

Researcher Shows How Phone Shows A on Conversations It Hears

While social media companies have spent years denying that their apps listen to private conversations, the truth is finally coming out.

Spread the love

Tweet

For years, smartphone users have been growing increasingly suspicious that their devices are listening to them to feed them advertisements and to “enhance their experience” on third-party apps. Companies like Google and Facebook have consistently denied these claims, saying that targeted ads