Declassified 4/2017 FISA Court ruling in a nutshell: NSA can Google search the entire Internet. Texts, chat rooms, everything. But they're not supposed to ever search it for US citizens. Obama's people were doing it. ALOT. i.magaimg.net

There should be an investigation of Obama's last minute executive order allowing collected intelligence to be sent freely between bureaus. This info was collected from the NSA, collected through Susan Rice, given to FBI black hats who then leaked to the media Flynn's phone call with the Russian ambassador. No way such a thing should have been possible without Obama's fuckery. Trump should rescind that EO.

You think any of this could have been used to gather tax info for the IRS or to blackmail a supreme court justice? Or other weird stuff? Cause it could explain some historical thingies.

The FISA Court also announced the end of the practice of searching for communications about a US person.

It appears from this decision that what the NSA used to be able to do was collect all communications referencing a US person, for example, everyone who used "Donald Trump" in a text message. Now the searches are (presumably) limited to communications to or from the person, not communications which merely mention that person. You can see how this would make a huge difference!

I wouldn't be surprised if Obama holdovers were the ones doxing people. A bitch move only a liberal would pull.

Can confirm, tonnnnns of holdovers still sitting in high ranking positions.. Distant relative, who is a YUGE left wing SJW, holds the civilian rank of a 2 star general. She was very vocal on social media after the meat sack lost the election. She's gone quiet since - whether that means she's smartened up and took her anti POTUS rhetoric off of social media and into the shadows, or she saw her 401k growth and shit herself is hard to answer.

Worse than just that, as if that weren't bad enough, they were sharing illegally gathered data with private contractors like FusionGPS and Crowdstrike.

and they probably gave access to 5-eyes or something as "sharing intel with allies"

And for years. And they weaponized the information they gleaned, sold it to various entities, and used it internally to harm their political enemies, acting as a tyrant would.

Here is a simple solution to all of this.

An oversight body requests information. You have 30 days to product that information. If the information is not produced, the head(s) of the department go to jail on contempt charges until the data is released.

Problem solved.

It's probably fair to say that the 4th Amendment didn't exist during the Obama years.
