Elon Musk allegedly offered to impregnate right-wing influencer Tiffany Fong - then retaliated by harming her X earnings when she declined his approach, per a new report. The SpaceX founder, 53, is said to be creating a 'legion' of offspring, offering women he deems as intelligent the chance to discreetly bear his children in exchange for millions of dollars.

Fong, who gained notoriety during Sam Bankman-Fried's downfall, was one of the women approached by Musk on X, according to a bombshell report on the Wall Street Journal.

Musk reportedly began liking and replying to the 30-year-old's posts last summer. As Fong ramped up her support of Donald Trump, the Tesla boss followed her. A follow from Musk, whose $370 billion fortune has made him the world's richest man, gave Fong's account massive visibility.

Months ago, Fong caused a stir on X by sharing the huge sums of money she had been earning from the platform's ad-sharing program, sometimes receiving as much as $21,000 over a two-week period.

During the height of her X income, Musk allegedly sent her a direct message asking if she was interested in having his baby, even though they two had never met in person, sources told the WSJ.

Fong declined the offer and shared the incident with another right-wing influencer, Ashley St Clair, who says she had Musk's son last year.

When Musk learned that Fong shared the information with St Clair, he slammed her for not keeping his offer quiet and unfollowed her, which led to a fall in her X engagement and thus her income.

Back in February, Fond spoke to DailyMail.com to deny viral rumors that she was carrying Musk's child as X users wondered how she could make so much money on the ad-share program.

In the same WSJ report, St Clair claimed that Musk offered her $15million for her silence after she birthed his son last year.

EXCLUSIVE

The report also revealed that a paternity test determined Musk is '99.9999%' likely to be the father of the newborn, even though he has said he is not sure about the paternity.

Musk slammed the WSJ on Tuesday by essentially saying that the celebrity gossip website TMZ was a better publication.

He wrote on X: 'TMZ >> WSJ'

St. Clair claimed Musk - who says he's provided her at least $2.5 million to date in March - offered her $15 million and $100,000 a month to not publicly disclose that he is the father of the child until he turns 21.

Jared Birchall, Musk's fixer, told St. Clair that this is similar to what Musk has agreed with the other mothers of his children, who include pop star Grimes and Neuralink executive Shivon Zilis.

Musk allegedly wanted multiple residencies in the same community where all of the women and the children - which insiders suggest is 'much higher' than the known about 14 - would live. The pair met in spring 2023 via social media and Musk invited her to visit the X offices in San Francisco, when St. Clair was the operations manager and conservative humor site The Babylon Bee.

He eventually invited her to a trip on his private plane to Rhode Island to visit one of his children at school.

Musk spoke frequently about having children with St. Clair, telling her 'pick a name' after the first time they had sex.

On a vacation over New Year's heading into 2024, St. Clair revealed she had been ovulating.

Musk asked: 'What are we waiting for?'

St. Clair said that they conceived Romulus soon after.

St Clair also said Musk tried to get her to move to an Austin 'compound' to spend time with himself and the rest of what he calls his 'kid legion.'

Musk allegedly wanted multiple residencies in the same community where all of the women and the children would live.

The tycoon is known to have fathered 14 children but insiders say the real number is much higher.

The one of the mothers who lives in the gated community is Zilis, as even Musk only 'comes and goes' and Grimes rejected the request.

Musk has repeatedly said that he considers declining birth rates a grave threat to human kind.

According to the WSJ, sources said he is 'driven to correct the historic moment by helping seed the earth with more human beings of high intelligence.'
