

Surf instructor's new iPhone 7 EXPLODED into flames inside his car - as Apple launches an investigation

- Surf instructor Mat Jones claims his iPhone 7 exploded inside his car
- He left the device under a pile of his clothes while taking a surf lesson
- Mr Jones returned to find the new phone on fire underneath his trousers
- Apple has launched an investigation and is in contact with the surfer

By Ollie Gillman For Daily Mail Australia

Published: 06:47 EST, 20 October 2016 | Updated: 07:04 EST, 20 October 2016

- e-mail
-

48 shares

8

View comments

A surf instructor has claimed his new iPhone 7 exploded into flames inside his car.

Mat Jones, from Sydney, left his one-week-old phone underneath a pile of clothes in his car while he was taking a surf lesson.

When he returned, his car was filled with smoke and a pair of trousers he left inside the vehicle were ablaze.

+4

Fire: A surf instructor has claimed his new iPhone 7 exploded into flames inside his car

+4

Ablaze: Mat Jones grabbed the trousers and threw them onto the ground as smoke billowed out of the car

Mr Jones grabbed the trousers and threw them onto the ground as smoke billowed out of the car.

'As I look into my car you could not see inside the car. All the windows were just black,' he told 7 News.

'A big heatwave came out of the car.

RELATED ARTICLES

- Previous
- 1
- Next

- Australian man is found NOT GUILTY of murdering Tinder date...

CCTV shows the terrifying moment a man 'knocks out a... 'You're looking pretty

spankable': Creepy sex texts of... From church-going schoolgirl to a deadly drunken Tinder...

Share this article

Share

48 shares

'Ash was coming from inside the pants. Once you unwrapped the pants, the phone was just melting inside of it.'

He shook the phone, which costs more than a $1,000 new, out of the burning clothes and filmed the smouldering remains of his handset.

'Here's the phone - total burnout,' the surf instructor can be heard saying in the recording.

+4

Mr Jones, from Sydney, left his one-week-old phone underneath a pile of clothes in his car while he was taking a surf lesson

+4

He shook the phone, which costs more than a $1,000 new, out of the burning clothes and filmed the smouldering remains of his handset

Mr Jones insists he bought the phone a week ago and that he has not damaged it or used a dodgy charger.

An Apple spokeswoman told Daily Mail Australia that the company was in touch with Mr Jones and that it had launched an investigation.

It is possible for lithium-ion batteries - the kind used in iPhone 7s - to catch fire when exposed to heat.

The incident comes after Samsung axed its Galaxy Note 7 phone after a number of the devices overheated and burst into flames.

The decision could cost the firm $19billion.