really shift. The -- as I mentioned, the FITF is charged with 15 counter and foreign malign influence operations in the United States.

16 So the China unit was focused on how the Chinese Government was using foreign 17 malign efforts to influence policymaking environment in the general public.

18 And the definition of FMI, foreign malign influence, is important. What we're

19 looking for is explicit attribution to a foreign actor or their proxy, and the malign

20 threshold is critical to our work, as well. We're looking for activity that is subversive,

21 undeclared, or covert, coercive, or criminal.

22 So we're not looking at overt diplomatic engagement, public messaging, public

23 diplomacy. We're looking for that malign threshold, too. And that's what we're

24 charged with, both program managing from both an intelligence and an operational

25 perspective.

1 Q When you were the unit chief for the China --

2 A Uh-huh.

3 Q -- division of FITF, who was the section chief for FITF at the time?

4 A Bradley Benavides.

5 Q Before joining FITF, had you had any interactions with the task force --

6 A No.

7 Q -- during your prior roles?

8 A No. It was relatively new. It was only expanded to cover the globe in 9 2019.

10 Q What did it cover prior to this 2019 expansion?

11 A Russia only, post-2017.

12 Q Prior to when you joined, did you have a sense of how big the task force

13 was?

14 A No, I wouldn't have any idea.

15 Q When you joined in 2019, how many people at the FBI?

16 A I don't recall. It's grown in the intervening years, but I don't remember

17 what our footprint was then.

18 Q When you say it's grown, do you have a sense of how much it's grown by?

19 A I don't -- I couldn't tell you back then because I don't recall the start, but it's 20 around [redacted] now, the task force as a whole, not just the China unit.

21 Q When you were the unit chief for the China unit, how big was your team?

22 A It started with four people.

23 Q Including you?

24 A No. That was plus me.

25 Q Do you recall from where else the four individuals came from? Were they

1 within the agency and reassigned?

2 A Yes. So it is a true task force environment or has historically been a true

3 task force environment. So, primarily, we were staffed out of Counterintelligence

4 Division. We also had embedded personnel from our Criminal Investigative Division and

5 our Cyber Division, and historically in the Russia unit there was also somebody from our

6 Counterterrorism Division.

7 Q When you joined in 2019, in addition to the China Unit, what other units

8 required were part of the task force?

9 A There was a Russia unit and a Global unit.

10 Q And did the Global unit cover everything except for Russia and China?

11 A It primarily focused on Iran. But, yeah, if there were other adversarial

12 nations who were engaging in foreign malign influence, that's where that would fall.

13 Q In 2019, when you joined the task force, who was the unit chief for Russia?

14 A He's not an SES employee. So I can't give that name, but perhaps they can 15 get back to you.

16 BY [redacted]

17 Q Can you give us the title?

18 A Unit chief-FITF Russia.

19 Q Is there still a unit chief for FITF Russia?

20 A There is.

21 Q Is it the same individual or a different individual?

22 A It is a different individual.

23 BY [redacted]

24 Q When you were the unit chief for China, who did you report to?

25 A FITF China?

1 Q Yes.

2 A Brad Benavides. There was also an assistant section chief who is a GS-15,

3 as well.

4 Q Which office were you working out of at the time?

5 A Which building?

6 Q Yes.

7 A J. Edgar Hoover, downtown.

8 Q Was the entire task force based out of there?

9 A Yeah, to the best of my recollection. Some of our cyber personnel may 10 have occasionally sat out where our cyber folks are in Virginia.

11 Q To your knowledge, when did the task force first begin?

12 A 2017.

13 Q Do you know who was primarily responsible at the FBI for creating the task

14 force?

15 A I believe Director Wray created FITF.

16 Q You stated earlier that the -- there was a Russia focus.

17 A Uh-huh.

18 Q Was it a separate Russia unit within that task force or the task force just was

19 the --

20 A The task force just was Russia focused, and it was essentially a unit concept

21 at the time. So there was not a section. There was not an SES that covered the globe.

22 Q And, to your knowledge, is that the framework that existed from 2017 until 23 you applied for acting unit chief of the China section in 2019?

24 A Yes, to the best of my knowledge.

25 Q Do you recall when you first learned that there'd be an opportunity to apply

1 for an acting section chief, unit chief for China?

2 A I don't specifically. I believe someone from Counterintelligence Division

3 called me, but I don't remember the details.

4 Q Do you know who at the FBI made the decision to expand FITF?

5 A I don't specifically. I believe -- I've been told that Director Wray was

6 involved in the decision, but I don't know if he made the call eventually, the ultimate call

7 to do so.

8 Q Do you know why FITF was expanded to include more than just Russia?

9 A So the original scope of the FITF was in direct response to the 2016 active

10 measures that Russia undertook to target the U.S. election. You're, I'm sure, aware of 11 the DHS report that details those.

12 By 2019, we had recognized that other nation-states had ongoing influence

13 operations and ongoing influence efforts. And so it was thought appropriate to 14 consolidate those efforts and ensure we are handling things consistently across all

15 country programs.

16 Q How long were you the unit chief for China?

17 A A bit under 2 years, through 20 -- early 2021.

18 Q What was your next position?

19 A The section chief of the Foreign Influence Task Force, my current role.

20 Q And when you were the China unit chief --

21 A Uh-huh.

22 Q -- did you have regular interactions with the FBI Director?

23 A No, not really, no.

24 Q What about the section chief in FITF?

25 A We do regular engagements with the Director, yes.

1 Q How frequently do you engage with the Director?

2 A I would say quarterly and then operationally dependent.

3 BY [redacted]

4 Q Does FITF fall under any executive assistant director?

5 A It does, the EAD for the National Security Branch, Larissa Knapp.

6 Q You said her name is Larissa Knapp?

7 A Uh-h-h, k-n-a-p-p.

8 Q Have you had the same assistant executive director throughout your tenure

9 on FITF?

10 A No.

11 Q Who was the executive assistant director prior to Ms. Knapp?

12 A Jill Sanborn immediately preceded her and, prior to that, John Brown.

13 Q And how often do you interact with Ms. Knapp?

14 A It's really operationally dependent. It can be a couple times a week if

15 we've got something going on. It can be, you know, as infrequently as once every few 16 months.

17 BY [redacted]

18 Q In 2019, when you joined as a unit chief of the China unit --

19 A Uh-huh.

20 Q -- how big was the Russia unit at the time?

21 A I couldn't tell you. I don't remember.

22 Q Was it larger than the China?

23 A It was, yes. It had been around for longer. So it had time to staff up.

24 Q Do you recall how much larger, relatively speaking?

25 A I really couldn't tell you. We were in separate spaces at the time. So we

1 didn't have -- I didn't have day-to-day interaction with that whole team.

2 Q And what do you mean by you were in separate spaces?

3 A We didn't have an office space big enough for the task force to consolidate.

4 So we sat in different rooms.

5 Q Do you have an office space now?

6 A We do, yeah.

7 Q And when did that occur?

8 A I don't remember. It took longer than we'd hoped, but I don't remember.

9 Q And who was the unit chief for the Russia unit?

10 A Again, not SES employee. So --

11 BY [redacted]

12 Q Looking at your tenure at the FBI as a whole, Ms. Dehmlow, have you ever 13 been detailed or worked for any of the special counsel investigations?

14 A I have not, no.

15 Q Didn't work for Special Counsel Mueller?

16 A No.

17 Q Durham.

18 A No.

19 Q Smith.

20 A Nope.

21 Q Hur.

22 A Sorry?

23 Q Hur.

24 A No.

25 [redacted] Okay.

1 BY [redacted]

2 Q Starting with your time as unit chief with the China unit, what were your 3 day-to-day responsibilities?

4 A FITF's both an operational and intelligence component. So we are charged
5 with both providing intelligence support to case agents and analysts working
6 investigations in field offices, as well as contributing to Intelligence Community product,
7 production, and analysis for FBI executives, policymaking environment, et cetera.

8 We're also an operational unit. So we've got program management
9 responsibilities where we help facilitate field office investigative steps for cases who 10 are -- that we're covering foreign malign influence actors.

11 Q Is there a field office that you work with most frequently?

12 A No. We've got 56, and we go where the work takes us.

13 Q As -- one of FITF's tasks included meeting with social media companies. Is 14 that correct?

15 A Yes.

16 Q Do you recall when those meetings first began occurring?

17 A I don't. It was prior to my arriving there, but I don't know when they 18 started.

19 Q And when you joined this -- the unit chief of China unit --

20 A Uh-huh.

21 Q -- how frequently were those meetings occurring?

22 A They were operationally driven, and it ended up being about quarterly.

23 Q In this 2019 timeframe, do you recall which companies were meeting with 24 FITF?

25 A This would be probably an incomplete list because it was several years back

1 but Twitter, Facebook, Google, Microsoft occasionally, Apple occasionally,
2 Reddit -- although I'm not sure they were -- that might have happened within the first
3 year of me being there. I'm not sure if we were meeting with them when I started.
4 Nextdoor we met with.
5 Q Did that quarterly pace continue, or would the cadence change?
6 A The cadence changed as we got closer to the 2020 elections. We met more
7 regularly. At some point -- again, this was several years back. So I couldn't tell you
8 when that shifted. But, at some point in the lead-up to November, we met probably
9 close to monthly. And then I think we made sure to meet in the immediate week or 2
10 weeks prior to election day.
11 Q When there are these -- actually, let me take a step back.
12 A Sure.
13 Q Were these meetings all the companies at once, or were they at each
14 individual company?
15 A So the meetings I am referring to were FBI's bilateral conversations. So we 16 would have one-on-one conversations with the companies because, again, I said they 17 were sort of operationally focused.
18 We also at some point in the 2020 cycle -- and, again, I'm sorry I don't recall
19 exactly when -- began participating in a broader industry sync where several companies
20 and several members of the Federal Government, several departments and agency would 21 collaboratively have conversations about foreign malign influence threats and election
22 security.
23 Q Okay. Sticking with the 2020 timeframe, for the FITF meetings that are 24 occurring monthly, how frequently did you attend these meetings?
25 A Regularly, unless I had a conflict. There may have been a couple that I

1 missed.

2 Q And you said, to your recollection, they were occurring close to monthly --

3 A Uh-huh.

4 Q -- by the time --

5 A They may have also increased in tempo, but, honestly, I don't remember

6 when or if.

7 Q And so each month there would be a meeting with Twitter, let's say, Google,

8 Facebook, whoever else is at. Is that right?

9 A I'm sorry. Let me take a step back.

10 Are we talking about the bilateral conversations --

11 Q The bilateral ones.

12 A -- or the industry?

13 We would -- we would meet with those who are willing to engage with us. It

14 might not have been every company and at every meeting because everybody was very 15 busy at the time but, yeah, some combination of that list.

16 Q So, between the FITF meetings and the U.S. Government industry kind of 17 large motion, do you have a sense of how many meetings you attended in 2020?

18 A It would be speculation. I'd want to go back and count.

19 Q In the FITF meetings, how many personnel FITF would attend those?

20 A The bilaterals?

21 Q The bilateral meetings.

22 A It -- between five and ten probably.

23 Q And, during this time in 2020, how big is FITF at this point?

24 A Again, it was a -- we were growing at the time. So I'm honestly not sure. I

25 was only really tracking the FITF China team.

1 Q How big was the FITF China team?

2 A Let me think about that for a minute. By mid-2020, we probably had

3 between [redacted] and [redacted] people, something about that.

4 Mr. Jordan. So, on a typical week in say October of 2020, you're having an

5 individual, that group, the FITF group is meeting with Facebook that week. Maybe that

6 same week you're meeting with Twitter. Maybe that same week you're meeting with

7 Apple. Maybe that same week -- each one of those companies you're meeting with on 8 an individual basis I assume some kind of a Zoom meeting each week.

9 Ms. Dehmlow. Well, no. I don't think we were meeting weekly with everyone.

10 I -- we met -- we tried to meet with everybody within a 1- or 2-week timeframe before

11 the election, but everybody was very busy. I don't think the companies would have had

12 time for a weekly meeting. So it was some combination of those meetings at least once

13 in the months preceding the election.

14 Mr. Jordan. But it would just be with one company.

15 Ms. Dehmlow. Correct.

16 Mr. Jordan. Okay.

17 Ms. Dehmlow. With the exception of the industry-led conversations --

18 Mr. Jordan. Right.

19 Ms. Dehmlow. -- I referenced earlier, yeah.

20 BY [redacted]

21 Q With these bilateral meetings, the 5 to 10 people who are occurring, do you

22 have a -- was it tend to be the same 5 to 10 people? Would it rotate?

23 A It was usually the unit chiefs of the individual units. And then, depending

24 on what the topic was, we would have other component parts. We might have a field

25 office who is handling a cyber intrusion investigation, for example, to join those

1 conversations, as well.

2 Q Do you recall, roughly, how many people the industry partner these bilateral

3 meetings would have attend?

4 A No. At that point, most of them were via phone call. So we weren't in

5 person. I wouldn't be able to reference a count. I'm sure we did introductions at the 6 beginning of them, but I don't recall.

7 Q To your recollection, do you have a sense of which departments companies

8 would have send representatives from to attend these meetings?

9 A Yeah, it was usually, you know, they've all got different names for them but

10 essentially, like, Sight Integrity or Sight Security, Trust and Safety. And then their 11 counsel, their lawyers were usually often present.

12 Q And for these -- actually, one step back.

13 A Uh-huh.

14 Q Do you know who Elvis Chan is?

15 A I do.

16 Q And who is that?

17 A At the time he, was a supervisory special agent in the San Francisco Field

18 Office. He is now the assistant agent in charge for cyber in the San Francisco Field

19 Office.

20 Q And was Agent Chan involved with these bilateral meetings?

21 A He was.

22 Q And what was his role?

23 A So, in our field offices, the ASAC or SSAs often manage private sector

24 relationship for companies that exist within their AOR. So, because San Francisco has

25 many of the companies we're talking about, with the exception of Microsoft, for example,

1 it's pretty typical for that ASAC to manage those engagements for all sorts of threat
2 programs that the FBI works. And it's that capacity they're sort of managing calendaring
3 and agendas and ensuring that everybody knew the right phone number to call, et cetera.
4 Q In addition to this kind of management role -- did he did he present at these
5 meetings? Did he provide substantive information?
6 A Generally, no. If there was a -- and, yeah, generally, no. I would say that,
7 if it was an advanced persistent threat actor, a cyber intrusion, cyber actor that he was 8 familiar with or his team worked on, then that might have been the exception to the rule.
9 But, generally, he was -- he was in an MC role, essentially, making sure the meetings
10 stayed on track and the agenda was followed.
11 Q And, for these bilateral meetings, what was the purpose of these meetings?
12 A So one of the things that we collectively realized, I think across the U.S.
13 Government, the Intelligence Community, the Hill in the aftermath of the 2016 election
14 was that foreign actors, including Russia, were pretending to be authentic parts of the 15 conversation, of political conversations inside the United States by pretending to be 16 Americans on some of these platforms.
17 So part of the FITF's efforts were to understand and inform on private sector
18 partners of the -- of information that we might or that we believed might help them
19 protect their platforms.
20 So also pretty typical of what the FBI does with private sector partners, whether 21 it's cleared defense contractors, hospitals who might be the victim of a cyber attack, you
22 know, a wide range of other private sector engagements, the FBI has a role to play in 23 informing them of foreign actor threat activity that might be taking place, targeting their 24 companies or on their company's platforms.
25 So, when we had specific information that articulated a foreign actor was covertly

1 or inauthentically accessing those platforms, we provide information details about how
2 specifically those actors were accessing or covertly using those platforms.
3 Q Did you need a clearance? Do the industry partners, did they need a
4 clearance to attend these meetings?
5 A We worked, because most of the folks who were going to -- who were going 6 to be in the meetings did not have clearances, we often worked to declassify or 7 downgrade information from higher classifications and provide it at an unclassified level.
8 [redacted] How did you determine whether an actor was foreign or domestic?
9 Ms. Dehmlow. So there's pretty specific guidelines in the Domestic Investigation
10 Operations Guide, the DIOG, the Attorney General Guidelines for Domestic Operations
11 that talk about foreignness. So we're trying to adhere to those standards. And most of 12 the details like about how we did that in these specific contexts I can't get into because 13 it's at a classified level.
14 But, at base, what we're looking for is activity that's emanating from overseas, and 15 we can articulate that, say, an actor in country X is accessing one of these U.S.-based 16 platforms from an IP range between a certain date and time. We have explicit access
17 into how that was happening and then worked to downgrade that information.
18 BY [redacted]
19 Q When you say "worked to downgrade," do you mean you weren't sharing
20 classified information? Or was the FBI actively declassifying items to share?
21 A So usually it was not our information. So it would be [redacted]
22 [redacted] that was declassifying or downgrading information.
23 Q So you would ask the [redacted] to downgrade or declassify the
24 information?
25 A We would either ask, or they would proactively look to do that.

1 Q How did you make that decision whether or not that information could be
2 declassified through the [redacted]?
3 A I did not. It wasn't my call.
4 Q And were there any concerns that you were sharing classified information
5 with the private sector?
6 A We weren't sharing classified information. We were sharing appropriately
7 cleared information. It was just originally derived from classified sources.
8 Q Okay. So --
9 A Part of our -- part of our -- part of our mission always is to protect sources
10 and methods. And so --
11 Q Uh-huh.
12 A -- there are really specific rules in place, to the best of my knowledge, were 13 followed to make sure that we were following those rules and procedures to downgrade
14 or to declassify.
15 Q Okay. So you weren't downgrading or declassifying information to share
16 with the private sector --
17 A Again, I used "we" just previously. And I would say that the [redacted]
18 [redacted] or some other part of the government was doing that. I was not
19 specifically.
20 Q At the request of the FBI.
21 A Sometimes at the request of the FBI. Sometimes proactively on their 22 behalf.
23 BY [redacted]
24 Q How long did these meetings typically last, the bilateral meetings?
25 A I think they were usually scheduled for an hour. We didn't always go that

1 long.

2 Q And were they scheduled at a regular cadence, or would they be scheduled

3 as needed, depending on what information the FBI had?

4 A We, like I said, we had initially done them essentially quarterly. But they

5 were operationally driven. So, if there was something that was time-sensitive, we

6 would have called a meeting in the intervening time.

7 Q And, in situations like those, there'd be a meeting scheduled, in addition to 8 an already regularly scheduled meeting, or would you try to move one up?

9 A You know, I can't think of any specific examples of where we scheduled a

10 specific meeting. But, if there was something that was time-sensitive, that's how it

11 would have happened, yes.

12 Q And then, for the meetings that are occurring at this regular basis --

13 A Uh-huh.

14 Q -- is it only time-sensitive information that's being shared, or is it other

15 information, as well?

16 A I would characterize it as we're trying to share timely and relevant

17 information as quickly as possible.

18 Q Okay. But --

19 A As I said, the information that is getting downgraded or classified, we're not

20 in charge of that process. So we're a little bit beholden to the process that's in the [redacted]

21 [redacted] holdings.

22 Q Sure. So, in 2019, for example, was the quarterly pace occurring frequently

23 enough to share this information in a timely fashion?

24 A To the best of my knowledge. At that point, the -- again, I was, again, the

25 Foreign Influence Task Force China Unit chief. And so I would only have insight into the

1 China-related passage of information. So, at least for the FITF China-specific
2 information, that was happening regularly enough.
3 Q Do you recall at any of these bilateral meetings discussing with the social
4 media companies whether they a hack-and-leak policy?
5 A I don't.
6 Q Do you have any recollection during these bilateral meetings of discussing
7 any aspect of the social media's content moderation policies?
8 A So one of the things that we've been very explicit and clear about, very 9 persistent about from the beginning is that we're providing information so that they can 10 take action under their own terms of service. I am not an expert in all of those terms of 11 service. The FBI is not an expert in those terms of service, and they do vary from 12 platform to platform.
13 But one of the consistent things is they usually have a term regarding inauthentic
14 behavior on the platform or coordinated behavior on the platform. And, because that is 15 a specific scope of what the FBI information sharing is about, we certainly were aware 16 that the terms of service included provisions regarding coordinating -- coordinated 17 inauthentic behavior on platform.
18 Q Why was the FBI providing this information to social media companies?
19 A To inform, again, very typical with what we do with other private sector
20 partners. If we've got information that can protect a U.S. company or their customers, 21 we feel we've got a responsibility to share that so they can inform decisionmaking and
22 take steps to better protect themselves or their platform. But we certainly never asked
23 them to do anything with the information.
24 Q Do you recall any discussion during these bilateral meetings regarding the 25 potential of a hack-and-leak operation?

1 A I really don't recall specifics. If -- one of the things that we, again, really
2 typically do in these conversations is talk about tactics and techniques that have 3 historically been used by the threat actors that we're following and trying to mitigate or 4 help people understand. And I think, as I'm sure everyone in this room is aware, there 5 had been a hack-and-leak operation in the 2016 timeframe that had been very 6 well-covered.
7 So I would assume -- or as I remember, probably talked about hack-and-leak
8 operations by context of a range of activities foreign actors might undertake. But I don't
9 recall specific details or specific conversations or questions about hack-and-leak
10 operations, no.
11 Q With the understanding you don't recall specific examples, at a high level, do 12 you recall if that was one of the examples that was brought up during one of these 13 bilateral meetings?
14 A I really don't recall again. But, because it was a tactic and technique that 15 had been historically, I assume that it was brought up, yes.
16 Q And what about at these kind of broader USG Industry meetings? Do you
17 recall hack and leak being discussed?
18 A I don't.
19 Q And who would attend from the government side those USG Industry
20 meetings?
21 A It was some combination of FBI personnel, DOJ personnel, DHS, CISA, and 22 DHS, INA personnel. There was usually somebody from the Office of Director of 23 Intelligence Election Threats Executive -- I think that's it -- and sometimes the San 24 Francisco Field Office, again, because they were serving in sort of a calendaring
25 administrative role.

1 Q And so turning back to the bilateral meetings --

2 A Uh-huh.

3 Q -- whether it's hack and leak or other types of tactics that foreign adversaries

4 might use, is there kind of two buckets of information that the FBI is sharing, both these

5 high-level, more general warnings, as well as specific instances that the FBI's aware of 6 that foreign actors are posing a threat to a U.S. company?

7 A Yeah, I would say that primarily the information sharing, especially with

8 those companies, those bigger companies at that time in the bilateral conversations, it

9 was about specific information. In the broader industry meetings -- specifics about

10 operations or details that we were aiming to share about foreign actor, foreign malign

11 influence operations. In the broader industry meetings, that is probably the place

12 where we more regularly talked about sort of broad trends.

13 Q Do you recall any other government agencies discussing the potential of a 14 hack-and-leak operation?

15 A It was 3 years ago. I'd be speculating.

16 Q You mentioned the 2016 DNC hack. Were there other examples of a 17 hack and leak that the government provided to industry partners?

18 A Not that I recall with any specificity.

19 Q Do you recall this warning of hack and leak being discussed in 2019?

20 A I don't.

21 Q Do you recall how many meetings you had with the social media companies

22 in October of 2020 or in the weeks leading up to the election?

23 A I'm sorry. I don't remember.

24 Q You do recall that there were --

25 A Yeah, yeah.

1 Q -- a number of meetings?

2 A There were -- as I mentioned earlier, we aimed to get together with most of

3 the companies within the couple of weeks in the immediate -- in the immediate weeks

4 preceding the election.

5 Q Are you familiar with the October 2020 New York Post story on Hunter

6 Biden's laptop?

7 A I am.

8 Q Do you recall whether any of these social media companies you were 9 meeting with asked you any questions about it?

10 A I do.

11 Q And what is your recollection? Who --

12 A So I remember having a conversation with or being involved in a

13 conversation with Twitter, and I honestly can't recall if this was repeated to me -- I might

14 have been a few minutes late to the meeting -- or if -- or if I was -- I actually overheard it.

15 But it was -- it was relayed to me later that somebody from Twitter -- I don't recall

16 who. I'm not sure who. Somebody from Twitter essentially asked whether the laptop

17 was real. And one of the FBI folks who was on the call did confirm that, yes, it was 18 before another participant jumped in and said no further comment.

19 Q Do you recall who from the FBI said it was real?

20 A I do.

21 Q And who was that?

22 A It's a non-SES employee. I'd have to take that back.

23 [redacted] What's their title?

24 Ms. Dehmlow. An analyst.

25 [redacted] What field office are they out of?

1 Ms. Dehmlow. Again, I'm not sure that I'm allowed to provide details here
2 because it was a non-SES employee.
3 [redacted] We'll take it back.
4 [redacted] Can we not know about this, just not the name of the individual?
5 [redacted] They're in the Criminal Investigative Division. We can tell you that 6 and then get back to you if we can provide a non-SES name.
7 [redacted] I think the committee would like to know the name of the individual
8 but also their title.
9 [redacted] Sure.
10 BY [redacted]
11 Q Was this individual affiliated with FITF?
12 A Again, it was somebody from the Criminal Investigative Division who is 13 embedded with us.
14 Q So yes?
15 A Yes.
16 Q And did this question occur in the context of a bilateral meeting?
17 A It did.
18 Q Do you recall how soon after the story broke that this meeting occurred?
19 A I don't remember. I believe it was the same week, but I don't remember 20 the specific day.
21 BY [redacted]
22 Q On that call with that IA who's in the Criminal Investigative Division, that was 23 the individual who said, "yes, the laptop is authentic"? Is that correct?
24 A I don't believe it was that specific. Again, I don't recall hearing the 25 conversation itself. I know it was relayed to me afterwards. But my understanding is that we confirmed that, yes, the laptop was a real laptop.

Q And then you said another FBI individual came on and said, "No further comment."

A Yes.

Q Is that correct?

A That's correct.

Q Who was that individual?

A It was some -- it was one of our lawyers who was on the call.

Q And who was that individual?

A Again --

[redacted] We'll take that request back. They're not SES.

[redacted] Do they work out of the General Counsel's Office or a specific field office?

[redacted] They're in the Office of the General Counsel. But, again, we'll take that request back. We don't have authorization to speak to their specific name in this context.

[redacted] Okay. I think the committee would like to know the individual's name, as well as their title.

Thank you.

[redacted] Just to clarify, when you say the laptop was real, you mean it was, like, a real laptop or that it belonged to Hunter Biden or what exactly?

Ms. Dehmlow. Since I wasn't -- I don't recall the specifics. I think my understanding is generally we confirmed the existence of the laptop.

BY [redacted]

Q Who relayed this information to you?

1 A I don't recall. The reason that I remember it specifically is that we had a 2 conversation afterwards, talking, deliberating on how we would answer the question if
3 another company asked.
4 Q And did this deliberation occur immediately following --
5 A I would say within, yeah, within the next couple of hours.
6 Q During this time period, October 2020, does FITF have its own in-person
7 office? Or is this conversation over Zoom?
8 A Which -- which part of the conversation, the conversation with the 9 companies or the conversation, the deliberations?
10 Q The deliberations.
11 A I believe it happened over our -- our -- our chat function.
12 Q Do you recall how many FBI personnel were part of this deliberation?
13 A I don't.
14 Q Do you have a ballpark sense?
15 A Just a handful probably.
16 Q Do you recall why you were not in attendance at this part of the bilateral
17 meeting?
18 A Again, it's possible that I was. I just don't recall the part. The part that I
19 remember with clarity is the part immediately after that. It's a very busy time. I might 20 have just been running late, a couple of minutes late, you know. It was a very busy time
21 for the FITF.
22 Q Do you know how Twitter reacted when the first agent said that the laptop
23 was real?
24 A No recollection.
25 Q Did you receive any followup requests for information from Twitter?

1 A Not that I recall, not that came to me.

2 Q So you said he was one example.

3 Do you recall other social media companies?

4 A I believe Facebook -- we met with Facebook soon thereafter. Can't

5 remember if it was the same day or within a couple of days. And they also asked, and I

6 said, "No comment." That was the -- that was the decision we made in those

7 post-meeting deliberations, which is pretty typical. It was an ongoing investigation, and 8 we don't generally comment on ongoing investigative matters when asked.

9 Q Okay.

10 [redacted] Who made the decision that the FBI would have no comment to the 11 social media companies going forward?

12 [redacted] So I want to be clear.

13 Ms. Dehmlow, obviously, can answer the question as long as it doesn't get into 14 internal deliberations or advice from a lawyer or anything.

15 Ms. Dehmlow. Yeah, and, unfortunately I can't answer that with any further 16 detail on that advice.

17 [redacted] So you can't tell us who made the decision?

18 Ms. Dehmlow. I can say there were internal deliberations with a number of 19 parties, and then -- but I can't get into that further.

20 [redacted] So then, Counsel, are you instructing her not to answer the question

21 any further?

22 [redacted] We'll take the request for the non-SES back and get back to you as 23 soon as possible.

24 [redacted] And the content of the discussion?

25 [redacted] So, in this context, she's not authorized to speak to internal

1 deliberations which may implicate attorney-client or other legal privileges today, but we'll
2 take your request back.
3 [redacted] But you're instructing her not to answer today. Is that accurate?
4 [redacted] To the specifics of the conversation she received related to whether 5 or not she was deliberating about the veracity of the laptop, in this context, yes.
6 [redacted] Okay.
7 BY [redacted]
8 Q With respect to the internal deliberations, were there individuals who 9 participated other than members of FITF?
10 A Yes. Again, I can't get into more specifics because of the deliberative
11 process privilege they're articulating.
12 Q Were there members participating in these deliberations other than 13 members of FITF and other than members of OGC?
14 A I can't recall specifics.
15 Q Do you recall who from Facebook asked the question?
16 A I don't.
17 Q Was the laptop on the agenda for either of these bilateral meetings with 18 Twitter or Facebook?
19 A No. It came as a surprise to us that there was questions. At least it came 20 as a surprise to me. I wasn't tracking the news story until that moment.
21 Q And who else was on the call with Facebook?
22 A It would have been essentially the same -- same folks, probably the unit
23 chiefs from FITF and some range of other folks. But I don't recall specifics.
24 Q You said that you were the one that said "no comment"?
25 A Uh-huh.

1 Q Had it been decided in advance that you'd be the one to answer that
2 question?
3 A No, not that I recall.
4 Q Who was the section chief of FITF at the time?
5 A Bradley Benavides.
6 Q Was he on the call?
7 A Not to my recollection, no.
8 Q Was he on the Twitter call?
9 A Not to my recollection, no.
10 Q Did he usually attend these calls?
11 A He did not.
12 Q Was Elvis Chan on the call with Facebook?
13 A It's likely, but I don't recall specifically.
14 Q Was Elvis Chan on the call with Twitter?
15 A It's likely, but I don't recall specifically.
16 Mr. Jordan. You acknowledged, back to the meeting with Twitter, when the first 17 FBI official acknowledged that the FBI -- that the -- excuse me -- that the laptop was real,
18 how long had you -- how long you had known that information?
19 Ms. Dehmlow. I don't remember. I really can't recall.
20 Mr. Jordan. Did you learn that it week you? Learn it months before? When 21 did you know that the laptop was real?
22 Ms. Dehmlow. I really don't remember.
23 Mr. Jordan. You said -- that's the word you used. You said the agent said the 24 laptop was real. Is that right?
25 Ms. Dehmlow. He confirmed at some point that the laptop existed, yes. But, again, I don't recall the specific language, and I wasn't there.

[redacted] Can I confer with the client for a moment?

[redacted] Yeah, we'll go off the record.

[Discussion off the record.]

[redacted] We'll go back on the record.

BY [redacted]

Q When the Facebook employee asked the question, do you recall exactly what they asked?

A I don't.

Q Do you know if it was about the laptop?

A Yes. It was essentially whether or not we -- yes, it was something about the laptop. I don't remember -- I know that my answer was "no comment" because -- and the question doesn't stick in my mind because it was something about the laptop. And I said, "No comment."

Again, that was not my decision. It wasn't my final call. There were other agency, other departments, other FBI equities at stake, investigative equities, and so pretty typical for us to come to that conclusion.

Q Were you aware if Twitter or Facebook were taking steps to censor the story?

A I was not.

Q Did you ever become aware?

A Eventually, when the -- when there was extensive news coverage about it ultimately, but I don't know if I knew it that week, within a couple of months.

Q Do you think it was the right decision to say "no comment"?

A Not here to -- again, it wasn't my call and it's pretty typical for us to not

1 comment on ongoing investigative equities.

2 Q When the information was relayed to you following the Twitter call that the

3 first agent had said the laptop was real, just to clarify, you knew prior to that

4 conversation that the laptop was real. Is that correct?

5 A I did, yes.

6 Q But you don't recall when approximately you learned.

7 A I don't, sorry.

8 Q Sitting here today, do you know when the FBI first determined that the 9 laptop was real?

10 A I don't. I know that there is some information in the public record

11 regarding when the FBI acquired the laptop, but I don't, sitting here, remember that date.

12 Q Do you know who else at FITF knew that the laptop was real?

13 A I don't actually. I would assume both my -- yes, I would certainly say that 14 Brad Benavides was aware.

15 Q What about the individuals on the Russia unit?

16 A I would assume the unit chief was also aware. I'm pretty certain of that 17 fact.

18 Q For the individual --

19 [redacted] Just to clarify, do you know to a certainty that they were aware, or 20 are you just making deductions?

21 Ms. Dehmlow. I'm pretty certain that they were aware.

22 [redacted] Okay.

23 BY [redacted]

24 Q In advance of the bilateral meeting, would the FITF team discuss internally

25 about what to cover in a meeting?

1 A We would, yes.

2 Q And, in these pre-meetings, would you attend and participate?

3 A Usually, yes.

4 Q Do you recall whether Hunter Biden's laptop or any investigation related to it

5 was discussed in any of these meetings?

6 A It was not -- to the best of my recollection.

7 Q Following the Twitter meeting, you said there were internal deliberations

8 over a chat function.

9 A They might -- there might have been folks in person. We were doing a lot

10 of things virtually at that point, given the pandemic and the rules and restrictions we

11 were under for in-person meetings.

12 Q Do you recall which chat function was used?

13 A It was -- it was likely a Microsoft link.

14 Q Do you recall how long the internal deliberations were following the Twitter

15 meeting?

16 A I don't.

17 Q After that initial set of internal deliberations, isn't that first set of internal

18 deliberations where the decision is made that FITF will say "no comment" going forward?

19 A To the best of my recollection.

20 Q Were there ever additional internal deliberations to revisit that decision?

21 A Not that I recall.

22 Q Besides Twitter and Facebook, do you recall other social media companies

23 raising the issue?

24 A I don't. There may have been others, but I don't recall.

25 Q Do you recall if the story of Hunter Biden's laptop was discussed at any of

1 the USG Industry meetings?

2 A Not to the best of my recollection, no.

3 Q Are you familiar with the statement from 51 former intel officials that was

4 released on October 19th, 2020, saying that the laptop story had, quote, all the classic

5 earmarks of a Russian disinformation operation?

6 A I'm aware of the statement, yes.

7 Q Did any of the 51 former intel officials contact you prior to the release of the 8 statement?

9 A No.

10 Q What about afterwards?

11 A No.

12 Q After that statement was released, did the FBI ever consider letting the 13 public know that the laptop was authentic?

14 [redacted] I'm just going to instruct the witness not to answer. She's not 15 authorized to speak to those specific internal deliberations at this time.

16 [redacted] What's the objection?

17 [redacted] Just that it the implicates attorney-client privilege. As she testified,

18 her conversations with OGC present legal privilege issues in this context.

19 [redacted] Could she testify as to whether there were discussions that occurred

20 regarding whether or not the FBI considered notifying the public that the FBI -- that the 21 laptop was authentic?

22 [redacted] I would instruct her not to answer that in this context.

23 [redacted] And what's the objection?

24 [redacted] The same objection I stated. She's not authorized to discuss 25 internal deliberations which may implicate attorney-client privilege at this time.

1 [redacted] Even as to whether the communications occurred, not to the 2 content of the communications?
3 [redacted] I need to confer with the client for a moment.
4 [redacted] Yeah, we can --
5 [redacted] We can go off the record.
6 [Discussion off the record.]
7 [redacted] We'll go back on.
8 [redacted] Do you want to ask your question again?
9 [redacted] Yes, I will.
10 Were there any communications within the FBI as to whether they would inform 11 the public that the laptop was authentic after the statement from the 51 former intel
12 officials?
13 Ms. Dehmlow. If there were, I'm not aware of them.
14 [redacted] Okay.
15 BY [redacted]
16 Q Do you recall if the meetings with Twitter and Facebook occurred the same
17 day?
18 A I don't remember.
19 Q Okay. If there's a meeting invite with Facebook for that afternoon, would 20 that be inconsistent with your recollection?
21 A No. It was certainly within a day or so, if not the same day.
22 Q And, to your recollection, the Twitter bilateral call occurred first.
23 A To the best of my recollection, yeah.
24 Q To the agent who said that the laptop was real, was that -- was the individual
25 who said that information one of the agents who would regularly attend these bilateral

1 calls?

2 A So, again, I want to be crystal clear about what I know about that, and it was

3 essentially a confirmation that the laptop existed. I don't know if the wording was 4 specifically the laptop was real.

5 And, again, that the individual -- I'm sorry. The second half of your question

6 was?

7 Q The individual who provided that first answer --

8 A Uh-huh.

9 Q -- to --

10 A Were they a regular participant?

11 Q Yes.

12 A I don't remember. I'm not sure if it was -- it was atypical that they were on 13 the call.

14 BY [redacted]

15 Q And, beyond the conversations that you had with Twitter and Facebook

16 regarding the Hunter Biden laptop, did you have any additional involving with the Hunter

17 Biden laptop or the investigation?

18 A No.

19 Q Did you have any communications with the Central District of California

20 regarding the Hunter Biden investigation?

21 A No, not the best of my recollection.

22 Q Any discussion with the U.S. Attorney's Office of Delaware regarding the 23 Hunter Biden investigation?

24 A Can I talk to these guys for a minute?

25 [redacted] Yes.

1 We'll go off the record.

2 [Discussion off the record.]

3 [redacted] We'll go back on the record.

4 [redacted] So we saw that you were asking a series of questions that related to

5 ongoing investigations and any communication she may have had with various districts

6 conducting ongoing investigations.

7 So our instruction is for the witness to not answer related to any specific

8 conversations she's had with any of the districts that you referenced.

9 [redacted] Okay. I'm going to go on. I have a series of questions I'll just go

10 ahead and ask and see if you need to instruct Ms. Dehmlow not to answer.

11 BY [redacted]

12 Q Did you have any communications with the U.S. Attorney's Office for the 13 District of Delaware regarding the Hunter Biden investigation or Hunter Biden laptop?

14 A I can't answer that question on the advice of counsel.

15 Q Did you have any communications with the U.S. Attorney's Office for the 16 District of Columbia regarding the Hunter Biden investigation?

17 A I can't answer that question on advice of counsel.

18 Q Did you have any communications with the DOJ Tax Division regarding the 19 Hunter Biden investigation or Hunter Biden laptop?

20 A I can't answer that question.

21 Q Did you have any other communications with FBI officials regarding the

22 Hunter Biden investigation or Hunter Biden laptop?

23 A I can't answer that question.

24 [redacted] And what's the instruction for her not to answer the question?

25 [redacted] As it's publicly known, the U.S. Attorney's Office in Delaware is

1 conducting an ongoing investigation into Hunter Biden. So it's longstanding FBI and
2 Department policy not comment on ongoing matters.
3 [redacted] Did you have communications with individuals from the Internal
4 Revenue Service regarding the Hunter Biden investigation?
5 Ms. Dehmlow. Again, I can't answer that question on advice of counsel.
6 [redacted] Did you have any role regarding the Hunter Biden investigation?
7 Ms. Dehmlow. I can't answer that question on advice of counsel.
8 BY [redacted]
9 Q During your call with Facebook, where you said "no comment," did you
10 provide a reason why you could not say, not provide the comment?
11 A No. I believe I just said "no comment" to the best of my recollection.
12 Q And was it determined internally that you would be the one to say "no
13 comment"?
14 A There was not a discussion about that to the best of my recollection. I
15 might have been speaking at the time or next on the agenda when they asked, but I don't 16 recall.
17 Q Do you recall what the reaction was?
18 A I don't.
19 Q In the meetings that followed, whether the bilateral meetings or the USG
20 industry meetings, did the issue come up again to your recollection?
21 A Not to the best of my recollection, no.
22 Q When did you learn that the story was being censored by Twitter and
23 Facebook?
24 [redacted] I think I'll --
25 Ms. Dehmlow. Again, I --

1 [redacted] Oh, sorry. Go ahead.

2 Ms. Dehmlow. That's all right.

3 I recall hearing coverage of Twitter's actions, though I wouldn't necessarily

4 characterize it as censoring. That's not -- that's not a judgment that I should make.

5 BY [redacted]

6 Q And, once that public coverage was occurring, did the FBI revisit its decision

7 regarding the decision to say "no comment" when asked?

8 A Again, I don't recall any deliberations regarding that.

9 Q At any meeting post-2020 election, at any point did a social media company

10 revisit the issue with the FBI?

11 A Not to the best of my recollection, no.

12 Q Do you know who Yoel Roth is?

13 A I do.

14 Q And who is that?

15 A He is the former head of Trust and Safety at Twitter I believe was his job

16 title.

17 Q Do you recall if Mr. Roth was on the call with Twitter?

18 A I don't recall.

19 Q Do you recall anybody from Twitter who was on the call?

20 A I don't. I'm sorry.

21 Q Do you know who Jim Baker is?

22 A I do.

23 Q And who is that?

24 A He is -- I believe -- I'm fairly certain he was at Twitter, as well. He's one of 25 their lawyers.

1 Q Did you have any communications with Jim Baker regarding the Hunter
2 Biden laptop story?
3 A No, not that I know of.
4 Q Who else from Twitter would most frequently attend the bilateral meetings?
5 A I'm sorry. I'm really terrible with names. I'd be -- going back, there were
6 a lot of different people on the call. I remember Yoel specifically, but I don't remember
7 other names.
8 Q Would Mr. Roth present at these meetings, do you recall?
9 A Sometimes, yes.
10 Q Do you have any knowledge whether Mr. Roth was the one who asked the
11 question?
12 A I don't.
13 Q Who from Facebook would most frequently attend these bilateral meetings?
14 A I think, if I'm remembering the name correctly, it's [redacted] -- I'm 15 pretty sure that's Facebook -- also their counsel. Other than that, I don't really 16 remember names.
17 Q Do you recall the counsel's name?
18 A I don't. I'm sorry.
19 Q Earlier you said that there were kind of two buckets of information that was 20 shared in these bilateral meetings. Some were kind of more high-level, previous tactics
21 that foreign adversaries used. You also said that those tended to fall more on the USG
22 industry bucket. And then there were more specific examples that you provided to
23 social media companies.
24 For that latter category, was there ever an ongoing FBI investigation that related 25 to specific information that was being shared with the social media companies?

1 [redacted] I'm going to instruct the witness not to respond to this question as it
2 may relate to pending matters.
3 [redacted] Okay. So was there ever --
4 [redacted] As it may? Does it relate to pending matters, or that's the 5 instruction, that it's an ongoing investigation?
6 [redacted] You can answer as long as your answer does not discuss ongoing
7 matters.
8 Ms. Dehmlow. Okay. I'm sorry. I'm going to need to you to repeat the
9 question.
10 BY [redacted]
11 Q Sure. So I'll cut off the first half.
12 But, with respect to in thigh bilateral meetings, the FBI would share information
13 that was a -- specific to the company, an ongoing threat. You mentioned that 14 sometimes it would be time sensitive.
15 When the FBI is sharing that information, did it ever -- did that information ever 16 relate to an ongoing investigation that the FBI had?

2 [11:07 a.m.]

3 Ms. Dehmlow. At a high level, all FBI work relates to ongoing investigations. So
4 we don't take operational steps unless we've got a predicated investigation into a foreign
5 actor.

6 [redacted] And so why was the FBI allowed to share this information as opposed
7 to say "no comment"?

8 Ms. Dehmlow. So there is a provision in the Justice Manual articulating specific 9 rules regarding sharing threat information on foreign malign influence operations, and it's 10 within the purview of that Justice Manual provision, the declassification purpose or 11 downgrade purpose of the [redacted] material.

12 And so we're pretty consistent with our efforts to inform and provide actionable
13 threat intelligence to U.S. companies in the private sector across lots of threat
14 landscapes.

15 [redacted] So as a hypothetical, if the laptop were the product of a foreign malign
16 influence campaign, the FBI would have been able to provide information to the 17 companies?

18 [redacted] I'm going to instruct the witness not to respond to that hypothetical.

19 [redacted] Why? What's the basis of the objection?

20 [redacted] Our practice is not to respond to these questions in this context in 21 hypothetical terms. If you can recharacterize it in a more specific or policy-based way,
22 she can respond.

23 [redacted] Well, just trying to get a sense of there's ongoing information sharing
24 about matters that the FBI is investigating. You have these ongoing meetings with the 25 social media companies specific to them. The social media companies ask about a

1 potential foreign malign influence campaign. In fact, 51 intel officials came out and said
2 that's what they thought it was.
3 I'm trying to get a sense of the circumstances in which the FBI can provide 4 information, as it did in dozens of meetings, and why they had to say "no comment" in 5 this specific case.
6 Ms. Dehmlow. The investigative equities were not my investigative equities.
7 So we were specifically focused on foreign malign influence actors, foreign actors and 8 their activities.
9 Chairman Jordan. Yeah. But he didn't question, Ms. Dehmlow, because in Yoel
10 Roth's sworn declaration he says in point number 11 that there were weekly meetings
11 with law enforcement where you communicated they expected hack-and-leak operations
12 in October right before the Presidential election, weekly meetings actively in October
13 before the Presidential election, and that this information would be disseminated on 14 social media platforms. And then he states in the last sentence: "And rumors were 15 that the hack-and-leak operation would involve Hunter Biden."
16 So you told him weekly what's coming, when it's coming, who it's going to involve,
17 and then you get a question about it, and you say "no comment."
18 Does that seem strange when you prepped them, when you've said all of this is 19 going to happen? There's a specific example right on point, and they ask you, and you
20 give "no comment."
21 Ms. Dehmlow. So, again, I would reiterate that we are acting on specific and 22 detailed information, and I'd probably reject the characterization that we're weekly
23 warning them about a Russian hack-and-leak operation.
24 Chairman Jordan. I'm reading from Yoel Roth who you said you had meetings
25 with. I'm reading from his declaration.

1 Ms. Dehmlow. Yeah. And my knowledge, my recollection differs from Yoel's.
2 We did not have specific -- to the best of my recollection, we were not regularly engaging
3 in talking about a Russia hack-and-leak operation.
4 And I believe, both my recollection and I think he's also publicly corrected that
5 perhaps it was an industry partner who had articulated the rumors of a Russia
6 hack-and-leak operation, not a government partner.

2 BY [redacted]

3 Q In 2020, when you are having these bilateral meetings, did the companies

4 ever present information? Did they ask questions?

5 A Yes. They often asked questions about information we were providing.

6 Q Did they ever ask questions about what they were seeing, something that 7 the government hadn't presented initially?

8 A They did.

9 Q And to your recollection, did the FBI ever have to comment "no comment"

10 to those questions?

11 A I don't recall whether or not we did. Again, if it was focused on an ongoing

12 investigative matter where we were not the stakeholders and it wasn't relevant to this

13 specific information or investigations we were passing information on, it would have been

14 our practice to articulate "no comment."

15 Q Do you recall any other post-bilateral meetings where you had to have

16 internal discussions about whether to say "no comment" similar to the one that you had

17 following the Twitter bilateral meeting?

18 A I don't recall.

19 Q You don't recall?

20 A Huh-uh.

21 [redacted] Can we go off the record, please?

22 [Recess.]

23 [redacted] We can go back on the record. It is 11:25 in the morning.

24 EXAMINATION

25 BY [redacted]

1 Q Ms. Dehmlow, thank you again for joining us today.

2 I want to return to a couple of things that were discussed in the last hour.

3 First, there was a discussion about the downgrading of certain information. Do

4 you recall that discussion?

5 A I do.

6 Q Okay. You said during that conversation -- it was about providing

7 information to social media companies. You said that it was fairly routine to provide

8 information to the private sector. Is that right?

9 A It's fairly routine for the FBI to provide that information to the private sector

10 broadly, yes.

11 Q And that's not just to social media companies, Correct?

12 A No.

13 Q So can you provide examples of other information that may be provided to 14 the private sector by the FBI?

15 A Sure. In the technology transfer arena, for example, we're trying to protect

16 U.S. intellectual property and proprietary secrets and clear defense secrets. We pretty

17 regularly engage in both broad prep briefings, where we talk about tactics, techniques,

18 and procedures that threat actors might use to target those companies, target those

19 entities, target academia, as well as provide specific information as to how a company or

20 individual might be being targeted so they can better protect themselves and take action

21 as they see fit.

22 Q And why is it in the FBI -- why does the FBI provide that information to the 23 private sector?

24 A We've got a responsibility to U.S. companies and to U.S. persons to help

25 protect them against foreign threats, foreign intelligence threats. And one of the ways

1 we do that pretty consistently is to harden targets and provide information to help them
2 build better processes and build best practices about how to better protect that
3 information from those threats.
4 Q And you said it's to help protect the private sector. Is it also in the United
5 States' national security interest to help the private sector take action on those threats?
6 A Yes, of course. We're talking about sort of the economic security of the 7 United States, we're talking about our defense industrial base, we're talking about our
8 intelligence and policymaking environments. All of those things are national security
9 targets from foreign adversaries.
10 Q Okay. And in those examples you just provided, is information, classified
11 information, ever downgraded so that it can be provided to the private sector?
12 A Yes.
13 Q Is that a fairly frequent occurrence?
14 A I would say it's pretty regular. I don't have much familiarity with it, or I
15 don't anymore. But, yes, pretty regularly we would be downgrading and sanitizing
16 information from previous rules.
17 Q And can you explain what downgrading is?
18 A Sure. So declassification is taking sort of the, to the best of my 19 understanding -- I'm not the best person to articulate this -- but to the best of my 20 understanding is declassification is when you change the classification of an original piece
21 of material.
22 Downgrading would be removing specific elements of that, that take away sort of 23 the component parts that make something classified, so details about sources and 24 methods, for example. And then removing pertinent parts of the information means 25 that you can share with a wider audience.

1 Q So the information provided to the private sector is generally downgraded,
2 not declassified?
3 A Correct.
4 Q Correct?
5 A Correct.
6 Q Okay. And the difference there, just so I'm clear, is that downgrading
7 means that the actual classified information is removed entirely, whereas declassification
8 means that the previously classified information is still there?
9 A Correct.
10 Q Okay. And there are very specific steps laid out by the Federal Government
11 for how to downgrade information, correct?
12 A There is -- there are.
13 Q Are you familiar with that process?
14 A I am not. I don't do it very regularly. And, again, most of the information
15 we're passing is being passed along to other government agencies.
16 Q Okay. I want to turn to the discussion of the laptop that we were having 17 just a couple of minutes ago.
18 Do you recall that discussion?
19 A Uh-huh.
20 Q You said during that discussion that someone at the Twitter meeting said the 21 laptop was real.
22 Do you recall saying that?
23 A I recall saying that. I do want to clarify that somebody asked a question
24 about the laptop's existence. And to the best of my knowledge, it was conveyed to me
25 the FBI articulated that -- something to confirm the laptop existed, but the specific

1 wording I'm not sure of.

2 Q So you weren't in that meeting, correct?

3 A I'm not sure. It has been relayed to me, and I honestly don't have a

4 recollection of whether I popped in as the conversation was going on or if somebody told

5 me about it as I popped into the meeting.

6 Q But the language, "the laptop was real" or "the laptop is real," that's your

7 paraphrasing here today?

8 A My paraphrasing, yes.

9 Q Okay. And so whoever it was that said that, that might not have been their 10 exact words?

11 A Correct.

12 Q And, in fact, it probably was not their exact words?

13 A Absolutely.

14 Q Okay. What did you mean by the term "real" when you said it just now?

15 A Again, my recollection of the conversation that we were having was in the 16 context of confirming whether or not the FBI was aware of a laptop that formerly

17 belonged to Hunter Biden.

18 Q So when you said "real," you meant the laptop was, in fact -- there was, in 19 fact, existence of a laptop?

20 A Yes, exactly.

21 Q But that didn't necessarily mean that the FBI had affirmatively determined

22 that the laptop had belonged to Hunter Biden, correct?

23 A I can't get into that, I don't think, on the advice of counsel.

24 Q And real didn't mean -- when you used the term "real" or when this was

25 conveyed to the Twitter executives, it didn't mean that the FBI had determined that the

1 contents of the laptop had actually been put on to the laptop by the FBI, just the term
2 "real"?
3 A I honestly don't know, yeah. I'm not -- I don't recall.
4 Q Okay. And real didn't mean that the FBI had determined that the contents
5 of the laptop were not manipulated or altered in some way?
6 A Not to my knowledge.
7 Q Okay. So if someone were to leave here today, were to leave this interview
8 and were to suggest or imply or state that when you said "the laptop was real," that it
9 meant that the FBI had affirmatively determined in October 2020 that the laptop
10 belonged to Hunter Biden, that the contents belonged to Hunter Biden, that the contents
11 had not been manipulated in some way, they would be misrepresenting what you said,
12 correct?
13 A They would be misrepresenting what I said because I don't have much 14 knowledge of that.
15 Q Okay. On the question of "no comment," you recall saying -- do you recall
16 the discussion about you said the FBI had no comment with respect to the Hunter Biden
17 laptop, correct?
18 A We had no -- I don't remember again the specific phrasing of the question,
19 but it was something to do with the laptop, and I said "no comment."
20 Q Okay. And you don't recall the specific phrasing, so that you don't recall if 21 it was, "Is the laptop authentic?" or, "Does the laptop exist?"
22 A I don't recall.
23 Q Okay. "What kind of laptop is it?"
24 A Exactly. I don't recall.
25 Q And you said that the decision was reached to say "no comment" because it

1 pertained to an ongoing investigation, correct?

2 A No, I don't think I can speak to the deliberations on advice of counsel.

3 Q Okay.

4 A And, again, deliberations is probably the wrong word. I was seeking advice

5 from people who were in decision-making positions and who had a better understanding

6 of the equities.

7 Q Why doesn't the FBI comment on ongoing investigations?

8 A To protect the investigative integrity of our ongoing investigations, to 9 protect the rights of the accused, to protect the rights of victims.

10 [redacted] I will turn it over to my co-counsel.

11 BY [redacted]

12 Q Ms. Dehmlow, I'm going to start with some just background questions.

13 Can you just explain, why is it that you joined the FBI?

14 A I'll be very frank: I wanted health insurance. I had applied to a number of 15 jobs in the Federal Government. My dream job was to be a foreign service officer, and 16 that clearance came through after the FBI.

17 So I joined the FBI, and within 6 months I was really hooked. I liked the idea of 18 being able to concretely contribute to national security and outcomes.

19 Q Are you proud of the work that you've done with the FBI during your career?

20 A I am.

21 Q Is there anything that you would like to share that you're most proud of?

22 A I think we've made a lot of progress in understanding the real wide range of

23 scope, scope and scale of foreign intelligence threats. I think it's much more broadly

24 understood by the American public, by this body, by our private sector partners. And I

25 hope that that makes us safer. Understanding more about threats equals -- means that

1 you're better able to protect yourself from them.

2 Q And those threats meaning to individual Americans and threats to private

3 sector, those are all included?

4 A Individual Americans, Congress, our policymaking body, the integrity of our

5 policymaking process, Federal Government agencies, non-Title 50s. I've been involved

6 in a lot of engagement trying to help those folks better understand the threats we're 7 facing.

8 Q In your career, Ms. Dehmlow, have you ever held a political appointee

9 position?

10 A I have not, no.

11 Q Is it fair to say your experience with the FBI has always been as a career

12 nonpartisan employee?

13 A Correct. We take it very seriously. It's an apolitical, nonpartisan aspect of 14 our work.

15 Q And why is that?

16 A It's really critical. We -- everybody has political opinions outside the 17 building. You have to check those things at the door.

18 And I've been incredibly consistent on articulating that to my teams over the 19 years. I had a meeting last week, for example, where I rearticulated that to my entire 20 section.

21 It's just really critical that we maintain impartiality and an apolitical stance,

22 because we're investigating Federal law enforcement, violations of Federal law, and we're

23 investigating national security threats. We're not a partisan or political organization.

24 Q And do you believe that in your time with the Foreign Interest (sic) Task

25 Force you've been successful in leading that organization, such as you've led it in a

1 nonpartisan way?

2 A I hope so, yes.

3 Q I'm going to direct your attention to some of the kind of background events

4 that were happening in the world that led to the creation of Foreign Interest (sic) Task

5 Force. And you touched on this a little bit.

6 But with respect to the U.S. Presidential election in 2016, do you agree that Russia

7 interfered in that 2016 election based on what you know in the national security sector?

8 A Based on what I know and based on things like the SSCI report regarding

9 Russian active measures, I think it's pretty well documented that there were Russian

10 efforts targeting that electoral cycle.

11 Q Okay. Do you agree that the Russians interfered in that election by 12 conducting hack-and-leak operations whereby they hacked into the server of the DNC and

13 the DCCC and then leaked derogatory information about Hillary Clinton to WikiLeaks?

14 A My understanding of the record is that the DNC was hacked and information

15 was leaked, yes.

16 Q And that the Russians were behind that hack?

17 A Yes.

18 Q Okay. Do you agree that the Russians also interfered in the 2016 election

19 by conducting a vast campaign using social media and other means to covertly influence

20 the outcome of the election to help President Trump get elected?

21 A It's pretty well documented in the intelligence community record, yes.

22 Q I'm going to introduce for the record what I think will be our first exhibit.

23 It's an October 7th, 2016, statement from the Department of Homeland Security and the 24 Office of the Director of National Intelligence.

25 [redacted] is also going to hand you copies.

1 Ms. Dehmlow. Thank you.

2 [Dehmlow Exhibit No. 1

3 Was marked for identification.]

4 BY [redacted]

5 Q Okay. Have you had a chance to look at it?

6 A Give me a minute.

7 Q Sure.

8 A I haven't had time to read the full document.

9 Q Take your time.

10 A Okay. Yes.

11 Q Okay. Are you familiar with this statement?

12 A I'm not -- I don't believe I've ever read it before, no.

13 Q Okay. Well, it's a three-paragraph statement confirming that Russia

14 directed the 2016 hack-and-dump operation against the DCCC and DNC in order to 15 interfere in the 2016 election. Is that fair to say?

16 A Yes.

17 Q Okay. And do you agree with the IC community's conclusions as they're 18 contained in this statement?

19 A Which specific conclusions?

20 Q Just the one that I -- in the first paragraph, the one that I characterized in the 21 previous question. Just that the IC community's intelligence showed that Russia

22 directed the 2016 hack-and-dump operation. Do you agree with that?

23 A Yes.

24 Q And that they did so in order to interfere in the 2016 Presidential election?

25 A To the best of my knowledge, yes.

1 Q Okay. And are you also familiar with the Senate Select Committee on
2 Intelligence report on "Russian Active Measures Campaigns and Interference in the 2016
3 U.S. Election"?
4 A I am.
5 [redacted] Okay. I'm going to mark that as exhibit 2, please.
6 [Dehmlow Exhibit No. 2
7 Was marked for identification.]
8 BY [redacted]
9 Q Okay. For this exhibit No. 2, I'm going to direct your attention just first to 10 the cover page so you can see that this is, in fact, the report that I just mentioned from 11 the Senate Select Committee on Intelligence.
12 Do you see that?
13 A I do.
14 Q And if you turn to page Roman numeral vii -- the number is on the 15 bottom -- there's a highlighted portion that should be highlighted in your exhibit, and it's 16 under the heading "Hack and Leak."
17 Do you see that?
18 A I do.
19 Q Okay. Could you just read that sentence that's highlighted please for the 20 record?
21 A Sure. "The Committee found that Russian President Vladimir Putin ordered 22 the Russian effort to hack computer networks and accounts affiliated with the 23 Democratic Party and leak information damaging to Hillary Clinton and her campaign for 24 president."
25 Q And are you familiar with that finding?

1 A I am familiar with the finding.

2 Q Okay. Would you agree that there's widespread agreement now among

3 United States intelligence and national security experts that Russia used hack-and-dump

4 operations to interfere in the 2016 election?

5 A I would.

6 [redacted] Okay. We can set that exhibit aside as well, please.

7 Thank you.

8 Introduce for the record exhibit 3, which is the indictment in Case No.

9 1:18-cr-32-DLF, United States v. Internet Research Agency, et al.

10 [Dehmlow Exhibit No. 3

11 Was marked for identification.]

12 BY [redacted]

13 Q Okay. Ms. Dehmlow, are you familiar with this indictment from 2018? It

14 was an indictment that Mr. Mueller's team produced.

15 A I am.

16 Q And do you know who Yevgeniy Prigozhin is?

17 A I do.

18 Q Who is he?

19 A He is a Russian oligarch who is known as "Putin's chef," who directed an

20 organization called the Internet Research Agency or Lakhta Internet Research, conducted

21 influence operations globally. He also ran or runs the Wagner Private Military.

22 Q And he's one of the defendants in this indictment?

23 A Yes.

24 Q Okay. Are you familiar with the organization the Internet Research

25 Agency?

1 A I am.

2 Q And what is that?

3 A IRA was a series of troll farms, for lack of a better term, that

4 conducted -- used to conduct, to the best of my knowledge, malign influence

5 organizations across the globe reporting to be authentic parts of global -- sort of the

6 global marketplace of ideas, but in reality they're Russian directed and Russians behind

7 the keyboards.

8 Q Is there any way that you could put that in, like, layman's terms when you

9 say "malign operations"? Like, what are those troll farms doing?

10 A Sure.

11 Q Who are they, and what are they doing?

12 A Yeah, at the base level -- I talked earlier about the definition that we use.

13 We're looking for foreign actors or their proxies, so foreign government or their proxies.

14 We need that attribution. It's really critical to our work. And then they're conducting 15 subversive, undeclared criminal course of activity.

16 In the context of IRA, we put them in the undeclared category because they are

17 pretending they are someone they are not, and they're pretending to be Americans or

18 any other nationality across the globe and pretending to be an authentic part of the civil

19 discourse or conversations about politics or issues in any of the target audiences that 20 they're going after.

21 Q And when you say "they," you're talking about people who are Russians who 22 are working for the Russian Government. Is that right?

23 A Yes.

24 Q And they're pretending to be Americans or some other person engaging in 25 our political discourse, correct?

1 A Correct.

2 Q And they're doing that how?

3 A In the context of the 2016 election, 2018, into 2020, they would create
4 inauthentic accounts, which is one example, inauthentic accounts on social media
5 platforms, and join conversations, join this discourse on all sides of issues. They were 6 identifying political issues of the day, divisive issues, and either -- and pretending to 7 support one side or the other, sometimes both of those conversations.

8 Q Okay. I'm going to direct you in this exhibit No. 3, could you turn to page 3
9 and paragraph 4, which appears kind of in the middle of that page, paragraph 4,
10 beginning with the word "Defendants."

11 Do you see that?

12 A I do.

13 Q Could you just read that one paragraph for us?

14 A Sure. "Defendants, posing as U.S. persons and creating false U.S. personas, 15 operated social media pages and groups designed to attract U.S. audiences. These 16 groups and pages, which addressed divisive U.S. political and social issues, falsely claimed
17 to be controlled by U.S. activists when, in fact, they were controlled by Defendants.
18 Defendants also used the stolen identities of real U.S. persons to post on 19 ORGANIZATION-" -- that's in all caps -- "controlled social media accounts. Over time, 20 these social media accounts became Defendants' means to reach significant numbers of 21 Americans for purposes of interfering with the U.S. political system, including the 22 Presidential election of 2016."

23 Q So that activity described in paragraph 4 of the indictment, is that what you
24 meant as you were describing it in your own words --

25 A Yes.

1 Q -- about the troll farms?

2 A Yes.

3 Q Okay. If you could look at paragraph 10, please, that is on page 6 -- page 5

4 continuing to page 6.

5 A Okay.

6 Q Okay. In subsection c of the indictment, which is actually on the next page,

7 page 6 --

8 A Okay.

9 Q -- could you just read that sentence in subsection c, please, when you get to 10 that page?

11 A Sure. "The ORGANIZATION" -- which earlier in the document was

12 articulated as the Internet Research Agency -- "The ORGANIZATION sought, in part, to

13 conduct what it called 'information warfare against the United States of America' through

14 fictitious U.S. personas on social media platforms and other Internet-based media."

15 Q So, according to the indictment, is it fair to say that the Internet Research

16 Agency characterized its own behavior as, quote, "information warfare against the United 17 States"?

18 A According to the indictment, yes.

19 Q You can go ahead and set that aside.

20 A Okay.

21 [redacted] And I'm going to mark for the record exhibit No. 4, please. It's a

22 June 21st, 2023, letter from Assistant Attorney General Carlos Uriarte to Chairman

23 Jordan.

24 [Dehmlow Exhibit No. 4

25 Was marked for identification.]

1 BY [redacted]

2 Q Okay. Ms. Dehmlow, are you familiar with this letter?

3 A I am not.

4 Q Okay. Just take a quick second to review it. You don't have to read every

5 word, but you can see that a portion of it discusses the Foreign Interest (sic) Task

6 Force -- sorry -- Foreign Influence Task Force.

7 A FITF.

8 Q I think that section actually starts on the second page.

9 A Okay.

10 [Pause.]

11 A Okay.

12 Q Okay. So directing your attention to the second page under the heading

13 "Countering Foreign Malign Influence Operations," the letter reads, quote: "The 14 identification and disruption of foreign malign influence operations is a longstanding and

15 critical concern for the Department and the FBI. Foreign influence operations include

16 covert actions by foreign governments intended to affect U.S. political sentiment and

17 public discourse, sow divisions in our society, or undermine confidence in our democratic

18 institutions to achieve strategic geopolitical goals."

19 Is that statement consistent with your understanding of the mission of the FBI in 20 fighting foreign malign influence operations?

21 A It is, yes.

22 Q The letter continues, quote: "These concerns are not hypothetical. For 23 example, in 2018, the U.S. Government obtained an indictment of Russian individuals and

24 entities for federal crimes in connection with efforts to interfere in the 2016 election, an

25 effort the Russian defendants referred to as, quote, 'information warfare.'"

1 Did I read that correctly?

2 A Yes.

3 Q Okay. Now, on the top of the third page, the letter continues, quote:

4 "The FBI established the Foreign Influence Task Force in 2017 to identify and counteract

5 foreign malign influence operations targeting the United States."

6 Do you see that statement?

7 A I do.

8 Q Are you aware that this was the original purpose of the Foreign

9 Interest -- Foreign Influence Task Force?

10 A I am.

11 Q Is this statement consistent with your understanding of the purpose of the 12 Foreign Influence Task Force as it operates today?

13 A It is.

14 Q So when the task force was established in 2017 to counteract foreign malign

15 influence operations targeting the United States, who was the Director of the FBI?

16 A Christopher Wray.

17 Q And who appointed Mr. Wray to be Director of the FBI?

18 A President Trump.

19 Q In your experience, has the Foreign Interest -- my goodness. I'm just going 20 to say task force.

21 A FITF.

22 Q Has the task force -- has FITF operated in the same manner under both the 23 Trump and Biden administrations, in your experience?

24 A It has, yes.

25 Q Have the decisions that you have made as chief of FITF been influenced at 1 any time by partisanship or political considerations?

2 A Absolutely not.

3 Q Okay. And just going to your role inside FITF, you currently hold the title of 4 chief of the section. Is that correct?

5 A Correct.

6 Q And this task force is led by the Counterintelligence Division of the FBI. Is

7 that right?

8 A Yes.

9 Q Okay. Now, broadly, what is the mission of the Counterintelligence

10 Division of the FBI?

11 A To combat foreign intelligence security and -- run intelligence and security

12 for those efforts that target the United States.

13 Q Okay. Is it fair to say that the FBI is the lead agency for exposing,

14 preventing, and investigating intelligence activities in the United States?

15 A We're the lead counterintelligence investigative agency in the U.S.

16 Government, yes.

17 Q Okay. And as I've read the FBI's own description of the Counterintelligence

18 Division, the FBI's website indicates that the goals of this Counterintelligence Division are

19 to protect the secrets of the U.S. IC community, protect the Nation's critical assets, like

20 advanced technologies, sensitive information, and defense, intelligence, economic,

21 financial, public health, and science sectors, counter the activities of foreign spies, and to 22 keep weapons of mass destruction from falling into the wrong hands.

23 Is that your understanding of the mission of the Counterintelligence Division at

24 the FBI?

25 A It is.

1 Q Why is that mission important?

2 A We have an incredibly successful and important democratic experiment, I
3 would say, and we've got a way of life that is not shared by many of our adversaries.
4 And that way of life is supported by our economic security. It's supported by our 5 defense industrial base. It is supported by classified information and support to the 6 policymaking environment, to this body, to the White House, to other Federal partners.

7 And it's really critical that we protect that environment from foreign adversaries,
8 from foreign intelligence security services who are seeking to understand that, to gain
9 information from it, to use that in advantage -- to their home country's advantage in both 10 encountering our military and economic superiority around the world.

11 Q Thank you.

12 In your experience with FITF, does the work of the task force contribute to the 13 mission of the Counterintelligence Division?

14 A It does.

15 Q And how does it contribute?

16 A You read off a list of a pretty extensive range of priorities of the 17 Counterintelligence Division. Foreign malign influence is not new. It is something that 18 has been going on for decades.

19 The advent of the internet, the advent of social media capabilities, just like every 20 other criminal actor or foreign actor that we are aiming to understand and disrupt the 21 activities of, they use a toolkit. And one of the tool kits that criminals use and one of the 22 tool kits that foreign intelligence security services use are access to social media
23 platforms, are access to internet technologies, to telecommunications companies.

24 And so as that threat has evolved, the means by which those foreign actors are 25 targeting us has evolved, and so now the FITF exists to help understand and disrupt those

1 efforts.

2 Q Is it fair to say that FITF is the U.S. Government's foremost tool or response

3 to that threat in terms of foreign influence operations that come at us from the internet?

4 A I think I would characterize it as we're the investigative lead. We've got a

5 really specific role, and it's confined to countering those actors and their activities.

6 There are other departments and agencies who have different roles in the foreign malign

7 influence space, but what I'm familiar with and what I can speak to is the FBI's.

8 Q Okay. Now, you mentioned a few terms earlier in the hour just discussing

9 some of the work of FITF. What are foreign influence operations in the simplest terms

10 that you can muster?

11 A Sure. It would be -- again, I go back to our definition because it's 12 something that we've been really persistent on and have used for a long time. The 13 community uses our lexicon definition as well.

14 So that would be foreign government or proxy efforts, which in layman's terms

15 usually means a security service or an intelligence service actor, or one of their proxies or 16 co-optees.

17 Using subversive, meaning efforts to undermine the authority of the United States

18 Government; undeclared or coercive, meaning the hand of that foreign intelligence

19 service or foreign actor is hidden to the target.

20 Subversive -- sorry -- coercive, meaning that there's some leverage point that a 21 foreign actor is trying to use, either economic coercion, familial coercion.

22 We also cover a lot of transnational repression threats. So that would be one of 23 the examples there. Or criminal. We're a law enforcement organization, so a violation

24 of Federal law is something we'd be interested in.

25 And they're doing that activity in order to target public opinion, to target the

1 policymaking environments, and/or to undermine the security and integrity of our
2 democratic processes, including elections.
3 Q So when you say subversive, what does that mean to you? Does that mean
4 that it's connected to a malign state actor, or does that mean something else?
5 A It's an activity threshold that essentially articulates -- that's looking to 6 undermine U.S. Government authority or U.S. Government legitimacy.
7 Q From a state actor or not necessarily?
8 A So it would be -- it's always from a state actor from the FITF perspective, but 9 it would be targeting sort of domestic issues.
10 Q Okay. And you also mentioned -- I think you used the term "malign 11 threshold" when you were talking about the work of FITF. Can you explain what that 12 means?
13 A Yes. It's the exact definition that I just went over, that we need both a 14 foreign actor and that activity threshold of the person undeclared from our core issues
15 activity. That's our malign threshold.
16 Q So undeclared means that they're acting covertly. They're not -- for 17 example, Russia today is a foreign actor, but they're overt in the sense that they're 18 registered under FARA?
19 A That's exactly right. We use the term "undeclared" to cover both covert or 20 clandestine actions, so actual clandestine activity by an intelligence service. But we use 21 the term "undeclared" really specifically because we are also talking about activity that 22 would potentially bring in FARA civil or criminal penalties, meaning you've got to register,
23 you've got to declare yourself to the Department of Justice as a foreign actor.
24 Q But your work with FITF is focused on those groups that are working covertly 25 or trying to hide their --

1 A Correct.

2 Q -- connections to foreign government?

3 A They are not being transparent with their target audience about who they're

4 working for.

5 Q Okay. Why is it important that the FBI combat these type of foreign

6 influence operations?

7 A Part of what we're trying to protect, as I said earlier, is essentially our way of 8 life, our democratic processes, the legitimacy of our democratic processes.

9 And as you've articulated in some of the exhibits you've given me today, there's a

10 really lengthy intelligence record that foreign actors are aiming to undermine the 11 legitimacy of that, undermine our policy process, and pretend to be Americans.

12 We believe we're incredibly protective of First Amendment protections inside the

13 FBI and DOJ, as you can well imagine, and so we're trying to ensure that that marketplace

14 of ideas is free from foreign interference and people pretending to be an authentic part

15 of that conversation when they're not.

16 [redacted] Thank you.

17 I'm going to mark for the record exhibit 5. This is from the FBI website as well.

18 It's titled "Combating Foreign Influence."

19 [Dehmlow Exhibit No. 5

20 Was marked for identification.]

21 BY [redacted]

22 Q Ms. Dehmlow, there's two pages to this. If you could just take a quick look 23 at it and see if you're familiar with it.

24 A I am, yes.

25 Q Okay. Is it fair to say this portion of the FBI's website describes the origin

1 and some of the work of FITF?

2 A It does, yes.

3 Q And if you turn on to the back page, there is a description in the very last

4 paragraph. It starts with the words "Through the FITF." And in this section, the

5 pamphlet describes that the FBI takes a three-pronged approach to the serious threat of 6 foreign influence campaigns.

7 Do you see that portion of the exhibit?

8 A I do, yes.

9 Q Okay. Could you just read what those three are, those three-pronged

10 approaches?

11 A Sure. "Through the FITF, the FBI is taking a three-pronged approach to this 12 serious threat."

13 The first bullet is "Investigations and operations: The FITF works with FBI field

14 offices across the country to counter the extensive influence operations of our foreign

15 adversaries."

16 Second bullet is "Information and intelligence sharing: The FBI works closely

17 with other intelligence community agencies, as well as with state and local law

18 enforcement partners and election officials, to ensure a common understanding of the 19 threat and a unified strategy to address it."

20 And the third bullet is "Private sector partnerships: The FBI considers strategic

21 engagement with U.S. technology companies, including threat indicator sharing, to be

22 important in combating foreign influence actors."

23 Q Okay. This three-pronged approach that is described in the exhibit, is this

24 the same approach that the FBI has taken -- or that FITF has taken in its work from the 25 inception of the task force?

1 A It is. And I'd actually articulate that this is pretty typical of all of our
2 counterintelligence work where this three-pronged approach is pretty typical regardless
3 of the threat -- of how the threat is manifesting.
4 Q And specifically with respect to the third prong of maintaining private sector
5 partnerships, can you explain why it's important for FITF to engage strategically with U.S.
6 technology companies, including sharing threat indicators?
7 A Sure. We at the FBI, through our investigations and through the 8 collaboration, that previous bullet, "intelligence and information sharing," sometimes get
9 information about how foreign actors are targeting and using U.S. technology companies,
10 the U.S. private sector, to conduct their foreign influence operations.
11 And when we get that information, we have a -- the FBI has a proactive 12 responsibility to inform those companies so that they can take whatever action that they 13 deem necessary to better protect themselves, their platforms, and their customers.
14 [redacted] Go ahead.
15 BY [redacted]
16 Q So with what you just said, if the FITF is not able to operate as it currently 17 does, which is to say making social media companies or other technology companies 18 aware of foreign threats or foreign activity, would that potentially prevent the social 19 media companies from taking action to stop those foreign threats?
20 A I think it would make their jobs harder, yes.
21 Q And so potentially that could open the door to malign foreign actors
22 successfully impacting the elections or impacting other U.S. interests, correct?
23 A Yeah. Another example that we haven't talked about is transnational 24 repression. So we've seen foreign intelligence services target individuals who are 25 speaking out against authoritarian regimes here inside the United States. And so information sharing with those platforms helps protect U.S. people who are just exercising their really deeply held and cherished First Amendment protections to speak out on issues of their choosing, which is another example.

Q And if the FITF can't engage with social media companies to share that information, those individuals would presumably be left exposed. They could be exposed to harm.

A Correct.

BY [redacted]

Q So is it fair to say that the kind of conduct that was described in the indictment that we saw earlier would be easier for foreign actors to engage in if FITF was not allowed to engage with these technology companies?

A Yeah. And, again, to draw the sort of parallels to a lot of the other work that we do in the FBI where this is not -- and we've been very transparent about this. We've been very open about this. And it's very typical for the threats that we work and part of our toolkit to combat that to engage with U.S. companies and the U.S. private sector to help them protect themselves. So it would also I guess differ from a lot of the other spaces in the FBI.

Q Do you still have in front of you the letter from the AG, exhibit 4?

A No. I gave it back. Sorry.

Q Okay. I should have let you sit with that for a second. I'm sorry.

A That's okay. My counsel has handed me a copy. We're good.

Q Okay. I'm just going to look back at that letter, have you look back at it one more time. At the top of page 3, the Assistant Attorney General identifies four types of foreign malign influence operations that the FITF seeks to disrupt.

A Uh-huh.

1 Q Do you see that section?

2 A I do. It's actually four things.

3 Q Did I say three? I'm sorry. I meant four.

4 A That's okay.

5 Q So the AG described in this letter these four types of malign influence

6 operations, including, one, "Attempts by adversaries -- hoping to reach a wide swath of

7 Americans covertly from outside the United States -- to use false personas and fabricated

8 stories on social media platforms to discredit U.S. individuals and institutions."

9 Do you see that?

10 A I do.

11 Q Now, that is the type of activity that we've talked to quite a bit already that 12 was included in the indictment, the troll farms. Is that right?

13 A Uh-huh.

14 Q The second type of activity listed in the letter is, "Targeting U.S. officials and 15 other U.S. persons through traditional intelligence tradecraft."

16 Do you see that?

17 A I do.

18 Q And what does that mean?

19 A So, broadly, what we're trying to protect the individual officials from is a

20 foreign intelligence service targeting them because they've got either a policy perspective

21 that the foreign adversary either agrees or disagrees with and wants to change their mind

22 or ensure that they stick with a specific perspective; or, of course, the policymaking

23 environment is something that foreign countries, foreign governments are very 24 interested in.

25 So they're looking for insights into U.S. policymaking and the U.S. policymaking

1 environment policy deliberations. And, of course, sort of the third bucket I articulated is
2 classified information.
3 Q So how does FITF work to prevent this type of harm, the targeting of U.S.
4 officials?
5 A So we do -- I've got to be careful because of classification level.
6 Q Yeah.
7 A What we're looking for -- what we're aiming to do is either harden targets or 8 disrupt the threat actors. I think that's the big buckets.
9 So we have to provide information to again help those U.S. officials protect 10 themselves, the same thing we're doing in the private sector context, which is provide 11 specific information about how they're being targeted in order to have them make 12 decisions about how to better protect themselves or their staffs.
13 And then, from an operational perspective, at a very high level what we're aiming 14 to do is understand the mechanisms by which those actors are conducting that type of 15 collection and look to law enforcement or national security authorities to disrupt the 16 actors' behavior.
17 Q Okay. And number three says, "Criminal efforts to suppress voting and 18 provide illegal campaign financing."
19 How does FITF work to suppress these type of criminal acts?
20 A So there's an extensive portion of the Criminal Code that talks about election
21 crimes. And so if the equity -- or if the FBI investigation is about a foreign actor
22 committing a violation of Federal law, that's something that we'll partner with our 23 Criminal Investigative Division on to understand or disrupt.
24 Q And, finally, it says, "Cyber attacks against voting infrastructure, along with 25 computer intrusions targeting elected officials and others."

1 How does FITF work to neutralize that threat?

2 A So we do this in collaboration with our Cyber Division counterparts. And

3 they're, of course, also actor-based.

4 So if we identify an intrusion set or a foreign actor who's using cyber means to

5 either target critical infrastructure in the election space or to target elected officials'

6 campaigns, part of our political -- our democratic process, we're looking to understand

7 how that's happening and, again, aim to inform them so they can better protect

8 themselves and disrupt the activity itself.

9 Q Okay. And earlier, in the previous hour, you referred to some social media

10 companies' terms of service that prohibit coordinated inauthentic behavior.

11 Do you recall that discussion?

12 A I do.

13 Q And how would that fit within this type of conduct? Is coordinated 14 inauthentic behavior something that might overlap with what the FBI is interested in?

15 A Yes. So it's essentially the industry parallel for the undeclared or covert

16 aspect of the social media operations that are a component part of all of this.

17 So it's what they use to articulate the work they are doing to protect their

18 platforms and protect their customers. And so when we articulate that we're providing 19 information so they can take action using their own terms of service, it's our way of 20 saying this is up to you and your rules. We're not asking you to do anything.

21 Q Okay. What does it mean, "coordinated inauthentic behavior"?

22 A So the industry terms, so this will be my approximation or my paraphrasing,

23 so coordinated activity would be activity that is taking place across a wide range of users

24 or chatrooms or groups, and inauthentic activity would, again, be pretending to be

25 somebody you're not on the platform, so a Russian pretending to be an American in a

1 group.

2 [redacted] What's your understanding of why that type of activity is of concern

3 to the social media companies?

4 Ms. Dehmlow. I think they are also responding to a lot of the government

5 findings, the intelligence community findings regarding the Russian Government's intents

6 in 2016.

7 I think they also -- my understanding is that there have been efforts to protect

8 their customers and protect their companies from, again, inauthentic behavior. But,

9 honestly, it's their perspective, so they would be a better person to ask.

10 [redacted] Okay.

2 BY [redacted]

3 Q Is it fair to say that the reason that you might have information is because

4 your interest is in the inauthentic type of behavior if it's also foreign and meets your

5 other criteria at FITF?

6 A Yes. We're context agnostic in the context of information sharing with

7 these platforms. The message that they're trying, the issue that they're trying to take

8 advantage of, that doesn't matter to us. What we're talking about is the actor and their

9 inauthentic behavior.

10 Q Thank you.

11 Okay. Now, the FITF's efforts to combat covert foreign malign influence

12 operations are consistent with the findings of current and prior administrations regarding

13 the national security of the United States and foreign policy.

14 Is that fair to say?

15 A It is, yeah.

16 Q Okay. Are you familiar with former President Trump's Executive Order

17 13848?

18 A I am.

19 [redacted] Okay. I will mark for the record exhibit 6.

20 [Dehmlow Exhibit No. 6

21 Was marked for identification.]

1

2 BY [redacted]

3 Q While you're looking at it, exhibit 6 is titled "Executive Order

4 13848 - Imposing Certain Sanctions in the Event of Foreign Interference in a United States

5 Election," dated September 12th, 2018.

6 And you said that you're familiar with this. Is that right, Ms. Dehmlow?

7 A I am, yes.

8 Q How are you familiar with it?

9 A The EO requires the intelligence community to respond with an assessment

10 of foreign interference, I think is the phrasing used in this executive order, of what activity

11 foreign governments undertook to target our election security in the previous election.

12 So I'm familiar with it in the context of having been a participant in providing

13 those -- or in forming those assessments. Those assessments are then used to inform

14 policy responses, including, for example, sanctioning individuals who may have conducted

15 foreign interference in our elections.

16 Q So is it fair to say as part of your responsibilities at FITF you responded to 17 this executive order specifically?

18 A Absolutely.

19 Q And I'm going to, if you don't mind, have you read just the finding in the 20 second paragraph of the order. It begins with "I, Donald J. Trump."

21 A Sure.

22 Q And you don't have to read the whole thing. I think it's only one sentence,

23 that entire finding, if you wouldn't mind.

24 A Okay. "I, Donald J. Trump, President of the United States of America, find

25 that the ability of persons located, in whole or in substantial part, outside the United

1 States to interfere in or undermine public confidence in United States elections, including
2 through the unauthorized accessing of election and campaign infrastructure or the covert
3 distribution of propaganda and disinformation, constitutes an unusual and extraordinary
4 threat to the national security and foreign policy of the United States."
5 Q That's good. Thank you.
6 Now, how does FITF seek to disrupt the threat that's identified by former 7 President Trump's executive order?
8 A So it's the component parts that I previously articulated. The President is 9 here declaring a national emergency, articulating one component part that's really critical 10 to our work, the covert distribution of propaganda and disinformation, which he 11 articulates constitutes an unusual and extraordinary threat to the national security and 12 foreign policy of the United States.
13 So, again, our purpose would be to identify those actors who are conducting that 14 activity and use the available tools to us under law enforcement and national security 15 processes to disrupt that.
16 Q And is it fair to say that your relationships with the social media companies
17 enable you to fight those, the covert distribution of propaganda and disinformation, 18 because the social media companies are sometimes inadvertently letting them reach
19 masses of Americans?
20 A That's a fair characterization, yes.
21 Q The FITF's work includes sharing information and intelligence with Federal 22 and State and local government agencies, as well as with private sector entities, correct?
23 A Yes.
24 Q And FITF has participated in periodic U.S. Government industry meetings and 25 occasional bilateral meetings with social media companies, including Facebook, Twitter,

1 Google, Yahoo, Microsoft, Wikimedia, and Reddit, as part of its effort to share
2 information and intelligence with these companies in an effort to combat covert foreign
3 malign influence operations.
4 Is that a fair characterization?
5 A We have, yes.
6 Q Did you participate in those meetings?
7 A Many of them, yes.
8 Q Okay. And I think you already spoke at length about how often they 9 occurred.
10 Just characterizing generally, is it fair to say that FITF shared both tactical and 11 strategic information with social media companies; "tactical" meaning information about 12 specific accounts that are suspected of being covertly controlled by malign foreign actors
13 and "strategic" meaning tools, tactics, and processes used by those actors?
14 A Definitely, yes.
15 Q Are you familiar with those two distinctions, tactical and strategic? Is that 16 something that you would say?
17 A I'm not sure that I would use the words "tactical" and "strategic," but tactical
18 and sort of broad information, yes. Your characterization of it are two buckets that I'd 19 characterize, just maybe not with those specific terms.
20 Q Okay. If there's two categories of tactical and strategic, can you say briefly
21 what the difference would be of those type of terms?
22 A Sure. The strategic bucket, as you articulated it, would help to inform sort
23 of the broad understanding of trends that we are seeing, potentially articulate the intent
24 of a foreign adversary to do something without specific articulable details.
25 And then the tactical would be we've got high confidence -- that's a reference that

1 I haven't made yet; the Justice Manual requires us to have high confidence before sharing
2 this information -- high confidence and the details of how that foreign adversary is going
3 about using a social media platform or an account to conduct influence operations.
4 Q So that's specific information about a particular account or website or some
5 actor?
6 A Yes.
7 Q First talking about what we described as tactical then, the specific
8 information, with respect to U.S. social media platforms, if the FBI or the IC partners 9 determine through investigation or intelligence gathering that an account purporting to 10 be controlled by a U.S. person is actually controlled by a covert foreign malign actor, the 11 FITF may share that with relevant social media companies -- may share with relevant 12 social media companies the indicators or selectors regarding that spoof account. Is that
13 correct?
14 A Yes.
15 Q Now, the information that you share might include IP addresses, email
16 accounts, website domains, or file hash values. Is that fair to say?
17 A Yes.
18 Q And why does FITF share that type of information with the social media
19 companies?
20 A That is the type of information that allows us to really specifically identify a
21 foreign actor on those platforms.
22 So you'll note that nowhere in there did you articulate that we're talking about the 23 content or the messages actors are trying to propagate. These are technical indicators 24 that a foreign actor is behind the activity, and that's the type of information sharing that 25 we're doing because we want to combat -- or we want to help the platforms combat the

1 activity, not do counternarratives. That's irrelevant to our work.

2 Q Is it fair to say that the FBI shares this information to assist the social media

3 company's own independent investigation into whether there's a violation of their own

4 terms of service?

5 A Yes.

6 Q Does the FBI ever direct or coerce social media companies to take any action

7 with respect to the information that it shares or the accounts that the information

8 pertains to?

9 A Not to the best of my knowledge.

1 [12:16 p.m.]

2 BY [redacted]

3 Q And, when the FBI decides to share information with a U.S. social media

4 company about a foreign actor's social media activity, is that decision ever based on the 5 content or viewpoints expressed in the posting?

6 A It is not.

7 Q Instead, is it fair to say that FITF's decision to share this type of information

8 is based on the conclusion that the account is part of a covert effort by a foreign malign

9 actor to exert influence over Americans?

10 A That's correct.

11 Q FITF only shares information about accounts for which it, quote, has high 12 confidence. That's what you just mentioned. Is that correct?

13 A Yes.

14 Q And what does "high confidence" mean?

15 A It means that we are very certain that either a source that we've derived the

16 information from, so that -- I can't get into methodology here because of classification

17 level. We're very certain of the source, or we've got corroborating information from 18 several different sources.

19 Q Are you aware of any instances when the FBI shared information about a

20 suspected foreign covert account where it was later determined by the U.S. Government

21 or by a social media company that the account was, in fact, not controlled by a foreign

22 actor but is instead controlled by a U.S. person?

23 A I'm not aware of any specifics like that, no.

24 Q FITF does not share any information on social media platforms regarding 25 overt postings by hostile actors like Russia Today, right?

A Correct.

Q I think you already mentioned the reason is because Russia Today is overt and not covert?

A Correct.

[redacted] Can we go off the record for just one second?

[Discussion off the record.]

[redacted] Okay. We can go on the record again, please.

BY [redacted]

Q All right. We talked about tactical information sharing in FITF. I'm going to try to talk more about the strategic information sharing or what I've been characterizing as strategic information.

Some of the strategic information about the tools, tactics, and processes used by malign foreign actors that FITF shares with social media companies could include information about hack-and-leak operations. Is that right?

A Can you ask the question again? I'm sorry.

Q Yeah, that was really a long, weird way.

Strategic information could include, like, broad operations like hack and leak. Is that fair to say?

A It -- strategic information would be -- it would always be observed activity that we either have reporting on the intent of an adversary to use it or we've previously observed that that is a tactic or technique that they are using.

So, in the instances of hack and leak, again, I was the FITF China unit chief at the time. My understanding is, you know, there was a Russia hack-and-leak operation, and so it was that context that we were talking about, a previously used technique by the Russian Government.

1 Q So the U.S. Government identified this as a tactic that had been used in the 2 past --
3 A Correct.
4 Q -- that you considered a threat in future. Is that fair to say?
5 A Correct.
6 Q And you shared that information with the social media companies why?
7 A Again, we're -- I think the intent of the engagement with the private sector is 8 to help them raise their own defenses and take action if they so fit, as they see fit. And 9 part of our really standard practice across threats is to articulate historic examples of how 10 that threat is manifested. So that's the context of sharing previously observed tactics.
11 Q Okay. With respect to hack-and-leak tactics, we've already said this in this 12 TI. But one of the examples was the Russian interference in the 2016 election, correct?
13 A Yes.
14 Q And, after the 2016 election, is it fair to say that there was still widespread 15 concern among national security and law enforcement experts in the United States about 16 Russia interfering in the same or similar manner as in the 2020 election?
17 A Yeah, I think that's a fair characterization.
18 Q And why was that concern still present?
19 A So I can't get into real specifics largely because I don't know them. But my 20 understanding is that there continued to be a wide range of advanced persistent threat
21 actors from the Russian Government who are targeting both our policymaking
22 environment, elected officials, party apparatus, et cetera.
23 And so the -- again, this is an indicator of both -- this is something that we were 24 sharing in the context of both as previous example and knowledge that the actors
25 continue to engage in operations targeting these audiences.

1 Q And so that belief that these actors were still engaging in those tactics and
2 still trying to interfere in the same manner was shared not just by FBI officials but by
3 intelligence officials throughout the IC community in the United States?
4 A And I think the intelligence community officials and the broader
5 government. So, for example, I think the EO is an example of the Trump administration
6 sharing similar concerns.
7 [redacted] Okay. And I'm going to mark for the record exhibit 7, which is a
8 statement from then National Counterintelligence and Security Center Director William
9 "Bill" Evanina dated August 7th, 2020. And the statement is entitled, quote, "Election
10 threat update for the American public."
11 [Dehmlow Exhibit No. 7
12 Was marked for identification.]
13 BY [redacted]
14 Q Ms. Dehmlow, have you seen this statement before today?
15 A I have, but it's been a while.
16 Q Okay. If you wouldn't mind turning to page 2, there's a highlighted section
17 in there and just directing your attention to that portion --
18 A Okay.
19 Q -- about Russia.
20 [redacted] Do you want a minute to go over it?
21 BY [redacted]
22 Q Yeah, absolutely.
23 A Okay.
24 Q Okay. Would you mind reading for the record that portion that's 25 highlighted, titled, "Russia"?

1 A Sure.

2 Russia. We assess that Russia is using a range of measures to primarily denigrate
3 former Vice President Biden in what it sees as an anti-Russia, quote, establishment, end
4 quote. This is consistent with Moscow's public criticism of him when he was Vice
5 President for his role in the Obama's administration policies on Ukraine and then support
6 for the anti-Putin opposition inside Russia.

7 For example, pro-Russia Ukrainian Parliamentarian Andriy Derkach is spreading
8 claims about corruption including through publicizing leaked phone calls to undermine 9 former Vice President Biden's candidacy in the Democratic Party. Some criminal-linked 10 actors are also seeking to boost President Trump's candidacy on social media and Russian 11 television.

12 Q Thank you.

13 Is it fair to say that -- oh, I'm sorry, yeah, yeah.

14 Is it fair to say that the intel community was concerned about the Russians
15 conducting another successful hack-and-leak operation in order to influence the 2020
16 election?

17 A To the best of my knowledge, but, again, I was the FITF for China unit chief.
18 So I don't have a lot of detail about the reasons why.

19 Q Okay. Did FITF communicate this particular concern to U.S. social media
20 companies before the 2020 election?

21 A I don't have any specific recollection of this. Again, I was the China unit
22 chief. So --

23 Q Okay.

24 A It wouldn't stand out in my mind.

25 [redacted] Okay. Yeah, off the record for one second.

1 [Discussion off the record.]

2 [redacted] I think I'm going to stop right here.

3 [Recess.]

4 [redacted] Go on the record, please.

5 BY [redacted]

6 Q Ms. Dehmlow, remind me again when you became section chief of FITF.

7 A In early 2021, I think May, maybe April.

8 Q Do you recall who made the decision to elevate you?

9 A The Director signs off on SES promotions.

10 Q And, once you were elevated, how did your responsibilities change from 11 being unit chief of the China section to --

12 A Uh-huh. So essentially I am the both lead operational program manager

13 and the intelligence program manager for the full scope of the FITF operations.

14 Q And do you still attend the FITF meetings, the bilateral meetings?

15 A No, not regularly. I think the last time was over a year ago.

16 Q Would you sometimes attend in we'll say 2021 after the promotion?

17 A Maybe in the immediate -- to the best of my recollection, in the immediate

18 aftermath of my promotion, I think I attended a couple of them to introduce the new unit

19 chiefs.

20 Q Great. And just to have an accurate understanding of the structure, there's 21 the section chief of all of FITF. Then there's three unit chiefs of Russia, China, and 22 Global? Is that correct?

23 A There's a section chief, an assistant section chief, and then three unit chiefs,

24 yes.

25 Q Who's the assistant unit chief?

1 A It's a GS-15. So I'll have to take that back.

2 Q And, when you took over in 2021, do you recall how big the Russia, China,

3 and Global units were?

4 A It's been pretty static at about [redacted] people since the time I took over.

5 Q And then, with respect to how the [redacted] are divided, do you recall how many

6 are assigned to each unit?

7 A I think China and Russia are pretty comparable, around [redacted] to [redacted] folks. And 8 then Global is a little bit smaller.

9 Q Are you familiar with the injunction that came out on July 4th --

10 A I am.

11 Q -- over the summer?

12 A Yes.

13 Q Do you know if the bilateral meetings were paused as a result of that 14 injunction?

15 A Yeah. To the best of my knowledge, FITF has not engaged with the 16 platform since the injunction.

17 Q What about with respect to the USG Industry meetings?

18 A Those have not been held in some time, since I think maybe prior to or

19 immediately after the last election. So, again, to the best of my knowledge, nobody 20 from the FBI has participated in those.

21 Q We'll start first with the bilateral meetings. You've laid out that focus was 22 on the actors behind it.

23 Do you recall if there was any discussion regarding the subject matter of what

24 these foreign actors or inauthentic actors were posting on social media platforms?

25 A It was often a space where we were in receive mode. So the platforms had

1 more insight into that and so would sometimes talk to us about what they were
2 observing, both the inauthentic actors we were discussing on -- discussing. And then
3 again in the broad industry meetings they would talk about managed analysis including 4 information from, like, state-owned media.
5 Q And, for these broader meetings, there were -- you mentioned a number of 6 government agencies that would attend them. Were there any government agencies
7 that tended focus, when sharing the information with industry partners, would tend to 8 focus on what sort of content might be posted as a result of these disinformation?
9 A So the FITF's -- to the extent that the FITF's engagement on the social media
10 platforms was, as I said, actor and activity focused, once that attribution happens, the 11 intelligence community at large pays attention to the intent. So it would pay attention
12 to the narratives.
13 So, to the best of my recollection, sometimes the DNI folks would articulate some 14 of the intent and the narratives on the attributed foreign influence operations that we 15 talked about.
16 Q During these USG industry sync meetings -- actually, let me take one step 17 back.
18 Did you attend any of those once you became section chief of all of FITF?
19 A I think, again, to the best of my recollection I may have attended a couple to 20 introduce the new leadership team.
21 Q So you -- when you were attending, it was primarily when you were the unit
22 chief of the China unit?
23 A Correct, the bilateral meetings. I pretty regularly engaged in the industry
24 meetings.
25 Q Oh, sorry. To clarify --

1 A Yeah.

2 Q So, with respect to the -- and we'll use whatever terminology you prefer.

3 Not the bilateral meetings, the USG industry, what did you call those or --

4 A Yeah, the industry meetings.

5 Q Okay.

6 A The broader group meetings, I was attending those.

7 Q Okay.

8 A Yeah.

9 Q For the broader group meetings, do you attend those as FITF section chief?

10 A I had but, again, we haven't had them in quite some time.

11 Q And so would that include 2021 and 2022?

12 A Yes.

13 Q In 2022, do you recall how frequently you attended those meetings?

14 A I think they were monthly. So, again, unless I had a scheduled conflict, I

15 was trying to make them. But I would be going back in my memory. I don't remember 16 how many.

17 Q And what about in 2020 when you were the China unit chief?

18 A I attended them pretty regularly.

19 Q In 2020, how many people from FITF would attend one of these meetings?

20 A It was usually a small number, usually the unit chiefs, maybe the assistant

21 section chief and section chief, and then usually a DOJ representative, as well.

22 Q And did that hold true for 2021 and 2022, as well?

23 A In 2022, I was usually, aside from field office personnel who might have been

24 helping organize the meeting, like, from San Francisco, I was usually the only FITF

25 attendee.

1 Q And, in 2022, do you recall how frequently you would present at these
2 meetings?
3 A Really infrequently. I was often on the agenda, but most of the threat
4 information was coming either from DHS I&A or the ODNI personnel who were attending.
5 Q Do you recall how frequently CISA personnel were --
6 A They were pretty consistently a part of the conversation as far as I
7 remember.
8 Q And, to your recollection, did they usually present at the meetings?
9 A As I recall, it was usually I&A, not CISA. But I could be misremembering
10 that.
11 Q In advance of these meetings, similar to the bilateral meetings that FITF
12 would meet internally, first, would the USG partners internally meet before one of these
13 meetings?
14 A There was usually a prep call. I often missed it, frankly. But there was 15 email traffic and usually a prep call.
16 Q With respect to these broader industry meetings, do you recall having a
17 primary point of contact at CISA?
18 A I do, but I don't believe that individual's a GS -- or an SES employee. So, I'm 19 not sure if the prohibition applies to [redacted] personnel who are not --
20 [redacted] You can name them.
21 Ms. Dehmlow. I can name them? Okay.
22 [redacted], [redacted]
23 [redacted] What about with respect to ODNI?
24 Ms. Dehmlow. The -- it would have been somebody from the Foreign Malign
25 Influence Center, the FMIC. And, again, maybe not -- not SES personnel.

1 So maybe -- I'm sorry. Is it okay?

2 [redacted] Yes.

3 [redacted] Yeah.

4 Ms. Dehmlow. All right. [redacted] (ph) and [redacted] (ph).

5 BY [redacted]:

6 Q And for ODNI, you mentioned I think it was the Foreign Malign Influence

7 Center.

8 A Uh-huh.

9 Q What is that?

10 A That's ODNI's center for foreign malign influence work. I think it was the 11 result of a congressional mandate to set them up, and it's where the Election Threat

12 Executive is now housed in ODNI.

13 So the ETE was a component part of ODNI who led election security efforts in the

14 previous election cycles, and the FMIC is a broader group that covers not just election

15 security issues but broader foreign malign influence issues.

16 Q Is there any overlap between this center, ODNI's responsibilities, and FITF's

17 responsibilities?

18 A So they are the mission manager for ODNI's efforts in the foreign malign

19 influence space. So they do things like articulate lexicons and definitions of issues.

20 They do things like set collection -- help set collection priorities. They run the -- the

21 ODNI notification framework that articulates when and how we make defensive briefing

22 notifications in the context of election security. And they also work closely with the 23 National Intelligence Council personnel who are the primary directors of the response to

24 the EO 13848 that we previously discussed, the response to national emergency, and the 25 report that's required of the IC under the previous administration and this administration.

1 Q With respect to these broader industry meetings, who is your primary point
2 of contact at I&A?
3 A Again, that was [redacted]
4 Q So for both CISA and --
5 A Oh, I'm sorry. I misunderstood the question.
6 So [redacted] was my primary point of contact on the I&A side.
7 Q Okay.
8 A Let me think. You know, I might be misremembering which side she's on.
9 She may have been CISA. On the I&A side, there's another non-GS employee whose 10 name is escaping me right now. But I think, now that I'm thinking hard about this, [redacted]
11 was CISA. I apologize.
12 Q Would Elvis Chan attend these meetings?
13 A Sometimes, yes. I'm not sure he was at every one, again, in his capacity,
14 sort of managing the relationships with the companies we were engaged in, engaged
15 with.
16 Q Does FITF, other than these kind of broader industry meetings, does FITF
17 engage regularly with CISA?
18 A The election securities space, they're the primary -- they are part of the 19 primary response to election, what we call election interference, which would be 20 targeting of the actual mechanisms how to vote.
21 So, in the context of talking about the whole of government, Federal efforts to 22 protect security and integrity of our election, we regularly engage with CISA, yeah.
23 Q And would that include for issues related to misinformation related to 24 election integrity?
25 A Uh-huh.

1 Q Which Federal agency would have, like, be the primary point of contact for
2 handling that issue?
3 A So we don't -- we, the FBI, the only space that we have a specific role in 4 election, quote/unquote, disinformation would be information regarding time, manner,
5 and place, so information that is inaccurate regarding time, manner, or place. But,
6 again, that's not the FITF's role. That's another part of the FBI.
7 As far as the other sort of information regarding election security or integrity, the 8 FBI really doesn't have that mission space, to the best of my knowledge anyway.
9 Q To your knowledge, does the FBI ever pass along information from CISA to 10 the social media platforms?
11 A I can't think of an example where we've done that specifically, not to my 12 recollection.
13 [redacted] Are we up to exhibit 8?
14 [redacted] Sorry. I think it's 8.
15 [redacted] This is 8.
16 [Dehmlow Exhibit No. 8
17 Was marked for identification.]
18 BY [redacted]
19 Q Let me know if you need a moment to review.
20 A No.
21 Q Okay. First, do you recall attending --
22 A I do.
23 Q -- this meeting? What was the purpose?
24 A I'd been asked by a colleague at CISA to talk about FBI's really specific and 25 narrow role in foreign influence operations and countering foreign influence

1 operations -- sorry -- foreign malign influence operations. Let me be really specific.
2 And so I met with this group to articulate what our role is. And, as I think is
3 indicated here, I talked about both the foreign attribution component part of our work
4 and the behavioral sort of threshold that we need to use our investigative or operational
5 authorities.
6 Q Do you recall who from CISA invited you?
7 A Geoff Hale.
8 Q Prior to attending this meeting, were you familiar with this MDM Advisory 9 Subcommittee?
10 A I wasn't.
11 Q If I could call your attention to the bottom --
12 A Uh-huh.
13 Q -- of page 1, Bates number --
14 A Sure.
15 Q -- 4580, it's the first sub-bullet point, second sentence. It says: FBI does 16 not perform narrative content-based analysis.
17 Do you agree with that statement?
18 A I do.
19 Q To your knowledge, are there any Federal agencies that perform narrative or 20 content-based analysis?
21 A I really am here to speak about what the FBI's specific scope and role is. I 22 don't have detail about how they're doing, other government agencies are doing their 23 work. So I don't want to characterize it as something I don't understand.
24 Q Do you recall during this meeting there was discussion of whether other 25 agencies -- whether other Federal agencies could or do conduct narrative or

1 content-based analysis?

2 A It looks like in the next line, the record indicates that Dr. Starbird thought

3 CISA might have a role based on the subcommittee, helping to define the narrative so the 4 whole-of-government approach could be leveraged. I vaguely recall that conversation.

5 But, again, since it wasn't FBI, I don't have specific memories of it.

6 Q To your knowledge, sitting here today, does CISA play a role in performing

7 narrative or content-based analysis?

8 A My understanding is that CISA believes, understands itself to have a

9 resilience role, particularly in the specific context of election security and election

10 integrity.

11 Q Okay. And what do you mean by a resilience role?

12 A That part of their role is to ensure that there is access; there is broad access

13 to truthful information about election integrity. But, as far as a counter-narrative

14 strategy, I wouldn't have any idea.

15 Q Okay.

16 A And how they do content-based analysis or how they come up with that 17 truthful information, I don't know.

18 Q If I could have you turn to the next page --

19 A Sure.

20 Q -- just a couple more sub-bullet points. And then it's the middle of the first 21 full sub-bullet point on top of the page, about four lines down.

22 A Okay.

23 Q It says: Ms. Dehmlow was asked to provide her thoughts or to define a 24 goal for approaching MDM. She mentioned resiliency.

25 Well, first, let me stop it there.

1 A Okay.

2 Q Is that using "resiliency" in the same way you were just using it in your

3 previous answer?

4 A I think that this is at least a slight mischaracterization of my remarks or the

5 context of our -- my remarks. So the -- I was asked there to talk about the specific FBI

6 efforts, and we'd gone over that.

7 And then we were talking about the Federal Government's, if I remember

8 correctly, essentially right to speak and ensure that there is truthful information

9 accessible to citizens. And so that's what I mean by "resiliency."

10 Q Okay.

11 A But that there is really not an FBI role in that space.

12 Q Do you recall if you were given an opportunity to review these meeting

13 minutes?

14 A No, not that I remember.

15 Q Okay. So continue with the next sentence.

16 She stated: We need a meeting for structure that is held accountable.

17 Do you recall making a statement to that -- to that end?

18 A It doesn't sound like something I would say. What I have said in a context

19 like this is that there is a role to play for the media and standards for media engagement,

20 but I certainly was not articulating that the FBI or any other part of the government 21 should hold the media accountable.

22 Q Okay. And, when you say you were not saying that the government or

23 anyone else should necessarily hold the media accountable, is that your position that it

24 should not, that the government should not be making an effort to hold the media

25 accountable, or is it not allowed?

1 A I don't think there's a role for the FBI to play in quote, unquote, holding the
2 media accountable, no. Freedom of the press is another constitutional protection we 3 take really seriously.
4 Q Do you recall any discussion at this meeting about ways in which the media
5 could, quote/unquote, be held accountable?
6 A I don't. Again, I think it's a mischaracterization of the conversation as I
7 remember it, talking about other elements of civil society that are a component part of 8 this issue space.
9 Q And what other components of civil society?
10 A Like the media, like other parts of the government.
11 Q Any others that come to mind?
12 A No.
13 Q If I could call your attention up a few more -- this is a few sentences
14 previously --
15 A Uh-huh.
16 Q -- within the same bullet point. After a semicolon, three lines down, it says:
17 With the FBI focus on foreign efforts, how do we disentangle foreign actors embedded in 18 the MDM process?
19 Do you recall a discussion on that issue in this meeting?
20 A Vaguely. And it would be pretty typical of how persistent -- how consistent 21 we've been in other types of questions like this.
22 The FBI does not have a counter-narrative role, and my recollection of that 23 conversation was talking about how to sort of counter mis-, dis-, and 24 malinformation -- that's what MDM stands for -- narratives. And the FBI really does not 25 have a role in this space. So I remember being in sort of listen mode.

1 Q Do you know whether there is a Federal agency that does have this
2 responsibility?
3 A Not to my knowledge.
4 Q Do you recall if there was a discussion during this meeting about whether a
5 Federal agency should have the ability to serve a counter-narrative role?
6 A I don't remember that -- that specific characterization, that specific question.
7 Q You helpfully defined MDM as mis-, dis-, and malinformation. To you
8 knowledge, what's the difference between those three terms?
9 A I -- "malinformation" is not a term of art I'm very familiar with. So I can't 10 really define that one.
11 "Misinformation" would be information that's -- I think the academic definition is 12 essentially I think information that's partially true but is being characterized and spun in a 13 way that is not fully accurate.
14 And "disinformation" would be inaccurate information being propagated.
15 Q Do you know if CISA ever uses the term "malinformation"?
16 A Yeah, I believe they use "mis-, dis-, and malinformation" as essentially 17 articulating the mission space as those broad three things.
18 Q And understanding this is obviously not your agency but to your 19 understanding, what does CISA understand malinformation to be?
20 A Really I've never really understood the term, and it's not one I use. So I
21 wouldn't want to speculate. I'm sorry.
22 Q During the broader industry group meetings, the one that were attended by
23 CISA --
24 A Uh-huh.
25 Q -- would they ever use the term "malinformation"?

1 A Yes, yes.

2 Q And, when they would use the term during these meetings, whether it was

3 context clues or providing the definition, what was your understanding of what they

4 meant?

5 A It seemed to be essentially the same thing as either mis- or disinformation.

6 So the distinctions between something that is partially true and being misrepresented

7 and something that is fully untrue.

8 I'm not sure what the -- what makes malinformation different from those two

9 things, and the context didn't help me.

10 Q Do you recall anyone during these meetings stopping someone from CISA

11 and asking, "What do you mean by 'malinformation'?"

12 A Not that I remember.

13 Q And just picking back up on, again, the sentence that's reflected in the 14 meeting notes --

15 A Uh-huh.

16 Q -- about how do we disentangle foreign actors embedded in the MDM

17 process, to your knowledge, what was the discussion there with respect?

18 A To the best -- to the best of my recollection, it was the idea that there is

19 foreign amplification of authentic speech, and the conversation was, again, about building

20 resiliency and counter-narratives. And that was the context that they were discussing.

21 But, again, I already articulated the FBI didn't have a role in that space, so vague

22 recollections.

23 Q So you help me understand then malign as the FBI understands it. So, if 24 there are foreign malign actors, that's clearly within the FBI's purview.

25 A Correct.

1 Q If they're creating fake accounts, that would be within the FBI's purview.
2 A Uh-huh.
3 Q What did you mean by "amplification"? And, as part of your answer, you
4 also say, you know, why is it not the FBI's space to address that issue?
5 A We're countering actors and activity. So sort of our core, our core function
6 at the FBI is to, you know, identify criminals and national security and actors who are, you
7 know, national security threat, who are conducting specific types of activity to either
8 conduct criminal activity or, you know, undermine the national security of the United 9 States.
10 And, in the FMI context, we are countering foreign actors who are using, who are 11 conducting specific activities -- that's the subversive, undeclared, criminal, or coercive
12 definition that I referenced several times. And it is not about countering the message.
13 It's not about countering the narrative that those actors are propagating. It's about 14 disrupting their ability to pretend to be someone they're not in our civil discourse, in our 15 marketplace of ideas.
16 Q Okay. If you could say a bit more then. As far as you understand it, what 17 is that amplification role? What does that mean?
18 A So, once we've attributed something, right, once we've attributed something
19 to a foreign actor, what we have observed is that, in addition to creating content 20 historically, creating new content around the specific issues that they are -- they are 21 attempting to influence, many actors, including the Russians, have identified issues inside
22 the United States, both sides of divisive issues inside the United States, and amplified 23 messaging or amplified content surrounding that -- that protected speech inside the 24 United States.
25 So that's explicitly why the FBI doesn't get into counter-narratives, why we don't

1 use narrative matching or content-based analysis because we are very cognizant of the 2 speech protections that we need to be careful to protect.
3 Q And, again, to your knowledge, does CISA play a role in trying to counter the 4 amplification of these narratives?
5 A I'd have to defer to CISA to characterize their own operations. I'm really
6 here to talk about FBI's role.
7 Q Do you recall during this meeting if CISA, anyone from CISA stated that CISA
8 has a role to play?
9 A As I recall, it was largely the -- I think there were mostly academics who were 10 on the board. It was a discussion amongst them. There really wasn't much input from 11 the CISA representative who's on the call who is Geoff Hale, as I recall.
12 Q Do you recall anyone else from CISA who was on the call?
13 A Not that I remember.
14 [redacted] We can take these back.
15 [Dehmlow Exhibit No. 9
16 Was marked for identification.]
17 [redacted] This will be exhibit 9.
18 BY [redacted]
19 Q So if I could call your attention to the bottom --
20 A Uh-huh.
21 Q -- part of the first page, there's a bullet point that reads: Subcommittee
22 members have received the following briefing.
23 And then the second sub-bullet point refers to you and the briefing that you
24 provided in the previous exhibit.
25 First, to your recollection, was that March 1st hearing that looks like the previous

1 exhibit, was that the only time you presented to this group?

2 A To the best of my knowledge, yeah.

3 Q Were you given an opportunity to review this [redacted] of your meeting to

4 the CISA subcommittee?

5 A Not that I remember.

6 Q If you need a moment, let me know.

7 The second bullet point provides a [redacted] of what you presented to the group.

8 And if I could call your attention to the second line down, it says: The FBI does not

9 conduct-narrative based analysis which allows CISA to complement their abilities.

10 We've touched upon this --

11 A Uh-huh.

12 Q -- a couple of times. But does this refresh your memory at all with respect

13 to what the advisory subcommittee meant regarding CISA's role?

14 A I think it misrepresents the fact of that -- the second part of that sentence, 15 "which allows CISA to complement their abilities," I don't ever recall saying that.

16 So I think a better characterization or my recollection would be: Ms. Dehmlow

17 identified the FBI's purview of foreign and criminal threats, comma, the FBI does not

18 conduct narrative-based analysis. Full stop.

19 And then I would characterize it as a subcommittee conversation about CISA

20 complementing it, but I don't recall saying that.

21 Q But, to your recollection, was there some discussion with the understanding

22 it didn't involve you --

23 A Uh-huh.

24 Q -- and what you were saying but among the other members attending that

25 March 1st meeting, a discussion about CISA's role to complement the FBI's abilities?

1 A I don't remember the term "complement" specifically but I do -- just from
2 the previous document, I think I previously articulated that I remember them talking
3 about countering the MDM and the role that other parts of the government might play.
4 But, again, I don't remember CISA injecting themselves into that conversation.
5 Q I --
6 A And I remember it very vaguely.
7 Q Understood. Were you invited, to your recollection, to attend another one
8 of these meetings?
9 A Not that I remember.
10 Q That same sub-bullet point continues: Subcommittee members outline
11 goals of strengthening resilience across all sectors to help develop a media infrastructure
12 that is held accountable for amplifying misinformation/disinformation.
13 You stated your recollection as far as what you presented, what the FBI presented.
14 Do you recall who on the call or the meeting provided any commentary how to hold a 15 meeting structure accountable?
16 A I don't. I don't. I don't remember specifics of that discussion at all. I
17 don't remember suggestions on how that might take place, what that meant. I don't 18 remember.
19 Q Okay. You remember just at a high level that there was some discussion.
20 Is that what your previous answer was saying?
21 A So I think I previously said that, in the context of my comments on holding 22 media accountable, I think we were talking about the broad set of actors who are in the 23 counter-MDM space. And my purpose for attending the call was, again, to articulate the 24 FBI's more narrowly scoped role which is countering foreign malign influence operations.
25 So we are not in the counter-MDM space, and that's what I was there to discuss.

1 That's -- that's the majority of what I remember.

2 Q Do you recall receiving any briefings from anyone at CISA regarding what

3 their role is, what their responsibilities are?

4 A Me getting briefed? No. We have participated historically in some

5 engagements with the National Association of Secretaries of State and the National

6 Association of State Election Directors. And so I've heard them briefed pretty regularly

7 on their role in election security and integrity and protecting election infrastructure writ

8 large from foreign adversary attacks.

9 Q And those two organizations you mentioned, is that NASS and NASED?

10 A Yes.

11 Q Is that right?

12 A NASS, NASED.

13 Q When meeting with NASS and NASED, do you recall how frequently those 14 meetings occurred?

15 A They've got semiannual conferences that we get invited to at least one of 16 usually. So it's a combination of personnel who brief. Sometimes it's FITF.

17 Sometime it's Criminal Investigative Division. Election security is very much a shared

18 equity in the FBI.

19 Q Besides CISA and the FBI, do you recall who else?

20 A I&A, DHS I&A.

21 Q We can take these back.

22 A Okay.

23 Q And, to your recollection for these NASS and NASED meetings, did

24 you -- would you present at these meetings?

25 A I have at some of them, yes.

1 Q And, when the meetings did occur, based on the ones you presented and
2 recall, how many members from FITF would typically attend?
3 A One to two usually. It was a pretty small footprint from FITF, broader
4 component from the FBI.
5 Q Do you recall if these briefings, meetings occurred in person or over Zoom?
6 A Both.
7 Q Okay.
8 A I don't think we ever used Zoom. We would have used some other video
9 conferences capability, but the FBI typically didn't use Zoom.
10 Ms. Dehmlow. Could I talk to them for one second?
11 [redacted] Could we go off the record, please?
12 [Discussion off the record.]
13 Ms. Dehmlow. Okay.
14 [redacted] We can go back on the record.
15 [Dehmlow Exhibit No. 10
16 Was marked for identification.]
17 BY [redacted]
18 Q Do you recognize this meeting invite?
19 A I'm trying to remember the context. I don't recognize this specific one, but 20 I think from context clues I understand what these were.
21 Q Okay. And from the context clues --
22 A Uh-huh.
23 Q You have a memory of it.
24 What was the purpose of this call --
25 A I --

1 Q -- or calls?

2 A I think these were the -- some of the engagements that we had with NASS

3 and NASED partners with CISA's election security initiative.

4 Q And so these meetings would be separate from the broader industry

5 monthly meetings that we've been discussing.

6 A Yeah, if I'm right about which meeting this is. The election partners means

7 a lot of things. So --

8 Q Okay. We can take these back.

9 A Okay.

10 Q Are you familiar with the Global Engagement Center?

11 A I am.

12 Q And what is that?

13 A It's a State Department -- vaguely familiar with it. It's a State Department

14 entity that my understanding is they also focus on foreign influence and public diplomacy

15 that State Department equities oversees.

16 Q And, during your time at the FBI, have you had interactions?

17 A Uh-huh. I have.

18 Q What's the nature of those interactions?

19 A So, although the FBI's purview, obviously, is focused on how foreign malign

20 actors are targeting U.S. audiences, those same actors are targeting other partners and 21 allies.

22 And so, to the extent there's sort of actor overlap, we've had some discussions

23 with the Global Engagement Center about those foreign malign influence actors. And,

24 again, those -- I think it was characterized in the previous era -- hour, that sort of strategic 25 understanding of the tactics and techniques those actors use.

1 Q And do you have a primary point of the contact at the Global Engagement
2 Center?
3 A I have usually engaged with [redacted], but there are others whose names I
4 can't recall.
5 Q With respect to the broader USG industry sync meetings, did the Global 6 Engagement Center ever participate in those?
7 A No. I had at one point had some conversations with some of the partners
8 about whether they should join the industry calls but never did, no.
9 Q Do you recall who proposed adding the Global Engagement Center to these
10 meetings?
11 A I don't remember whose original idea it was. I was part of the 12 conversations where we presented it to the technology companies, the private sector
13 partners.
14 Q So, to your recollection, it was the government that was presenting the ideas
15 the industry partners?
16 A To the best of my recollection. Could have gone the other way around. I 17 was part of the conversations about whether we should do it but --
18 Q Do you recall what the position was of the industry partners regarding 19 whether the Global Engagement Center should be included?
20 A Yeah, if I remember correctly, the -- I don't remember which company it was,
21 but one of the companies that we'd engaged with did not want them to join.
22 Q Do you know what the reason why was?
23 A As I recall, it was that -- essentially the distinction that I articulated before,
24 that, you know, we were a group of folks who were narrowly scoped and focusing on 25 domestic, on targeting of the U.S. homeland. And they were focused on targeting of

1 foreign countries by the same set of actors. And so they wanted to keep those two
2 streams separate as far as I remember.
3 Q With respect to the U.S. agencies that were already on the USG industry --
4 A Uh-huh.
5 Q -- partner calls, do you know if the idea was proposed by one of those
6 agencies, or did the Global Engagement Center come to you guys and ask?
7 A I really don't remember. It was a few years ago. Sorry.
8 Q So, to your recollection, it was 2020?
9 A It was in the 2019, '20 timeframe. It was before the 2020 election for sure,
10 at least 3 years ago, I guess. Time flies.
11 Q At any point has the Global Engagement Center participated, so since the
12 2020 election?
13 A Not that I am aware of, not that I remember.
14 Q So, beyond social media, the tech companies we've identified with the 15 bilateral meetings and the U.S. Government Industry broader meetings, does the FBI
16 share similar information that's shared in those meetings with any other third parties?
17 A Regarding like the -- which -- which -- which information specifically are you 18 asking about?
19 Q Well, you identified at least two buckets --
20 A Okay.
21 Q -- the broader strategic information and then the more tactical.
22 A Okay.
23 Q So if you can answer both.
24 A Okay. On the tactical side, we would -- I'm trying to be careful of 25 investigative equities.

[redacted] If there's information that could help [redacted] form sort of their knowledge and understanding of the tactical space, we would also inform them.

If, on the strategic side, again, really typically -- typical to how we engage on threat actor awareness building in many other national security and criminal spaces, we'll do broad strategic information sharing with foreign partners and allies where we talk about threat actors and the activities that we've observed. Other departments and agencies, I think we would request briefings on it -- State, local, Tribal, territorial officials -- so a broad range of audiences that the FBI regularly engages with on that kind of information.

Q What about with respect to nonprofits?

A Historically, there was -- nonprofits, no, not to the best of my recollection.

I think historically, particularly at the very beginning of FITF, of the FITF standup, we did some engagement with academic institutions to understand more just about academic research that was going on in the foreign information -- foreign influence operation space.

Q Do you recall which academic institutions?

A I don't. I wasn't part of most of those. I just have been told.

Q When you first joined as unit chief of the China unit, do you recall if there were any ongoing information sharing meetings with these academic institutions?

A I don't recall. I don't recall, not that I participated in anyway.

Q To your knowledge, has the FBI interacted with the Election Integrity Partnership?

A It's not ringing a bell. Is there an organization it's attached to or associated with? Maybe that will help.

Q The partners in the Stanford Internet Observatory --

A Okay.

Q -- the University of Stanford, the University of Washington's Center for an Informed Public, Graphika, and DFRLab housed with it.

A Okay. I specifically have not engaged. That does not mean that FITF has not. I don't think I've specifically engaged with that set of actors. Graphika was at a conference that I was at. So I had some, you know, informal conversation, saying hello with some of the folks at Graphika.

Did Graphika get acquired by Google? That's possible. But I don't believe we've had any engagement with Graphika folks since the acquisition. I could be misremembering that acquisition, though.

Q What about Mandiant?

A Man -- oh, maybe Mandiant is the one that got acquired by Google. Is that it? Okay. Sorry. I get them mixed up.

We -- no, not that I recall. I don't recall having specific conversations or engagement with Mandiant. I've read some of their reports, but I don't recall having specific engagements or conversations.

[redacted] What was the conference that you were at Graphika with?

Ms. Dehmlow. It was the Cipher Brief Conference. I think it was last year.

[redacted] What was the -- what was it about or what was the --

Ms. Dehmlow. There's -- it's a 2- or 3-day cybersecurity professional engagement where a bunch of private sector and bunch of government folks get together and talk about various topics. I was there to, again, present on the FBI's very narrow and limited role in the FMI space.

BY [redacted]

Q Just to clarify your earlier response, so you don't recall if you interacted with

1 the Election Integrity Partnership or foreign entities laid out.

2 Do you have any knowledge of whether anyone at the Foreign Influence Task

3 Force engaged with those?

4 A I don't have any specific recollection or knowledge of that but --

5 Q Are you familiar with the Center for Internet Security?

6 A Can you give me some more context? Sorry. It's not ringing a bell, no.

7 Q Yeah. CIS.

8 [redacted] This will be exhibit 11.

9 [Dehmlow Exhibit No. 11

10 Was marked for identification.]

11 Ms. Dehmlow. Okay.

12 BY [redacted]

13 Q Okay. Reviewing this email chain, does that refresh your memory at all

14 with respect to --

15 A I don't --

16 Q -- CIS?

17 A -- remember this one, no.

18 Q There's reference in the subject line and then throughout the email chain --

19 A Uh-huh.

20 Q -- with respect to a Misinformation Reporting Portal.

21 A Uh-huh.

22 Q Do you have any familiarity with what that's referring to?

23 A I don't.

24 Q Are you aware of any Misinformation Reporting Portals to which the Federal 25 Government has access to?

1 A No, I'm not.

2 Q To your knowledge, is there any Misinformation Reporting Portal that the

3 FBI has access to?

4 A No, not that I'm aware of. To the best of my knowledge, the only place to 5 report anything to the FBI is our tip line.

6 Q This is the first email in the first page, Bates No. 34?

7 A Uh-huh.

8 Q There's a question from the FBI. It's about three lines down regarding: Is

9 there a way to identify foreignness or criminality of the misinformation that would serve

10 as thresholds for reporting in the portal?

11 A Uh-huh.

12 Q And you've discussed previously that's kind of the two nexus points that the 13 FBI needs.

14 A Yeah.

15 Q Are there, to your knowledge, U.S. Federal agencies that have the ability to 16 handle noncriminal domestic disinformation?

17 A I really can only speak with confidence to the FBI's role. So, FBI, that's our 18 threshold. But I can't speak with confidence to anybody else's.

[1:45 p.m.]

BY [redacted]

Q When the FBI or the tip line or perhaps someone contacts or you or someone else directly relating to misinformation or disinformation that lacks that foreign or criminal nexus, what happens next? Does the FBI refer it to someone else?

A No, not to my knowledge. If there's not a violation of law or specific detailed attribution to a foreign actor, we wouldn't take any action.

Q We can take these back.

A Okay.

Q Do you know what Sentinel is?

A Yes.

Q What is it?

A It's the FBI's case management system.

Q In his deposition in Missouri v. Biden, Agent Chan testified that he would summarize any substantive meetings he had with the tech companies.

A Uh-huh.

Q And he's referring both to the bilateral meetings and these broader U.S. industry sync meetings.

Do you recall, would you ever be the one who drafted those summaries?

A Not that I remember, no.

Q Agent Chan testified that the summaries are still saved and available. To your understanding, would that be the case?

A I don't see any reason why his testimony would be other than accurate, no.

Q Do you know if those meeting minutes could be produced to the committee?

A You would have to ask them that question. I don't know.

1 Q In addition to the meetings themselves, obviously communicating with the 2 tech partners there, and based off documents that are in the public record and that we've
3 obtained certain email correspondence between the industry partners and the FBI, are 4 you aware of what other channels were used to communicate between the FBI and the 5 industry partners?
6 A Beyond -- sorry. Can you give me the list again?
7 Q Beyond just the meetings and the emails.
8 A And the emails? There were phone calls.
9 And for the 2020 election, a Signal channel was set up, I believe at the request of 10 the partners, to ensure that there was sort of broad visibility on any threat information
11 the FBI might have to share. I'm not sure that anything was shared, but all of those 12 communications were documented in Sentinel after the fact.
13 Q With respect to the Signal channel that you're referencing between the 14 industry partners and the FBI, Agent Chan testified that it was the San Francisco Field
15 Office who was communicating on behalf of the FBI.
16 To the extent you have knowledge, is that consistent with what you know?
17 A Yeah. To the extent that I remember, yeah.
18 Q Did you ever have access to the Signal channel?
19 A I did, yes.
20 Q And can you walk me through that? Were there multiple FBI numbers on 21 the Signal channel or one FBI one that multiple personnel had access?
22 A Yeah. We had a national election command post set up and, to the best of 23 my knowledge, this approval and setup had gone up within the FBI for approval at higher
24 levels. But the on-scene commanders essentially for the command post -- I was one of 25 the shift leaders -- all had a phone with the Signal channel set up.

Q Okay. Do you recall who at the FBI signed off on using this?

A I don't. I don't. It would have had to have been at the A level or higher, I believe, but I don't recall specifically.

Q And I think you referred to it as shift leaders?

A Yeah.

Q How many shift leaders were there?

A We had three shifts 24/7, so 8-hour shifts.

Q In addition to you, who were the other --

A Non-SES personnel, so we would have to get back.

Q Was Elvis Chan one?

A No. He was not, no. This was at FBI headquarters.

Q Do you know for how long this Signal channel was used for?

A I don't remember. The command post was somewhere around [redacted], but I don't remember specifically if it extended before or beyond.

Q Before the FBI would post something to the Signal channel, did the shift leader need signoff from someone, or who would make the decision?

A Not that I recall. Can I just ask them a question about the investigative --

[redacted] Can we go off the record, please?

Ms. Dehmlow. Thank you.

[Discussion off the record.]

[redacted] Can we go back on the record, please?

Ms. Dehmlow. Can you repeat the question just so I can make sure I'm answering it?

BY [redacted]

Q Yeah. When you mentioned there were three shift leaders who had access

1 to the Signal channel and could post things if necessary, do you recall if the shift leaders
2 needed signoff from someone else?
3 A So the way the command post was working was information was coming
4 into the headquarters command post, and then we would send what we call leads to 5 appropriate field offices for follow-up investigative action.
6 So to the extent information was coming in through the headquarters command
7 post and we were sending leads off to the field office, I actually don't remember if that 8 went to the on-scene commander, the shift leader leads, or if they were signed off at 9 lower levels.
10 But someone at headquarters was essentially saying, yes, this needs to go there.
11 So to the extent the information was passing through that command post construct, then,
12 yes, somebody at headquarters would have signed off on assigning San Francisco the 13 responsibility to pass information on.
14 Q Okay.
15 A Does that make sense?
16 Q So it was San Francisco passing on the information in a way that's different
17 than what's being passed in the Signal channel, or isn't it?
18 A So we would have -- so the task to San Francisco to get information to the 19 platforms would have gone through Sentinel, and then the means by which that was 20 communicated would probably have been up to San Francisco. I don't remember having 21 any conversations about specifically saying Signal or email or a phone call. I don't think 22 we were that specific in articulating the means of communication.
23 Q Do you know if the FBI has kept records of these Signal communications?
24 A Yes. To the best of my knowledge, everything was recorded in Sentinel.
25 And there was -- as I'm sure you're aware, there's a disappearing message function that's

1 available in some of the encrypted apps, and we were required -- as I said, of course, we
2 were obviously required to turn that off so we would have an ongoing record.
3 Q Do you recall any other examples or a similar Signal channel that was
4 created --
5 A No.
6 Q -- like the 2020 election?
7 A We did not set up one for 2022.
8 Q And other than 2022, any other?
9 A Not that I am aware of, no, or can recall.
10 Q Are you familiar with what Teleporter is?
11 A I am.
12 Q What is it?
13 A Vaguely, although I've never used it. It's a secure communications channel
14 to encrypt sort of point-to-point communications that the FBI uses to share information
15 with private sector partners, usually in the cybersecurity context, is my understanding.
16 Q Okay. But you've never used it?
17 A I have not.
18 Q Do you know if anyone from FITF have used it?
19 A FITF is usually not the entity who's responsible for doing the information
20 sharing. That's going to go to one of our field offices. So it would be atypical for a FITF
21 employee to use Teleporter. But I can't confirm that that has never happened. It's 22 usually the field office who is doing that engagement that would require it.
23 Q Would FITF be sharing the information to the field office that would then 24 share the information --
25 A Yes.

1 Q -- Teleporterly?

2 A That would be the usual -- a typical way of getting that information to the 3 field office, yes, or to a private sector partner.

4 Q To your knowledge, does Elvis Chan use Teleporter too?

5 A I believe so, yes.

6 Q So when FITF is communicating information to Agent Chan, do you know

7 how he's going to communicate it to the industry partners?

8 A I don't recall ever having conversations about the specific means we're

9 talking about to share, specific details to share. It's understood that this is often coming

10 from pretty sensitive sources, and so we don't -- we're looking for ways to protect that

11 information that is meant to be between two parties. But I don't know if we're ever

12 having a conversation about how a tip or a lead would be passed.

13 Q Do you know if the communications, the Teleporter communications,

14 whether the FBI retains any records of them?

15 A So my understanding is that if something is being sent via Teleporter, the 16 documentation of both what is being sent and the means by which it was sent would also

17 get serialized in Sentinel.

18 [redacted] Can we go off the record, please?

19 [Recess.]

20 [redacted] We can go on the record, please.

21 Good afternoon, Ms. Dehmlow.

22 Do you want me to wait for the DOJ?

23 [redacted] Yeah.

24 [redacted] Sorry. We can go off the record.

25 [Recess.]

1 [redacted] Okay. We're back on the record, please. It is 2:06 p.m.

2 BY [redacted]

3 Q Good afternoon again, Ms. Dehmlow.

4 The last time we spoke I was asking you a series of questions about what I deemed

5 strategic information sharing with the private sector and other partners of the FBI.

6 Do you recall those questions?

7 A I do.

8 Q Okay. And we were getting into the atmosphere leading up to the 2020

9 Presidential election and the fears that the FBI and the IC community continued to have

10 about the potential for Russia or other foreign state actors to interfere in the upcoming

11 2020 election.

12 Do you recall those questions?

13 A I do.

14 Q Okay. So I want to introduce exhibit No. 17 -- sorry -- 12. It's a New York

15 Times article dated January 13th, 2020, and updated October 19th, 2020.

16 A Okay.

17 [Dehmlow Exhibit No. 12

18 Was marked for identification.]

19 BY [redacted]

20 Q And the article is entitled, quote, "Russians Hacked Ukrainian Gas Company

21 at Center of Impeachment," unquote.

22 A Okay.

23 Q Do you see the article in front of you?

24 A I do.

25 Q And have you read that article?

1 A I have not.

2 Q Would you just take a quick minute or so and look at it? You don't need to

3 be looking at every word but just to see what the article is saying.

4 A Okay.

5 [Pause.]

6 A Okay.

7 Q Have you had enough time to look at it?

8 A I have.

9 Q Okay. Is it fair to say that the article states that the GRU, the Russian

10 Intelligence Directorate, used phishing emails to target Burisma and gain access to their 11 computer systems?

12 A I am not sure it specifically articulates that they gained access, but they were

13 targeting Burisma. But I haven't read every word, so --

14 Q All right. If you could -- I guess it's one, two, three, four -- look at 15 paragraph 5.

16 A Okay.

17 Q It begins, "Then, as now." Do you see that paragraph?

18 A I do.

19 Q That article then states, "Then, as now, the Russian hackers from the military

20 intelligence unit known formerly as the GRU, and to private researchers by the alias

21 'Fancy Bear,' used so-called phishing emails that appear designed to steal usernames and

22 passwords, according to Area 1, the Silicon Valley security firm that detected the hacking.

23 "In this instance, the hackers set up fake websites that mimicked sign-in pages of 24 Burisma subsidiaries and have been blasting Burisma employees with emails meant to 25 look like they are coming from inside the company."

1 And then, continuing beyond the image, "The hackers fooled some of them into
2 handing over their login credentials, and managed to get inside one of Burisma's servers,
3 Area 1 said."
4 A Okay. Yes.
5 Q So is it fair to say, then, that according to this reporting, the GRU successfully
6 hacked into Burisma's system before the 2020 election?
7 A Yes.
8 Q Do you know anything about the GRU in your professional experience?
9 A I don't. I'm primarily a China hand by trade, so I know very little other than 10 they are behind some of the advanced specific threats that the Russia cyber community
11 follows.
12 Q And they're a part of the Russian --
13 A The Russian Intelligence Services, yes.
14 Q Okay. Were you aware of this reporting, the idea that Burisma had been 15 hacked by the GRU before the 2020 election?
16 A I was not.
17 [redacted] I will set that aside.
18 And I'm going to mark as exhibit No. 13 a September 10th, 2020, Treasury
19 Department press release.
20 I will wait for you to see it.
21 [Dehmlow Exhibit No. 13
22 Was marked for identification.]
23 BY [redacted]
24 Q So there was a press release from the U.S. Department of Treasury. Here
25 exhibit 13 is titled "Treasury Sanctions Russia-Linked Election Interference Actors." And

1 the date is September 10th, 2020.

2 Do you see that?

3 A I do.

4 Q The press release states in relevant part, "Treasury designated Andrii

5 Derkach pursuant to Executive Order 13848 for his efforts to influence the 2020 U.S.

6 presidential election. Derkach, a Member of the Ukrainian Parliament, has been an

7 active Russian agent for over a decade, maintaining close connections with the Russian

8 Intelligence Services. Derkach has directly or indirectly engaged in, sponsored,

9 concealed, or otherwise been complicit in foreign interference in an attempt to 10 undermine the upcoming 2020 presidential election."

11 That's the highlighted portion that's in the exhibit before you. Did I read that 12 correctly?

13 A Yes.

14 Q Have you seen this prior to today?

15 A I don't think I've seen this specific press release, but I was aware of the 16 action, yes.

17 Q Okay. And you know who Andrii Derkach is?

18 A I do.

19 Q And who is he, in your experience?

20 A He's another Russian Government-affiliated actor who engaged in covert

21 influence activities targeting the 2020 election.

22 Q Did you know prior to the 2020 election that Treasury had sanctioned him?

23 A I don't specifically recall. Again, I was focused on China at the time.

24 Q Okay.

25 A So I wouldn't have necessarily been tracking.

1 [redacted] You can set that aside.

2 And I'm going to mark as exhibit 14 another news article. This is a Daily Beast

3 article published on October 17th, 2020, entitled: "Rudy: Only '50/50' Chance I

4 Worked With a 'Russian Spy' to Dig Dirt on Bidens and Ukraine."

5 [Dehmlow Exhibit No. 14

6 Was marked for identification.]

7 BY [redacted]

8 Q If you would just take a second to look at that article, please.

9 [Pause.]

10 A Okay.

11 Q I know it's a long article. Have you read this before?

12 A I have not, no.

13 Q Okay. This article reports on an hour-long interview with Mr. Giuliani in

14 which Giuliani said, quote, "He viewed his latest leak to the New York Post," referring to 15 the Biden laptop leak, as, quote, "an extension of his years-long effort to work with

16 Ukrainians to dig up dirt on the Bidens."

17 If you turn to page 5, I'm just going to direct you to his quote there. It's right at

18 the very top of the page. Let me read it again to be clear. This is what he said in an 19 interview with the Daily Beast.

20 He said, "He viewed his latest leak to the New York Post," referring to that article

21 about Hunter Biden's laptop, "as an extension of his years-long efforts to work with

22 Ukrainians to dig up dirt on the Bidens."

23 Did I read that correctly?

24 A Yes.

25 Q Were you aware of this reporting before the 2020 election?

A This specific article? No.

Q Not specifically, but the substance.

A Yes, I was aware that Giuliani was speaking publicly.

Q On the subject of --

A On this topic, yes.

Q Okay. Can you tell me what you were aware of at the time, to the best of your recollection?

A Can I talk to these guys for a second?

Q Sure.

[Recess.]

[redacted] We can go back on the record, please.

BY [redacted]

Q Okay. So we were talking about Andrii Derkach and Rudy Giuliani. You stated that you know who Andrii Derkach is, correct?

A Uh-huh.

Q Did you know that he was an associate of Mr. Giuliani's?

A When?

Q Let me start with before the 2020 election.

A I believe that was in publicly available media reporting, so yes.

Q Okay. What was your understanding of his relationship with Mr. Derkach?

A I guess in the context of me as the FITF China unit chief, there is not a lot I could speak to. I don't recall the details.

Q Okay. And you knew that Mr. Giuliani was the lawyer for the President of the United States at the time, Mr. Trump?

A I did.

1 Q I understand that you can't give us any information from your experience
2 with respect to the Daily Beast article that we talked about, but would it be concerning to
3 you if what Giuliani said was true, that he viewed the leak of the laptop as part of his
4 ongoing work with a foreign country to dig up dirt on a political figure? Is that a
5 concerning activity in your mind?
6 A I don't know. I really want to stay away from opinions about things. Not
7 an investigative equity that I'm familiar with, so I just don't want to speak to it.
8 Q Okay. Do you know who Andriy Telizhenko is?
9 A Yes.
10 [redacted] I'm going to introduce exhibit No. 15.
11 [Dehmlow Exhibit No. 15
12 Was marked for identification.]
13 BY [redacted]
14 Q Okay. This is another U.S. Treasury Department press release, this one
15 dated January 11th, 2021.
16 Have you seen this press release before, Ms. Dehmlow?
17 A I haven't, no.
18 Q Just take a minute to look at it, if you would.
19 A Okay.
20 Q Thank you.
21 I will have you turn to the second page and look at the top of that page. There's 22 a highlighted portion.
23 Do you see that?
24 A I do.
25 Q Okay. At the top of the second page the press release states that

1 Telizhenko, quote, "orchestrated meetings between Derkach and U.S. persons to help
2 propagate false claims concerning corruption in Ukraine," unquote.
3 The press release continues and says that Mr. Telizhenko was sanctioned, quote,
4 "for having directly or indirectly engaged in, sponsored, concealed, or otherwise been
5 complicit in foreign influence in a United States election," end quote.
6 Do you see that?
7 A I do.
8 Q What does that mean, that he was sanctioned for having directly or 9 indirectly engaged in, sponsored, concealed, or otherwise been complicit in foreign 10 influence?
11 A My understanding is that OFAC -- OFAC sanctions essentially prohibit certain 12 business activities, use of banking systems. But, again, I'm not really familiar with this 13 specific sanctions package, so I couldn't speak to -- I would have to refer you to the 14 sanctions package to articulate the specific details there.
15 Q Okay. The language that says "otherwise been complicit in foreign 16 influence in a United States election," does that in any way implicate the work that FITF
17 does generally?
18 A So the Executive Order 13848 is the executive order that the sanctions
19 package is in response to. And, yes, I think I've previously articulated that we contribute 20 to information that goes into that report and contribute intelligence to the sanctions 21 packages.
22 Q And if there had been a finding that Mr. Telizhenko had participated, like, as 23 it says, had directly or indirectly engaged in, sponsored, concealed, or otherwise been 24 complicit in foreign influence in a United States election, that's the kind of foreign actor
25 that FITF is meant to target. Is that right?

1 A That's correct, yes.

2 Q And I apologize if I've asked you this, but did you know who Andriy

3 Telizhenko was in 2020 before the election?

4 A I don't remember when I became aware of Telizhenko. It might have been

5 before. It might have been after. I'm certainly aware now in the context of FITF

6 sanction chief, but at the time I don't remember when I understood him. I was over the 7 China unit at the time.

8 Q Okay. Are you aware that Mr. Giuliani has ties to Mr. Telizhenko?

9 A I would have to again fall back on I'm not sure what's in the public hearing

10 and elsewhere.

11 Q Okay. How about if I said it like this. If he had ties to Mr. Telizhenko or 12 any person who was close to a President of the United States had ties to a person like Mr.

13 Telizhenko who had been complicit in foreign influence in a U.S. election, would that be 14 concerning to you?

15 A Again, I don't want to -- "concerning" is probably the wrong word, and I

16 don't want to -- I can't really speak to ongoing investigative equities or classified material.

17 I would say that -- to fall back on our definition of what's within the scope, and

18 that would be foreign actors or their proxies who are engaging in undeclared criminal

19 coercive or subversive activity.

20 Q By proxy, you mean someone who's working on behalf of a foreign country?

21 A I do.

22 Q Like Mr. Telizhenko in this case?

23 A Yes.

24 Q And you're saying that anybody who is a foreign country or a proxy for a

25 foreign country who's doing the criminal things that you've described at length in this

1 interview that are of interest to FITF, that would concern you?

2 A That may be within the scope of FITF's work, yes.

3 Q Okay. I'm going to move on.

4 Okay. You had a bunch of questions about the Hunter Biden laptop story.

5 Do you recall those questions?

6 A I do.

7 Q And that's referring to a New York Post article that was published on 8 October 14th, 2020?

9 A Okay.

10 Q You may not know the date off the top of your head.

11 A I did not.

12 Q But does that seem about right to you?

13 A It was October, yes.

14 Q Before the election, right?

15 A Before the election.

16 Q Okay. Did you or any other FBI employee, to your knowledge, ask

17 Facebook, Twitter, or any other social media company to limit the distribution of that

18 Hunter Biden story?

19 A No, not to my knowledge. Again, we don't ask for any action.

20 Q And did you or any other FBI employee, to your knowledge, ask any social

21 media company to limit the distribution of any information in any media form about

22 Hunter Biden?

23 A No, not to my knowledge, not about Hunter Biden or any other matter.

24 Q Did you or any other FBI employee, to your knowledge, ask Facebook or any 25 other social media company to change its policies regarding hacked material before the

1 company may have decided to limit distribution of that story on their own?
2 A No. I don't -- I don't recall participating in any conversation where we
3 advocated for a change in terms of service or specific action.
4 Q Are you familiar with allegations that when you said something to the effect
5 of "no comment" when asked about the New York Post story by a social media company
6 employee at one of your industry meetings that your response of "no comment" was 7 used by the social media company as a reason to suppress distribution of those stories?
8 A I'm not aware of any of the reasoning or any of the deliberations that the 9 social media needs to take any action.
10 Q I just mean the allegation. Like, have you ever heard that that's a theory
11 circulating among members of this committee or other people in the media?
12 A Yes, I have seen coverage of that particular theory.
13 Q Okay. So just to be clear, it seems that the theory is you saying "no 14 comment" with respect to this question, which we don't even really know exactly what 15 the question was, but it may have been something like, Is that New York Post story real?
16 Or is the laptop real? Or does it exist, something to that effect, your "no comment"
17 response is what spurred the social media companies to then suppress the story or 18 remove the story?
19 A I'm aware of that allegation.
20 Q Okay. And what's your response to that allegation in your own words?
21 A It doesn't make a lot of sense to me.
22 Q Why is that?
23 A Because it's really typical of us to not comment on ongoing investigative 24 equities. That is not a response that is atypical coming from FBI if they're asking us -- if 25 anyone asks us to comment on things.

1 And just based on my knowledge and experience, I would not expect an
2 enormous, really well-resourced technology company to take my "no comment" as an
3 indication of anything other than I had no comment.
4 Q They've heard you say things like that in the past. Is that correct?
5 A Me and other FBI officials many times.
6 Q And they understand that FBI officials don't comment on ongoing
7 investigations as a matter of policy. Correct?
8 A I believe so, yes.
9 Q And would you be surprised if anyone took that comment as specific
10 information about the Hunter Biden laptop story and not just a statement of FBI policy
11 that is over and over stated when you have an ongoing investigation?
12 A Yeah, I would be surprised.
13 Q Okay.
14 A It certainly wasn't intended to convey anything other than we have no
15 comment.
16 Q Right. And fair to say that you didn't mean anything further by it with 17 respect to the laptop?
18 A No. I was just following guidance I had received regarding an ongoing 19 investigative equity.
20 Q Okay. I think that you've made this clear, but at the time -- you didn't know 21 when the New York Post article came out. Is that right?
22 A No.
23 Q Do you recall if you even -- when you heard about it in relation to the "no 24 comment," whether it was before you said that or after? Do you even know that?
25 A I really don't remember.

1 Q Okay.

2 A I pretty regularly fail to turn the television on in my office, so --

3 Q Okay. Or read the New York Post?

4 A Yeah. I'm on different systems, so, yeah, I don't --

5 Q Okay. Are you aware that Twitter initially paused distribution of the New

6 York Post story after it came out on October 14th and that it then allowed the story to be

7 freely shared within less than 24 hours?

8 A I wasn't aware of it at the time. I'm aware of that now.

9 Q Okay. Is it fair to say you just weren't really following it that closely?

10 A Correct.

11 Q Do you recall whether your comment or your "no comment" came within 12 that 24-hour period when the story was actually suppressed?

13 A I don't remember specifically. It was, I think, within the same week of the 14 story breaking, but I don't remember specifically anything else.

15 Q But you don't even know if it came before the story was then freely shared

16 on Twitter?

17 A I don't.

18 Q Okay. All right. Now, with respect to media companies more broadly, are

19 you aware that the New York Post ran its October story about the Hunter Biden laptop

20 after Mr. Giuliani had approached other news organizations, including FOX News, which 21 turned them down and were not willing to report that story?

22 A I was not really tracking that.

23 [redacted] Okay. I'm going to introduce exhibit No. 16.

24 [Dehmlow Exhibit No. 16

25 Was marked for identification.]

1 BY [redacted]

2 Q Exhibit 16 is a story on mediaite.com. The title is "Fox News Passed on 3 Hunter Biden Laptop Story," dated October 19th, 2020.

4 A Okay.

5 Q Ms. Dehmlow, have you ever seen this before?

6 A No.

7 Q Okay. And you already indicated you were not aware of that reporting?

8 A I wasn't, not that I recall anyway.

9 Q Okay. This article was published on October 19th, 2020, at 11:42 a.m.

10 And according to the story, Mr. Giuliani approached FOX News with the Hunter Biden

11 laptop story before he approached the New York Post, but FOX News declined to run the 12 story.

13 Do you have any reason to doubt this reporting?

14 A No.

15 [redacted] Okay. I also want to introduce for the record exhibit No. 17.

16 [Dehmlow Exhibit No. 17

17 Was marked for identification.]

18 BY [redacted]

19 Q Okay. This is another news article, October 15th, 2020. It's entitled "Bret

20 Baier Calls Out Dubious Sourcing of Alleged Hunter Biden Emails: Let's 'Not Sugarcoat It, 21 This Whole Thing is Sketchy,'" unquote.

22 Do you see this article?

23 A I do.

24 Q Have you ever read this article?

25 A I have not.

1 Q And are you aware of the reporting?
2 A I was not.
3 Q Are you familiar with who Bret Baier is?
4 A FOX News anchor?
5 Q Very good. That's right.
6 If you would look at the second-to-the-last paragraph of the story, which is still on 7 the first page, second-to-the-last paragraph, Baier said about the laptop story, quote,
8 "Let's say, just not sugarcoat it. The whole thing is sketchy," unquote. And then he 9 continues, "You couldn't write this script in 19 days from an election," unquote.
10 Did I read that correctly from the article?
11 A You did.
12 Q To your knowledge, have you or anyone else at the FBI ever been accused of 13 asking FOX News to suppress the Hunter Biden laptop story?
14 A Not that I'm aware of.
15 Q Is it fair to say that, as far as you know, FOX News' decision not to run the 16 story was made by FOX News alone and was not influenced by any outside pressure from 17 the FBI or any other U.S. government agencies?
18 A I have no reason to doubt that characterization.
19 Q Okay. And you can set that aside.
20 A Okay.
21 Q I want to talk a little bit more about foreign influence in the 2020 election,
22 now post-election.
23 There is evidence, fair to say, that Russia actually did successfully interfere, to 24 some degree, in the 2020 election. Is that correct?
25 A Yes.

1 Q And what's your understanding of that as we sit here, that influence?

2 A I refer for more specifics to the declassified intelligence community

3 assessment that was released in early 2021, but largely there was indications that the 4 Russian Government both used proxies to pass unsubstantiated narratives into the U.S.

5 electoral space, as well as using some of the other techniques that we've talked about

6 previously, like using IRA, Internet Research Agency, to amplify its divisive social issues

7 online inauthentically.

8 Q Because you mentioned it, I'm going to mark for exhibit 18 that report.

9 [Dehmlow Exhibit No. 18

10 Was marked for identification.]

11 BY [redacted]

12 Q It's January 7th, 2021, the Intelligence Community Assessment from the 13 National Intelligence Council.

14 Is this the report that you were referring to?

15 A It was.

16 Q Okay. And this is a nonclassified version that was published March 10th, 17 2021?

18 A Yes.

19 Q I suppose, is it fair to say, that the January 7th, 2021, version was the 20 classified version that you and others may have been aware of at the time?

21 A That's my recollection, yes.

22 Q And this version came out a little bit later in March?

23 A Yes.

24 Q You mentioned in your description before you even looked at the exhibit

25 that the conclusion of the intelligence community was that Russia had, for example, used

1 proxies to influence the American population, again, with respect to the election. Is that
2 right?
3 A Yes.
4 Q Can you tell us anything more about that, I mean, within the unclassified
5 space here?
6 A I really can't without getting into more classified details. I'd have to be very 7 careful.
8 Q Okay. And, again, when you said proxies, you're just talking about people
9 who are working on behalf of the foreign governments?
10 A Correct.
11 Q And in this case are they talking specifically about Russia?
12 A Let me go back to the document.
13 Yes, yeah.
14 Q Okay.
15 A This was about Russia. It's a key judgment, key judgment about Russia.
16 Q So key judgment number 2, correct?
17 A Yes.
18 Q And that's on page Roman numeral i of the exhibit?
19 A Yes.
20 Q Would you mind reading that paragraph that says key judgment number 2?
21 A Sure.
22 Q Thank you.
23 A "Key Judgment 2: We assess that Russian President Putin authorized, and a 24 range of Russian government organizations conducted, influence operations aimed at 25 denigrating President Biden's candidacy and the Democratic Party, supporting former

1 President Trump, undermining public confidence in the electoral process, and
2 exacerbating sociopolitical divisions in the United States" -- "in the U.S."
3 "Unlike in 2016, we did not see persistent Russian cyber efforts to gain access to 4 election infrastructure. We have high confidence in our assessment; Russian state and
5 proxy actors who all serve the Kremlin's interests worked to affect public perception in a 6 consistent manner.
7 "A key element of Moscow's strategy this election cycle was the use of proxies
8 linked to Russian intelligence to push influence narratives -- including misleading or 9 unsubstantiated allegations against President Biden -- to U.S. media organizations, U.S.
10 officials, and prominent U.S. individuals, including some close to former President Trump
11 and his administration."
12 Q Okay. Is this consistent with the type of concern about Russian 13 interference that law enforcement agencies and intelligence agencies like the FBI held 14 before the 2020 election?
15 A Yes.
16 Q And based on the Treasury Department sanctions we discussed earlier, do
17 you believe that Andrii Derkach and Andriy Telizhenko were Russian intelligence proxies
18 pushing influence narratives?
19 A I think that at least Derkach is further identified later on in this document as 20 one of those actors.
21 Q Okay. And do you know if Mr. Telizhenko was as well?
22 A I don't recall, although the sanctions package that you referred to earlier
23 would probably outline some of that.
24 Q Okay. Do you believe Russian information operations pose a threat to 25 American democracy?

1 A I do.

2 Q And why is that?

3 A The Russians know our system and our rules very, very well. I am

4 sometimes asked to compare and contrast what I think is a greater threat, Russia or

5 China. And I don't rack and stack those things, but I will say that Russian Intelligence

6 and Security Services knows our system of government, knows our laws really, really well.

7 They know where to exert pressure to influence and undermine the integrity of our

8 democratic processes.

9 Again, as I think I've articulated today, it's really important that the intelligence

10 community -- the FBI is part of that intelligence community -- seeks to understand how 11 those levers are being pressed and disrupt it where we can.

12 Q Do you agree that making sure Americans know about Russian efforts to 13 interfere in our election plays an important role in countering that interference?

14 A Yeah. I think that part of the reason that -- the reason that there's an

15 unclassified version of this document, for example, is because it's required under the

16 NDAA. That's not an original part of the EO. And I think in many, many instances, in

17 most instances, the more we can be transparent about the work that we're doing and the

18 threats that we are facing, the better off we will be, because, again, we're building

19 collective defenses and understanding how people -- how adversaries are targeting us.

20 Q So you're saying that the unclassified version of this was a result of the 21 NDAA?

22 A Yes.

23 Q Can you explain a little bit more about that?

24 A Yeah. The EO doesn't articulate an unclassified version of this, but it's my

25 understanding that somebody, I'm sure -- maybe within Congress -- somebody could

1 actually give us a timeline.

2 But after the EO was signed one of the NDAAs requested that an unclassified

3 version be made available to the public to the fullest extent possible.

4 So we have done this in every election cycle since, I think, 2018.

5 Q And you understand that the purpose of making this available to people is so

6 that Americans do better understand the threat, correct?

7 A Yes.

8 Q Because that helps preserve our national security, right?

9 A Yes. And I hope that it also helps confirm the ongoing integrity of our 10 election security and election process.

11 Q To give people faith in the process?

12 A Yes.

13 Q All right. There's some who claim it does not matter whether information

14 is true or false or where it comes from. Again, with that Rudy Giuliani article, the Daily

15 Beast article, in that Mr. Giuliani was quoted as saying, if that information was linked to

16 Russian intelligence that had been hacked," he said, quote, "It wouldn't matter. What's

17 the difference?" Meaning he would use the information regardless of whether Russians

18 were placing it there for him or not.

19 What's your feeling about that view that he expressed, that it really shouldn't 20 matter where the information comes from, whether it's foreign or not?

21 A Well, I don't want to speak to Mr. Giuliani's perspective about this. What I

22 would articulate from a Federal law enforcement perspective is that there are Federal

23 violations of law associated with accessing materials, accessing information through cyber

24 means. So that would be an investigative concern from us.

25 I'd also, again, articulate that part of the FITF's mission is to understand that

1 explicit threat space, so foreign actors, foreign cyber actors targeting information that 2 they can release or use in other nefarious ways, not just as hack and dumps, but for
3 blackmail, for example.
4 Q I'm going to turn to another subject here.
5 In the previous hour you were asked questions about the civil lawsuit Missouri v.
6 Biden and the preliminary injunction that was in place for, I guess it was about a week
7 and a half, involving FBI -- actually, you personally and the FBI as an agency and some of 8 their contacts with the private sector.
9 Do you recall those questions?
10 A Yes.
11 [redacted] I'm going to mark the injunction actually as an exhibit, the 12 judgment, 19, exhibit 19.
13 [Dehmlow Exhibit No. 19
14 Was marked for identification.]
15 BY [redacted]
16 Q So for the record, on July 4th, 2023, Judge Terry
17 Doughty -- D-o-u-g-h-t-y -- of the U.S. District Court for the Western District of Louisiana
18 granted a preliminary injunction in the case of Missouri v. Biden, Case No. 3:22-CV-01213.
19 And are you familiar with Mr. -- or, sorry, Judge Doughty's order?
20 A I am.
21 Q Do you understand it to prohibit any contact that FITF or the FBI had 22 undertaken in past interactions with social media companies?
23 A I can't speak to engagements in the past. I can say that in between the 24 time when the injunction was ordered and the stay from last Friday that FITF did not 25 engage with any contact with social media companies. That was a deliberative and

1 ongoing process inside the building to understand the rules of the road.

2 Q Could you just flip to page 4, if you would. This is the actual prescription

3 from the preliminary injunction. It's, like, numbered paragraphs which specifically

4 identify certain types of conduct that the FBI and other agencies are not allowed to 5 engage in under the injunction.

6 Do you see that on page 4?

7 A I do.

8 Q So there's 1 through 10 paragraphs.

9 A Uh-huh.

10 Q And you'll notice, if you read it carefully, that the same verbs are used

11 repeatedly. So I'm just going to kind of go through this quickly so that it's clear for the 12 record.

13 The list reads, paragraph 1, meeting with social media companies for the purpose

14 of, quote, "urging, encouraging, pressuring, or inducing in any manner the removal,

15 deletion, suppression, or reduction of content containing protected free speech posted

16 on social-media platforms."

17 And then if you go down, paragraph 2, paragraph 3, paragraph 4, paragraphs 5, 6,

18 and 7, what he is prohibiting in each of those paragraphs is, quote, "urging, encouraging,

19 pressuring, or inducing," unquote, and then there's certain types of things that you're not

20 allowed to, quote, "urge, encourage, pressure, or induce."

21 So my question is, in your experience with the FBI, especially with FITF -- excuse

22 me -- just focusing on that, have you ever had FITF employees or yourself, have you ever

23 engaged in, quote, "urging, encouraging, pressuring, or inducing," unquote, social media

24 companies to take any particular action with respect to content on their platforms?

25 [redacted] So, Counsel, I just want to be careful.

1 [redacted] Yes.

2 [redacted] Obviously, there's ongoing litigation here, Right?

3 [redacted] Yes.

4 [redacted] And the Department's general practice is to speak through its file.

5 [redacted] Okay.

6 [redacted] So I know that the department has filed an application to stay this,

7 right?

8 [redacted] Yes.

9 [redacted] And so the Department is on record with the court interpreting the 10 provisions of this PI. So I just want to be careful --

11 [redacted] Yes.

12 [redacted] -- as you ask questions here. Obviously, she's got experience she

13 can share. I just don't want to, you know, get crosswise with ongoing litigation and, you

14 know, assert the formal back and forth between the parties and the court about the 15 substance of the injunction.

16 [redacted] Okay.

17 BY [redacted]

18 Q Well, I won't read from the injunction.

19 But has the FBI ever urged a social media company to remove content from its 20 platform?

21 A No.

22 Q Has it ever induced a social media company to remove content from its

23 platform?

24 A To the best of my knowledge, FITF has not, no.

25 Q Has it ever pressured a social media company to remove content from its

1 platform?

2 A Not to the best of my knowledge, in the context of FITF, no.

3 Q Has it ever encouraged a social media company to remove content from its

4 platform?

5 A In the context of the FITF, not to the best of my knowledge.

6 Q Okay.

7 A We've got -- if I could expand on that a little bit.

8 Q Sure.

9 A Just the rules of the road for the FITF. I think I've articulated several times

10 today, but I will repeat it once more for the record, we never ask for action once -- when

11 we share this information. We're providing it so the platforms can take action as they

12 see fit, as they see fit.

13 And I'd also articulate there are many provisions in the DIOGs, the Attorney

14 General Guidelines for Domestic Operations, and, as I mentioned, the Justice Manual,

15 articulating specifically our authorities for investigating foreign actor activity and 16 prohibitions on conducting activity, investigative activities, solely based on free speech.

17 Q Okay. I'm going to move on from that. I think that you've made that 18 clear.

19 Okay. So the investigation that this committee is focusing on here with respect

20 to the FITF and other government agencies and your interaction with social media

21 companies, it has kind of given rise to these allegations, sort of like the one I paraphrased

22 to you earlier, like focusing on an action like you saying "no comment" about the Hunter

23 Biden story, and then turn that into sort of a conspiracy theory about interactions with

24 social media companies and you trying with a heavy hand to keep them from passing on 25 certain information.

1 Can you give us your response to that type of allegation? Is the FBI or you,
2 anyone you know in the FBI, engaged in that kind of effort to conspire with social media
3 companies to suppress certain types of information with respect to their content and 4 keep it from the American people?
5 A Not to the best of my knowledge.
6 Q And what are you engaged in trying to do with your role at FITF?
7 A We are focused on identifying foreign actors and their activities and looking 8 to mitigate the means by which these foreign actors are trying to undermine democratic 9 processes and privileges.
10 [redacted] Okay. I'm going to introduce another exhibit, 20, exhibit No. 20.
11 [Dehmlow Exhibit No. 20
12 Was marked for identification.]
13 BY [redacted]
14 Q This is an FBI, Department of Homeland Security Joint Intelligence Bulletin
15 from August 12th, 2022. This bulletin warns of an increase in violent threats and acts of 16 violence against Federal law enforcement officials.
17 Do you have that in front of you?
18 A I do.
19 Q And have you seen this bulletin before?
20 A I have.
21 Q On page 2 the bulletin details a threat to place a dirty bomb in front of FBI
22 headquarters and an incident in which an individual armed with an AR-15-style rifle and 23 nail gun attempted to force his way into an FBI field office in Cincinnati.
24 At the top of page 3, the threat bulletin states, quote, "A subsequent review
25 of" -- the attacker's -- "device and online postings identified his likely ideologically driven,

1 personal anti-FBI beliefs."

2 Are you familiar with that incident?

3 A I am.

1 [2:50 p.m.]

2 BY [redacted]

3 Q Okay. What is your experience as an FBI member in terms of this escalating 4 threat environment that's going on right now?

5 A So I received harassing mail at my home. There have been several

6 instances where my name and these allegations against me have inspired responses on

7 social media and other platforms that are pretty distasteful. There have been calls in to 8 the FBI, allegations against me. So I am, frankly, scared.

9 Q And when did that start in your personal life?

10 A Immediately after the -- I think initially immediately after the first -- the 11 lawsuit was filed, and I was added to the list of defendants and, again, when the Twitter

12 Files named me.

13 Q When the Twitter Files named you?

14 A Yeah.

15 Q Okay. And you -- when was -- when the lawsuit was filed, that was over a 16 year ago. Correct?

17 A Uh-huh.

18 Q Is that right?

19 A I don't actually -- sorry. Time has no meaning.

20 Q I'll just take that --

21 A Sometimes in 2020 -- 2022. Sorry.

22 Q I'm look for your experience with these questions, not so much --

23 A Yeah.

24 Q -- the lawsuit.

25 A Yeah.

1 Q Have you -- you've been with the FBI since 2007. Right?
2 A Uh-huh.
3 Q Had you ever had those kind of personal threats directed at you before this
4 lawsuit was filed?
5 A Never.
6 Q And before these allegations about you being partisan or suppressing
7 conservative speech arose in the public?
8 A No.
9 Q I don't want to ask you too many personal questions, and, obviously, you can 10 just say no. But has this made you concerned for your personal safety?
11 A It has.
12 Q What about your family?
13 A Yes. I've got a large and extended family across the country, and they 14 know very little about my work. I've been a career counterintelligence professional.
15 I'm able to take some steps because of the nature of my work to feel more comfortable
16 about all of this, but I worry about my parents, my siblings, my young nieces and 17 nephews.
18 Q Did anyone from the Missouri v. Biden litigation ever approach you and 19 ask you for clarification or any statement on -- from your perspective as to what your role
20 was?
21 A Not that I recall, not so far.
22 Q Okay. Has anyone from this committee ever expressed any concern for 23 your safety, given the allegations that are flying around about -- of what you may have 24 done?
25 A No, ma'am.

Q Do you have any other concerns that you'd like to share with the committee today?

A No. I think you've covered it.

[redacted] I have no further questions right now.

[Recess.]

[redacted] Can we go back on the record, please.

This will be exhibit 21.

[Dehmlow Exhibit No. 21

Was marked for identification.]

BY [redacted]

Q Do you recognize this meeting invite?

A I don't remember the -- recognize this specific one but I understand it to be one of the invites for a FITF meeting with Facebook in 2020.

Q It's the second email down on that first page --

A Okay.

Q -- regarding the agenda. "AGENDA" in all caps. And then there's looks like Russia, China, Global status which appears to mirror the Russia, China, Global units of FITF.

A Uh-huh.

Q Then the final section says "planning for U.S. elections."

A Uh-huh.

Q And then there's three bullet points: FBI posture, your posture, information sharing channels and methods.

Do you recall what the planning for U.S. elections was discussed during FITF meetings?

1 A I don't remember the specific context, but I know what our posture was.
2 Q Okay. What was the FBI's posture?
3 A We were planning on setting up a 24-hour command post -- I think I
4 referenced that a little bit earlier -- with three shifts. That was a command post that
5 included Counterintelligence Division FITF personnel, Criminal Investigative Division
6 personnel, Cyber Division personnel, and Counterintelligence personnel.
7 Q Do you recall if Facebook shared its posture?
8 A I don't recall. It was too long ago.
9 Q Do you recall the posture of any of the other social media companies around
10 this time period?
11 A Not with any specificity. They would have told us essentially whether they 12 were going to be having 24-hour coverage, et cetera. But I don't remember the details.
13 Q Do you remember at a high level what sort of steps they were taking, "they"
14 being the social media companies?
15 A At a high level, they were just ensuring that they had personnel who were 16 ready to receive information if we needed to pass it to them.
17 Q And then the third bullet point says "information sharing channels and 18 methods."
19 Do you recall discussing information sharing channels and methods?
20 A I don't recall the specificity of the discussion. In August, that might have 21 been the time we were talking about setting up the Signal chat.
22 Q And, in the previous hour, we went through a few. There was obviously 23 the meetings themselves, emails, phone calls, the Signal channel --
24 A Uh-huh.
25 Q -- and the teleporter links.

A Uh-huh.

Q Are there any other information channels that you're aware of?

A Not that I'm aware of. Not that I can recall with any specificity.

Q So you mentioned, again, that there were kind of these two buckets of information. The first one is strategic or product information that would be discussed in both USG industry part of the meetings, as well as the FITF bilateral meetings. And then more tactical information that was shared, specifically it sounds like in the bilateral --

A Uh-huh.

Q -- meetings.

A Uh-huh.

Q In that latter bucket, would that include, when the there were concerns about foreign adversaries and inauthentic accounts and specific to a particular platform, would FITF be communicating specific accounts or posts for the social media platforms?

A I would say that the majority of what we were passing at the time and continue to pass would be details about how the accounts were set up or how the accounts were -- were specifically -- how the individuals were specifically accessing the platform to set up the messaging. But it could have included account lists that we had high confidence were attributed to a foreign actor.

Q Did you ever play a role in preparing those account lists?

A I did not.

Q Do you know who at the FBI played a role in preparing those account lists?

A It would have been personnel in the units. And, again, as I -- I think I previously articulated, a lot of this information was coming from [redacted]. So they would have prepared a list and then passed it to us.

Q Okay. And who else in the government would prepare lists to send to the

1 FBI?

2 A I don't think I can speak to broader intelligence community partners in this

3 setting.

4 Q Who at the FBI would play a role in compiling these lists?

5 A Personnel in FITF units, if it was based on FBI information, which it very 6 rarely is.

7 Q If it's not from the FBI but it's being transmitted --

8 A Uh-huh.

9 Q -- through -- let me take one step back.

10 Was it your understanding was Elvis Chan the agent that most frequently

11 communicated these kinds of account lists to the social media companies?

12 A I don't think can I characterize it as most frequently. I know that he was 13 one of the individuals who passed information.

14 Q Okay. We'll use Agent Chan then as an example.

15 If the information was coming from outside the FBI, does the information get sent 16 first to FITF and then to Agent Chan or directly to Agent Chan?

17 A In the context of foreign malign influence operations, yes, it would come

18 through FITF to the San Francisco Field Office or another field office if the company was in 19 a different AOR.

20 Q And it is just the nature of your role or in your background or your unit?

21 Why were you not involved with compiling the account lists?

22 A I was in a leadership and managerial position. So this would be sort of a

23 step from the program management perspective. So, in working level line analysts, our 24 agents would have been responsible for preparing that information.

25 Q And, in 2020, you said there were about [redacted] people responsible for FITF? Or

1 did I mix up the timeline?

2 A I don't know when we got to that point. Since I've become the section

3 chief, it's been about static. But we had a really varying level of staffing throughout

4 2019 and 2020 as the FITF was standing up. So I can't speak specifically to how many

5 people we had at the time.

6 Q But there were quite a number of people who served as more line analysts

7 roles compared --

8 A There were many individuals working different aspects of the threat. I

9 wouldn't characterize all [redacted] of those people being engaged in this type of activity.

10 Q When an account list is being prepared, is it signed off on by the unit chief or 11 the section chief?

12 A At the time I don't recall. At this point, it is signed off at the unit chief level.

13 Q At the unit chief level?

14 A Yes.

15 [redacted] When was that change made?

16 Ms. Dehmlow. I don't know. I don't recall.

17 [redacted] What prompted the change in the policy?

18 Ms. Dehmlow. We're consistently looking for ways to just make our

19 con -- process more persistent and consistent. And, to the best of my recollection, 20 we're -- we just wanted to ensure we were doing it the same way across all three units.

21 BY [redacted]

22 Q Did this change occur after you became section chief?

23 A I don't think so, but, again, I really couldn't -- I can't recall. Been doing it

24 that way for a while as far as I can remember.

25 Q Prior to the 2020 election?

1 A I don't -- again, I don't remember.

2 Q Before this change was made, would the line analysts communicate directly

3 to Agent Chan or whoever the equivalent would be with the list of accounts?

4 A The information was -- is documented. These sorts of Terra (ph) lines are

5 documented in Sentinel. So it would have gone through our case management systems

6 with leads sent to San Francisco or, again, another field office if the company we wanted

7 to talk to or needed to pass information to was in a different AOR.

8 Q Do you know how frequently the FBI was sending lists of accounts to the 9 social media companies?

10 A I wouldn't want to characterize. It would be speculation.

11 Q Agent Chan testified that it was sometimes up to five times a month in the 12 lead-up to the 2020 election.

13 A Okay.

14 Q Is that inconsistent with anything you're aware of?

15 A Again, I was the FITF China unit chief, and we passed very few Terra (ph)

16 lines in the context of the 2020 elections. So I couldn't characterize the whole section's

17 work.

18 Q To your knowledge, compared to the China unit, did the Russia units send 19 more account lists?

20 A That was my perception. But, again, I wouldn't want to characterize it with 21 any specificity because I don't recall. I don't have the details in front of me.

22 Q What about with respect to the Global unit?

23 A Yeah, I mean, I think [redacted] was likely the most frequent drafter of Terra (ph)

24 lines.

25 Q Do you have a ballpark sense of how many account might be in the list of

1 accounts that's sent to the social media companies?

2 A I don't. Today it varies. I assume it's pretty typical of what it was then.

3 Q And what is it today?

4 A Anywhere from a few to several dozen to hundreds, depending on the 5 nature of the information, the nature of the collection.

6 Q Today how frequently are these lists sent to the social media companies?

7 A Well, again, in the context of the injunction, we have not passed anything

8 since the injunction or since the stay on Friday. Prior to that, yeah, I -- I don't sign off on 9 all of them. So I wouldn't articulate a number. It'd be complete conjecture.

10 Q How many do you sign off on?

11 A I don't sign off on them as a section chief. It's at the unit chief level

12 currently.

13 Q And I think we may have covered this in the first hour. But are there any 14 names of the Russia, China, Global unit that you can give us today?

15 A I can't.

16 BY [redacted]

17 Q How regularly do you meet with your units chiefs?

18 A Daily. I've got a daily stand up with the exception of Mondays, but I usually 19 see them on Mondays anyway.

20 Q Do interactions with social media companies ever come up on the daily

21 meetings?

22 A We usually talk about whether meetings are scheduled, but I don't often get 23 specifics about what's going to be passed or what specifics we've got.

24 Q And so how would the unit chiefs characterize this information to you?

25 A The same way that I've characterized it, I think, throughout the day. We

1 have actor-specific information, activity-specific information that we're passing.

2 Q And how does the FITF become aware that actors are behind certain

3 accounts?

4 A Most of that I can't get into because the information would be classified

5 specifics, but it's because we've got information or more sources that give us that insight.

6 Q And then how do you pass that information along to the social media

7 companies without the classification issue?

8 A We covered this a little bit this morning. But the [redacted]

9 would go through a downgrade process and take out sensitive material through their own

10 rules and processes associated with that and then pass us a Terra (ph) line that's 11 specifically made for that purpose at the upper classification level.

12 Q And so, once the FITF puts this information into the Sentinel system and the

13 leads are sent out to field offices, whether it be San Francisco Field Office or other field

14 offices across the country --

15 A Uh-huh.

16 Q -- what's FITF's involvement after the leads are sent out?

17 A If we are -- we usually cover the content during the meetings --

18 Q Uh-huh.

19 A -- the bilateral conversation that we have. So we'll talk it, ensure that they 20 have received the information from the lead, and answer any questions, if we can.

21 There's often not much more that we can share because, again, we're beholden to 22 [redacted]'s information and details.

23 Q Is there any engagement between the FITF line agent or analyst and the field

24 office agent or analyst who's handling the lead?

25 A Again, only in the -- to the best of my knowledge, it's usually in the context

1 of us articulating information from the lead in the meeting that that field office is usually
2 responsible to set up --
3 Q Uh-huh.
4 A -- for setting up.
5 Q There's no back and forth between the agent on FITF that's responsible for 6 the lead and the field office agent?
7 A Again, I'm not cc'd on that information. There might be, but I -- I'm not 8 sure what you're -- what you're asking me to characterize.
9 [redacted] Okay.
10 BY [redacted]
11 Q You mentioned that sometimes content will be discussed in these bilateral --
12 A Uh-huh.
13 Q -- FITF meetings.
14 A Uh-huh.
15 Q Do you recall any instances where the social media companies flagged that 16 they were less confident than the FBI that these account were foreign in nature?
17 A Certainly there are -- there have been some instances where they've 18 responded and said: You know, based on what we have access to on our platforms, we 19 can't confirm this. You know, the insight that we're getting is based off of something 20 different than the platform access.
21 So there have been certainly -- there have certainly been instances where they 22 have articulated to us they can't specifically say with as much certainty as we are that this
23 is a specific Russian actor, for example.
24 Q And how frequently does that occur?
25 A I couldn't begin to characterize it.

1 Q Is that more than once per year?
2 A I don't know because the -- yeah, I don't know.
3 Q Do you recall if one social media platform -- platform more frequently
4 disagreed with the FBI's findings?
5 A Again, I would -- I would push back on that characterization. I reject the 6 characterization as disagreed. It's that they cannot confirm what the level of certainty
7 that we have because they don't have access to the sources and methods that we do.
8 So not disagreeing with the characterization but not being able to confirm it based on the 9 information they have.
10 Q Okay. With respect to not being able to confirm based off the information
11 they have, do you recall any of the social media platforms raising this more frequently
12 than the others during the bilateral FITF?
13 A I don't. I can't really recall how often we've done this. So it would be 14 pure speculation.
15 Q Is it --
16 A Characterize that specific component part of something, I can't characterize
17 as a whole.
18 Q How frequently are these discussions occurring in the FITF meetings?
19 A Which FITF meetings? The --
20 Q Excuse me. With respect to the bilateral --
21 A Yes.
22 Q -- FITF meetings, how frequently is there a discussion with respect to,
23 whether it's unable to confirm or just in general, with respect to account lists that have 24 been sent to the social media platform?
25 A It's the purpose of our bilateral engagement. So some conversation about

1 this specifically is usually what takes place during those bilateral engagements.
2 Q And during these bilateral engagements, does the FBI ask if any action was
3 taken?
4 A Occasionally, yes. The really critical part of the FBI's role in this space and
5 why the FBI has essentially this role is that we are able to issue legal process to 6 understand from the platforms more information about these foreign attributed account
7 and their behavior on platform.
8 So we'll ask for more information in the context of a field office potentially issuing 9 legal process on those accounts, the issuing the legal process to those platforms on those 10 accounts or on the details that we've shared.
11 Q Has the FBI ever asked twice for the same account to be taken down?
12 A I don't know.
13 Q Has the FBI ever followed up on a previous request to have an account or 14 post taken down?
15 A So we don't ask or request people -- accounts be taken down. Just 16 reiterate. That goes to your earlier question, too. So, to clarify, we don't request
17 information removal or don't request account details. We're informing them so they 18 can take action as they see fit.
19 Q After you have informed, the FBI have informed the social media platforms
20 about an account or about a post, does the FBI follow up with respect to a specific 21 account or a specific post?
22 A We'll follow up on the Terra (ph) lines in the context that I articulated, that I
23 spoke about previously. So we may issue legal process because we've got foreign-actor 24 attributed activity and that legal process where we have to demonstrate cause and we 25 have to demonstrate knowledge and confidence in our sourcing to get further information about that actor's behavior on platform.

Q So, other than the purpose for this legal process you just outlined --

A Uh-huh.

Q -- has the FBI ever followed up with respect to an account or a post that the FBI has flagged for the social media companies?

A I'd, again, maybe reject the characterization we would be following up on a post or an account. We'd be following up on information or leads that we've provided to them and ask if they've got any questions, ask if there's any insight they can provide about that activity, and to inform legal process requests.

Q But, to your knowledge, the information that the FBI is sending to the social media platforms includes the specific accounts or includes specific posts. Is that right?

A I -- to the best of my knowledge, we don't include specific posts because that would not be sort of the tactics or techniques. That would not be the technical indicators of foreignness. We'd be -- we would pass information on accounts that we have attributed to a foreign actor.

Q Okay. Including who the accounts are. It's not a high-level [redacted] of the accounts. Is that right?

A Correct, yeah.

BY [redacted]

Q And, when you're engaging with the social media companies, that, you know, you pass the lead to the San Francisco office, passes that information along to the social media company, the social media company comes back and says that, you know, "We don't have the same level of confidence that the FBI does regarding this account," is that the end of the conversation, or does more engagement occur?

A I would say that's pretty case specific. And, if we've got more details we

1 can share or that we can, again, issue legal process to get more information about those 2 accounts to gain more insight and pass more information, we may do that.
3 But I wouldn't characterize it as one-size-fits-all conversation.
4 Q So, with it being case-specific, has there ever been a time that you can
5 recollect where a social media company came back and said, "We don't -- we, you know,
6 don't agree with the level of confidence that the FBI has regarding this account" and the 7 FBI has come back with additional information?
8 A Again, I wouldn't characterize it as they don't agree. It's they can't confirm.
9 Q Uh-huh.
10 A And I can't think of specific examples where we've gone back and provided --
11 Q Well, you said it was case specific. So I'm just trying to get an 12 understanding of if it's case specific, have there been times where the FBI has engaged 13 further?
14 A Uh-huh.
15 Q Have there been times where the FBI hasn't engaged further?
16 A I think I articulated it. The answer is it is case specific. So a
17 one-size-fits-all answer wouldn't apply here.
18 Q Uh-huh.
19 A So, yes, I would assume there are instances where we have followed back up
20 about a lead, and there are instances where we said, "Okay, we don't have anything 21 further to pass."
22 Q And you can recollect, when the FBI has followed up on a lead, where the 23 social media company does not assess the same level of confidence?
24 A Again, I can't confirm --
25 Q Uh-huh.

1 A -- what -- they can't confirm our level of confidence.

2 Q Uh-huh.

3 A Yes, though, specifics would be beyond what I can share today.

4 [redacted] Uh-huh.

5 BY [redacted]

6 Q You mentioned that a lot of times this information, it sounds like, was

7 presented to the social media companies as this may violate their terms of service. If a

8 social media -- and you said sometimes the social media companies are unable to find the 9 same level of evidence.

10 Do you recall any instances where they had the same level of evidence or

11 understood what the FBI was presenting but concluded it did not violate their terms of 12 service?

13 A Again, we don't routinely follow up to ask what specific actions the platform

14 took. So I wouldn't want to characterize any of those conversations. It's not 15 something we routinely do.

16 [redacted] When you say "routinely," what do you mean by "routinely"?

17 Ms. Dehmlow. So we don't -- it is not a matter of practice, at least in my

18 experience, that we would say, "Did you take that account down, did you do anything

19 with that specific information?"

20 So I guess maybe repeat your question to make sure I'm answering it correctly.

21 BY [redacted]

22 Q Yeah, well, to that end, so do you have a sense of -- I don't know if "success

23 rate" is the right word. But how frequently, once the FBI has flagged an account, do you

24 have a sense of what percentage the social media companies ultimately do take some 25 sort of action against?

1 A I wouldn't want to characterize it. The best insight we have usually is the
2 same insight the public has. And there are reports that at least both Twitter and
3 Facebook -- I'm not sure of the rest of them -- do this, sort of publicize the fact that they
4 took some action on platforms. And they have also historically articulated at least some 5 of that action was informed by FBI information.
6 Q And when you say that "we don't," quoting you, "We don't as routinely
7 follow up with the social media," are you saying, are you referring to you? To FITF? To 8 the FBI as a whole?
9 A To me specifically, that's what I can say with good confidence. But, I think
10 as I articulated earlier, you know, I'm not in -- I've not been in these meetings routinely
11 for the past 2 years.
12 Q To your knowledge, would Agent Chan follow up with the social media
13 companies to see if any action was taken?
14 A I'd have to leave that to Agent Chan to characterize.
15 Q Do you have any knowledge that's inconsistent with that?
16 A Inconsistent with what?
17 Q With the fact, with the statement that Agent Chan would follow up with the 18 social media companies?
19 A He certainly followed up in the context of legal process, like I articulated 20 earlier.
21 Q Agent Chan testified in his deposition in the Missouri v. Biden case -- well, 22 first of all, let me take a step back.
23 Are you familiar with Agent Chan's deposition in that case?
24 A I have. Yes, I'm familiar, reviewed it.
25 Q Okay. Are you familiar with, during that deposition, he recalls throughout

1 2020 discussing with the social media companies their hack-and-leak policies?
2 A Yes, I'm familiar with that.
3 Q Okay. And you earlier said that you don't have any recollection today. Is 4 that -- is that correct?
5 A I think what I hoped that I articulated or that I meant to articulate is that I
6 don't have any specific recollection of those conversations, no.
7 Q Okay. And do you have any recollection of anyone discussing hack and leak
8 either in the FITF bilateral meetings on the USG industry department meetings?
9 A I think I articulated this. But that broad strategic bucket you've talked 10 about, we have, because there is historical evidence and a sort of widely accepted view
11 that Russia used that specific type of operation in the 2016 timeframe, that conversation
12 may have taken place in either the bilateral or the industry-specific meetings. But I
13 don't recall the specific details of all of it.
14 Q Just want to make sure I understand your answer fully. Are you saying that 15 you recall discussions of potential hack and leak and/or recall discussions of 16 hack-and-leak policy with respect to the social media companies in terms of service?
17 A Just the idea that the Russians had historically hack-and-leak operations.
18 Q You testified that you tried to make most of these meetings that you were 19 able to attend?
20 A Uh-huh.
21 Q So, to your recollection, there wasn't a set of meetings that Agent Chan was 22 having? Referring to the bilateral FITF meetings, he's referring to the same set of 23 meetings are you?
24 A To the best of my knowledge, yeah.
25 Q And so it's just a different recollection from --

1 A I don't think it's even a different recollection. It's just that I don't recall
2 with that level of specificity or detail.
3 Q Okay.
4 A Several years ago, and I have a lot of meetings.
5 Q When reviewing his deposition or to the extent that you have any familiarity
6 with it, did you understand him to be saying that the FBI was asking social media
7 companies what their terms of service were?
8 A I'd have to take a look at the deposition because I don't have it in front of 9 me. I don't want to unintentionally misstate something.
10 Q In his deposition, Agent Chan testified something to the effect of he believed 11 information sharing was one of the most important things that the FBI did in combating
12 disinformation.
13 A Uh-huh.
14 Q Is that something you'd agree with?
15 A I think it's something that a lot of people agreed with including, you know,
16 members of the previous and current administrations that information sharing was a
17 critical component part for combating foreign influence operations.
18 Q In Agent Chan's deposition, he discusses the pressure. He discusses that 19 personnel from the social media platforms shared with him the pressure that they felt 20 including political pressure.
21 First, are you familiar with that part of his deposition?
22 A I don't recall it specifically, no.
23 Q Do you recall having any conversations with personnel from the social media
24 companies regarding political pressure that they felt?
25 A No.

1 Q To your recollection, did it ever come up in any meetings with bilateral FITF
2 meetings or the USG industry meetings?
3 A Not that I recall specifically, no.
4 Q In earlier answers, you've discussed how, when the FBI wants to be able to 5 share something with in this case the social media platforms and there's classification
6 concerns, there's kind of two options. It can either be declassified, or it can be 7 down-ranked.
8 A Uh-huh.
9 Q Do you know --
10 A Downgraded.
11 Q I'm sorry?
12 A Downgraded.
13 Q Downgraded. Excuse me. Thank you.
14 A Yeah.
15 Q Do you recall if either of those options were considered as a means in order
16 to be able to share some information with the social media platforms with respect to 17 Hunter Biden's laptop?
18 A Those are investigative equities that were not mine. So I wouldn't be 19 familiar.
20 Q I mean, you've testified you participated in some of the internal discussions
21 then.
22 A The internal discussions about whether we should comment further, and,
23 again, those were not my investigative equities.
24 Q In those internal discussions, specifically the ones taking place after that 25 Twitter bilateral meeting, were any members of the Hunter Biden investigation

1 participating in those discussions?

2 A Not to the best of my knowledge, not to my recollection.

3 Q Prior to those internal discussions taking place, did you know that there was

4 an ongoing investigation involving Hunter Biden?

5 A I did. I think it had been publicly reported at the time.

6 Q During those internal deliberations on -- after the Twitter bilateral meeting --

7 [redacted] These were the ones involving counsel that we talked about earlier

8 today?

9 [redacted] Yes.

10 [redacted] Okay.

11 [redacted] Do you recall if the first agent who answered the question received

12 any reprimand or pushback for delivering that answer?

13 [redacted] If this relates to the discussion we referenced earlier with OGC, I

14 would instruct you not to respond.

15 Ms. Dehmlow. Okay. I can't respond on advice of counsel.

16 BY [redacted]

17 Q Outside of any discussions with counsel, are you aware of that first agent

18 being reprimanded or receiving criticism for delivering an answer?

19 A Not that I'm aware of.

20 Q With the understanding that it's your recollection and this information was

21 relayed to you, when that information was relayed to you, do you have a sense of how

22 quickly the second response, the "no comment" response followed the first answer from

23 the FBI agent?

24 A Can you repeat the question? I'm sorry.

25 Q Sure. With the understanding that your recollection is this was relayed to

1 you as opposed to receiving it directly --

2 A Uh-huh.

3 Q -- the meeting, do you have a sense of how quickly the second agent

4 responded "no comment" following the first agent's answer?

5 A I -- it was quickly, but, again, that's been relayed to me. Again, the

6 characterization of the laptop, it wasn't -- that it was real, it was something to do with

7 whether it existed, not that the contents had been real, that anything that had been

8 reported was real. It was something to the effect of it was the laptop existed.

9 But I believe that the -- if you're asking me, in the meeting that I -- where I earlier

10 articulated that an individual confirmed in some way, shape, or form that the laptop

11 existed, and then somebody else jumped in and said "no further comment," my

12 recollection -- and, again, I think this information was relayed to me, rather than me

13 experiencing it, it was several years back -- is that it was quite quickly after that.

14 Q Do you recall any discussions at the FBI whether there was a degree

15 of -- maybe rephrase that.

16 Do you recall any discussions with anyone in the FBI where someone from the FBI

17 felt uncomfortable that the FBI was unable to comment on the existence of the laptop?

18 [redacted] Just reiterating my previous instruction that, if this relates to

19 discussions you had with OGC related to the laptop, we would instruct you not to 20 respond.

21 Ms. Dehmlow. Okay. No, in either context, I don't recall anyone articulating.

22 Again, I'd reiterate that not commenting on ongoing investigative matters,

23 particularly and especially when that is not an investigative matter that is part of your 24 purview, is really typical. So I don't recall anybody expressing discomfort.

25 BY [redacted]

1 Q When you, when FITF, the FBI shares lists of accounts with the social media
2 companies, in any of those cases where accounts are being shared with the social media
3 companies, does that relate to an ongoing investigation with the FBI?
4 A So it would relate to an investigation into the foreign actors' activities. We
5 don't do investigative activity, and that's the purview of the FITF.
6 Q And by "we," are you referring to FITF or the FBI?
7 A I don't remember when I said "we" in that previous sentence. Apologies.
8 Q That's all right. I'll ask again.
9 The -- who is conducting the investigations into the foreign actors?
10 A Field offices, FBI Field Offices.
11 Q So for the account lists that are being sent --
12 A -- uh-huh.
13 Q -- to the social media platforms --
14 A Uh-huh.
15 Q -- are those account lists involved with investigations being conducted by FBI
16 Field Offices?
17 A So the connection is essentially there's a foreign actor who's conducting
18 foreign malign influence activity. We've got information either based on our reporting 19 or other reporting that indicates how they're doing that.
20 The FBI would have an open investigation into that foreign actor and activities,
21 and that's the vehicle by which we would -- the FBI would issue legal process for 22 follow-on information or followup activity with those platforms after we passed that 23 informational lead.
24 Q But you testified earlier that sometimes you would have to follow up in 25 order to pursue this legal process. So the first time you're communicating with social

1 media, to the social media platforms, is there a legal process element to this, or are you
2 just flagging?
3 A No, it's governed by the provision under the Justice Manual that I
4 early -- that I mentioned earlier, because we're not asking for anything. Legal process is
5 when we're asking for something. So we're not asking for anything when we're passing
6 the information for them to use as they see fit.
7 Q Okay. And so, as you said, you're not asking.
8 A Huh-uh.
9 Q You're just sharing information.
10 A Uh-huh.
11 Q But you're sharing information with respect to accounts that relate to an 12 ongoing FBI investigation. Is that correct?
13 A Yes.
14 Q Okay. So, with respect to the Hunter Biden laptop story --
15 A Uh-huh.
16 Q -- the -- introduced in some of the exhibits, there was questions in the public
17 about whether it was part of a foreign malign influence campaign. There's a statement
18 of 51 former intel officials that said as much, that they think, you know, at the very least 19 looks like a potential Russian disinformation operation.
20 If it were a Russian disinformation operation, would the FBI be able to share
21 information relating to it?
22 A So I can't comment on the veracity of any information or what's going on 23 with that specific investigation. I'd have to refer you to the appropriate U.S. Attorney's 24 Office because, again, it was not a FITF-owned equity.
25 Q But you testified earlier with respect to the account lists --

A Uh-huh.

Q -- that very frequently it wasn't a FITF-owned investigation or equity. Is that right?

A I don't think that's what I testified, no.

Q Okay.

A I said FITF is focused on those actors and those activities, and those activities are inclusive of the information that we're passing to -- to -- to the social media companies. So that was very much a FITF equity. We're program managing those cases.

BY [redacted]

Q When you say that the Hunter Biden wasn't a FITF-owned equity --

A Uh-huh.

Q -- did it have any equities in the FBI investigation of Hunter Biden?

A Did what have any equities?

Q FITF.

A Again, I can't speak to that ongoing investigative action. That's an ongoing investigation. I can't speak to any details regarding it.

Q Is that an instruction from counsel?

A I think, yes, but they can confirm it.

[redacted] I'd ask you to not respond to any information regarding ongoing investigations.

Ms. Dehmlow. I can't speak to ongoing investigations, ongoing investigative activity.

BY [redacted]

Q If the ongoing investigation had FITF equities in it, then FITF would be able to 1 share information?

2 A Not broadly. The FITF can only share information in the context of the

3 Justice Manual provision regarding details of foreign malign influence operations. So it's 4 not that we can just broadly share anything regarding an ongoing investigative equity.

5 There's specific provisions of the Justice Manual that govern what we can and cannot 6 share.

7 Q Okay. But, if the Hunter Biden laptop were part of a foreign malign

8 influence operation, that is something that FITF would be able to share information on.

9 A Yeah, I don't want to speak to a hypothetical. But if there is a foreign

10 malign influence operation and we've got specific details about how those actors are

11 propagating information operations, influence operations on platforms, that's something

12 that we could share the specific details of.

13 Q Okay. I mean, that sounds like a "yes" to my previous question but --

14 A I want to be really specific about what we do and don't do because we don't 15 just comment broadly on investigative activity.

16 [redacted] So did FITF share any information with social media companies

17 regarding the Hunter Biden investigation as it relates to foreign malign activity?

18 [redacted] Same instruction.

19 Ms. Dehmlow. Yeah.

20 [redacted] What's the instruction, [redacted]

21 [redacted] Not to comment on ongoing investigations.

22 [redacted] Thanks.

23 BY [redacted]

24 Q So, in these bilateral FITF meetings, social media companies, is it fair to say it

25 was routine that they would be receiving information related to foreign malign influence

1 operations that related to investigations of the FBI?

2 A I would say it's -- again, I'll reiterate the specific information that we're

3 sharing are information about the specific details about foreign -- how foreign actors

4 were misusing their platforms. So it's a really specific and narrow part of FITF work they

5 were sharing in those engagements.

6 Q Is one way that a foreign actor can misuse a platform is a hack-and-leak or 7 hack-and-dump operation?

8 A I would say that the "dump" part of the information might be inclusive of 9 using inauthentic accounts to propagate and spread the dump of the information. That 10 is a hypothetical.

11 Q Okay.

12 A Yeah.

13 Q So, as a hypothetical --

14 A Uh-huh.

15 Q -- information can be shared with the social media platforms if it relates to,

16 again, this narrow subset of foreign malign influence operations --

17 A Uh-huh.

18 Q -- and that one tactic or one way a foreign malign influence operation might

19 be carried out is to use the social media platforms to dump hacked material or other

20 disinformation.

21 A Yeah, but, again, the information sharing that we would be doing would be

22 about the mechanism of the dump, not the dump itself. So it wouldn't be talking about

23 the content or the narrative or the information. It would be on how they were planning

24 on propagating the material.

25 Q And, when you would share this information with the social media platforms about foreign malign influence operations --

A Uh-huh.

Q -- how frequently would they ask for additional information?

A I wouldn't want to characterize it. I don't -- frequency thing is hard for me to answer.

Q I mean, was it a rare occurrence?

I guess let me ask this. Did it happen where social media platforms asked for "can you tell us anything more"?

A Yes.

Q And, in those situations, what happens next?

A We are limited largely by the information that we're able to get downgraded and passed along from those [redacted]. So, if there was further detail that we could go back and get, we may attempt to do that. If we're certain that we got everything from the original Terra (ph) line, there's usually not much more that we can pass.

Q And would you tell the social media companies, "No, that's everything we have," or would you say, "There is more information, but we aren't able to provide it to you at this time"?

A I would say it's really -- it would be really difficult for us to answer that on the spot. So my recollection of our most frequent answer would have been something like, "We'll take that back and see if there's anything we can do."

Q And then would you follow up with the social media companies?

A If they asked again or if we had information to pass, yes, but I think they were -- at that point, they were pretty aware of the limitations of what we were, could and could not do. So we didn't get back to them, that's --

1 Q But, when you would get back to them, would it ever be with any
2 clarification of "there is no additional information" or "there is but we're not able to
3 provide it at this time"?
4 A I don't ever recall us saying, "We're not able to provide any more
5 information," but that doesn't mean it didn't happen.
6 Q You've testified about, and there have been exhibits to this end, as well,
7 about Russia's efforts to interfere with the 2016 election.
8 A Un-huh.
9 Q Do you have an opinion or has your team made an assessment on whether it
10 changed the outcome of the 2016 election?
11 A We don't assess impact.
12 Q If the FBI were to follow up with respect to specific account lists, would that 13 change your understanding of the FBI's role in just passing information along?
14 A Again, I don't think that I articulated that we never ask follow-up questions
15 because we do through legal process.
16 Q Okay. So, absent legal process, if there was a request that would follow up
17 on a specific list of accounts --
18 A Uh-huh.
19 Q -- to you, would that type of action be different than the more passive
20 information sharing of a one-time request?
21 A No, I don't think so. Again, we're talking about passing information that we 22 hope is useful. So asking an obvious followup question about whether it was useful I
23 think is typical. But -- but, again, we're not asking for any details on the actions they 24 took, just whether the information was helpful.
25 And then, if we need further information about the accounts or further

1 information what's going on the platform, then, again, we have to prove that through
2 legal process that we've got cause for asking that question and asking for further
3 information.
4 BY [redacted]
5 Q What kind of responses did you get from social media companies when the 6 FBI followed up and asked if the information was helpful?
7 A To the best of my recollection, it was often "yes" and then, again, based on 8 the information that they have made publicly available --
9 Q Uh-huh.
10 A -- they've articulated in several of the public reports about action they took 11 to police, coordinated inauthentic behavior on platforms, they've articulated information
12 from the FBI was -- informed those actions. So it's public record articulating that, too.
13 BY [redacted]
14 Q Just broadly speaking, with respect to how social media companies prepare 15 their terms of service, what is your understanding of the difference, if any, between 16 coordinated inauthentic behavior and policies related to a hack and leak or hack and 17 dump?
18 A Can you repeat the question? I'm sorry.
19 Q Sure. To your understanding, what is the difference between coordinated 20 inauthentic behavior and how that relates to social media platforms protecting their 21 platforms and hack and leak or hack and dump?
22 A I think it would probably be two different parts of their terms of service. So
23 one would be addressing, again, inauthentic, pretending to be somebody you're not on a
24 platform, or coordinated widespread behavior. There may be some links 25 between -- between the coordinated components and, you know, and the activity that

1 would be dumping the material on platform.

2 But, again, I'm not the person to ask about the terms of service. That would be

3 something to ask the platforms.

4 Q And, in Agent Chan's deposition, he said that the FBI did ask the platforms.

5 To your knowledge, did -- we'll take Facebook as an example -- have terms of service

6 related to coordinated inauthentic behavior prior to 2020?

7 A To the best of my knowledge, yes.

8 Q And, to the best of your knowledge, did Facebook have a hack-and-leak

9 policy prior to 2020?

10 A That, I couldn't speak to. I don't recall.

11 Q Okay. We've had multiple witnesses from Facebook come and testify that 12 hack-and-leak policy was not developed until the summer of 2020.

13 A Okay.

14 Q You've testified that you're familiar with Agent Chan's deposition --

15 A Uh-huh.

16 Q -- where he says during this time period --

17 A Uh-huh.

18 Q -- the FBI was asking about hack-and-leak policy.

19 Do you think the FBI's asking questions played any role in whether Facebook

20 developed a hack-and-leak policy?

21 A I wouldn't want to speculate on the policy development. Again, I have no

22 recollection of these conversations. So I'm not the right person to ask that question to

23 the platforms.

24 Q Would Agent Chan be the appropriate person to ask these questions to?

25 A I think, if you're asking about the reasons the platforms took action, that

1 should be a question for the platforms.

2 Q Okay. What about with respect do the hack and leak, discussions of the 3 platform's hack-and-leak policies?

4 A Same answer. I think if we're asking about policy decisions the platforms

5 made, you'd have to ask them the reasons for it.

6 Q But with respect to whether those discussions occurred.

7 A I'm sorry. I can't -- can you be more clear about what the question is?

8 Q Sure. So we've gone over the extent of your recollection --

9 A Uh-huh.

10 Q -- the extent of Agent Chan's recollection --

11 A Uh-huh.

12 Q -- at least at the time of his deposition.

13 Would Agent Chan be the best point of contact to be able to speak to the 14 discussions that occurred during these meetings?

15 A Regarding --

16 Q Regarding --

17 A -- FBI discussions of hack and leak?

18 Q Yeah.

19 A If it's in his deposition, he recalls things that I don't but your witnesses.

20 BY [redacted]

21 Q And, during your tenure at the FBI, have you ever interacted with or worked

22 with [redacted]? He's an intelligence analyst.

23 A Yes, he worked in Counterintelligence Division. So do I.

24 Q And in what context have you interacted? Or we can use it

25 interchangeably. How often do you work with [redacted]?

1 A So, yeah, he's in Counterintelligence Division. And so am I.

2 Q What do you understand his roles and responsibilities to be?

3 A Currently --

4 Q Huh-uh.

5 A -- or historically.

6 Q We'll go currently, then go historically.

7 A He's an analyst. It's going to be same. He's an analyst in the 8 Counterintelligence Division. He was a formerly a supervisory intelligence analyst in the 9 Counterintelligence Division.

10 Q Uh-huh.

11 A Beyond that, I can't speak it to because it's all going to be classified.

12 Q Did you say he was formerly a supervisory intelligence analyst?

13 A Yes.

14 Q Is he no longer a supervisory intelligence analyst?

15 A He is not.

16 Q What's his title now?

17 A Intelligence analyst.

18 Q Do you know when he went from being an SIA to IA?

19 A I don't have any specificity, no. I don't recall with any specificity but within 20 the past year.

21 Q Within the past year? And do you know why that occurred?

22 A I don't.

23 Q Are you familiar with an assessment that [redacted] created regarding 24 Hunter Biden information being disinformation?

25 A No, I'm not familiar with that specific characterization of that assessment.

1 Q How would you characterize that assessment?

2 A Again, I can't speak to ongoing investigative equities.

3 Q But you could say that this characterization is inaccurate?

4 A That there was an assessment on Hunter Biden disinformation?

5 Q Correct.

6 A Not to my knowledge.

7 Q Are you aware that he created an assessment?

8 A I am aware of the allegations that he's created an assessment, that he signed

9 off on one of the opening -- opening documentations of an assessment, yes.

10 Q Are you aware that it's been characterized that it was improper and used to 11 discredit negative Hunter Biden information as disinformation?

12 A I am aware of that allegation, yes.

13 Q Are you aware of what the assessment was actually used for?

14 A I am.

15 Q And what was that?

16 A I can't speak to it.

17 Q Why can't you speak to it?

18 A It's both an ongoing investigative equity and classified.

19 Q Do you know if [redacted] has continuing equities involving the Hunter Biden

20 investigation?

21 A Not to my knowledge, but I don't -- but the Hunter Biden investigation is not

22 my investigation.

23 Q And earlier I asked you about any involvement with special counsel

24 investigations. Do you know if [redacted] has been involved in any of the special counsel

25 investigations?

A I believe that's a matter of public record, but I don't know any details about it.

Q Okay. And what's your understanding of that's been publicly reported?

A That he was -- he was part of the special counsel, the Mueller special counsel team, but, again, I don't know anything more about it.

Q Do you know if he was involved in Special Counsel Jack Smith's investigation?

A I don't know.

Q And when you say that he works in counterintelligence with you, does he work in a different unit? A different task force?

A He works in a different component of the division than I do, yes.

Q The Counterterrorism Division or -- excuse me -- the Counterintelligence Division? Is that accurate?

A Yes.

Q Do you know what component he's assigned to?

A I do, but I really don't know that I should be getting into current activities for non-SES employees.

[redacted] FBI counsel, can we have the component?

[redacted] I just state it for the record that committee has requested to do a transcribed interview with [redacted]. It's currently being considered as part of the ongoing accommodations process, and I would encourage the committee to follow up with some of these specific questions with [redacted] if we are able to provide that interview.

In terms of providing personnel-specific information, we can follow up with you regarding those details.

[redacted] Okay. Think committee would be interested in knowing what

1 component [redacted] is assigned to.

2 Thank you.

3 BY [redacted]

4 Q When a potential hack and leak is or hack and dump is discussed as a tactic,

5 whether at the broad USG industry meetings or the bilateral FITF meetings, do you recall

6 there being any discussion regarding how the potential hack and leak, hack and dump

7 should be handled if the hacked documents are, in facts, true?

8 A I don't recall any specific conversations like that, no.

9 Q To your understanding, does the First Amendment protect publishers who

10 publish hacked materials?

11 A That's really not my forte. So I wouldn't speculate.

12 Q Do you recall any discussion internally --

13 A I don't.

14 Q -- with the FBI?

15 A I don't.

16 Q With respect to the 2016 DNC hack, is it your understanding that some of 17 the materials produced as a result of that hack were, in fact, true, authentic materials?

18 A I believe that is a pretty consistent matter of public record that that was -- it

19 was in -- it was a hack into DNC and a real hack into DNC where they acquired materials.

20 As to the veracity and authenticity of everything that was propagated as a result of that

21 operation, I can't begin to speculate.

22 [redacted] Can we go off the record, please?

23 [Recess.]

1 [3:59 p.m.]

2 [redacted] We will go back on the record. It is 3:59.

3 BY [redacted]

4 Q Good afternoon again, Ms. Dehmlow.

5 A Hi.

6 Q I only have a couple of questions.

7 There were some questions in the first hour about the Elvis Chan deposition. Do

8 you recall being asked about his deposition?

9 A I do.

10 Q You weren't present when he was deposed. Is that right?

11 A I was not.

12 Q Have you read his entire deposition?

13 A I have.

14 Q Okay. Do you know everything that's in it?

15 A No. It's lengthy. I don't recall every detail.

16 Q Okay. When you were asked those questions in the first hour, you were

17 not provided a copy of the deposition --

18 A That's correct.

19 Q -- while you were answering, right?

20 A No.

21 Q So you don't really know exactly what he said. Is that fair to say?

22 A Yeah, I can't recall with specificity.

23 Q Okay. But generally you're familiar with the fact that he was deposed in 24 the Missouri v. Biden lawsuit and then he was asked some questions about FITF, correct?

25 A Yes.

1 Q Okay. I do have his deposition in front of me. I'm not going to introduce
2 it, because it's so long, as an exhibit, but let me know if you agree with the answers he
3 gave to the following questions.
4 In that deposition on November 29th, 2022, Agent Chan was asked if the FBI
5 shared specific tactical-level information with social media companies.
6 And he responded, quote, "The FBI shares information with the social media
7 companies, no strings attached, so that the social media companies can protect their 8 platforms as they deem appropriate," end quote.
9 That is from Mr. Chan's deposition on page 32.
10 Do you agree with that characterization of the information and why it's shared by 11 FITF?
12 A Yes.
13 Q And when he said "no strings attached," do you agree with that 14 characterization?
15 A Yeah. I think I've articulated a couple of times today that we're passing 16 them information to do with as they see fit.
17 Q Also in that deposition Agent Chan explained in his testimony, when the FBI 18 provides this tactical information to social media companies, the companies then take the 19 information provided by FITF or the FBI and they, quote, "validate it through their own 20 means," unquote.
21 Are you familiar with that statement that he made in his deposition, that they 22 validate the information by their own means?
23 A Can you repeat that?
24 Q Sure. So when he was asked about what happens when the FBI shares this 25 tactical information with social media companies, he explained in the deposition that the

1 companies then take the information that FITF or the FBI has provided and, quote,
2 "validate it through their own means," unquote.
3 A Yes.
4 Q When he said that the social media companies validate the information
5 provided by the FBI, does that characterization come in line with your understanding of 6 what happens?
7 A Yes, it rings true.
8 Q And what do you think that means, in your experience?
9 A I spoke a little bit earlier that sometimes the platforms are not able to 10 characterize with as much confidence that any specific foreign actor is behind the activity,
11 so they've got -- I don't begin to presume to understand what access to information
12 they've got sort of behind the walls of the platform, but I assume they've got access to 13 technical details and information about how, for example, accounts are set up.
14 So they would go and take potentially information that we've shared and then 15 determine whether or not they've got information that matches the information that 16 we've shared and if they've got any further insight into how that actor might have been 17 operating on their platform.
18 Q So is it fair to say the FBI has information through their own investigations 19 and intelligence gathering and the social media companies have their own means of 20 validating?
21 A Yes.
22 Q But they're separate, correct?
23 A Yes.
24 Q And the FBI doesn't have any purpose or interest in what the social media
25 company does with those accounts on their platform. Is that fair to say?

1 A We don't have any specific objectives with us passing the information, no.
2 Q Okay. You also were asked -- actually you were not asked about this. I'm
3 going to ask you about a new subject here.
4 A Okay.
5 Q Are you familiar with the majority's interim staff report on the FBI that was
6 released on July 10th, 2023?
7 A Can you give me the title?
8 Q The actual title is, quote, "The FBI's Collaboration with a Compromised
9 Ukrainian Intelligence Agency to Censor American Speech."
10 A I have, yes.
11 Q Have you read that report?
12 A I've not read it word for word, but, yes, I'm familiar with the content. I've 13 read portions.
14 Q Okay. The report alleges that the FBI and the Ukrainian SBU engaged in,
15 quote, "a censorship scheme," unquote, involving FITF, the San Francisco Field Office of 16 the FBI, the FBI legats, among others.
17 Are you aware of that allegation in the report?
18 A I'm aware of the allegation.
19 Q And what's your response to that allegation?
20 A That FITF had really nothing to do with that information passage. I believe 21 the Director testified publicly last week, so I would defer to those comments, that we 22 were -- the FBI, the legat office, Cyber Division was passing information for a partner and 23 ally because the Russian Government had taken away their ability to do it themselves;
24 that FITF didn't take any follow-on investigative or lead action based on any of those
25 referrals. It was just information passage from a foreign partner in the context of a

1 wartime scenario for them to the platforms because they had no other means of getting
2 it there.
3 Q And as far as you know, did the FBI make any requests on behalf of the SBU?
4 A Not that I'm aware of it.
5 Q Would it surprise you to learn that tech executives like [redacted], who 6 was involved in some of those communications, that he didn't even understand those
7 messages to be messages from the FBI, he just saw it as a forwarded message?
8 A That's our understanding. That was our intent.
9 Q And that was consistent with what your purpose was?
10 A Yes.
11 Q The report also names FBI operational agents and publicly outs them,
12 including the legat in Kyiv and a supervisory agent whose job included leading operational 13 strategic preparedness for 13 legat offices in Eastern Europe. Are you aware of that?
14 A I'm aware that FBI personnel were named, yeah.
15 Q And how do you -- what's your reaction to that, the outing of those 16 operational employees?
17 A I worry for them in the same way that I've been concerned for myself and 18 other employees in the context of some of the information that you put in the record
19 earlier. Unfortunately, naming these individuals who are simply doing their jobs, it
20 means that they might be subject to harassment or worse.
21 Q And naming them also in the context of specific allegations of collusion with 22 the SBU and a, quote, "censorship scheme," correct?
23 A Uh-huh.
24 Q You have to answer for the record, if you would.
25 A Yes.

1 Q Okay. I mean, does naming these people -- just putting their names out in
2 the public creates a certain risk to those agents, correct?
3 A Yes.
4 Q And does it create a certain additional risk to put their names out in 5 connection with allegations that they're doing things such as, quote, "engaging in a 6 censorship scheme"?
7 A Yes. I'd also articulate that we're talking about a state actor at the end of 8 all of this, the Russian state, so there's an added risk for any time we're talking about 9 making international security threats.
10 Q Can you elaborate on that a little bit?
11 A Foreign intelligence security services target individuals who are associated 12 with this work as well, so this heightens the counterintelligence risk because it names to 13 those foreign intelligence services other persons working in the space, so it gives them
14 another potential target of opportunity.
15 Q Does it also make it difficult for those agents who are operational to do their 16 work?
17 A It does.
18 Q How is that?
19 A Because it compromises sort of the security and confidentiality of the work
20 that they're doing.
21 Q Could it also compromise foreign contacts that they have or assets 22 potentially?
23 A It could.
24 Q And could that compromise potentially lead to somebody's death or injury?
25 A We keep confidential -- human source relationships confidential to avoid

1 that specific risk.

2 Q Okay. And so one of the -- I'm not going to name them here -- but one of

3 the agents who was outed who was in the position of being a supervisory agent, he,

4 according to a description of his jobs in the past, was leading efforts of the Joint Terrorism

5 Task Force to identify and disrupt terrorist plots by individuals, organizations, networks

6 who were responsible for -- and was responsible for six operational squads.

7 If that agent is not able to do his work, does that mean that the FBI's mission with 8 respect to that Joint Terrorism Task Force is also being inhibited by his outing?

9 A Yeah. I mean, any time something sort of unexpectedly or unintentionally

10 removes focus from the individual's ability to do their job, there could be consequences

11 to their day-to-day responsibilities, yes.

12 Q And also you had a series of questions about another FBI employee, an 13 intelligence analyst, [redacted]. Do you recall those questions?

14 A I do.

15 Q Okay. [redacted]'s name has also been shared publicly by members of this

16 committee and other political operatives. Are you aware of that?

17 A I am.

18 Q And do you also have concerns for him with respect to the sharing of his

19 name?

20 A I do.

21 Q And anything specific that you can share with regard to him?

22 A He's been the subject of, as far as I'm aware, online harassment, letters to 23 his home. He's got small children. There's some safety concerns there.

24 Q And all of that is the result of having been outed by political operatives and 25 members of this committee?

A It's the result of his name being publicly out there. I'm not sure when that was initially -- when and where he was initially outed.

Q Okay.

A But it has been continuously amplified by other elements, by this body and others.

Q Do you know if he or anyone else in the FBI has raised concerns about his safety to this committee or members of this committee?

A I don't.

Q In the series of questions that you had about his work, it sounded like you weren't able to answer because they're asking questions that he might know but that you actually don't know personally. Is that fair to say?

A Well, it's a combination of both that and I just don't think it's appropriate to talk about ongoing personnel responsibilities for somebody who's not me.

Q Okay. You were also asked specifically about the allegations that his -- that he created an assessment regarding the veracity of the Hunter Biden information, and you -- I know you can't talk about what that assessment was really about, but is it fair to say that the allegations as they've been articulated in this TI and in the public are not accurate?

A And that is not my understanding of any assessment that was managed by the Counterintelligence Division.

Q So the allegations that you understand with respect to [redacted] are just wrong?

A To the best of my knowledge, yes.

[redacted] I don't have any other questions at this time.

Ms. Dehmlow. Okay.

1 [redacted] Thank you.

2 [redacted] Can we off the record, please?

3 [Whereupon, at 4:11 p.m., the interview was concluded.]

17 For DR. MARION GRUBER:

18

19 HILARY LOCICERO, ESQ.

20 LLOYD LIU, ESQ.

21 BLL, LLP

1 [redacted] We will go on the record.

2 Good morning. This is a transcribed interview of Dr. Marion Gruber. The

3 committee has requested this interview as part of the committee's oversight of the FDA

4 and administrative practices and procedures.

5 Would the witness please state your name for the record?

6 Dr. Gruber. My name is Dr. Marion Gruber.

7 [redacted] We encourage witnesses who appear before the committee to

8 freely consult with counsel if they so choose, and it is my understanding that you are

9 appearing today with personal counsel. Is that correct?

10 Dr. Gruber. That is correct.

11 [redacted] Could counsel place state your name for the record?

12 Ms. LoCicero. Yes. Good morning. My name is Hilary LoCicero from BLL LLP

13 on behalf of Dr. Marion Gruber.

14 Mr. Liu. And I'm Lloyd Liu from the same firm.

15 [redacted] Great. Thank you.

16 On behalf of the committee, I want to thank you for appearing here today to

17 answer our questions. The chairman also appreciates your willingness to appear

18 voluntarily.

19 My name is [redacted] and I work with Chairman Jordan's staff.

20 I will now have everyone else from the committee who is here in the room

21 introduce themselves as well.

22 [redacted] My name is [redacted] and I am here with Chairman Jordan's staff.

23 Mr. Massie. I am Congressman Thomas Massie from Kentucky.

24 Mr. Biggs. Congressman Andy Biggs from Arizona.

25 [redacted] [redacted] with the Democratic staff.

1 [redacted] [redacted] I am the chief oversight counsel for the House
2 Judiciary Committee, Democratic staff.
3 [redacted] [redacted] Chairman Jordan's staff.
4 [redacted] [redacted] law clerk on Chairman Jordan's staff.
5 [redacted] [redacted] Chairman Jordan's staff.
6 [redacted] I would like to now go over the ground rules and guidelines that we
7 will follow during today's interview.
8 Our questioning will proceed in rounds. The majority will ask questions first for 1
9 hour. Then the minority will have an opportunity to ask questions for an equal period of 10 time if they so choose. We will alternate back and forth until there are no more
11 questions and the interview is over.
12 Typically, we take a short break at the end of each hour, but if you need to take a 13 break at any other time, just please let us know, and we're happy to accommodate that.
14 As you can see, there is an official court reporter taking down everything we say to 15 make a written record, so we ask that you give verbal responses to all questions. Do you 16 understand that?
17 Dr. Gruber. I do.
18 [redacted] So the court reporter can take down a clear record, we will do our 19 best to limit the number of people directing questions to you at any given hour to just 20 those people on the staff whose turn it is.
21 Please try and speak clearly so the court reporter can understand and the folks
22 down at the end of the table can hear you as well.
23 It is important that we don't talk over one another or interrupt each other if we
24 can help it, and that goes for everybody present at today's interview.
25 We want you to answer our questions in the most complete and truthful manner

as possible, so we will take our time. If you have any questions or you do not understand one of our questions, please let us know. Our questions will cover a range of topics, so if you need clarification at any point, just say so.

If you honestly don't know the answer to a question or do not remember, it is best not to guess. Please give us your best recollection, and it is okay to tell us if you learned information from someone else. Just indicate how you came to know the information.

If there are things you don't know or can't remember, just say so, and please inform us who, to the best of your knowledge, might be able to provide a more complete answer to our question.

You should also understand that, by law, you are required to answer questions from Congress truthfully. Do you understand that?

Dr. Gruber. Yes.

[redacted] This also applies to questions posed by congressional staff in an interview. Do you understand this?

Dr. Gruber. Yes.

[redacted] Witnesses that knowingly provide false testimony could be subject to criminal prosecution for making false statements under 18 U.S.C. Section 1001. Do you understand this?

Dr. Gruber. Yes.

[redacted] Is there any reason you are unable to provide truthful answers to today's questions?

Dr. Gruber. No.

[redacted] Finally, I'd like to make note that the content of what we discuss here today is confidential. We ask that you not speak about what we discuss in the interview to any outside individuals to preserve the integrity of our investigation.

1 For the same reason, the marked exhibits that we will use today will remain with
2 the court reporter to go into the official transcript and any copies of those exhibits will be
3 returned to us when we wrap up the interview.
4 All right. That's the end of my preamble.
5 Is there anything my colleagues on the minority would like to add?
6 [redacted] We just thank you for taking time out of your day to come in today.
7 [redacted] And I understand your attorney has a statement she would like to 8 make on the record.
9 Ms. LoCicero. Yes. Thank you.
10 On behalf of Dr. Gruber, Dr. Gruber is here today as a former FDA employee.
11 She has been authorized to speak about matters that the committee wishes to learn 12 about, but she is not authorized to speak about anything that would impinge on the 13 agency's deliberative process privilege. So if there are questions what would impinge on 14 that privilege, I'll raise an objection at that time.
15 [redacted] Thank you.
16 The clock now reads 10:07 a.m. We'll start with the first round of questioning,
17 and I'll turn it over to my colleague, [redacted]
18 EXAMINATION:
19 BY [redacted]
20 Q Good morning, Dr. Gruber.
21 Are you currently employed?
22 A Yes.
23 Q Where do you work?
24 A I have a remote office position. I work from home. My employer is the 25 International AIDS Vaccine Initiative.

1 Q And how long have you been working there?
2 A I started working with IAVI in January of 2022.
3 Q And what is your title?
4 A My title is vice president for public health and regulatory science.
5 Q And in this role, what are your responsibilities?
6 A I oversee the Regulatory Affairs Division in IAVI. I also present IAVI at 7 global committees and agencies, WHO, for instance, but also other not-for-profit
8 organizations and, of course, our funders.
9 Q And where did you work before IAVI? Did I say that correctly?
10 A Yes. IAVI is correct. It stands for International AIDS Vaccine Initiative. I
11 worked at the U.S. Food and Drug Administration in the Office of Vaccines.
12 Q Did you work anywhere in between those two?
13 A No.
14 Q And when did you first join the FDA?
15 A I joined the FDA as a government employee, and that was in 1992.
16 Q And what did you do before working at the FDA?
17 A I was a postdoc. I had a postdoc position at the FDA from 1989 to 1992.
18 And prior to that, I had a postdoc position at the Oklahoma Medical Research Foundation,
19 and that was from 1986 to 1989.
20 Q And can you walk us through the positions that you held at the FDA?
21 A Yeah. So when I started in 1992, I worked as a CMC reviewer. CMC
22 stands for chemistry, manufacturing, and control information. So I was part of a team 23 which looked at the manufacturing process for biological products that were regulated by 24 the office. At that time, that was the Office of Therapeutic Research and Review. So
25 that was not the Office of Vaccines.

1 Then -- and I actually worked there, as I said, as a CMC reviewer, and I also did
2 bench research because these positions -- it was supporting to our role at the FDA.
3 In 1995, I decided to take a full regulatory position in the Office of Vaccines
4 Research and Review. There, I worked what they referred to as primary reviewer. I
5 was responsible for communicating decisions made by review teams to the vaccine
6 manufacturers. I also was part of the review team, working alongside with the medical 7 officers, with the CMC reviewers, facility experts, et cetera. I did that for 10 years.
8 And then in 2005, a position came open in the Office of the Director at the Office
9 of Vaccines Research and Review, and that was associate director for regulatory and 10 policy decisions. And I was selected for that position. And at that time, my primary 11 responsibility was looking at guidance documents, taking part in writing guidance 12 documents, involved in policy decisions, looking at proposed and final rules to see how 13 they could be implemented.
14 And I did this -- I think it was 2008 when the, at that time, deputy director of the 15 Office of Vaccines retired from the office, and I served as acting deputy and then was 16 selected deputy director of the Office of Vaccines. But I don't -- I cannot give you the 17 exact date on that.
18 And then in 2007, the, at that time, office director, Dr. Norman Baylor, 19 resigned -- not resigned. He decided to retire and take another position outside the 20 agency. And because I was his deputy director at that time, I served as acting office
21 director and had applied for office director position.
22 So the acting office director, I did from -- it was fall of 2011. So when Dr. Baylor
23 left. I can't really recall. Was it October, November? I don't know. And in May 24 2012, I was selected office director of the Office of Vaccines, and I served in that position
25 until I decided to retire from the FDA in October of 2021.

1 Q And so your last position at the FDA was director of the Office of Vaccines
2 Research and Review. Is that correct?
3 A That is correct.
4 Q Can you describe for us your roles and responsibilities in that position as
5 director?
6 A As director of Office of Vaccines, it was my responsibility to oversee the 7 review activities conducted by the different disciplines. I also, in collaboration with the 8 division directors, decided on the research program because the offices in the Center for 9 Biologics Evaluation and Research have research responsibilities.
10 So -- and I also closely collaborated with office directors in the other offices:
11 Office of Biostatistics and Epidemiology. Office of Compliance, for instance. Office of 12 Communication. And, of course, you know, I had to report my activities -- the activities
13 of my stuff -- to the center director.
14 Q Other than vaccines, were there other subject matter areas that you worked 15 on in this position?
16 A There were certain other biological products. Allogenic products.
17 Q What are those products?
18 A Allogenic products? Well, these are -- were developed -- actually, they 19 have been on -- around for decades. Way before I became office director. And they 20 are really to treat people with certain allergies, such as allergies against grass and pollen,
21 for example.
22 Q Okay. And who was your director supervisor in this position when you
23 were director?
24 A At first, it was Dr. Karen Midthun. She was center director when I became 25 office director. And when Dr. Midthun retired, Dr. Peter Marks was, at that time, her

1 deputy and took over as acting center director and then to center director. So I
2 reported to him.
3 Q When did that change happen? When did Dr. Marks join? Do you
4 remember?
5 A I don't quite remember the year, but I can tell you he served as the deputy
6 director -- center director -- to Dr. Midthun. And I think Dr. Midthun retired
7 2000- -- 2016 or 2017.
8 Q And did you have more than one direct supervisor other than Dr. Marks?
9 A It was Dr. Marks at that time. I mean, when Dr. Midthun left.
10 Q How many people directly reported to you when you were director?
11 A It varied slightly between -- 15 and 17 were my direct reports.
12 Q Was one of those direct reports Dr. Philip Krause?
13 A Dr. Philip Krause was my deputy director.
14 Q And how long had he been your deputy director?
15 A As I stated, I became office director in 2012, and he was chosen deputy 16 office director of Office of Vaccines -- I want to say 2013 or 2014.
17 Q Did you have regular interactions with Dr. Peter Marks?
18 A Yes. Yes. We had weekly one-on-one meetings where, you know, I
19 summarized the activities of the Office of Vaccines.
20 BY [redacted]
21 Q Can you help us understand the organizational structure of the Office of 22 Vaccines? The 15 to 17 people, were they split into teams? Did they all work on one
23 vaccine? Or what was the setup of the office?
24 A Okay. So that's going to be a little bit long of an answer.
25 The Office of Vaccines, when I was office director, was organized into the Office of

1 the Director. And the Office of the Director were, at that point, seven people. It was 2 the deputy office director. I had an associate director for regulatory policy, an associate 3 director for medical policy, an associate director for medical countermeasures and
4 scientific affairs, and then an associate director for epidemiology, postmarketing
5 surveillance. Then I had an assistant.
6 Let me see if I'm going to be complete here. Yeah. There were two assistants.
7 One was because I also had overview, of course, of the Budget Division.
8 And so that was the immediate Office of the Director. And the other people
9 reporting to me were the division directors. So Office of Vaccines is organized, again,
10 Office of the Director and then the Budget Office and then the Division of Bacteria and
11 Allogenic Products. And that was, at that time, about 70 people plus postdocs. So 70
12 FTEs plus postdocs. Then the Division of Viral Products and Division of Vaccines and 13 Related Product Applications. So that was the Applications Division, which administered 14 the incoming submissions by the vaccine manufacturers and completed correspondence, 15 et cetera.
16 So each of these divisions was headed by two directors, the director and the 17 deputy director. My direct reports were the division directors. So three division
18 directors. So now I have to see. 10, 11 -- yeah. So it amounted to 15 people. Yeah.
19 Q And how many people worked under the director and deputy director of the 20 Division for Viral Products?
21 A About the same. It always fluctuated a little bit. People are hired.
22 People leave and retire. So it was about 70 people. That was the average. Again,
23 plus postdocs.
24 Q Okay.
25 A And the Division of Vaccines and Related Product Applications, DVRPA, that

1 also had about 70 people.

2 Q Okay.

3 A Medical officers, toxicologists, and then the administrative people were all in

4 DVRPA.

5 Q Okay. Thank you.

6 A And, of course, let me be complete. The DVRPA division director also 7 reported to me.

8 Q Okay.

9 BY [redacted]

10 Q Now, with your interactions with Dr. Marks, did the frequency of your

11 interactions change throughout the COVID-19 pandemic versus beforehand?

12 A There was more frequent interaction, yes.

13 Q And what was his exact title at the beginning of the COVID-19 pandemic?

14 A Well, he was the director of the Center For Biologics Evaluation and

15 Research.

16 Q Did that ever change at all during your time there? Was he always in that 17 specific position?

18 A Yeah.

19 Q And did you have regular interactions with FDA Commissioner Janet

20 Woodcock?

21 A Direct regulatory interactions?

22 Q Yes.

23 A One time.

24 Q One time.

25 And so you didn't have regular interactions, like, weekly meetings or monthly?

1 A No.

2 Q Is that normal for someone in your level position at the FDA?

3 A Yes.

4 Q Generally speaking, did you have regular interactions with Dr. Krause?

5 A Yes.

6 Q Yes?

7 A He was my deputy, yes.

8 Q How often would you say you interacted with him?

9 A Every day.

10 Q Every day.

11 In your line of work at the FDA, did you find that there were common

12 disagreements between you and your supervisors?

13 A Define common disagreements.

14 Q Maybe just on research or analyzing data. Just, I think, common, everyday

15 discussions about a product.

16 A No. There were no common disagreements as defined by you.

17 Q Did you have any common disagreements between you and your

18 subordinates?

19 A No.

20 Q Due to the size of your agency and your parent agency HHS, who did you

21 regularly interact with outside of the FDA in your line of work?

22 A I did committee work. So as I mentioned at the beginning, I -- there was

23 interaction with the WHO, the World Health Organization. But there were also, you

24 know, other ad hoc committees within HHS where I was sent to represent the Office of

25 Vaccines.

1 Mr. Biggs. Can I ask a question? A follow-up question? I don't want to break
2 the flow. You guys are doing well.
3 But the common disagreements question -- maybe I read too much into your 4 answer. Were there times that there were extraordinarily -- you know, extraordinary or 5 anomalous times where you'd have a disagreement with either a supervisor or 6 subordinate over any of these areas that you were previously asked about?
7 Dr. Gruber. There were no common disagreements in the line of work that I did
8 for the 10 years that I was office director.
9 Mr. Biggs. I get the no common disagreements.
10 But was there ever a disagreement over an exceptional way to handle something
11 or to look at research that you recall?
12 Dr. Gruber. On the way research was handled? No.
13 BY [redacted]
14 Q And you spoke about how you had interactions with the World Health
15 Organization. How regular were those interactions?
16 A I served, at the time I was office director, for 6 years on the Global Advisory
17 Committee for Vaccine Safety, the GACVS, WHO. These were in-person meetings that I
18 had to attend twice a year.
19 And in addition, there were ad hoc working groups, for instance, during the Ebola
20 outbreak. That was something that the WHO concerned itself with and, of course,
21 required interaction with the global public health community. So I served on some 22 committees such as guidance finding committees.
23 Q Did your service on these committees continue during the COVID-19
24 pandemic?
25 A I rotated off the GACVS committee -- I want to say 2019 or 2020. I would

1 have to double-check that.

2 Q Did you have any interactions with the WHO during the COVID-19

3 pandemic?

4 A Yes. Yes. There were.

5 Q Can you describe some of those interactions?

6 A Well, you know, it was -- the WHO, of course, was interested in making

7 vaccines available for the global community, and so there had been meetings on how to

8 address that. Yeah.

9 Q And what was your role in these meetings?

10 A A regulatory advisor. Yeah.

11 Q And can you describe what you would do as a regulatory advisor?

12 A So during the pandemic, as you know, there were several -- several -- many,

13 many vaccine candidates evaluated by the Office of Vaccines and, by far, not restricted to 14 the vaccines that one heard about in the news or were eventually authorized.

15 And so what we discussed in these committees was really the progress of the 16 development of these products. And then when we assumed regulatory review of the 17 data for these products, we had scientific exchanges.

18 BY [redacted]

19 Q Can you define for us what a biologic license is?

20 A What a biologic license is? So there is -- and you'd have to look this up in

21 the CFR, the Code of Federal Regulations. There is a long and very old definition for 22 biologic product.

23 And vaccines are part of biologic products. And if a manufacturer develops a

24 vaccine, the Public Health Service Act states that, in order to obtain a license, the vaccine

25 has to be shown to be safe and pure and potent, and the manufacturing facility in which

1 the product is made has to be complying with standards to assure the safety and purity
2 and potency of the product.
3 And if -- so we had the responsibility of reviewing the information submitted by 4 the vaccine manufacturer to support safety, purity, and potency. And when we made
5 the regulatory decision that these standards are met, we would issue a license. A
6 biologic products license.
7 Q Why is a biologic license needed, in your opinion?
8 A Before you make available a biological product such as a vaccine to 9 potentially millions of healthy individuals, there has to be oversight by an independent
10 agency to assure that the product meets standards of safety, purity, and potency.
11 Q And are you familiar with the FDA's Emergency Use Authorization process?
12 A Yes.
13 Q Can you explain the difference between a typical vaccination approval
14 process and an EUA approval process for us?
15 A So in order for an Emergency Use Authorization to occur, there are certain
16 requirements laid out in statute that need to be met. First of all, there has to be a 17 declaration by the health secretary that there is a public health emergency that could 18 adversely affect the well-being of American citizens. There has to be a requirement that 19 the biological product or other product -- emergency use authorizations are also for drug
20 products -- that there's a standard of "may be effective." So there needs to be 21 supporting data to demonstrate that the biological product may be effective.
22 There has to be lack of available alternate therapy, and a decision has to be made
23 that the known and potential benefits of the product outweigh the known and potential 24 risks of the product.
