

The Big Tech Sex Cult Gets Worse

Secret depravity of the Davos global elite: More sex parties than ever, NDAs for prostitutes, transsexual women... and the most commonly-requested sex act revealed

The secret depravity of the global elite coming to the World Economic Forum in Davos has been laid bare, with escort agencies revealing that the demand for sex parties, NDAs for prostitutes and transsexual women has increased.

The forum, which started on Monday, has welcomed more than 3,000 business and political leaders to the Swiss Alps.

But not just the global elite has flocked to the town, as escorts are more in demand than ever among those attending the event.

And according to one website that organises what it calls 'dates you pay for', many of the arrivals are enjoying sex orgies - arranged by individuals who are booking multiple women at once.

'Since the start of the WEF, we've seen around 300 women and trans women been booked in Davos and the surrounding area,' Andreas Berger, spokesman for Titt4tat, told MailOnline.

This is compared to about 170 women in 2024. 'In terms of the number of bookings for commercial intimacy, it was another record year for us [at the WEF],' Mr Berger said.

'There were significantly more sex parties than in previous years,' he added, based on the amount of escorts booked - 300 - by just around 90 customers compared to 140 last year.

And it seems wealthy and powerful clients are also going to increased lengths to keep their sexual activities secret.

'What has changed is that a lot of women in and around Davos now have to sign NDAs [non-disclosure agreements]' Mr Berger said, adding that these agreements were often in English.

We suspect that this is the consequence of recent news about sex parties in Hollywood.'

Another escort agency boss revealed the most popular sex act requested by 'untouchable', powerful clients.

'Anal sex is actually one of the most frequently requested things,' says Susann from the Swiss Escort Avantgarde agency.

She added about the type of clients hiring escorts at the WEF: 'These types of people consider themselves untouchable, which they often realistically are.'

'I think physical attacks on escort ladies, for example to live out a certain BDSM fetish, are absolutely conceivable,' Susann continued.

'In my experience, the higher a man's professional/social rank, the lower his inhibition threshold for violence against women is.'

In terms of the clients at the WEF, another agency revealed: 'CEOs and politicians from large cities that are also represented at the WEF are just as much a part of our customer base as they are in everyday life.'

'Of course I can only speak for our agency, but conversations with other agencies and models show that many men use these services.'

'The main difference lies less in the event itself, but rather in the type of agency and the respective price segment they serve - which often correlates with the customers' income.'

'Our agency operates in the high-class segment, which also reflects our typical customer base.'

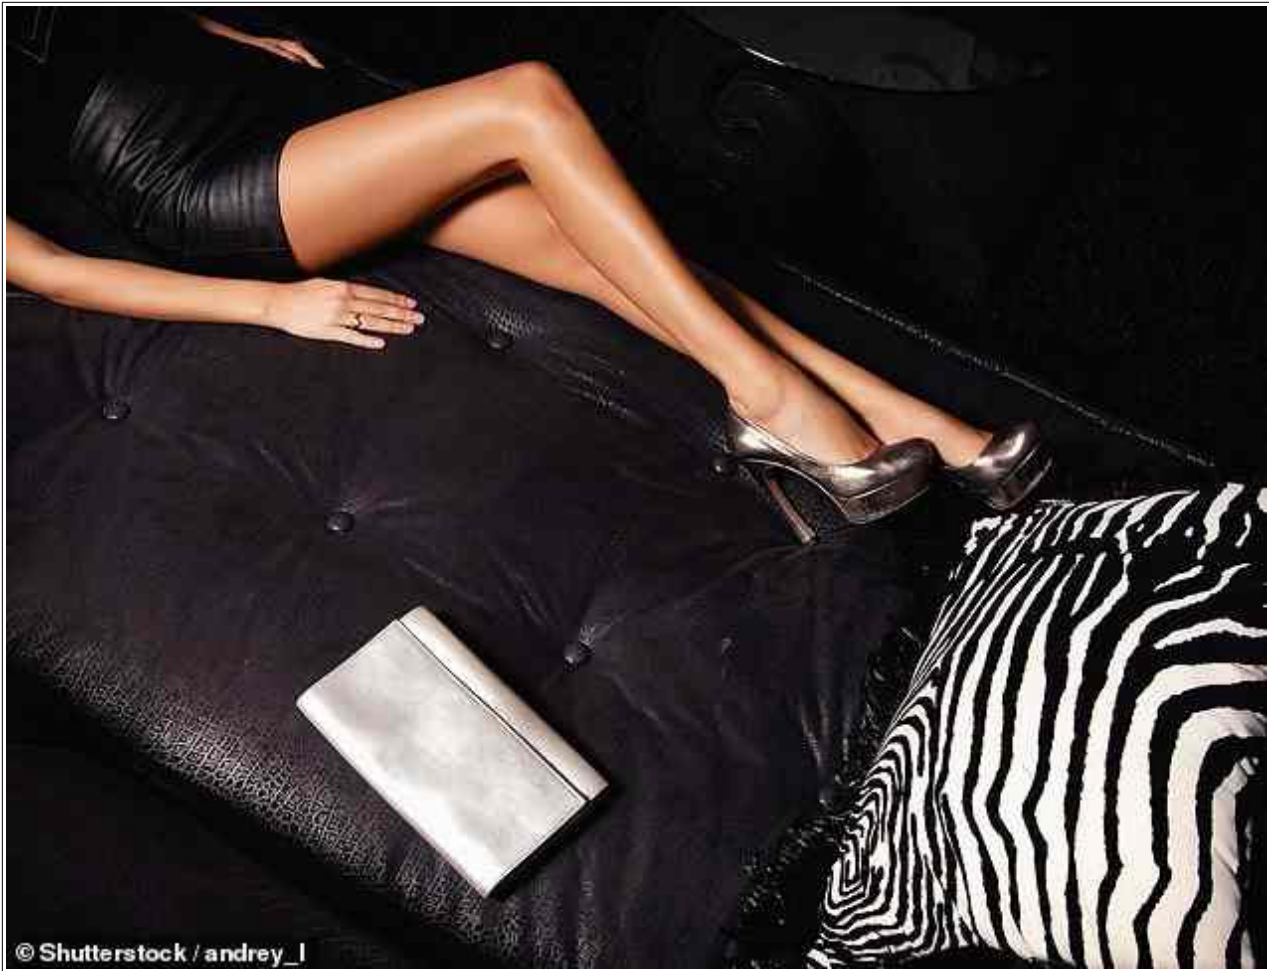

'Our models are usually bilingual, as we address a more sophisticated and high-quality clientele,' Jan and Lia from Lia Models echoed, adding that the in-demand languages were English as the main language and German or French.

'In Davos, people like to show off in the evenings alongside a particularly eye-catching and attractive woman who is introduced as a companion or friend.

'It is advantageous if the companion is not only visually convincing, but also intelligent and quick-witted.

'Ultimately, it is important that the date runs harmoniously and that the companion conveys credibly that she is the client's partner.

'Elegance, style and the ability to comfortably manoeuvre at a high social level take centre stage. A confident appearance is essential in order to meet customer expectations in this exclusive environment.'

Jan and Lia from the Lia Models escort agency said that major events like WEF would generally lead to an increased interest in escorts due to 'many high-ranking and solvent guests arriving from all over the world'

Discretion, all three providers have urged, is of utmost importance in the escort business

Of course, the main reason escorts flock to Davos for WEF is to make money - with eye-watering rates charged during the event and some women easily commanding £6,000 per booking.

But the amounts are nothing to the wealthy clients, the various escort agencies agree - and their customers typically pay for several hours of 'company' with the women.

Titt4tat's Mr Berger added that the average booking duration at the WEF is four hours, which combined with the average hourly rate and the 300 bookings on Titt4Tat during the first three days of the WEF alone would amount to about CHF300,000 (£270,000).

'But there are other providers and agencies. My estimate would be about 1 million CHF (£900,000) in total,' Mr Berger added.
