

Facebook & Google Promise Congress They'll Brainwash You With Their Own 'Counter Propaganda'

Social media giants have gone a step further and promised Congress to deploy their own 'counter-propaganda' to combat what they consider 'extremist content.'

By John Vibes -

Tech giants Facebook, Google and Twitter testified to Congress this week about extremist content appearing on their platforms. In an odd admission, the companies promised to suppress extremist ideologies online by distributing their own "counter-propaganda."