Welcome to USAGov's Consumer Action Handbook. I'm excited that you added this resource to your consumer toolkit.

When you shop, you want to get the best value, without being taken advantage of. You want to feel confident about your purchases, regardless of what you buy, where you shop, or how you pay. The tips and resources in this Handbook can help you achieve these goals.

The Consumer Action Handbook brings together consumer information from across government. It includes practical questions to ask and factors to consider when you buy products and services. The Handbook features topics that affect everyone, such as credit reports and identity theft. It also addresses specific issues, like managing someone else's finances and gas pump skimming. You'll also find tips for detecting and reporting scams, throughout the book. Use our consumer assistance directory and sample complaint letter to file a consumer complaint.

USAGov guides you to the government services you need to make your life easier. In addition to this Handbook and the Spanish version, the Guía del Consumidor, we offer other bilingual information. This includes our websites USA.gov and GobiernoUSA.gov, government information by phone, toll free at 1-844-USA-GOV1, email, and online chat services. Follow USAGov on social media (Facebook, Twitter, and Instagram) to discover more government information and services.

If you have questions or ideas for topics, please send them my way at askmarietta@gsa.gov.

Wishing you all the best,

QUICK CONSUMER TIPS

Always be on the alert for shady deals and scams. Keep these things in mind to avoid becoming a victim:

- Be wary of promises of “no risks” or guaranteed earnings.
- Beware of emails or calls asking you to confirm your bank account, credit card number, PIN, or social security number.
- Create unique usernames, passwords for your email and online accounts. Use a PIN, two-factor authentication and other security features.
- Don’t sign a contract with blank spaces or incomplete terms. Read and understand any contract, legal document, or terms of service before you sign or click “I Agree”.
- Don’t feel pressured by calls or emails, supposedly from the government or creditors, that threaten you if you don’t send payment immediately.
- Get estimates from several contractors for home or car repairs. Make sure the estimates are for the exact same repairs for a fair comparison.
- Read retailers refund, return, and early termination or cancellation policies, before you buy.
- Be cautious of shopping on public wi-fi networks, that don’t encrypt your information.
- Beware if someone calls you, claiming that you owe money, demanding a payment by wire transfer or branded gift card.
- Look for the padlock icon in the bottom right-hand corner of your screen or a URL that begins with “https” to ensure that your payment information is transmitted securely.
- Don’t buy under stress. Avoid making big-ticket purchases during times of duress.
- Notify your lender immediately if you are having difficulty making payments on loans, so that you can work out a payment plan.
- Protect access and use of your digital wallet (connected to your mobile phone or payment app) with a PIN or your fingerprints.
- Read the privacy policy and security statement on apps you download to make sure that your personal information is secure.
- Sign up to receive text messages to alert you when your credit card is used. These texts help you catch fraudulent purchases immediately.

BUYER BEWARE

BEFORE YOU BUY

Use this checklist BEFORE you make a purchase to avoid problems and make better decisions:

- Decide in advance exactly what you want and set a budget.
- Do your research. Ask family and friends for advice based on their experience. Research the seller and the item or service you are purchasing.
- Review product test results from consumer experts and comments from past customers.
- Get price quotes from several sellers.
- Verify that service providers have appropriate licenses. Doctors, lawyers, contractors, and other service providers must register with a state or local licensing agency.
- Check out a company's complaint record with your local consumer affairs office (p. 106).
- Get a written copy of guarantees and warranties.
- Get the seller's refund, return, and cancellation policies.
- Ask whom to contact if you have a question or problem.
- Read and understand any contract or legal document you are asked to sign or give agreement to online (by clicking "I Agree"). Don't sign a contract with blank spaces or incomplete terms. Insist that any extras you are promised be put in writing.
- Consider payment options. If you have a problem with a credit card purchase, you can dispute the charge (p. 15).
- Check your browser settings when shopping online if you don't want your shopping history shared with data brokers.
- Find out if a subscription or membership automatically renews and how to cancel it. (See "Subscription Boxes" on page 5)
- Find out if reward points expire or how the seller applies reward points to your purchases.

WARRANTIES

A warranty is the promise that a manufacturer or seller makes to stand behind a product's quality. Federal law requires that you have access to warranties before you

QUICK TIPS FOR AVOIDING FRAUD

There are a variety of consumer fraud. Here are some tips to help you avoid being a victim:

- Don't give out personal information. Don't share your Social Security number, birthdate, credit card number, bank account number, passwords, or other personal data, especially if you didn't initiate it.
- Don't be intimidated. Imposters may call and tell you that you must wire money or you'll face arrest, deportation, or auditing by the IRS.
- Don't pay with a wire transfer or gift cards. Scammers call and try to force you to pay them with specific branded gift cards or with a wire transfer.
- Don't rely on caller ID displays. Scammers can change the display to a name, company, or government agency that you trust.
- Ignore unsolicited offers. Don't respond if someone you do not know asks you to send money or money orders to claim a prize, lottery, credit card, loan or other valuable offer.

buy an item. This right applies to in-store, online, or catalog purchases. A standard warranty is part of the item you purchased. There is no additional cost for this protection from the company. There are three main types of warranties:

- Written warranties are printed and come with the item you purchased. In order for a written warranty to take effect, or to make a claim against it, the seller or manufacturer may require you to perform specific maintenance or that you use the item as instructed.
- Spoken warranties are verbally communicated to you by a salesperson or service provider. These warranties are often for services, like free repairs. If you receive a spoken warranty, have the person who gave it, and their manager, put it in writing. Otherwise, you may not be able to get the service that was promised to you.
- Implied warranties promise that the item you purchased will do what it is supposed to do and that it can work under the circumstances that it was designed for. These warranties are created by state laws, and are not specifically stated or written.

The warranty often begins on the date of purchase, but it could start the date the product was manufactured. Ask a seller when the warranty period starts, before you buy. If you purchase an item and it doesn't have a written warranty, it is still covered under the implicit warranty laws in your state. If you bought an item "as is", an implicit warranty doesn't apply.

Service Contracts and Extended Warranties

Service contracts or "extended warranties" extend the guarantee or promise that a product will work, and are an additional purchase. Sellers offer these service contracts at

CHECK FOR RECALLS

Before you buy a product, especially a used or second-hand item, check that it has not been recalled for safety or health reasons. Some recalls ban the sale of an item, while others ask consumers to return the item for replacement or repair. Check for recalls through media outlets, individual manufacturers, and these government websites:

- www.recalls.gov lists government-initiated recalls from federal agencies.
- www.nhtsa.gov publishes safety information on vehicles and equipment such as children's car seats.
- www.fsis.usda.gov lists recalls that involve meat, poultry, or processed egg products.
- www.fda.gov lists recalls for food, medicines, medical devices, cosmetics, biologics, radiation emitting products, veterinary drugs, and pet food.

the time of purchase, and sometimes months or years after your purchase. They are commonly offered when you buy a car, major electronics, or household appliances. Third-party firms (not the manufacturer or the seller) may also try to sell you an extended warranty; some even make cold calls to you with high pressure sales tactics. Some extended warranties duplicate the warranty coverage that you get automatically from a manufacturer or seller. These add-ons may not be worth the cost. Ask these questions before you buy an extended warranty:

- Does the seller, the manufacturer, or another company back the service contract?
- How are claims handled? Who will do the repair work, and where will it be done?
- What happens to your coverage if the dealer or administrator goes out of business?
- Do you need prior authorization for repair work?
- Are there any situations when coverage can be denied? You may not have protection from common wear and tear, or if you failed to follow recommendations for routine maintenance.

Remember, an extended warranty doesn't cover pre-existing conditions, so check an item out before you buy.

Problems with Warranties

If you have problems receiving the services that were promised in your warranty, you can report your dispute. First read your warranty to make sure you know your rights. Then file a complaint with the retailer; if the retailer cannot help, contact the manufacturer. If neither the retailer nor manufacturer can help, file a complaint with your local consumer protection agency (p. 106).

Visit www.consumer.ftc.gov/articles/0252-warranties for more information about warranties.

SHOPPING FROM HOME

Late delivery, shipment of wrong or damaged items, and hidden costs are common complaints when you shop from home. To avoid problems and resolve them more easily, follow the advice in the Before You Buy checklist (p. 2). In addition, here are some general tips:

- Be wary of post office boxes and sellers in other countries. It may be difficult to find the seller to resolve a problem later.
- Know the total price. Make sure it includes all charges, shipping, handling, insurance, and taxes. Coupons and other discounts should be deducted properly.
- Be clear on what you are buying. Watch for words such as "refurbished," "reconditioned," "closeout," or "discontinued."
- Prepare to provide the security code on the back of your credit card. The merchant may ask for that number to ensure that the card is in your possession.
- Keep a record of your purchase. Save any information the seller gives you, such as order confirmation number, product description, delivery date, cancellation policy, privacy policy, and warranties.
- Keep track of your order. If it arrives late, you have the right to cancel and demand a refund.

Your Rights

When you order something by mail, phone, or online, the Federal Trade Commission (FTC) requires the company to:

POP-UP SHOPS

A pop-up shop is a temporary store in a mall, vacant storefront, or city center. Pop-up shops allow you to test products, try new brands, or have in-person interaction with an online retailer. Since pop-up shops will shut down, you should pay extra attention to your consumer rights. Before you buy, ask:

- Are you familiar with the brand? If not, check the reviews of past customers or consumer protection offices in places where they have set up in the past.
- Can you return or exchange merchandise or get a refund? What is the process?
- Does the 3-Day Cooling-Off Rule apply? Purchases for $130 or more in a temporary location should be covered.
- How does the company secure your credit card number or electronic payment information?
- How can you contact the seller, after the pop up store closes?

Inspect items or try on clothing before leaving the shop. Also, consider paying with a credit card so that you can dispute the charge if the item doesn't work.

SHOPPING WITH VIRTUAL CURRENCY

Virtual currencies, or cryptocurrencies, are a way to track, store, and send value over the Internet. Some sellers accept virtual currencies as a form of payment. Before you click “Buy Now”, ask:

- How much will one unit buy? The value of the currency can change, which affects the price of an item.
- Can you return or exchange merchandise? Check the seller’s return and exchange policies.
- What are the protections from fraud? Virtual currencies don’t have the same protections as credit cards for unauthorized purchases.
- What are your options if the seller doesn’t deliver the item you purchased?
- How is your purchase information protected? All purchases made with virtual currencies are recorded in a public ledger. This ledger includes the address of your virtual currency wallet, which can be traced to you.

Report problems with virtual currencies to the Consumer Financial Protection Bureau at www.consumerfinance.gov/complaint.

- Ship the merchandise within the time promised, or if no specific delivery time was stated, within 30 days of receiving your order.
- Notify you if the shipment cannot be made on time and give you the option of waiting longer or getting a refund.
- Cancel your order and return your payment if the new shipping date cannot be met, unless you agree to another delay.

If you cancel your order, your money must be refunded within seven days; if you paid with a credit card, your account must be credited within one billing cycle. The company cannot substitute a store credit. If you applied for a credit account with the merchant at the same time that you placed your order, the company has an extra 20 days to ship the merchandise to allow time for processing your credit application.

These FTC rules only apply to the first shipment of magazine subscriptions or other merchandise you receive repeatedly. Your state may also have rules that apply. Report suspected violations to your state or local consumer protection agency (p. 106) and to the FTC (p. 102).

3-Day Cooling-Off Rule

This federal law protects consumers in their homes during door-to-door sales pitches, or in temporary business locations. The 3-Day Cooling-Off Rule does not apply to new automobile purchases or items sold online. It only applies when a company is selling something that costs $25 or more at your home or more than $130 at other temporary business locations.

To comply with the 3-Day Cooling-Off Rule, a seller must inform buyers of their right to cancel the sale and receive a full refund within three business days.

There are situations in which the Cooling-Off Rule does not apply:

- You made the purchase entirely by mail, online, or telephone.
- The sale was the result of prior contact you had at the seller’s permanent business location.
- You signed a document waiving your right to cancel.
- Your purchase is not primarily for personal, family, or household use.
- You were buying real estate, insurance, securities, or a motor vehicle.
- You cannot return the item in a condition similar to how you received it.

Remember, if you paid by credit card and have difficulty getting your refund, you may also be able to dispute the charge with your credit card company under the Fair Credit Billing Act. See Credit Card Billing Disputes (p. 15).

Online Shopping

Online shopping websites often offer great deals, variety, and convenience. However, consumers need to be careful and make informed decisions about their purchases. Some tips for shopping safely online:

- Stick to websites that are known or recommended.
- Compare prices and deals, including free shipping, extended service contracts, or other offers.
- Search for online coupons and promo codes for discounts or free shipping.
- Get a complete description of the item and parts included, and the price, including shipping. Also find out

ECOMMERCE ARBITRAGE

Normally when you buy an item online from a seller through a larger website, the seller fills your order from their inventory. But sometimes, the seller doesn’t have the item in their inventory. Instead the seller buys it from another retailer (not a wholesaler), and sells it to you at a higher price. You’ll receive the item directly from the second retailer, instead of the seller you actually paid.

As the customer, you are on the bad end of the deal. You could have bought the item directly from the same retailer as your seller did, at a lower price. Also, if you have a problem with the item, you must resolve it with your seller, who would actually have to resolve it with the company they bought it from. That could make it harder to get a refund.

When you buy online, research the item from multiple sellers. Consider shipping costs and taxes. Look at where the item is being shipped from. If that location is different from the seller’s location, that could be a red flag.

BEWARE: FAKE SHOPPING APPS

Scammers create imposter, or fake, apps of your favorite retailers. Fake apps can install malware on your smartphone. They could also steal the payment information you saved in the app or login credentials for other apps. Beware if a shopping app has:

- No history of previous versions.
- A description with incorrect spelling and grammar.
- Very few or only negative user reviews in the app store.

Download a retailer's app directly from their website. If you suspect that an app is a fake, delete and report it to the app store. Visit www.consumer.ftc.gov/articles/0515-apps-help-you-shop-stores for more information about apps.

the delivery time, warranties, return policy, and complaint procedures.

- Read reviews from consumers and independent experts.
- Pay with a credit card. Federal law protects you if you need to dispute charges, but it does not apply to debit cards, checks, cash, money orders, and some mobile payment apps.
- Use a secure browser. Look for a URL that starts with "https" rather than "http." Also look for a closed padlock icon, usually in the lower right-hand corner of the screen.
- Avoid making online purchases on public Wi-Fi hotspots; these may not be secure, and your payment information could be stolen over the network.
- Print or save your purchase order with details of the product and your confirmation number.

Visit www.consumer.ftc.gov for more online shopping information.

AFTER YOU BUY

Even careful buyers can run into problems after a purchase. To minimize them, follow these steps after you buy:

- Save all papers that come with your purchase. Keep all contracts, sales receipts, canceled checks, owner's manuals, and warranty documents.
- Read and follow product and service instructions. The way you use or take care of a product might affect your warranty rights.
- You may be able to get a refund for the difference if the price of the item you bought has decreased within a certain number of days.
- Find out how to dispute a purchase, based on if you paid with cash, debit, credit, mobile app or payment device.

You can dispute a purchase that you made using a mobile app like any other credit card purchase (p. 15). Verify the mobile app dispute process with your card issuer.

SUBSCRIPTION BOXES

Subscription boxes programs deliver food, beauty products, and clothing to your doorstep. You receive a box on a regular (weekly or monthly) basis for a set price.

Subscription boxes are a convenient way to sample new products and styles. Some boxes also offer your favorite items on a regular basis. Before you subscribe, ask:

- How much does the subscription cost?
- How often do you receive shipments?
- Is your subscription automatically renewed?
- Can you cancel your subscription?
- How are items chosen for you? Companies can use formulas, surveys, monthly themes, or an expert curator makes selections.
- Can you get better deals or merchandise in a store?
- Can you pick the items that you receive in your box?
- Are the products of high quality? For food deliveries, does the food stay fresh and at the right temperatures?
- Does the company automatically charge your credit card? Check out the "Recurring Payments" box on p. 27.
- What is the return policy for items you don't like?
- Can you skip deliveries? If so, how far in advance do you need to inform the company?

If this is part of a free trial offer, that enrolls you in a subscription, remember you must contact the company to cancel. See www.consumer.ftc.gov/articles/0101-free-trial-offers for more tips.

Returns and Exchanges

Sometimes you may need to return or exchange an item you purchased. Retailers can create their own return policies, as long as they are posted in a place that you can find them easily. Most retailers' policies require you to return the item within a set number of days, with your receipt, and original packaging.

Refunds are normally given in the same form of payment that you used to buy the item. If you don't have a receipt, the seller may give you a store credit instead. For online purchases, check the seller's policy to find out if return shipping is free. Use the return label if they provided one. If your online purchase came from a seller that has a physical store, ask if you can return the item to a nearby store.

Exchanges may be limited to a "like" item, if the item is available. For online purchases, you may have to call the retailer's customer service number to initiate the exchange.

To make your return or exchange go smoothly:

- Read the seller's return, exchange, and refund policy before you make your purchase.
- Present your original receipt, gift receipt, or packing slip.
- Find out if there is a restocking fee for the return.

- Check for the number of days you have to return or exchange the item. If you have to ship it back, take the number of days in transit into account.
- In most cases, the item you're returning must be unopened or unused.
- Send back all the required pieces, accessories, and instructions that were included with the item. Some sellers may not give you a refund if these items are missing.

Your state consumer protection office (p. 106) may offer more protections with returns and exchanges. Also, your credit card issuer may extend the window of time that you can return an item that you purchased with that card.

BANKING

Your bank accounts are primary ways to store your money, pay your bills, and build your savings. When you shop for a bank, consider the actual products and services, location of branches, fees, and online and mobile banking features.

SAVINGS AND CHECKING

When it comes to finding a safe place to put your money, there are a lot of options. Savings accounts, checking accounts, certificates of deposit (CD), and money market accounts are popular choices. Each has different rules and benefits that fit different needs. The bank or credit union must provide you with the account terms and conditions when you open your account. When choosing the one that is right for you, consider:

Minimum deposit requirements. Do you have to keep a minimum dollar amount in your account to earn interest or avoid account maintenance fees?

Limits on withdrawals. Are there any penalties for the number of times you withdraw money from your account?

Interest. Can you earn interest on your accounts? How frequently is it paid (monthly, quarterly)? Check with banks or credit unions to see and compare their current published rates.

Online bill pay. Can you pay your bills directly from your bank or credit union's website or app?

Deposit insurance. Is the bank insured by the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation (FDIC)? Is the credit union insured by the National Credit Union Share Insurance Fund? You are insured up to $250,000 per financial institution. If you hold a joint account in the same bank where you have individual accounts, the joint account is insured separately for up to $250,000.

Mobile banking. How do you access mobile banking features?

Convenience. Are there branches or ATMs close to where you work and live? Can you bank by phone or Internet?

Money transfer. Does the bank have a system that lets you transfer money to your accounts at other banks or to other people?

Transaction Ordering. How are your transactions ordered (based on the time, type of transaction, or dollar amount)? The method could cause you to overdraw your account.

If you are considering a checking account or another type of account with check-writing privileges, add these items to your list of things to think about:

Number of checks. Is there a limit on the number of checks you can write per month?

Holds on checks. What is the waiting period for checks to clear before you can withdraw the money from your account?

Debit card fees. Are there fees for using your debit card?

Account fees. Does the bank charge maintenance, withdrawal, or minimum balance fees?

Overdrafts and Bounced Checks

What happens if you try to cash a check, withdraw money, or use your debit card for an amount greater than the

MANAGING SOMEONE ELSE'S BANK ACCOUNT

If you manage finances for a loved one, you'll need access to their bank accounts. There are two common methods to have access:

- Power of attorney - allows you to make financial transactions on behalf of another person while they are alive. If the account holder dies, your power of attorney rights end. You can't use the account to pay bills or have the authority to close the account.
- Joint account - allows you to share ownership of the account. You have the authority to use or close the account if the other account holder dies. However, if the other account holder wanted their money to go to someone else after their death, that could cause challenges with the beneficiaries.

No matter what structure works best, remember to act in the other person's best interest, manage the money carefully, keep their money separate from your own, and keep good financial records. Visit www.consumerfinance.gov/managing-someone-elses-money for more details.

amount of money in your account? It depends on whether or not you opted in for overdraft protection:

- If you did not opt in, your bank will reject the payment and not pay on your behalf, and no fee is charged.
- If you opted in for overdraft transfer protection, your bank will transfer money from your savings account or a line of credit, for a fee. Your bank will pay for transactions and charge you a fee, for each payment it covers for you.

Visit www.fdic.gov/consumers/overdraft to learn more.

MOBILE BANKING

Banks offer access to their services from a mobile phone or tablet. Your bank may also offer a mobile app to keep track of your account balance, pay bills, or transfer funds. To get the best of these benefits and protect yourself:

- Make sure that your mobile device and your banking app are password protected.
- Access your accounts on secured connections.
- Sign up for text message alerts to know when transactions affect your account, or if your account balance goes below a minimum threshold.
- Enable two factor authentication or thumbprints to secure access to your account.

MOBILE PAYMENTS

You can pay for purchases with a digital wallet connected to a mobile phone app, fitness tracker, key fob, or smart watch. When it's time to pay, you just hold your device near a mobile payment terminal.

Before you use these services, ask:

- How does the bank or credit card issuer verify that it's really you connecting a payment method to the digital wallet?
- How does the payment system verify your purchases (fingerprint, PIN, text message)?
- How does the mobile payment app protect you as it transmits your payment information to a seller?
- Who is liable for fraudulent charges - you or your credit card issuer? Many card issuers don't hold you liable for fraudulent purchases through mobile payments. But that isn't always the case.
- Is it possible to freeze your digital wallet if your device is lost or stolen? Can this be done remotely?
- How do you dispute a charge?

Consumer Action offers more tips at www.consumer-action.org/modules/articles/your_digital_dollars-mobile_banking_and_mobile_payments.

- Use fraud protection features, so you will know if someone else tries to change your password or account information.

It's important to back up the data stored on your mobile devices, in case you lose it. If you can't recover your phone or tablet, do a remote wipe, to remove sensitive information, including your banking information. If you backed up your data, the information can be restored on a replacement device.

Mobile Deposits

You can take a picture of a check with your smart phone's camera, and then upload and deposit it in your account. Remember, if you make a deposit through your mobile app the funds won't be immediately available. Some banks hold the funds on mobile deposits for more than a week, before they are available to you. Before you snap that picture of your check:

- Find out how long your bank holds the funds from mobile deposits.
- Keep the physical check, just in case there is a problem. After it has cleared, shred it.
- Find out if there are fees to use this feature. If so, are the fees charged monthly, or per transaction?
- Upload the check over a secured network, to protect your account and that of the person who wrote you the check.
- Read your bank's rules for mobile deposits.

Contact the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation (p. 102) for more information on mobile banking.

ATM/DEBIT CARDS

You can use a debit card and personal identification number (PIN) to withdraw cash from an automated teller machine (ATM), make deposits, or transfer funds between accounts. Some ATMs charge a fee if you are not a member of the bank's ATM network.

Retail purchases can also be made with a debit card. Be cautious about using your card online, if your card will be out of your sight (sit down restaurants), places where the final amount is uncertain (hotels), or where the card slot could have been tampered with (self pay kiosks).

Although a debit card looks like a credit card, the money for the purchase is transferred immediately from your bank account to the store's or service provider's account. Federal law does not allow you to stop payment on debit card purchase.

Be suspicious of "shoulder surfers", people who lurk around while you are using your debit card at an ATM or point of sale machine. If you suspect criminal activity, stop your transaction and walk away.

If you suspect your debit card has been lost or stolen, call the card issuer immediately. Your liability for unauthorized use of your ATM or debit card will vary, depending on how quickly you report the loss.

- If you report a debit card missing before it is used, you are not responsible for any unauthorized withdrawals.
- Your liability is limited to $50 if you report the loss within two business days after you realize your debit card is missing. It increases to $500 if you report the loss between two and 60 days.
- If you have not reported an unauthorized use of a debit or ATM card within 60 days after the statement documenting the unauthorized use, you could lose all of the money in your bank account and the unused portion of your line of credit established for overdrafts.
- Sign up for text message or email alerts each time your debit card is used, so that you can know immediately if it has been used fraudulently.

Check the policies of your card issuer; some offer more generous protections from fraud.

UNSOLICITED CHECKS AND CREDIT OFFERS

Legitimate credit offers often come in the form of “convenience checks,” which credit card companies enclose with your monthly statement. However, convenience checks carry higher fees, a higher interest rate, and other restrictions. If you do not want the checks, be sure to shred them to protect yourself from “dumpster divers” and identity thieves.

Beware of checks from someone in a foreign country who claims that you have won a foreign lottery, checks for investment opportunities, or online purchases. These could be scams. Even if you deposit the check, the check may be illegal. Don't rely on money from a check, especially foreign or unsolicited, until your bank says the check has cleared.

If you cash a fraudulent unsolicited check, you could be agreeing to pay for products or services you do not want

BANKING SCAMS

Be aware of these common signs of banking scams:

- Scammers create fake versions of your mobile banking app, to gain access to your account.
- Text messages that claim to be from your bank that require you to verify your bank account number or PIN.
- Requests for you to deposit a check into your account, as part of a fake lottery or sweepstakes.

Take steps to protect yourself:

- Download the bank's app directly from a link on their website to be sure it's the real version.
- Don't reply to requests, by email or phone, to verify your bank account.
- Don't deposit checks from people you don't know.

For more information or to file a complaint, contact:

- Your bank or credit union's fraud department.
- The Federal Trade Commission (p. 102).

or need. In addition, those “guarantees” for credit cards or loans, without consideration of credit history, are probably a scam. Legitimate lenders never guarantee credit.

PREPAID CARDS

Prepaid cards, prepaid debit, or stored value cards allow you to make purchases and conduct financial transactions. Prepaid cards can be helpful if you don't have a bank account or a credit history. Read the card's terms and conditions before you buy it.

Prepaid cards carry protections similar to credit and debit cards. To obtain the benefits, follow the instructions to register and activate your card. Store your card number and customer service telephone number, separately, so you can get a replacement if your card is lost or stolen. Some prepaid card issuers may charge fees for card activation, maintenance, and cash withdrawals.

Gift cards, a type of prepaid card, have extra protections. Funds on gift cards can't expire within five years of when it was activated, unless the terms of expiration are clearly disclosed. However, if you don't use the card, the money stored on it can be sent to the unclaimed money office in your state or the state where the card issuer is incorporated. Visit www.usa.gov/unclaimed-money to locate missing money.

If you have a problem with a prepaid card, first contact the customer service number. Some cards are issued by state or national banks. If the problem still is not resolved with the bank or issuer, file a complaint with the proper authorities. Contact the proper regulatory agency below:

CARS

BUYING A CAR

Whether you buy or lease a vehicle, these tips will help you get the best deal and avoid problems:

- Decide what kind of vehicle best suits your needs and budget.
- Check out the seller. Research car dealers with your state or local consumer protection agency (p. 102) and Better Business Bureau (p. 67). If you are buying from an individual, check the title to make sure you are dealing with the vehicle's owner.
- Take a test drive. Drive at different speeds and check for smooth right and left turns. On a straight stretch, make sure the vehicle does not pull to one side.
- Handle trade-ins and financing separately from your purchase to get the best deal on each. Get a written price quote before you talk about a trade-in or dealer financing.
- Shop in advance for an auto loan. Compare financing options at credit unions, banks, or finance companies. Consider the total finance charges and the Annual Percentage Rate (APR), not just the monthly payment.
- Ask what phrases, like “all-new”, “redesigned”, “next generation” really mean in terms of a car's appearance, structure, and performance.
- Read the fine print in ads and promotions. Often, you must have a high credit score to qualify for low monthly payments, no down payment, or to skip a payment.
- Read and understand every document you sign.
- Don't take possession of the car until all paperwork is approved.
- Consider the effect that different models will have on your insurance policy and premiums (p. 31).
- Compare miles-per-gallon ratings of vehicle models and their annual fuel estimates. Visit www.fueleconomy.gov to research mileage and fuel efficiency reports.

Buying a New Car

Do your research first and compare vehicles.

- Research the dealer's price for the car and options available. It is easier to get the best price when you know what the dealer paid for a vehicle. Locate the wholesale price. This figure factors in dealer incentives from a manufacturer and is a more accurate estimate of what a dealer paid for a vehicle.
- Find out whether the manufacturer offers rebates that will lower the cost of the vehicle.
- Get price quotes from several dealers. Ask if the quotes are the prices before or after rebates are deducted.
- Avoid buying credit insurance, extended warranties, auto club memberships, rustproofing, and upholstery finishes. If these costs are rolled up in your vehicle loan, you'll have to pay interest on them. See “Service Contracts and Extended Warranties” (p. 2).

Buying a Used Car

- Contact your state or local consumer protection office (p. 106) to learn about your rights when buying a used car.
- Contact your state's motor vehicle department to find out what paperwork you will need to register a vehicle.
- Check prices of similar models using the NADA Official Used Car Guide (www.nadaguides.com), published by the National Automobile Dealers Association, or the Kelley Blue Book (www.kbb.com). These guides are usually available at local libraries.

CHOOSE A SAFE VEHICLE

Crash tests can help you determine how well a vehicle will protect you in a crash. These organizations perform crash tests and rate vehicles:

- The National Highway Traffic Safety Administration. Each year, NHTSA (www.nhtsa.gov) crashes vehicles head-on into a wall and bashes them broadside to test their ability to protect their occupants. NHTSA focuses on evaluating vehicle restraints such as air bags and safety belts.
- The Insurance Institute for Highway Safety. A different test by the IIHS (www.iihs.org) uses offset-frontal car crashes to assess the protection a vehicle's structure provides.
- Consumer Reports. The annual auto issue of Consumer Reports (www.consumerreports.org) rates vehicles in terms of overall safety. Its safety score combines crash test results with a vehicle's accident-avoidance factors — emergency handling, braking, acceleration, and even driver comfort.

- Research the vehicle's history. Ask the seller for details concerning past owners, use, and maintenance. Find out whether the car has been damaged in a flood, crash, or labeled a "lemon." Visit www.vehiclehistory.gov to buy vehicle history reports gathered from state motor vehicle departments and other sources. These reports are helpful but aren't a guarantee that a vehicle is accident-free. Also, visit www.safercar.gov to find out if a car has been recalled.
- Research the car's title history with your state motor vehicle department. Make sure there isn't a lien against it.
- The Center for Auto Safety (www.autosafety.org) provides information on safety defect recalls and complaints.
- Compare the mileage disclosures to the car's odometer reading.
- Check the warranty. If a manufacturer's warranty is still in effect, contact the manufacturer to make sure you can use the coverage.
- Ask about the dealer's return policy. Get it in writing and read it carefully.
- Have your mechanic inspect the car. Talk to the seller and agree in advance that you will pay for the examination if the car passes inspection, but the seller will pay if significant problems are discovered. A qualified mechanic should check the vehicle's frame, tires, air bags, undercarriage, as well as the engine.
- Examine dealer documents carefully. Make sure you are buying—not leasing—the vehicle. Leases use terms such as "balloon payment" and "base mileage" disclosures.

BEWARE: CAR HACKING

Cars include computer systems, such as Bluetooth, navigation and entertainment systems, Wi-Fi, and key fobs. This technology is convenient, but hackers can use these systems to hack into your car, remotely. They can take control of important functions, like steering or braking, or access apps and phone logs. If you connect your mobile phone to your car, through Bluetooth, your contacts, personal information, and payment details stored in apps could be stolen. Take steps to protect your car, your safety, and other drivers on the road:

- Turn off Bluetooth or Wi-Fi when you aren't using them.
- Ask your mechanic to install security updates and patches to make your car's systems more secure.
- Clear the memory in your car's GPS, or Bluetooth connection between your car and phone, especially in rental cars or if you participate in car sharing.

Dealer Versus Private-Party Purchases

The Federal Trade Commission requires dealers to post a Buyer's Guide in the window of each used car or truck on their lot. This guide specifies whether the vehicle is being sold "as is" (in the vehicle's current condition, without a warranty) or with a warranty, and what percentage of repair costs a dealer will pay under the warranty. Keep in mind that private sellers generally have less responsibility than dealers do for defects or other problems. FTC rules do not apply to private-party sales.

Buying a used car from a dealer is often more expensive than buying from an individual. Many dealers inspect their cars and provide an inspection report. However, this is no substitute for your own inspection. Some dealers provide limited warranties, and most sell extended warranties. Warranties may not cover a car's pre-existing conditions, so that's another important reason to have the car checked by a mechanic before you buy. Watch out for dealer warranties that are "power train" warranties only, and not "bumper-to-bumper," full-coverage warranties. Compare dealer warranties with ones that are available from other sources.

Some dealers sell "certified" used cars. This means that the cars have had a more thorough inspection and come with a limited warranty. Prices for certified cars are generally higher. Be sure to get a list of what was inspected and what is covered under the warranty.

If you still owe money on your trade-in, make sure that the new dealership pays off the existing loan. There isn't a law that requires a dealer to pay off the loan within a specific number of days.

Buying a used car from a dealer offers more protections, because you are dealing with an institution, which must abide by consumer laws. Purchasing a car from a private seller may save you money, but there are risks. The car could be stolen, damaged, or still under a finance agreement. If a private seller lies to you about the condition of the vehicle, you may sue the individual if you have evidence. An individual is very unlikely to provide a written warranty.

FINANCING

Most buyers need some form of financing to purchase a vehicle. Many use direct lending, that is, a loan from a finance company, bank, or credit union. In direct lending, a buyer agrees to pay the amount financed, plus an agreed-upon finance charge, over a specified time period. Once a buyer and a vehicle dealership enter into a contract to purchase a vehicle, the buyer uses the loan proceeds from the direct lender to pay the dealership for the vehicle.

Another common form is dealership financing, which offers convenience and sometimes special, manufacturer-sponsored, low-rate deals. Before you make a financing decision, it is important to do your research:

- Set your budget and stick to that limit.
- Get a copy of your credit report and correct any errors before applying for a loan.

- Check car buying guides to identify price ranges and best available deals.
- Beware of “loan packing”. This is where a dealer presses you to add features and extended warranties to drive up the amount of your loan.
- Request a loan that does not include a prepayment penalty if you pay off your loan before the loan is due.
- Ask to see the credit application, completely filled out, before you sign it. Make sure your income is reported correctly.
- Get a copy of all your signed paperwork.

More information about vehicle financing, deciding what you can afford, and consumer protections is available at www.consumer.ftc.gov/articles/0056-understanding-vehicle-financing. Visit www.consumerfinance.gov/complaint to file a complaint about your auto loan.

LEASING

When you lease, you pay to drive someone else’s vehicle. Monthly payments for a lease may be lower than loan payments, but at the end of the lease, you do not own or have any equity in the car. To get the best deal, follow the general suggestions for buying a car (p. 9) and these tips:

- Compare leasing versus owning. The Consumer Leasing Act requires leasing companies to give you information on monthly payments and other charges.
- Shop around to compare lease offers from multiple dealers.

BEWARE: GAS PUMP SKIMMING

Skimmers are devices that steal your credit or debit card number. Thieves get this information by placing the skimmer over the credit card slot at gas pumps (and ATMs). They may also collect your PIN by attaching a video camera or another keypad over the real one to record your keystrokes. Beware of a gas pump if:

- The card reader moves or is unsteady. Tug on the card slot to check if it moves.
- The card reader looks differently than those at the other pumps.
- The keypad feels strange, thicker, or isn’t secure.
- The edges of the card reader unit look like someone tried to pry it open or the lock is broken.
- The security seal over the front panel of the gas pump is broken.

Prevent gas skimmer fraud by paying with the gas station attendant instead of at the pump. If the card reader seems suspicious, report it to the gas station attendant.

If you have been a victim of credit or debit card fraud, alert your card issuer.

- Find out what the down payment, or capitalized cost reduction, is for the lease. Consumers with better credit scores qualify for the low down payments and rates that are advertised in commercials and online.
- Calculate the total cost over the life of the lease, and include the down payment. A lease with a higher down payment and low monthly payments may be a better deal for you.
- Consider using an independent agent rather than a car dealership; you might find a better deal. Most financial institutions that offer auto financing also offer leasing options.
- Ask for details on wear and tear standards. Things that you regard as normal wear and tear could be billed as significant damage at the end of your lease.
- Find out how many miles you can drive in a year. Most leases allow 12,000 to 15,000 miles a year. Expect a charge of 10 to 25 cents for each additional mile.
- Check the manufacturer’s warranty; it should cover the entire lease term and the number of miles you are likely to drive.
- Ask the dealer what happens if you give up the car before the end of your lease. There may be extra fees for doing so.
- Ask what happens if the car is involved in an accident.
- Get all of the terms in writing. Everything included with the car should be listed on the lease to avoid your being charged for “missing” equipment.

RECALLS, LEMON LAWS, AND SECRET WARRANTIES

Sometimes a manufacturer makes a design or production mistake on a motor vehicle. A technical service bulletin notifies the dealer of the problem and how to resolve it. They are called “secret warranties” because these free repairs are not publicized,

If you have a problem with a vehicle that is a safety hazard, check whether the manufacturer has recalled your vehicle. Find information about recalls, and other safety defects in NHTSA’s database at www-odi.nhtsa.dot.gov/owners/SearchSafetyIssues or call the DOT’s Vehicle Safety Hotline at 1-888-327-4236. You should report hazards that are not listed to your dealer, the manufacturer of the vehicle (p. 65), and NHTSA at <https://www-odi.nhtsa.dot.gov/VehicleComplaint/>. If there is a safety-related defect, the maker must fix it at no cost to you—even if your warranty has expired.

“Lemon” Laws

If you have a vehicle with a unique problem that just never seems to get fixed, you may have a “lemon”. If your car is declared a “lemon” you will have the right to return the car for a refund. The “lemon” law requirements vary from state to state, but the criteria to qualify as a lemon often includes these conditions:

- The defects must occur early, within the car's first year or within the first 12,000 to 15,000 miles.
- The car must have a substantial defect on parts like the engine, transmission, or steering controls.
- You have to have given repair shops a reasonable number of attempts to fix the problem.
- Your car was in a repair shop and you were unable to use it for a certain number of days within the year.

Contact your state or local consumer protection office (p. 106) to learn whether you have such protections and what steps you must take to get your problem solved. If you believe your car is a "lemon":

- Give the dealer a list of the problems every time you bring it in for repairs.
- Get and keep copies of the repair orders listing the problems, the work done, and the dates the car was in the shop.
- Contact the manufacturer, as well as the dealer, to report the problem. Check your owner's manual or the directory of automotive manufacturers (p. 65).

The Center for Auto Safety (p. 104) gathers information and complaints concerning safety defects, recalls, technical service bulletins, and state "lemon" laws.

REPAIRS

Whenever you take a car to the repair shop:

- Choose a reliable repair shop. Family, friends, or an independent consumer-rating organization should be able to help you. Look for shops that display various certifications that are current. You should also check out the shop's record with your state or local consumer protection office (p. 106), or the Better Business Bureau (p. 67).
- Describe the symptoms. Don't try to diagnose the problem.
- Make it clear that work cannot begin until you have an estimate (in writing, preferably) and you approve it. Never sign a blank repair order. If the problem cannot be diagnosed on the spot, insist that the shop contact you to get your approval once it has found the problem.

- Ask the shop to return the old parts to you.
- Follow the warranty instructions if a repair is covered under warranty.
- Get all repair warranties in writing.
- Keep copies of all paperwork.

Some states, cities, and counties have laws that deal with auto repairs. Contact your state or local consumer protection office (p. 106) for information on the laws in your state. View the FTC's consumer guide to auto repair at www.consumer.ftc.gov/articles/0211-auto-repair-basics for more information.

CAR REPOSSESSIONS

When you borrow money to buy a car or truck, the lender can take your vehicle back if you miss a payment or violate the contract. The lender:

- Can repossess with cause without advance notice.
- Can insist you pay off the entire loan balance to get the repossessed vehicle back.
- Can sell the vehicle at auction.
- Might be able to sue you for the difference between the vehicle's auction price and what you owe.
- Cannot break into your home or physically threaten someone while taking the vehicle.

Some lenders don't repossess the actual car, but install a starter interrupt device in your car when you buy it. If you fall behind on payments, they can press a button to disable your car.

If you know you are going to be late with a payment, talk to the lender. If you and the lender reach an agreement, be sure to get the agreement in writing. Contact your state or local consumer protection office (p. 106) to find out whether your state gives you any additional rights.

RENTING

Before renting a car:

- Ask what the total cost will be after all fees are included. There may be an airport surcharge or fees for drop-off, insurance, fuel, mileage, taxes, additional-drivers, and equipment rental (for GPS and car seats).
- Check in advance to be sure you are not duplicating insurance coverage. If you decline coverage, make sure to get it in writing to prevent surprise charges. You might also have coverage through your personal auto insurance (p. 31), an auto club membership, or the credit card you use to reserve the rental.
- Review your rental receipt to make sure that you were not charged for services you did not request.
- Carefully inspect the vehicle and its tires before renting, and when you return it. Try to return the car during regular hours so you and the rental staff can look at the car together to verify that you did not damage it.

CAR SCAMS

Be aware of these common signs of car scams:

- Dealer promises to pay the loan balance on your trade in vehicle, but doesn't pay.
- The dealership calls you after purchase to say that financing fell through. Now you have to sign new paperwork with higher interest rates, after you already have the car.
- Mechanics use scare tactics to convince you to get services you don't need.

Take steps to prevent being a victim:

- Contact your dealer about the status of warranties and service packages.
- Pay off existing car loans before trading the car in.
- Set up financing with a bank or lender before going to the dealership
- Get written estimates for repair work.

For more information or to file a complaint, contact:

- State consumer protection office (p. 106).
- Federal Trade Commission (p. 102).

- Check refueling policies and charges. Some rental companies, particularly at airports, require you to refuel within a 10 mile radius of the airport or show a fuel receipt when you return the car.
- Pay with a credit card rather than a debit card to avoid holds on the funds in your checking account.
- If you connect your mobile device to the car's Wi-Fi or infotainment system, clear the rental car's Bluetooth memory, including in car GPS, phone's call log, and contacts from the car memory.

Visit www.insureonline.org/consumer_auto_car_rental_insurance.htm for more information about renting a car and the insurance options. Some states have laws to address your rights with short-term car and truck rentals. Contact your state or local consumer protection office (p. 106) for information or to file a complaint.

CAR SHARING SERVICES

Even if you do not own a car, there are times when you may need access to one. In addition to car rental companies, you can now subscribe to services offered by car sharing companies. These companies allow you to borrow a vehicle for short-term use, without the cost of car ownership. These car sharing services charge members on an hourly basis, as opposed to a daily or weekly rate. Do some research. Talk to subscribers or read online reviews about their experiences. Ask about:

- Fees. What are the fees the company charges (annual fees, application fee)? Are they refundable, even if you cancel or are denied membership?

- Availability of cars. Are there cars available at times that you need one? How far in advance do you need to reserve a vehicle?
- Attendants. Are there on-site staff present when you check out your car and return it? This can be very helpful when you need to verify that the car is returned in the same condition as when you borrowed it.
- Fuel. Do you have to pay for gas out of your own pocket or does the company pay for it?
- Extension of time. How easy is it to extend the length of your rental? Is it done through an app or is there a dedicated customer service hotline?
- Cancellation. How far in advance must you give notice in order to cancel a reservation or your membership? Can the company cancel your membership without notification?
- Damages. Are you responsible for damages, even if they were not your fault or they happened after you returned the car? This is especially important if you return the car to a lot that does not have on-site staff.
- Insurance. Is insurance included? You may be insured by a personal policy or the credit card that you use to pay for this service.

CREDIT

Credit is the opportunity to borrow money from a bank, credit union, finance company, store, or credit card issuer to make a purchase. Your ability to manage credit and repay loans can affect your ability to get other loans, rent an apartment, insurance rates, or get a job. Not having a credit history can also increase the interest rates for borrowing money and the amount you pay for apartment or utility service deposits.

The Equal Credit Opportunity Act offers you protection. When you apply for credit, a creditor may not:

- Ask about or consider your sex, race, national origin, or religion.
- Ask about your marital status or your spouse—unless you are applying for a joint account or relying on your spouse's income, or you live in a community property state (Arizona, California, Idaho, Louisiana, Nevada, New Mexico, Texas, Washington, or Wisconsin).

- Ask about your plans to have, or raise, children.
- Refuse to consider public assistance income, regularly received alimony, or child support.
- Refuse to consider income because of your sex or marital status, or because it is from part-time work or retirement benefits.

You have the right to:

- Have credit in your birth name, your first name and your spouse/partner's last name, or your first name and a combined last name.
- Have a co-signer other than your spouse if one is necessary.
- Keep your own accounts after you change your name or marital status or if you retire, unless the creditor has evidence that you are unable or unwilling to pay.
- Know why a credit application is rejected—the creditor must give you the specific reasons, or tell you where and how you can get a copy of the credit report it used to determine its rejection, if you ask within 60 days.
- Have accounts shared with your spouse reported in both of your names.
- Know how much it will cost to borrow money.

For more on your credit rights, visit www.consumer.ftc.gov/articles/0347-your-equal-credit-opportunity-rights or www.consumerfinance.gov/fair-lending.

LOANS

There are different types of loans. Some are secured loans, where you pledge collateral. Collateral is an item you already own, such as a house or car, that you promise to forfeit to the lender if you are unable to repay the loan. If you can't repay the loan, the lender will take your collateral to get their money back. Unsecured loans, such as credit cards and student loans, do not use property as collateral. Lenders consider these as more risky than secured loans, so they charge a higher interest rate for them.

Home Equity Loans

A home equity loan is a form of credit where your home is used as collateral for the loan. This type of loan is often used to pay for major expenses, such as education, medical bills, and home repairs. If you are unable to make payments on time, you could lose your home.

Home equity loans can be either a revolving line of credit or a lump sum. Revolving credit lets you withdraw funds when you need them. A lump sum is a one-time, closed-end loan for a particular purpose, such as remodeling or tuition. Apply for a home equity loan through a bank or credit union first. These loans are likely to cost less than those offered by finance companies.

If you rent your home, or even a room, on a short term basis it may be harder to refinance or get a home equity loan.

Lenders may consider your home a commercial property, instead of a personal residence. As a result, the lender may deny your home equity loan application or charge a higher interest rate.

Installment Loans

Installment loans are loans that are repaid over time with a set number of scheduled payments. The most common installment loans are mortgages or car loans. Before you sign an agreement for a loan to buy a house, a car, or other large purchase, make sure you fully understand all of the lender's terms and conditions, including:

- The dollar amount you are borrowing.
- The payment amounts and when they are due.
- The total finance charge, including all interest and fees you must pay to get the loan.
- The APR, the rate of interest you will pay over the full term of the loan.
- Penalties for late payments.
- What the lender will do if you cannot pay back the loan.
- Penalties if you pay the loan back early.

The Truth in Lending Act requires lenders to give you this information so you can compare different offers.

CREDIT CARDS

A credit card lets you buy goods and services on credit, with the promise that you will pay the issuer the amount you borrowed. Having a credit card is sometimes necessary to make travel reservations and create online accounts. Some sellers, in fact, only accept credit or debit card payments. There are many types of credit cards with various features. The card you choose depends on how you plan to use it. Are you going to use it for everyday purchases or larger purchases? Do you plan to pay off your balance each month?

When you apply for a credit card, consider:

- Variable Annual Percentage Rate (APR). If the interest rate is variable, how is it determined, and when can it change?
- Periodic rate. This is the interest rate used to determine the finance charge on your balance each billing period.
- Annual fee. While some cards have no annual fee, others expect you to pay an amount each year for being a cardholder.
- Rewards programs. Can you earn points for flights, hotel stays, and gift certificates for stores or services? Use online tools to find the card that offers the best rewards for you.
- Grace period. This is the number of days you have to pay your bill before finance charges start. Without this period, you may have to pay interest from the date you use your card or the date the purchase is posted to your account.
- Finance charges. Most lenders calculate finance charges using an average daily account balance, which is the average of what you owed each day in the billing

CHIP AND PIN CREDIT CARDS

Chip and PIN credit cards offer you additional protection from fraud. The chip makes it difficult for a counterfeiter to produce a fake credit card using your payment information.

Even with more security features, you still need to secure your credit cards. Check your statements regularly, don't share your PIN, and report suspected fraud to your credit card issuer. Visit www.consumerfinance.gov for more information.

cycle. Look for offers that use an adjusted balance, which subtracts your payment from your beginning balance. This method usually has the lowest finance charges. Check whether there is a minimum finance charge.

- Other fees. Ask about fees when you get a cash advance, make a late payment, or go over your credit limit. Some credit card companies also charge a monthly fee. Be careful: sometimes companies will upsell by offering other services such as credit protection, insurance, or debt coverage, that you don't need.
- Terms and conditions. Read the agreement before you apply for the card to make sure that you agree with the requirements, such as mandatory arbitration or repossession clauses.
- Balance carry over. Charge cards require you to pay the entire amount due at the end of the statement period. Typical credit cards allow you to carry a balance.
- Security features. Does the card issuer offer fraud alerts or text messages immediately after purchases, or let you turn your card on and off?

Protect your physical card and the credit card number. If a thief gets it, they can make a duplicate card to use in stores. He or she could use your number online or save it in a digital wallet. If you lose your credit card or it is stolen, call the issuer immediately. Once you report it, you have no further responsibility for unauthorized charges. Your maximum liability under federal law is $50 per card.

The Fair Credit and Charge Card Disclosure Act requires credit and charge card issuers to include the interest rates, terms and conditions, and fees on credit applications. You can also do your own research. There are many websites available to help you compare credit cards; some provide free credit card tips, credit card reviews, and calculators.

You have a right to cancel your card at any time. However, that doesn't cancel any outstanding balance on the card. Continue paying the credit card bill until the balance is $0. If you used this credit card number for recurring charges, such as insurance premiums or gym memberships, make sure to update your payment information. See the "Recurring Payments" box on page 27 for more information.

ORDER YOUR FREE CREDIT REPORTS

You can request a free credit report once a year from each of the three major credit reporting agencies—Equifax, Experian, and TransUnion. If you ask the credit bureaus directly, they will charge you a fee to obtain your report. You may want to request your credit reports one at a time, every four months, so you can monitor your credit throughout the year without having to pay for a report. Order your free report, through www.annualcreditreport.com or call 1-877-322-8228.

Check the accuracy of your credit report when you get it.

- Is your full name, social security number, birthdate, and address correct?
- Are employers, creditors, or home addresses listed that don't belong to you?
- Are account statuses correctly reported as open, closed, or delinquent?
- Do judgements, such as liens or bankruptcies, appear correctly?

If there are any inaccuracies, contact the credit reporting agency and creditor that furnished that information to get it corrected. If they don't fix your report, you can file a complaint with the Consumer Financial Protection Bureau.

The Consumer Financial Protection Bureau (CFPB) provides information on selecting a credit card appropriate for your needs. See "How do I Shop for a Credit Card," on the CFPB website, www.consumerfinance.gov/blog/how-do-i-shop-for-a-credit-card.

Complaints

Call the number on the back of your card to complain about a problem with your credit card company. If that doesn't work, contact the CFPB (p. 93). If you fail to resolve the issue, ask for the name, address, and phone number of the card company's regulatory agency. See the chart on page 8 to find the best federal or state regulatory agency to contact.

Contact the CFPB to complain about a credit bureau. For complaints about a department store that offers credit, or other Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation (FDIC)-insured financial institution, write to the agency's Consumer Response Center (p. 102).

Credit Card Billing Disputes

Under the Fair Credit Billing Act, you have the right to dispute charges on your credit card that you did not make, are incorrect, or are for goods or services you did not receive. To dispute these charges:

- Send a letter to the creditor within 60 days of the statement date of the bill with the disputed charge.
- Include your name and account number, the date and amount of the disputed charge, and a complete explanation of why you are disputing the charge. Send your letter by certified mail. Request a return receipt, to make sure it is received.

The creditor or card issuer must:

- Acknowledge your letter in writing within 30 days of receiving it and conduct an investigation within 90 days of receiving your letter. You do not have to pay the amount in dispute during the investigation.
- Credit your account and remove any fees, if there was an error.
- Tell you, in writing, what you owe and why, if the bill is correct. You must then pay it, along with any related finance charges.

If you do not agree with the creditor's decision, file a complaint with the CFPB. You may also file a lawsuit against the creditor, unless your credit card agreement includes a mandatory arbitration clause (p. 62).

CREDIT REPORTS AND SCORES

A credit report contains past information on where you work and live, how you pay your bills, liens, and whether you have filed for bankruptcy. Credit reporting agencies (CRAs) gather this information and sell it to creditors, employers, insurers, and others. The most common type of CRA is the

CREDIT CARD BALANCE TRANSFERS

If you want to reduce your debt, you could transfer other credit balances to a credit card with a lower interest rate. The card issuer may also offer a low teaser interest rate, 0-5%, for a set introductory period. Use an online balance transfer calculator to see if you'll actually save money by consolidating your debt. Consider all the factors before you transfer a balance:

- Will you qualify for the advertised interest rates and teaser rates? Only people with good or excellent credit scores qualify for the advertised rates.
- How long will the teaser rate be in effect?
- Will your budget allow you to pay the balance off before the introductory period ends?
- How much is the balance transfer fee? The card issuer will assess a balance transfer fee, often 3-5% of the transferred balance. You must pay this amount immediately.
- What is the maximum amount you can transfer?
- Will you lose the introductory rate if you are late making a payment?

Continue paying on your existing credit card balance, until you get a confirmation that balance has transferred. Visit www.consumerfinance.gov and studentaid.ed.gov/sa/repay-loans/consolidation to learn more about other debt and student loan consolidation.

SOFT AND HARD CREDIT INQUIRIES

Soft and hard credit inquiries are two ways of pulling your credit report. Both give a company access to your credit history, but they are used for different reasons and have different impacts on your credit score.

A soft inquiry occurs when a company pulls your credit report, without you initiating it. Lenders and credit companies do a soft inquiry to decide whether or not to pre-approve you for credit. Employers, current lenders, and landlords may also do a soft pull. Downloading your own credit report is another example of a soft inquiry. Soft inquiries don't affect your credit score.

A hard inquiry occurs when a lender pulls your credit report to make a lending decision, after you apply for credit. You have to authorize hard inquiries. Each hard inquiry can reduce your credit score. If there are hard inquiries on your credit report, that you didn't authorize, it could be fraud. Dispute hard inquiries you didn't authorize with the creditor listed and the credit bureaus. If neither will help, file a complaint with the CFPB (p. 93).

credit bureau. There are three major credit bureaus:

- Equifax: 1-800-685-1111 or www.equifax.com. To place a fraud alert on your credit report, call 1-888-766-0008.
- Experian: 1-888-397-3742 or www.experian.com.
- TransUnion: 1-800-888-4213 or www.transunion.com or 1-888-909-8872 to place a fraud alert.

File a complaint with the CFPB (p. 93) if you have a problem or dispute with a credit reporting agency.

Credit Scores

A credit score is a number that lenders and other companies use to evaluate your credit risk, at one point in time. Scores generally range between 300 and 850. The higher your score, the less risk you pose to creditors.

Credit scores are based on the information in your credit reports, such as:

- Payment history. Do you pay your debt on time?
- Available credit. What is the total amount of credit available across all of your accounts?
- Credit utilization. How much of your available credit are you using?
- Inquiries and new accounts. Have you recently applied for credit or purchased items that required a company to review your credit reports?
- Type of accounts. What is the mix between your mortgage, car loans, credit cards, and other credit accounts?
- Length of your credit history. What is the age of your oldest and newest accounts, along with the average across all accounts?

There is no universal credit score; there are different versions, created by different companies. Each credit score provider uses their own formula to create a score for you and places different amounts of emphasis on these factors.

Although you can get your free credit reports from www.annualcreditreport.com, you normally have to pay to get your credit score. Some credit card issuers include a credit score to card holders on their credit card statement.

Tips for Building a Better Credit History

- Pay your bills on time. Delinquent payments and collections negatively affect your score.
- Keep balances low on credit cards and other “revolving credit.” High outstanding debt lowers your score.
- Apply for and open new credit accounts only as needed. Don’t open an account just to have a better credit mix.
- Pay off debt instead of moving it around.

You do not rebuild your credit score; you rebuild your credit history. Time is your ally in improving your credit. There is no “quick fix” for a bad credit score, so be suspicious of any deals that offer you a fast, easy solution.

Negative Information in Your Credit Report

Negative information concerning your use of credit can be kept in your credit report for several years. If the information is accurate, only time, hard work, and a personal debt repayment plan will improve your credit history. A bankruptcy can be kept on your credit report for 10 years, paid tax liens for seven years and unpaid tax liens indefinitely. Information about a lawsuit or an unpaid judgment against you can be reported for seven years or until the statute of limitations runs out, whichever is longer. Hard inquiries remain on your report for two years.

Other negative items that can land on your credit report are outstanding parking fines and local government debts, once turned over to a collection agency.

A company can deny you credit, housing, insurance, or a job as a result of a credit report. If this happens, the company must give you the name, address, and telephone number of the CRA that provided the report. Under the Fair Credit Reporting Act (FCRA), you have the right to request a free report within 60 days if a company denies you credit based on the report.

Incorrect Information in Your Credit Report

If there is inaccurate or incomplete information in your credit report:

- Contact the CRA and the company that provided the information.
- Tell the CRA in writing what information you believe is inaccurate. Keep a copy of all correspondence.
- You can upload, mail, or fax any important documents (paid bill, letter stating that a bill has been paid) about your report to the major credit reporting agency’s online dispute website when you submit your dispute.

Under the FCRA, the information provider is required to investigate and report the results to the credit reporting agency. If the information is found to be incorrect, the FCRA requires that company to notify all nationwide credit reporting agencies to correct your file. If the investigation does not solve your dispute, ask that your statement concerning the dispute be included in your file. A notice of your dispute must be included whenever the credit reporting agency reports the negative item. If the creditor that supplied the information about you goes out of business, or can’t confirm its accuracy, the credit reporting agency must remove the item from your credit report.

DEALING WITH DEBT

To reduce your amount of debt, you can do some work on your own. Contact your creditors and inform them that you are having difficulty making payments; they may be able to modify your payment plan. First, develop a realistic budget so you can see your income and expenses in one place and look for ways to save money. Visit www.consumer.gov/articles/1002-making-budget#!what-it-is for help in creating a budget.

Debt Collection

The Fair Debt Collection Practices Act applies to those who collect debts owed to creditors for personal, family, and household expenditures. These debts include car loans, mortgages, charge accounts, and money owed for medical bills. A debt collector is someone hired to collect money you owe.

Within five days after a debt collector first contacts you, the collector must send you a written notice that tells you the name of the creditor, how much you owe, and what action to take if you believe you do not owe the money. If you owe the money or part of it, contact the creditor to arrange for payment. If you believe you do not owe the money, contact the creditor in writing and send a copy to the collection agency with a letter telling it not to contact you.

A debt collector may not:

- Contact you at unreasonable times, for example, before 8 am or after 9 pm, unless you agree.
- Contact you at work if you tell the debt collector your employer disapproves.

- Contact you after you write a letter telling the collector to stop, except to notify you if the collector or creditor plans to take a specific action.
- Contact your friends, relatives, employer, or others, except to find out where you live and work.
- Harass you with repeated telephone calls, profane language, or threats to harm you.
- Make any false statement or claim that you will be arrested.
- Threaten to have money deducted from your paycheck or to sue you, unless the collection agency or creditor intends to do so and it is legal.

File a complaint about a debt collection company with the Consumer Financial Protection Bureau (p. 93), the Federal Trade Commission (p. 102) and your state or local consumer protection agency (p. 106).

Credit Counseling Services

Counseling services are available to help you budget money and pay bills. Credit unions, extension offices, military family service centers, and religious organizations offer free or low-cost credit counseling.

Some local nonprofit agencies provide educational programs on money management. They can also help you develop debt payment plans. Make certain that the agency is accredited by a nationally recognized association of credit counselors.

Typically, a counseling service will negotiate lower payments with your creditors, and then make the payments using money you send to it each month. The cost of setting up this debt-management plan is paid by the creditor, not you. Ask these questions to find the best counselor for you:

- What services do you offer? Look for an organization that offers budget counseling and money management classes as well as debt-management planning.
- Do they offer free information? Avoid organizations that charge for information or make you provide a lot of details about your problem first.
- What are the fees? Are there set-up and/or monthly fees? Beware of agencies that charge large up-front fees.
- How will the debt-management plan work? What debts can be included in the plan, and will you get regular reports on your accounts?
- Can they negotiate with creditors to lower or eliminate interest and fees? If the answer is yes, contact your creditors to verify the agreement.
- Are the counseling fees mandatory or is it possible to get services for a reduced price or for free? If an organization will not help you because you cannot afford to pay, go somewhere else for help.
- Will the counselor help you prevent future debt problems? Getting a plan for avoiding future debt is as important as solving the immediate debt problem.

- Ask for a contract. All verbal promises should be in writing before you pay any money.
- Are your counselors accredited or certified? Legitimate credit counseling firms are affiliated with the National Foundation for Credit Counseling (p. 137) or the Financial Counseling Association of America (p. 136).

Check with your local consumer protection agency (p. 106) and the Better Business Bureau (p. 67) to see whether any complaints have been filed about the counseling service you are considering.

Contact the U.S. Trustee Program at www.justice.gov/ust or call 202-514-4100 if you have concerns about approved credit counseling agencies or credit counseling providers.

Credit repair companies advertise that they can erase bad credit for a hefty fee. Don't believe it. Under the Credit Repair Organizations Act, credit repair companies cannot require you to pay until they have completed promised services. They must also give you:

- A copy of the Consumer Credit File Rights Under State and Federal Law before you sign a contract.
- A written contract that spells out your rights and obligations.
- Three days to cancel without paying any fees.

Some credit repair companies promise to help you establish a whole new credit identity. You can be charged with fraud if you use the mail or telephone to apply for credit with false information. It is also a federal crime to make false statements on a loan or credit application, to give a false Social Security number, or to obtain an Employer Identification Number from the Internal Revenue Service under false pretenses. Contact your state consumer affairs office (p. 106) if you were the victim of a credit repair scam.

CREDIT SCAMS

Be aware of these common signs of credit scams:

- A credit repair company offers to issue a credit profile number to rebuild your credit. These numbers are often stolen social security numbers.
- Debt collectors contact you to collect on "phantom" or "ghost" debts that you don't actually owe.

Take these steps to avoid being a victim:

- Don't accept offers for a new ID number as a way to improve your credit.
- Get your credit reports at www.annualcreditreport.com to verify credit accounts in your name.

For more information or to file a complaint, contact:

- Your state consumer protection office (p. 106).
- Consumer Financial Protection Bureau (p. 93).

EDUCATION

If you are planning to go to college, you have to choose a school that's right for you, develop a plan to pay for school, compare financial aid packages, and how to repay any student loans. Visit the Department of Education's website, collegescorecard.ed.gov to determine the quality of a school by viewing cost data, students' graduation rates. The website also offers data on graduates' ability to repay loans, and earnings after graduation.

You should also check that the school is accredited by a nationally recognized accrediting agency. Accreditation ensures that education programs meet acceptable levels of quality. Start your search for an accredited schools at ope.ed.gov/accreditation.

PAYING FOR COLLEGE

Many state governments have created 529 Plans that help families save for their child's education. These plans allow you to save, while the earnings grow tax-free. There are two main types: "prepaid tuition plans" and "college savings plans." Prepaid plans allow you to pay for your child's college tuition based on today's costs, and then pay out at the future (higher) cost once it's time to enroll in college. College savings plans allow you to invest money in several investment funds, ranging in risk level, to pay for college education. There may also be tax benefits, such as credits and deductions, when you contribute to some college savings plans. Visit www.irs.gov/uac/tax-benefits-for-education-information-center for more information.

Resources

The U.S. Department of Education's website, studentaid.ed.gov, provides information on preparing for and funding education beyond high school with details on federal aid programs. The Consumer Financial Protection Bureau offers tools and calculators at www.consumerfinance.gov/paying-for-college that allow you to compare financial aid offers, and interactive wizards to

FOR-PROFIT SCHOOLS

For-profit colleges offer a flexible way to attend college, but some of them don't live up to their promises.

Some recruiters use high pressure sales tactics to rush you into enrolling. They may overstate the qualifications of instructors, lie about the school's accreditation or ability to transfer credits, overpromise on your job prospects, exaggerate graduation rates, and the success of previous graduates. Unlike traditional colleges, you must sign a contract before starting classes. If you have a problem with the school's program or policies, you may be banned from suing, due to a mandatory arbitration clause in the contract. If you enroll at a for-profit school:

- Read the terms and conditions of the contract closely. Don't feel rushed to review the materials, costs, and/or intimidated to ask questions.
- Beware if a recruiter encourages you to provide false information on your FAFSA.
- Investigate the accreditation of the school at ope.ed.gov/accreditation/Search.aspx.
- Research the number of former students that have defaulted on student loans and/or dropped out.
- Ask what is the average amount of debt students have once they complete the program or when they drop out.
- Find out how many people have graduated from the same major and have found gainful employment in their area of study.

create a plan for repaying student loans. The website www.finaid.org offers calculators to help you determine how much school will cost, how much you need to save, and how much aid you will need.

Download the Department of Education's checklists that explain how to apply for financial aid and college at studentaid.ed.gov/sa/prepare-for-college/checklists. Also, the National Association of Student Financial Aid Administrators provides advice, tips, and information on financing your education at www.nasfaa.org.

Financial Aid

Student financial aid is available from a variety of sources, including the federal government, individual states, colleges and universities, and other public and private agencies and organizations. The four basic types of college aid are:

- Grants. Gift aid that does not have to be repaid and is generally awarded according to financial need.
- Work-Study. The Federal Work-Study Program is a federally funded source of financial assistance used to offset financial education costs. Students who qualify earn money by working while attending school. This money does not have to be repaid.

- Scholarships. Funds are offered by the school, local or community organizations, private institutions, and trusts. Scholarships do not have to be repaid and are generally awarded based on specific criteria.
- Loans. Funds are borrowed and must be repaid with interest. As a general rule, federal student loans have more favorable terms and lower interest rates than traditional consumer loans.

Applying for Aid

You must complete and submit a Free Application for Federal Student Aid (FAFSA) to apply for federal student aid. You can now file your FAFSA starting on October 1, to qualify for funding for the next school year. FAFSA on the Web is the quickest and easiest method of applying. Go to fafsa.ed.gov to apply.

You can hire a college aid planner, a professional to guide you through the FAFSA process. This planner's role is to improve your application so you can qualify for the most financial aid. If you use this service, remember that they are not certified like financial planners or certified public accountants. If you only need a small amount of help contact your school, counselor, or public library, for free. If the planner charges fees, but doesn't deliver on its promises, it could be a scam. Learn more about financial aid scams at studentaid.ed.gov/sa/types/scams.

Federal Student Aid Information Center

The Federal Student Aid Information Center (FSAIC) can answer your federal student financial aid questions and give you all the help you need for free. You can also use the FSAIC automated response system to find out whether your FAFSA has been processed and to request a copy of your Student Aid Report (SAR). For FSAIC contact information, see page 94.

Federal Loan Program Repayment Information

- Public Service Loan Forgiveness Program. Offers forgiveness for outstanding federal loans for individuals working full time in public service jobs.
- Income-Based Repayment Plan. Helps to make repaying education loans more affordable for low-income borrowers.

For more information on these programs as well as other repayment resources and tools, visit these resources:

- U.S. Department of Education/Federal Student Aid: studentaid.ed.gov/sa/repay-loans
- National Association of Student Financial Aid Administrators: www.nasfaa.org
- Consumer Financial Protection Bureau's Know Before You Owe repayment tool at www.consumerfinance.gov/paying-for-college/repay-student-debt.

Comparing Student Loans

Not all student loans are the same, especially federal and private loans. Federal student loans are offered through the U.S. Department of Education. Private loans are offered by banks, credit unions, or schools. Federal loans tend to have lower interest rates than private loans. While federal loans don't require you to have a co-signer, many private loans make this a requirement. Visit studentaid.ed.gov/sa/types/loans/federal-vs-private to learn more about the difference between these loans.

Before you get a loan, determine how much money you need to borrow and only borrow that amount. When you get the loan, be clear about payment terms and what type of loan you have. Once your student loan becomes due:

- Maintain accurate records of your loan, including the loan agreement, interest rates, and account numbers.
- Track your loans to stay updated on how much you owe.
- Make certain that the loan servicer has your current contact and bank account information (if payments are withdrawn automatically).

Use the Consumer Financial Protection Bureau's tools at www.consumerfinance.gov/paying-for-college to compare financial aid offers.

Receiving Student Aid

Your school must make your federal student aid available to you, without charging excessive fees to access the funds. You have the right to have the money deposited into a bank account that you already have, without any penalty. A college must provide a list of the options for receiving your financial aid, without showing bias to any option. Your school can't require you to open an account with a specific bank or a prepaid card to receive your money. Contact the Department of Education (p. 94) to learn more about federal student aid disbursements.

EDUCATION SCAMS

Be aware of these common signs of education scams:

- Ads promote ways that can wipe out student loan debt.
- Companies charge money for access to scholarships but don't deliver.
- IRS imposters call and threaten you with a fraudulent "student tax" that you must pay or face arrest.

Take steps to protect yourself:

- Talk to guidance counselors at school to get scholarship information for free.
- Research companies that claim to help you with your education finances.
- Don't give payment information to anyone who has called you demanding immediate payment.

For more information or to file a complaint, contact:

- The U.S. Department of Education (p. 94).
- The Federal Trade Commission (p. 102).
- Consumer Financial Protection Bureau (p. 93).

Defaulting on Student Loans

A default means you failed to make scheduled payments on a loan. Your loan becomes delinquent the first day after you miss a payment. However, the loan is not in default until 270 days have passed without a payment. The consequences of default can include:

- The entire unpaid balance of your loan and any interest is immediately due and payable.
- Your loan account is assigned to a collection agency.
- The loan will be reported as delinquent to credit bureaus, damaging your credit rating.
- Your federal and state taxes may be withheld through a tax offset. This means that the Internal Revenue Service can take your federal and state tax refund to collect on your defaulted student loan debt.
- Your employer can withhold money from your pay and send the money to the government. This process is called wage garnishment.

Contact your loan servicer immediately if you are having difficulty making your payments. The servicer may be able to help by changing your repayment plan, switching the due date, getting a deferment or forbearance, or consolidating your student loans.

Visit studentaid.ed.gov/sa/repay-loans/default for information to avoid defaulting on your student loan.

Numerous websites post private industry job openings. In addition, all federal government jobs are announced to the public at www.usajobs.gov. Many companies also offer a way to apply online. However, these sites and methods do not replace traditional and proven job-hunting approaches such as networking, personal contacts, business organizations, and interviewing.

Read your entire employment contract. Some employers include a mandatory arbitration clause in your contract. This prevents you from suing them for any wrongdoing, abuse, or harassment. See "Mandatory Arbitration" (p. 62).

WORK-AT-HOME COMPANIES

Not all work-at-home opportunities deliver on their promises. Some classic work-at-home schemes are medical billing, envelope stuffing, and assembly or craftwork. Ads for these businesses say, "Be part of one of America's Fastest-Growing Industries. Earn thousands of dollars a month from your home!" Legitimate work-at-home program sponsors should tell you, in writing, what is involved in the program they are selling. Here are some questions you might ask a promoter:

- What tasks will I have to perform? Ask the program sponsor to list every step of the job.
- Will I be paid a salary, or will my pay be based on commission?
- Who will pay me?
- When will I get my first paycheck?
- What is the total cost of the work-at-home program, including supplies, equipment, and membership fees? What will I get for my money?

The answers to these questions may help you determine whether a work-at-home program is appropriate for your circumstances, and whether it is legitimate.

Direct Selling

Direct selling is a way to sell products directly to customers, often in their homes. As a seller you are an independent consultant, not an employee of the manufacturer. You buy your inventory from the manufacturer, then advertise the merchandise to potential customers.

Multi-level marketing programs involve selling products and then recruiting and training other people to sell products. You can earn commissions on the products you sell and the sales of consultants you recruited. Some

EMPLOYMENT SCAMS

Be aware of these common signs of employment scams:

- A scammer offers to help you find a job for a fee, but after you pay, they disappear and you don't get the services promised.
- Work at home job offers that make big promises, but require you to spend your own money for equipment and supplies.

Take steps to protect yourself:

- Check out the reputation of employment agencies or companies offering work with your state's attorney general (p. 137).
- Meet with the job promoter in person to talk about tasks, salaries, and logistics.
- Beware if a fee is required to work for the company.

For more information or to file a complaint, contact:

- Your state consumer protection offices (p. 106).
- The Federal Trade Commission (p. 102).

SHARING ECONOMY AND TAXES

You may be responsible for paying taxes on the income you receive from driving paying passengers in your private car or renting out your home. If you rent out your home, you may also need to collect occupancy tax from renters. Keep track of the income and expenses used for this work. The IRS offers more information if you work in the sharing economy at www.IRS.gov.

multilevel marketing programs are illegal pyramid schemes. In pyramids, commissions are based on the number of distributors recruited, rather than selling actual products. If you are considering direct selling, ask plenty of questions:

- Do you have to sign a distributor agreement? Read it closely before you agree to be a consultant.
- Can you attract and maintain regular customers?
- What is a realistic amount of income you can expect?
- Are there reports of deceptive practices by the selling plan or by a recruiter?
- How much does it cost to sell this product? In addition to start up costs, consider annual fees, shipping costs, fuel, and advertising.
- How much merchandise do you have to buy for inventory?
- Are monthly minimum sales required to earn a commission?
- Will you be required to recruit new distributors to earn your commission?
- What are the return policies for merchandise you didn't sell?

The Direct Selling Association (DSA) has a code of conduct for companies to follow. Report violations to the DSA at www.dsa.org/consumerprotection/filing-a-code-complaint. Report deceptive direct selling to the Federal Trade Commission (p. 102).

UNEMPLOYMENT

The government's Unemployment Insurance Program provides benefits to eligible workers who become unemployed through no fault of their own and who meet other eligibility requirements. Each state administers its own program under federal guidelines. Eligibility requirements, benefit amounts, and length of benefits are determined by the states. Go to www.dol.gov/dol/topic/unemployment-insurance/index.htm for more information.

Some states offer extended unemployment benefits for eligible recipients. Visit workforcesecurity.doleta.gov for the latest information regarding your state's benefit programs.

If you are unemployed you may also lose employer sponsored benefits. Check how benefits, such as your health insurance and money in your 401K or other retirement plans are affected.

FOOD AND NUTRITION

Consumers have a wide variety of food choices available. You want food that is safe, nutritious, and will not break your budget.

HEALTHY FOOD CHOICES

To help you make healthy food choices, the federal government posts dietary guidelines at health.gov/dietaryguidelines. Federal regulations also require many foods to identify fat content, fiber, and nutrients on their labels. Visit www.nal.usda.gov/fnic/food-labeling for more information about food labels.

Check out these resources for advice, tips, and information on food shopping and nutrition:

FOOD SAFETY

Food safety in the home revolves around three main functions: food storage, food handling, and cooking. By practicing a few simple rules for cleaning, separating, cooking, and chilling, you can prevent most foodborne illness in the home. The website www.foodsafety.gov is your gateway to government food safety information. Visit www.recalls.gov for the latest food safety alerts and recalls.

Food Product Dating

The dates printed on milk, meat, poultry, and egg cartons can be confusing. But you could be throwing food out too early and wasting money. The printed dates relate to the item's peak quality, not to the safety of the food. USDA offers these explanations of the dates:

- Sell by - the last date that a store can have an item on display for sale.
- Best if used by - Recommended date to use by for best quality and taste.
- Use-By - the last date recommended for the use of the product while at peak quality.

Store your food promptly for safety and highest quality. Use the storage chart on this page for recommendations for the length of time to store food in your refrigerator.

Download the FoodKeeper app on your mobile phone, or call the Meat and Poultry Hotline (p. 93) for more detailed information.

Storage times for the refrigerator:

TYPE OF FOOD	SAFE STORAGE (40 °F)
Bacon	7 days
Eggs (in the shell)	3-5 weeks
Fresh beef, lamb, or pork	3-5 days
Fresh fish or shellfish	1-2 days
Hamburger and ground meats	1-2 days
Hot dogs	1 week (opened pack) 2 weeks (unopened pack)
Luncheon meat	3-5 days (opened pack) 2 weeks (unopened pack)
Poultry	1-2 days

FOOD SCAMS

Be aware of these common signs of food scams:

- Farm raised seafood falsely labeled as the more expensive wild versions.
- Door to door salesmen use high pressure tactics to sell meat, supposedly leftover from a previous delivery.
- Cooking oils and spices that really aren't the higher quality (and more expensive version) promised.

Take steps to protect yourself:

- Shop at grocers and markets you trust.

For more information or to file a complaint, contact:

- Your state consumer protection office (p. 106).

SAVING MONEY ON GROCERIES

It can be a challenge to make healthy food choices and stay within your food budget. Follow these tips to get the most from your grocery budget:

- Take an inventory of the food you already have in your home before grocery shopping.
- Make a shopping list and stick to it.
- Use apps to compare prices between grocery stores so that you can get the best deal.
- Compare unit prices (cost per ounce or pound) to get the best deal.
- Buy the generic store brand versions of foods.
- Take advantage of store loyalty savings programs, as well as clipping coupons and online discounts.
- Check the amount of food in the packaging. Some food manufacturers have reduced the amount of food in the can or box, but charge the same price. This is basically the same as a price increase.
- Visit your local farmers market to find fresh produce. Find your local farmers market at www.ams.usda.gov/local-food-directories/farmersmarkets.
- Shop for foods that are in season. When the supply is plentiful, the prices tend to be lower.

If you need assistance with food expenses, you may qualify for assistance from the Supplemental Nutrition Assistance Program (SNAP). Learn more at www.fns.usda.gov/snap/supplemental-nutrition-assistance-program-snap. The Senior Farmers Market Nutrition Program issues coupons to low-income seniors for use at farmers markets. Details are available at www.fns.usda.gov/sfmnp/overview.

ORGANIC FOODS

Organic foods are grown and processed according to USDA regulations and follow specific rules concerning pest control, raising animals, and the use of additives. Organic foods tend to be more expensive than conventionally grown foods. The USDA does not claim that organic food is safer or healthier than other foods.

Look for the USDA organic seal to verify that food is certified organic. Visit www.ams.usda.gov for more information about organic foods.

Other common labels that help you choose certain types of food products include:

Free-Range or Cage-Free. This means the flock was provided shelter in a building, room, or area with unlimited access to food, fresh water, and the outdoors.

Natural. As required by the USDA, meat, poultry, and egg products labeled as “natural” must be minimally processed and contain no artificial ingredients.

Grass-Fed. Grass-fed animals receive a majority of their nutrients from grass throughout their life, while organic animals’ pasture diet may be supplemented with grain.

HEALTH CARE

There are plenty of resources available to help you make health care decisions. Be wary of websites sponsored by companies selling a particular treatment. Contact trusted associations or visit websites run by government agencies and recognized organizations. This information should not replace what you receive from a doctor. Some sites that share trustworthy information include:

- Cleveland Clinic (myclevelandclinic.org) Offers articles, videos, and tools to help you manage your health.
- HealthFinder.gov (healthfinder.gov)—Provides information and tools to help you stay healthy.
- Mayo Clinic (www.mayoclinic.org)—Offers an index of symptoms, diseases and procedures.
- Medical Library Association (www.mlanet.org)—Provides links to websites suggested by librarians.
- MedlinePlus (www.medlineplus.gov)—Provides information on illnesses, diseases, and wellness issues.

CHOOSE A DOCTOR

When searching for a doctor, dentist, or other health care professional:

- Find out whether he or she is licensed in your state. A state or local occupational and professional licensing board can give you this information.
- Research whether he or she is board-certified in the appropriate specialty. Visit www.ama-assn.org and www.abms.org for more information.
- Ask how often the health care professional has performed the procedure you need or has treated your condition. You may be able to find some of this information online.
- Check whether there have been any complaints or disciplinary actions taken against the provider. Visit docboard.org for more information. There are also pay-for-use sites with similar information. Visit www.healthfinder.gov and www.ahrq.gov/patients-consumers for more advice on identifying and working with providers.
- Find out which doctors participate in your health insurance plan. If you are having surgery, check that all providers (facilities, radiologists, anesthesiologists) are also covered by your plan, to avoid surprise bills.

Consider these questions regarding your health care provider and his or her practice:

- Do the office hours work with your schedule?
- Does the doctor have privileges to practice medicine at the hospital you prefer?
- Do you feel that you communicate well with each other? Does the doctor listen to your concerns and explain diagnoses, benefits of new treatments, and prescriptions clearly?
- What is the doctor’s appointment cancellation policy?
- Will you have to pay for a cancelled appointment?

Filing a Complaint

File a complaint with your state medical board if you have a complaint about the medical services you received from a physician. Visit www.fsmb.org/state-medical-boards/contacts or call 817-868-4000 to get the contact information of your state’s medical board.

CHOOSE A HEALTH CARE FACILITY

Online report cards can help you compare health care facilities. U.S. News and World Reports rates hospitals based on information collected from Medicare records and other sources. Visit www.usnews.com/rankings for rankings. Compare doctors and health care facilities at www.healthgrades.com.

When determining the best health care facility for you, consider these factors:

- Does the facility accept payment from your insurance plan?
- Does your doctor have practice privileges to provide treatment to patients at the facility?
- What is the quality of the facility?
- Does the facility specialize in services and procedures that fit with your medical needs?

- Is the facility in an area you can travel to and from easily?
Find health care facilities in your area at www.findahealthcenter.hrsa.gov.

Patient Portals

A patient portal is a website, sponsored by a health care facility or health insurer, that gives you electronic access to your medical information. You may access notes from recent doctor's appointments, lab test results, prescriptions, and more. Some portals also provide medical advice or have medical staff that provide medical care or diagnose symptoms remotely. Visit www.HealthIT.gov or contact your health providers for more information.

Elder Care

The need for services for seniors has grown. The Eldercare Locator (www.eldercare.gov) connects older Americans and their caregivers with information on senior services. Visit acl.gov/Get_Help/Help_Older_Adults/Index.aspx for a list of resources to connect older persons, caregivers, and professionals with important federal, national, and local programs.

If you are looking for a nursing home or other assisted living facility, these organizations can help:

- Nursing Home Compare, operated by the U.S. Department of Health and Human Services, will help you compare facilities in many states. Go to www.medicare.gov/nursinghomecompare or call 1-800-633-4227.
- Eldercare Locator (www.eldercare.gov) provides information and referral services for those seeking local and state support resources for the elderly (p. 96).
- LeadingAge (www.leadingage.org) helps you locate nonprofit organizations that meet the needs of the elderly.
- The Commission on Accreditation of Rehabilitation Facilities (www.carf.org) gives its seal of approval to qualifying facilities; call 1-888-281-6531 (p. 136).
- The Joint Commission accredits hospitals, nursing homes, and other health care organizations. Check out a local facility at their website www.qualitycheck.org.

Read the contracts with long term care facilities carefully. Your contract with a nursing home or assisted living facility may include a mandatory arbitration clause that will require you to resolve a dispute through arbitration. However, in 2016 a rule was issued that prohibits mandatory arbitration clauses from being included in new contracts with nursing homes.

MEDICAL BILLING

If you have received medical care, you may receive a bill for the services. For planned medical care, ask questions beforehand:

- Will there be separate charges for the surgeons, trauma teams, anesthesia, dietetics, or other specialists? Are they all contracted with your health insurance plan?
- How much are facility, activation, or emergency room fees?
- Can you get an estimate of how much your insurer will pay?
- Can you bring your own crutches, slings, or canes, if needed? These items can add to the cost of a hospital stay.
- Are there extra fees for blood work, even if part of a routine physical exam?
- Is there an option to "opt-out" of any services?
- Can you set up a payment plan, in advance of a procedure?

After you receive medical attention, your health insurance company will send you a statement or explanation of benefits, that lists the full cost of the care or procedure, the amount that your insurance paid, and the amount that you are responsible for paying.

- Carefully review both the explanation of benefits from your insurance company and invoices from medical providers.
- Request line item billing from hospitals if you are questioning hospital charges.

HEALTH CARE SCAMS

Be aware of these common signs of health care scams:

- Bills for services and procedures that you didn't receive.
- Claims of "miracle" drugs, quick fixes, medical breakthroughs, and cures for serious diseases.
- Companies sell fraudulent products (wristbands, patches, sprays) to prevent Zika virus.

Take steps to protect yourself:

- Talk to your doctor before you take any medication that he or she didn't prescribe.
- Don't share your Medicare or health insurance number in exchange for a "free" treatment.

For more information or to file a complaint, contact:

- The Federal Trade Commission (p. 102).
- Your state consumer protection office (p. 106).
- Food and Drug Administration (p. 96).

CROWDFUNDING

You may use crowdfunding websites to raise money to pay for medical expenses, education, or emergencies.

If you create a crowdfunding campaign, the money you collect may be taxed by the IRS. You could also lose your eligibility for Medicaid, Social Security income, or food vouchers. Contact your local Medicaid, Social Security, or SNAP benefits offices to learn how crowdfunding affects your eligibility for benefits.

- Make sure that the medical billing codes, from the service provider and your insurer, match the treatment you received. Your insurer and the health care provider may use different codes, but they should reflect the same service.
- Find out how to enroll in balance billing for outstanding invoices.
- Can you get a refund for prepaid medical services or stays in long term facilities or hospice centers?
- Keep records (names, dates, times) of all contact with your insurance company and medical billing offices.

Use the sample complaint letter (p. 60) if you need to dispute a medical bill.

Inpatient or Outpatient Status

The amount you pay out of pocket for a hospital stay depends on if your stay is considered inpatient or outpatient (“under observation”). Even if you stay in the hospital for several days, you may still be considered an outpatient. The hospital must inform you of your status, orally or in writing. Patients covered by Medicare must receive a Medicare Outpatient Observation Notice (MOON). If they don’t tell you, ask for your status.

You often pay more for outpatient stays than inpatient hospitalization. In addition, your health insurer or Medicare may deny coverage for follow-up services in skilled nursing homes.

PRESCRIPTION DRUGS

Prescription drugs can be a major expense. Before filling a prescription, make certain that your pharmacy has your current health and prescription insurance information on record so you get the best price possible.

If you have difficulty paying for your medications, contact the manufacturer. Some manufacturers have patient assistance programs to help you afford your medication.

Online Pharmacies

You may get your prescription filled through an online pharmacy. There are legitimate online pharmacies, but also some fraudulent ones. They advertise prescription drugs for very low prices, but don’t treat your condition. They may also charge you for medicines you never received. Be suspicious if an online pharmacy:

- Allows you to buy medication without a prescription from your doctor.
- Offers medication at deep discounts that seem too good to be true.
- Is not licensed and has no physical address in the U.S.
- Sends unsolicited emails (spam) offering cheap drugs.
- Does not have a licensed pharmacist available to answer your questions.

Check the Food and Drug Administration’s (FDA) database of safe online pharmacies and get more tips to protect yourself at www.fda.gov/BeSafeRx or call 1-888-463-6332. If you suspect that a pharmacy is fake, report it to the FDA at www.fda.gov/Safety/ReportaProblem/ucm059315.htm.

Medicare Prescription Drug Coverage

Medicare offers prescription drug coverage to senior citizens and others who need financial assistance. Prescription coverage is available under Part D of the program, or Part C if you are enrolled in the Medicare Advantage Plan. Everyone with Medicare can join a drug plan to get this coverage. Not all Medicare drug plans are the same. If you are not sure whether a drug plan is approved by Medicare, call 1-800-633-4227. Look for the “Medicare Approved” seal on drug discount cards to make sure you are getting the best deal.

Medicare prescription drug coverage pays expenses up to a certain dollar amount; once your prescription costs exceed that amount, there is a temporary limit on what your prescription drug plan will cover. However, once your out-of-pocket spending reaches a higher ceiling, your prescription coverage will kick back in. Any amount of prescription drug spending between these two limits is called the coverage gap or Medicare “donut hole.” If you have limited income and resources, you may get extra help to cover prescription drugs for little or no cost. Contact the Centers for Medicare & Medicaid Services (p. 96) or visit www.medicare.gov for more information about Medicare benefits.

ADVANCE MEDICAL DIRECTIVES

Advance directives are written documents that tell your doctors what kind of treatment you want if you become unable to make medical decisions (for example, if you are in a coma). Forms and laws vary by state, so it is a good idea to understand the laws in your state when you write advance directives. Also, complete these documents before you become very ill, if possible. You should file a copy with your primary care physician. Federal law requires hospitals, nursing homes, and other institutions that receive Medicare or Medicaid funds to provide written information regarding advance medical directives to all patients upon admission.

A living will is one type of advance directive that goes into effect when a person is terminally ill. A living will does not give you the opportunity to select someone to make medical decisions for you, but it does allow you to specify the kind of treatment you want in specific situations. For example, you might choose to specify that you do not want to be treated with antibiotics if death is imminent. You can, if you choose, include an advance directive that you do not wish to be resuscitated if your heart stops or if you stop breathing. In this case, a Do Not Resuscitate (DNR) order would be entered on your medical chart.

Naming a Durable Power of Attorney for Health Care

A durable power of attorney for health care (sometimes called a durable medical power of attorney) specifies the person you have chosen to make medical decisions for you.

A durable power of attorney is activated when you are unconscious, or unable to make medical decisions. You need to choose someone who meets the legal requirements in your state for acting as your agent. State laws vary, but most states disqualify anyone under the age of 18, your health care provider, or employees of your health care provider.

The person you choose as your agent must:

- Be willing to speak and advocate on your behalf.
- Be willing to deal with conflict among friends and family members, if it arises.
- Know you well and understand your wishes.
- Be willing to talk with you about these issues.
- Be someone you trust with your life.

An emergency contact is not the same as a durable power of attorney. You can choose the same person for both roles, but your emergency contact isn't automatically allowed to make medical decisions for you.

See the Wills and Funerals section (p. 51) to learn more about choosing people to act on your behalf, such as trustees and executors.

Buying or renting a home are some of the most significant expenses that you may have as a consumer. There are many decisions to make, such as choosing the best housing option for you, how to finance it, and choosing movers and contractors for home repairs. Use the resources from the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development at www.hud.gov, the Consumer Financial Protection Bureau at www.consumerfinance.gov/owning-a-home, as well as your local housing department so you know your rights and responsibilities.

BUY A HOME

Buying a home is one of the most complex financial decisions you will ever make. There are many financial and legal issues involved. In addition, you need housing professionals, real estate agents, lenders, and home inspectors acting in your best interest. Before you buy:

- Get a copy of your credit report (p. 15). Your credit report affects the interest rates, terms of loans, and the amount of a down payment.
- Attend home buying workshops, sponsored by local organizations or work with a HUD-certified housing counselor.
- Hire a buyer's agent who works for you.
- Get prices of similar homes in the neighborhood. Knowing these prices can help you avoid overpaying.
- Have the property inspected. Use a licensed home inspector to look over the property before you buy it.

Mortgages

A mortgage is a loan to purchase a home, where the home is the collateral to secure the loan. When shopping for a home mortgage, get all of the relevant information:

- Research current interest rates. Check the real estate section of your local newspaper, use the Internet, or call several lenders for information.

RECURRING PAYMENTS

Recurring, or automatic payments, occur when you allow a company to withdraw money from your bank account, or post to a credit card, on a regular basis. They are a convenient way to pay regular expenses, like a mortgage or monthly rent, insurance, gym memberships, and subscriptions. However, it can be a challenge to dispute a payment or cancel a service. Before a company collects automatic payments, it must:

- Inform you of the terms and conditions.
- Get your consent to collect automatic payments.
- Tell you how to stop the payments.

Keep your payment information up to date if you sign up for recurring payments. Also, mark payments on your calendar, to avoid overdrafts.

You have the right to cancel automatic payments but this does not cancel your contract with the company. Dispute unauthorized automatic charges with your bank or credit card company within 60 days. File a complaint with the FTC (p. 102) if the terms of the service were misleading. Complain to the CFPB (p. 93) for any problems with the billing.

- Check the rates for 15-year, 20-year, and 30-year mortgages. Shorter-term mortgages can reduce the amount of interest you pay.
- Ask for details on the same loan amount, loan term, and type of loan from multiple lenders so you can compare the information. Be sure to get the APR, which takes into account the interest rate, points, broker fees, and other credit charges expressed as a yearly rate.
- Ask whether the rate is fixed or adjustable. The interest rate on adjustable-rate mortgages (ARMs) can vary a great deal over the lifetime of the mortgage. An increase of several percentage points might raise payments by hundreds of dollars per month.
- If a loan has an adjustable-rate, ask when and how the rate and loan payment can change.
- Find out how much of a down payment is required. Some lenders require 20% of the home's purchase price as a down payment. But many lenders offer loans that require less. In these cases, you may be required to purchase private mortgage insurance (PMI) to protect the lender if you fall behind on payments.
- If PMI is required, ask what the total cost of the insurance will be. How much will the monthly mortgage payment be when the PMI premium is added, and how long will you be required to pay PMI?

- Ask whether you can pay off the loan early, and whether there is a penalty for doing so.
- How much will the property taxes be on the home? This expense is often included in your monthly mortgage payment.

When you shop for a mortgage, a lender will give you a loan estimate form. This form should highlight the main features of that loan, such as the amount, if the rate is fixed or adjustable, and term. If you shop for rates from multiple lenders, these forms will help you compare loan options.

Once you have chosen a lender and a home to buy, and gone to contract, you will have to go into a closing meeting. Three business days before the closing, your lender must give you a Closing Disclosure. Compare this document to the loan estimate you received from the lender in the beginning of the home buying journey. Be sure there are no discrepancies to avoid costly surprises at closing.

Visit www.consumerfinance.gov/owning-a-home to find samples of both documents, a home loan toolkit and other guides for the home buying process.

HOME FORECLOSURE

Foreclosure is the legal means that your lender can take to repossess your home. If you owe more than your property is worth, a deficiency judgment is pursued. This action

Fixed-rate and adjustable-rate mortgages are the two main types of mortgages, but there is a wide variety of other mortgage products available. Below are pros and cons of some of the mortgage products you want to consider:

TYPE OF MORTGAGE	PROS	CONS
Adjustable-rate (ARM) or variable-rate mortgage	Usually offers a lower initial rate of interest than fixed-rate loans.	After an initial period, rates fluctuate over the life of the loan. When interest rates rise, generally so do your loan payments
Balloon mortgage	Usually a fixed-rate loan with relatively low payments for a fixed period.	After an initial period, the entire balance of the loan is due immediately. This type of loan may be risky for some borrowers.
Federal Housing Administration (FHA) loan	Allows buyers who may not qualify for a home loan to obtain one with a low down payment.	The size of your loan may be limited.
Fixed-rate mortgage	No surprises. Interest rate stays the same over the entire term, usually 15, 20, or 30 years.	If interest rates fall, you could be stuck paying a higher rate.
Interest-only	Borrower pays only the interest on the loan in monthly payments for a fixed term. .	After an initial period, the balance of the loan is due. This could mean higher payments, paying a lump sum, or refinancing.
Reverse mortgage	Allows seniors to convert equity in their homes to cash. You don't have to pay back the loan and interest as long as you live in the house.	The entire loan amount is due immediately once the borrower no longer resides in the home. This can cause problems for the borrower's estate.
Veterans Administration (VA) loan	Guaranteed loans for eligible veterans, active duty personnel, and surviving spouses. Offers competitive rates, low or no down payments.	The size of your loan may be limited.

would require you to pay the difference between the amount you owe and your home's value. Both foreclosures and deficiency judgments appear on your credit report.

Take these steps to avoid foreclosure:

- Do not ignore letters from your lender. If you are having problems making payments, call or write to your lender's Loss Mitigation Department immediately. Be prepared to provide financial information, such as your monthly income and expenses. Without this information, the lender may not be able to help you.
- Stay in your home. You may not qualify for assistance if you abandon your property.
- Contact a HUD-approved housing counselor. Call 1-800-569-4287 or TDD 1-800-877-8339 for the housing counseling agency nearest you.
- Contact Making Home Affordable for help. Visit www.makinghomeaffordable.gov or call 1-888-995-4673, or 1-877-304-9709 for hearing-impaired homeowners, to talk to a HUD-approved credit counselor who will guide you through your options for free.

Beware of offers and sales pitches that target homeowners who are struggling to make mortgage payments. Additional advice, resources, and tips for homeowners can be found under Home Equity Loans (p. 14) and Homeowners and Renters Insurance (p. 33).

MOVING COMPANIES

Not all moving companies are the same. Although many are legitimate, some attempt to take advantage of their clients. Movers may raise the price of the move, after your possessions are on their truck, and threaten to hold your possessions hostage if you don't pay. Follow these guidelines to help you choose the right mover:

- Make sure the mover has an operating license. Visit www.protectyourmove.gov to verify a mover's license for moves from one state to another (inter-state). Check your state, county, or local consumer protection agency (p. 106) for moves within a state (intra-state).
- Confirm that the mover has insurance. If items are damaged during the move, the mover's insurance should cover it. Ask how to file a complaint and if there are limits to the coverage. Visit www.fmcsa.dot.gov/protect-your-move/valuation-insurance for more information about the levels of mover's insurance coverage.
- Check the mover's complaint record. Contact your state or local consumer protection agency (p. 106) or the Better Business Bureau (p. 67) to see if there is a history of complaints.
- Insist on an in-person estimate, so the mover can see what needs to be moved. Then get the estimate in writing. Be wary of very low estimates. A company may quote a low price, but ask for more money before they'll remove your belongings from their truck.
- Before you move, ask about extra fees for boxes, blankets and packing materials, before you move.

If you have a dispute with a moving company, file a complaint with the Federal Motor Carrier Safety Administration by calling 1-888-368-7238 or by visiting www.fmcsa.dot.gov.

HOME IMPROVEMENTS AND REPAIRS

Home improvements and repairs can cost thousands of dollars and are the subject of frequent complaints.

When selecting a contractor:

- Get recommendations and references. Talk to friends, family, and others who have used the contractor for similar work.
- Get at least three written estimates. Insist that contractors come to your home to evaluate what needs to be done. Be sure the estimates are based on the same work so you can make meaningful comparisons.
- Check contractor complaint records with your state or local consumer protection agency (p. 106) or the Better Business Bureau (p. 67).
- Make sure the contractor meets licensing and registration requirements. Your state or local consumer protection agency (p. 106) can help you determine the necessary requirements.
- Get the names of suppliers and ask them whether the contractor makes timely payments.
- Contact your local building inspection department to check the permit and inspection requirements. Be wary if the contractor asks you to get the permit; it could mean the firm is not licensed.
- Be sure your contractor is insured. The contractor should have personal liability, property damage, and workers' compensation insurance for workers and subcontractors.
- Insist on a written contract that states exactly what work will be done, the quality of materials that will be used, warranties, timetables, the names of any subcontractors, the total price of the job, and the schedule of payments.
- Try to limit your down payment. Some states have laws limiting the amount of down payment required.
- Understand your payment options. Compare the cost of getting your own loan versus contractor financing.
- Don't make a final payment or sign a final release until you are satisfied with the work and know that subcontractors and suppliers have been paid. Beware: some state laws allow unpaid subcontractors and suppliers to put a lien on your home for bills the contractor failed to pay.

- Pay by credit card when you can. You may have the right to withhold payment to the credit card company until problems are corrected.

Be especially cautious if the contractor:

- Comes door-to-door or seeks you out.
- Happens to have material left over from a recent job.
- Offers you discounts for finding other customers.
- Quotes a price that is out of line with other estimates.
- Pressures you for an immediate decision.
- Can only be reached by leaving messages with an answering service.
- Has no physical address for the business.
- Has out-of-state license plates.
- Asks you to pay for the entire job up front.

With most home improvements, federal law gives you three business days to cancel without penalty. See the 3-Day Cooling-Off Rule (p. 4). You would be liable for any benefit already received. State laws may also provide some protection. And remember, if you finance home improvements with a home equity loan (p. 14) and do not make your payments, you could lose your home.

RENTING AND LEASING

You may choose to rent a home, instead of buying one. Renting offers flexibility, and eliminates some major expenses, like property taxes, down payment, and property maintenance. Take these steps and be prepared when you meet with a prospective landlord:

- Get a current copy of your credit report. Make corrections before starting your apartment search.
- Check with the Better Business Bureau (p. 67) or your local consumer protection office (p. 106) to determine if your prospective landlord has any existing complaints from previous tenants.
- Bring a completed rental application with you; written references from previous landlords, employers, friends, and colleagues.
- Get all promises for discounts or amenities in writing.
- Know your rights to live in a habitable rental unit.
- Keep communication open with your landlord.
- Purchase renters insurance to cover your valuables. See more information under Homeowners and Renters Insurance (p. 33).
- Make sure the security deposit refund procedures are spelled out in your lease or rental agreement.
- Find out how disputes are handled with your landlord.

A lease is a legally binding agreement that outlines the obligations of a property owner and the tenants. Read the lease carefully and discuss anything you do not understand. By signing a lease, you agree to abide by the rules and responsibilities that are included. Some things to look for in a lease:

- Clauses that allow the landlord to change the terms of the lease after it is signed.
- Requirements and responsibilities of the tenants and landlord to do routine repairs such as lawn maintenance, cleaning, or notification about needed repairs. All responsibilities should be stated clearly.
- Restrictions that would prevent you from living normally or comfortably in the home.
- Terms of the lease and any important dates such as when the rent is due or garbage pickup days.
- Extra fees for parking spaces or storage, garbage collection, water, and pets.
- Information regarding utility providers, how to arrange for service, and whether the landlord or tenant is responsible for paying the bills (see Utilities, page 50).

Always get a copy of the signed lease to keep in your records. Any clause or terms in the agreement affects all parties who sign.

The Fair Housing Act protects tenants who lease or rent property. If you think your rights have been violated, you may write a letter to, or call, the HUD office nearest you (p. 98). You have one year after the alleged violation to file a complaint with HUD. Each state has its own set of tenant rights, laws, and protections. For a state-by-state directory, visit www.hud.gov/local.

If you need help finding affordable housing, there are agencies that can help. You may qualify for public housing, which are state-owned, affordable rental homes for low-

HOUSING SCAMS

Be aware of these common signs of housing scams:

- Foreclosure rescue companies offer to negotiate directly with your lender, and tell you to send your payments to them instead of your loan servicer.
- A lender encourages you to lie about your income, expenses, or cash available for down payments in order to get a loan.
- You are asked to sign purchase or sale documents without reviewing them, or with blank spaces.

Take steps to protect yourself:

- Research lenders and realtors.
- Attend homebuyer classes through a HUD-certified housing counselling agency.

For more information or to file a complaint, contact:

- The Consumer Financial Protection Bureau (p. 93).
- The Department of Housing and Urban Development (p. 98).

income families, the elderly, and people with disabilities. You may also apply for the Housing Choice Voucher Program. In this program, you find a rental property yourself and use the voucher to pay for all or part of the rent. HUD (p. 98) offers several housing assistance programs for tenants and landlords as well as information on rights of residents and displaced tenants. Visit www.usa.gov/finding-home for more information about affordable housing programs.

INSURANCE

Insurance protects you from financial loss in the event of a disaster or other hardship. By purchasing insurance policies, you can receive reimbursement for losses due to car accidents, property theft, natural disasters, medical expenses, and loss of income due to disability or death.

Get insurance information from the American Council of Life Insurers (p. 135), the Insurance Information Institute (p. 136), the National Association of Insurance Commissioners (p. 137), and your state insurance department (p. 123), or www.insure.com.

When buying any type of insurance, you should:

- Find out whether your state insurance department (p. 123) offers any information about insurance companies and rates.
- Check several sources for the best deal. Search online or with an independent insurance agent. These agents work with several insurers and may be able to get you a better deal.
- Make sure the insurance company is licensed and covered by the state's guaranty fund. The fund pays claims in case the company defaults. Your state insurance department (p. 123) can provide this information.
- Ask your insurance agent about discounts. You could get a lower premium if you have safety features in your home, such as dead-bolt locks, smoke detectors, an alarm system, storm shutters, or fire-retardant roofing material. Similarly, you may save on car insurance based on your car's safety features, the number of miles you drive, your age (turning 25 or 50), your good grades (if you are a student) and/or your driving record (no moving vehicle violations or accidents in three years). You might also be able to get discounts if you are a member of civic or alumni associations, or insure your vehicle and home with the same company.

- Take major life changes (had a child, bought a home) into account. Life events affect your insurance needs.
- Consider a higher deductible. Increasing your deductible by just a few hundred dollars can make a big difference in your premiums.
- Check the financial stability and soundness of the insurance company.
- Research the complaint record of the insurance company. Contact your state insurance department (p. 123), or visit the website of the National Association of Insurance Commissioners (www.naic.org), which has a database of complaints filed with state regulators.
- Find out what others think about the company's customer service. Consumers can rate homeowner insurance companies at www.jdpower.com/industry/insurance.
- Make sure you receive a written policy. This tells you that the agent forwarded your premium to the insurance company. If you do not receive a policy within 60 days, contact your agent and the insurance company.
- Shop around, even if you are satisfied with your current insurer. Your insurer may increase your rates annually, just because they can. Make sure your rate is still competitive for the level of coverage you need.

If you suspect fraud, call the National Insurance Crime Bureau's hotline at 1-800-835-6422. Check out www.insurancefraud.org for more information.

AUTO INSURANCE

Auto insurance protects you from paying the full cost for vehicle repairs and medical expenses due to a collision. A number of things affect the premiums you pay for this protection, including your:

- gender
- age
- marital status
- credit history
- car's make and model
- city and neighborhood

Types of Auto Insurance

Every state requires drivers to carry minimum levels of auto insurance coverage, or the equivalent in financial responsibility waivers. These requirements ensure that you can pay for property damages or medical expenses. There are several components that can make up your insurance policy:

- Liability coverage protects you if you are at fault for a collision. It pays for medical expenses and vehicle damage for the other driver and passengers.

- Uninsured motorist coverage pays for damages to your car and medical expenses if an uninsured driver hits your car.
- Collision coverage pays to repair your vehicle, if you were at fault for the collision.
- Underinsured motorist coverage pays damages for your car if someone hits it, but doesn't have enough insurance to cover your medical expenses and car damages.
- Comprehensive coverage pays for damages to your car due to theft, fire, or falling objects.

Auto insurance requirements vary from state to state, but liability coverage is mandatory in most states. You may choose to opt out of certain types of coverage, depending on your budget and car's age. Check with your state insurance regulator (p. 123) to learn more about its requirements and to research insurers.

Read the declarations page of your auto insurance policy. This summary includes your policy's important details: the duration of coverage, annual premium, the maximum amount your insurance company will pay out for each type of claim, and how your premium payment is split between each part of your coverage.

Talk to your insurer if you drive your personal car as part of the shared services industry. Personal auto insurance may not be available if you drive for paying customers.

DISABILITY INSURANCE

Disability insurance helps you replace lost income, if you are unable to work due to sickness or injury. Many employers offer some type of disability insurance coverage for employees, or you can get an individual disability insurance policy. There are two types of disability policies: short-term disability (STD) and long-term disability (LTD). Short-term disability policies have a maximum benefit of two years, while long-term disability policies have benefits that can last the rest of your life.

When purchasing disability insurance, ask:

- How is disability defined? Some policies consider you disabled if you are unable to perform the duties of any job. Some plans pay benefits if you are unable to do the usual duties of your own occupation.
- When do benefits begin? Most plans have a waiting period before payments begin.
- How long do benefits last? After a specified waiting period, LTD payments are usually available until you reach age 65. Shorter or longer terms are also available.
- What dollar amount is promised? Can benefits be reduced by Social Security disability and workers' compensation payments? Are the benefits adjusted for inflation? Will the policy provider continue making contributions to your pension plan so you have retirement benefits when the disability coverage ends?

HEALTH INSURANCE

Group Policies

Many consumers have health care coverage from their employers. Others have medical care paid through a government program such as Medicare (p. 96), Medicaid (p. 96), or the Veterans Health Administration (p. 101).

If you have lost your group coverage from an employer as the result of unemployment, death, divorce, or loss of "dependent child" status, you may be able to continue your coverage temporarily under the Consolidated Omnibus Budget Reconciliation Act (COBRA). You, not the employer, pay for this coverage. When one of these events occur, you must be given at least 60 days to decide whether you wish to purchase the coverage.

Medicare and Medicaid

There are also health insurance programs for people who are seniors, disabled, or have low incomes.

- Medicare provides health insurance for people who are 65 years or older, some younger people with disabilities, and those with kidney failure.
- Medicaid provides health insurance for people with low incomes, children, and pregnant women. Eligibility is determined by your state.

Contact the Centers for Medicare & Medicaid Services (p. 96) for more information on benefits.

Most states also offer free or low-cost coverage for children who do not have health insurance. Visit www.insurekidsnow.gov or call 1-877-543-7669 for more information.

Health Care Plans

When purchasing health insurance, your choices typically will fall into one of three categories:

- Traditional fee-for-service health insurance plans are usually the most expensive choice, but they offer you the most flexibility in choosing health care providers.
- Health maintenance organizations (HMOs) offer lower co-payments and cover the costs of more preventive care, but your choice of health care providers is limited. The National Committee for Quality Assurance evaluates and accredits HMOs. You can find out whether one is accredited in your state by calling 1-888-275-7585. You can also get report cards on HMOs by visiting www.ncqa.org.
- Preferred provider organizations (PPOs) offer lower co-payments like HMOs, but give you more flexibility in selecting a health care provider. A PPO gives you a list of providers you can choose from.

If you go outside the HMO or PPO network of providers, you may have to pay a portion or all of the cost. When choosing among different health care plans, read the fine print and ask lots of questions, such as:

- Do I have the right to go to any doctor, hospital, clinic, or pharmacy I choose?

- Are specialists such as eye doctors and dentists covered?
- Does the plan cover special conditions or treatments such as pregnancy, psychiatric care, and physical therapy?
- Does the plan cover home care or nursing home care?
- Will the plan cover all medications my physician may prescribe?
- What are the deductibles? Are there any co-payments? Deductibles are the amount you must pay before your insurance company will pay a claim. These differ from co-payments, which are the amount of money you pay when you receive medical services or a prescription.
- What is the most I will have to pay out of my own pocket to cover expenses?
- If there is a dispute about a bill or service, how is it handled? In some plans, you may be required to have a third party decide how to settle the problem.

HOMEOWNERS AND RENTERS INSURANCE

Homeowners or renters insurance protects your home and personal property against damage or loss, and insures you in case someone gets hurt while on your property. Your insurance rate is affected by the estimated cost to rebuild your home, claim histories in your area, neighborhood, your personal claim history, and your credit score.

Homeowners or renters insurance may pay claims for:

- Damage to your home, garage, and other outbuildings.
- Loss of furniture and other personal property due to damage or theft.
- Additional living expenses if you rent temporary quarters while your house is being repaired.

Homeowners or renters insurance may also:

- Include liability for bodily injury and property damage that you cause to others through negligence.
- Include liability for accidents happening in and around your home, as well as away from home, for which you are responsible.
- Pay for injuries occurring in and around your home to anyone other than you or your family.
- Provide limited coverage for money, gold, jewelry, and stamp and coin collections.
- Cover personal property in storage or away in dorm rooms.

Keep these tips in mind when shopping for homeowners insurance:

- Insure your house, not the land under it. If you don't subtract the value of the land when deciding how much homeowners insurance to buy, you will pay more than you should for your policy. Use a home insurance calculator to determine the cost of rebuilding. Compare this amount to the value of your home insurance policy.
- Make certain you purchase enough coverage to replace what is insured. "Replacement Cost Coverage" gives you the money to rebuild your home and replace its contents. An "Actual Cash Value" policy is cheaper but pays the difference between your property's worth at the time of loss minus depreciation for age and wear.

- Ask about any special coverage you might need. You may have to pay extra for computers, cameras, jewelry, art, antiques, musical instruments, or stamp collections.
- Remember that flood and earthquake damage are not covered by a standard homeowners policy. The cost of a separate earthquake policy will depend on the likelihood of earthquakes in your area. Homeowners who live in areas prone to flooding should take advantage of the National Flood Insurance Program (p. 98).
- Hurricane damage may be covered partially. However, you may be required to pay a deductible for this coverage.
- If you are a renter, do not assume your landlord carries insurance on your personal belongings. Purchase a separate policy for renters.

If you rent your home out, ask your insurance agent if you need to add to your policy, since you will be using your home for commercial purposes. Your insurance company may charge rates for a business instead of a homeowner. If you rent through a home sharing company, find out if it offers insurance protection for hosts.

LIFE INSURANCE

A life insurance policy is a contract between you and an insurance company. It states that you will pay premiums over time. In exchange, the company will pay a lump sum amount upon your death to a designated beneficiary. The proceeds from your life insurance policy can help pay bills and help support your surviving family members' living expenses.

There are two main types of life insurance policies:

- Whole (or universal) life insurance policies are considered permanent. As long as you pay the premium, the policy is in effect. Whole life insurance policies also have an investment or savings component. This means that you accumulate cash value over the life of the policy, so you can borrow money from these policies if you need to.
- Term life insurance policies are in effect for a certain period of time, or term. If you have this type of policy and pass away during the policy's term then the insurance company will pay a benefit. If you live past the time that

AUTOMATED INSURANCE PAYMENTS?

Does your insurance company automatically withdraw your premiums from your bank account? Read “Recurring Payments” on page 27 to be sure of your rights.

the policy is in effect, the insurance company won't pay a benefit or give you a refund.

Term life insurance policies are usually less expensive than whole life insurance policies. This is because term life insurance policies only cover a set amount of time, while whole life insurance policies are intended to be permanent and because part of your premium is put away for savings.

If you have misplaced a life insurance policy, your state's insurance commission may be able to help you locate it. Or you can search for it at www.policylocator.org.

Document the insurance company's name, policy number, and contact information for your beneficiary. If you are a beneficiary, contact the life insurer to claim your benefit. The insurance company may not automatically notify you that you are owed a death benefit. If the insurance company knows that a customer has died, but can't locate the beneficiaries, the company must send the benefits to the state's unclaimed property office. Research on www.unclaimed.org to find out if there is a death benefit in your name.

Avoid losing your life insurance policy benefits by alerting the policy beneficiaries and filing a copy of the policy with your will.

LONG-TERM CARE INSURANCE

Medical advances have resulted in a greater need for nursing home care and assisted-living. Most health insurance plans and Medicare severely limit or exclude long-term care. You should consider these costs as you plan for your retirement.

Here are some questions to ask when considering a separate long-term care insurance policy:

- What qualifies you for benefits? Some insurers say you must be unable to perform a specific number of the following activities of daily living: eating, walking, getting from bed to a chair, dressing, bathing, using the restroom, and remaining continent.
- What type of care is covered? Does the policy cover nursing home care? What about coverage for assisted-living facilities that provide less client care than a nursing home? If you want to stay in your home, will it pay for care provided by visiting nurses and therapists? What about help with food preparation and housecleaning?
- What will the benefit amount be? Most plans are written to provide a specific dollar benefit per day. The benefit for home care is usually about half the nursing home benefit, but some policies pay the same for both forms of care. Other plans pay only for your actual expenses.

- What is the benefit period? It is possible to get a policy with lifetime benefits, but this can be very expensive. Other options for coverage are from one to six years. The average nursing home stay is about 2.5 years.
- Is the benefit adjusted for inflation? If you buy a policy before age 60, you face the risk that a fixed daily benefit will not be enough by the time you need it.
- Is there a waiting period before benefits begin? A 20 to 100-day period is not unusual.

Visit <https://longtermcare.acl.gov> for more information.

OTHER INSURANCE

- Catastrophic Health Care Insurance. A health plan that only covers certain types of expensive care, like hospitalizations.
- College Tuition Insurance. Get a tuition refund if you must withdraw because of a serious injury or illness. However, your college may issue a partial refund without this insurance.
- Dental and Vision Insurance. Some companies that offer health insurance plans may also allow employees to purchase separate dental and vision plans, which are not part of most standard health plans.
- Identity Theft Insurance. This type of insurance provides reimbursement to crime victims for the cost of restoring their identity and repairing credit reports. This insurance may be part of your homeowners insurance policy or as a stand-alone policy.

INSURANCE SCAMS

Be aware of these common signs of insurance scams:

- You may pay your insurance premium but your agent keeps the money instead of forwarding it to the company.
- Scammers pose as insurance agents or are unlicensed to sell insurance.
- A series of brokers and re-insurers receive a portion of the money you paid for your premium, until there is no money left to actually send to the insurance company.
- You get notification for claims against your policy that you didn't file or services you didn't receive.

Take steps to protect yourself:

- Make sure to get a confirmation from the insurance company that your payment was received for the entire amount.
- Confirm with your insurance regulator that your insurance agent is licensed to sell insurance.
- Read claims and explanation of benefits statements closely, and check for errors.

For more information or to file a complaint, contact:

- Your state insurance regulator (p. 123).

- International Health Care Insurance. A policy that provides health coverage no matter where you are in the world. The policy term is flexible, so you can purchase it only for the time you will be out of the country.
- Liability Insurance. Insurance for what the policyholder is legally obligated to pay because of bodily injury or property damage caused to another person.
- Shared Services Insurance. Find out what insurance you need if you rent your home out or use your car to drive others for a fee.
- Travel Insurance. There are four kinds of travel insurance: Travel Cancellation Insurance, Baggage or Personal Effects Coverage, Emergency Medical Coverage, and Accidental Death. Visit www.insuremytrip.com to learn more.
- Umbrella Insurance. A policy that supplements the insurance you already have for home, auto, and other personal property. Umbrella insurance can help cover costs that exceed the limits of other policies.

Contact your current insurance provider or state insurance commission for more information on these insurance policies.

If you have a financial goal in mind, such as saving for retirement, paying for college, or buying a house, then you may decide to invest your money to earn enough to fund your goals. Before you invest, make sure you have answers to all of these questions:

- How quickly can you get your money back? Stocks, bonds, and shares in mutual funds usually can be sold at any time, but there is no guarantee you will get back all the money you invested. Other investments, such as limited partnerships, certificates of deposit (CDs), or IRAs, often restrict your ability to cash out your holdings.
- What can you expect to earn on your money? While bonds generally promise a fixed return, earnings on most other securities go up and down with market changes. Keep in mind that just because an investment has done well in the past, there is no guarantee it will do well in the future.

- What type of earnings can you expect? Will you get income in the form of interest, dividends, or rent? Some investments, such as stocks and real estate, have the potential for earnings and growth in value. What is the potential for earnings over time?
- How much risk is involved? With any investment, there is always the risk that you will not get your money back or the earnings promised. There is usually a trade-off between risk and reward—the higher the potential return, the greater the risk. While the federal government backs U.S. Treasury securities, it does not protect against loss on any other investments.
- Are your investments diversified? Some investments perform better than others in certain situations. For example, when interest rates go up, bond prices tend to go down. One industry may struggle while another prospers. Putting your money in a variety of investment options can reduce your risk.
- Are there any tax advantages to a particular investment? U.S. Savings Bonds are exempt from state and local taxes. Municipal bonds are exempt from federal income tax and, sometimes, state income tax as well. Tax-deferred investments for special goals, such as paying for college and retirement, let you postpone or even avoid paying income taxes.

FINANCIAL BROKERS AND ADVISORS

A financial professional can help you reach your financial goals.

When selecting a broker or investment advisor, research the person's education, professional history, as well as the firm the person works for. Ask:

- Has the person worked with others who have circumstances similar to yours?

- Do you communicate well with each other? Does the advisor listen to your needs? Will he or she keep you updated on your investments?
- Is the person licensed in your state? Your state securities administrator (p. 127) lists individuals and firms that are registered in your state. Ask whether the regulatory office has any other background information. You can find out how to reach your state securities administrator by visiting www.nasaa.org.
- Has the person been in trouble with regulators or received serious complaints from investors? Call your local state securities administrator or the SEC (p. 103). Check BrokerCheck at brokercheck.finra.org to find licensing, employment, and disciplinary information.
- Is the advisor tied to a specific investment firm or does he work independently? Independent advisors don't have to promote specific funds and can offer flexible investments.
- What are the fees for servicing your account? Firms can charge based on the number of trades or the amount of your assets.

Licenses and Professional Titles

An advisor can have multiple titles and be authorized to provide multiple services, including investment services, financial planning, and insurance products. Check FINRA's Investment Professional tool at www.finra.org/investors/professional-designations to understand the designations, the educational and ethical requirements to earn them, and the organizations that offer them. The SEC, FINRA, and state regulators do not grant or endorse any professional titles. Professional titles are not the same as licenses or registrations. A license is granted by government authorities, and offer you legal protection.

Suitability Versus Fiduciary Standards

When you interview potential financial planners, ask if they operate under a suitability or fiduciary standard.

- Suitability standard applies to broker-dealers. This standard requires brokers to evaluate an investment option and determine that it can suit your needs, based on your financial situation. However, they are also

TYPE OF INVESTMENT	WHAT IS IT?	RISK LEVEL
Bonds and Bond Funds	Also known as fixed-income securities because the income they pay is fixed when the bond is sold. Bonds and bond funds invest in corporate or government debt obligations.	Low risk.
Commodities	Physical commodities, such as an agricultural product (grains) or a natural resource (like gold). A futures contract is an agreement to purchase or sell a commodity for delivery in the future.	High risk.
Index Funds	Invest in a particular market index such as the S&P 500 or the Russell 2000. An index fund is managed passively and mirrors the performance of the designated stock or bond index.	Risk level depends on which index the fund uses. A bond index fund involves a lower risk level than an index fund of emerging markets overseas.
Market-linked CDs (or structured CDs)	Returns are linked to the future performance of a market index and may include stocks, bonds, foreign currency, or other assets. These are designed for a long-term commitment (up to 20 years).	Medium to high risk.
Money Market Funds	Mutual funds that invest in short-term bonds. Usually pay better interest rates than a savings account but not as much as a certificate of deposit (CD).	Low risk.
Mutual Funds	Invest in a variety of securities, which may include stocks, bonds, and/or money market securities. Costs and objectives vary.	Risk levels vary according to the holdings in the mutual fund.
Roth IRA	A personal savings plan where earnings that remain in the account are not taxed. Investments may include a variety of securities. Contributions are not tax-deductible.	Risk levels vary according to the holdings in the IRA.
Stocks	Stocks represent a share of a company. As the company's value rises or falls, so does the value of the stock.	Medium to high risk.
Traditional IRA	Traditional IRA is a personal savings plan that gives tax advantages for savings for retirement. Investments may include a variety of securities. Contributions may be tax-deductible; earnings are not taxed until distributed.	Risk levels vary according to the holdings in the IRA.

concerned about how their recommendations benefit their company financially.

- Fiduciary standard rules apply to investment advisors. This standard requires the advisor to put your best interest first. They must give advice based on detailed and thorough research, and fully disclose all important facts. In addition, they avoid conflicts of interest, putting your financial interest above their own.

COMMODITIES

Trading in commodity futures is different from investing. Commodity futures are an agreement to buy or sell a specific quantity of a variety of commodities such as precious metals, grains, or other natural resources. Trading commodity futures and options is a volatile, complex and risky venture that is rarely suitable for individual investors or "retail customers." Before participating in the commodities market, check the registration status and background of the person and company at www.nfa.futures.org/basicnet.

Anyone who trades or gives advice to the public about futures and other derivatives must be registered with the National Futures Association (p. 137). The CFTC also provides additional information about how to protect yourself before and during trading in the commodities and options markets at www.cftc.gov/ConsumerProtection.

REAL ESTATE

There are multiple ways to invest in real estate:

- Investment property - You buy a house, apartment building, or commercial space to rent to tenants.
- Real estate investment group - You buy property from one of these companies and rent it out to a tenant. The real estate investment group provides property management services, including maintenance and tenant selection, in exchange for a portion of the rent.
- Real estate investment trusts (REIT) - A REIT is a security that invests in real estate and sells shares of ownership to investors. Shares are sold on the major exchanges, like any other stock.
- Real estate trading ("flipping") - You buy a property, with the goal of reselling it for a profit in the short term. The price increase and profits are due to an active property market or major property renovations and improvements.

Be cautious of pitches or ads that promise great returns in a short time period from investing in real estate, or promise huge profits without risk. It generally takes a significant amount of time to earn money from investing in real estate. These are often a scam.

Before you select a real estate investment, consider these questions.

- What are your goals? Do you want to earn revenue from rental payments, make a profit when you sell the property, or both?
- Have you done research? Research neighborhoods and prices. Look at properties and set criteria to evaluate potential properties that you would like to buy. Understand the housing market and determine if prices are increasing, or if there is a need or demand for rental property in the neighborhood.
- Do you plan to hire a realtor? A licensed realtor can help you locate properties, share information about an area's pricing, zoning rules, and growth potential.
- Do you plan to be a landlord or hire a property manager? There are major responsibilities involved with managing a property, such as selecting tenants, paying mortgage and insurance, maintenance and repairs, collecting rent, and handling tenant complaints and disputes. A qualified property manager could cut into

INVESTING SCAMS

Be aware of these common signs of investment scams:

- Scammers offer free lunches or seminars, posing as financial planners to pitch appealing investment offers.
- Offers for high or guaranteed profits.
- Sales pitches saying the investment is "risk-free".
- Pressure to invest immediately or limited opportunities.
- Pyramid schemes, where investors make money from recruiting more investors, rather than from sales or profits from a stock or product.

Take steps to protect yourself:

- Research investment opportunities and investment professionals.
- Get all details of an investment in writing.

For more information or to file a complaint, contact:

- Your state securities administrator (p. 127).
- The Securities and Exchange Commission (p. 103).

your profits, but if they are experienced, could help save you money in the operations of your property.

- Do you have enough for a down payment? You may be required to pay 20% or more as a down payment. Mortgages for investment property don't qualify for private mortgage insurance or a reduced down payment.
- Can you afford to own a rental property? In addition to the mortgage, you need a cash reserve to pay for repairs, taxes, and unexpected expenses. You should also have money set aside for months when your building is vacant, so that you are still able to pay the mortgage.
- Have you shopped around? Compare interest rates that banks are offering on mortgages for investment properties. They are often higher than the interest rate on a mortgage for a primary residence, as these mortgages are more risky to a bank.

RETIREMENT PLANNING

As you approach retirement, there are many factors to consider. Experts advise that you will need about 80% of your pre-retirement income in your retirement years. The exact amount depends on your individual needs. If you have a financial advisor, talk to him or her about your plans.

Some questions to ask:

- At what age do you plan to retire?
- Will your spouse or partner retire when you do?
- How much will your housing expenses be? Will you downsize, own, or rent your home?
- Do you expect to work part time?
- Will you have the same medical insurance you had while working? Will coverage change?
- Do you want to travel or pursue a new hobby that might be costly?

In addition to maintaining your lifestyle during retirement, you may need to purchase long-term health insurance (p. 34) or pay for assisted-living services (p. 25).

Use interactive tools and calculators to help you plan your retirement. The Consumer Financial Protection Bureau's interactive retirement tool at www.consumerfinance.gov/retirement/before-you-claim can get you started. It shows you how your social security retirement benefits will change, based on factors like your age, life expectancy, or marital status. Also, use estimators, like the ones at www.choosetosave.org/ballpark, to learn how much you need to save to retire comfortably.

PRIVACY AND IDENTITY THEFT

Your personal information is a valuable resource for identity thieves, scammers, and even to corporations. Data breaches highlight how important it is for you and companies you do business with protect your privacy.

Identity thieves steal your personal information to commit fraud. They can damage your credit status and cost you time and money to restore your good name. You may not know that you are the victim of ID theft until you experience a financial consequence (mystery bills, credit collections, denied loans). Follow these tips to protect yourself:

- Secure your social security number. Don't carry it in your wallet. Only give out your social security number when absolutely necessary.
- Protect your PIN. Don't share your PIN with others or keep it in your wallet.
- Watch out for "shoulder surfers." Shield the keypad when typing your passwords on computers and at ATMs.
- Be skeptical. Don't respond to unsolicited requests for personal information (your name, birthdate, social security number, or bank account number) by phone, mail, or online.
- Collect mail promptly. Ask the post office to hold your mail when you are away from home for a few days.
- Pay attention to your billing cycles. If bills or financial statements are late, contact the sender.
- Keep your receipts. Compare receipts with account statements.
- Tear up or shred receipts, credit offers, account statements, and expired cards, to prevent "dumpster divers" from getting your personal information.

- Store personal information in a safe place at home and at work.
- Install firewalls and virus-detection software on your computer, tablet, or mobile phones.
- Create complex passwords that identity thieves cannot guess easily.
- Send a copy of the death certificate of a loved one to the IRS. This can prevent tax ID theft for a deceased person or their spouse.
- Order your credit report once a year. Check it more frequently if you suspect someone has gained access to your account information. See “Order Your Free Credit Reports” (p. 15).

REPORT IDENTITY THEFT

If you are a victim of identity theft, report it immediately. Visit identitytheft.gov to report it and get a recovery plan. Follow these steps:

- Report it to your financial institutions. Call the phone number on your account statement or on the back of your credit or debit card.
- File a report with the Federal Trade Commission. This detailed report is also called an ID theft affidavit.
- Report the fraud to your local police. Keep a copy of the police report, which will make it easier to prove your case to creditors and retailers. Together, your ID theft affidavit and your police report make up your ID theft report.

- Contact the credit reporting agencies (p. 16) and ask them to flag your account with a fraud alert. This informs merchants not to grant new credit without your approval.

An ID theft report will help you deal with the credit reporting agencies and companies that extended credit to the identity thief using your name. Visit identitytheft.gov/Steps for more information about creating an ID theft report. You can file your complaint or by calling toll free 1-877-438-4338.

PROTECT YOUR PRIVACY

Companies, known as data brokers collect your income, family size, shopping habits, online behavior, credit card use, and your demographic information to create a profile about your lifestyle. Unlike credit reports, you can't review them or correct mistakes. These reports can also lead to discrimination, where some consumers are only targeted with high interest loans or inferior financial products.

Some of the personal information you give willingly, but other bits of information are collected without you realizing it. Your mobile phone, apps, wearable fitness trackers, or baby monitors can transmit your personal information. Brokers analyze your data to understand your behavior, and sell it to marketers and retailers.

Retailers use your information to offer targeted promotions, customize online ads, and adjust prices for items. Take these steps to protect your privacy:

- If you apply for a store loyalty card, do not include your full name so that it, and your purchase behavior, cannot be connected to your other consumer profiles.
- Use cash rather than electronic payment options.
- Don't use free instore Wi-Fi connections.
- Be careful about what you post on social media. Data brokers may scrape information you post to enhance the information that they have in your consumer profile.
- Disable cookies when shopping online, to prevent companies from tracking your online browsing behavior.
- Beware of using cell phones in stores or using the public Wi-Fi in a store. By using these networks, stores may know which items you looked at and which aisles you visited.
- Read privacy statements on websites, sales materials, and forms. If a website claims to follow a set of established voluntary standards, read the standards. Don't assume it provides the level of privacy you want.
- Ask how your personal information will be stored and used.
- Only provide the purchase date, model and serial numbers, and your contact information on warranty registration forms.
- Opt-out if you do not want the company to share your email address with other companies.

ID THEFT

Here are some common schemes that ID thieves use to steal your identity.

Telemarketing. An ID thief may call you, making fraudulent offers for products, benefits or medical services. The caller will require you to provide personal information, such as your social security number, birth date, or Medicare ID number.

Tax ID theft. In some cases, phony tax preparers steal your social security number and sell it to scammers. In others, someone files a tax return, using your social security number. For more information contact the IRS' Taxpayer Advocate Service at 1-877-275-8271 or visit www.irs.gov/advocate.

Medical ID theft. Medical service providers can take advantage of access to your insurance information to get medical services in your name, or to issue fraudulent billing to you and your health insurer.

Child ID theft. Children's IDs are vulnerable because children don't need to file taxes or use their social security numbers to apply for loans for many years. By the time they are adults, the damage has already been done. Find out if your state allows you to freeze your child's credit report.

Follow the steps listed on identitytheft.gov for a full guide on how to limit the impact of identity theft.

(p. 106) to find out whether any state laws help protect your privacy. Some companies and industry groups have also adopted voluntary policies that address privacy concerns.

EDUCATION PRIVACY

Education privacy deals with the storage, control, sharing, and destruction of students' educational records. The Federal Education Rights and Privacy Act (FERPA) gives parents of school aged children (kindergarten through 12th grade) access to their education records. This act also limits who the school can share the information with, such as other schools, without permission from a student's parent. Take action:

- Opt out of having your child's personal information used for directories that can be shared with third parties.
- Ask for documentation about the purpose of the data collection, if a school says that data collection is required. Find out how the data will be used, stored, and destroyed.

For more information, visit www2.ed.gov/policy/gen/guid/fpco/ferpa/index.html or call 1-800-872-5327.

Data breaches are also a threat to privacy, especially at colleges and universities. Social security numbers, birthdates, grades, addresses and other personal information are compromised in a breach. These breaches can impact students' academic records and financial aid, while making them vulnerable to identity theft. If your college has experienced a data breach find out what protections the school has put in place. The Privacy Rights Clearinghouse offers more information about your education privacy rights www.privacyrights.org.

FINANCIAL PRIVACY

The Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation and other federal regulators require banks, insurance companies, brokerage firms, and certain businesses that share financial

WHAT TO DO AFTER A DATA BREACH

Data breaches at organizations can make you vulnerable to fraud and identity theft. Take action if your information has been compromised:

- Sign up for a free credit monitoring service, if it is offered by the organization that experienced the breach. This can alert you if credit accounts are opened in your information.
- Change passwords on any accounts connected to your compromised information.
- Place freezes on your credit reports with the credit reporting agencies (Equifax, Experian, and TransUnion).
- Request new cards, if the breach involved a credit or debit card.
- Check your bank or credit card statements closely. Report suspicious charges to the fraud department.

PRIVACY SCAMS

Be aware of these common signs of identity theft and privacy scams:

- You receive emails or phone calls asking you to verify your social security number, birthdate, account numbers, or passwords.
- You stop receiving mail, such as credit card or bank statements.

Take steps to protect yourself:

- Shred sensitive documents that include your personal information.
- Don't respond to requests for personal information in emails or by phone, or with any stranger.
- Get a free copy of your credit report to verify that no one opened accounts in your name.

For more information or to file a complaint, contact:

- The Federal Trade Commission (p. 102).
- Your local police department.

information to inform you of their privacy policies. They must give you their privacy policy when you open an account, and again, at least once every year. This includes:

- The kinds of personal information being collected.
- How the confidentiality and security of your personal information will be protected.
- What types of businesses may be provided your personal and account information.

If a business plans to share your information with other companies it must also give you the chance to "opt-out" or say "no" to information sharing. Even if you do not opt-out, your account numbers may not be shared with third parties for marketing purposes.

You cannot prevent certain types of information from being shared. This includes information that is publicly available, needed to conduct normal business, or protect against fraud. Also, a bank can share your information with a partner company to market products.

Your credit information has additional privacy protections under the Fair Credit Reporting Act. Only people with a legitimate business need can get a copy of your report. Unless prohibited by state law, an employer can get your report with your written consent. The "Order Your Free Credit Reports" box on page 15 explains your rights under this federal law, and how to get a copy of your credit reports.

MEDICAL PRIVACY

Personal information you give to your doctor is shared with insurance companies, pharmacies, researchers, and employers based on specific regulations. The privacy of your health records is protected by federal law, specifically under the Health Insurance Portability and Accountability Act (HIPAA). The Act:

- Defines your rights over your health information.
- Sets rules and limits on who is allowed to receive and/or see your health information.

HIPAA does not protect the information you transmit on health related websites, apps, in home medical tests, and wearable devices.

The Department of Health and Human Services, Office for Civil Rights (p. 95) is a resource for complete details and advice about the HIPAA ruling. The Office for Civil Rights also provides a listing of resources for consumers, providers, and advocates, along with fact sheets and other educational materials.

You may need to get a copy of your medical reports and tests, especially if you need to show them to a new doctor or specialist. Request your records from medical providers and the hospital where medical services were provided, for a fee.

If you believe that a person, agency, or organization covered under the HIPAA Privacy Rule violated your health information privacy rights or violated the Privacy Rule, file a written complaint with the Department of Health and Human Services, Office for Civil Rights (p. 95).

Visit the U.S. Department of Health and Human Services, Office for Civil Rights website at www.hhs.gov/hipaa for more information on how the federal government protects your personal health information.

ONLINE PRIVACY

Take steps to protect your privacy online.

- Look for a privacy policy statement or seal that indicates the site abides by privacy standards. Take the time to read how your privacy is protected.
- Look for signals that you are using a secure web page. Signs include a screen notice that says you are on a secure site, a closed padlock or unbroken key in the bottom corner of your screen, or a change in the first letters of the Internet address you are viewing from “http” to “https.”
- Sign up for two factor authentication to add another layer of security when logging in to accounts.
- Guard wireless speakers, mice, and other connected devices. Hackers can use them to access information stored on your computer
- Secure information on smartphones. Password protect your phone and apps, such as mobile wallets or bank accounts that can be hacked.

Another threat to your privacy is spyware. Spyware sends information about your online activities to a third party, usually to target you with pop-up ads. Install anti-spyware software to stop this threat, and update them regularly.

TELECOMMUNICATIONS

Choices for phone service, Internet, and television have never been greater. As devices have multiple functions, such as the ability to watch television shows on your computer or surf the Internet using your phone, your choices about each of these services may overlap. Most consumers are now able to bundle phone, TV, and Internet service for a discount. However, buying a bundle of services could make it difficult to change providers for any one service if you are tied into a long-term contract. Before you buy, compare service providers to make sure you get the service and features you want, for the best price.

INTERNET

Choosing Service Providers

You will need an Internet Service Provider (ISP) to connect your computer to the Internet. Some companies limit their service to providing Internet access only. Others, such as a telephone or cable company, may offer Internet access as part of a larger package of services.

Consider these factors when selecting a provider:

- Speed. How fast can you download or upload files?
- Availability. Which companies offer service in your area?
- Wireless access. Can you get a wireless connection for multiple computers and devices in your home?
- Email. Do email accounts come with the service? What will be the storage limit on your mailbox?
- Software. Is any software required to activate the service?
- Technical support. What kinds of technical support are available—phone, email, chat? Is the support free?
- Data caps. How much data can you use each month?
- Terms of service. Is there a limit to the amount of data you can use per month? Do you have to sign an annual contract with the ISP?
- Cost. What is the monthly fee for the service? Are there fees for renting a modem or set up?

The FCC's broadband label (p. 43) helps you compare internet service providers' prices, data allowances, and speed. ISPs aren't required to use this format, but they are required to disclose this information to the public.

If you have a low household income, you may qualify for low-cost Internet service. Check with the Internet service providers in your area or your public utility commission (p. 131) for details.

Wi-Fi (Wireless)

Going wireless provides you with the freedom to use computers and devices in multiple locations. However, with this increased freedom comes the danger of increased vulnerability. Wireless Internet requires you to have access to a wireless network via a wireless router. It is important that you secure your network so strangers (or neighbors) cannot use your network without your knowledge (also known as "piggybacking"). Also, computer hackers could use your network to access personal information you save on, or send from, your computer. This is particularly

BILL CREEP

If you've ever had a bill for service steadily rise over a few years, then you have experienced "bill creep", where the costs of a monthly expense creeps up. The price increases are usually small dollar amounts, but they can add up over time. Take these steps to protect yourself from bill creep:

- Review your monthly statements to know what you're really paying.
- Cancel features that you don't actually use.
- Consider unbundling services.
- Negotiate lower rates with the service provider.
- Find out if the service provider has a deal to reward longtime customers.
- Research cheaper options that meet your needs.
- If your discount prices are going to expire at a certain date, mark the date on your calendar and make an active decision to cancel your service or see if you can get a better deal.

BEWARE: JUICE JACKING

Public charging kiosks let you charge your phone while you are on the go. Beware: charging stations can threaten the security of your mobile phone. The same USB cord you use to connect your phone to the kiosk is also used to transfer and sync files. If a hacker tampers with the kiosk, they can steal, or "jack" passwords, contacts and credit card numbers while your phone charges. Hackers could also connect a video connector split screen to simultaneously display everything you type and click on another screen in another location.

If you use a charging station turn your phone off completely. Avoid using the preattached cords.

important if you conduct financial transactions online. If you use the wireless (Wi-Fi) network at bookstores, airports, coffee shops, retailers, or other public places, there are other precautions you should take to protect your privacy.

At home:

- Turn on encryption. When you buy a wireless router, it is important to turn on the encryption feature. This scrambles information that you send over the Internet so other people cannot access it.
- Rename your router. Change the name from the manufacturer's default name to something only you would know.
- Change the password. Routers come with a standard password. Create a new one with a mix of letters, numbers, and special characters.
- Turn off your router when you are not using it.
- Be aware of cookies and device identifiers. Websites place cookies on your computer to collect information about the pages you visit. Device identifiers monitor the apps you use on your device. Visit www.consumer.ftc.gov/articles/0042-online-tracking for more information.

On public wireless networks:

- Don't assume the network is secure. Most public wireless networks do not encrypt information you send. Avoid sending private information from public locations. Or, consider using a virtual private network (VPN) to secure information you send via public networks.
- Verify that you are connecting to a trusted network. Some scammers create free, unsecured Wi-Fi networks, similar to the names of trusted ones. If you use it, they can steal all the information (usernames, passwords, account numbers) that you enter.

- Log out of websites after you finish using them rather than using "remember me" features.

Visit www.consumer.ftc.gov for more information about wireless computing.

Spam

Spam is unsolicited commercial email. You can reduce the amount of spam email you receive by making it difficult for spammers to get, and use, your email address:

- Don't use an obvious email address, such as JaneDoe@isp.com. Instead use numbers or special characters, such as Jane4oe6@isp.com.
- Use one email address for close friends and family and another for everyone else.

- Don't post your email address on a public web page. Spammers use software that harvests text addresses. Substitute "jane4oe6 at isp dot com" for "jane4oe6@isp.com," or display your address as a graphic image, instead of the text.
- Don't enter your address on a website before you check its privacy policy.
- Uncheck any checked boxes. Otherwise, you may be giving permission for the website and its partners to contact you.
- Don't click on an email's "unsubscribe" link unless you trust the sender. This action tells the sender you are there.
- Never forward chain letters, petitions, or virus warnings. It could be a spammer's trick to collect addresses.
- Disable your email "preview pane." This stops spam from reporting to its sender that you have received the email.
- Choose an email system that filters email. If you get lots of spam, it may not be filtering effectively.
- Use spam-blocking software. Web browser software often includes free filtering options. You can also purchase special software that will accomplish this task.
- Report spam. Alert your ISP that spam is slipping through its filters. The FTC also wants to know about "unsolicited commercial email." Forward spam to spam@uce.gov. Visit www.consumer.ftc.gov/articles/0038-spam for more information.

PHONES

Most consumers are now able to buy local and long-distance phone service from their telephone company, cable or satellite TV provider, or ISP. Services such as voice mail, call waiting, caller ID, and wireless may be offered as a package deal or sold separately. Before you buy, compare services and prices and think about what you really need.

Find out how each company prices its services. Are there minimum use, time-of-day, or distance requirements; flat monthly fees; or special plans? For example, wireless service may be cheaper than regular local service if you do not make many calls. Make sure you are comparing prices on similar plans and features. Read the fine print and ask questions if there is anything you are not clear about.

The Federal Communications Commission (p. 101) offers information about choosing a long-distance carrier, understanding new phone fees and taxes, and more at www.fcc.gov/consumers. The FCC also offers information to help you understand phone charges at transition.fcc.gov/cgb/consumerfacts/understanding.pdf.

Slamming and Cramming

"Slamming" occurs when a phone company illegally switches your phone service without your permission. "Cramming" occurs when a company adds charges to your phone bill without your permission. These charges may be unnoticed because they are relatively small ($5 to $30).

Take these steps to avoid slammers and crammers:

- Block changes to your phone service. Ask your telephone service provider to notify you before making any changes to your service.
- Read the fine print on contest entry forms and coupons. You could be agreeing to switch your phone service or to buy optional services.
- Watch out for impostors. Companies could falsely claim to be your regular phone company and offer some type of discount plan or change in billing. They may also say they are taking a survey or they may pretend to be a government agency.
- Beware of “negative option notices.” You can be switched or signed up for optional services unless you say “NO” to telemarketers.
- Examine your telephone bill carefully, including pages that show the details, and look for suspicious charges.

Your phone service cannot be shut off for refusal to pay for unauthorized services. Contact your local or state consumer protection agency (p. 106), state public utilities commission (p. 131), or the FCC (p. 101) for help.

Cell Phones

Before you choose a plan and a company that meets your needs, you should consider these questions:

BEWARE: MOBILE PHONE HIJACKING

Mobile phone account hijacking happens when a thief takes ownership of your phone number. You won't be receive phone calls and text messages, but you will get a bill for a new mobile phone.

This scam happens when a thief takes a fake ID, in your name, to your wireless provider's retail store. The thief will tell the customer service representative that “you” need a new phone or that your SIM card is damaged. He or she gets the new phone, connected to your phone number. Your phone will stop working immediately.

This scam can have far reaching effects, especially if you use your mobile phone number for two factor authentication (2FA) to log in to bank or social media accounts.

Opt in to your mobile provider's extra security features to prevent being a victim of this scam.

If you have been a victim of mobile phone hijacking:

- Contact your mobile phone carrier if your phone suddenly stops working.
- Review the bills from your mobile service provider
- Report the incident at IdentityTheft.gov.
- Change passwords and PINs for your mobile phone and any accounts you normally access from your phone.

Where can you make and receive calls? Most providers now offer a choice of local or national plans. A local plan offers low-cost options if most of your calls are made near your home or specific calling areas. National plans are the most expensive, but they let you use your phone anywhere in the country for a single per-minute price.

How frequently will you use the phone? If you don't use your phone often, a few minutes a month may be all you need. On the other hand, if your cell phone is your primary phone, a plan with the lowest airtime rate is a wiser choice.

Is a family plan option available? You can share one cellular service plan and a pool of monthly usage minutes among several phone lines. The cost of the additional lines per month is usually less than if you purchased individual accounts.

Parental controls? Can you set controls that filter how your child uses a mobile phone?

Device upgrades. How often can you upgrade your smart phone? What fees do you pay for this service?

What if you want to cancel your service? Read your contract to see if you have to pay a termination fee or if there is a clause that allows you to cancel for free.

Several large mobile service providers have stopped offering standard two-year contract plans, with a reduced price for the phone. Instead, they will sell the phone at full price, either paid at once or over the life of the phone. The companies may also lease the phone to you, but you will have to return it to the company when you get a new one.

Be sure to keep track of your usage and understand your cell phone bill to avoid “bill shock.” Visit www.fcc.gov/general/bill-shock to learn how to better monitor your usage.

Smart Phones

Smart phones are like miniature computers. They provide basic phone functions, along with advanced features, including browsing the Internet, accessing email, interacting on online social networks, listening to music, watching videos, uploading pictures, and using apps.

When shopping for a smart phone, consider these tips:

- Compare the cost of data plans. These plans govern use and costs associated with mobile access for email, web browsing, social networking, and applications.
- Take advantage of special pricing and promotions.
- Will the service provider “throttle”, or reduce the speed of your data transmission after you hit a certain amount of usage? If so, will you get a warning beforehand?
- Is there a limit on the amount of data you can use each month?
- Be wary of buying phone insurance, which may sound tempting; consumer groups generally advise against it.

Since smart phones are like miniature computers, many of the same privacy and safety concerns apply. See Online Privacy (p. 41) for more information on how to protect yourself from these concerns.

TELECOMMUNICATIONS SCAMS

Be aware of these common signs of telecommunications scams:

- You receive a call, or pop-up notice on your screen, with a false claim that your computer is infected with a virus.
- Scammers send emails that include links that can install viruses, freeze your computer, or ask you to share personal information.
- Scammers set up free public Wi-Fi hotspots. They can detect and steal everything you type, including passwords and credit card numbers.
- You make a spelling error when typing in a website URL of a popular website. Scammers set up fake websites that lead to the incorrectly spelled websites, to install malware or collect your personal information.

Take steps to protect yourself:

- Hang up or don't respond to emails or calls about viruses on your computer.
- Don't click on links in emails or ads from companies you don't know. This "click-bait" can download malware onto your computer or smartphone.
- Don't use unsecured or unknown Wi-Fi hotspots.
- Access websites through bookmarks or saved searches.

For more information or to file a complaint, contact:

- The Federal Communications Commission (p. 101).
- The Federal Trade Commission (p. 102).

Pay-As-You-Go Plans

If you don't plan to use a cell phone often or only for emergencies, you may want to consider a prepaid cell phone before you commit to a long-term wireless contract. With a prepaid cell phone, there is no contract to sign and no monthly bill. You will know exactly how much you spend. The downside of prepaid plans is that you pay more per minute and, if you do not use the phone for an extended period of time, you may lose the balance in your account.

TV

There are many choices for consumers looking to buy a new television. Before buying a new TV, do your homework. It is important to see the screens in person before buying to make sure the one you select will meet your needs. For independent ratings and reviews, check out Consumer Reports at www.consumerreports.org. Once you have a television, there are several options for tuning into the channels. In addition to free television, you can subscribe to cable, satellite or Internet TV.

Cable

You can start with a basic lineup of channels and later add additional tiers of channels. The more channels you want, the more it will cost. You may want to consider video on demand so you can order movies and sports events and watch them when you like (usually within a 24-hour window). You can also buy a bundle of services that includes digital TV, digital phone, and broadband Internet access at discounted rates. Keep in mind, however, that you may be asked to sign a contract for bundled services.

Satellite

This service requires a dish that is mounted outside your home (service requires an unobstructed view of the satellite) and a receiver that is placed by your television. Satellite TV offers comparable channels to cable TV, and you can add a digital video recorder to record shows for viewing later. Check with your satellite TV provider for channel options and prices. As with cable TV, you may be asked to sign a contract for a package of services. One downside to satellite TV is occasional interference during periods of rain or snow. Find out if there are additional fees for the repositioning of a satellite dish due to bad weather, or for damages due to falling tree limbs.

Internet TV

If you have a high-speed Internet connection, you are already able to watch videos on your computer. There are also subscription streaming services that use your Wi-fi connection to show programming on your computer or TV. Before you choose, find out:

- Is a set top box required to use the service? Does it include its own Wi-Fi connection?
- Do you pay a flat monthly fee or pay per each episode or movie you watch?
- Do you have to sign a contract for the streaming service?
- How are you able cancel the service and stop automatic payments?
- Does the streaming service offer programs you want to see? Does the program catalog feature new releases?
- Are you more interested in movies, TV series or original programming? Not all streaming services provide all types of video content.
- What is the quality of the video?

TELEMARKETING AND UNWANTED MAIL

What can you do about the growing pile of unwanted mail in your mailbox and unwelcome telemarketers on your phone? Actually, there are several things you can do:

- Tell companies you do business with to remove your name from customer lists they rent or sell to others. Look for information on how to opt-out of marketing lists on sales materials, order forms, and websites.
- Opt-out of receiving unsolicited commercial mail from many national companies for three years. Visit dmachoice.thedma.org to register. Use the services provided by the Data & Marketing Association (p. 136) to remove your name from most national telemarketing, mail, and email lists.
- If you would like to opt-out of credit and insurance offers, call the credit reporting agencies' notification system at 1-888-567-8688 or visit www.optoutprescreen.com (note: you will have to share your social security number).
- Under U.S. Postal Service (USPS) rules, it is illegal to send mail that looks like it is from a government agency when it is not. It is also illegal to send mail that looks like a bill when nothing was ordered, unless it clearly states that it is not a bill. Report violations of this rule to the USPS (p. 103).

NATIONAL DO NOT CALL REGISTRY

The federal government's Do Not Call Registry allows you to restrict telemarketing calls permanently by registering your phone number at www.donotcall.gov or by calling 1-888-382-1222. If you receive telemarketing calls after your number has been in the national registry for 31 days, you can file a complaint using the same web page and toll free number. Contact your state's consumer protection office (p. 106) to find out if your state has its own Do Not Call (DNC) list and how you can add your number to it.

Placing your number on this national registry will stop most telemarketing calls, but not all of them. Calls that are still permitted include those from political organizations, charities, telephone surveyors, and some organizations with which you have a relationship.

You can register landline and cell phone numbers on the Do Not Call Registry (www.donotcall.gov).

There are other ways to block unwanted calls:

- Mobile apps that allow you to create a list of phone numbers that can't call you.
- Built in features on your mobile phone.
- Call blocking devices.
- Your phone carrier can allow you to create a list of phone numbers to block.

PRE-RECORDED MESSAGES

Pre-recorded sales calls or robocalls are illegal. Companies cannot transmit these messages or send text messages to consumers who have not agreed, in writing, to accept such messages. A company cannot contact you based on a prior business relationship. Pre-recorded calls may only be made to residential telephone numbers in the following cases:

- Emergency calls needed to ensure your health and safety.
- Calls that do not include any unsolicited advertisements.
- Calls by, or on behalf of, tax-exempt nonprofit organizations.
- Calls for which you have given prior consent.

TELEMARKETING SCAMS

Be aware of these common signs of telemarketing scams:

- Someone calls and pressures you to make a purchase or donate to a fake charity.
- A telemarketer asks "Can you hear me?", so that they can record you saying "Yes". Your "yes" can be used as proof that you agreed to buy their product or agreed to charges on your credit card.
- You are told you've won a prize or lottery, but you must pay a tax or fee to claim it.

Take steps to protect yourself:

- Register for the National Do Not Call Registry, at www.donotcall.gov, and your state's do not call registry, if it has one.
- Research charities before you donate, using the Wise Giving Alliance, Charity Navigator, or Guidestar.
- Don't answer questions from telemarketers.

For more information or to file a complaint, contact:

- The Federal Communications Commission (p. 101).
- The Federal Trade Commission (p. 102).
- Your state consumer protection office (p. 106).

Phone carriers aren't prohibited from offering robocall blocking. Contact your phone company, mobile or landline, and ask them to offer call blocking technology. Visit www.fcc.gov/stop-unwanted-calls to learn more.

If you receive pre-recorded telemarketing calls but have not agreed to get them, file a complaint with the FCC at www.donotcall.gov or by calling 1-888-225-5322. You should also be able to block robocalls on your landline or mobile phone.

TELEMARKETING SALES CALLS

The FTC Telemarketing Sales Rule defines what telemarketers can and cannot do when making a sales call. Callers must:

- Provide the seller's name.
- Disclose that the call is a sales call.
- Tell you exactly what they are trying to sell.
- Disclose the total cost and other terms of sale before you make any payment for goods or services.
- Tell you if they do not allow refunds, exchanges, or cancellations.

If a prize is involved, the caller must give you the odds of winning, inform you that no purchase is necessary, and tell you how to get instructions for entering without buying anything. It is illegal for telemarketers to:

- Misrepresent what they are offering.
- Call before 8 am or after 9 pm.
- Threaten, intimidate, or harass you, or call again if you ask them not to.
- Require you to pay with a money transfer service or a reloadable prepaid card, both of which are favored payment methods for scammers.

This rule applies even when you receive a call from a telemarketer in another state or country. It also applies when you make a call to a company in another state or country in response to a mail solicitation.

The rule generally does not apply when you call to order from a catalog or in response to an ad on television or radio, or in a magazine or newspaper. It also does not apply to solicitations you receive by fax or email. Beware that certain types of businesses, including nonprofit organizations, investment brokers and advisors, and banks and financial institutions, are exempt from the rule.

The Federal Communications Commission also has the Telephone Consumer Protection Act to protect you from unwanted calls. Under this rule, you can revoke consent at any time, even if you previously agreed to receive calls from a company. Also, a company can't limit your access to sales or offers, based on whether or not you agree to accept telemarketing calls.

Some telemarketers advertise "free" trial offers to entice new customers. They may ask for your credit card number, when you agree to the free offer. But beware, these free trials often aren't free. The seller may use the "free to pay" conversion tactic, where the free offer automatically converts to a monthly subscription for the product. You will be charged monthly for the items, and it can be difficult to cancel the subscription. Before you accept that free offer, ask if they automatically convert the trial to a paid service and how you can opt-out. Otherwise you could find yourself paying for items you don't want.

TRAVEL

Whether reserving a hotel room, buying plane tickets, or making other travel arrangements, these tips will help you get the deal that best suits your needs:

- Plan as far ahead as you can. Special deals on hotel rooms and airline seats often sell out very quickly.
- Be flexible in your travel plans. Hotels usually offer better rates on days when they expect fewer guests. Find out if you can save on flights by leaving a day earlier or later, flying at a different time of day, or using a different airport. Changing planes during your trip is sometimes cheaper than a nonstop flight.
- Check out the seller. Research travel agents with past customers. Make sure you are booking your travel with a legitimate travel booking site, not a fake.
- Comparison shop. Determine the complete cost of the trip in dollars, including all service charges, baggage fees, taxes, and processing fees.
- Beware of unusually cheap prices and freebies. These could be a scam, and you could end up paying more than the cost of a regular package tour.
- Make sure you understand the terms of the deal. If you hear you have won a free vacation, ask whether you have to buy something in order to get it. Verify locations and amenities, especially if you are renting a private home.
- Ask about cancellation policies. Airlines will either let you either hold a reservation for 24 hours without charging or cancel a paid reservation within 24 hours of purchase. This cancellation policy is for non-refundable tickets in the U.S., that were booked with the airline, at

TRAVEL FEES

Fees are a common part of travel. While some fees are easy to understand, others have become more confusing.

Air Travel

- Seat selection. You may pay a fee for the privilege of choosing your seat when you book your flight.
- Baggage. Airlines may charge for checked and carry-on baggage.
- Rewards tickets. If the actual flight is with a partner airline, rather than the airline you earn points with, you may have to pay a fee..

Car Rental

- Surcharges. Beware of other costs, such as energy surcharges, concession fees, and facility fees.
- Building projects fees. Car rentals can include a fee to pay for airport improvements or the city's building projects.

Hotels and Lodging

- Resort fees. Fees for fitness centers, golf courses, and other amenities, whether or not you use them.
- Mini-bar. Restocking fees to replace items you purchased.
- Wi-Fi. Your hotel may charge to use their Wi-Fi network

Contact airlines, car rental companies, and hotels to get an explanation of fee policies before you book your travel. Contact them after your trip if you see charges you don't understand on your receipt or credit card statement.

least seven days in advance. Look into travel insurance for added protection (p. 35)

- Insist on written confirmations. Ask for written proof of reservations, rates, and dates.
- Ask for the total price. Some airlines may sell each item separately, so the advertised price is much less than what you have to actually pay.
- Pay by credit card. Paying by credit card gives you the right to dispute charges for services that were misrepresented or never delivered. Your credit card may also offer insurance for booked travel and car rentals.
- Do you have valid ID? The Transportation Security Administration requires you to have a secure state drivers' license, identification card, or passport in order to fly. Find out the approval status of your state's identification cards at www.dhs.gov/real-id-enforcement-brief.
- Car rental. Are you renting a car? See "Renting" on page 12 to know your rights.

In some states, travel sellers must be registered and insured. Advance payments for travel must be placed in an escrow account until services are provided. Prizes or "free" gifts may also be regulated. Contact your state consumer protection agency (p. 106) to find out about your rights and how to file complaints.

RESOLVE AIR TRAVEL PROBLEMS

No matter how well you plan, you might encounter these common air travel hassles.

Delayed and Canceled Flights

Airline delays caused by bad weather, traffic control problems, and mechanical repairs are hard to predict. If your flight is canceled, most airlines will rebook you on the next flight possible to your destination, at no additional charge. If you are able to find another flight on another airline, ask the first airline to endorse your ticket to the other carrier. This could save you from a fare increase, but there is no rule requiring the airline to do so.

Each airline has its own policies about what it will do for delayed passengers; there are no federal requirements. If your flight is delayed or canceled, ask the airline whether it will pay for meals or lodging. Airlines may offer these as a courtesy, but they are not required to do so.

Delayed or Damaged Bags

If your bags are not on the conveyor belt when you arrive, file a report with the airline before you leave the airport:

- Insist the airline fill out a form and give you a copy, even if personnel say the bags will be on the next flight.
- Get the name of the person who filled out the form and a phone number.
- Confirm that the airline will deliver the bags to you without charge when they are found.

Some airlines will give you money to purchase a few necessities. If they do not provide you with cash, ask what types of articles are reimbursable and keep all receipts.

If a suitcase arrives damaged, the airline may pay for repairs if you file a claim immediately (before you leave the airport). If an item cannot be fixed, the airline will negotiate to pay you its depreciated value. The same is true for belongings packed inside a suitcase. However, airlines may refuse to pay for damage if it was caused by your failure to pack something properly rather than by the airline's handling.

Lost Bags

If your bag is declared officially lost, you will have to submit a second, more detailed form within a time period set by the airline. The information on the form is used to estimate the value of your lost belongings. Airlines can limit their liability for delay, loss, and damage to baggage; however, they must prominently display this information (on the website and/or at the ticket counter) that explains the limit. According to the Department of Transportation an airline must pay a maximum of $3,500 on lost bags and their contents per passenger on domestic flights, and approximately $1,685 per passenger for baggage on international flights.

If the airline's offer does not cover your loss fully, check your homeowner's or renter's insurance to see whether it covers losses away from home. Some credit card companies and travel agencies also offer optional or even automatic supplemental baggage coverage.

On those trips when you know you are carrying more than the liability limits, you may want to ask about purchasing "excess valuation" insurance from the airline when you check in. There is no guarantee the airline will sell you this protection. The airline may refuse, especially if the item is valuable or breakable.

Overbooked Flights

It is not illegal to sell more tickets than there are seats for a flight. Most airlines overbook their flights to compensate for "no-shows." If there are more passengers than seats just before a plane is scheduled to depart, you can be "bumped" or left behind against your will. Whether you are bumped may depend on when you officially checked in for your flight, so check-in early. The U.S. Department of Transportation requires airlines to ask people to give up their seats voluntarily in exchange for compensation. Airlines decide what to offer volunteers, such as money, a free trip, food, or lodging.

Passengers who are bumped involuntarily on most flights within the United States, and on outbound international flights are protected under Federal Aviation Administration guidelines (www.faa.gov). If you volunteer to be bumped, your agreement with the airline is not regulated and will depend on negotiating at the gate.

The airline must give you a written statement describing your rights as well as the airline's boarding priority rules and criteria. If the airline is able to get you to your final destination within two hours of your original arrival time, there is no monetary compensation. If that is not possible, the airline must pay you an amount equal to 200% of your one-way fare, with a maximum of $675. To receive this payment, you must have a confirmed reservation. You must also meet the airline's deadlines for ticketing and check-in. An airline may offer you a free ticket on a future flight in place of a check, but you have the right to insist on a check.

CRUISES

Taking a cruise can be a fun way to travel and enjoy an all-inclusive vacation. Before you sail, you should know that your ticket is also a binding contractual agreement between you and the cruise ship company, so it is important to read all of the terms and conditions in the ticket contract. You must agree to the terms, exactly as they are written, or you cannot take the cruise. Before you book tickets on a cruise, research the company and the ship's history.

Some things to look out for when reading the contract:

- Cancellation policy. What are your rights if you have to cancel your trip? How far in advance do you have to cancel in order to get a refund? Will it be a partial or a full refund?
- Understand your legal rights. Your contract may limit your ability to sue the company or specify the time frame and location where a court case must be filed.
- Itinerary changes. The itinerary and ports of call can be changed at the captain's discretion.
- Refunds. Are you able to get a refund for your ticket? If so, what portion of the cruise price will be refunded?

Visit www.transportation.gov/mission/safety/passenger-cruise-ship-information for more cruise safety resources.

TRAVEL SAFETY

Several federal agencies offer advice and information on the Internet or mobile apps that can help you have a safe trip.

TRAVEL SCAMS

Be aware of these common signs of travel scams:

- Phone calls or emails that say you have "won" a free vacation, but must pay a service fee in order to claim it.
- Scammers call selling fake vacation packages, putting pressure on you to "act now" to get a very low price.
- You qualify for travel at a low price, but find out about additional fees or requirements to book a second trip at a higher price.
- You prepay for a vacation package, but when it is time to travel, the reservation doesn't exist.

Take steps to protect yourself:

- Don't pay for "free" vacation prizes.
- Ask questions before buying vacation packages, including cancellation policies.
- Verify ticket numbers with the airlines, cruiselines, and hotels, not just the reservation with the travel agency.
- Don't give in to pressure to buy now. Do your research beforehand.
- Use credit cards to book travel, so that you can dispute charges for services you didn't receive.

For more information or to file a complaint, contact:

- The Federal Trade Commission (p. 102).
- Your state consumer protection office (p. 106).

For advice on:

- Airline, highway, and rail safety information: Check out the U.S. Department of Transportation (p. 100) at www.transportation.gov to look up crash-safety reports on cars and road conditions. Find out how weather is affecting air travel at www.fly.faa.gov and www.faa.gov/passengers.
- Safe travel by air, land, and sea: Refer to the Transportation Security Administration (p. 97) at www.tsa.gov/travel. This website posts tips on dealing with airline security checks, traveling with kids, and warnings on prohibited items.
- International travel: Before travelling internationally, enroll in the Smart Travel Enrollment Program (STEP) to get updates about the country you will be visiting. Visit step.state.gov/step to get warnings on locations to avoid, and tips on what to do in an overseas emergency.
- Health-related travel information: Consult the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention (p. 94) at www.cdc.gov/travel. Research vaccination requirements, find information on how to avoid illnesses caused by food and water, and review sanitation inspection scores on specific cruise ships.

HEATING YOUR HOME WITH OIL

If you heat your home with oil, you have to choose an oil provider, a pricing system, and a service plan. When you shop for a home heating oil provider, ask:

How is the oil priced per gallon?

- Fixed rate. The same price throughout the season
- Market rate. You pay whatever the rate is on the day your oil is delivered.
- Capped rate. Your price can't exceed a set amount.

What are your payment options?

- Prepay. You pay before the season starts.
- Cash on Delivery (C.O.D.). You pay for your oil upon delivery.

What type of oil provider do you need?

- Full service. The company offers a service contract, for automatic delivery, emergency service, or equipment maintenance.
- Discount companies. The company only delivers oil.

Contact your state consumer protection agency (p. 106) or utility commission (p. 131) for more information.

UTILITIES

In many states, consumers can choose their telephone and energy service provider. Contact your state utility commission (p. 131) to find out whether you have a choice. Some commissions will provide a list of service providers and advice on making a choice, and most state utility commissions will take any complaints you have about utility sales and services.

STARTING UTILITY SERVICE

When you move into a new home or apartment, you may also be required to have the utility services (electricity, gas, water, waste removal, and cable) started in your name. Your city or county government may handle some services, such as water, sewer, and garbage collection. If you live in an apartment or are leasing a house from a homeowner, the landlord may handle this for you, but that is not required. Notify the utility provider in advance of the date you need service to start. If you are moving, remember to have service turned off at your old address.

Each company may require you to pay a fee to start service. You may also be required to pay a deposit or allow the company to check your credit to establish service at your home. If any of these companies fails to meet its service requirements, file a complaint with the company. If that does not work, contact your state utility commission (p. 131).

In addition to your actual service, you may have other fees on your bill, such as administrative fees, public surcharges, or local taxes. Contact the service provider if you see charges you do not understand or did not authorize, or if you have difficulty making timely payments.

If you have difficulty paying your bills, especially for electricity or gas, help is available. Contact the company to find out if it has a program in place to help consumers. Also, your state's utility commission (p. 131) may sponsor a program to either reduce your bill or make your payments based on a set amount of your income each month. Programs like these from utility companies and local government are usually based on your income. You may also consider applying for help through the Low Income Home Energy Assistance Program (LIHEAP). The benefits vary from state to state. Visit www.acf.hhs.gov/ocs/programs/liheap or call 1-866-674-6327 for more information.

UTILITY SCAMS

Be aware of these common signs of utility scams:

- You receive a call claiming that your service will be cut off immediately, unless you pay with a prepaid gift card.
- Someone calls you, pretending to be a government employee. He or she claims that you qualify for a grant to pay your utility bill, in full.
- Someone claiming to be with your local utility company comes to your home during a power outage and offers to reconnect your service, if you pay with cash.

Take steps to protect yourself:

- Don't give in to pressure to pay a utility bill that requires you to pay with a branded gift card.
- Verify assistance programs with your utility provider or state utility commission.
- Call the utility company to verify that it authorized someone to come to your home. Ask about service fees.

For more information or to file a complaint, contact:

- The Federal Trade Commission (p. 103).
- Your state utility commission (p. 131).

WRITE A DIGITAL ASSET PLAN

Many things you use are intangible, like digital music and photos, streaming music and TV, social media websites, email accounts, and reward points.

A digital asset plan explains how you would like these assets and online accounts to be handled after your death. Appoint someone you trust as a digital asset executor. This person will close accounts, social media profiles, and handle all of your digital assets. When writing a digital asset plan:

- Review the terms and conditions of each company where you have digital assets and profiles to know their policies when a customer dies. Find out if any companies will allow you assign access to someone else, ahead of time.
- State if you would like your social media profiles to be closed or keep it open for friends and family.
- Provide a list of the companies where you have digital accounts, screen lock for your cell phone, usernames and passwords with your will.
- Include the credit card or bank account numbers that are used to pay for fee-based service so that the executor can stop the charges.
- Stipulate in your will that the executor of your digital asset plan should have a copy of your death certificate. He or she may need this in order to take any actions on your behalf.

WILLS AND FUNERALS

People at all economic levels benefit from an estate plan. An estate plan legally protects and distributes your property based on your wishes and the needs of your family and/or survivors with the fewest tax consequences.

As you make plans for the end of life, it is important to share details with family ahead of time. Make sure you know whose names are on accounts with you, and their rights to the account after your death (See “Managing Someone Else’s Bank Account” on page 6) so that they can have access to them after your death. If you are married, make sure your spouse knows how to access all of your accounts. You may also have a durable financial power of attorney to manage your finances if you are unable to do so.

WILLS

A will states how you want your property to be distributed after you die. Writing a will can be as simple as typing out how you want your assets to be transferred to loved ones or charitable organizations. If you do not have a will when you die, your estate will be handled in probate. In probate, your property could be distributed differently from what you would like. When writing your will, remember:

- In most states, you must be 18 years of age or older.
- You must be of sound judgment and have adequate mental capacity.
- The document must clearly state that it is your will.
- An executor of your will, who ensures your estate is distributed according to your wishes, must be named.
- You must sign your will in the presence of at least two witnesses, for it to be valid. Your will doesn't have to be notarized, but doing so can safeguard any claims that it is invalid.
- A financial will and testament supersedes a last will and testament when bestowing financial assets.

It may help to get legal advice when writing a will, particularly when it comes to understanding all of the rules of the estate disposition process in your state. Some states, for instance, have community property laws that entitle your surviving spouse to keep at least half of your wealth after you die, no matter what percentage you leave him or her in your will. Fees for the execution of a will vary according to its complexity. See page 61 for more on finding legal help.

Choose an Executor

An executor is the person responsible for settling the estate after your death. Duties of an executor include:

- Taking inventory of property and belongings.
- Appraising and distributing assets according to the will.
- Paying taxes.
- Settling debts owed by the deceased.

The executor is legally obligated to act in the interests of the deceased, following the wishes stated in the will. In most states, any person over the age of 18 who has not been convicted of a felony can be named executor of a will. Some people choose a lawyer, accountant, or financial consultant based on his or her professional experience. Others choose a spouse, adult child, relative, or friend. Since the role of executor can be demanding, it is often a good idea to ask the person if he or she is willing to serve.

If you have been named executor in someone's will but are not able or do not want to serve, you need to file a "declination," which is a legal document that declines your designation as an executor. The contingent executor named in the will then assumes responsibility. If a contingent executor isn't named, the court will appoint one.

Beneficiaries

As you write your will, you need to decide who you want to inherit your assets. Primary beneficiaries are your first choice to receive your assets. You should also choose secondary or contingent beneficiaries. A secondary beneficiary will receive your assets if your primary beneficiary dies before you do or doesn't meet a condition (ex. age) for inheritance. Designating a secondary beneficiary can also prevent going through probate, which can be time consuming and expensive. Use specific names, instead of broad categories like "nieces", when naming beneficiaries in your will.

You should also add primary and secondary beneficiaries on your individual bank accounts, the deeds to your homes and cars, contents of your safe deposit boxes, investments, and insurance policies to make it easier to transfer the assets.

Remember that giving someone power of attorney does not automatically make this person a beneficiary of your assets. After you die, this person will not have the right to the money or even the right to access your account. If you want this person to be a beneficiary, you must state it in your will.

TRUSTS

A trust is a legal document that states how you, the grantor, want your assets and possessions to be managed and distributed to your beneficiaries.

A living trust (inter vivos) is one that a grantor sets up while still alive, while an after-death trust (testamentary) is usually established by a will after your death. Living trusts can be irrevocable (can't be changed) or revocable (can be changed). The most common type of trust is the revocable living trust.

Any person who owns assets can create a trust. However, it does take time to set up a trust, and requires documentation to transfer your personal assets, bank accounts, deeds, and investments to the trust. It is recommended that you work with an estate attorney or financial planner to create the trust. Find out the licensing requirements with your state's Bar, securities administrator, or other regulatory offices. Be wary of pitches for creating a living trust from a salesperson; they could be a scam.

Some common reasons for setting up a trust include:

- Providing for minor children or family members who are inexperienced or unable to handle financial matters.
- Arranging for management of personal assets if you aren't able to handle them yourself.
- Avoiding probate and immediately transferring assets to beneficiaries upon death.
- Reducing estate taxes and providing money to pay for them.
- Maintaining your privacy. The terms of a trust are not public record, unlike wills.

The costs to set up a trust vary, depending on its complexity and the assets that have to be managed in the trust.

Role of a Trustee

A trustee is the person(s) or company that you choose to oversee your trust. The trust establishes who the trustee is, and states the guiding principles that the trustee should adhere to in managing the trust. The trustee can be a spouse, partner, family member, financial professional or a bank's trust department.

The trustee is responsible for managing the assets in the trust, even while you are alive but are physically or mentally incapacitated. Upon your death, the trustee gathers your assets, pays any outstanding expenses, debts, and taxes, and then distributes the remaining assets to your beneficiaries.

FUNERALS

One of the largest expenses many consumers will face is arranging for a funeral. Extras such as flowers, obituary notices, and limousines can add to the cost. At such a highly emotional time, many people are easily swayed to believe that their decisions reflect how they feel about the deceased and wind up spending more than may be necessary.

Most funeral providers are professionals who work to serve their clients' needs and best interests. Unfortunately, some do not and may take advantage of clients by insisting on unnecessary services and overcharging consumers. The Funeral Rule is a federal rule that regulates the actions of funeral directors, homes, and services.

Many funeral providers offer a variety of package plans that include products and services that are most commonly sold. Keep in mind, you are not obligated to buy a package. You have the right to buy the individual products and services you prefer. As outlined by the Funeral Rule:

- The funeral provider must state this “Rule” in writing on the general price list.
- You have the right to choose the funeral goods and services you want (with some exceptions).
- If state or local law requires you to buy any particular item, the funeral provider must disclose it on the price list, with a reference to the specific law.
- The funeral provider may not refuse, or charge a fee, to handle a casket that you bought elsewhere.
- A funeral provider who offers cremations must make alternative urns available.
- When prepaying for funeral services, do not agree to give the check from the life insurance company directly to the funeral home. You are paying for specific goods and services, and signing over the life insurance check might result in a significant overpayment for services rendered.

If you chose cremation, the price listed may not actually include the cost of the process. Ask the funeral home to state that cost to you. Visit www.consumer.ftc.gov/articles/0070-shopping-funeral-services for more information about the Funeral Rule.

Planning ahead is the best way to make informed decisions about funeral arrangements. An advance plan also spares your family from having to make choices in the middle of grief and under time constraints. Every family is different, and funeral arrangements are influenced by religious and cultural traditions, budgets, and personal preferences.

You are not legally required to use a funeral home to plan and conduct a funeral, but most people find that the services of a professional funeral home make the process easier. Comparison shopping, either in person or by phone, can save you money and is much easier when done in advance. Visit funerals.org to learn more about how to select a funeral home and research its history. Many funeral homes will also send you a price list by mail, but this is not required by law.

If you have a problem concerning funeral matters, it is best to try to resolve it first with the funeral home director. If you are dissatisfied, the Funeral Consumers Alliance (p. 105) may be able to advise you on how best to resolve your issue. You can also contact your state or local consumer protection agency (p. 106) or the Funeral Service Consumer Assistance Program at 1-800-662-7666. Most states have a licensing board that regulates the funeral industry. You can contact the board in your state for information or help.

Prepaying

Millions of Americans have entered into contracts to prearrange their funerals and prepay some or all of the expenses involved. Various states have laws to help ensure that these advance payments are available to pay for the funeral products and services when they are needed; however, protections vary widely from state to state. Some state laws require the funeral home or cemetery to place a percentage of the prepayment in a state-regulated trust or to purchase a life insurance policy with the death benefits assigned to the funeral home or cemetery. For a list of questions to consider before prepaying for a funeral, visit www.consumer.ftc.gov/articles/0305-planning-your-own-funeral.

WILL AND FUNERAL SCAMS

Be aware of these common signs of will and funeral scams:

- You are told that you must buy all services and burial materials as part of a package.
- You agree to prepay for funeral and burial services, but the company that you pay to handle it uses your money for other purposes instead.
- Aggressive sales tactics to get you to prepay for your burial, sell you trusts, or write your will.

Take steps to protect yourself:

- Research and interview several service providers.
- Get price lists, so that you can make comparisons.
- Read the contract before you sign and get all promises in writing. Don't leave blank spaces.

SERVICES AND RESOURCES FOR PERSONS WITH DISABILITIES

Relay Services: Telecommunications relay services link telephone conversations between individuals who use standard voice telephones and those who use text telephones (TTYs). Calls may be made from either type of telephone to the other type through the relay service.

Local Relay Services: States provide relay services for local and long-distance calls. Consult your local telephone directory for information on use, fees (if any), services, and dialing instructions for that area.

Federal Relay

Service: The FRS, a program of the U.S. General Services Administration (GSA), provides access to TTY users who wish to conduct official business nationwide with, and within, the federal government. The toll free number is 1-800-877-8339. For more information on relay communications, or to obtain a brochure on using the FRS, call 1-800-877-0996.

Other Services: Consumers who are deaf or hard of hearing, or who have a speech impairment and use a TTY, may receive operator and directory assistance for calls by dialing 1-800-855-1155. Check the introductory pages of your local telephone directory for additional TTY services.

ACCESS TO THE SHARING ECONOMY

Some industries, such as car and home-sharing services, purchased only through apps, may not be required to comply with the Americans with Disabilities Act. They may be exempt if they are a technology company that contracts out the actual work, like driving and hosting, to private individuals.

Before ordering services from these companies, find out if the service can accommodate wheelchairs, walkers, or service animals. If possible, contact the individual providing the service, or a hotline, to inform him or her of your needs. FOR MILITARY PERSONNEL

Today's military families face many common consumer challenges as well as the additional stress associated with frequent moves and separation. To ease such difficulties, Family Centers, along with the other programs described in this section, provide help and support for military families.

U.S. Military Family Centers

Located on most military installations, Family Centers provide information, life skills education, and support services to military members and their families. Family Centers link people with appropriate services available in the local community and/or through state and federal assistance programs in health and human services, school systems, employment assistance, law enforcement, and recreation.

Air Force Airman and Family Readiness

Airman and Family Readiness Centers (A&FRC) are located on every Air Force installation and offer a wealth of resources to airmen and their families. They provide consultations on financial management, transition assistance, spouse employment, readiness, deployment, family life, and relocation assistance.

RESOURCES FOR MILITARY FAMILIES

Check with family readiness centers on your installation to get access to financial help. The Consumer Financial Protection Bureau's Office of Servicemember Affairs offers resources to help plan your financial future and prevent being a victim of fraud at www.consumerfinance.gov/servicemembers. The Federal Trade Commission offers information about consumer issues that affect service members at www.military.consumer.gov. The Better Business Bureau also offers consumer education and advocacy through their Military Line at www.bbbmarketplacetrust.org/category/291048/military-and-veterans. File complaints about scams with the FTC (p. 102). Contact the CFPB (p. 93) for complaints about financial products.

Fleet and Family Support Programs

www.ffsp.navy.mil

The Fleet and Family Support Program provides support, references, information, and a wide range of assistance for members of the Navy and their families to meet the unique challenges of the military lifestyle.

Marine Corps Community Services (MCCS)

BEWARE:

FRAUDS AGAINST SERVICEMEN

Servicemembers are appealing targets for scammers. They receive a steady paycheck, reenlistment bonuses, and deployment pay. In addition, military families move frequently and do not know which sellers to avoid. Scam artists also know that military personnel are required to keep their finances in good shape and may be more likely to pay a fake debt to keep their finances in good standing.

Take steps to protect yourself and your finances:

- Be wary of sellers or “investment professionals” that use their connection to the military to make a sale.
- Change your mailing address when you are restationed.
- Place an active duty alert with the credit reporting agencies. This limits scammers from applying for credit in your name while you are deployed.
- Know your rights. The Servicemember Civil Relief Act protects you from default judgements and allows you to cancel contracts and leases. Visit scra.dmdc.osd.mil for more information.

Commissaries and Exchanges

Consumers who have a question about, or problem with, a military commissary or exchange should contact the local manager before contacting the regional office. If your problem is not resolved at the local level, write to or call the regional office nearest you.

It's crucial that military personnel have access to financial education resources that enable them to make prudent saving and investing decisions for themselves and their families. This site offers online and on-the-ground training to support military personnel at key financial milestones.

National Cemetery Administration

All veterans are entitled to a free burial in a national cemetery and a grave marker. Spouses, dependent children, as well as some civilians and Public Health Service personnel may also be entitled to a burial and marker in a national cemetery. Visit www.cem.va.gov or contact the Department of Veterans Affairs, National Cemetery Administration (p. 101) to learn more.

FOR SENIORS

Today's seniors face many consumer challenges. They have to make complicated decisions about finances, retirement, and healthcare.

In addition, seniors must stay on the alert for the latest scams and frauds. They typically have a retirement "nest egg," own equity in their homes that can be converted to cash, and have excellent credit. As seniors are considered as trusting and polite, scam artists take advantage of this, knowing older individuals might find it difficult to just say "no." Finally, seniors are especially vulnerable to ID theft, as they frequently share their personal information (SSN, Medicare numbers) with doctors' offices, caregivers, financial advisors, and other support professionals.

To ease these challenges, the resources described here provide help and support to seniors.

Spending and Money Management

Sticking to a budget can be hard – especially if you are on a fixed income. You can get help planning your expenses, and learn how to reduce your costs.

- HUD Housing Counseling – Get help locating housing, and choosing the best option when buying, selling, or financing a home. Call 1-800-569-4287 or visit www.hud.gov/offices/hsg/sfh/hcc/hcs.cfm to locate a counseling agency in your community.
- MyMoney.gov – This website offers a collection of financial resources to help you throughout several life stages and major financial decisions.

BEWARE: FRAUDS AGAINST SENIORS

Common types of frauds against seniors include:

- Caregiver fraud - A staff member at a nursing home, friend, or family member steals your money.
- Funeral and cemetery fraud - You pay unnecessary charges for funeral and burial services.
- Health care or health insurance fraud - You receive bills for medical services or equipment that you never received or ordered.
- Housing fraud - Real estate professionals attempt to gain access to the equity from your property. They may also fail to explain repayment requirements on reverse mortgages.
- ID theft - Scam artists use your personal information to apply for loans, file taxes, or get medical care.
- Internet fraud - Emails, online ads, pop ups, and search results to trick you into sending money and personal information.
- Investment schemes - Seniors may fall victim to advanced fee schemes, pyramid schemes, and other financial crimes.
- Telemarketing fraud - Scammers call, selling bogus products and services over the phone.

Contact your state consumer protection office (p. 106) or the federal agencies listed in the chart on page 58 to report fraud.

- Senior Farmers Market Nutrition Program – Run by state agencies, this program provides low-income seniors with coupons that can be exchanged for eligible foods at farmers markets, roadside stands, and community-supported agriculture programs. FILE A COMPLAINT

Even the savviest consumer has problems with a product or service at one time or another. It is your right to complain if you have a genuine consumer problem. It is also your responsibility. A problem cannot be fixed if no one knows it exists. Use the graphic on page 61 to learn the basic steps to file a consumer complaint.

CONTACT THE SELLER

The first step in resolving a consumer problem is to contact the seller. You can solve most consumer problems by talking to a local salesperson or representative. If this fails, try going higher up to the national headquarters of the seller or the manufacturer of the item.

Many companies have a customer relations or consumer affairs division whose primary function is solving consumer problems. You can often contact this division through a toll free number, postal mail, online form or contact information listed on the product label or warranty. If this is not the case:

- Check the Corporate Consumer Directory portion of this Handbook for the contact information of several hundred corporations (p. 72).
- Visit the company's website and look for a "Contact Us", "About Us", "Customer Service", or "Privacy Policy" link.
- Dial the directory of toll free numbers at 1-800-555-1212 to see whether the company has a toll free number listed.
- Ask your local librarian to assist you. Most public libraries have reference books with corporate contact information.
- As you do your search, keep in mind that the name of the manufacturer or parent company is often different from the brand name. ThomasNet, an online database of manufacturers, may be helpful.
- With each person you contact, calmly and accurately explain the problem and what action you would like to be taken. A written letter is a good strategy because you will have a record of your communication with the company. The sample letter (p. 60) will help you prepare a written complaint.
- Be brief and to the point. Note all important facts about your purchase, including what you bought, serial or model numbers, the name and location of the seller, and when you made the purchase.
- State exactly what you want done about the problem and how long you are willing to wait for a response. Be reasonable.
- Don't write an angry, sarcastic, or threatening letter. The person reading your letter probably was not responsible for your problem but could be very helpful in resolving it.
- Send your letter by certified mail or request delivery confirmation.
- Include copies of all documents regarding your problem. Keep the originals.
- Provide your name, address, and phone numbers. If an account is involved, include the account number.
- Keep a record of your efforts to contact the seller; include the name of the person with whom you spoke and what was done, if anything. You should also keep a record of the dates and times of your contact.
- If you use a company's online complaint form, print the screen or take a screenshot before you click "submit" so that you have a record of your complaint.

CONTACT THIRD PARTIES

Don't give up if you are not satisfied with the seller's response to your complaint. Once you have given the seller a reasonable amount of time to respond, consider filing a complaint with one or more of these outside organizations:

State or local consumer protection offices (p. 106). These government agencies mediate complaints, conduct investigations, and prosecute those who break consumer laws.

State regulatory agencies that have jurisdiction over the business. For example, banking (p. 119), insurance

How to File a Complaint

(p. 123), securities (p. 127), and utilities (p. 131) are regulated at the state level.

State and local licensing agencies. Doctors, lawyers, home improvement contractors, auto repair shops, realtors, debt collectors, and child care providers are required to register or be licensed. The board or agency that oversees this process may handle complaints and have the authority to take disciplinary action. Your state or local consumer protection office (p. 106) can help you identify the appropriate agency.

Better Business Bureau (p. 67). This network of nonprofit organizations supported by local businesses tries to resolve buyer complaints against sellers. Records are kept on unresolved complaints as a source of information for the seller's future customers. The umbrella organization for the BBBs assists with complaints concerning the truthfulness of national advertising and helps to settle "lemon law" disputes with automobile manufacturers through the BBB AUTO LINE program (p. 66).

Trade associations. Companies that sell or produce similar products or services often belong to an industry association that will help resolve problems between its members and consumers (p. 135).

National consumer organizations. Some of these organizations assist consumers with complaints (p. 104).

Media programs. Local newspapers, radio stations, and television stations often have action lines or hotline services that try to resolve consumer complaints they receive. Call for Action, Inc. (p. 104) is a nonprofit network of consumer hotlines that educate and assist individuals with consumer problems.

DISPUTE RESOLUTION PROGRAMS

Some companies and industries offer programs to address disagreements between buyers and sellers. The auto industry (p. 66) has several of these programs. The Financial Industry Regulatory Authority (p. 136) offers a program to resolve investment-related disputes.

Mediation, arbitration, and conciliation are three common types of dispute resolution. During mediation, both sides involved in the dispute meet with a neutral third party and create their own agreement jointly. In arbitration, the third party decides how to settle the problem. Conciliation is similar; however, you and the other party meet with the conciliator separately (not a group meeting). Request a copy of the rules of any program before deciding to participate. You will want to know beforehand whether the decision is binding; some programs do not require both parties to accept the decision. Also ask whether participation in the program places any restrictions on your ability to take other legal action.

SMALL CLAIMS COURT

Small claims courts resolve disputes over small amounts of money. Court procedures are generally simple, inexpensive, quick, and informal. Additionally court fees are minimal. You probably will not need a lawyer. Even though the court is informal, the judge's decision must be followed.

If you file a case and win, the losing party should give you what the court says you are owed without further action on your part. If the losing party refuses to follow the court's decision, you can go back to court and ask for the order to be enforced. Depending on local laws, law enforcement officials might sell a person's property, or take money from a bank account or business cash register.

Contact your municipal, county, or state government to find small claims court offices. If you have more questions, the court's clerk may be able to answer your questions.

LEGAL HELP AND INFORMATION

If you need an attorney to advise or represent you, ask friends and family for recommendations. You can also contact the Lawyer Referral Service of your state, county, or city bar association listed in your local phone directory. Websites such as www.americanbar.org (American Bar Association) and www.nolo.com can help you with answers to general legal questions.

Choosing an Attorney

Many lawyers who primarily serve individuals and families are general practitioners with experience in frequently needed legal services, such as divorce and family matters, wills and probate, bankruptcy and debt problems, real estate, and criminal and/or personal injury. Be sure the lawyer you are considering has experience in the area for which you are seeking help.

Once you have identified some candidates:

- Call each attorney and describe your legal issue to find out whether they handle your situation.
- Ask if you will be charged for an initial consultation.
- Ask for an estimate of what the lawyer usually charges to handle your kind of case.
- Ask whether there are hourly charges, or if your attorney accepts a percentage of the settlement as a contingency fee. If the lawyer is paid by a contingency fee, then he or she will only receive a payment if they win your case.

The initial consultation is an opportunity for you and the lawyer to get to know each other. After listening to the description of your case, the lawyer should be able to outline your rights and liabilities, as well as alternative courses of action. The initial consultation is the lawyer's opportunity to explain what he or she can do for you and how much it will cost. You should not hesitate to ask about the attorney's experience in handling matters such as yours. Also, do not hesitate to ask about the lawyer's fees and the likely results. If you are considering going beyond the initial consultation and hiring the lawyer, request a written fee agreement before proceeding.

MANDATORY ARBITRATION

Mandatory arbitration clauses in contracts prevent you from filing a lawsuit against a company. These clauses are fairly common in automotive, credit card, and cell phone contracts. But now, they are appearing in the terms and conditions on websites, coupons, or corporate social media profiles. While arbitration can be a less expensive form of dispute resolution, it is sometimes seen as an unfair practice to make arbitration a requirement before a negative incident has happened or knowing how serious the problem is. Also, the decisions are binding, so you can't appeal the decision, even if the company was severely negligent.

Before you sign a contract or even use a website, read the contract or terms of service for mentions of "arbitration", "binding arbitration" or "resolution programs"; This language is often in the fine print of the contract and can be easily missed. Also, note that some companies may let you opt-out of these clauses, if you do so within a set period of time.

ONLINE REVIEWS

Have you ever posted a review of a company on social media or a review website, after a bad experience? You have the right to post comments about a company's product or service. A company can't forbid you to post honest comments about its products or services. It also can't threaten financial penalties or legal action if you do so. If a company threatens you about a comment, file a complaint with the Federal Trade Commission (p. 102) or your state consumer protection office (p. 106).

What If You Cannot Afford a Lawyer?

If you cannot afford a lawyer, you may qualify for free legal help from a Legal Aid or Legal Services Corporation (LSC) office. These offices generally offer legal assistance for such things as landlord-tenant relations, credit, utilities, family matters (for example, divorce and adoption), foreclosure, home equity fraud, Social Security benefits, welfare, unemployment, and workers' compensation. If the Legal Aid office in your area does not handle your type of case, it may refer you to other local, state, or national organizations that can provide help.

- To find the Legal Aid office nearest to you, check a local telephone directory or contact:

National Legal Aid & Defender Association
1901 Pennsylvania Ave., NW Suite 500
Washington, DC 20006
Phone: 202-452-0620
www.nlada.org

- To find the Legal Services Corporation (LSC) office closest to you, check a local telephone directory or contact:

Legal Services Corporation Public Affairs
3333 K St., NW
Washington, DC 20007
Phone: 202-295-1500
www.lsc.gov

Free assistance may also be available from a local law school program where students, supervised by attorneys, handle a variety of legal matters. Some of these programs are open to all; others limit their service to specific groups, such as senior citizens or low-income persons.

REPORT FRAUD AND SAFETY HAZARDS

If you suspect a law has been violated, contact your local or state consumer protection agency (p. 106). This agency may take action or refer you to another state organization that has authority where you live. A local law enforcement officer may also be able to provide advice and assistance.

Violations of federal laws should be reported to the federal agency responsible for enforcement. While federal agencies are rarely able to act on behalf of individual consumers, complaints are used to document patterns of abuse, allowing the agency to take action against a company or industry.

If you suspect fraud, there are some additional steps to take:

- Report the fraud to the Federal Trade Commission (p. 102).
- Report scams that use the mail or interstate delivery service to the U.S. Postal Inspection Service (p. 103). It is illegal to use the mail to misrepresent or steal money.
- Report scams that are Internet-based to the Internet Crime Complaint Center at www.ic3.gov.

Reporting fraud promptly improves your chances of recovering what you have lost and helps law enforcement authorities stop scams before others are victimized.

If you suspect you have a product that poses a health or safety hazard, report the problem to the appropriate federal agency:

Contact Your Automotive Manufacturer

If you have a problem with a car you purchased from a local dealer, first try to work it out with the dealer. Contact the manufacturer's regional or national office. Ask for the Consumer Affairs Office If the problem is not resolved.

If you are still unsuccessful, consider contacting the automotive dispute resolution resources listed at the end of this section. The method used to resolve your dispute may be mediation, arbitration, or conciliation. Decisions of arbitrators are usually binding and must be accepted by both the customer and the business. Ask for a copy of the rules of the program before you file your case. See page 61 for an overview of dispute resolution programs.

A local or state consumer agency (p. 106) could also be a useful resource in resolving problems with your vehicle. If you have a new vehicle, be sure to ask whether you have any protection under a state "lemon" law (p. 11).

Contact Corporate Consumer Affairs Departments

The following directory lists the contact information for hundreds of corporations. Many companies have a consumer affairs department that handles consumer questions and concerns. If you do not find the company you are looking for, check your public libraries for the following resources:

- The Standard & Poor's Register of Corporations, Directors and Executives
- Trade Names Directory
- Standard Directory of Advertisers
- Dun & Bradstreet Directory

Check the product label and other documents given to you at the time of your purchase to identify the product's manufacturer. ThomasNet, an online database of manufacturers, might also be helpful.

If you have a complaint about an item or service, it is often best to go back to the seller BEFORE you contact the companies in this directory. Follow up with a letter, phone call, or email message to the consumer affairs department of the company to report your complaint, and whether the seller was able to resolve your problem. You may express your complaint on a company's social media profile to get quick attention to your problem.

Contact Federal Agencies

Many federal agencies have enforcement and/or complaint-handling duties for products and services used by the general public. Others act for the benefit of the public, but do not resolve individual consumer problems. Agencies also create printed publications, and websites that may be helpful when making purchase decisions or dealing with consumer problems. Some agencies provide timely information to citizens through profile pages and videos on social media outlets, blogs, text messages, and news feeds. Call toll free 1-844-872-4681 to get help determining the right agency to contact.

Contact Your Local Consumer Protection Offices

State, county, and city consumer protection offices offer a variety of important services. They might mediate complaints, conduct investigations, prosecute offenders of consumer laws, license and regulate professionals, provide educational materials, and advocate in the consumer interest.

An advantage of contacting a city or county government office is that it is familiar with local businesses, ordinances, and state laws.

You can also contact your state consumer protection office to get more information about other local resources or nonprofit organizations that help consumers.

Before sending a written complaint, call the office to confirm that it handles the type of complaint you have. Many offices distribute consumer materials specifically geared to state laws and local issues. Ask whether any information is available regarding your problem.

Note: Toll free phone numbers may be restricted to use only within the state listed.

Contact Your Local Banking Authority

The officials listed below regulate and supervise state-chartered banks. Many of them handle or refer problems and complaints about other types of financial institutions as well. Some also answer general questions about banking and consumer credit. If you are dealing with a federally-chartered bank, check the directory of federal agencies on page 93. Also see the chart in the Banking section on page 8.

Note: Toll free phone numbers may be restricted to use only within the state listed.

Contact Your Local Securities Administrator

State securities regulators protect the investing public. Each state has its own laws and regulations for securities brokers and securities, including stocks, mutual funds, commodities, real estate, and more. The agencies listed below enforce these laws and regulations. They also license securities professionals, register securities, and investigate consumer complaints. While these agencies do not provide investment advice, many of them offer educational resources so investors can make informed investment decisions.

Contact the company involved if you have a question or complaint about an investment. If you are not satisfied with the response you get, contact your state securities administrator.

Note: Toll free phone numbers may be restricted to use only within the state listed.

Contact Your Local Utilities Commission

State utilities commissions regulate services and rates for gas, electricity, and telephones in your state. In some states, the utility commissions regulate other services such as water, transportation, and the moving of household goods. Rates for utilities and services provided between states are regulated by the federal government.

Many utilities commissions handle consumer complaints. Sometimes, if they receive a number of complaints about the same utility matter, they will conduct investigations.

Note: Toll free phone numbers may be restricted to use only within the state listed.
